"It was that bastard, Graham. He was the instructor who took the strap to me, the very first time. I hated him because of that and because he seemed to enjoy tormenting an eight-year-old little girl called Stephanie Walker. Yes, I had my codename, but all that seemed to do was paint a target on my back for that bastard to hit. I turned the beatings around and used them to give me the gall to cause more shit. I'd get beaten for answering back to an instructor. I would get beaten for taking a sparring session too far. I would get beaten for being too cocky for my own good. It all came to a head, one Saturday afternoon."

Mid-June, 2014

An unknown location in the USA

It was Yvette that first noticed Stephanie's behaviour going deep into the danger zone.

The other girls did their best to warn Stephanie off but Stephanie was the boss and nobody dared to argue with her, especially when she got 'that look'. On the Saturday afternoon, 'that look' was back and Yvette nudged Ruth.

"She is going to, err – faire quelque chose de mal . . . do something bad, yes?"

Ruth studied Stephanie's expression and she flinched away at the sight of it. She nodded and tried to grab Stephanie's arm. Stephanie lashed out and struck Ruth in the face. Ruth screamed out in pain which attracted the attention of Instructor Graham. He advanced on Stephanie and brandished his baton.

"You don't learn, girl, do you?" he growled angrily.

"Fuck you!" Stephanie responded as she glared up at her tormentor.

There was a massive intake of breath from the two-dozen or so kids in the room that afternoon. Nobody said that to an instructor – and lived. . . The instructor's face went a strange puce colour as his anger built. His hands flexed for a moment before he turned and picked up his baton. None of the other kids dared to breath as the six-foot man approached the four-foot slim, blonde girl who just glared insolently up at the approaching pain.

..._...

Not many of the kids there had any liking for the girl known as Stephanie 'Psyche' Walker. They saw her as a show-off, a violent psychopath, or just a fucked-up nutcase, among many other crude and nasty comments about the young Brit. Nonetheless, they all cringed in horror while the eight-year-old girl screamed out in pain as the baton cracked across her body and she fell to the ground, writhing in agony. After a dozen strikes, the instructor stepped back to admire his handy work.

Stephanie Walker was bleeding from several cuts on her face and tears poured down her face. Everybody thought that that was it, but no, the young girl was not finished – not by a long shot. Psyche struggled to her feet, her face a mask of hatred and filled with a hunger for revenge. She strode towards her attacker before she executed a perfect spinning kick and the baton fell to the ground. The instructor was incensed at the attack but also very surprised – no kid had ever turned on an instructor before.

His hesitation cost him as Stephanie swept up the baton and she belted him around the head – once, twice, three times. The next blow took the man in the stomach followed up by a blow to the area between his legs. Instructor Graham yelled out and went down hard as he used his hands to cover his torso and protect himself from the blows which rained down on him.

The worm had most definitely turned!

Saturday, July 9th, 2016

South-eastern Chicago

The man was very down about his lot in life.

He had somehow got himself wrapped up with some major criminal shit and, as a result, he had found himself up against Hit Girl and her minions. At the time, they had all seen themselves onto a winner; they had outnumbered Fusion, ten to one. Only, Hit Girl did not appear to listen to odds – she just killed every fucker that came her way. Ned had been shot, twice, in the left leg and then his life had gone down the tubes even further. His day job as a security guard was at risk as he could not 'perform' thanks to his wounds and he also had a bitch of a masked boss who wanted him back to work at night.

The idea of being a hired gun had appealed to Ned and the awesome-looking armour had pretty much sealed the deal! He had never seen such hi-tech armour – not that it had done any of his colleagues any good at the silos. No, the silos had not done him any good at all – he needed to rest and recuperate so he could get his life back on track.

He sat watching the TV whiling away the hours until it was time for him to go get some sleep before work the following morning. There was a slight hitch to his planned rest and schedule for the following day – a certain young woman had not read the same memo. Ned started as his front door disintegrated before his eyes and something big, yellow, and green thrust itself through the splintered wood. Ned jumped up and ran for the bedroom and the fire escape. However, he only made it as far as the doorway of the bedroom before he stopped dead and his feet refused to move any further.

A very large black and purple pistol was aimed directly at the centre of his forehead. He could see the purple finger pulling back on the trigger. His injured leg finally gave way and he fell to the floor and his eyes went wide as they focused on the purple boots before him.

..._...

"Get up!"

The growl was anything but friendly but Ned complied as quickly as his hurt leg would allow. Hit Girl thrust him backwards into a chair, none too gently. The man's eyes were very active as they danced from armoured vigilante to armoured vigilante. He took in the large form of Kick-Ass over by the remains of his front door. Beside him was the smaller form of Petra. Behind Hit Girl there was a newer vigilante; he recognised her as Raven.

"You really do make a mess!" an electronic snarl announced as Jackal walked through the pile of matchwood which had once been a door.

"The buzzer wasn't working," Kick-Ass retorted with an electronically enhanced laugh.

"When you two have finished!" Hit Girl snarled.

Raven wondered back into the man's bedroom as Hit Girl began her interrogation.

"Tell me, what the fuck is a 'Corsair'?"

"A pirate, that's the definition, I believe. Look it up if you don't believe me," Ned replied insolently but he soon regretted it as Hit Girl smacked him around the face with the back of her armoured gauntlet.

"You've been wounded?"

"What of it?" Ned replied as he favoured his left leg and Hit Girl smirked.

"Who was it?"

"A break-in – where I work. . ."

A cough from the doorway to Ned's bedroom revealed Raven and she held a combined helmet and mask, in one hand, and a set of dark blue torso body armour, in the other.

"Yours?"

"Never seen it before. . ."

"You were at the silos. You fought against my team. Who shot you?"

Ned gave in.

"That Nightmare – she shot me; fucking bitch!"

Hit Girl backhanded Ned, hard, across the face. He recoiled in pain with a loud yell.

"I can go easy, or I can go hard. . . No other choices."

"Fuck you – I betray her; she kills me. . ."

"Oh, sweetie," Petra drawled. "If you don't betray her – we'll kill you!"

..._...

"Where is she?" Hit Girl growled from merely inches away.

"Who?"

"FEAR. . ."

"She moves around – I don't know."

"Where, is she based?"

"I can't. . ."

"WHERE!"

"No. . ."

Hit Girl glared down at Ned before she smirked.

"Time to turn up the fucking heat!"

With that, Hit Girl ignited a road flare which she had produced from her utility belt. The smoke alarm above their heads went off almost immediately – until Kick-Ass smashed it to pieces with his armoured fist.

"You wouldn't. . ."

"Normally, no; I usually prefer more subtle forms of torture – you know, like a car crusher; got one around? Didn't think so. . ." Hit Girl replied conversationally before she quickly plunged the 1,500-degree flame into the man's right shoulder.

Not surprisingly, the man screamed.

Mid-April, 2014

The following morning

An unknown location in the USA

The Cage

Stephanie Walker awoke to a sharp pain in her chest and she cried out.

She looked around her and took stock of her position. She noticed the hefty steel bars that surrounded her and she felt the rough mattress below her body. She grimaced as she noticed she was also naked – not a surprise if she was in The Cage.

'The Cage', was a large concrete, windowless room in which the centre was taken up by a floor to ceiling steel cage which in turn was separated into four smaller cages. Each of the smaller cages had a single door which opened outwards. The floor of each cage was bare concrete with a single, bare mattress to one side and a single plastic bucket in a corner.

"Fuck!" she growled to nobody in particular as she rolled onto her back.

A dozen feet away a small girl sat on a chair.

The seven-year-old girl was dressed in a yellow sweatshirt with a matching pair of joggers. Her job was to keep an eye on those unlucky enough to end up in The Cage. Technically, she was in charge – irrelevant of which phase the incarcerated were in, or how old they were. At that moment, only one eight-year-old Phase 2 girl was in residence. Stephanie Walker had been brought in the evening before. She had been unconscious and covered in blood.

Two instructors had dumped her on the floor before they roughly stripped off her clothing and then literally threw her into a cage. One of the instructors had then proceeded to kick and punch the girl before a rib had snapped and both instructors had left the room. The girl had remained unconscious throughout the night – thankfully, by the look of her injuries.

..._...

Once the Walker girl had awoken, the younger girl ran forwards and grabbed a bottle of water from a fridge before passing it through the bars.

"Drink this, Walker," she ordered the naked girl.

"What?"

"You've gotta keep hydrated while you're in here – and you've two whole weeks ahead of you."

"I'm fine."

"Look, Walker; I'm in charge in here . . . so do what I tell ya!"

"Vicious little yellow bitch, aren't you," Walker growled.

The younger girl relented – slightly.

"You don't obey me and I get in shit – please?"

"Okay – you be nice to me and I'll follow your orders – deal?"

"Deal."

Saturday, July 9th, 2016

South Racine Avenue and West Harrison Street

Foxtail stopped to go see a snout.

She parked up at the side of the street and ignored all the stares from passers-by – she was finally used to it. She never saw the man, two-dozen yards up the street. As he watched the dismounted vigilante walk down the street away from him, he reached into his pants pocket and pulled out a small black box. With a smile, he flipped up a safety lever and then flicked the switch beneath the lever. Almost before the LED had fully lit on the small black box, a signal was beamed down the street at the speed of light. Milliseconds later, the signal reached a mottled grey aluminium can that used to hold a few kilos of potatoes but had been repurposed and was now wrapped in copious amounts of duct tape.

A small circuit board attached to the can registered the signal and closed a circuit which allowed an electric charge to flow through a pair of black wires. The electric charge reached the blasting cap embedded in the top of the can and the small triggering explosive charge detonated which in turn triggered the larger, primary charge of Semtex plastic explosive which detonated and sent a pressure wave outwards at a speed of over 3,000 metres-per-second.

The supersonic overpressure blast wave struck Foxtail without any warning, way before the sound of the explosion reached her. The concussive force hurled her across the street ahead of a 40 mile-per-hour wind where she collided with the windshield of a parked car. The blast blew out all windows for half-a-mile and sent numerous pedestrians flying through the air. Shrapnel and debris billowed through the air, cutting people down by the dozen. Foxtail's armour protected her fragile human physiology from the shrapnel but not from the worst of the overpressure. She rolled off the hood of the demolished Buick and landed heavily on the sidewalk.

Her hearing was temporarily inhibited by a ringing in her ears and she could feel a wetness around her nose and in her ears – she assumed blood from the overpressure. Her head hurt from the explosion and her body hurt from striking the windshield which had shattered under her. As she looked around, she could make out many injured people and several prone bodies around which the walking wounded staggered. As she made to stand up, she felt weak and she used the body of the car to support herself as she triggered her communications equipment.

"Fusion! Explosion . . . my position . . . many wounded. Foxtail down!"

She collapsed to the sidewalk and blackness enveloped her.

Chapter 300*: Toni and a Second Attempt

Saturday, July 9th, 2016

Two miles west of the explosion

The man smiled as the sound of the explosion rumbled across the city.

He pressed play on an old cassette tape machine and the martial drumbeat of the Irish band, U2, rang out: 'I can't believe the news today. . .' as he went back to crushing the RDX crystals into a fine powder with a rolling pin. A few minutes later, the man emptied the resulting fine powder into a bowl which he placed next to another bowl containing a similar amount of PETN powder. The two powders were poured into a jar and shaken for a good five minutes before the resultant mixture was poured into a bowl of liquid which contained among other things, petroleum jelly.

The man demonstrated great skill as he mixed the powder and liquid into a paste; he had obviously made the dangerous mixture many times before. He moulded the resultant paste into a brick which was then covered with wax paper and sealed with plastic film. He placed the freshly made brick of Semtex explosive onto the growing pile concealed inside a kitchen cupboard.

He returned to the kitchen table and reached for more PETN crystals.

South-eastern Chicago

Battle Guy and Hal had both hit the panic alarm together.

Even before that, Hit Girl had braced up as she had climbed onto her Panigale, as the sound of the explosion rumbled past the gathered vigilantes. She pulled on her helmet and started her engine. Hit Girl then spun the rear wheel of her motorcycle and skidded around in a smoky one-eighty before she raced off down the street. Kick-Ass, Petra, Jackal, and Raven followed suit. In their visors, a red cross-hair had appeared indicating an emergency but to make things worse, a flashing Fusion symbol indicated a vigilante at risk: Foxtail.

The night was starting to heat up.

Firehouse 51

The two-tone alarm sounded, followed by a klaxon.

"Explosion . . . South Racine and West Harrison . . . Engine 51 . . . Truck 81 . . . Squad 3 . . . Ambulance 61"

They had all heard the explosion and were all but ready when the alarm came. The Engine and the Truck rolled first, followed by the brand-new Ambulance 61 and then Squad 3.

Douglas Park

Leon, Shadow, and their escorts were scouting out the park when the call came in.

The rear wheels of the Trans-Am sent up a pair of chirps as the car accelerated with the two motorcycles following close behind. They did not get far as they found their route blocked and Leon stomped on the brake pedal.

"What the fuck!" Shadow exclaimed.

Mid-April, 2014

An unknown location in the USA

The Cage

After twenty minutes, Stephanie sat up and looked over at the yellow dweeb on the chair.

"What's your name?"

"Electra Harmon."

"Seven?"

"Yeah."

The girl looked very young and she wore glasses. Her hair was short and dark brown. Stephanie was about to ask some more questions when the door opened and an instructor strode in. Electra hit a button which released the door to Stephanie's cage and Stephanie jumped to her feet, her face displaying confusion and fear. The instructor said nothing as he seized the naked girl by the upper left arm and dragged her out of the cage and out into the maze of corridors which made up the training facility.

Stephanie was scared. She had no idea where she was being taken or why – but it had to be bad. Then after a few more turns she braced up and she felt a wave of humiliation and fear as she was thrust through the double doors which led into the main dining room. Silence quickly descended on the large open space as almost two-hundred pairs of eyes focused on the naked eight-year-old. Stephanie was hauled towards an ominously empty table where a pair of instructors waited – one held a leather strap in his right hand.

"Lie on the table – face down!"

Stephanie did as she was instructed – she had no choice. She started to shake with the fear of what lay ahead as an instructor grabbed hold of her wrists while another grabbed hold of her ankles – she was pinned. Then the instructor with the strap began to speak – loudly.

"This little bitch attacked an instructor. That behaviour WILL NOT BE TOLERATED! You will all witness what happens if you do something so stupid – the next two weeks will be hell for this example of human detritus."

The strapping began. Five hard cracks resounded around the dining room. The only other sounds were the screams and sobs emanating from Stephanie Walker as she was beaten.

..._...

When it was over, Stephanie was in unbelievable pain. The pain from her existing injuries had mixed with the new and she shook violently as she sobbed.

"Stay there, you little bast'd – you will not move 'til someone comes for yer. Don't move a fuckin' muscle and keep that nose to the table!"

The instructors left and everybody went back to their breakfast. Stephanie was aware of the hushed sounds of whispering and she knew that many were still watching her and making comments about her beating. After a little over twenty minutes, the dining room began to empty and almost every Predator walked past the prone, shaking form on their way out the door. Stephanie felt humiliated at being displayed so openly but then it got worse as she was slapped on her bruised buttocks and she was hit on the head by others and slapped elsewhere on her body. As well as the physical abuse, the verbal abuse was dished out.

" . . . you deserved every strike . . . "

" . . . stupid idiot . . . "

" . . . loved the show . . . "

" . . . you should have gotten more . . . "

" . . . hope you suffered, bitch . . . "

" . . . we're gonna love the next two weeks . . . "

" . . . bet that smarted . . . "

" . . . that'll leave a mark . . . "

" . . . worthless fucker . . . "

". . . fuckin' stupid Brit . . ."

Stephanie just sobbed as the pain and humiliation grew. She grimaced through it all – she believed in what was taught in one of her earliest classes as a Predator: 'what doesn't kill you makes you stronger' – a quote from Friedrich Nietzsche. She was determined to live through everything they could throw at her.

It wasn't long before she was alone, the final Predators having headed to their first class of the day. After that, it felt like a lifetime before she finally felt a hand on her arm.

"Walker – come with me back to your cage."

It was Electra. Stephanie struggled to sit up, but she could not due to the pain. She fell off the table and was helped to her feet by the younger girl. Once back in her cage, Stephanie collapsed onto the mattress and she sobbed herself to sleep.

Saturday, July 9th, 2016

South Racine Avenue and West Harrison Street

The first on the scene was Mirage.

They parked up in an alleyway and dismounted. Mist, along with Splinter and Nightmare ran towards the devastated intersection. Eisenhower bounded along behind. There were three burning cars, the centre one of which was totally devastated.

"Eisenhower – find Foxtail!" Mist ordered and the dog ran off, dodging the walking wounded and leaping over the dead as she sniffed out Foxtail.

"This is bad," Nightmare commented as she just stared at the devastation.

"Come on – we need to help!" Splinter announced.

Mist followed Splinter but she then ran towards the barking of Eisenhower. She could see the animal's tail behind a wrecked Buick and as she came around the car, she saw Foxtail on the ground.

"Foxtail!" she called out.

There was a groan in response followed by some movement.

"My head . . . it feels like Psyche's been pounding on it. . ."

"Well, if you can joke at a time like this, you're either alive or Hit Girl!" Mist commented dryly.

"I heard that!"

"Foxtail's okay by the looks of it – the shockwave caught her but her armour protected her from the worst," Mist reported.

Foxtail sat up with Mist's help and the young vigilante sat on the sidewalk clutching her legs against her chest. Mist heard the chime of her cell in her earpiece and she answered the call.

"Erika?"

"Toni? You okay?"

"Erika . . . I need help . . . explosion . . ."

"Toni?"

The call went dead. Mist was horror-struck. Please no – not Toni. . . Was she here somewhere bleeding to death? Mist stood up and looked around – Toni could be anywhere.

"Toni!" she yelled out.

Northwestern Memorial Hospital
Room 28

It was actually the first time that Stephanie had seen Cathy since her 'incarceration', as she thought of it, in the hospital.

"What are you lot doing here?" she asked sternly.

"How come you've not been to see me?" Stephanie pouted in response.

"I have, several times. You've either been asleep or unconscious. I have to be careful not to tread on the toes of the attending physicians."

That was reasonable, Stephanie thought . . . then she saw Cathy's expression.

"What's happened?"

"Saoirse's been hurt. . ."

"What!"

"Nothing bad – it was a bomb. . ."

"A bomb!"

Cathy glared at Stephanie.

"Sorry – please continue."

"A bomb exploded . . . down town, and she was caught in the explosion – her suit saved her life. A concussion and a lot of bruises only."

"All because of me. . ."

"Steph – don't be like that, please."

"I know – I just feel responsible."

"We all get hurt from time to time. . ." Dr Bennett said pointedly.

"She's right," Sky acknowledged. "We've all been there."

Douglas Park

Six men stood before the car.

"What are you fucking assholes doing?" Wildcat demanded.

"We have a message," one man said.

"A message?" Trojan echoed.

"A message from Vito Genovese."

Shadow had an unwelcome flashback to the Uptown Theatre, several months before.

"This the Angie D'Amico revenge thing?" she demanded as she climbed out of the Pontiac.

The man ignored her as he continued.

"Hit Girl and her vigilantes have ninety days to leave Chicago."

"Come again. . ." Wildcat demanded incredulously.

"Hit Girl and her vigilantes have ninety days to leave Chicago," the man repeated.

"Or what?" Shadow demanded.

"Or hell on earth will descend on both Chicago and Fusion."

"We'll be sure to pass the message on . . . see ya!" Shadow growled as the men drifted into the darkness and the vigilantes all headed for the site of the explosion.

South Racine Avenue and West Harrison Street

Mist was beside herself with worry as she ran from body to body.

"What's going on, Mist?" Splinter demanded.

"I've gotta find her. . ."

"Find who?" Nightmare asked.

Mist never replied as she dodged around the walking wounded. Police and ambulances were arriving en masse and seemingly adding to the confusion. Splinter helped police officers pull survivors from beneath piles of wreckage so paramedics could see to them. Nightmare did her part holding a drip up as a victim was placed onto a stretcher before being rushed towards a waiting ambulance. Nightmare then moved onto the next wounded person and kept going. Eisenhower was able to lead rescuers to trapped people otherwise hidden beneath collapsed walls or other wreckage from the explosion.

People were yelling out in pain and calling for their loved ones. Sirens screamed as vehicles arrived and departed. Police and fire crews yelled instructions and the rush of water from hoses grew deafening as fires were brought under control and extinguished.

..._...

"Help me!"

Mist recognised the voice instantly, it was weak but just loud enough to be heard over the yells, screams, and other background noise. She ran down the street towards where Toni's yell had originated.

"Toni!"

Mist stopped dead. Toni was lying against the wall of a building. Her legs were buried under rubble while her torso was impaled by a sharp piece of steel that had entered the girl's abdomen just below the ribcage. The young woman was shaking, deep in shock from the trauma of her injuries. Blood seeped from one side of her mouth. Mist knelt down as close as she could to her girlfriend.

"Toni – it's me. . ."

"Who. . .?"

Mist deactivated the voice changing technology on her mask.

"Toni – it's me. . ."

"I don't know you . . . you sound like. . ."

The vigilante known as Mist reached up and she removed her mask. Toni was incredulous as she saw her friend and lover emerge from behind the mask.

"Erika. . ."

"Hold on, Toni, the ambulance is almost here . . . I need help, please!"

Early the following morning
Sunday, 10th July

Safehouse F

"Play it again."

Abby hit play for the fifteenth time. Mindy was seething as she watched the ultimatum which had been recorded by Z.O.E. and the cameras on the two accompanying motorcycles. She was very tired having spent hours helping at the scene of the explosion, as had all of Fusion. Marty had broken the news about the ultimatum on her return to the Safehouse. On top of that, Mindy was livid about Saoirse getting hurt and about another good friend, Toni.

Erika was at the hospital with Toni but the prognosis did not look good.

Northwestern Memorial Hospital Room 28

When Stephanie awoke, and looked around, she smiled.

There, sitting in a chair beside the bed was her best friend. Saoirse was fast asleep clad in her usual jeans and a blouse. Her head rested on her leather jacket, scrunched up as a pillow. She looked exhausted and Stephanie noticed that she wasn't wearing a bra – bruises, Stephanie figured. Despite her own injuries, Stephanie hated being on the sidelines while her friends were out getting hurt.

She had been over the moon when the other Predators had visited. Remembering past events had been hard and even the older girls, Chrissy and Sky, had been stunned by Stephanie's experiences but having somebody with her while the memories flowed had helped.

..._...

"Good morning, Stephanie, may we come in?"

It was Doctor Charles and Doctor Reese. Stephanie nodded and the two doctors sat down on the opposite side of the bed to the sleeping Saoirse.

"A friend of yours?" Doctor Reese asked, indicating the sleeping teenager.

"Yes – Saoirse; she's my best friend."

"I've been having a good think about our last chat, the other day."

"Oh. . ." Stephanie replied cautiously.

"We know that you're not a normal girl," Doctor Reese said carefully. "Normally, you are fearless and you can handle just about anything that is thrown at you – except you got shot and you found yourself in a world that you knew nothing about. You're frightened and out of your depth."

"I'm not frightened. . ." Stephanie responded defensively.

"There's nothing wrong with being frightened. It's a normal human reaction and no matter what you are at night, you are still a human being, Stephanie."

"I'm normally in control. I don't let anything get me down – at least not normally. I've been hurt before but never anything like this. I've lost control of situations before but this is different – having to rely on somebody else to eat, crap, wash; it sucks."

"Yes, it would," Doctor Charles agreed.

"I wish this would just end so I could get back to my normal life."

"Normal?"

"Yes; my life is perfectly normal."

"The human soul is a difficult thing to understand."

"Huh?"

"The human psyche. . ."

"What are you talking about?"

Everybody turned to look at Saoirse who had just awoken. Her expression was one of deep concern. She glared at Stephanie and then at the two doctors.

"So, you're one, just like Stephanie," Doctor Charles commented. "Have no fear – your secret is safe with us; we believe in what you do for this city."

"Yes, we do," Doctor Reese confirmed.

Saoirse stood up and she looked directly at the two doctors.

"We have absolutely no idea what you are talking about," she stated simply.

Glenview

"Thank you, Saoirse – we'll take it from here. Yes, you go home and get some rest."

Dave's eyebrow was raised as Mindy put the cell back down on the kitchen side.

"The shrinks were in chatting with Steph. Saoirse heard some of the conversation and she is convinced that they know Steph is a Chicago vigilante," Mindy explained.

"Oh – a problem?"

"There is doctor-patient confidentiality – but, we shall see when we get there, later on."

"We're going to see Steph?" Anne-Marie asked excitedly from the archway into the living room.

"Yes, nosy bitch!" Mindy grinned.

Northwestern Memorial Hospital Room 28

The drugs keeping the pain at bay fogged up Stephanie's brain – even more when they were freshly in her system.

She was very much aware of her surroundings just not as sharply as her Predator training had taught her. There were always nurses and the odd doctor coming and going, plus visitors – 'like the damn M25 at rush hour', Stephanie had growled at one stage. She never acknowledged the current nurse as she entered her room. She never bothered to look over at the nurse as she fiddled with the drip. She never noticed the nurse reach into her pocket for something. However, the next few minutes flew like a blur.

"Who are you?" another nurse demanded from the doorway. "What are you. . .?"

The real nurse never finished her question as the fake nurse shot her down with a silenced pistol. Stephanie braced up at the sight of the pistol and then at the sight of the nurse falling to the floor. The door had closed automatically as the second nurse had fallen so nobody was any the wiser of events as they began to unfold in Room 28. The fake nurse turned towards Stephanie and she smiled. Stephanie recognised the smile as one she used herself when she killed. Her mind began to speed up as she figured out that she was facing a killer – an assassin who was there for one reason and one reason only.

To kill Stephanie Lizewski . . . to finish the job.

The Parking Lot

"I hope she's happy to see us," Dave chuckled as he locked the Audi.

"Of course, she will be," Mindy replied.

"She loves us," Anne-Marie insisted.

"She's going nuts up there," Danny commented. "One of these days, she's gonna kill somebody!"

"I know how she feels being forced to stay in bed – it sucks!" Mindy acknowledged.

"Well, let's get up there before the girl does kill somebody!" Dave suggested.

"Yippee!" Anne-Marie squealed in her excitement as she dragged her brother towards the entrance.

Room 28

Stephanie just reacted, her trained brain took over her weakened body and as the fake nurse brought the pistol up, she took a momentary glance at what she held in her left hand – it was a loaded syringe with a clear liquid inside.

The sheet was loose and Stephanie was able to use her left leg to kick the fake nurse in her left side. Not a debilitating blow; Stephanie was too weak for that. Instead, the nurse absorbed the blow without much effort before she reached out and jabbed Stephanie in her ribs. Stephanie roared out in pain and doubled over. The pain and the adrenaline flooding her system briefly overrode the drugs and suddenly Stephanie could think just as clearly as she ever could and options began to pass through her mind at breakneck speed.

Her left arm dived out, but not at the assassin – the arm dived out and grabbed something from the bedside table.

Second Floor Passageway

"When'll she be ready to come home, Mom?"

"Not for another couple of weeks, honey," Mindy replied.

"Security to Room 28! Doctor Manning to Room 28!"

"What the hell now?" Dave growled as they all broke into a run and then joined the various doctors, nurses, and security officers rushing into Room 28.

"Well, that's a new way to die!" Mindy exclaimed as she studied the scene before her.

The room was a state.

Stephanie's bed had been shoved over towards the window and the contents of her bedside table – a jug of water, a plastic cup, and her empty bowl of oatmeal from breakfast – were scattered across the floor. Three bodies were scattered untidily around the tiled floor. One, a nurse lay on the floor, her hands holding an obvious gunshot injury to her left shoulder. Another nurse lay on the floor – obviously dead with a pool of bright red blood spreading from the ruptured carotid artery in the neck. The cause of the rupture was equally obvious as the business end of a spoon stuck out of the side of her neck. In her right hand, was a small black pistol with a suppressor attached to the barrel. Her left hand held a syringe. Stephanie lay on the floor beside the dead nurse, she smiled up at her visitors.

"God, it's boring in hospital. . .!" Stephanie complained before she lost consciousness.

Two hours later

Northwestern Memorial Hospital

Marcus was apoplectic with anger and Mindy was concerned he might burst a blood vessel as he raged – at least he was in the right place for an embolism, she reasoned.

The CPD officer guarding Room 28 had returned a few minutes after the fight was over and he had apologised for leaving his post. Marcus, though, was having none of it and over a period of twenty minutes, he reduced the young officer to a smouldering amoeba as he ranted.

". . . You almost cost my granddaughter her life, officer – you have not heard the end of this, I can promise you that. Now, get the hell out of my sight and if I ever see you again. . ."

Two other officers were now on duty outside Room 32 – Stephanie's new accommodation on the third floor. They had heard their Captain's rant and they knew better than to dare leave their post like their unfortunate colleague. Stephanie was still unconscious – mainly due to the extra drugs in her IV. She had not been injured in the fight but she had overstressed herself and probably added a few more days to her stay in the hospital as a result. The injured nurse was recovering – the bullet had been a through-and-through with no lasting damage caused.

As for the dead assassin – Voight was running her prints through various databases. He had also provided the same prints to Mindy: Marty was also running his own searches.

The following afternoon

Northwestern Memorial Hospital Room 32

Mindy was busy making notes on her tablet when Stephanie began to stir.

She looked up to see Stephanie's eyes open and the young girl looked around the room in a panic. Mindy squeezed her hand gently and reassuringly as she spoke.

"You're safe, Steph. You're in a different room, in the same hospital."

Stephanie's eyes stopped their wild scanning around the room and they focussed on Mindy's face.

"It hurts . . . it really hurts . . ."

"I know, honey."

"Why, am I in a different room?"

"Well, if you will insist on killing an assassin with a spoon and letting your room get covered in blood and nurses with bullet wounds. You know, I was in this very same room after I took my Land Rover swimming."

Stephanie considered that and as the memories returned, she scowled, "Ha, bloody, ha!"

"Can't leave you anywhere!" Mindy chuckled.

"You're one to talk – Marcus thinks you're a disaster waiting to happen whenever you leave Chicago."

Mindy's cheeks went pink at that.

"My failings are not the point of conversation, here, young lady."

"What? You going to ground your eldest daughter for killing an assassin with a spoon, now?"

"Considered it. . ."

"My life sucks!" Stephanie complained.

That evening

"So, young Stephanie, you've had a trying week."

"You could say that – who are you?"

"Detective Erin Lindsay. I work with Sergeant Hank Voight. Mrs Lizewski, would you please let your daughter know how far the questioning is allowed to go?"

"Mum?" Stephanie asked, a little confused.

"Stephanie, Erin is aware of who you are – who you are when you are out with Hit Girl."

"What!?"

"Erin is a friend, as is Hank Voight. They do not, however, know what you were before you came to Chicago."

"Oh."

..._...

"What can you tell me about the attack, Stephanie?"

"Not much. I wasn't paying any attention – not until that bitch shot the nurse – she okay?"

"Yes, she is – please, continue."

"She called me by my name. . ."

"Lizewski?"

"No – the name I was born with: Reeman."

Mindy looked stunned.

"Who could have known. . ." Mindy began.

"May I finish?"

"Sorry, Steph."

"She also said something else: 'for Kara'."

"Who is Kara?" Erin asked.

"I have no idea," Stephanie replied with a shrug.

An hour later
Safehouse Zulu

Mindy was in the Command Centre with Dave and Marty.

Two of the many computer screens had Mindy's attention. A set of finger prints were visible, including a picture of the dead assassin's face. A computer search was underway for the owner of the fingerprints. There was also another conundrum – the assassin had use the name Reeman. . . On the second screen was a digital copy of Stephanie's Urban Predator file.

A seven-year-old Stephanie Reeman stared down at them a large 'TERMINATED' stamp across her photo. According to the file, she had begun her Phase 1 training on October 12th, 2013. That meant the assassin either knew of her before then, or they had access to Urban Predator documents. Neither appeared likely.

"Who is 'Kara'?" Marty asked.

"There's no mention of the name in her file," Dave commented. "Marty – how many Kara's were there in Urban Predator?"

Marty punched some details into his keyboard before turning back to Dave.

"Fourteen."

"Any at Stephanie's training centre?"

Again, Marty punched away at his keyboard.

"Thirteen."

"Fuck!" Mindy groaned.

"What does it say about that girl," Abby enquired as she entered the Command Centre. "The one Steph killed?"

"Nothing," Marty replied. "All it says is that she killed a girl in March, 2014. No further details are mentioned apart from: 'see Incident Report in Restricted Appendix'."

"We got that?" Mindy asked.

"Not so far."

Mid-April, 2014

An unknown location in the USA
The Cage

I awoke a few hours later, aching from head to toe.

When I opened my eyes, I saw a grinning face through the bars – it was a boy; another Predator. He was just as naked as I was – about twelve at a guess.

"Typical, I get thrown in here and the naked girl next door has nothing worth looking at!"

"Neither have you – have you actually got a dick?"

I heard a giggle from outside the cage as Electra laughed at the boy who had slunk back to his mattress and now lay on his front. I smiled and struggled to sit up – I also found that I needed to make use of the 'facilities' as they were.

..._...

Becoming a Predator had involved many privations and levels of humiliation but nothing could prepare you for having to wee, completely naked, in front of a smiling twelve-year-old boy and a seven-year-old girl. Being naked was bad enough but I was used to that – besides, as the boy had mentioned, I had nothing for anybody to see. Squatting over the bucket had taken a lot of willpower and even more willpower had been required to force myself to wee with two beady eyes on my twat.

The bastard actually grinned throughout the whole humiliating episode!

..._...

They left me alone for the rest of the day and believe me, I needed the rest.

Electra had provided me with a sandwich and more water – and a promise of more if I behaved. The following morning, I was kicked awake by an instructor who handed me a red jumpsuit. I was dragged off – without any breakfast, I might add – to the range where I spent the next eight hours picking up brass, cleaning weapons, and generally being abused by all and sundry.

I was exhausted and dirty by the end of my 'shift' and my muscles ached.

..._...

As I was 'dropped off' at The Cage, I was received by Electra who was all business as she ordered me to strip out of my clothes and re-enter my lodgings. I followed orders – I was very hungry and I knew that bad behaviour meant no food. It was only after I had weed in the bucket – that bastard watched the whole damn thing – that I noticed the black eye on Electra.

"What happened?" I asked as I wiped and then threw the resultant dirty tissues at the boy who dived out of the way in horror.

"Another yellow. . . I – I don't wanna talk about it."

"A boy?"

"I don't . . . yes."

"When somebody tries to hit you – protect your face at all costs. . ."

"He's bigger than me – they all are. . ."

"Okay – when he hits you, drop down into a ball . . . pretend you're scared, protect yourself. He's going to move in to have another go . . . keep your elbows in – protect your spleen, your liver, and other important organs. Then, when he is directly over you, stand up fast and your head will strike his chin. He will be dazed – punch the fucking bastard and keep punching him till he goes down!"

Electra thought about my instructions for a moment and then she smiled.

"Thanks – I think you deserve these," she said as she handed me two sandwiches which I wolfed down like they were the finest steak.

"Hey, yellow bitch – where's mine?" the boy demanded.

"Walker just ate it!" Electra replied with a smile as she raised the middle finger of her right hand towards the boy.

Tuesday, July 12th, 2016

Northwestern Memorial Hospital

"No – there's gotta be something else you can do. . ."

"I'm sorry, Erika," Doctor Cathy Bennett said quietly. "The damage to her legs, combined to the damage in her abdomen are just too much."

"Toni's my life – what am I going to do, Cathy?"

"I am so sorry, Erika, I really am."

..._...

"I love you Erika – I love you so much."

"I wish we could have had more time, Toni. . ."

"I'm sorry; I should never have been there . . . but, if I had not then I would never have known about you. Mist – you're amazing . . . just keep doing what you do and don't mourn me for too long."

"Please . . . you've gotta hang on . . . please, don't leave me. . ."

"Erika. I love you very much and I know you love me . . . none of us live forever and this is my time. I know you'll be fine – you're the strongest person I know – and you're a Chicago vigilante which is so awesome . . ."

"Toni. . ."

"I love you, Erika."

"I love you, too, so very much. . ."

Erika gave her lover a final kiss and she held Toni's hand until the hand went limp for the final time.

Chapter 301*: Upcoming in the Forsaken Universe

Coming up in the Forsaken Universe. . .

Please be advised that some of what you see below may not actually appear in the story, or may be changed considerably. Most of the below will be out of context (on purpose) and not necessarily in the right order. Also, the below spans many chapters, so you may not see certain sections for quite a while.

Dark Days in Gotham

What might a new year in Gotham offer for the likes of Bruce Wayne and Selina Kyle? There would be good, but being Gotham, it would also be tempered with something bad. Things were very different than before. Bruce was no longer alone. He had a partner. He had a cause. He had a purpose. That same partner supported him in every endeavour.

...+...

"Bacon and eggs, good lady?"

"Oh, God, no!" Selina squealed. "A glass of milk would be nice, thank you, Alfred."

"A glass of milk for the cat . . ."

...+...

"Right!" Alfred dictated. "One holiday – by God, even if you two don't need one, I bloody well do!"

...+...

"Would've just been easier to buy the bleeding shop!" Alfred grouched.

...+...

"Looks like it's been through a battle," Bruce commented as he took in the hastily repaired bullet holes in the hull and battle-scarred bridge windows.

...+...

The yacht was 88 feet in length and displaced 67 tonnes. Her twin diesel engines could push the triple-decked hull to over thirty knots. The yacht's hull was a deep glossy blue with white upperworks topped off by a flying bridge.

...+...

"Enough for three or four a day . . ." he mused as Selina just wished the deck would open up beneath her.

...+...

Bruce could not stand it any longer and he pulled Selina close to him and he kissed her.

...+...

We had been back from France for two days, yet the boy had barely spoken.

...+...

The two black-clad Gotham vigilantes studied the scene and took in friend and foe alike. It was eight to two – fairly good odds.

...+...

"I hate to use guns, but for you, I'm making an exception. . ." Batman growled.

...+...

"Jerome 'I'm a fucking nutcase' Valeska – he died in Arkham but now he's alive again."

...+...

"You want to know where we go at night?"

...+...

"...welcome, Nightwing..."

...+...

Predator

"Bad dream?"

"Weird. I just saw my sister getting shot – she was in Chicago . . . impossible; I killed her, years ago."

...+...

I was facing a much shorter adversary than normal.

It was just a kid – a boy. He was about four inches shorter than me and somehow, he seemed familiar – somebody from my past, I assumed. His light brown hair was unkempt, just like the hair for most other young boys. The fact that he had disarmed me so easily meant that he was Urban Predator.

...+...

"What, or who, is Abigail?"

"An old friend I haven't seen in over a year. . ."

...+...

The girl was good; she was obviously somebody who had received training very similar to my own – could she be Urban Predator.

I had disarmed her easily, but she had responded with force which I had not anticipated.

I could take her and I would kill her.

...+...

A foot was placed squarely on his upper chest and a pistol was thrust in his face.

The hazel eyes were instantly familiar – especially in their angry state.

"If you know what's good for you, you'll stay away from me, Carter – you understand me?"

...+...

"Fucking Yank pussy!" I growled.

The girl braced up as I spoke, then she snarled back at me.

"I am no fucking Yank – talk about an insult; I'm British, thank you very much..."

"That makes two of us," I replied, a little surprised.

"Urban Predator?"

"What would you know about that, sweetheart?"

...+...

"Stephanie Walker; I hear I'm famous in your world..."

"Psyche..." the boy exclaimed. "You fucking traitor!"

...+...

"You have a codename?"

"They call me 'Rage'."

...+...

Stephanie grabbed the barrel of the SIG and placed the muzzle against her forehead.

"Pull the damn trigger, if you've got the bloody balls for it."

...+...

Vengeance

"In forty-eight hours, we come for you."

"You can't hurt me – I control everything and there is fuck all a trio of fucking roasters can do about it!"

...+...

"I think I can handle three little girls – trained killers or not!"

...+...

"It's you, Kaitlin. . ."

"Am I that bad?"

"The Commander thinks he might be able to afford his own destroyer from your jar alone."

...+...

"Scorpion – meet Twilight!"

...+...

She was painted in a matt dark grey and her registration code was painted in a slightly lighter grey on both sides of her tail: G-VENG.

For the moment, she was unarmed – we were only there for a check ride.

...+...

"Boscombe, this is Tango Victor standing by to taxi from Shelter Two-Three, over."

"Tango Victor, Boscombe. Clearance to taxi for direct launch from Shelter Two-Three. Over."

"Tango Victor, acknowledged. Out."

...+...

"Am I gonna like this?"

"You like speed, Hit Girl?" Scorpion chuckled. "Hang onto your tampon!"

...+...

"How's your backflip, Hit Girl?"

I saw the horizon before me and then the night sky and then the horizon again as we backflipped and followed through with the rest of the loop.

"Cool, huh!"

"Fucking hilarious!"

...+...

The combat suit was full body and made up of sections. The dark grey undersuit weighed very little and it allowed the skin to breathe during extreme activities; it was also stab and bullet resistant to Type IIA standards. The modular contoured armour, in black with a broad gold trim, clipped onto the undersuit and joined to the other sections of armour to form a semi-rigid Type II and Type IIIA armour that covered the important parts of the body. The Type IIIA armour covered the chest and upper back. The armour was ultra-flexible and ultra-light which suited the younger vigilante.

...+...

One glance into the shadows beneath her hood was generally enough to encourage even the most rampant male ego to seek a woman elsewhere.

...+...

"She said her name was 'Storm' and that we were safe."

...+...

Everything had returned to normal and most importantly, my secret identity was secure. I had helped to accomplish an amazing rescue. Dozens of kids had gained a chance of a new life. I did not envy them – not one bit. I missed the action; fighting crime in Paris just was not as exciting as running with Fusion.

As I gazed out over my city, I felt a surge of pride in what I was doing. I was a vigilante. I was the front line against what plagued my city. I was La Coccinelle.

...+...

Their son was alive. Their son was an assassin. Their son was a killer.

...+...

"What a fucked-up codename: Stripe! I ask you. From what I see you should never have completed Phase 1, let alone Phase 2. You did well in Fight Club, your third year. I always enjoyed those fights – hurt like the bugger afterwards, but that was life. No – you're not what I'm looking for; it's Polmont for you, boy."

"Who are you?"

"They call me Foxtail."

...+...

The voice was electronically enhanced and it freaked the boy out. His mind was racing as he tried to process everything and come up with a plan of action. Five months of inactivity vanished in a flash as his training came back in a rush of anger. He executed a perfect release from the hand which gripped his face and he kicked out at his assailant. His kick was blocked but a quick feint and he struck the crimson clad individual in the chest.

...+...

He was stunned to see that it was a young girl – a very dirty young girl, but still a young girl.

"Now, what is your name?"

"Electra."

...+...

The hanger was large, about 120 feet by 70 feet, and the corrugated iron structure covered an area of about 8,500 square-feet. 96-foot-wide, main hanger doors faced in a southerly direction onto a large reinforced-concrete hardstanding of about the same area. The perimeter was an eight-foot tall, razor-wire topped, chain-link fence which enclosed an area of about seven acres.

...+...

"Scourge is still undergoing advanced testing – Twilight, though, she will be here in, oh, five to ten minutes."

"Ten minutes?"

"Twilight is on a ferry flight from Boscombe Down. Our pilot, has our boss with her."

"Her? You have a female pilot?"

"Yes, we do. The best the Royal Navy has available."

...+...

"Vengeance, this is Twilight. Requesting landing clearance at Thunderbolt, over."

"Twilight, Vengeance. Clearance granted."

...+...

The Chief looked shocked by the revelation but he nonetheless shook hands with arguably the most violent woman in the world.

...+...

Normally, the girl's skills would allow her to fight off and where necessary, kill anybody who tried to threaten her life and well-being. That very life and well-being was, at that moment, at risk of being extinguished by her pursuers. The girl reached under her leather jacket and she pulled out a small compact pistol. She raised the Taurus PT111 and fired off four rounds before the slide locked back on the empty magazine. She threw the weapon at one of her pursuers striking him on the head but not stopping his advance.

...+...

The seven-mile drive would take mere mortals almost forty-five minutes – we managed it in twenty-five with a little help from a siren and blue lights.

...+...

The girl was asleep. Her dark brown hair was long and loosely spread over her pillow. She appeared angelic to look at but considering my experiences and why we were there, I had other ideas. I walked over to her right side and gently eased back her right ear. Yes – the same tattoo Harper and the other girls had was there. I nodded at Nemesis as a nurse arrived with a doctor.

...+...

Chloe wrenched open the rear hatch of the Range Rover and she pulled down the lower half of the hatch. There was a large steel enclosure in the back and Chloe released the catches on the lower gun tray.

"Bingo!" Chloe grinned. "Thank you, MI5!"

...+...

"Time to die..." the man growled with a look of supreme pleasure as he squeezed the trigger.

"Just what I was going to say!" an electronically enhanced voice countered as a dark blue shape dove out of the darkness and put himself between the woman and the pistol.

Both hit the ground as another form, this one crimson, followed the other and put several bullets into the gunman who fell into a pool of his own blood. The man in dark blue armour stood up and helped the woman to her feet.

"Are you injured, Prime Minister?"

...+...

Forsaken

I had never touched a real live girl before, let alone removed the bra of one – I was just glad it wasn't a real bra; I had no idea how they worked. . .

...+...

Her paintwork gleamed as if it had only just been applied, which in all accuracy, it just had.

...+...

"Ocean Vigilante, you have a clear range for missile firing on bearing of two-four-zero..."

I turned from the chart and spoke to the helmsman.

"Helm, new course, one-seven-two, maintain eighteen knots."

"New course, one-seven-two," Hailee acknowledged.

I reached for the phone and pressed the button for ship-wide.

"All hands remain aft of the bridge and standby for missile launch..."

We were closed up at action stations and everybody was wearing a lifejacket and anti-flash hood with gauntlets.

Joshua turned a key from 'SAFE' to 'PERMIT' and a klaxon sounded. His finger hovered over a pulsing orange button.

"Missile one – shoot!" I ordered.

...+...

"Help me..."

"After what you have done?" I responded, coldly.

"She will kill me..."

"Maybe I should help her."

"I'll do anything..."

...+...

Titan was buried under tons of masonry and the last I saw of Foxtail was her motorcycle as it spun across the blacktop and smashed into a parked car.

...+...

"I am Stormtide – were you sent to kill me?"

I laughed. "No, I came to rescue you."

...+...

"You gotta help him – he is alone, please."

"Help who?"

"Rage – they'll kill him."

...+...

There were four kids to get up, showered, and dressed before breakfast.

...+...

She launched herself at Mindy and the younger girl shoved the older girl backwards so her mentor fell over and then she proceeded to punch Mindy in the face.

...+...

"I will not fight you... I know that you won't believe me, but I did not do it because I am cold hearted; I did it out of love – out of love for you."

...+...

"Who the fuck are you?" Tommy demanded.

"Забытый нас так быстро, молодой Фома?"

Tommy felt a cold chill as he heard the Russian words and translated them in his head.

"Александр..."

"Who the fuck are you talking to, Tommy?" Joshua called as he walked over.

"It's the bastard that slashed my chest. He's called Alexander."

"So, a bad fucker, then?"

"Yeah. Three against one, is not exactly fair, Alexander."

"No, it is not, Tommy."

"You expect me to give up and just hand myself over?"

"Oh, no, Tommy. I have far too much respect for you to expect that."

"До смерти!"

"I would expect nothing less..."

"What did you just say?" Joshua demanded.

"I said that we would fight to the death," Tommy replied conversationally.

"I figured that."

...+...

"Well, well, well – if it isn't the not so mighty, Stephanie Walker! Or should we call you, Psyche?"

...+...

"We are no longer Predators – we are much more; we are Marauders."

...+...

"Listen! If you stay with me, you must throw away your weapons and do not resist when they come for me – if you resist, they will kill you."

...+...

"That girl saved my life . . . she doesn't deserve to die. Saoirse, help me!"

...+...

"Rachel?"

Something shifted in my fogged brain and I saw a boy, six-years-old.

"Jamie?"

...+...

"Welcome to the club, Saoirse," Joshua said.

"Club?"

"A club with a very limited membership," Joshua explained.

"Welcome to the 'I blew up Hit Girl's Safe House club!'"

"Oh!" Saoirse breathed. "How many are in the club?"

"Two – including you – I am the founding member."

"Did she forgive you?"

"Eventually . . . she rarely brings it up . . . unless she's feeling bitchy!"

"I'm honoured!" Saoirse growled. "I think..."

...+...

"Walker!"

"Sir!"

"Please meet your new controller: Aurora."

I turned to see a woman, dressed all in black, her amber hair tied back in a ponytail.

"Aurora, meet Psyche."

"Hello Stephanie, my name is Miranda."

"Hi. . ."

...+...

"Damn; it's like fucking Baghdad!"

...+...

Wildcat, Hawk and Raven were using their armour and shields to protect the paramedics and their patients as they worked.

...+...

An RPG powered in and struck a bullet-riddled patrol car. The car exploded and sent red hot shrapnel in all directions.

...+...

Raven screamed as the shrapnel dug into her armoured back and rapidly burnt through the armour.

...+...

Out of the blue, the 12.7x55-mm STs-130VPS 76-gram bullet cut its way through the air at over 300 metres-per-second. It tore through the armour like it was nothing and the lifeless body dropped.

...+...

'If you are reading this letter, then I am dead.'

...+...

Eisenhower stood her ground and she growled at the six men.

"It's just one wild mutt – who gives a shit?"

"Err – you might wanna reconsider that."

From out of the darkness behind Eisenhower, came seven very similar dark shapes all clad in body armour and with protective masks over their faces. They were identical apart from the coloured markings on their armour. Four of the animals moved to Eisenhower's left, the remaining three formed up to her right. All of them were growling in a decidedly unnerving way and saliva dripped from the bared fangs.

"Holy fuck!" one man almost whimpered at the sight of eight sets of very sharp teeth.

Slowly, the seven new dogs began to encircle the men.

...+...

. . . and something else . . .

*All the leaves are brown and the sky is grey
I've been for a walk on a winter's day
I'd be safe and warm if I was in L.A.
California dreaming on such a winter's day*

...+...

"I could get used to this!" Sky commented to her twin sister as they both set foot on the tarmac.

...+...

"Six bedrooms – four in the main house. Master Suite on the second level. You two girls get to have a suite each on the main level. Every door is armoured, as is every pane of glass. The grass outback can handle a helicopter as required."

...+...

Each suit was of a skin-tight design and was made up of an ultra-flexible and ultra-light composite armour which covered every inch of the body from the ankles to the neck. Lightweight, high-strength, stab-resistant boots matched the suit colour. For the hands, armoured gloves extended up past the wrist. A mask covered their entire head and eyes down to the bridge of their nose leaving only the lower half of their faces exposed.

...+...

The city appears to have gained its own true vigilantes. Two females were spotted on the streets, late last night. Eagle-eyed vigilante spotters noticed that the women were equipped in a very similar and professional manner to those vigilantes known to exist in the City of Chicago. A select few attained a closer look at the vigilantes and identified a symbol borne on the left chest of each woman. The symbol was identical to that worn by those same Chicago vigilantes that made up the organisation known as Fusion. Fusion is the organisation headed by the purple vigilante, Hit Girl.

...+...

"You are about to enter a world which is secretive by its very existence. You are about to enter the world of the vigilante. You are about to enter a purple hell."

...+...

"You are shitting me!"

"You guys do not fuck around when it comes to Safehouses, do ya?"

"Hit Girl has a thing for being prepared – she must have been a boy scout in a previous life!"

...+...

The girl aimed down the room and then squeezed the trigger.

Bang!

Scream!

Thud!

Laughter!

"What the hell did you drop it for?" I demanded as Sky rolled around on the floor laughing.

...+...

"I see scum, Venom. Scum that prays on the innocent. Scum that needs to be taught a lesson."

...+...

"You having a midlife crisis or something, Erika?"

"Or something..." Erika replied coolly.

...+...

"This . . . place . . . is . . . fucking . . . awesome!"

...+...

*All the leaves are brown and the sky is grey
I've been for a walk on a winter's day
I'd be safe and warm if I was in L.A.
California dreaming on such a winter's day*

Chapter 302*: Tripartite War Warning

Author's Note: . . . and we're back!

"My name is Stephanie Lizewski and I am part of an organisation which is charged with the protection of the City of Chicago. That organisation is known as Fusion. . ."

"Hey, it's my goddamn story – even if it is based on a story called 'Kick-Ass!'"

"My bad, Hit Girl!"

"You're injured – you're not supposed to be doing narratives, so get the fuck back to sleep."

"Purple bitch!"

"Anyway – my name is Mindy Lizewski. I am the vigilante known as Hit Girl and I protect the City of Chicago along with my husband, Dave Lizewski, AKA Kick-Ass. Together, we lead the Chicago vigilantes who are all part of an organisation called Fusion. . ."

"I already said that!"

"Do want to lose the use of your other arm?"

"Fucking Yank!"

"Chicago and Fusion are in danger. After my daughter, Stephanie, was shot down in cold blood, we sought out her attacker. On the way, we discovered an errant bomber and multiple organisations that wished to do Fusion and Chicago harm. Fusion is at its strongest ever and our enemies will feel the cold steel of my blades as they cut deep into their living flesh. Their blood will be spilt and Chicago will become safe, once again."

"Who wrote that shit?"

"Get to sleep, before I put you out with a bloody spoon . . . and don't you look at me like that, either!"

Five days later
Saturday, 16th July, 2016
About nine o'clock

The streets of Chicago

The cunt stopped moving as the long o-kissaki point of the Katana pierced his left eyeball and continued on through the cartilage and bone deep into the brain behind. Blood exploded out as Hit Girl swung the companion Katana horizontally and took off the man's head at the neck.

"Fucking hell!" Hit Girl swore as the severed head refused to fall off her blade.

She attacked the head with her other sword, pushing the disassociated bonce off the end of the affected sword. Jackal appeared to the side of Hit Girl, his Ninja-To severing the carotid artery of another Sicilian cunt.

"Ah – the dreaded 'head-stuck-on-the-sword' problem – I feel for you!" he chuckled as he dived back into the mass of criminal scum.

"Fuck you, you. . ." Hit Girl retorted as she swung the recently freed sword around and severed the right leg of a large Russian Solntsevskaya soldier, just above the knee. The fucking asshole made to shoot Hit Girl despite his injury but Hit Girl was ready and she lopped off both of his lower arms and left him to writhe in his own warm, spurting blood.

"Messy bitch!" Wildcat growled as she ran past, her own Katana drenched in, and dripping, blood.

..._...

"You okay, Nightmare?" Wildcat yelled as she saw the trainee-vigilante push a recently deceased body away from her so she could regain her feet.

Nightmare yelled out as a pair of gunshots caused her to be splashed with blood and gore as a Russian had his head blown apart by Foxtail.

"Never lose situational awareness, Nightmare!" she commented as she flipped the Butterfly sword in her left hand inverted and drove it behind her – directly into the stomach of an attacking Corsair.

A pair of armour-clad legs sidestepped the dying Corsair as the body fell to the ground spilling copious amounts of hot, steaming blood.

"Fucking show off!" Raven laughed as she ran past with Splinter beside her.

..._...

"Petra – watch your six; you have several Corsairs approaching your position," Hal announced from Mia.

"Thanks, Hal!" Petra replied over the comms.

"Fucking bastards have marked us!" Battle Guy growled as he shot a pair of Corsairs in the head and quickly dived into the driver's seat of the green van before accelerating away. After two sharp turns, he skidded to a halt beside a large trailer.

Battle Guy dived out and grabbed hold of a pressure washer lance and pressed the 'Start' button on the compressor. High-pressure water burst out of the lance and Battle Guy aimed it at the top of the van's side. The thin covering of green paint was blasted away to reveal Mia's natural colour: navy blue. Within five minutes, Mia was returning to a different vantage point – a very different van after Battle Guy had slapped on a pair of false plates.

Okay . . . time for questions.

Why was Fusion fighting the Sicilian Mafia, the Solntsevskaya Brotherhood, and a bunch of mercenary Corsairs? Well, we would need to go back twenty-four hours or more to cover that little change in events.

It had all started on the Friday afternoon, at Safehouse F.

Friday, 15th July

Safehouse F Briefing Room

"We have a new threat."

"Not really new – we've fought cunts like them before," Chloe pointed out.

"We're already fighting against FEAR and that pink abortion. We also have whoever shot Stephanie, and some fucked up bomber from Northern Ireland – now we have some vendetta-crazed Sicilians and well, I've just got a really bad feeling. . ."

"Han Solo, you are not!" Abby interceded.

"Ha, ha!" Mindy continued. "We are increasing defences for the Safehouses and our homes. . ."

"Another row of Claymores amongst the rose bushes?" Joshua chuckled.

Mindy's expression as her cheeks turned pink confirmed that Joshua's suggestion was, in fact, a key part of her defence strategy.

"Claymore's going cheap, were they?" Joshua added. "Bulk discount?"

"Without getting side-tracked – yeah," Mindy admitted to general laughter. She was glad of Joshua's humour; it broke the ice in what was otherwise turning out to be a very depressing briefing.

"So, we're taking the warning seriously?" Murphy asked.

"We have to," Marty admitted. "We have all our technical resources digging into the Sicilian angle, but so far, we can neither corroborate nor deny the threat."

"Great!" Fellowes muttered to his partner.

"You will all be on the lookout," Dave lectured. "Nobody takes risks or draws attention to Safehouses or identities. The senior staff are taking this threat seriously and you should all accept this briefing as a war warning. We don't want to alarm anybody, nor do we want to scare the younger ones, but we have a city to protect and under no circumstances are we leaving this city."

"Damn right!" Megan cut in, to general agreement from all those present.

"Let's get back to work people," Mindy suggested.

..._...

Mindy had not slept well that Friday night – it was that 'really bad feeling'.

Therefore, the following evening, Fusion had gone out onto the streets of Chicago expecting a war – unfortunately, they had found one.

Saturday, 16th July
About seven o'clock

The streets of Chicago

"Hello, fuckers!"

The Sicilian men were not overtly menacing but it was obvious that they would not be a walkover either.

"Good evening, Hit Girl. We just wanted to remind you of how serious we are about you and your people leaving Chicago."

Hit Girl looked around.

"Just you three cunts?" Hit Girl asked, seeing nobody else.

"Not quite," the same man went on.

Hit Girl shook her head as a very familiar individual joined the three Sicilians.

"So, you guys have joined forces – couldn't take little me on your own?" Hit Girl sneered.

"You're good, Hit Girl, we will give you that – but we like to be certain. . ." FEAR growled.

"We, too, have a vested interest, товарищ."

Hit Girl turned to see a large man grinning fiendishly. Hit Girl was getting seriously annoyed.

"Who the fuck, are you?"

"Солнцевская братва."

Hit Girl struggled to keep her composure; things had just taken a major turn for the worse.

"What would the Solntsevskaya Brotherhood be doing in Chicago?"

"We are expanding our operations and, well . . . you're in the fucking way, Hit Girl!"

"So, Hit Girl, is it time to leave?" the Sicilian chuckled.

"We would miss you," FEAR added.

"Let the fun . . . begin!" Hit Girl shouted as she jumped into the air and dived for an overhanging fire escape just as the Sicilians pulled out their pistols and sent bullets after her.

About nine fifteen

So, that was how Fusion got to be fighting the Sicilian Mafia, the Solntsevskaya Brotherhood, and a bunch of mercenary Corsairs.

"Are you going to fight, or just stand there looking like a fucking dick?" Shadow enquired.

"Sorry," Hit Girl responded. "Zoned out for a sec."

The two vigilantes bolted forwards into the melee and slashed their way towards where Kick-Ass was quite literally 'breaking heads'.

"Oy – you bitches give me hand?"

Hit Girl glanced down as she was about to hurdle a dead body and she saw Trojan pinned beneath a very large Russian. Hit Girl glanced over at Shadow who just shrugged and between them they heaved the dead corpse off of Trojan who sprang to his feet.

"Fucker fell on top of me as he died!" Trojan growled as he ran off, yelling over his shoulder. "Thanks, girls!"

Shadow and Hit Girl then turned towards a loud and very panicked scream. After slashing down a Corsair and dodging a couple of knives they found the source of the scream. A Sicilian man appeared to be having an argument with an armour-clad canine.

"Help me!" he yelled as the female Chicago vigilantes came close.

"Yeah, there's a dog on your balls!" Shadow cried out.

"Get it the fuck off of me!" the man was almost hysterical as Eisenhower growled and tugged on her mouthful.

"Eisenhower!" Hit Girl snapped and the dog instantly released her meat and two veg.

"Thank you. . ."

Hit Girl put the man's lights out with her fist before she, Shadow, and Eisenhower went after some more cunts.

..._...

Despite her still being sore from being caught up in the explosion only a few days previously, Foxtail had not wanted to be left out and so, after a clear bill of health from Doctor Bennett, she had geared up and joined the rest of Fusion. Her main task for the evening was to keep an eye on her trainee. Nightmare seemed to be fighting well. She was tired, but she was handling it; just as well as any of the others.

Fatigue was always a danger. Hit Girl and Kick-Ass ignored it, as did Shadow and Jackal – sometimes to their cost. For the younger vigilantes, it was harder to fight against. Wildcat, Trojan, and Raven all suffered from fatigue; their bodies were still getting used to the extra abuse from extended operations. Petra, Psyche, and Foxtail were all acclimatised to pushing themselves way past the point of normal human endurance.

The crucial factor was knowing your limits. Nightmare and Wildcat were still learning those limits and they had to be watched.

Lawndale

"Hit Girl, Battle Guy – you have company!"

Hit Girl finished administering her latest multiple amputation and she turned at the sound of many powerful engines.

"Well, well, they look right up my street," she growled as she ran down an alleyway.

A minute later, Hit Girl reappeared on her Panigale with Mist at her tailpipe.

Both vigilantes headed directly at the eight black motorcycles, each with their own black-clad rider. The motorcyclists were firing indiscriminately into the buildings which lined West Douglas Boulevard. Hit Girl fired several shots from her pistol to gain the riders' attention. Once the first head turned, Mist and Hit Girl executed a quick one-eighty before they stopped and looked over their shoulders.

"Come get us you fucking cunts!" Mist growled as she revved the engine of her Ducati Streetfighter 848.

The lead rider accelerated and his seven companions came after him. Each rider was astride a BMW S 1000 RR Sport motorcycle, which by the sounds of their engines, Hit Girl assumed to be non-stock. The ten motorcycles raced east along West Douglas Boulevard before they each took the hard right northbound, onto South Independence Avenue.

..._...

Ten motorcycles soon dropped to nine as one rider was taken out by a semi as we crossed over West Roosevelt Road.

"That must have hurt – pity!" Mist chuckled. "Fucking cunt!"

Mindy had been concerned about Erika's state of mind after her having lost somebody so close to her but on the other hand, being able to focus and take your anger out on some unfortunate cunt was also good for a troubled mind – Mindy could personally vouch for that!

As the nine motorcycles wove in and out of the light traffic, they attracted many horns and angry gestures. Some recognised Mist and Hit Girl and gave them a merry wave with rude gestures at the obvious enemy. Hit Girl was scanning the street ahead while Abby provided guidance of potential traffic issues. As she flew over I-290, Hit Girl veered over to the right and entered the, currently empty, grounds of Leif Ericson Elementary School. The motorcycles careered across the playing fields and one of the BMWs skidded into a baseball diamond and he became bogged down in the sand. Before he could get his machine out of the sand, he was surrounded by the CPD.

The remaining eight motorcycles spread out as they played a lethal game of dodgems with more than one collision which pissed off both Mist and Hit Girl. Neither vigilante enjoyed their precious motorcycles suffering even the most minor damage. Mist scored a direct hit with her pistol on one of the machines which smashed directly into a large tree, killing the rider instantly. After a brief radio conversation, Hit Girl took the chase back onto West Jackson Boulevard and then a hard right onto South Central Park Boulevard. The CPD had blocked off all the east-west junctions and Hit Girl hit sixty as the seven riders headed right back to where they had begun the chase.

There, Fusion was waiting in ambush.

As Hit Girl raced through the junction of West Douglas Boulevard and South Central Park Avenue, she pulled a wheelie and the armour beneath her machine absorbed several bullets from two Solntsevskaya Brotherhood Krysha's. Behind her, Mist put a bullet into each Krysha as she entered the junction.

As the first BMW made to follow, Jackal threw a discard AK-74 into the front wheel of the machine and . . .

"Holy, fuck!" he exclaimed as the 208-kilogramme high-performance motorcycle went airborne along with its rider.

The combination landed rider first – he cushioned the fall of his ride.

"Like somebody just smashed a large tomato!" Nightmare laughed as the next BMW came through.

"I give him a nine for artistic presentation," Wildcat added as she ran past before yelling back over her shoulder. "He lost a point for the bad landing."

..._...

Kick-Ass dove out of the shadows and he took the rider out of his saddle. The rider-less motorcycle continued on for two dozen yards before it crashed into a parked car. Kick-Ass proceeded to pulverise the cunt, ripping off his helmet and kicking the living shit out of the asshole. Kick-Ass was just in time to take down the final BMW motorcycle by throwing the unconscious cunt into the road at the last minute and causing the oncoming rider to swerve and lose control of his machine – he was thrown forwards and he hit the wall of a building rather hard.

"Was that the sound of his neck snapping?" Shadow queried.

"Cool, huh!" Foxtail replied.

"Crazy Predator nut!" Shadow growled as she examined the previous pair of motorcycles which had kind of become mechanical headless horsemen as Shadow had lopped off their heads as they had ridden past her.

"Okay, who's next?" Kick-Ass growled as he turned towards the remaining enemy.

"Yeah, do you wish to engage?" Hit Girl growled as she walked up and stood beside her partner.

The enemy slunk off into the night.

"I didn't think so," Hit Girl finished.

The following day
Sunday, 17th July

Synthesis Data Core

"Hit Girl!"

"Hello," Hit Girl replied before continuing without any further preamble. "We face a grave threat and I want you all to be safe. We will start with some weapons' training, but first, I want you all to go to this place and ask for Paige. Tell her your names and you will find yourselves enrolled in a beginner's class."

Hit Girl passed out a business card to each of the five teenagers.

"D-JAK?"

"I hear it's a great place – they train youngsters and even a few cops. . . Be there!"

The youngsters knew that they had no choice.

"We can do that."

"Good night!"

That afternoon

D-JAK Prime

As directed, the five friends turned up at the D-JAK studio, on West North Avenue.

Paige had been waiting for them, and after taking their details, she had provided them with uniforms and then handed them over to Kyle and Saoirse. The five teenagers were provided with a personal training session off to one side of the facility, away from the other classes.

Saoirse and Kyle took them through basic defence and disarming – there was limited messing about and the five friends took it all very seriously. An hour later, after a break, they were separated into three groups. Saoirse partnered with Jesse while Peter partnered with Laurence and Libby partnered with Kate. Thirteen-year-old Jesse struggled to keep his eyes off of Saoirse's gentle curves and her pert breasts . . . Jesse was kicked down to the floor, three times, before Saoirse decided to go easy on him.

"You land a kick on me – and I'll let you touch them . . ."

Jesse's concentration instantly increased ten-fold! Although, he did notice when his almost fourteen-year-old sister screamed out and hit the mat, hard. Kate was actually very good and she grinned enormously as she looked down at her friend.

"Well, that went well!" Kyle chuckled as he helped the girl back to her feet. "Libby, isn't it?"

Libby allowed herself to be helped to her feet and she smiled up at the boy.

"Oh, God; she's got the hots for him!" her brother grimaced.

"Have not!" Libby sniped back.

"She fancies anything with a cock that's vaguely human," Laurence confirmed as Libby's mouth dropped open in stunned incredulity and her face went a deep shade of red.

"Let's get back to the training, shall we?" Chloe advised as she came over to see what was going on.

That evening

Safehouse F

Mindy was very pleased to hear that Synthesis was doing well with their training.

To them, it was all a bit of fun, although they understood the seriousness of the necessity for the training. Mindy knew only too well what could happen to them if they were attacked and she wanted to ensure that they could look after themselves. Did Mindy feel guilty about using five innocent teenagers? Did she feel guilty about putting their lives at risk? A few years before, the answer would have been a resounding 'no', only, Mindy had changed and she now recognised how precious human life was. Compassion had grown within her and she could no longer put people at risk without a damn good reason.

As she looked around the main area of the Safehouse, she smiled at all those who were training hard to be the best that they could be.

Saoirse was training Anne-Marie, in a one-on-one lesson, outside the Command Centre. Both girls held out their Butterfly swords before them and as such, everybody else kept well away for their own safety. Danny was with Joshua; where he was teaching the young boy how to use his Tactical Wakizashi properly. Chloe sat with Lizzie and Lauren, taking Lauren through some of the events of the other night and explaining the tactics used to Lizzie.

Mindy was very pleased that beyond dozens of bruises, nobody had required the services of Dr Bennett, despite a hard night fighting against some very skilled adversaries . . . OW!

..._...

Mindy turned to glare at Sarah who looked very scared and she backed away from Mindy.

"Wow!" Marc exclaimed. "You just struck Hit Girl around the face – you are fucking toast, girl!"

"I'm so sorry, Mindy . . ."

Mindy chuckled and then kicked out and sent Marc flying backwards onto the mat – he yelled out as he landed and then glared at the unrepentant Mindy.

"You do remember I was shot not that long ago," he moaned.

"You're fine," Mindy retorted before she turned to Sarah. "Well done! Marc, Sarah did the right thing – she took advantage of the situation; my momentary distraction, and she attacked. You have to take every chance in a fight, so you can win."

Sarah nodded and so did Marc once he had got back to his feet. Mindy left them both sparring so she could head over to see Marty, Kim, and little Matty. She was intercepted by a nervous looking Sky.

"Mindy?"

"Yeah, Sky."

"Could Chrissy and me go see Stephanie, tonight?"

"Of course, you can, Sky – just don't over excite her, please."

"No, problem, Mindy – it'll be the most boring hospital visit, ever!"

Mindy laughed as the girl ran over to her twin.

"Hi, Marty – Kim."

"Mindy – fancy a hold?" Kim asked.

Mindy was almost scared when it came to the babies – Damon was five weeks old while Matty was nine months old. While she often held her little step-brother, she felt like she might break him, he was so small and fragile. Marcus and Paige thought it so funny, considering that Mindy was Hirt Girl. Nonetheless, Matty was easier – he was bigger and slightly less fragile. As Mindy took the boy from his mother, he looked up at Mindy, and he smiled.

"She looks petrified!" Dave chuckled as he walked over.

Later that night

Northwestern Memorial Hospital Room 32

Stephanie was very disgruntled.

She was fed up. She knew that Fusion had been out on the streets of Chicago, but she knew very little about what had occurred, apart from what she could glean from the news reports. She felt left out and she was desperate to get out of the bed and go home. She missed her friends. She missed her family. Oh, they all came to visit, but they would never tell her what was going on – security, apparently!

"Fuck!" Stephanie yelled out to the empty room.

"Now that was a curse and a half!"

"Chrissy!" Stephanie exclaimed, her mood instantly improving.

"Hospital getting to you?" Sky asked, noticing immediately, Stephanie's previous mood.

"Yeah."

"We know how it feels, Stephanie – we thought we'd come to see how you were . . . and . . ."

"What is that smell?" Stephanie demanded as she sniffed the air. "Whatever it is, I want it. . ."

Sky laughed as she opened up her bag and she pulled out a McDonalds bag.

"Big Mac and fries, plus a vanilla milkshake – was that right?"

"My favourite!"

In her excitement, Stephanie ripped open the packaging, sending fries in all directions. She began to cram the burger into her mouth. Chrissy and Sky both laughed as they began to eat their own burgers. All three girls were so engrossed in the food that they never noticed a disapproving face appear at the door. Doctor Natalie Manning smiled as she watched the three girls chattering away and eating their fast food. She decided to let it slide, just the once. The look on her young patient's face was enough to justify the blatant disregard for hospital rules.

The Doctor slipped out of the door just as silently as she had entered and she continued on her rounds.

Chapter 303*: Rogue

Two days later
Tuesday, 19th July, 2016

Glenview

Mindy headed upstairs to check on the twins.

She began with Danny – he was lying on the floor of his bedroom, playing with his toys.

"Hi, Mom – what's up?"

"Just checking – you go back to whatever."

Danny smiled and turned back to whatever he was doing.

Next, Mindy headed for Anne-Marie's room via the shared bathroom. She was not in her bedroom. A few moments later, she found the eight-year-old. She was curled up on Stephanie's bed, with a purring Horatio in front and a dozing Razor behind. Mindy knew that Anne-Marie was taking Stephanie's stay in hospital rather hard.

"Hi, kid," Mindy said as she sat down on the bed beside her daughter.

Mindy stroked Horatio as he stretched and exposed his tummy. Razor opened a single eye and whined before going back to sleep again. Anne-Marie was cuddling her Rarity pony and looking very down.

"I know you miss her – we all do."

"I know she's done terrible things, but she's also done good since she's been with us. She saved my life and . . . she doesn't deserve any of this."

"We live in a world of bad people, Anne-Marie. That is part of the reason why I became Hit Girl – I wanted to fix what was broken. Believe me, we will find whoever shot Stephanie and I'll make you a promise, Anne-Marie. If you want in at the end of that, then I will let you participate."

"Will I be able to hurt them, like I hurt the man who kidnapped me?"

"If that is what you want, but you may have to take a ticket. Many people want a piece of that shooter."

Anne-Marie wrapped her arms around Mindy's waist and Horatio snuggled in for a cuddle of his own. As Mindy hugged her youngest daughter, she looked around the bedroom of her eldest daughter. Everything was in its place, as it always was. Anne-Marie's bedroom was a disaster zone and you took your life in your hands when you went in there, but Stephanie's was always neat and tidy. It was a place where Stephanie felt safe and she could act like a normal ten-year-old rather than the killer she was. Then Mindy remembered something.

"You want a laugh?" Mindy asked the morose eight-year-old.

"Okay," Anne-Marie replied noncommittally.

Mindy pulled out her cell phone and she fiddled around for a few moments, searching for a particular video. Once she found it, she held the phone so she and Anne-Marie could see the screen, then she pressed play. As the video played, Anne-Marie's eyes went wide and she began to giggle. At the end of the video, Anne-Marie smiled broadly and looked up at Mindy.

"Don't ever tell anybody you saw that video," Mindy suggested. "Matter of fact, don't tell her either or she'll cut our throats one dark and stormy night."

Anne-Marie laughed at that.

"Can we watch it again?"

...+...

Stephanie had been singing, one Saturday afternoon.

Mindy could hear her voice, but no music, so she had carefully eased open the door of the ten-year-old's bedroom, her cell up and filming, to find the young girl dancing on her bed, facing away from the door and singing into a hair brush. On her head were a set of wireless Bluetooth headphones.

'I am immortal, I have inside me blood of kings, I have no rival, No man can be my equal, Take me to the future of the world.

'Born to be kings, Princes of the universe, Fighting and free, Got your world in my hand, I'm here for your love and I'll make my stand, We were born to be princes of the universe.'

...+...

"Bit full of herself, isn't she?" Anne-Marie commented with a smirk. "She's actually pretty good."

That evening

Safehouse F

Joshua and Saoirse were sparring, without additional armour.

Joshua was an enigma to some, actually most, to be honest. Most of the girls saw him as chivalrous and a young man that would never knowingly hurt a female. The likes of Abby and Chloe both knew otherwise, as did Mindy. The newer females in Fusion tended to forget that Joshua had learnt to fight, the hard way. He had also been forced to fight against Chloe in the early months of his time with us. As such, he had learnt rather quickly that pulling punches just because his opponent had boobs and a snatch, was a very quick way to end up flat on his face.

Saoirse attempted a feint followed by a kick but she was shocked to find herself punched in the left boob and then in the upper-right arm in quick succession. She fell to the mat groaning and writhing in pain.

"Ow, ow, ow – you are a total wanker, Joshua!"

"Don't think I'm going to go easy on you just because you have tits and a fanny."

"Would never expect you to . . ." the chastened Saoirse moaned as Morgan fell about laughing.

..._...

A few yards over, Lauren and Lizzie were taking turns practicing disarming techniques with a very real but unloaded Glock 17 pistol. Lizzie was quick off the mark when it came to learning new skills and in part, she showed up her big sister who at times took a little longer to grasp something. The two girls were very different but then Lizzie had not suffered as Lauren had.

The two girls paused as Tommy and Hailee continued with a rather violent sparring session. Hailee had upped the violence of her sparring ever since her return from Europe and Tommy was an ideal candidate as he rarely pulled his punches, so ingrained was his hard-learned training. Mindy had had pause to contemplate Hailee's change in training tempo. There had also been some reckless behaviour out on the streets but Mindy tolerated it considering what had happened to the girl in Europe.

Tommy fought dirty, but Hailee (in her Petra persona) could fight just as dirty. Despite Tommy only being twelve-year-old, he was still a match for the eighteen-year-old Hailee. That was something that Hailee could not allow, and neither would ever back down. It would normally take intervention from somebody powerful, such as Dave or Joshua, to bring the sparring session to a close. That day was no exception as Mindy whistled loudly at Joshua and tipped her head towards the two sparrers.

Dave heard the whistle and he came out of the armoury to assist Joshua in the task of separating the fighting youngsters.

..._...

"What's going on, Hailee?" Mindy asked her friend after Tommy and Hailee had shook hands and gone their separate ways.

"A very good question . . . I still have nightmares and I feel that I let you down by letting myself be taken. . ."

"Hailee – I know that nightmares cannot be controlled and I have them a lot; ask Dave if you don't believe me. Just remember that we are all here to talk – you know, if you need us?"

"Thanks, Mindy – I will talk . . . when I am ready."

"I'll be there for you when you need me."

..._...

Mindy turned as there was a scream and she saw Lauren flipping her sister onto the mat and then diving at her. Saoirse got there first and she pulled Lauren away from her sister.

"Cut that out!" Mindy growled.

"Lauren, you do not attack your sister – you should know better," Dave chastened the young vigilante.

"She started it," Lauren almost spat at her sister.

Dave looked over at Lizzie.

"Sorry – it was my fault. I was teasing her about Brad – they spent time together, this afternoon."

Joshua raised an eyebrow and Lauren's cheeks went pink.

Earlier that day

Wagner Road

"You can come closer, Brad . . . you can even kiss me, if you want. . ."

"I . . . I wouldn't want to. . ."

Lauren looked offended.

"You don't want to touch me because I was raped?" she almost exploded. "Or just because you don't like what you see?"

"Lauren!" Brad replied strongly. "I don't want to take advantage of you – I know what happened to you and I am sorry that you had to go through that. I just don't want you to have to do anything which you don't want to."

Lauren smiled.

"You always say the right thing, Brad. I'm sorry I overreacted. Look, I'm Nightmare, I won't allow you to do anything I don't want, 'kay?"

Brad smiled and moved closer to Lauren. Then he leant in and he kissed her, on the lips. Lauren's eyes closed as she savoured the kiss which was sloppy and wet, but nice. Both teenagers blushed as they separated and stared at each other.

"You liked it?" Brad asked tentatively.

"It was nice – my first kiss," Lauren said as she reached up under her t-shirt and fiddled with her bra.

"Mine too."

Lauren took Brad's right hand and she pushed it up under her t-shirt and then under her loosened bra. Brad almost yanked his hand back but then relented and allowed Lauren to guide him. He felt very soft skin that was very warm to the touch. Then he felt a soft mound rise under his fingers and Lauren took a deep breath as a finger touched something hard.

"Oh, wow. . ." Lauren breathed.

"Tell me about it," a voice announced.

..._...

Brad yanked his hand from under Lauren's t-shirt and both turned to see Lizzie standing in the doorway.

"I'm telling Mom. . ."

"Lizzie!" Lauren called out.

"You'll tell Mom what, Lizzie?" Emily Edwards asked as she pushed Lizzie further into the bedroom.

"They're doing something disgusting, Mom. Brad had his hand up Lauren's T-shirt and look, her nipples are sticking out a mile."

Lauren went bright pink for a moment before she started to turn red with anger.

"Brad, are you forcing yourself on my daughter?"

"Mom, no! For your information, Brad didn't want to touch me. I invited him to kiss me. I undid my bra. I placed his hand on my breast and what my nipples are doing has fuck all to do with that nosy bitch!"

Emily sighed.

"She has a point, Lizzie – your sister is old enough to need her own privacy and you should not be going into her room unannounced and definitely not when she has company. Lauren, take it slowly, please."

"Mom, no boy is going anywhere near my vagina until I am good and ready. I trust Brad and I want to share myself with him in my own way and in my own time. I promise that I will not be having sex any time soon."

"Ewww!" Lizzie announced and she vanished from the room.

"I trust you, too, Brad. Stay safe, both of you."

Northwestern Memorial Hospital Room 32

Dave pushed open the door to the hospital room with a smile on his face for his daughter, only the smile quickly faded when he saw Stephanie's expression.

"When can I get out of here – I hate it."

Dave sat down on the edge of the bed and he took his daughter's left hand in his own.

"Very soon, I promise. The Doc says you're doing really, really well."

"Everything still hurts and I can't move my right arm."

"You can handle the pain; I know that you can. Your arm will take time and we'll look after that once you're out of here. Your chest and your side will be painful for a while longer – more once you start to move around more. There's no way around that, honey."

Stephanie leaned over to cuddle into Dave and a small tear ran down her cheek.

"Don't cry – you're better than that. Where's our fearless Psyche?"

"She's feeling tired and dejected right now, Dad. It's just your little girl at the moment and she's hurting."

Dave squeezed Stephanie's hand as the young girl began to cry in earnest. The door to the room opened and Saoirse walked in. She stopped dead at seeing her best friend in tears and her heart went out to the younger girl.

"Steph?"

Stephanie looked up and she smiled at her best friend.

"Hi, SD. Sorry, I must look like shit."

"That's allowed, Steph; you've been through a lot."

"I just want this to be over. I want to go home. I want to be with my friends and with my family."

"It's just around the corner, Steph. We'll all be there for you, once you get out. You just need to bide your time. You've beaten all the odds before, Steph. You beat those bastards who put you in The Cage. You survived their attempts at humiliating you. You survived that bitch, Murdoch – and you survived me. Stephanie, you survived everything that Urban Predator threw at you, and you tore them apart in retribution. This is nothing compared to all that, girl."

Stephanie thought about that as she wiped away her tears.

"Yeah, I'm a bad bitch, ain't I?"

Saoirse laughed and Dave smiled down at his daughter, proud of her inner strength and resolve.

That night
Glenview

"How's she doing?"

"She had a little crying session but with Saoirse's help, we cheered her up and pointed out that she's beaten much worse."

"She has a had a crap few years and my own childhood pales into insignificance against hers," Mindy replied.

"She's just as strong as you are, honey, so I know that she'll come out of this."

"She is feisty, I'll give her that," Mindy chuckled. "I miss having her around the house."

"I will admit, it has been a bit quiet – even with the twins around."

"Hopefully, she'll be out in two more weeks – at least Cathy and Steph's Doc say so – assuming she behaves."

"It's Stephanie . . ." Dave chuckled.

"Yeah – a little unpredictable, isn't she?"

"Just like you, honey."

Mindy snuggled into her husband and she felt immense comfort in his warmth. All her problems and worries went away as he gently rubbed her back.

Intercontinental Hotel
Miami Beach, Florida

The Ole Restaurant

"Thank you for coming, Ms Cummings."

"It is an honour to meet you, Mr Valachi; your reputation precedes you."

"As does, yours, Ms Cummings – and please, call me Joseph."

"Susan. Now, for what did you suggest this meeting?"

"I understand that we have both had dealings with a former native of New York, who now lives in Chicago."

Ms Cummings expression went cold, very cold.

"That bitch needs to die – she cost me millions . . . not to mention my yacht."

"She cost me my niece and her husband, not to mention their son. My family owes them and my father, Vito Genovese, he wants blood."

"What did you have in mind, Joseph?"

"We have an operation underway in Chicago, right now. A week or so ago, we issued an ultimatum to the purple bitch – ninety days to leave Chicago. We are keeping the pressure on."

"Let me know what you need from me. . ."

Two days later
Thursday, 21st July

Lunchtime

North Western Avenue, Chicago

The Pizza Hut restaurant was crowded and a certain set of tables was very rowdy as they ate their pizzas.

"We are gathered here today . . ."

"Marty, it's not a wedding!"

"Sorry, Megan – we are here to celebrate the sixteenth birthdays of two very obnoxious young women. . ." Marty corrected.

". . . and by 'obnoxious'," Joshua interrupted, "we mean that these two could give Mindy a run for her money!"

The two girls in question glared at Joshua with their mouths hanging open.

"Hey! Nobody out does me when it comes to being obnoxious!" Mindy declared and there was some raucous laughter from all those present.

"Anyway," Marty went on. "Happy Birthday, Sky and Chrissy!"

There was plenty of rowdy cheering as the two girls blushed with the attention.

Later that afternoon

"Saoirse McBride, as I live and breathe..."

Saoirse stiffened. It was a name that she had not heard in seven years and as far as she was aware, nobody else knew of it. She did her best not to react but the name had shaken her. It had also been delivered in a perfect Belfast accent. Something was very wrong. Nobody alive could have known who she used to be before she was taken and given the identity of Saoirse Doherty. Saoirse chose to ignore the man and she continued on her way.

"You're the image of your ma. On for a wee dander?"

Saoirse composed herself and she turned to look at the man.

"I have no idea who you are, sir, but would you please leave me alone," she offered in her best British accent.

The man was taken aback for a moment before his eyes narrowed.

"Aye. My apologies young lady."

The man turned and he walked away. Once the rattled fifteen-year-old was certain that he was gone, she pulled out her mobile and she dialled a number. The call was answered speedily.

"Mindy . . . I think I'm in trouble."

That evening

West Columbia

Kim jumped up from the couch to answer the knock on the door and she was very surprised to see who stood on the doorstep.

"Nicole?"

"Hi, Kim – we were in the neighbourhood, so we thought we'd stop by."

Kim hugged her big sister and then turned to the young girl who pushed past.

"Aunt Kim!"

"Hi, Zoe!"

After Kim had hugged Zoe, she closed the door and waved them into the living room. Marty looked up and he gave his wife a confused look.

"You remember my sister, Nicole, and our niece, Zoe?"

"Err, yeah, I do," Marty responded as he got up and gave his sister-in-law and niece a hug. "I had no idea they were coming by?"

"No, neither did I . . ." Kim replied.

"Sorry – we're going to be in town for a little while . . . me and Zoe, and we wanted to spend some time with you and your family, Kim."

"Where's Matty?" Zoe asked as she looked around the room.

"He's upstairs, sleeping," Marty replied. "Come on, you can come see him."

Once Marty and Zoe had gone upstairs, Kim turned on her sister.

"What's going on, Nicole."

"Me and Jordan . . . we're getting divorced."

"What?"

"It's for the best; everything's fine."

"What happened?"

"We just decided a couple months ago; no need to get into details. Zoe and I thought we'd move to Chicago . . . where we have family."

"Okay. How's Zoe taking it?"

"I don't really know; she won't open up. I thought . . ."

Kim smiled.

"You thought her Aunt Kim could get her to open up?"

"You always were good with Zoe – better than me, sometimes. She's eleven and she's got enough on her plate without her parents divorcing too."

"Let's sit down, shall we?"

Chapter 304*: Loyalty

Two days later
Saturday, 23rd July, 2016

Safehouse F

The Galley

After a few hours of frenzied activity, the two girls sat down at a table facing each other.

"Why do we do it?" Lauren asked as she sipped at her can of Pepsi.

"A question I ask myself almost every day," Megan replied as she opened her can of Coke.

"Are we bad people?" Lauren persisted.

"Probably."

"You are not helping!"

Megan laughed.

"We all have a deep-seated desire to help those who can't help themselves. Yes, we do bad things, but we do 'em for a good reason – yeah, I struggle to understand that, but then I am only eleven."

"You're way more than the average eleven-year-old, Megan. You've done so much and you're an awesome vigilante."

"You're gonna get her damn ego going again – we just deflated that damn thing," Joshua moaned as he sat down with his usual grin. "Got a joke for you two . . . a cat joke, as luck would have it."

"Oh, God!" Megan moaned, dropping her head onto the table, but Joshua ignored her and continued.

"There was a cat by the lake and a sausage came floating by. The cat put its paw in and wet its paw. Then a few minutes later a bigger sausage came floating by and the cat fell in. The moral of this story? The bigger the sausage the wetter the pussy."

"And people wonder why I like to kill . . ." Megan chuckled as she slapped Joshua while Lauren had a giggling fit.

"You two having a philosophical conversation concerning our existential time on this earth?"

Lauren and Megan both looked blankly at the Brit as he nonchalantly opened a can of Pepsi Max.

"Ignore him – he likes to use big words to confuse us simple Yanks; it's a British thing!" Hailee commented as she plonked herself down beside Lauren with her own can of Pepsi Max. "Basically, he wants to know if you are discussing the chances of us all losing it and ending up like Mindy."

"You saying that Mindy is several rounds short of a full magazine?" Lauren asked with a cheeky grin.

"That's one way to put it – she's certifiable," Megan replied. "Mind you, we all kill without a second's thought."

"Only when the fuckers deserve it," Josh reminded them all.

"Yeah – we have standards," Megan said with a hint of pride. "We stand for something."

"Very true, Kitty-Kat," Erika grinned as she helped herself to some coffee – Megan scowled. "Fusion is an organisation that is nothing without those who uphold its values."

"Us?" Lauren ventured.

"Us," Erika confirmed. "When Fusion first began, there were only the four of them. Chloe was little older than you are now, Lauren – same with Joshua. I made the mistake of dismissing the two kids, back when I first met them. Those four gave Fusion a reputation . . ."

"But Hit Girl already had a reputation," Lauren pointed out.

"Yes, she did," Erika confirmed. "But only amongst a few select criminals. Very few knew much about her – she was very secretive – and until that video where Kick-Ass and Big Daddy were being beaten to death, nobody had ever seen her – and lived. Hit Girl is a legend in her own time."

"So is Kick-Ass," Chloe said quickly as she sat down. "I owe those two a lot – everything really. I know I say that all the time, but I mean it; Mindy is like a big sister to me, and Dave is a big brother. Without them, I dread to think how I might have turned out – Mindy also got me back with my Dad. None of us are normal – you can't be if you do this shit."

"For many of us, Fusion is a home we never had," Tommy said as he joined the group. "We all owe Fusion something – Fusion rescued us all from something. Many of us might be dead by now without Dave and Mindy."

Joshua nodded.

"Chloe was rescued from a bad idea that put her in harm's way – well intentioned it was, but fucking daft. I was rescued from myself and brought to Chicago. Tommy was rescued from a life worse than death – in my opinion. Curtis was rescued from a nasty twist to his life. Stephanie was rescued from what can only be described as a hell on earth. The same with Saoirse and the other Predators both here and across the Atlantic. Megan was rescued from a life of crime – am I right?"

Megan nodded with an ashamed look on her face.

"Fusion has even stretched outside of Chicago. Bruce and Selina were both saved from themselves. Cameron and Natasha were saved from getting lost in the system of a foreign country. Christina and Sky, Anne-Marie and Daniel, Marc and Sarah – they were all saved from hell on earth. Fusion has taken down many that deserved to die. None of those targets were easy. From the D'Amico family, to Urban Predator, via Gotham and the Caribbean – we all bear scars of some description, either physical, or those emotional scars deep inside of us all," Joshua continued. "For many of us, we are hooked on a life that is illegal in most states, if not in most of the civilised world. Chicago welcomes us, but only because of that high level of professionalism that we show when we are out on the streets. Some of us get carried away, some of us fuck up. We've all been there. I am pleased and honoured to say that I know Mindy and Dave very well. Mindy has unbelievably high standards but that is only because she wants us all to come back alive. Even though she has difficulty showing it sometimes, she respects each and every one of you. She is also very thankful for the support you all give to her when it comes to Stephanie, the twins, and her wacky schemes."

"Right you lazy twats!" Mindy yelled from the doorway. "You all have training and not a session of vigilantes anonymous!"

Despite her feigned anger, Mindy was smiling broadly. How much had she overheard?

"Thank you, Josh," she said as he passed her.

The Command Center

"What have you got?" Mindy demanded.

"We're still searching," Marty replied as images flickered across a monitor while facial recognition software attempted to match a face against the computer-generated image of the man provided by Saoirse two night's previously.

"Could he be this asshole bomber?" Mindy demanded of Saoirse who sat at a console scanning photos on a screen.

Saoirse was feeling awful. She felt immense guilt because the man who had killed Toni, and almost killed her along with dozens of other people, may have only been in Chicago because of her. She also felt that Mindy blamed her. She jumped as she felt Mindy's hand on her shoulder.

"Saoirse – calm down. None of this is your fault. Our pasts usually catch up with us one way or another."

"That bastard is out there and he could be building more bombs even as we speak."

"There is only so much that we can do, Saoirse. We'll find him and stop him."

Level 0

Erika stepped back from the punchbag which she had been pounding for a solid forty minutes.

She grabbed a fresh towel from a pile by the door and she sat down on the mat, breathing heavily. She felt two shapes sit down either side of her.

"Here – drink this," Chrissy said as she offered Erika a cold bottle of water.

"It'll do you good," Sky added.

Erika looked to her left and her right, then she took the bottle.

"Maybe I need it – I'm seeing double!" Erika chuckled between swigs. "What do you two devious bitches want?"

"You," they both replied.

Erika groaned.

"A threesome?" Erika muttered facetiously.

"God, no!" Sky almost yelled. "Sorry – I'm not into that kind of thing; for that, you'd need to speak with Chrissy."

"With my own sister . . . ewww!" Chrissy replied with a faraway look in her eyes.

"No, Erika," Sky explained. "We've been considering our options and well, Mindy let slip that you're also considering your options."

"Mindy's got a big mouth!" Erika exclaimed.

"You've had a massive loss, Erika, and we cannot possibly understand what you have lost."

"You two haven't exactly had an easy life – you both got taken when you were eight and subjected to God only knows what, and then you both get yourselves taken down by Shadow with her bō-staff."

Sky subconsciously rubbed her side where there was a permanent scar visible between her top and her shorts.

"Yes – our lives sucked, but they have suddenly turned around. Meeting Shadow was probably the best – and definitely the most painful – thing that has happened to the both of us. We have a second chance at having a life. We've both decided that we'd like to go with you."

"I barely know either of you and you want me to let you both move in with me?"

"We promise to behave and to do what you tell us. . ."

Erika looked from one set of puppy-dog eyes to the other and she laughed.

"Let me think about it," she said seriously so the two girls knew that she meant it.

The following morning Sunday, 24th July

Safehouse Q

Sarah was half asleep as she made her way to the bathroom for a shower.

She never really heard the running water and she just walked straight in, only to be met by the smiling face of Chrissy Abbott.

"Oh, God, I'm sorry, Chrissy!"

"I'm not bothered," Chrissy said as she stepped out from behind the shower curtain.

Sarah's eyes went wide as she took in the naked body displayed before her. Sarah did not look away; Chrissy looked stunning as the water ran off her body and accentuated her ample curves.

"So," Chrissy said calmly, and with a little hope in her voice, "you're the magnificent muffin muncher that Saoirse says is total ecstasy."

Sarah felt her face getting very hot and she grinned in response.

"I'd really like to find out what you can do . . . and I can always return the favour. . ." Chrissy said as she ran her eyes over Sarah's pyjama-clad figure and then licked her lips.

Sarah hesitated but after less than a minute, she dropped her towel . . . and then she shucked off her pyjama bottoms followed by her top. Completely naked, she bit her lip as she moved towards Chrissy, who held out her hand to Sarah. Sarah took the hand and Chrissy pulled her under the hot water and they both studied each other's bodies up close.

As their skin touched, Sarah felt a sense of longing which spread from her groin up to her breasts. As their nipples touched, both girls moaned and all barriers dropped away as their hands began to caress each other's bodies. Sarah's hands gently mapped out Chrissy's ample breasts, every curve, all the way to the nipples at the tip. Chrissy's hands were doing the same and Sarah felt emotions and sensations that she had not felt in a long time. A lot of pent up sexual frustration began to ease as hands wandered across her stomach and found her belly button.

Sarah giggled.

"Your skin is so silky smooth," Chrissy purred as she continued downwards into Sarah's pubic hair.

Sarah was doing the same and she gently caressed Chrissy's own pubic hair. Sarah leaned down and she nibbled at Chrissy's right nipple which elicited a long, drawn out moan. The next few minutes or so passed in a blur of feverish sexual activity as both girls brought each other ever closer to an excruciating orgasm. Sarah took a deep breath and she sank to her knees . . . Chrissy smiled as she moved her legs further apart and then she braced herself with her arms for what was to come (pun intended).

Sarah's fingers gently caressed Chrissy's labia before pushing them apart with her fingertips and then she leant forwards. Chrissy could feel Sarah's fingers being replaced by the girl's tongue which pushed inside and then flicked up towards her . . . Chrissy yelped at the instantaneous stimulation that sent electrical impulses racing up her body to her brain. Sarah's reputation was well earned! After another minute of intense stimulation, Chrissy could take no more as she pushed Sarah's face away from her labia and she fell to her knees. Chrissy kissed Sarah on the lips and then she wrapped her arms around the other girl as wave after wave of crippling sensations coursed throughout her body.

The orgasm was just about the biggest that Chrissy had ever endured. She fell onto her back, pulling Sarah with her. They kissed under the water which streamed down from the shower head. Just as the two teens parted from their final kiss, there was a crash as the door was slammed shut. Both girls jumped as they turned to see Marc on the floor by the door, his pants down by his knees and his right hand wrapped around his dick. A thick substance oozed over his hand and dripped onto the floor.

Sarah giggled as she sunk her face into Chrissy's breasts.

Chrissy winked at the boy as he grinned sheepishly.

Mid-April, 2014

An unknown location in the USA

The instructor studied the scene before him.

He was standing in the communal area reserved for the 'yellows', the kids who were deemed too young, or otherwise unsuitable as Predators but retained for limited duties around the facility that were deemed below the status of even a Phase 1 Predator. An eight-year-old boy was holding his nose as blood continued to pour down his front. The boy glared at a seven-year-old girl wearing glasses who had an enormous and very satisfied grin on her face.

"You did this?" the instructor demanded incredulously as he looked down at the diminutive little girl.

"Yes, sir."

He smirked appreciatively.

"Where did you learn to do that?" he asked.

"I'd rather not say, sir."

"What!"

"I don't want to get them into trouble, sir."

"Well, they have broken a few rules by teaching you to fight, and I want to know who it is – now, young lady."

The young girl looked very frightened but she stuck to her guns and showed great courage as she faced down the instructor.

"Sorry, sir – no."

There was stunned silence in the room – no yellow ever disobeyed an order.

"Time for you to experience The Cage from the other side!"

The girl was seized and stripped naked before being hauled off down the corridor.

Stephanie heard screaming in the corridor outside The Cage and then the door opened and she saw a struggling naked girl being dragged into the concrete room.

"Open Number Three!" the instructor ordered and the yellow on duty hit the correct button.

The sobbing girl was dropped onto the bare mattress in the cage next to Stephanie before the door was slammed shut.

"What the fuck, Electra?" Stephanie demanded in surprise as she recognised the girl.

"It worked," Electra said through her sobs and she forced a grin. "I broke his nose. . ."

"Why are you in here?" It was unheard of for a yellow to actually be in a cage in The Cage.

"I refused to give up where I learnt to fight back."

"You are such a stupid little girl!" Stephanie groaned.

..._...

It was now blazingly obvious to Stephanie that the instructors were using Electra to get at her. They obviously knew who had taught her to fight – they were not stupid. Stephanie also knew that she herself had broken about a dozen rules concerning yellows. Stephanie shrugged as she gave the sobbing, naked Electra another glance before she lay back to rest.

What was their warped plan? Stephanie was fed up with them using her as their personal punch bag and scapegoat. Either they should just kill her and be done with it, or maybe she should just call them out on it.

Though Stephanie was unaware of it, there were a lot of murmurings in the upper echelons of Urban Predator concerning the young British girl with her codename years before it was due. The girl was very advanced for her age and she had showed a level of progression way beyond just about anybody else who had gone through the program before.

All except maybe one girl . . .

Sunday, 24th July, 2016

Glenview

"Oh, for the love of God!"

"I could come back, later. . ."

"No, Anne-Marie – what is it?" Mindy asked her youngest daughter. Impromptu meetings in the shower seemed to be a thing for Anne-Marie; the young girl didn't appear to see anything wrong with invading somebody's privacy during such an intimate time.

"Can I go see Steph, this afternoon?"

"Yes, you can," Mindy replied as she continued to rinse her hair – then she had a thought. "Did you close the bathroom door?"

"Err . . ."

"Never mind," Mindy grimaced as she was shoved to one side by Razor who began to play in the water.

Then Mindy yelped as something sharp dug into her right foot. She looked down to see. . .

"Horatio!" Mindy growled. "Get your claws out of my foot!"

Anne-Marie giggled as Horatio looked up and meowed happily.

"Razor! Anne-Marie – get that mutt outside where he can dry off. As for you. . ." Mindy seized hold of the soggy moggy and stared into his eyes. "You go with Anne-Marie and get yourself dried off in the kitchen."

Mindy passed a horrified Anne-Marie the wet kitty which she held away from her dry clothes.

That afternoon

Northwestern Memorial Hospital Room 32

Stephanie's mood lifted as her brother and sister entered the room.

"Hi, guys!"

"Just thought we'd come by to see how you are," Danny said.

Anne-Marie just grinned at her big sister.

"Is that gap in your teeth ever going to be filled?" Stephanie grinned.

"Not exactly my fault, Steph!" Anne-Marie retorted.

"I know, sorry."

"When are you coming home – I really miss you."

"I can't believe I'm saying it, but I miss the both of you," Stephanie replied.

"I'm stuck with Moaning Annie – it's getting beyond a joke," Danny commented.

"I'm not that bad. . ."

"Have you heard yourself?"

"Okay – it's been a hard time for us all. We got to go out on our motorcycles the other weekend, it was awesome!"

"Did you stay out of the mud? Stephanie asked her little sister.

Anne-Marie grimaced.

"I may have come off once or twice. . ."

"Eight times," Danny laughed as his sister scowled.

"Still using too much throttle?" Stephanie asked knowingly with a patronising look at the eight-year-old girl.

"It gets away from me – I can't help it; I suck at riding a motorbike."

"No, you don't," Stephanie replied. "You're only just starting to learn. You're a fiery little thing, and you get carried away sometimes; that is nothing to be ashamed of."

"I just feel bad, is all. I wish I could be as good as you are, Steph."

"You're young, Anne-Marie, and I am very glad that you never had the same upbringing that I did. You will grow and you will be trained – I will train you to be as good as you can be. You just need patience, young one."

"Sage advice from a seasoned Predator," Mindy commented as she entered the room. "Don't rush to leave your childhood behind, little one. I lost mine and so did Stephanie. Listen to us when we tell you to enjoy what you have."

"I will," Anne-Marie replied with a smile.

Three days later
Wednesday, 27th July

Glennview

"Why do you have to keep trawling that up?"

Mindy's scowl was impressive and Chloe grinned to show that she was joking.

"Chloe, it's two years ago – get over it!" Joshua laughed.

"She almost cut your damn head off – she's an animal!" Chloe replied with a broad grin.

"I don't blame her – not really; I had invaded her favourite Safehouse – the one where she had lived with her father," Joshua pointed out.

"But," Mindy said with an evil grin. "Finding you, did get Chloe off my back. . ."

"How so?" Joshua asked and Chloe groaned.

"When she's spreading her legs for you, she ain't bellyaching in my lug hole!" Mindy replied with an evil chuckle.

"Bitch!" Chloe growled as she blushed pink.

Chapter 305*: Sweet Sixteen

*A little over a week later
Friday, 5th August, 2016*

*Northwestern Memorial Hospital
Room 32*

"Hi, Mum!"

"Morning, daughter!" Mindy replied with a grin.

"What you got there?" Stephanie asked as she noticed the bags that Mindy carried.

"Bright as a button, as usual," Mindy laughed as her daughter's cheeks coloured slightly. "I think it's time for a little lady to come home."

Despite the reaction being expected, Mindy was appalled by the reaction that her supposedly happy proclamation had brought as Stephanie began to cry out of sheer relief and happiness.

"You don't know what it means to me to hear you say that."

"Yes, Steph, I do," Mindy smiled.

"Right, kiddo, let's get you disconnected for your final time!" Nurse Kittiwake grinned as she breezed into Room 32.

After the usual ignominies of having the duvet and her gown removed, followed by all the sticky pads, Stephanie found herself dumped into a bath where she was bathed – another humiliation – before being returned to sit on her bed wrapped in a towel.

..._...

"I bought you some new clothes, considering that you possessed nothing remotely suitable," Mindy began conversationally.

"Nothing remotely suitable?" Stephanie echoed. "How so?"

"Da-da!"

"You can get to fuck!" Stephanie growled as Mindy laid out some clothing on the bed.

"Dave quoted you word for word!" Mindy laughed. "Look, I know you hate wearing anything which makes you look like a girl – but that bath reminded me that you are, in fact, a girl."

Stephanie glared down at the two offending articles of clothing. The first was a dark blue blouse with black buttons up the front. The second – and in the ten-year-old's mind, the worst – was a medium-blue, wrap-style denim skirt.

"Why?"

"It occurred to me that you currently have limited mobility in your left arm and that the other is going to be strapped up for a few more weeks. You need clothing that is easy to put on and take off – a blouse. You also need to make use of the bathroom. . ."

"I've been using the bathroom for the past week; ever since that damn hose thing was removed from my cunt."

Mindy noticed that Stephanie was getting annoyed. She smiled.

"You've been using the bathroom wearing only a gown – nothing else. So, I thought a skirt would help you – from a purely practical point of view."

Stephanie's shoulders slumped as she gave up trying to fight the very logical argument and she looked annoyed for a moment before she smiled.

"Thanks for looking after me, Mum."

..._...

Mindy gently eased the sleeve of the blouse over Stephanie's immobilised right arm and then passed the garment around her back to the other side.

"Talking of you being a girl," Mindy commented as she helped Stephanie push her left arm into the other sleeve. "I think you might need a training bra of some sort. . ."

"My chest is flat!" Stephanie growled as her face turned pink.

"Not all that flat – even Tommy noticed, you know, on the boat."

"Let's talk about boobs another day, huh?"

Mindy chuckled and she helped Stephanie into a pair of pink knickers before she then wrapped the denim skirt around the ten-year-old's waist.

"I like it – comfortable," she admitted, somewhat grudgingly.

Two hours later

Glenview

Stephanie was feeling more than a little humiliated as Dave lifted her out of the car with ease and he carried her inside the house.

"I can walk – sort of – I am not an invalid!"

"Yes, you are – so, shut up!" Dave replied with a grin.

Stephanie gave up moaning and she just leant into Dave's chest, enjoying his comforting warmth as she was carried upstairs to her bedroom.

..._...

As Stephanie was laid gently on her bed, she looked around the room which she had not seen in over five weeks. The bed was much softer than that which she had occupied at the hospital, which she welcomed. On her desk was a large bouquet of electric-blue flowers.

"Thank Josh, for me, Mum."

"He thought you'd like them," Mindy smiled. "Glad to be home?"

"Hell, yeah!"

"You will not leave the bed except for using the bathroom – understand, young lady?" Dave lectured seriously.

"Yes, Dad – I'll be a good little patient," Stephanie grinned.

"You think we were born yesterday?" Mindy asked as she helped her daughter out of the blouse and removed the skirt.

"Maybe. . ."

"Get some rest – you have a busy day tomorrow," Dave suggested as he pulled the duvet over the tired girl.

Stephanie did not want to miss the party, so she closed her eyes and soon sank into a peaceful sleep.

That same time

Several miles away. . .

"Congratulations, young lady, that was some of the best driving I've seen in a long time. You have some great reflexes and a very pleasant manner."

"Thank you, ma'am."

I climbed out of the car and I was struggling to control my grin as I walked over to Mom.

"Well?"

"You have a brilliant daughter, Dr Bennett. She's very talented and a very sweet girl. . ."

Mom blinked and raised an eyebrow.

"Was it this girl you had with you?" Mom queried as she indicated yours truly.

"Oh, yes, such a lovely mannered teenager."

Mom looked at me quizzically.

Forty minutes later

Morton Grove

"Well?" Joshua asked with baited breath.

"Do you have to ask?" Chloe demanded.

"She must have hypnotised the examiner," Cathy commented. "It was sickening: ' . . .she's very talented and a very sweet girl. . .' – I ask you!"

"Chloe?"

"Yes, me, you damn asshole, Joshua!"

"Sorry – just a little surprised. . ."

"So, can I get a car now?" Chloe demanded with an enormous smile.

The following day

Saturday, 6th August

Cathy came by.

"So, Steph," Cathy said conversationally, as she examined Stephanie from head to toe. "Anything exciting happen while you were in hospital?"

"You are kidding me?" Stephanie demanded.

"Just distracting you from my prodding," Cathy chuckled as she knew full well what had occurred a couple of weeks previously. "You're doing good – now for the serious part, Stephanie."

"Oh?"

"Don't push yourself too much, please. You are no longer a Predator and Psyche is convalescing – understand? You do anything stupid and I will have you restrained – understand?"

Stephanie nodded at the relevant points and cringed. She was desperate to heal but she knew that offending the Doctor was way worse than offending Hit Girl!

..._...

After Cathy had gone, Stephanie decided it was time to see what her left arm could do, so she eased herself out of bed, took a deep breath for the pain, and pushed her left hand between the mattress and the base of the bed. She frowned – there should have been something there. . . She checked four other places around her bedroom – nada!

"Fucking bitch!" she muttered as she made her way back to the bed and laid down.

Ten minutes later, Mindy breezed in.

"How did you know?" Stephanie demanded.

"The guns?" Mindy chuckled.

"Yeah – the guns!"

"I hid being Hit Girl from Marcus for quite a while – hiding weapons became second nature to me."

"You actually checked my teddy-bear?"

"There might have been something inside it. . ."

"What sort of sick individual would hide a weapon in a teddy-bear?"

"No idea. . . but I think I got all of them. I decided that you might try to train or something equally stupid."

Stephanie scowled.

"You get the one behind the Rainbow Dash poster?"

"No – thanks," Mindy grinned.

"Doh!"

Later that afternoon

Stephanie scowled as she found herself wearing another skirt.

"So, I do have a sister," Anne-Marie commented approvingly.

"You want your arm broken again?" Stephanie hissed.

"I'm just glad that you're home," Anne-Marie said with a concerned smile.

"Yeah – for once she's talking sense," Danny commented.

'Woof!' Razor added as he lay at Stephanie's feet in the living room and Horatio jumped up beside Stephanie with a small meow.

"I am glad to be home – and glad to be with my family," Stephanie admitted. "Thanks for caring."

"Anytime, sis," Anne-Marie grinned.

That evening

Safehouse D

Marty, Kim, and Abby had outdone themselves.

There was a stage, massive speakers, a karaoke machine, and plenty of tables and chairs. A huge banner hung over the stage: 'Happy Sweet Sixteen'. They had transformed the utilitarian warehouse into a birthday venue. It was warm, cosy, and homely with a large dance floor in the centre. Cathy, Emily, Shannon Morgan, and Paige had prepared an enormous pile of food which threatened to collapse the tables arranged over to one side of the warehouse. Tony Morgan had set up a bar for the night to provide the drinks.

Over to one side, there was a covered area which was marked as 'off-limits'. Everybody knew better than to go anywhere near it – mainly because they knew it could be anything, at least if Hit Girl had anything to do with it.

..._...

At around six, that evening, people began to arrive.

Cathy and her daughter were among the first. Chloe wore a very short blue dress which accentuated her feminine curves and long legs. Her blonde hair, with the single purple stripe was hanging loose. Next in was Paige and Marcus, with Megan – who wore a very fetching black dress which went nowhere near her knees (and in Marcus' opinion showed far too much thigh) – and Curtis. Arriving at the same time were Lizzie and Lauren, along with the Fellowes family. Brad was holding Lauren's hand and the young girl was blushing as many eyes examined her 'compact' yellow dress which showed off her long legs.

Saoirse and Morgan were also in very revealing outfits, not that either of them minded the attention one bit. Abby breezed in with her mother in tow and she was quickly joined by Avery and Riley – both of whom were giggling away and very pleased to be welcomed to their first Fusion event. Kyle arrived and he promptly sat down with Hailee who arrived a few minutes later with her mother, Vicky. Once people had begun to mill about and grab a drink, it was time to begin.

"Okay, people," Marty began from up on the stage. "We have a lot to get through, tonight – so please drink, be merry, and you all have fun now! Oh – looky here – our very first Predator, and she's actually dressed like a girl – who knew! Welcome back, Stephanie!"

Said Predator froze as she entered the space near the stage and she cringed as everybody looked in her direction and cheered.

"Hi, y'all!" Stephanie drawled as she grinned enormously and waved her available hand a little nervously.

"I think you have nice legs and I like it when you show them," Tommy commented before he stopped talking and looked a little apprehensively at Stephanie.

Stephanie ignored the sniggering (Saoirse and Megan) and instead, she scowled at the older boy before she then marched right up to him and stared up into his face.

"You come down here and say that. . ." she growled.

Tommy looked around and the twelve-year-old went pink in the face as everybody went 'ooooh'. They all expected Stephanie to slap, or otherwise hurt the boy, as was her manner. Instead, as he came closer, she reached up with her left hand, seized his chin, and she kissed him, full on the lips. There was total silence for almost a full minute and then Joshua broke the stillness.

"You sly dog, Tommy boy!" he laughed as both kids went very pink.

"You were just kissed by the baddest Predator ever, Tommy – you like to live dangerously, don't you?" Saoirse quipped.

Marty then got clever and began to play 'French Kissin' In the USA' by Debbie Harry – Stephanie was not amused.

"Not fucking happening, asshole!"

Everybody laughed as Stephanie headed over to some chairs.

"How sweet – Steph's got a boyfriend," Saoirse teased.

"Steph's got a boyfriend, Steph's got a boyfriend," Anne-Marie sang. "Stephanie and Tommy sitting in the tree, k – i – s – s – i – n – g!"

"If I could, I'd kick your sorry collective arses!"

"We're looking forward to it," Saoirse grinned.

..._...

Joshua and Chloe had received strict instructions not to vanish into a dark corner to 'enjoy each other's bodies' as Cathy had put it. Tommy was receiving a lot of jibes about his kiss – mainly from Curtis and Joshua. The young boy took all the ribbing in his stride, like everything in his life. Nevertheless, he went to sit with Stephanie, taking her a glass of Coke.

"Thanks, Tommy."

"Sorry I embarrassed you," Tommy offered.

"I can take it – I suppose I'm going to have to get used to people making comments about my body. It was nice, though, thanks."

..._...

"How are you holding up, Mindy?" Vicky asked as she watched Stephanie talk to Tommy.

"I'm feeling a lot better now I have her home," Mindy admitted.

"I bet," Vicky replied with a chuckle. "Motherhood is one hell of a challenge, huh?"

"Tell me about it," Mindy grouched. "Being Hit Girl is way easier!"

"You just wait until you have teenaged girls. . ." Vicky laughed.

"I am so looking forward to that!" Marcus chuckled as he grinned fiendishly.

"Look, old man," Mindy replied with her own grin. "You have Megan turning thirteen in a little over a year."

Marcus' grin faded instantly.

"My life is going to hell in a basket," Marcus moaned.

"Just keep her on the right road, just like you did with me, and she'll be fine," Mindy offered.

"Keeping you on the right road was like trying to herd cats."

Mindy and Vicky laughed.

"Look at me as practice for Megan."

"I must have been a really bad person in a former life."

..._...

All chatter ceased as Dave and Marty climbed onto the stage wearing trilbys and dark suits. Dave spoke first as the stood behind a pair of microphone stands.

"One, two, one, two, three, four."

Everybody cheered as the music began and the two friends began to dance on the stage. Then Dave spoke again.

*We're so glad to see so many of you lovely people here tonight
And we would especially like to welcome all the representatives of Illinois' Law enforcement community, who have chosen to join us here in the Safehouse at this time
We certainly hope that you all enjoy the show and remember people, that no matter who you are and what you do to live, thrive, and survive
There are still some things that make us all the same:
You, me, them
Everybody! Everybody!*

Marcus, Vicky, Paul, and Sam all cheered loudly at the second line as Dave and Marty sang together:

*Everybody needs somebody
Everybody needs somebody to love
Someone to love (Someone to love)
Sweetheart to miss (Sweetheart to miss)
Sugar to kiss (Sugar to kiss)*

*I need you, you, you
I need you, you, you
I need you, you, you in the morning
You, you, you when my soul's on fire*

Then it was Marty's turn:

*Sometimes I feel
I feel a little sad inside
When my baby mistreats me, I never never have a place to hide, I need you!*

There was a lot of cheering and yelling during the instrumental break, then Marty came on again:

*Sometimes I feel
I feel a little sad inside
When my baby mistreats me, I never never have a place to hide, I need you!*

*I need you, you, you
I need you, you, you*

Then it was Dave's turn and he looked directly at Mindy as he sang:

*You know, people, when you do find that special somebody Hold that man, hold that woman
Love him, please him, squeeze her, please her
Signify your feelings with every gentle caress
Because it's so important to have that special somebody
To hold, to kiss, to miss, to squeeze, and please*

Mindy blushed wildly as people followed Dave's eyes.

*Everybody needs somebody
Everybody needs somebody to love (Everybody)
Someone to love (Needs somebody)
Sweetheart to miss (Everybody)
Sugar to kiss (Needs somebody)*

*I need you, you, you
I need you, you, you
I need you, you, you
I need you, you, you*

*I need you, you, you
I need you, you, you
I need you, you, you
I need you, you, you*

*In the morning
When my soul's on fire
When there ain't no-one around*

*I need you, you, you, you
I need you, you, you, you
I need you, you
I need you!*

Mindy was a little concerned that the cheering and chanting might outdo the sound proofing on the Safehouse. . .

..._...

As the cheering died down, Mindy stepped up onto the stage and waved for silence.

"Before we get onto the big presents for my two miscreant lieutenants, I would like to say a few words about a very special ten-year-old who has suffered through immense pain and trauma over the past several weeks. Her fortitude has been an inspiration to us all as she fought past her injuries. Twice her heart stopped, and twice she required emergency surgery. But, as you all know, nothing ever stops that girl – nothing. Many have tried to kill her, and they all failed. Despite being half-dead from her latest relapse, she even had the wits about her, and the fortitude, to put down an attempted assassination. To be honest, in all my time as a vigilante, I have never, ever, seen somebody killed with a spoon. . ."

There was a burst of laughter and Stephanie grinned sheepishly.

"However, that should be a warning to us all of what that young girl is capable of when she is angry or threatened. She still has a lot of work ahead of her and I hope that everybody will support her as she heals – we all want her back out there, kicking ass, but that is a while away. In the meantime, Dave and I have plans for our eldest daughter – more of that next week. Ladies and gentlemen, please raise your glasses to our one and only, Stephanie Lizewski."

Stephanie had been cringing during the entire toast and now she blushed bright pink at both the applause and the acknowledgements. She grabbed hold of her best friend and she hauled herself, a little shakily, to her feet. Saoirse supported her best friend as the applause died down.

"Thanks, Mum. The past few weeks have been very hard and many, many times I wanted to throw in the towel and just give up. Only the tough love from my Mum and my best friend got me through the dark times. Without the both of them. . . Thank you, all of you who took the time to visit me and to encourage me. I really never knew how many real friends I had . . . thank you."

Stephanie dissolved into tears and Saoirse hugged her tightly as more applause echoed through the Safehouse.

"Will you two get a fucking grip!" Mindy growled as she walked past Cathy and Paige who were both crying, despite her wiping away tears from her own eyes.

..._...

"Okay, we're gonna do one more – yeah!" Megan shouted as she mounted the stage with Saoirse and Hailee.

Saoirse handled the opening:

*All the old paintings on the tombs,
They do the sand dance, don't you know?*

*If they move too quick (oh whey oh)
They're falling down like a domino.
All the bazaar men by the Nile,
They got the money on a bet.*

*Gold crocodiles (oh whey oh)
They snap their teeth on your cigarette.
Foreign types with their hookah pipes say
(Ay oh whey oh, ay oh whey oh)
Walk like an Egyptian.*

Then Hailee took over:

*The blond waitresses take their trays
They spin around and they cross the floor;
They got the moves (oh whey oh)*

*You drop your drink then they bring you more.
All the school kids so sick of books,
They like the punk and the metal band.
When the buzzer rings, (oh whey oh)*

*They're walking like an Egyptian.
All the kids in the marketplace say
(Ay oh whey oh, ay oh whey oh)*

Walk like an Egyptian.

It was Megan with the final verses that got the biggest laughs and cheers:

*Slide your feet up the street bend your back
Shift your arm then you pull it back
Life is hard you know (oh whey oh)
So strike a pose on a Cadillac*

*If you want to find all the cops
They're hanging out in the donut shop
They sing and dance (oh whey oh)
Spin the clubs cruise down the block*

*All the Japanese with their yen
The party boys call the Kremlin
And the Chinese know (oh whey oh)
They walk the line like Egyptian*

*All the cops in the donut shop say
(Ay oh whey oh, ay oh whey oh)
Walk like an Egyptian
Walk like an Egyptian*

The cheering was enormous and the four cops present had joined in with the final 'Ay oh whey oh, ay oh whey oh' having grown up with the song and they each knew the lyrics.

..._...

Mindy stopped before the cordoned off area and she turned to the crowd as the cheering wound down. Everybody turned towards her in eager anticipation.

"I'm sure that both Chloe and Josh have guessed what is behind here, but I just want to drag it out a little longer – 'cause I can!"

There was laughter and Chloe scowled at her friend.

"Let's go with ladies first – not that Chloe is a lady . . ."

"I have a cunt, does that count?" Chloe challenged.

"That's no way to talk about Josh!" Mindy quipped back before she continued. "We all thought long and hard about what these two should have. Chloe in particular as the last car she drove; well, she rolled it! We couldn't find a self-righting car, so we got her the next best thing . . ."

Chloe scowled.

Mindy signalled Marty who pressed a button and the black curtain around one of the items dropped to the ground. A chorus of comments erupted as a car was revealed in all its sparkling glory.

The Mini John Cooper Works Clubman All4 sparkled in the lighting. The paintwork was chilli red with black sport stripes along the sides and twin stripes over the bonnet while the mirrors and roof were black with the mirrors each sporting a Union Jack in black and white. The car sat on eighteen-inch alloy wheels and had every conceivable extra fitted – plus some features that did not exist on the standard options list.

Chloe was totally speechless – for about the first time in her sixteen years of life!

"Now that's what I like – a silent Chloe!" Curtis quipped as his cousin just stared at the vehicle.

"It's beautiful . . ." Chloe muttered after a couple of minutes.

"It's from your father and me. Well, the car is – the spy shit is from Mindy!" Cathy explained as she hugged her daughter.

Chloe had had a difficult phone call with her father that morning; she really missed him. But for him to do this for her – Chloe instantly regretted all those years when she had been so bitchy to her father. Tears ran down her face as her mother guided her around to the driver's side and she handed her daughter the key which was actually a small oval remote.

Chloe sat inside her new car and she gazed over the interior, mesmerised by the fact that she actually owned her own car.

..._...

While Chloe enjoyed her new car, Mindy moved on. . .

"Now – for Joshua!" Mindy called out and the next black curtain soon fell to the ground to reveal another car.

The Audi S3 sedan in ara blue crystal, shone under the lights as it sat on its nineteen-inch alloy wheels.

"Wow. . ." was all the boy could muster.

"A present from Jack, Dave, and me," Mindy said. "You've had a tough couple of years, Josh – enjoy it."

Mindy grimaced as Joshua quite literally picked her up in a bear hug, pinning her arms to her sides, and he gave her a big kiss on the cheek. Mindy's face went pink and she began to growl, so Joshua wisely put Mindy back down on her feet.

"Thank you, Mindy."

"You're welcome, Joshua."

Joshua was soon joined by the other boys as he examined his new car.

..._...

"You okay, Steph?"

"Yeah, Mum . . . just very sore."

"You wanna go home?"

"Nah – but I could do with a lay down. . ."

Mindy cleared off a couple of chairs and Dave materialised with a pillow.

"Thought the little lady might need a rest," he said with a gentle smile.

Stephanie laid back on the chairs with Mindy's help and as Dave gently moved her hair out of her face, she closed her eyes and quickly fell asleep.

"I never thought of that – thanks," Mindy said as she gave her thoughtful husband a kiss.

Chapter 306*: A Meeting

*The following morning
Sunday, August 7th, 2016*

Glennview

"Wakey, wakey, big sister!"

"Go fuck yourself!"

"That's a nice way to talk to your eight-year-old little sister."

"SD?"

"Yeah."

"What are you doing in my bedroom?"

"We are here to help you get ready," Anne-Marie stated.

"Ready for what?" Stephanie replied, her eyes still firmly closed.

"Your rehabilitation," SD responded.

"You make it sound like I'm a criminal."

"No comment," SD grimaced.

"Okay!" Stephanie opened her eyes as Saoirse hauled back the duvet.

"Why am I only wearing my knickers – come to think of it; how did I get here?"

"You fell asleep, last night, so Dad carried you here and then I helped Mom undress you – I'd not seen your wounds before; they scared me."

Stephanie looked over at her sister and she smiled, then she looked up at SD. She took in SD's clothing which was very similar to that worn by Anne-Marie. Both girls wore a T-shirt and shorts.

"Still not wearing a bra, I see, SD."

"My chest is still a bit too sore – but you can talk!"

"What's with the getup?"

"All will be revealed," Saoirse teased as she helped her friend to stand up.

Without any warning, Anne-Marie yanked down Stephanie's knickers.

"Okay – I'm being stripped naked by an eight-year-old; I know SD goes in for that kind of thing, but I don't, and I didn't know you did, Anne-Marie: besides, aren't you a bit young for that kind of thing?" Stephanie asked her sister who just scowled.

The scowl quickly vanished as Anne-Marie took in the various scars on her sister's body.

"You're running out of space for more scars, Steph," Saoirse quipped to brighten the mood as she produced two items of material. Stephanie rolled her eyes and she grimaced.

"Talk about embarrassing!" she commented dryly.

"There's no way that you can wear a one-piece; so, you either go naked, topless, or you wear one of these," Saoirse pointed out quite reasonably.

"Okay, I suppose . . . thanks."

"It ties around your neck, so no having to thread your arms through anything."

"Mom picked blue – she said you'd like that," Anne-Marie added.

"You two swimming, too?"

Saoirse and Anne-Marie both pulled off their shorts and T-shirts to reveal that both wore two-piece swimsuits. Saoirse's was dark green and the top was more like a sports bra while the bottoms were very like skin-tight shorts. Anne-Marie's was typically that which would be worn by a young girl and was covered in flowers.

..._...

Stephanie was able to make her own way downstairs without any help and she smiled shyly as she found Dave, Mindy, and Danny lazily kicking their feet in the water as she entered the pool area.

"You look good in that, Steph," Dave commented as he swept the girl off her feet and then gently lowered her into the water so she could stand on the bottom of the pool.

"Woah – warmer than usual. . ." Stephanie commented.

"We turned the temperature up a bit, just for you," Mindy advised her eldest daughter as Anne-Marie jumped in followed by Saoirse who executed a perfect shallow dive and came up beside Dave.

"The water will help you to regain the use of your muscles and support you as you rehabilitate," Mindy explained as she slid into the water. "Start using your left arm more and . . . let's remove that support."

Mindy lifted the sling from around Stephanie's neck and then eased it off her right arm. Stephanie cringed with the pain and the ten-year-old bit her lip to stop from crying out.

"Try to move your elbow – slowly," Mindy instructed as she looked down at the arm with concern etched in her face.

"I can't; it hurts too much."

"You must," Mindy insisted as she gently took hold of Stephanie's right hand.

"You can do this, Steph," Saoirse added supportively as she stood beside her friend.

Stephanie dug deep down into herself for the energy to fight through the impending pain. Within her, she knew that everybody wanted her to succeed – she had to succeed if she ever wanted to be a vigilante again. She closed her eyes tightly and gripped Mindy's hand as tightly as she could. She willed her elbow to move. . .

Stephanie screamed out as her elbow began to straighten for the first time in over five weeks. Pain shot through the joint and then up her arm to her injured shoulder. She felt her legs buckle beneath her but then a strong arm wrapped itself around her waist to provide support and she looked up into the concerned face of her best friend.

"Thanks. . ."

"No sweat, Phase 2 reject!"

"Fuck this!" Stephanie growled. "I need to be able to kick your fucking arse!"

With that, she regained her footing and pushed Saoirse away. Stephanie gritted her teeth and focussed on a certain point ahead of her. She moved her right elbow and locked her arm fully extended. The whole arm shook while tears of pain and frustration ran down her face. After a few seconds, she moved her lower arm back across her stomach. Only then, did she lean into her friend for both the physical and mental support.

"Not bad," Mindy said as she led Stephanie over to the steps so that she could sit down.

Saoirse supported her friend until she was safely ensconced on the steps and then sat down beside her.

..._...

"That was progress, Steph – substantial progress," Saoirse said encouragingly.

"Hurt like hell. . ." Stephanie replied as she lazily moved her feet in the water.

"You're very brave, Steph," Dave said with a smile.

"Thanks, Dad. You too, Mum – and the rest of you; I love you all."

Mindy was genuinely speechless as she smiled at the ex-Predator.

"I couldn't do this without you all. You are all my family. You've all been so good to me; I don't deserve it, considering what I was. . . dammit; I so hate being helpless. . ."

Danny spoke first.

"I hate to hit girls; but she really needs a slap."

Stephanie laughed.

"Yes – I do need a slap," she admitted. "But if you fucking try it, boy. . ."

It was Danny's turn to laugh.

"I could put you down with my pinkie, right now, little girl," the eight-year-old pointed out quite reasonably.

"I would like to remind you that I put down an assassin a couple weeks ago."

Stephanie looked quizzical as Danny pointedly looked around the pool as if he was looking for something.

"What?" Stephanie demanded in a perplexed tone.

"I don't see no spoons."

Stephanie really did laugh at that comment – until her side hurt too much.

That evening

Glenview

"Steph, would you join us in the study, please?"

"Yes, Dad."

Stephanie had just awoken after a few hours' nap and she felt a little concerned as she made her way the few short yards to Mindy's study. Mindy was sitting behind her desk and Dave stood beside her. Stephanie was waved into a chair facing them both.

"Whatever it was – I don't think I did it. . ."

Mindy laughed.

"You're not in any trouble," Dave confirmed. "For a change. . ."

"Steph – we're here to discuss your future in Fusion and your future as Psyche," Mindy said.

Stephanie looked horrified.

"Please don't kick me out of Fusion – please. . ."

"Why do you think I would do that?"

"You kicked Chloe out . . . and she was your best friend."

"You may have noticed that she still is. Chloe ignored my orders; she put both herself and others at extreme risk. That is why I did what I did. You, though, you have done nothing wrong, Steph. You were wounded; that is an exceptional circumstance."

Stephanie looked relieved.

"There will be certain conditions for to obey and to follow – they will be non-negotiable," Mindy said coldly. "If you disobey or refuse to follow those conditions then to keep you safe, I will turn to extreme measures. If required, I will break your other arm – then your legs, one at a time. If it keeps you safe, then I will do it – whatever it takes, remember?"

Stephanie looked and felt scared but she was also resigned to her fate.

"I understand."

"Though we have not been together long, you are a true part of our little family, Stephanie. I know you have suffered a lot over the past weeks, but so have we. Each time you died, I couldn't bear to consider life without you. I realised that I loved you more than I could have ever believed. Saoirse was right when she said that you could really be my daughter – we do have a lot in common."

"Err, FYI," Dave interrupted. "That is not necessarily something to be proud of."

Mindy and Stephanie laughed.

"You know, Dad – I love you, but you can be such a geek!"

..._...

"Now – the rules," Mindy began. "You will not train when at home. You will rest whenever you at home. You will be allowed to wear your duty uniform and mask at Safehouse F. You will not be allowed to wear your combat suit. You will not leave Safehouse F unless myself or Dave give you permission. You will not go out into the field. We will allow you to learn to shoot left-handed – with a small pistol. But, if I have Dr Bennett on my back about you damaging anything while shooting or working with Fusion, guess who I will be visiting next with a baseball bat?"

Stephanie squirmed a bit in her seat.

"While you cannot take part in operations directly, you will be moved onto the Support Staff. As such, you will man the Kirk Chair when on duty. Your experience is invaluable, so, if I cannot use you as an operator, then I will use your experience and skills to provide guidance and support to those who are out on the streets. As such, we are going to give you a temporary promotion to Operator, so that you can take command of operations. You will work for Marty and Abby."

Stephanie nodded her approval.

"I expect you to show some maturity and professionalism when you are on duty. Due to your injuries, and your meds, you will tire easily. As such, you will take breaks and you will get some sleep. If you do not – I come visiting with that baseball bat. Marty has made arrangements for a couch to be placed in the Command Center – he's wanted one there for ages and you provided the excuse. As such, there will be a quilt and a pillow reserved for your use only."

Stephanie felt a lot happier. She hated being relegated to the sidelines, but at least she would be on the spot to see what was going on.

That same evening

Central Chicago

"Are you Sergeant Fellowes?"

Sam looked up from his sandwich and he turned towards the voice to find a young girl standing at the window of his SUV.

"Yes, I am – can I help you, young lady?"

The young girl hesitated and she seemed very unsure for a moment but then she braced up and spoke.

"I need to speak to Hit Girl."

"Why would you come to me for that?"

"You're a 'Fusion Cop'; you can get a message to Hit Girl."

"Maybe I can. What is it about?"

"I can't say, but it concerns Hit Girl and FEAR. I also need the utmost confidentiality."

Sam scowled as FEAR was mentioned.

"Okay – give me your name."

"My name is Kelly Wright."

Two days later
Tuesday, August 9th

Safehouse F

It was Stephanie's first evening at the Safehouse in weeks.

Even better, she was wearing her uniform with the twin vertical silver bars of an Operator. She felt ultra-smug as she entered the Command Centre for the first time in just as many weeks. The whole place felt different but it also felt like home. The constant humming, the smell of gun oil, the smell of engine oil, the smell of sweat as Fusion members sparred on the mat or exercised close by. One difference was the compact .22-calibre pistol which hung on her left hip, as opposed to her right. It felt different, but Predators trained to use their non-dominant hand in combat, so it was no major issue; it would just take some getting used to. Abby smirked as Stephanie strode in.

"You look ready for this," she commented.

"I am – it's great to be back."

"It's good to have you back, Psyche – even if it does mean more immature behaviour from the lower ranks!"

"I can be mature . . . I just choose not to," Stephanie responded with a cheeky grin and Abby laughed.

"Okay – we have special 'girls-only' mission, tonight – seal up the Command Centre, please, Psyche."

Stephanie strode up to the 'Kirk Chair' which sat on a raised platform from where the occupant could oversee every screen and display in the high-tech facility. Stephanie logged onto the eight-inch touch screen which was embedded at a 45-degree angle into the right-hand arm of the chair. She accessed the security settings and with a single swipe, the access door was sealed and the steel security shutters closed within the twin pane glazing which formed the two inner walls of the Command Centre. Once 'sealed up', the space was all but impregnable. Nobody could see in, and nobody could get in.

"Sealed up and all electronic countermeasures armed," Stephanie reported, instantly all business.

That same time

Central Chicago

Kelly Wright was collected by Sam Fellowes and driven around in a seemingly random pattern for almost forty-minutes before she was dropped off, after dark, outside a dingy looking warehouse.

"Go in that door," he ordered. "Good luck."

Kelly watched as the unmarked police car drove off leaving her standing beside the dismal looking warehouse. She took a deep breath, exhaled, and headed for the single steel door. On pulling it open and stepping through, she found herself in total darkness as the door clanged shut behind her.

"Over here!" came an electronic voice out of the darkness.

Kelly moved towards the voice and after about fifty yards, she found herself dazzled by super bright lights.

"Stop!" she was ordered.

She stopped dead and a shape appeared – more of a silhouette than a shape – and another voice was heard.

"Who are you?" the electronic voice demanded.

"My name is Kelly Wright. . ."

"What do you want?"

"I have information for Hit Girl. . ."

"Hold your arms out to your sides and slowly turn around."

Kelly did as she was ordered, holding her arms out parallel to the ground and she slowly turned around before she found herself facing the bright lights again.

"You have information for Hit Girl?"

"I do – who am I talking to?"

"Shadow. Before we take you to Hit Girl you we must be certain that you are not being tracked and that you not carrying any weapons."

"I have nothing, I promise."

"We'll be the judge of that . . . Strip!" came the next command.

"What!" Kelly demanded hoping that she had somehow misheard the command.

"Strip to the skin . . . or get the fuck outta here!"

Kelly heard a bone-chilling snarl from out of the darkness which unnerved her greatly. She knew that she had to get her information to Hit Girl and she understood the risks they were taking just by listening to her – so she complied. She found it hard, especially in full view of at least one other person. Kelly pulled off her jacket . . .

"Hand each item to Nightmare," came the order as a shorter than usual vigilante stepped foot into the light and took her jacket. After a brief check of the jacket, Nightmare placed the item carefully down on the floor.

Kelly unbuttoned and pulled off her blouse where it was then swiftly taken from her hand. Next came her shoes, socks, and then her jeans. She felt cold and humiliated as she stood in the bright lights wearing only her bra and knickers.

"Keep it coming. . ."

The voice was polite, but insistent. Kelly hesitated for a moment before she reached behind her back and undid her bra, dropping it to the floor. Before she could be prompted, her knickers followed.

"Arms out to your sides and turn around slowly."

Kelly did so, fully aware that she was completely naked and that her body was bathed in dazzling white light for all to see – which, she assumed, was the point.

"Stand still – arms out."

Nightmare came out of the darkness and she waved a wand-scanner over Kelly's body from head to toe; first her front, and then her back.

"Spread your legs – keep your arms out."

Kelly reluctantly did as she was ordered and she watched as Nightmare checked her armpits and then knelt down to check between her legs.

"Spread your labia, please," Nightmare ordered.

Kelly did so, and Nightmare shone a flashlight up inside her vagina.

"Get in the vehicle!" Nightmare ordered when she was satisfied. Nightmare had never touched Kelly's naked body during the entire search but Kelly still felt violated.

"My clothes. . ."

"Get in the vehicle!" Nightmare repeated as she waved Kelly forwards.

The still naked Kelly pulled open the rear door on the left side of the SUV and she climbed up onto the leather seat which was cold to the touch on her bare skin. Nightmare finished stuffing her clothing into a clear plastic bag that had wires interwoven through it. The bag was then placed in the rear compartment of the SUV.

"Eisenhower!"

A large dog clad in body-armour ran out of the darkness and jumped into the rear compartment of the vehicle before the door was closed.

"Move over."

Kelly moved over to allow Nightmare to climb in and she was handed a package.

"Put them on."

The package held a pair of joggers and a sweatshirt. Kelly did not hesitate and she pulled both on, quickly covering up her naked body. Once she was dressed, Nightmare turned to Kelly.

"One more thing. . ."

Nightmare pulled a black bag over Kelly's head.

A short while later

West 78th Street

"What is this place?" Nemesis asked as she climbed out of the SUV.

"Safehouse Alpha," Shadow replied curtly. "Get our guest out."

Kelly found herself hauled out of the SUV – she still had the bag over her head as she was led, bare foot, across a rough concrete floor which was very cold. She heard a beeping sound, then the sound of a door opening. She was pulled onto rough carpet which was much warmer under her feet. The door shut behind her, there was another beep and another door opened. She was then led, still on rough carpet, a distance before she heard another beep before she was pushed through another door and then she felt cold metal under her feet. Was she in an elevator?

Yes – the floor moved downwards and stopped after barely ten seconds.

Safehouse F

The entire strip search at the warehouse had been watched by Hal and Psyche – no male had been present in the Command Centre at Safehouse F and the security shutters had been closed for Kelly's privacy. During the drive to the Safehouse, Hal and Psyche had scrutinised the images to ensure that the girl was clean – from an electronic point of view.

"Is she clear?" Hit Girl asked from Alpha.

"All clear, Hit Girl," Psyche responded.

Safehouse Alpha Main Level

As the hood was pulled off, Kelly blinked in the harsh lighting.

She was in a comfortable living area, with couches and chairs. The walls were covered by what appeared to be curtains and Kelly could not see a doorway. Then she stiffened . . . sitting just a few feet away from her was a masked woman wearing a dark grey uniform. She bore a single silver star on her collar and a name tag: HIT GIRL.

"I will not apologise for your treatment – it was necessary," Hit Girl commented in an electronically enhanced voice.

"I understand – you have no reason to trust me," Kelly hesitated. "To be honest, I am about to give you a reason to kill me – if you so wished."

Hit Girl pulled out a small tablet computer and she began to read.

"Kelly Wright. Date of birth: 27th November 1998. You are an American National. You live at 2275 Winnetka Road, Glenview. Your parents are both deceased. You live with your elder sister: Katrina. Am I correct?"

"You are!" Kelly exclaimed, a little surprised at how knowledgeable Hit Girl was.

"Continue . . . please."

Kelly took a deep breath.

"I think my sister is involved with FEAR."

"Think?"

"Every time something has gone down – she's been out there. After the silos, she came back badly hurt and soaking wet. Since, then, she's come back covered in bruises. She says that you killed my father, in New York. My mother died from a broken heart. I don't believe in what my sister is doing; it is wrong. I believe in the good that you bring to this city. My father was a bad person and I don't blame you for killing him. I'm scared that my sister will drag me into her world and I don't want that. Will you help me?"

"How do we know that we can trust you?" Hit Girl asked casually.

Two hours later

Safehouse Alpha Lower Level

Mindy sat in a chair in the conference room looking up at the eighty-inch screen on one wall which was split into four.

"Well, we can't keep her confined for ever," Marty offered quite reasonably from one of the four sections.

"No – but is she what she says she is?" Mindy persisted.

"She's not lying," Stephanie commented from the top-right portion.

"I agree," Cathy added from below Stephanie.

"Me too," Saoirse chipped in from the final quarter.

"Okay – how do we use her?" Chloe cut in from the other side of the long, ten-seat, polished-mahogany conference table.

Stephanie smiled.

"Go ahead, Steph," Mindy directed.

"SD? How about we turn her into a double-agent – it'd allow us to monitor her?"

"Yes, that might work," SD agreed.

"It would give us time to work out if we can trust her," Chloe concluded.

Safehouse Alpha

Main Level

"Leave us!"

Nightmare left the holding area where Kelly Wright sat in a cell with the door open.

"Kelly – we have a proposition for you. It will be a dangerous tasking, but essential if you want us to trust you. You will be protected – I always protect those who assist me."

Kelly took a moment to think, but she knew that she had no choice – none, none at all.

"You want me to spy on my sister?"

"Can you do that? It would mean getting involved in what she is doing without tipping her off – not easy."

"I can do it – I must."

Hit Girl stood up and she waved Kelly towards the door.

"Go – Shadow will take you back to the warehouse where your clothing will be returned to you."

"Thank you, Hit Girl."

"Oh, Kelly? You fuck me over. . ."

Kelly swallowed hard and she felt chills racing up her backbone.

Chapter 307*: A Searching

The following evening

Wednesday, August 10th, 2016

Safehouse F

In light of the previous evening's activities, Mindy and Kim had put their heads together and come up with a night's training that would seem unorthodox to some, but normal for Mindy.

Kim turned to the assembled Fusion members in the briefing room.

"Okay, we have a very different form of training today. Some of you will enjoy it, some of you will not. Others of you may see it as particularly disgusting. Mindy and I thought long and hard about who we would ask to take part. In the end, we decided on volunteers – therefore, we have four youngsters who have given their time, and also their dignity, to help you all learn a serious and very important skill. A word of warning to you all: anybody who disrupts this training session by introducing lewd behaviour or anything else which makes things more difficult for the four volunteers than it already will be, will seriously regret their actions – I fuck with you, not."

There were many looks of confusion around the room.

"Okay," Kim went on. "A scenario: Fusion has the requirement to bring somebody into a Safehouse. That person would be an unknown – yes, we can do background checks, but in most cases, we have no way to be one-hundred-percent certain. Right now, Fusion is at a high state of readiness in the current threat environment. Any person we bring in could be threat, so we would need to ensure that he, or she, would not be a danger to every member of Fusion once they arrived here. Why?"

"They could have a bomb?" Lizzie offered tentatively.

"Very good, Torment!"

Lizzie grinned, enjoying the praise.

"They could be attempting to infiltrate," Tommy offered.

Mindy's expression went very cold at that comment.

"Yes, Splinter – a very high chance of that. So, we need to put in place some simple measure that could save a lot of lives if somebody were determined to infiltrate and cause massive harm to our organisation. What might we do to that person?"

"Kill them!" Christina offered with a deadpan expression.

"Definitely an option, Venom – but let's say that the cunt has some information for us."

"Search 'em," Lauren stated.

"Good, Nightmare. To what level might we search them, Nightmare?"

"Completely – a strip-search," the thirteen-year-old replied fully aware that she had already performed such a search, but knowing that she was sworn to secrecy about Kelly.

"Well done! Tonight, you are all going to learn how to perform a total strip-search of a person. Normally, we would search a person using two people of the same sex. Remember, not everybody we might search would be an enemy. They may be a friendly and as such, we should show them maximum deference. No matter how gentle or polite we are with a strip-search, it will always be humiliating, embarrassing, and for females especially: degrading. In the case of our volunteers, they have agreed to allow the opposite sex to view them as they strip."

There were a few smirks as the news sunk into brains – the boys, especially, had no issue watching an impromptu strip show. Kim was onto them all in a flash.

"Before any of you get any ideas – this is not a sexual thing, and I assure you, these four young people will not see it as such so I expect you all to treat them with the respect they deserve as your friends, or so help me God, I will make sure you suffer. Saoirse – we start with you. . ."

All faces turned in surprise to Saoirse as she stood up and walked towards the front, a look of foreboding on her face. In the seat, beside her, an angry looking Morgan glared after her sister.

..._...

Once Saoirse was standing before everybody, Kim began to speak.

"First, we pat the subject down – hold your arms out to your sides, please," Kim commented as she ran both hands along Saoirse's arms and then down the fifteen-year-old's sides, back and front. "Boys, don't be afraid to run your hands over the breasts and between the legs – Chrissy, you and Sarah can play doctors later; please pay attention."

Sarah gently slapped Chrissy's left hand which shot away from Sarah's crotch. Kim ignored them and ran her hands around Saoirse's pelvis, front and back, and then down her long legs.

"Okay – she's not got anything obviously hidden. Therefore, we move onto the strip-search. Give the searchee the opportunity to comply willingly to your orders: Saoirse – please remove your clothing, one item at a time, and pass each item to me."

There was total silence in the open space as Saoirse pulled off her sweatshirt before she passed it to Kim. Many pairs of eyes stared at Saoirse and watched every movement.

"Check the seams of each item of clothing – something may be sown into the garment. A repair is never usually as good as the original stitching. Once the garment has been checked, place it to one side."

Kim dropped the sweatshirt into a small plastic tub before taking Saoirse's proffered T-shirt. Saoirse's cheeks were now visibly pink as she stood in front of dozens of eyes with just a navy-blue bra covering her modesty above the waist. Plainly visible to all was the tattoo of a combined raven and fox on her left side, just below her left breast and continuing under her left arm. She ignored the looks as she knelt down and removed both her sneakers, passing the shoes to Kim who checked each item before they joined the other items of clothing. Kim checked the pair of white socks next and quickly sent them after the shoes. Saoirse hesitated for a moment as she saw that everybody was watching her – Sarah smiled encouragingly and Saoirse smiled as she blanked out the staring faces, just as she had done on the Predator stage with Sarah, many months before.

Saoirse pulled at her belt and she released the button on her jeans. She pushed the jeans down to her ankles and stepped out of them, passing the pants to Kim. She felt very exposed in her matching navy-blue panties and bra. Every eye was on her body. For a moment she was freaked out, but then she had a thought: she was wearing about as much as she wore when she went swimming, so why was she worried? She smiled at herself, relieving the tension, just before Kim spoke the fateful words.

"Remove the bra."

Saoirse visualised herself on the stage with Sarah as she reached behind her back and unclipped her bra. She allowed the warm garment to fall into her hands and then with only a slight hesitation, she passed it to Kim.

"Woah – beautiful nipples," Tommy breathed as his eyes almost popped out of his head, then he blushed wildly. "Sorry. . ."

Saoirse laughed at the compliment as she instinctively attempted to cover up her breasts but then she gave up as Kim moved on.

"The panties."

Necks were visibly craning for a better look as the madly blushing Saoirse took a deep breath before she inserted her thumbs into the waistband of her navy-blue panties and then pushed them down her long shapely legs, past the fox tattoo. Saoirse stepped out of the last vestiges of her dignity and then stood up straight with her hands at her sides making no attempt to cover herself up; she was not ashamed of her body, despite the embarrassment of parading completely naked in front of all her friends.

There was total silence in the briefing room as everybody gazed up at the very beautiful, but very naked young girl.

..._...

Saoirse's blue eyes twinkled as she studied the assembled audience before her.

They appeared transfixed by her body as she stood before them. Saoirse felt the heat of the redness which covered her from her hairline, down to the tops of her exposed breasts. Saoirse also felt the cool air of the air-conditioning as it flowed down her body and across her pink nipples which stuck out, fully hardened. The look of abject horror on the young Lizzie's face showed that she had seen the nipples as they had hardened. The cool air had continued down Saoirse's perfect body and across the perfectly flat stomach before entering her thick inverted triangle of deep brown pubic hair which hid her feminine parts from outside view. Saoirse had never felt so aroused as she was at the moment, despite the humiliation. She had expected to feel humiliated but instead, there were many approving looks of support for what she was doing which lessened the humiliation to a tolerable level.

"You have a very beautiful body, Saoirse," Kim commented as she broke the deafening silence. "Now, the next step is to run a wand-scanner across the subject's body – top to bottom, front and back. The wand will pick up any transmissions, metal items, as well as certain explosives or chemicals. Once that step is complete, we can now check that Saoirse has nothing hidden on, or in, her body. For women, we need to search under the breasts. . ."

Saoirse lifted each of her ample breasts in turn, revealing the pale skin underneath. She bit her lip as she did so as lifting each breast had necessitated running her hands over her stiffened, and very sensitive, nipples.

". . . After the breasts, we need to begin with the mouth, ears, and hair. . ."

Saoirse opened her mouth and she rolled back her tongue so Kim could check her mouth. Saoirse then tipped her head to one side, then the other so Kim was able to check in her ears. Saoirse reached up and she removed the bobble from her chestnut brown hair, letting it fall across her naked shoulders.

"Next, we come to the feet. . ."

Saoirse turned around so that everybody got a good look at her fox tattoo and her well-proportioned bottom. In turn, she lifted each foot so that the sole could be checked as well as the spaces between her toes which she wiggled to show that nothing was there.

..._...

Kim directed Saoirse to extend her arms out to the sides and to turn around slowly.

"Check under the arms and pay close attention to body hair which could conceal a dangerous item. For women that will generally be the pubic hair around the vulva. Some people have thick pubic hair, like Saoirse, while others have thinner, lighter hair which makes hiding something much more difficult and much easier to spot. Two more places to check," Kim continued. "While Saoirse is facing away from us, we will ask her to bend over and part her butt cheeks so that we can check the anus for anything hidden."

"Ewww!" Anne-Marie muttered and there were several other scowls of disdain.

Saoirse bent over and with her hands, she pulled her butt cheeks apart. Saoirse really felt the humiliation at that moment; nobody had ever seen that part of her before – not since she was in nappies, anyway. She also felt incredibly degraded but she knew that worse was yet to come as Kim spoke again.

"Thank you, Saoirse . . . now the final part and then you can get dressed. Please stand up and turn to face me. Mindy?"

Mindy brought a chair over and she placed it behind the naked Saoirse. Mindy noticed the tears building in the girl's eyes as she fought through the humiliation of showing everybody her asshole. Mindy rested her hand on the bare shoulder and then spoke soothingly into Saoirse's ear.

"You're doing brilliantly and I think you're very brave."

Saoirse smiled but she still felt very apprehensive as Kim directed her to sit down on the chair. Two rows back, next to where she had been sitting, Saoirse saw her best friend sitting next to Anne-Marie. Stephanie's expression was mixed. There was support for her, but there was also some anger growing. Saoirse smiled at Stephanie who smiled back with encouragement giving her the strength which she needed to continue.

"Women have one more location that needs to be checked. This is going to be very hard for Saoirse, so please support her. Every female has a vagina. . ."

Lauren, Lizzie, Anne-Marie, and Morgan all went very red as they visibly sank down in their chairs. Danny and Tommy were both wide eyed as they stared at Saoirse and then their eyes dropped to the mass of hair between the girl's legs.

". . . the vagina can accommodate large objects . . . if you're lucky!" Kim went on and there was a ripple of uneasy laughter. "Saoirse, would you please spread your legs . . . thank you . . . now pull back your labia so we can see inside your vagina."

Saoirse struggled with the act but she closed her eyes and reached down between her own legs and she gently eased back her labia, exposing the most private parts of her body to all.

"You will find it easier to use a flashlight to see inside . . ."

"That is so gross," Anne-Marie commented.

". . . if the woman is on her period, then she may have a tampon inserted into her vagina. If so, you can ask the woman to remove it to see properly inside the vagina."

Lizzie, Morgan, and Anne-Marie visibly cringed at every mention of 'vagina'.

"Thank you, Saoirse. You can now get dressed – Cathy, if you please. . ."

Cathy came forwards, handed Saoirse a large towel, and picked up the tub of clothes. They both headed out of the briefing room.

"A round of applause, please."

There was an enormous cheer from all those present and Saoirse blushed wildly.

The Galley

Stephanie followed her friend and Cathy into the galley – she was incensed.

"That was cruel!"

"Steph – I volunteered for that. I knew what was going to happen – Kim tried to persuade me against the last bits but I insisted. They needed to see a full strip-search in all its dubious glory."

"I saw the tears, SD – you hated it."

"The little monster has a very valid point, sis – you did hate it."

Saoirse turned to see a grim-faced Morgan slip into the galley.

"Not as much as I thought I would – I enjoyed everybody looking at my body," Saoirse replied as she dropped the towel and reached for her panties.

"Kim was right, SD – you do have a beautiful body," Stephanie admitted with a shy grin.

"Thanks, Steph."

"I'll leave you three together," Cathy said compassionately. "Look after Saoirse, Steph."

"Yes, ma'am!"

..._...

"I don't need looking after," Saoirse commented after Cathy had gone.

"You've just done something which you must have found really traumatic . . . I care, SD," Stephanie retorted.

"Me, too," Morgan added. "Why the hell did you not tell me about today? You've been through so much – I could have done it instead; and I would have . . ."

Saoirse laughed out loud.

"Morgan, I really do love you; you're my sister, but you're also fucking dense at times. As Raven, you are brave as hell; but get you to take your clothes off – you're too damn shy . . ."

"I had a bad childhood," Morgan offered rather weakly, at least she thought so.

Saoirse smiled.

"I know you both care for me. Steph . . . you know I love you for it; you're a good friend – the best I've ever had. Morgan . . . I'm a big girl now and I can look after myself. I don't need you two chasing after me."

Morgan grinned shyly.

"I know Stephanie said that you had a beautiful body, but I have to admit that when I saw inside you – well, that was totally gross. . ."

Saoirse laughed as she secured her bra behind her back.

"You've never seen inside yourselves?"

Morgan shook her head as her cheeks turned a dark shade of pink.

"Never – ewww!" Stephanie replied

"Steph – behind your front doors, you and me – Morgan, too – we are all very much the same. Over the next few years, you're going to grow into a beautiful girl."

"Let's get back to the action, huh?" Stephanie suggested. "I hate this talk about puberty and shit – get the rest of your kit back on. . ."

"I'm with the little monster," Morgan added as she handed Saoirse her sweatshirt.

Meanwhile . . .

Mindy glared at the assembled audience in the briefing room.

"Saoirse did not enjoy what she just did – I want you all to show her the respect that she deserves as your friend and your partner. If any one of you gives her a hard time over what she did for you, or any of these three, for that matter; you will feel my vengeance."

Mindy's glare was so serious and menacing that Anne-Marie flinched away and cuddled into her brother who had flinched away too. Marc broke the silence.

"Is it too late to un-volunteer?"

Mindy smiled.

"Of course not, Marc. This is voluntary and you can walk away at any time. You have already shown your courage by volunteering in the first place – either that or you're just as fucking nuts as every other damn Predator around here!"

Marc laughed and he thought about that for a moment before he responded.

"If a girl can do it, then so can I."

Mindy laughed.

"Good on you, Marc."

"Ah, Stephanie!" Kim called out.

The girl paused as she re-entered the briefing room with Saoirse and Morgan.

"You can get to fuck, Kim. I ain't getting stripped."

"We've all seen you naked, anyways," Anne-Marie chimed in. "Not much to see, really, although you do seem to be poking out a bit and maybe a bra might be an idea."

"Precisely," Stephanie growled as her face turned pink before she turned on her little sister. "Just one more, you little rat!" Stephanie then turned on Mindy who grinned. "You and me, we are going to talk!"

Kim laughed.

"No, Steph – I just thought that you might like to strip young Marc."

Stephanie looked over at the unfortunate boy; he scowled.

"Ooooh – yes, please!"

"You're getting me back for Megan, aren't you?" Marc groaned.

"Never crossed my mind," Stephanie replied innocently as she smiled deviously.

Kim looked over at Saoirse as the girl slipped into her seat.

"You okay?"

"Yes – I'm fine, thank you."

"Let's continue then – Marc is going to be stripped by Stephanie to demonstrate the differences of strip-searching a male subject."

..._...

"Err – Mindy?"

Mindy turned to see who had spoken – she was very surprised to see the girl seated next to Saoirse stand up. Saoirse frowned up at her big sister.

"Mindy – could I be next . . . please."

"Are you absolutely sure, Morgan?" Mindy enquired.

"You are one fucked up bird!" Saoirse commented from her seat as she rolled her eyes and shook her head.

"Shut up, Foxy, there's a good girl!" Morgan retorted without turning away from Mindy. "Please – I need to . . . Saoirse was brave – I can be just as brave."

Mindy sighed and she looked over at Kim who simply shrugged. Mindy waved Morgan forwards and Marc breathed a sigh of relief before sitting back down beside Tommy. Stephanie returned to her seat beside Anne-Marie.

"Yeah – shut up, Foxy!" she laughed in Saoirse's ear.

Saoirse just growled as she glared at her sister. Morgan was wearing her uniform with a pistol on her right hip. Her first act was to pull the pistol from the holster and eject the magazine, then lock back the action to show the empty breech. She handed both items to Mindy who then handed them off to Chloe. All eyes then turned on the sixteen-year-old who looked down at Saoirse with an imploring expression.

"Oh, for fuck's sake – stupid bird!" Saoirse growled as she stood up and returned to the front of the room where she turned to face everybody. "Okay, I'm back to strip-search my braindead sister. You wanna be brave? Show us what you can do, Raven – get your clothes off . . . now!"

Morgan began to remove her uniform, piece by piece.

Morgan went bright red as she struggled to cope with her emotions.

What she was doing was nothing like that night in Saoirse's bedroom, in almost total darkness. She was actually undressing in front of over a dozen people – male and female – and she was not going to stop until she was completely naked. Her mind was screaming out one word: STOP! The only thing preventing Morgan from following that advice was that part of her which everybody called Raven. As Raven, she was unstoppable and capable of almost anything. As Morgan, she was timid as the proverbial mouse. That was something which she hated. She loved how sure of herself, Saoirse was – Morgan wanted that assuredness for herself.

First off, came the jacket – that was easy; there was much worse to come, Morgan knew. As she handed the jacket to Saoirse she saw the compassionate look crossed with the annoyed look which Saoirse often wore when Morgan did something silly. However, the supportive smile helped Morgan to continue with her task. Under her jacket, she wore a white 'Fusion' T-shirt and removing that was going to be one of the most difficult things that she had ever done.

'I've overcome much worse,' Morgan thought. 'I've defeated grown men who tried to kill me – grown men who had already killed my parents.'

She grinned sheepishly at Saoirse before she pulled the T-shirt over her head, revealing a plain white sports bra which wasn't all that much different in tone compared to Morgan's very pale skin. Many pairs of eyes stared at her, or more particularly, they stared at the combined raven and fox tattoo on her right side, just below her right breast and continuing under her right arm, but the looks were friendly and full of encouragement. As she knelt down to untie her boots, she heard murmurings and she realised that the boys on the front row were checking out her cleavage. She felt her face reddening even further which caused her to fumble her laces and she had to stop to take a deep breath.

"Slow down – you're doing fine," Saoirse whispered from above her.

In all reality, she was anything but 'fine' – her nerves were about to come apart but she willed those nerves down inside her and she brought Raven to the fore. As she handed her boots to Saoirse, she pulled off her black socks and chucked them at her sister.

"I ain't got all day, Foxy!"

There was laughter as a disgruntled Saoirse scrambled for the socks before adding them to the pile of clothing in the plastic tub. She smirked, knowing that Raven was currently stripping – not Morgan Hella. The belt came off next and Morgan undid the button at the top of her dark grey pants. In hindsight, she wished that she had selected some more flattering underwear but stripping before an audience had never featured on the day's itinerary.

Morgan saw Curtis and Tommy leaning forwards on their chairs as she began to slide the pants past her thighs and towards her knees. She closed her eyes for a moment before pushing the pants down to the ground and stepping out of them. She almost felt too scared to open her eyes as she felt the cool air rush around her bare legs, bare arms, and bare stomach. She opted to keep her eyes tightly closed as she reached up to pull off her sports bra. Just as the garment came over her head, she heard a pair of large crashes and she opened her eyes to see Tommy and Curtis looking up at her with wide eyes – evidently, they had both fallen off the fronts of their chairs as they had leaned forwards in eager anticipation of some breast and nipple action.

There was laughter from those watching – all aimed at the two very embarrassed boys. Morgan – or rather Raven – smirked down at Curtis then threw the sports bra at his head. Curtis picked it up as he returned to his seat.

"Way bigger than Megan's!" he commented before he yelled out as the eleven-year-old in the seat behind slapped him around the head.

After more laughter, which stopped quickly as Morgan glared at them all, her hands resolutely placed on her hips, B-cup breasts and rapidly hardening, cherry red nipples on full display.

"My show – not those two dumb fucks!" Morgan growled.

"Go, Morgan!" Hailee called out in support of her friend.

"You boys wanna see more?"

Tommy just squeaked in response as Morgan pushed down the white boy-shorts that she wore. Saoirse rolled her eyes and muttered under her breath as Morgan took her sweet time sliding the underwear down her shapely hips, revealing more skin and then bit by bit, copious amounts of blonde pubic hair were revealed to all – the bitch was enjoying it, she thought.

"There we go, Foxy – all bare," Morgan teased as she held out her underwear on a single finger.

"Morgan – you're making nutcases like me and Steph seem so fucking normal right now!" Saoirse laughed as she deposited the underwear in the tub.

Quickly, Saoirse picked up the wand-scanner and she took it up the front of Morgan and then down the back. Morgan released her hair from single ponytail and she allowed Saoirse to check her ears and armpits. Morgan hesitated when Saoirse pointed at her breasts but she dutifully lifted them before letting them go. Then Saoirse motioned for her to turn around and face the wall. Morgan bit her lip as she turned away to face the wall. That was when the tears came and she returned to being just Morgan Hella. Without any hesitation, she bent forwards and pulled apart her buttocks.

"Feet," Saoirse said quickly.

With relief, Morgan released her backside and lifted one foot before the other, wriggling her toes. Then she moved over towards the chair which sat exactly where Saoirse had left it.

"You don't have to do this," Saoirse said quietly.

"Stop telling me what I don't have to do, okay?" Morgan hissed back, anger in her tone.

Saoirse backed off as Morgan sat down and spread her legs – tears were running down the girl's face as she reached down and she spread her labia for all to see inside.

Morgan barely noticed a towel being wrapped around her naked body and then being led out of the briefing room and down towards the galley.

There was total silence in the briefing room as Morgan was led out by Saoirse and Cathy.

"I know my eyes tell me different," Curtis said, "but that girl has balls!"

There was a chorus of agreement from all those present followed by enormous applause for Morgan. It was time to get things back on track, so Kim waved a grimacing Marc forwards, along with a smirking Stephanie.

"Get a move on Marc – strip!" Stephanie ordered as she waited impatiently for him to remove his sweatshirt.

"I thought Megan was bad!" Marc quipped.

"You ain't seen nothing yet," Stephanie grinned. "Fear me!"

Stephanie seized the sweatshirt and after a cursory check, she threw it into the empty plastic tub.

"Hey! Don't I get my clothes folded?" Marc complained.

"I've only got one arm, doofus. . ."

A ripple of laughter echoed around the room as Marc's face went pink. He quickly pulled off his T-shirt, toed off his sneakers and pulled off his socks. His jeans followed to join the rest of his clothing in a rather messy pile overflowing from the tub.

"Boxers, too. . ." Stephanie ordered with a smirk then she looked at Megan seated next to Chloe. "We going to see anything impressive?"

"It was nothing special, the last time I saw it, but that was a few months ago," Megan replied.

"He's not badly hung," Sarah shouted out before sinking back into her chair, her face very red.

Marc's face was turning just as red as he shoved his boxers down and off, almost throwing them at the smirking Stephanie. Stephanie looked down at his groin.

"Not too bad – not that I've got anything to compare it to," Stephanie commented.

"Moving on. . ." Marc suggested.

"With boys and men, instead of lifting the breasts to see what may be underneath, we need to check under the penis and the scrotum instead," Kim explained. "We also need to check under the foreskin for those who are uncircumcised."

"Lift it, Marc" Stephanie ordered with a smirk.

Marc did so as he rolled his eyes.

"Balls. . ."

Marc lifted his balls so that Stephanie could see beneath. Stephanie peered underneath for a moment before she nodded and Marc let everything go.

"Err. . ." Stephanie paused and she went red in the face as she looked up at Kim.

"Marc – please pull back your foreskin," Kim directed.

Marc looked very embarrassed as he did as he was directed. Anne-Marie turned to her brother.

"Does yours do that, too?" she asked innocently.

Danny, whose face was rapidly turning pink, scowled at his twin.

"Yes – it does; not that it is any business of yours," he retorted.

"Just asking – I know very little about your thingy, except that it sticks out when you play with it and you get angry when I hit you there," Anne-Marie said stiffly.

Mindy couldn't help laughing as the twins bickered.

"Stephanie?" Mindy directed and Stephanie nodded in response.

Stephanie motioned for Marc to turn around. She ran her eyes across the thirteen-year-old's body as he turned. Marc showed off the soles of his feet as he went around.

"Let's get the creepy bit over, Marc – your arse, please," Stephanie ordered and Marc turned around again and bent over, pulling his butt cheeks apart.

"Yuck!" Stephanie growled. "Thanks, Marc – you're all done . . . you enjoying this?"

Stephanie scowled at the boy as she saw his dick move and it pointed directly at her.

"I'm going to go get dressed . . ." Marc muttered as he grabbed his clothes and dashed out of the room accompanied by loud laughter.

The galley

"You are certifiable!"

"Not now, SD – please."

I can understand that you had something to prove, but fucking hell!"

"That was very brave, Morgan," Cathy said as Morgan finished pulling on her uniform.

"Thank you, Cathy."

There was a gentle tapping on the door and Chloe stuck her head in.

"Come in, Chloe," Morgan said.

"You okay?"

"I am – it was humiliating, but exhilarating . . . I think."

"Tell me about it – my first public nudity was . . . liberating, I suppose," Chloe commented with a sly grin towards her mother as she handed Morgan her pistol and magazine. "I need to get back – I have a Megan to humiliate!"

Chloe ran out of the door.

"I suppose we should go see what the little kitty looks like naked," Saoirse commented.

Chapter 308*: Tempest and Stormtide

Wednesday, August 10th, 2016

Safehouse F

As Morgan, Saoirse, and Cathy entered the briefing room, all attention was on the eleven-year-old girl, who was just six weeks short of her twelfth birthday.

"You don't have to do this, Megan."

"I know. I trust Chloe – I'll be fine. Thanks for worrying, Kim."

"Knock 'em dead, Wildcat!" Kim replied before she turned towards the eager audience. "Now – we have some role-playing for our next bit of entertainment," Kim explained as she turned back to the assembled Fusion members. "Megan will pretend to be an obnoxious bitch who hates being told what to do."

"You mean she'll just be her normal self," Paige chuckled from the back of the room which caused a wave of laughter around the briefing room and lifted the mood.

"Nice – thanks, Mom!"

"Anything for my little girl."

"Chloe!" Kim called out and the veteran vigilante came forward and stopped two feet in front of Megan.

"Megan?"

"What the fuck do you want, you steaming hussy?"

"I am going to ask you to undress so we can ensure you are not hiding anything dangerous," Chloe replied calmly.

"Like that's gonna fuckin' happen . . ."

"Last chance to co-operate, Megan," Chloe continued with a smile.

Megan raised her right hand and then her middle finger.

"Stick that up your fucking twat, bitch!"

Chloe seized the extended arm and she spun the younger girl around and threw her to the floor with very little outward effort. Megan yelled out but then all the breath was knocked out of her as she hit the briefing room floor. Chloe swiftly subdued the struggling Megan with a knee to the lower back and then took hold of Megan's wrists in one hand while she held up her right to Joshua.

"Cuffs, Josh!"

Joshua handed over a set of steel handcuffs which Chloe did not hesitate to secure around Megan's wrists.

"Get these bracelets off me, you fucking lesbian, before I . . ."

Chloe slapped a piece of Duct Tape over Megan's mouth.

"One Kitty silenced!" she quipped as she reached down to her right ankle and produced a large knife.

..._...

"Megan is refusing to be stripped of her own accord, so Chloe will do it for her," Kim explained. "Once you have secured the subject, you should pull on some rubber gloves, then use a knife to cut away the clothing. . ."

Chloe did exactly that, as she pulled on a pair of rubber gloves and then, inserting the tip of the knife down the back of Megan's T-shirt, she cut down, straight through Megan's sports bra at the same time. A couple more cuts and Chloe moved onto the shorts which were cut up each leg along with the panties underneath. Megan's sneakers and socks were deftly removed before Chloe ripped out the hair bobble and roughly checked Megan's hair for any foreign objects. Next, Megan's head was twisted from side to side so that Chloe could check her ears. Chloe then smirked as she pulled away the destroyed clothing leaving Megan completely naked, but face down on the floor.

"Chloe will check Megan's butt while she is prone on the floor. . ."

Chloe parted Megan's butt cheeks, one of which showed off her pussy cat tattoo to the world, and then Chloe lifted the pink-faced and very naked girl back to her feet where she was turned to face the audience. Megan looked very embarrassed as she showed off her developing breasts to everybody present and her auburn-coloured pubic hair that provided a thin covering to the majority of her vulva. Plainly visible were the three pale scars from when she was stabbed.

"Unlike Saoirse, Megan demonstrates the thinner, lighter pubic hair which does not hide very much, she also demonstrates that not all girls need to lift their breasts. . ."

While Megan grimaced at the comments, Lauren giggled at those comments and she received a very nasty glare from both Cathy and Mindy, which shut her up fast. Megan could do nothing but grimace as she stood completely naked with her hands cuffed behind her back.

"If necessary, lift the breasts to check underneath. If it were a boy, you would lift up his penis and then his scrotum," Kim went on to explain. "So far, Chloe has checked over all of Megan's body, so the final item is the vagina. Obviously, Megan cannot part her own labia, so Chloe will do it for her."

Megan was blushing bright red as Chloe reached down and with two fingers she gently parted Megan's labia and shone a flashlight up inside the girl with the other hand.

"We done?" Megan asked with a little desperation in her voice as Chloe removed her fingers and the flashlight.

"Yes, well done, Megan," Kim replied.

"Keys?"

Chloe looked at Joshua who just shrugged.

"You had them," Chloe said accusingly.

"Not me. . ."

"Come on, guys!" Megan pleaded as she sat down in the chair that Saoirse had used and she crossed her legs to regain some of her dignity. She scowled at Mindy and her own mother, both of whom were smirking.

"Oh, I remember," Chloe said suddenly with a fiendish look. "I gave the key to Curtis – he wanted to borrow the cuffs. . ."

"Did he now?" Megan growled as she glared at Chloe, Joshua, and then Curtis who just grinned. "Well?"

"Search me!" Curtis chuckled with a hopeful grin.

"When I get my hands free, I'm gonna crack some fucking skulls."

"You look hot when you're mad, beautiful," Curtis said calmly and Megan went silent as she glowed a bright pink.

..._...

"Curtis!" Kim announced. "Front and centre, if you please, young man."

Curtis stood up and stood beside his red-faced and very naked girlfriend. Kim looked directly at young Lizzie who was looking just as embarrassed.

"Right – Lizzie, please come up here and you can strip Curtis," Kim directed.

The twelve-year-old girl was visibly blushing as she stood up and walked over to the almost twelve-year-old Curtis. She paused for a moment as Curtis took a brief glance over at his naked girlfriend seated in the chair beside him – she smirked and her face went a deeper shade of red.

"Okay, Curtis – start stripping," Lizzie ordered as she gathered her courage and took charge. "One item at a time, please."

Curtis nodded and he began to strip. Lizzie looked way more embarrassed than Curtis as she kept looking away from Curtis' body as more and more skin was revealed.

"Lizzie – I don't care if you look," Megan said supportively causing the older girl to giggle.

Finally, and with a huge burst of courage, Curtis pushed down his shorts and he handed them to the blushing Lizzie who did everything that she could not to look at the boy's freshly revealed crotch. However, Lizzie forced herself to look and she bit her lip with embarrassment – it was her very first penis. There was a sparse amount of light brown pubic hair and . . .

"Woah – he's a bit small, isn't he?" Lauren chuckled.

"Lauren!" Kim called out angrily and Lauren sank down in her seat. "Would you like to strip for us?"

"No," Lauren replied insolently as her cheeks turned pink.

"Shut up, then!"

Kim passed Lizzie the wand-scanner which Lizzie turned on and she then proceeded to scan Curtis' back followed by his front. She stopped when the device beeped.

"His dick just beeped at me," Lizzie giggled.

There was a ripple of laughter as everybody peered to see what had set off the wand. Lizzie pointed at Curtis' dick.

"Lift it!" she ordered getting into the swing of things.

Curtis did as he was told and everybody saw something shiny taped to the underside of his penis – it was the handcuff key. Megan showed immense relief when she saw the key and she grinned when she saw where it had been hidden. Curtis made to remove it but Megan stopped him.

"Leave it there – I'll retrieve it later. . ."

"Kitty wants some hanky-panky!" Chloe chuckled to general laughter and Curtis went bright red.

Sophia appeared in the briefing room and she looked first at the naked Megan, and then up at the equally naked Curtis, her eyes moved down to his crotch . . . she licked her lips.

"Don't you even think about it!" Curtis growled as he quickly covered his manhood.

Sometime later. . .

Megan was feeling very low after the evening's escapades, despite her having had some fun retrieving the handcuff key from Curtis.

It had been another forty minutes before she had been able to dress – but at least the time had been spent in private with her boyfriend and both of them had come away very satisfied. Nevertheless, her mood continued to head south as she found her way blocked by Saoirse, Stephanie, and Morgan.

"If you three are about to give me a hard time then I'm not in the mood, okay?"

Stephanie grimaced.

"I knew it!" she almost shouted. "Stop trying to be the hard bitch for two minutes, Megan."

Megan looked at the three concerned expressions and her stone façade crumbled as, unbidden, a tear ran down her cheek. Saoirse quickly grabbed hold of Megan's arm and then dragged her into the currently empty armoury. The fact that Saoirse had been able to physically manhandle Megan without any outward reaction was a demonstration of the eleven-year-old's frame of mind. Stephanie closed the door just in time as the floodgates opened.

Morgan looked at Saoirse who winced in response. It was almost unheard of for Megan to show any form of negative emotion, let alone anything that showed her to be a normal girl. Stephanie wrapped her left arm around her aunt's back and hugged her. After a few minutes, Megan calmed down and she smiled at her niece.

"Sorry about that. I thought that today was going to be a bit of fun and maybe a bit of a dare – exposing myself and all . . . but in reality, it scared me and I felt so humiliated; I really don't have much to show."

"Chloe made it look very real," Morgan commented.

"It was – it hurt, too," Megan confirmed.

"Bitch!" Saoirse commented.

"No – it wasn't her fault. I insisted she went the whole way but she refused until I threatened her. I told her it had to look good or . . . well, I was worried that people would see me as a pussy."

"You are a pussy," Stephanie advised her aunt. "A wild pussy."

Megan scowled.

"We all know you like to be a hard bitch, Megan," Saoirse said. "But you don't have to be, not all the time. You have nothing to prove to anybody. You fight like nothing else and you are just the person I want as my backup when I'm in a bad situation. I wish I was as brave as you are now, back when I was eleven."

"Thanks, SD."

"I was a pushover back then and they were talking about canning me – you know, a bullet in the head – I was struggling with everything and I was being bullied mercilessly which was why I began to bully the little Stephanie when she appeared a year or so later. I was twelve and well onto thirteen before I had much to show for myself – my breasts were little more than awkward bumps and my pubic hair was hardly worth having."

"Back when SD and me visited you in your bedroom . . . when we found that kitty collar, we. . ." Morgan began.

"I thought we agreed never to mention that!" Megan hissed.

". . . we told you that Curtis was a very lucky boy – and now we've had a better look at you and him, you are both very lucky and very good for each other. I assume you retrieved the key?"

Megan grinned.

"Yes – then he got hard and well, I had to deal with that . . . then he . . ."

Megan clammed up and smirked as Stephanie grinned.

"Back the truck up, Megan – what's this about a kitty collar?" Stephanie demanded of her aunt.

"Thanks, Morgan," Megan grouched before she turned to Stephanie. "Look, little niece, you can get to fuck!"

"Would this be a certain collar which Mindy tried to make you wear butt naked for being a bitch?"

"Maybe. . ."

"I think we're getting a little off topic here. . ." Saoirse pointed out.

"Yeah," Megan agreed. "One of the reasons I acted out so much when I was nine and ten, was that I had few friends. You guys are always around to talk to me and help me. Our little soiree in Europe healed the rift between me and Chloe – Joshua is my rock and now I don't have to feel weird about going to him to talk. You three have all had bad childhoods; way worse than mine. I love having you as friends – thanks."

"It's an honour, Megan," Saoirse confirmed.

"You were very brave, Megan – I never thought I could have done what you did," Morgan said quietly. "I'm always shy when I'm not wearing a mask and I hate it."

That same time. . .

Mindy was annoyed.

Everybody had behaved impeccably – all except for Lauren. As such, she had gone through Lauren like a ton of bricks, leaving the young girl in streams of tears. Morgan had surprised everybody with her antics but Mindy could understand her reasons for wanting to follow her younger sister. Mindy had also seen Megan looking both happy – Curtis had been grinning earlier – and unhappy. Now, as she rested her arms on the barrier around the walkway and looked down, she was just in time to see the armoury door open and a smiling Megan appear, chatting animatedly with Stephanie. Morgan appeared, with Saoirse and both were smiling too.

That night

West Columbia

"Well done, Megan."

"Thanks, Mom."

"I wanted to wait until we got home to say this, but you made me very proud, today. I honestly thought that you'd use the safe word. But, it impressed me that you did not. You're growing into a lovely young woman and what I saw of you today, proved that."

Megan blushed wildly at the compliment.

"Just you and Curtis control your sexual urges, please."

"We'll be careful, Mom. I'm not pissing on another one of those damn pregnancy tests!"

..._...

Megan turned as she heard a knock on the door.

"We expectin' anybody?" she asked.

"Don't think so," Paige replied.

"Chloe – come in!" Marcus called out.

"Chloe?" Megan queried.

Chloe never came around – so Megan felt worried, until Chloe walked into the living room, all smiles.

"Hi, Paige."

"Hi, Chloe – to what do we owe this little visit?"

"Just thought I'd take the car out," Chloe smiled. "You fancy a ride, Megan?"

Megan looked up at Marcus who nodded.

"Anything for some peace and quiet!" he chuckled.

..._...

"Am I safe?" Megan queried as Chloe headed out of the street.

"I'm a safe driver – it's just a bit weird driving legally."

"I can believe that – so what do you want to talk about?"

"You."

Megan frowned.

"I wanted to check that you were okay – I went a bit rougher on you than I should have done. . ."

"Chloe – I told you to be rough; I'm fine."

"You didn't look it."

Megan took a deep breath and decided to tell the truth – she owed Chloe that much.

"Okay – I hated it. I was mortified. The mighty Megan is a fucking pussy with tiny tits!"

Chloe chuckled.

"You're only eleven, Megan. . ."

"Almost twelve!"

"Okay – but I barely had even bumps on my chest when I was twelve. Your body was looking good."

"Thanks."

"Are you blushing?"

"No . . ."

"I thought you were really brave – I know I flaunt it, but you're way braver than me."

"Bullshit!"

"No shit."

"Mind you – my mind was reeling at the prospect of a handcuffed and naked Wildcat!"

"I bet it was. . ."

The following morning
Thursday, August 11th

Wagner Road

Lauren tapped on her sister's closed bedroom door.

"Come in . . ."

Lauren pushed open the door and then froze.

"Well, come in if you're going to – there's a draft," Lizzie commented.

"What are you doing?" Lauren demanded as she closed the door.

Her twelve-year-old sister was standing in front of a full-length mirror – she was also completely naked.

"I'm going to be thirteen in six months and my body sucks. Megan isn't even twelve, yet, and she has way bigger boobs than me and way more pubic hair. No boy will ever fancy me. . ."

"Lizzie – your body will develop in its own time. I had hardly anything at your age – less probably. You've enough boob to need a bra and while your hair is a little sparse; it'll grow over time."

"Just say it – I'm like Curtis. . ."

"I didn't mean that – it just slipped out. The only dicks I'd seen previously were the men who raped me – they were grown men with big dicks . . . Curtis is only eleven, I should never have said what I said. Mindy tore me apart for my behaviour and I feel ashamed. You're perfect, just the way you are."

"Thanks."

"You feel better?"

"I suppose . . . I don't really have much choice."

That evening

Safehouse F

Lauren looked for Curtis as soon as she arrived.

She found him in the galley, sitting with Megan and Tommy. As Lauren approached, she saw Megan's smile vanish and her expression harden.

"What the fuck do you want?" Megan growled.

Lauren turned to face Curtis and Megan.

"Curtis – I'm really sorry about the other day. I'm really sorry about my comments – they were uncalled for and very wrong; I was way out of line. Megan – I laughed at your body which was totally unfair. You were very brave to do what you did – I could never do it. I'm sorry for letting everybody down with my behaviour. I don't expect either of you to forgive me but I hope that in time, you can."

Lauren did not wait for a response – she turned and she ran out of the galley in tears. The tears prevented her from seeing where she was going and she cannoned into . . .

"Mindy!" Lauren exclaimed. "I'm sorry – I didn't . . ."

"Lauren – I heard what you said to Megan and Curtis. Well done; I'm proud of my Senior Trainee Operator – that can't have been easy for you."

"I bet it wasn't," Megan said as she put an arm around the older girl. "Come and have a drink with us . . ."

Lauren felt a little bewildered as she allowed Megan to guide her back to the table and Megan sat her down opposite Tommy and next to Curtis.

"Your apology is accepted, Lauren," Megan said first. "Admitting your mistakes is never easy."

"Me too, Lauren," Curtis added.

"Thank you," Lauren replied meekly.

The following afternoon

Friday, August 12th

Safehouse Q

"Marc?"

"More questions, Lauren?"

"Just one more. . . You were Phase 3; like Sarah and SD – did you ever see one of those sex demos?"

Marc chuckled and his cheeks went a little pink.

"Yes, Lauren, I attended several . . . and . . ."

Marc hesitated.

"And . . .?" Lauren pushed.

"I actually participated in one. . ."

"Awesome!" Megan and Lauren exclaimed together.

"I assume that you sex craved bitches want the details?" The very astute Marc commented.

"Every juicy drop!" Megan responded.

"I was thirteen – just. . . They did these once a month and this was the fourth which I had attended. I sat down with the other lads and we joked about what we might be about to see – then I heard a name announced. I must have missed it as I was nudged by several of the lads. 'Tempest!' came the call again. I went pale – or so they told me and I hesitantly made my way down the steps. . ."

Several months earlier

The Urban Predator Academy

I could not believe that this was happening to me!

I made it to the stage and I was positioned facing the audience of two hundred or so eager faces. I barely heard the order to strip, but I did. The T-shirt was easy and so were the trainers and socks – the joggers took a bit more effort. I had been naked in front of boys many times, but girls – none! I had started puberty about seven months before when I was twelve. I knew from looking around in the showers that I was average for my age with all the right bits in all the right places.

Finally, when I was down to my boxers, I hesitated but I knew that hesitation might cause me to be punished so I yanked them down and off. I stood up in front of two hundred kids stark bollock naked and I'm afraid to say that things had shrivelled somewhat and there were some stifled giggles from the watching kids. The wait was the worst – my biggest fear was rubbing dicks with another boy; we were trained for all types of sex, but some forms none of us wanted to experience and definitely not on a fucking stage!

A name was shouted out: 'Stormtide!'

I felt a wave of relief flood over me – I knew Stormtide. Stormtide was a thirteen-year-old girl and from what I had seen of her, she seemed very desirable and I was about to lose my virginity to her – awesome!

The Present Day

Safehouse Q

"Typical boy!" Megan growled.

"You'd have preferred I was fucking a boy?" Marc retorted. "That day was the second most humiliating day of my life!"

"Please continue," Lauren asked politely with an angry glance at Megan.

Several months earlier

The Urban Predator Academy

Stormtide appeared on the stage.

She was about my height and she definitely had the right curves in the right places. She smiled at me – it was a nervous smile, but it was still a smile; at least she didn't throw up at the sight of me. Then she looked down at my 'equipment' – she smirked. Was it a good smirk? I had no idea. . .

Stormtide was given the order to strip and she did but I noticed that her hands were shaking somewhat as she removed her trainers and socks. She dropped her joggers revealing some plain black knickers. Next went her T-shirt and she revealed an equally plain black sports bra. Then she hesitated – I think she was trying to decide what to remove next.

She surprised everybody by turning to me and smiling.

"Tempest, would you remove my bra for me?"

I looked over at a counsellor and he nodded his approval.

I had never touched a real live girl before, let alone removed the bra of one – I was just glad it wasn't a real bra; I had no idea how they worked. . .

The Present Day

Safehouse Q

"Typical boy!" Megan growled again.

"I know how to release the catches now, bitch!" Marc growled.

"Did Sarah teach you?" Lauren teased.

"Let the boy continue. . ." Sarah suggested quickly, her face turning pink.

"One question answered. . ." Megan grinned.

Several months earlier

The Urban Predator Academy

When I touched her skin for the first time, I felt like an electric current was flowing through me and I was amazed at how soft and silky her skin was – I must have tickled her as she giggled; it was a nervous giggle, but still a giggle.

I hesitated as I felt the throb of blood moving very fast into my groin and I could hear murmuring from the audience. Stormtide looked down and I saw her eyes go wide as I grew very rapidly in front of her. She nodded and smiled approvingly. I blushed badly. . .

Anyway, back to the task in hand. . . I carefully ran my fingers underneath the black material and gently pulled it upwards and then I stopped as her breasts were revealed for the first time. Nothing much more than a handful each and each topped with a very appealing and very erect nipple. It was her turn to blush as she saw where my eyes were focussed. She reached down and grabbed my erect penis and that jerked me back to reality as she very gently caressed the tip.

I quickly pulled the sports bra up and over her head – Stormtide obligingly raised her arms for me. Before she could lower them, I kissed her in her left armpit and they both jerked down as she blushed bright red and giggled again. I had remembered my foreplay lecture. . . There was a ripple of laughter from those watching but we both ignored them and focussed on each other.

Damn, I had never been so hard and our breathing was becoming more of an effort as I ran my hands down her neck and over her chest before I touched my first ever nipple . . . it was hard, but very soft at the same time and Stormtide bit her lip as I touched what must have been very sensitive nipples. I could tell that she was desperately wanting to call out but felt too embarrassed.

I ran my hands down her stomach and she kind of pulled me with her and we both fell down onto the large gym mat that had been placed for just that purpose. . .

The Present Day

Safehouse Q

"What the fuck did you stop for!" Megan growled.

"Artistic effect. . ." Marc chuckled.

"Do you really want to die?" Megan said calmly.

"Do you want to hear the rest of the story?"

"Yes!" Came three voices all at once.

Several months earlier

The Urban Predator Academy

Stormtide lay on the mat and I knelt over her.

It was time for her to be naked, just as I was. I put a hand on each side of her knickers and I looked into her pale green eyes – she nodded and I gently eased the knickers down as she raised her bottom off the mat. I pulled the knickers down her long legs and off her feet without ever taking my eyes off her neatly trimmed deep brown pubic hair which matched the long hair on her head that was even now in a tight pony tail.

Suddenly, I became acutely aware of our audience. There was almost total silence as everybody stared at the two naked bodies before them. I began to feel the humiliation flood through me and . . .

"Oh, crap!" I whispered as I felt my dick begin to droop.

"Look at me. . ." Stormtide whispered as she pulled me down onto her and she kissed me – my first ever kiss; it was very wet!

I ran my fingers across each nipple and she moaned beneath me. Her body was very warm and I could feel her heart beating like a crazed drummer. Then the tip of my dick touched the inside of her thigh and I felt the blood throbbing into my groin again. Then I felt her pubic hair on my dick and I sat back up again – my appendage was pointing to the sky as I moved my shaking fingers to her pelvic region and gently entered her pubic hair and touched her labia.

..._...

She jumped as I touched her, but she smiled at me and she purred! Her labia were moist to the touch and very warm, almost hot. I gently pushed my finger between her folds and Stormtide stiffened, almost as hard as I was. . . I accidentally touched her at the top of her labia and she let out a little scream. I'd forgotten what lived up there!

Her right hand moved towards me and wrapped itself around my dick; she gripped me tightly.

"Nice. . ." she whispered as I gazed down at her.

"So are you. . ." I replied.

I began to feel sensations that told me I was not going to last all that long and while spurting all over her chest could have been fun; it would have opened me up to ridicule. I think she must have read my mind as she nodded and spread her legs wider. I moved my arms so that I could gently lower myself down onto her. I felt her hands wrap around my back and I gazed into her eyes. She was so beautiful. . .

I kissed her, full on the lips and I felt her tongue push mine aside and enter my mouth.

..._...

I had forgotten completely that we were being watched. I tasted her tongue and it was minty – Colgate probably. Her arms pulled me closer and I felt her breasts against my own chest and the nipples were very noticeable in their hardened state. Then she broke the kiss and smiled.

"I want you, Tempest. . ."

I gulped and tentatively moved my pelvic region forwards and I felt myself entering inside her. She was moist – it was the best way that I could describe it – warm and moist. . .

The Present Day

Safehouse Q

"Warm and moist!" Megan explained. "Are you saying that I would be 'warm and moist'?"

Megan accentuated the phrase with air quotes.

"Never got the chance. . ." Marc said with a grin.

"I should think not. . ." Megan stammered as she turned pink.

"An interesting description," Sarah commented with a smirk at her former partner.

"Best I could come up with at the time, Discord!"

Several months earlier

The Urban Predator Academy

Stormtide shuddered as I entered and she squirmed a bit.

Then a wave of pain swept across her face and her eyes closed for a moment. I was about to withdraw, but she crossed her legs across my backside and I was pinned inside her.

"I'm okay – just stung a bit. . ." she said quietly.

I began to gently ease in and out – it was surprisingly easy and it felt really good and by the look on Stormtide's face; she was enjoying it too. Her pelvis bucked as I moved faster and faster – her eyes closed tightly and she seemed to be having trouble breathing, then her eyes popped open very wide and she kissed me on the lips.

"Fuck me. . ." she hissed.

"I am!" I laughed as I pushed in as far as I could manage.

I cried out in pain as I felt needles in my back – she had pierced me with her finger nails; I filed the pain away and then I felt my own breathing hitching and I felt an overwhelming sensation in my groin just as Stormtide gripped me tightly and she screamed out loud just as I felt myself explode inside her. I could not thrust anymore; I was spent and very sensitive. We both collapsed at the same time and I rolled off to one side onto the mat. I looked over at Stormtide and she smiled. I felt her hand take hold of mine and she squeezed hard.

I have no idea how long we both lay there, but when I looked up, the auditorium was empty; we were very much alone.

The Present Day

Safehouse Q

"That's it?"

"Yes, Lauren, it is. . ."

"You sure. . ." Lauren persisted.

"Okay – we got dressed, kissed and then we each went back to our rooms. However, after we had eaten that night – she kept looking at me across the dining room – I was grabbed by Stormtide and she dragged me back to her room, which was empty. . ."

Several months earlier

The Urban Predator Academy

"They won't be back for an hour – get your clothes off, Tempest. . ."

As before, I didn't disobey, only it was a lot easier to strip when it was just the two of us.

"Sit on the edge of the bed. . ."

I did so and I felt a little stupid as my dick hardened up at the sight of the naked Stormtide. I had no idea what she was going to do until she knelt down between my legs, spreading them open, she lent forwards and she took me into her mouth. I shuddered and I braced myself as extreme sensations coursed throughout my body. Stormtide sat back for a moment and then licked her lips.

"You showered since earlier?" She asked.

"Err, no. . ."

"So . . . I must be tasting myself and that salty taste must be you. . ."

"I guess. . . Err, Stormtide, what's your real name?"

"Shannon. You?"

"Marc."

"Cool. . ."

Shannon dived back to her sucking. . .

The Present Day

Safehouse Q

"That was that – she sucked me off and we went our separate ways. I was deployed a few days later, with Sarah. . ."

"Yeah – I was a last-minute substitution; they never told me why, but I replaced Stormtide," Sarah commented. "I would suggest that they thought you two might spend the entire operation, err what's the word? Fucking!"

Marc looked very uncomfortable and the girls sensed that there was more, but nobody pressed.

"That would explain why you never wanted much more than a blow-job off me – I thought there was something wrong with me. . ." Sarah commented.

"There was something wrong with you; you weren't Shannon. . ."

"Nutcase!" Megan growled.

"You know, you could have been one of us; you had the right stuff, Megan – but I'm glad you never had to suffer what we did. Although, having seen you naked, I would have enjoyed seeing you down on that stage strutting your stuff. . ."

"I'm flattered you think so – my body, I mean – maybe you'll get your chance. . ."

"I feel like I just peed myself," Lauren complained as she manipulated her jeans around her crotch. "Damn, my jeans are damp, too. . ."

"You're not the only one," Megan commented and there was an obvious damp patch on her pants.

"That was the best stimulation I've had in a long time," Sarah confirmed. "Okay, girls – let's leave the kid be."

"Oh, Marc, you said that that experience was your second most humiliating thing – what was the first?" Megan asked.

"You!"

"Me?"

"Yeah – despite having a very beautiful girl lying before me, stark naked, I could not perform. . ."

Marc went bright red and he hung his head; he was very embarrassed. Megan blushed too, at his comment.

"Fuck, Marc – maybe that was just your good side coming out. . ." Megan tried. "I didn't mean to humiliate you – it just came out. . ."

"Well, we now know that your love was elsewhere. . ." Sarah suggested.

..._...

As the girls left the bedroom and headed downstairs, Megan turned to Sarah and Lauren.

"He loves that girl: Shannon."

"Yes, Megan, he does," Sarah admitted.

"We need to find her," Lauren suggested.

"My thoughts, exactly," Megan confirmed.

Chapter 309*: Messenger

That night

Friday, August 12th, 2016

Kilbourn Avenue

It was Abby's birthday – she was sixteen, just like her friends.

"I look back over the past few years and I'm shocked as hell to find myself still alive and with my best friends. When Chloe first entered my life, she was morose and she needed a shoulder to cry on – I was happy to provide that. I liked Chloe – okay, she was weird, always going on about this awesome guy called Joshua . . ."

"I can't help being awesome," Joshua interrupted. Abby and Chloe both laughed.

". . . Chloe was pretty much my only real friend – being a geek kinda kept me on my own. Then I found out she was a wannabe vigilante, called Shadow. I warned her – but since when did Chloe Bennett ever listen to anybody; least of all when she was thirteen. I would cover for her – every night that she went out. Then she had to go and get herself shot which meant she was rescued by the Dynamic Duo. . ."

"Dynamic Duo?" Joshua echoed.

"An apt description," Chloe laughed.

". . . The best thing I ever did was follow Chloe and find out where she'd been going. I will admit, having Hit Girl's arm across my throat scared me half to death, but our adventures, together, have been the best – thanks, both of you, for making my life the best ever," Abby finished.

"Happy Birthday!" Joshua and Chloe exploded.

The next evening

Saturday, August 13th

D-JAK

"Why do I get the job of shutting everything up?"

"Tommy, you work here."

"It's a shit job. Maybe Mindy hates me."

"Nah – she's just a bitch!" Joshua replied with a chuckle.

Tommy laughed and he went back to collecting the abandoned jō-staffs and other detritus left over from a long day of martial-arts classes. Twenty minutes later, Tommy was almost done with his chores and Joshua was close to completing his own. Then, totally unexpectedly, the lights went out in the studio.

"What the hell?" Tommy demanded as the emergency lights snapped on around the space.

An indignant, accusing voice called out from the opposite side.

"What did you do?"

"Nothing!" Tommy replied just as indignantly.

"He's right. It was us."

"Who the fuck are you?" Tommy demanded.

"Забытый нас так быстро, молодой Фома?" {Forgotten us so quickly, young Thomas?}

Tommy felt a cold chill as he heard the Russian words and instantly translated them in his head.

"Александр. . ." {Alexander. . .}

"Who the fuck are you talking to, Tommy?" Joshua called as he walked over.

"I am talking to the bastard who slashed my chest. He's called Alexander."

"So a bad fucker, then?"

"Yeah. Three against one, is not exactly fair, Alexander."

"No, it is not, Thomas."

"You expect me to give up and just hand myself over?"

"Oh, no, Tommy. I have far too much respect for you to expect that."

"До смерти!" {To the death!}

"I would expect nothing less from a boy like you. . ."

"What did you just say?" Joshua demanded.

"I said that we would fight to the death," Tommy replied conversationally.

"I figured that," Joshua replied dryly as he flexed his muscles.

"You take those two – Alexander is mine," Tommy directed.

"Great – give me the two large Russian cunts – thank you, Tommy; you go play with your pal."

There was no response from Tommy as he bolted for his nemesis.

..._...

"Where the fuck are they – eight o'clock, on the fucking dot, they said!"

"Calm down, Chloe – maybe they're busy."

"Fucking boys!"

"Your favourite past time!" Stephanie giggled.

"I luck to fuck, yeah – just one boy, though . . . dammit! Let's go find them."

With that, Stephanie and Chloe left the Mini parked at the side of the street and headed towards the main doors into D-JAK. They were half-way up the stairs when they heard fighting – normally a usual activity for D-JAK; only the place was closed with only Joshua and Tommy in residence. Both girls stopped dead and exchanged glances while Stephanie reached down to her left ankle and she produced a micro-compact Kel-Tec P3AT .38-calibre pistol.

"Where's yours," she hissed.

"In the car. . ." Chloe replied as Stephanie just shook her head in disgust.

"Amateur!"

Stephanie went first, pistol held out in her left hand. At the top of the stairs, Chloe moved to the left, heading for the lights, while Stephanie covered her movements in the darkness. By the light which filtered in through the windows from the street poles, Stephanie could make out five people fighting. She readily recognised the smallest silhouette as Tommy.

Stephanie closed her eyes as Chloe raised her thumb in the air. A second later, the lights began to snap on down the studio, dazzling all who still had their eyes open. Unfortunately, that included Joshua and Tommy, as well as their opponents. All were momentarily dazzled, but only for a moment. Chloe dashed in and attacked the closest enforcer while Stephanie ran towards Tommy.

"Hey, I was handling them!" Joshua growled as he saw Chloe join the party.

"Got bored waiting downstairs, so I decided to come see what you boys . . . hold on . . ." Chloe powered her right fist into the Russian's temple as he went down to his knees, putting him out on the ground. ". . . were doing up here."

"Thanks," Joshua breathed as his man's nose exploded as Joshua double-tapped his face with his fists and then followed up with a powerful punch to his jaw. The man quickly joined his pal on the ground.

They both turned towards Tommy who was exchanging blows with a tall, thin man. Tommy's face was full of hate as he struck repeatedly at his opponent. Stephanie closed, looking for a shot, but Tommy clocked her and he shook his head – Stephanie frowned but lowered her pistol a fraction.

"I owe you, Alexander; I want to see you bleed."

"My dear, Thomas, you were made to bleed as punishment for your behaviour; you had to learn to follow simple instructions, мальчик." {boy}

"I was sick of fighting for your warped entertainment. . ."

"You were one of my best."

The blows flew despite the words which also flew back and forth. Stephanie looked over at Chloe and Joshua for guidance, both shrugged – it was Tommy's fight. But before any decision could be made, there was the sound of feet on the stairs and then two objects span across the floor.

"Grenade!" Stephanie yelled.

..._...

The double-explosion stunned the three youngsters and they each fell to the floor. Alexander was also stunned by the sudden flashes and resounding bangs. As the five of them staggered back to their feet, Alexander was seized by two men and dragged off down the stairs. Two further men retrieved their fallen comrades.

It was several more minutes before Stephanie, Chloe, and Joshua were able to see and hear properly. Stephanie clocked the cracked windows and winced and the thought of how Mindy might react to her flagship studio suffering damage. They did not have long to wait as several CPD officers quickly appeared. The surge up the stairs was led by Sergeant Murphy who quickly took charge and secured the premises but the Russians were long gone.

Stephanie's pistol and ankle holster had also mysteriously vanished – nobody noticed the addition to Murphy's armoury. Thirty minutes later, a worried looking Mindy raced up the steps and she grabbed hold of Stephanie, hugging her tightly.

"I'm fine!" Stephanie growled.

"I was so worried when Murphy called – are you all okay?"

"Yeah," Chloe confirmed.

"It was Alexander," Tommy explained, a look of intense anger on his face. "I want him."

"We'll get him – I promise you, Tommy," Mindy confirmed.

"Sorry about the glass," Stephanie offered meekly.

"Fuck that!" Mindy retorted. "If anything happened to any of you. . ."

"She really cares," Joshua commented with a hint of surprise in his tone.

"Maybe she's softening in her old age," Chloe added with a smirk.

Mindy just scowled at her two best friends.

The following morning
Sunday, August 14th

Glenview

It was the beginning of the usual raft of crap anniversaries.

The time wasn't helped by the attack the previous evening. Mindy was not overly surprised – the '60-day' mark of their deadline had passed just that Tuesday and she had expected an attack; just nothing that personal.

"What's going on?" Stephanie asked as she came into the kitchen for breakfast. She could sense the tension as Dave sat at the counter, staring at his full cup of coffee as Mindy hugged him.

Dave turned to face his eldest daughter, just as Anne-Marie and Danny appeared – they both stopped dead as they saw the sadness in Dave's face.

"Sorry, guys – no smiles this morning," he explained. "It's been three years since my Dad died. He was murdered in New York, on the orders of The Motherfucker. The worst of it is that it was my fault; if I had given up being Kick-Ass. . ."

"Dave," Mindy warned.

"Sorry – I just get really morose around this time of year. Marty will be too – he was there when I found out. Next week will be the third anniversary of us taking down The Motherfucker in New York – it will also be the anniversary of Mindy leaving New York. . ."

Dave stopped speaking as all three kids ran over to hug him tightly.

The next day Monday, August 15th

D-JAK

All of the damaged glazing had been repaired and all was back to normal.

Stephanie, though, sensed that something was off – but she could not put her finger on what it was until she confronted Mindy.

"What's going on?"

"You have a visitor, Steph," Mindy explained cryptically.

"Who?"

Nobody answered the ten-year-old so she went back to the mat and practicing with her right arm. It was still very painful, but she was coping. She couldn't raise her right arm above her shoulder, but it was still very early days. Stephanie did her best to exercise all of her other muscles which had languished during her time in the hospital. Those muscles included her legs which were as trim as ever, but Stephanie knew that her muscles and ligaments were not in peak condition. Training was not easy with one painful arm held across her stomach, but Lauren and Megan provided as much assistance as they could.

Stephanie paused to sit down and drink a can of Coke just as some people arrived. Stephanie was very surprised to see Cassie of all people walking towards her. Dave was with her, and just behind Dave was a short girl of maybe nine-years-old. All sorts of emotions shot through Stephanie's mind as she studied the girl who had slowed her approach and showed caution as she came closer. Stephanie never said a word as the nine-year-old studied her. However, Stephanie shocked everybody as she stepped forwards and then she slapped the girl on the cheek.

"Whoa!" Cassie announced.

"No harm done," Electra announced as she rubbed her cheek. "Not bad, Steph!"

"You're lucky that I'm a lot weaker than I usually am."

"Yes – I heard about your injury – I'm sorry."

"Don't be. . ."

With that, the two girls hugged and tears were visible in two sets of eyes.

"You two gonna put on a show?" Megan enquired with a cheeky grin.

Neither girl said anything as they released each other and exchanged a glance. Next thing, they both kicked out and Megan fell backwards with a little scream. Stephanie held out her right hand, palm up, and Electra brought her own right hand down hard onto Stephanie's.

"Right on, partner!" Stephanie growled as she winced with the pain.

..._...

"Where? How? When?"

Stephanie was full of questions as the two girls sat down in private on the couch in Mindy's office.

"Cassie's Dad picked me up off a French merchantman, a few weeks back. I escaped the massacre at Milan and found myself in bad company. If I hadn't been rescued from the French. . ."

"It's really good to see you, Electra – I've missed you, kid."

"I've missed you, Steph."

Both girls hugged again and real tears fell as the two girls considered their shared past.

..._...

"What do we know about Electra?" Cassie asked.

"She was what they called a 'yellow' – somebody of now consequence, apparently. According to Stephanie, yellows dealt with the shit quite literally. They controlled Predators under punishment and were given mundane jobs that were deemed to be beneath Predator status. Most never reached their eight birthdays and were 'disposed of' as part of the identity reassignment part of the Predator training," Abby explained as she read the text on her tablet. "Electra, though, she became a Predator thanks to Stephanie, it seems. Somebody in Urban Predator saw something in the girl, or maybe they were just fucking with Stephanie. Either way, both girls owe their lives to each other. It scares me seeing kids so young and knowing what they went through. She's a geek for fuck's sake – it says so in her notes. She's someone like me."

"I know, Abby, I do," Mindy said as soothingly as she could.

Not much got Abby riled up, but Urban Predator was one of them.

"You go check on them," Mindy suggested.

..._...

Stephanie and Electra were talking animatedly when Abby knocked then pushed open the office door.

"Are you two okay?" she asked.

"Yeah, Abby, thanks," Stephanie replied.

"You weren't recruited as a Predator, were you, Electra?" Abby asked.

"They took me. I was stripped, prodded, poked – then they realised I needed glasses and I was canned. Well, actually, I was 'yellowed' – the next thing I knew, I was showered, then I was given some yellow clothing to wear. I was only seven; I had no idea what was going on. I spent my first couple of weeks cleaning out buckets of piss. Then they promoted me to The Cage. My job was to strip the Predators under punishment, feed them – if they deserved it, and make sure they drank and stayed alive."

"That sounds like shit," Abby commented.

"It was – but then I met Steph. . ."

"I taught her to fight, to protect herself – some fucking instructor latched onto that and decided to use her to get to me," Stephanie added.

There was a knock on the door and Stephanie smiled as Saoirse entered.

"I heard we'd another Predator – hi, I'm. . ."

"I remember you, Saoirse," Electra growled, ignoring Saoirse's hand.

Saoirse paused and Stephanie was confused.

"You made Stephanie's life hell – I saw you slap her backside, that day she was strapped in the dining room. You're a nasty bitch, Saoirse – stay the fuck away from me."

"lectra. . ." Stephanie tried.

"No, Steph, I can't be friends with somebody like her – I'm sorry."

Electra stepped out of the office and went to watch the sparring. Saoirse looked to be almost in tears as she sat down in a vacant chair.

"I know I was bad – and yes, I did slap your bare ass straight after that strapping; I regret that, I really do."

"You were different then," Stephanie tried. "You're not that girl anymore. Same as I was different back then; you know how people react when they first meet me."

"Now I know how it feels to be in your shoes – it sucks."

"She'll come around in her own time, SD – I'm sure of it."

That night

Marquette Park

The Lockheed L-100 Hercules was cruising at 145 knots; landing speed. The aircraft was lined up for runway 31-Right and losing altitude as it sank towards the runway.

Then, just five nautical miles out, the inner starboard engine exploded. A thousand feet below, on the ground, Hit Girl froze as the aircraft hurtled towards her. She had turned at the noise, expecting to see an aircraft passing overhead as it took-off, or landed, at Chicago Midway International Airport.

Instead, the sight was mesmerising.

"Raptor! Raptor! Raptor!"

Safehouse F Command Centre

The codewords echoed out of all the speakers in the Command Centre and Abby went pale as she recognised Hit Girl's voice.

The three code words were designed especially for a vigilante in life-threatening trouble that they could not escape from. The phrase was instigated after both Mindy and Chloe had gotten themselves jammed up in a fucked-up Bank Heist.

"What's up, Boss?" Abby enquired, dreading to hear what would make Hit Girl call the ball.

"An aircraft is about to hit, Hit Girl," Hit Girl announced in an even tone.

Abby looked over at Marty who just shrugged.

"I think she's lost it . . . big time," Abby commented.

"Maybe not. . ." Marty threw back, as the image from a security camera on a nearby building appeared on one of the large screens.

"Shit!" Abby breathed.

That same night

Marquette Park

Hit Girl pulled herself out of her frozen state and she looked around her.

There were people: men, women, and children. The collateral damage would be huge. She ran forwards and began to yell for everybody to MOVE. Hit Girl resorted to some foul language and firing her pistol in the air to motivate people. Every second of delay meant death was a second closer. The roar of the remaining three Allison 501-D331 turboprops was getting louder and louder as they came closer and closer.

"Get out of there, Hit Girl!" Kick-Ass yelled over the comms.

"I can't leave anybody to be killed. . ."

"Dammit!" Kick-Ass responded from the Safehouse.

Hit Girl was out of time as the aircraft pointed directly at her and the south-west portion of the park. Hit Girl ran towards a small boy who was paralysed with fear as he watched impending doom approach at over 100 knots. At the last minute, Hit Girl swept the boy up and she buried herself into the grass, her back armour towards the inbound seventy-tonne aircraft.

..._...

The roar of the impact was spectacular as the reinforced aluminium structure struck the grass just to the south of Redfield Drive. The aircraft remained intact as it smashed three cars out of the way and shot across the lagoon before ploughing into a large sand trap on the golf course. Hit Girl's hearing was inhibited as the roar of engines and twisted metal blocked out even her communications and the screams of the small boy.

Then there was an eerie reduction in the sound, almost to silence. The reinforced radome of the Hercules aircraft was literally an inch from her left arm when it finally came to a halt. Of the four, four-bladed, propellers, one was still spinning wildly despite no sound coming from the engine behind. Hit Girl checked the small boy that she had shielded – he was shaking with fear, but he was alive and unhurt. Hit Girl checked her own armour and body to find herself just as alive and unhurt.

Hit Girl yelled out as an electronic pulse sounded in her earpiece.

"Okay, I'm alive!" she yelled out.

Safehouse F

Kick-Ass had never been happier as he ran for Hound.

"Ambulances are rolling," Abby confirmed. "Petra is on scene and searching for Hit Girl."

"Any idea what the aircraft is?" Stephanie asked.

"I'm just obtaining the callsign from Air Traffic Control and then we'll know. . . got it . . . that's weird," Marty replied.

"Well?" Stephanie prompted.

"Callsign: JUSTICE – only, JPATS don't use L-100s; they use 737s and DC-9s."

"I smell a rat," Stephanie said. "If it involves Chicago and Hit Girl, plus it looks odd – then it's probably an attack."

"She's good," Marty chuckled. "She has her Mom right down."

Marquette Park

Hit Girl handed the small boy off to a CPD officer and she moved to the rear of the aircraft, looking for survivors.

She was shocked to find orange-suited men bailing out of the aircraft en masse.

"Battle Guy, I have fucking inmates pouring out of this aircraft!"

"Err, yeah – it's flagged as a JPATS flight, but there's something off about it, according to the little runt," Battle Guy replied.

Hit Girl smiled at his reference to Stephanie.

"What's JPATS," Petra asked as she appeared behind Hit Girl.

"Justice Prisoner and Alien Transportation System," Psyche cut in from the Safehouse.

"Brighter than she looks," Petra chuckled.

"Bite me, Petra!"

"Shouldn't we be stopping them?" Petra asked, ignoring the power-crazed vigilante in the Safehouse.

"Yeah," Hit Girl said as she grabbed the nearest orange-suited inmate. "It's a fucking prison break!"

..._...

It was chaos. The prisoners had no problem getting away as Petra and Hit Girl did their best in the darkness amid the broken aircraft. CPD did their best, too, not realising until it was too late what was going on. There were enough problems helping the injured and it was ultimately left for Petra and Hit Girl to make their way into the aircraft and make contact with the flight-crew.

As they made their way down the aircraft from the rear, they found three inmates who had not survived the crash landing. One US Marshal was dead, but two more were alive but injured. Petra finally forced open the door to the cockpit and she found both pilots very much alive.

"Nice landing!" she commented.

"Any landing you walk away from. . ." the co-pilot replied with a grin.

Safehouse F

"Well, we're done for the night," Mindy commented as she finished putting her damp hair up into a pony tail. "When you guys have an update for me, just call. You coming, Steph, or are you waiting for Dave?"

"Would you mind if I waited for Dave?" Stephanie ventured.

"No, Steph – you've done well, tonight."

Stephanie beamed at the compliment and she ran off towards the galley.

"Night, Abby. Night, Marty."

"Night, Mindy – stay away from falling aircraft!" Marty laughed.

"Funny. . ."

Mindy climbed into her Jaguar and she made her way to the surface.

West 31st Street

There had been no real reason to stop, but Mindy did, her senses were still on overdrive as she headed home.

She eased the Jaguar to a halt and jumped out, running across to the sidewalk and stopping to check out a dark shape at the base of a wounded tree. It was a man! Mindy rolled the man over – he wore a smart suit jacket, a tie with an interesting pattern, plus dark trousers, and functional shoes. He was unconscious but otherwise breathing normally, despite the blood on his forehead. Mindy reached into the man's inner jacket pocket and she pulled out his passport – she blanched.

The man was British – that was obvious. The bigger problem, though, was the text beneath the Queen's crest:

QUEEN'S MESSENGER

COURRIER DIPLOMATIQUE

She quickly pulled out her cell and dialled Paul Murphy.

"Murphy, I need you, an ambulance with a crew you can trust, and Cathy. Meet me at West 31st and South Rockall and make it quiet!"

Murphy was well used to receiving cryptic instructions, and downright weird ones for that matter, from the short blonde woman with the murderous alter ego.

Chapter 310*: Diplomatic Bag

Tuesday, August 16th, 2016

The United Kingdom Scotland

"Jasper, it is five in the fucking morning!"

"Sorry, Keira, Cassie said you wouldn't mind the early call."

"Tell her, I love her," Keira growled.

"You, me, and Eric are flying to Chicago . . . in three hours."

"What!" Keira exclaimed as she bolted upright.

Southfield Letham

"I cannot believe that you woke us all up," Naomi groused as she leaned onto the kitchen table.

"It's not even six," Kaitlin added as she lay down almost on top of her cousin, her hair sticking up in every which direction.

"I hate you," Harper growled as she slumped into a chair, her top inside out.

"Not early-birds," Keira explained to Cameron and Natasha with a grin.

"You're going out of town and you need babysitters?" Natasha asked.

"We are not babies!" Kaitlin growled.

"We have three Predators that need minding," Keira explained. "The question is, Cameron, can you handle three little bitches?"

"I'm well used to bitches," Cameron laughed.

"I don't count," Natasha grinned.

The three girls gazed up at Cameron, their expressions showing that they had a lot of trouble to cause.

"I have the perfect solution, should three young ladies step out of line, even for a minute," Cameron commented as he delved into a kitchen cupboard. He placed onto the countertop, three very large rolls of silver Duct Tape. "If it comes to it, I tie 'em up and throw them into the stables until you return."

"You ever heard of 'child abuse'," Kaitlin asked sweetly.

"Normal children get abused – show me one normal child in this kitchen," Natasha challenged.

"Cunt!" Kaitlin growled.

"There will be none of that, young Kaitlin," Natasha said. "Mindy can now supply these in bulk. . ."

She produced a very large, pink-covered tin with two words printed on it: Swear Jar. Kaitlin opened her mouth to say something but she then thought better of it and she just scowled and allowed her head to hit the table top in disgust.

Keira laughed and she turned to leave.

"You know, Keira," Eric commented. "I don't think I have ever seen you happier."

Keira laughed.

"I was never happier than the day I discovered that my little sister was alive – now . . . well, I need a holiday from her!"

"Hey! I can still hear you!"

"See you in a few days, sis!"

Somewhere over the North Atlantic

"So – we need to recover a Diplomatic Bag?"

"Yes. The Queen's Messenger was attacked in Chicago and his two packages were taken. We have no idea what is in the packages, naturally, but they were double-sealed and hopefully still are. We hope it was just some jumped up junkie who thought he had something he could flog."

"Why me?" Eric asked.

"I'd have thought you would jump to go see Abby," Keira teased. "From what I've heard, you two. . ."

"Okay – no Abby talk, please. The question stands."

"The bags have trackers and I have the codes. Unfortunately, the codes are classified NOFORN and UK EYES ONLY. You can use them with Abby, but the codes must be destroyed once you are finished with them."

"And me?" Keira asked.

"This is a British operation, which means UK EYES ONLY – I have received special dispensation from the Foreign Office and Number 10 to go after the Diplomatic Bags using Vengeance with assistance from Fusion. Mindy understood the significance of the Queen's Messenger and she called Commander Lawrence. To be honest, I've never seen HMG move so damn fast! Mainly, we need British operatives to recover the Diplomatic Bags and keep them in their custody until they can be delivered safely."

"Delivered to where?"

"That would be classified at this point. However, we will have you, me, Cassie – and to some extent, Joshua Williams and young Stephanie. No foreign national is to be allowed contact with those Bags. Oh, yes, almost forgot. There will be a surprise for you when we land – you might want to read this on the way."

"Okay. . ." Keira brightened up considerably when she saw what Jasper had to offer her. "Techs!"

"What about Electra? She has no idea. . ."

"Mindy is telling her, right about now," Jasper replied.

Later that morning

The United States of America Chicago, Illinois Safehouse F

The young girl was thoroughly speechless as she received the personal tour from her friend.

"Well, Stephanie, you've definitely landed on your feet instead of your arse, like usual."

"Thanks, 'lectra."

Mindy studied Electra for a moment.

"You wanna take part?"

"Me?"

"Yeah, you."

"What can I do?"

"Electra!" Stephanie exclaimed. "You are a goddamn Predator, so act like one!"

"Yes, ma'am."

"Wildcat's old combat suit should fit you. That should give you some protection. We'll partner you with Jackal."

"You called, oh mighty purple leader."

Mindy rolled her eyes and gave Joshua a glare.

"Hi Electra, I am Joshua."

"Another Brit – cool."

"How about we get you changed and then you can show me what you can do," Joshua suggested.

Some hours later. . .

Chicago Midway International Airport

"Good flight?"

"Yes, thank you," Jasper replied as he shook hands with a tall man wearing a dark suit.

"You sure your pilot can fly it?" the man asked.

"Our pilot can fly anything," Jasper laughed as he waved Keira into the hanger.

"She's more beautiful than the tech manuals showed," Keira commented as she smiled broadly. "She warmed up?"

"Fully pre-flighted and ready for launch, I've been told, ma'am."

The Bell 429WLG was a medium-lift helicopter with seating for nine, including the pilot, or pilots. Keira was to fly the 3,400-kilogramme, twin-engine helicopter, solo.

"Not the stealthiest of colour schemes," Keira pointed out dryly.

The helicopter was painted in what Bell called: Yellow, with Prominent Orange Accent and Ferrara Red Flashes. The registration was N96543 in orange on the yellow tail. Keira climbed into the front right seat while Jasper and Eric climbed into the rear where six leather seats were fitted in two rows of three, facing each other. Both buckled in facing forwards with Jasper seated behind Keira on the right side. Both followed Keira's example and pulled on headsets.

"You two boys ready for some flying?"

Jasper and Eric looked at one other and they each exchanged a worried glance as the helicopter smoothly lifted into the air.

Safehouse F

Stephanie smiled down at her young companion.

Electra was feeling distinctly embarrassed as she stood before her friend. She had just been stripped and then re-dressed in a state-of-the-art combat suit.

"It's a little big in places but it'll do the job for the moment," Stephanie commented.

"You sure she won't mind?"

"No, I won't," came a voice and Electra span around to come face to face with the fully armoured Wildcat.

"I outgrew that suit a long time ago – you're welcome to borrow it."

"Thank you . . ."

"Megan – it's good to meet you, Electra," Megan said as she pulled off her mask and offered her right hand.

"Pleased to meet you, Megan – Steph has told me so much about you."

"I wouldn't listen to anything that girl says – she's full of it!"

"Don't I know it," Electra replied with a laugh. "She should spend more time on the toilet; then she wouldn't be so full of shit!"

Megan laughed out loud as the pink-faced Stephanie scowled.

"When you two bitches have quite finished, may we?" Stephanie demanded.

"Let me help you mask up – Stephanie knows shit about putting on a combat suit correctly," Megan grinned.

..._...

Jackal paused to take in the sight before him – it was his worst nightmare!

"Two of you?" he drawled through his electronically enhanced speech.

"Fear us!" Wildcat growled.

"What do we call you," Jackal enquired of the shorter 'Wildcat'.

"Me? They call me Rigour – fear it, Jack-ass!"

"Just great, another mouthy bitch – as if I didn't have enough to handle," Jackal commented dryly.

"What?" Wildcat enquired. "You can't handle two little girls?"

"Bring it on, bitches!"

..._...

As Shadow watched from the walkway she nodded approvingly at the way Rigour moved. No wasted movements, just carefully planned steps. Rigour anticipated Jackal's movements – not that Jackal was really trying; that was obvious. He could easily kill both girls with a single punch each but no, he was teasing them, letting them both get in close. Jackal was telegraphing his actions so that Rigour could pick her next movement. Shadow was surprised that Wildcat was playing along – she was far too skilled to fall for one of Jackal's ruses.

Then Shadow braced up as somebody slapped her armoured backside. She turned, expecting it to be Mindy. . .

"Daddy!"

Shadow ripped off her mask and she jumped into her Dad's arms, wrapping her legs around his waist.

"Hi, sweetheart – missed you."

"I've missed you, too – what are you doing home? Mom never said. . ."

"Mom didn't know – I've just come from there. . ."

Chloe pulled back from her Dad and stood back on her own two feet.

"You two had sex, didn't you?" It was more statement than question.

Ryan Bennett just smiled.

"That's disgusting."

"Where do you, think you came from, honey?"

"It's just weird knowing your parents are still . . . you know."

"It's just as weird knowing that my little girl sleeps with a young man in her bed, each night. I'm sure you two don't just sleep the night away."

Chloe's face went very red as she glanced down at that very same young man.

"Who's the extra Wildcat?" Ryan asked as he followed his daughter's glance.

"That, would be Electra."

"Another Predator?"

"Yes – Cassie's Dad found her."

"Hello, Commander Bennett!"

"Cassie – please . . . call me Ryan."

"Yes, sir . . . Ryan, sir!"

"How's your old man?"

"Doing good – he's down in the Falklands at the moment, on patrol."

"That should keep him out of trouble for a while," Ryan chuckled.

That afternoon

The Farm

"Wow!" Megan exclaimed as Mindy braked the Jaguar to a halt outside the house.

Megan dived out, along with Anne-Marie and Danny. Stephanie took her time but her eyes were also drawn to the yellow Bell helicopter which sat in the back paddock behind the barn. Stephanie scowled as the chilli red Mini John Cooper Works Clubman All4 skidded to a halt barely six inches short of Stephanie's left leg.

"Chloe!" she yelled as the aforementioned teen leapt out of her car.

"Sorry – kind of got away from me," she grinned unapologetically.

"She wanted to scare you," Saoirse commented as she climbed out from the other side with Cassie and Electra appearing from the back.

The final arrival was Joshua, in his blue crystal Audi S3. His passengers were Dave, Abby, and Curtis.

"Chloe, you are a fucking nutcase and how you did not get a ticket, I will never know," Abby proclaimed.

"I am what I am!" Chloe laughed as she walked over to the house.

"Hello, Mrs Lizewski," Jasper announced as he walked towards the veteran vigilante.

"Hello, Mr Collins," Mindy replied, shaking hands.

"Please, call me Jasper."

"Of course, Jasper; please call me Mindy. This is my husband, Dave."

"Hello, Dave, we haven't met. Jasper Collins."

"Those three are our children – Stephanie, Anne-Marie, and Daniel."

"Very sweet – the latter pair; I haven't met the illustrious Stephanie, who I have heard so much about."

"Stephanie!"

"Hi, Mum."

"This is Jasper Collins. He works for MI-5 and is he currently the HMG liaison for Vengeance."

"Hello, Mr Collins," Stephanie said, offering her right hand with a grimace of pain.

"A very polite young lady. I was very sorry to hear of your injury but I am very pleased to see you up and about. I speak from experience when I say you have a rough road ahead of you," Jasper replied as he gently shook her proffered hand. "I am looking forward to working with you."

"This, is Joshua Williams," Mindy said as Joshua came over. "He is our resident Brit, other than Stephanie. He is at your disposal, Jasper."

"Hello, Mr Williams – may I call you Joshua?"

"Yes, sir, you may," Joshua replied as he shook hands.

"Your father was a Royal Marines Commando?"

"Yes, sir."

"Hi, Mindy," Keira said, giving the purple vigilante a hug.

"Good to see you. You enjoying the new toy?" Mindy asked, tipping her head towards the helicopter.

Keira just smiled enormously. Before she could reply, there was an enormous squeal and everybody turned to see two people rolling about on the grass.

"I think Abby just found Eric!" Megan pointed out unnecessarily.

"Why's Eric got his hand down Abby's pants?" Anne-Marie asked innocently.

Mindy's eyes went wide and she quickly pulled Anne-Marie and Danny towards the house where she handed them over to Jack Bay.

"Things are getting a little X-rated out there, Jack," Mindy explained before she headed back out to watch the show.

That night

Glenview The British Sector

"He's a great guy."

"Yes, he is – without Josh, I might not have been able to cope with this grand new life of mine," Stephanie replied.

Both girls were in bed, staring at the ceiling. Neither, were able to get to sleep, so they talked. For Electra, she was over the moon to be able to talk with her one friend that she had in the world – well a friend from her time with Urban Predator.

"I still can't believe that you got taken in by the very person that you and me were trained to emulate."

"Tell me about it – I feel a little like Cinderella."

"Almost every night, since we parted, I've thought of you, Steph. . ."

"Err, 'lectra, I'm not into girls . . . OW!"

Stephanie rubbed her left side where Electra had just dug two fingers in."

"That was not what I meant, Stephanie!"

"Sorry. . . At least once a week, I endure a nightmare where I see everybody that I've ever known. I see the faces of everybody that I've ever killed. I see the faces of everybody I cared about – and yes, that includes your face. I relive killing that Newton girl in the shower. I relive killing those kids in the woods. I relive seeing those twenty-five dead bodies in Milan – those Predators who were murdered. I relive. . ."

Stephanie stopped speaking and Electra turned to look at her friend. She was shocked to see tears spilling down the ten-year-old's face.

"I relive people trying to kill me. I relive those moments of hell while I was Predator. Then I relive those more recent events. Those when I was so scared either for myself, or for somebody I cared for. I've been humbled by those who care for me. I struggle to understand why anybody cares for me. I still barely understand why Dave and Mindy added me to their family. When I was hospital, everybody cared about me – even my Mum did things that I never thought she would do for me. I never knew that anybody could love me as much as Dave and Mindy do."

"Stephanie, you're a good person, despite what they turned you into."

"No, I'm not; I'm damaged. All I am able to do is kill and maim. I deserved to be strapped. I deserved to be thrown into the Cage. I deserved to have Saoirse try to kill me. I deserved to be shot."

"Please, Stephanie, don't be like this. You are a good person and do you want to know why?"

Stephanie did not reply, she just stared up at the ceiling as the tears continued to fall. Electra sat up and glared down at her friend

"You are so stupid, Stephanie. Where should I start? You helped a little girl to fight back against those who saw her as an easy target, despite knowing that it was against the rules. You helped protect the same stupid little girl to survive against all the odds. You gave that little girl a reason to live. That's just the stuff I have experienced. This afternoon, I spent a lot of time talking with Joshua. He related a lot of stories about you. He told me about a young nine-year-old girl who held out the hand of peace to her nemesis. He told me about a young nine-year-old girl who allowed somebody who had tried three times to kill her, to sleep in this very bed. He told me about a young nine-year-old girl who risked her own life to save her little sister that she had only known for a few weeks."

Stephanie still did not reply.

"You're the perfect role-model, Stephanie Lizewski. If I could pick any person in the world to be my big sister, it would be you."

Stephanie's tears of self-loathing rapidly came to a stop. Stephanie blinked at Electra and then she pulled herself, rather painfully, up into a sitting position.

"Thanks, 'lectra. You may only be young, but you always tell it like it is. Sorry for being a pussy and embarrassing myself."

"We all need somebody to talk to. I care about you Steph – I owe you my life."

The following morning
Wednesday, August 17th

The Farm

"Hello?"

Joshua and Stephanie were in the basement at the door to the Alternate Command Center. Joshua exchanged a worried expression with Stephanie as they moved further inside. They both froze as they heard giggling.

"Is it safe for an innocent ten-year-old girl to come in?" Stephanie called out.

"Yeah – is it safe for me, too?" Joshua asked.

The giggling became louder and Joshua easily recognised Abby's giggles.

"Abby, are you decent, I have no desire to see your naked butt, this morning."

"Joshua!" Abby growled as she appeared from behind a server cabinet, her face a little too pink.

"Morning, people," Eric commented as he came out from behind the same cabinet.

"You two finished?"

"We might go back later to . . ." Abby said before she drifted into an embarrassed silence.

"We've finished the uplink for the helicopter and we're about to go fit the tracker into the cockpit. Keira should be able to start searching for the transponders by ten o'clock," Eric said quickly as he covered for Abby.

"Well, once you have the tracker done, you can go back to searching inside Abby for her transponder," Joshua deadpanned as he and Stephanie left the room in disgust.

They both grimaced as they heard the giggling start back up again.

Later that morning. . .

Keira was in her element, two-thousand feet in the air and heading in a broad circle around the city.

Beside her, sat Megan who was grinning broadly. She was holding a tablet computer which was scanning for the Diplomatic Bags' transponders via the helicopters recently augmented systems.

"You enjoying yourself?" Keira asked the young girl.

"It's so awesome!"

"You looking forward to tomorrow?"

"Damn right!"

"What is he going to be? Eleven?" Keira teased, knowing full well the correct answer.

"Curtis is going to be twelve, thank you, very much."

"What about you?"

"I've gotta wait until next month. . ." Megan responded dejectedly.

"It'll be worth the wait," Keira laughed. "Anything on that scanner?"

"Not a thing," Megan replied.

"Foxtrot, this is Five-Four-Three, over."

"Five-Four-Three, Foxtrot, go ahead, over."

"Foxtrot, you got anything on the transponder? Over."

"Negative, Five-Four-Three," Abby replied from Safehouse F. "Change heading to zero-one-one for fifty at two-thousand. Acknowledge, over."

"Foxtrot, Five-Four-Three acknowledges course change to zero-one-one for fifty nautical miles at two-thousand feet, over."

"Good hunting, Foxtrot out."

"Holy shit!"

"Huh?"

"Down there – that plane that almost bumped off Mindy; it's ginormous!" Megan exclaimed. "I can't believe she survived; everything is spread way the hell all over the place."

"I've seen bigger . . . plane crashes are like that – kind of reminds you of your mortality," Keira commented.

"Tell me about it – a few months back, I might have made a joke about Mindy being invincible; but I now know that none of us are invincible, our armour is just that, armour, not some magical force that can prevent all injury.

"Yeah, I heard about your visit to that hell hole."

"Gotham – changed my life, in many ways. Mom says that I went away a little girl who enjoyed being an all-powerful, invincible vigilante and came back a mature young lady aware of her mortality. I also experienced my first orgasm, but that's another story."

Keira laughed.

"You know, Megan, with everything I've heard about you, I can only hope that Harper grows up to be even half the young woman that you are."

Megan did not know what to say, so she said nothing as they continued their flight.

Two-thousand feet below and a little to the left. . .

Bell 429WLG N96543

"How strong is this transponder, Jasper?"

"Strong enough, I hope. Battery is supposed to last up to a week – we should have received a GPS signal pinpointing its exact location, but. . ."

"Must be underground, preventing a satellite fix – hopefully, the transponder signal is good enough to escape the building it is in," Mindy concluded.

"We can only hope. Anyway, I'm enjoying being driven around Chicago by the purple menace, herself," Jasper chuckled.

"I am not a menace!"

"There are certain people in HMG that would say otherwise, good lady."

"Okay, sometimes I leave a mess behind; I understand that, now."

"Sometimes!" Jasper deadpanned. "London is still recovering from your first visit to the UK."

"Actually, that was not my first visit to London – but I'm saving that story for another day."

"I look forward to hearing about it, one day."

That evening

Glenview

"That smells wonderful – Mindy cooking?" Jasper asked as he walked in the front door, accompanied by Cassie and Keira.

"Hell, no!" Stephanie commented dryly. "You want food poisoning?"

"You want to lose the use of your other arm?" Mindy asked sweetly.

Stephanie grinned back, just as sweetly.

"Love you, Mom!" she preened in an appalling American accent.

Jasper laughed.

"Sorry, Jasper, these Predators are completely nuts," Mindy commented dryly.

"Well, we were modelled on you, Mommy," Stephanie continued in the same accent.

"Jasper, I am going to go reduce the number of kids I have, by one; back in a minute. . ."

Before Mindy had finished speaking, Stephanie, realising she was pushing her luck a little too far, had beaten a hasty retreat and vanished.

"She's a great kid, Mindy – considering what she's been through, it's good to see her laugh," Jasper said seriously.

"I know; we love her very much . . . despite her nutty behaviour."

"Evening, Jasper – girls," Dave called out from the kitchen.

"Hi, Dave!" Cassie and Keira called as they went through into the living room where Danny handed each girl a cold bottle of Budweiser.

"Thank you, Danny; you're a real gentleman," Cassie told the boy.

"Oh, for heaven's sake," Anne-Marie muttered as her brother's face went pink.

"Shut up!" Danny growled as he headed back into the kitchen after handing Jasper another bottle of Bud.

"Ignore her, Danny – females like to be annoying; I speak from experience. . ."

"He has a valid point, young Daniel."

"I am not going to raise to the bait, Lizewski," Mindy offered as she sat down on a couch with her own bottle of Bud.

..._...

An hour later, they were all seated around the table in the dining room and enjoying Dave's steak with jacket-potatoes and salad.

"This is good. . ." Electra announced as she jammed another chunk of steak in her mouth.

Stephanie's reply was unintelligible due to her own mouth being just as full. In the kitchen, Sophia, Razor, Kiara, and Horatio were digging into their own steaks – uncooked of course. For a change, Anne-Marie was very quiet as she dug through an enormous plate of food. Danny was the same, enjoying each and every morsel.

". . . To be brutally honest," Cassie was saying, "meeting Hit Girl and her team was very scary; they all had a reputation – and not a good one depending on your point of view. Then, I found out about Stephanie and I wanted to do something to help. That was why I became Nemesis. I've never regretted it, not for a moment. I firmly believe in what Mindy does and I am very thankful that I have been able to do something to make this world a better place.

"Well said, Cassie," Keira said with an approving nod.

"I agree," Jasper added. "While I was dubious and very sceptical about what I was being asked to coordinate, I now see that both Fusion and Vengeance have a place on this earth. I've seen the 'Hit List'. . ."

"It is not called that!" Mindy fumed.

"It's appropriate," Jasper persisted. "You should actually publish it; you'd have many assholes pissing themselves with fear."

Mindy had to laugh at that. Stephanie grinned her own approval. Dave nodded.

"We'll see," Mindy offered with a grin. "I've yet to meet your own family, Jasper – maybe you should bring them over."

"I would love to."

..._...

After Jasper, Cassie, and Keira had headed back to their hotel, Mindy peered in on the two resident Predators in The British Sector. Both girls were in bed, talking animatedly.

"You know, Steph, maybe we should get you a guest bed – one of those fold up, Z-bed things," Mindy commented.

Stephanie looked over at Electra who was almost completely hidden but for her head. They exchanged glances and Stephanie whispered into Electra's ear, both girls then began to giggle insanely. Mindy rolled her eyes and coughed pointedly causing Stephanie to sort herself out and look up at Mindy.

"Nah, we're good, thanks."

Mindy chuckled.

"Just don't go all lesbian on me, girl – we've enough of those damn things as it is!" Mindy growled as she headed out of the room accompanied by another round of girly giggling.

The following morning
Thursday, August 18th

Glen Oak Drive

"Morning, Saoirse. How are you, this morning?"

"Very good thanks, Aunt Emily."

Emily waited for Saoirse to sit down at the kitchen table and help herself to some cereal before she spoke again.

"I've noticed that Morgan has been very different, the past few days – is there anything that John and I should know?"

Saoirse laughed but she finished pouring the milk into her cereal before she responded.

"She has changed – only I think it best if she tells you."

"Tells you, what?"

"Morning, honey," Emily said to her niece.

"Hi Aunt Em.," Morgan replied happily. "Morning, little sis."

"Morning, crazy bird – Aunt Emily would like to know why our shy little Morgan isn't so shy anymore," Saoirse explained giving Morgan a meaningful look.

Morgan flushed bright pink and her courage vanished.

"You tell her, please?"

"Stupid bird!" Saoirse growled. "Okay – you remember that thing I did, last week?"

"You demoing a strip search? Yes, you told us about it."

"Well, this little birdy insisted on going through the same thing as me – I found it humiliating as hell, so I warned her, but. . ."

"I had to. . ." Morgan muttered to her astonished Aunt.

"Well, she put on one hell of a show! Curtis and Tommy almost fell off their seats as they stared at Morgan's bare breasts – they did fall off when she bared the rest! I have to admit, it was damn hot!" Saoirse explained.

"Morgan – I'm impressed; I would never have thought that you could strip naked before an audience . . . well done!"

"Thanks, Aunt Em., I had to put my shyness behind me . . . it was so embarrassing, but the response from the boys – well, it was awesome!"

"You're growing up into a fine young woman, Morgan – don't let anybody tell you different," Emily said, giving Morgan a hug.

Keira was airborne by nine, that morning.

Beside Keira for the search, was Curtis . . . and Megan with Electra. While Curtis had the left-hand seat, the two girls sat in the back, chatting like they were long lost friends.

"What's it like being twelve, Curtis?" Keira asked.

"Surprised I made it, to be honest. But it's cool – I feel older."

"Has Megan had her wicked way yet?" Keira laughed.

"Don't you dare answer that question!" Megan cut in.

The grin on Curtis' face told Keira the answer.

"Steph was right; you two are a pair of dirty fuckers!" Electra commented.

"I . . ." Megan began before she was drowned out by Curtis.

"We have the transponder!" he almost yelled.

"Where away?" Keira demanded.

Chapter 311*: Retrieval

That afternoon

Thursday, August 18th, 2016

Safehouse Zulu

"Not bad, Mindy," Jasper mused as they entered the Command Centre.

"It's our emergency bolthole. We took cover down here after Steph was shot. The planning facilities are better here than at Fort Fusion."

"So, where is the package?"

"To be honest, it'd be easier to recover from somewhere pleasant, you know, like: Tehran, Tripoli, Baghdad, Mosul. I suppose Englewood is better than Riverdale, but it's gonna be hell," Mindy growled.

"Hit Girl a little out of her depth?" Jasper chuckled, then he saw Mindy's expression. "Just kidding!"

"Englewood has the forth worst crime index in Chicago – just ahead of West Englewood. Englewood defines 'beneath the poverty line'. Due to families not having enough money to get through each month, loan sharks breed like rats. Let's just say that none of our people go there alone, period. I wouldn't even feel safe in broad daylight with the armour-clad, battle-tank, Kick-Ass behind me with his AA-12!"

"Somebody call?" the aforementioned husband of Hit Girl asked.

"We were just discussing Englewood and what a lovely place it is. . ."

"Did you suggest Syria as a safer destination for a holiday?" Dave quipped.

"Okay, I get the drift!" Jasper exclaimed, slightly maddened by Mindy and Dave's light-hearted antics, despite the seriousness of the situation.

Mindy took the hint and turned serious.

"We can't just roll-up and kick-ass – there're families all around and they live in shitty clapboard properties, so we can't risk sending high-power bullets all over the place, nor can we trust the opposition not to flood the place with flying lead. The top 9 shittiest neighbourhoods in all of Chicago are on the southside. As you can see from the map, Safehouse Alpha is in the south; we anticipated the crime-level and setup our first place there. Even Safehouse F is in the south for the same reason."

"What are those marks, just north of Englewood?" Jasper asked.

"That place, there, was Chris D'Amico's HQ – we took it out. Just to the north-west of that is where we recovered Tommy from the Russian Mafia and we had a little altercation which resulted in yours truly being rescued by a very young Shadow and Jackal. Riverdale, right down here, is where I lopped of Chris' head – we also have Safehouse W down there, with the Vigilante."

"Okay," Dave said. "We need to put people at Alpha and Kilo. We're going to stir up a shitstorm as we march into that hornet's nest. Jasper, they don't like us, down there. Things will go bad, real quick, and we'll need to bug out and we could have the very hounds of hell on our tail."

"It wouldn't surprise me if FEAR and her cohorts put in an appearance, just to cause some shit," Marty commented.

Jasper pulled a face.

"You lot are full of fucking good news!"

"We try," Mindy grimaced.

That afternoon

Glenview

"This is really humiliating. . ."

"You want to shower on your own?"

"Do I want to, yes – can I manage, no."

"Mom's had enough of bathing our battered sister, so we volunteered. Mom says the moaning and complaining has started to grate," Anne-Marie explained for Electra's benefit.

Stephanie glowered at her sibling as she walked into her bathroom to find Danny adjusting the shower.

"I'll leave you three in piece – call me if you need anything," Danny suggested as he walked out of the bathroom, closing the door behind him.

"Stop grumping – you said you were fed up with Mom bathing you; so, you're stuck with me. Danny and me both promised to do everything we could to help you. I'm sure Electra wants to help you, too."

Electra nodded as she indicated Stephanie's underwear and then pointed at the running shower. Stephanie just dumped her knickers on the floor and stepped under the hot water.

"I know – and thank you."

The already naked Anne-Marie followed and Electra quickly shed her own clothing. Both girls helped wash Stephanie's hair – actually washing it for her as Stephanie only had the one usable arm, and apparently, washing your hair with one arm was not the easiest thing in the world. To make it easier for the much shorter Anne-Marie, Stephanie sat cross-legged on the floor of the shower. The shower itself gushed water over a large area, soaking the three of them, the shower well able to hold the three youngsters and then some.

"Mom says you're doing well," Anne-Marie commented. "We were pleased to hear that."

Stephanie grimaced.

"Everything still hurts – just don't tell anybody I said that, 'kay?"

"We're sisters, that means we look after each other – I'll not tell anybody, I promise."

"You know I always keep your secrets," Electra added.

"You're a good kid, Anne-Marie – even if you are a little crazy – and thanks, 'lectra."

Anne-Marie laughed as she continued to wash Stephanie's hair.

"Anne-Marie, I'm surprised you haven't commented on my scar – Harper, Naomi, and Kaitlin were very quick to notice and comment," Electra said.

Anne-Marie looked uneasy as she took in the long scar which stretched across Electra's torso.

"I know that Steph is uncomfortable with people commenting on her scars, so I didn't want to say anything."

"You're a really good sister, Anne-Marie," Electra said with all sincerity.

"Thanks," Anne-Marie mumbled.

Ten-minutes, or so, later, Stephanie emerged into her bedroom where Danny sat on the bed – he was smiling.

"You look better, Steph – your clothes are ready for you; sorry, it's a skirt again," he advised his sister.

"Thanks, Danny."

After Anne-Marie and Electra had helped Stephanie dry off, Danny passed over Stephanie's knickers.

"You know, Mom was right – you do seem to have some boob. . ." he commented.

"You fucking arseholes been discussing my chest?" Stephanie demanded angrily.

"It was mentioned," Danny admitted before his eyes went wide. "Hey – what's that?"

"What's what?" Stephanie asked as she stood up, her knickers part-way up her legs.

"Is that pubic hair?" Danny enquired and Electra giggled.

"Maybe!" a now very red-faced Stephanie exclaimed as she pulled up her knickers one-handed.

"You have a long way to go to catch up with SD," Danny pointed out and Anne-Marie joined in with the giggling.

"Any of you tell anybody. . ." Stephanie threatened.

That evening

Safehouse F

"Hey, Steph, congratulations," Lauren smirked as she passed the younger girl.

"What?"

"Danny says you've started growing some pubic hair," Lauren explained as she attempted to keep a straight face.

Stephanie's face went pink but then it darkened as it turned red with anger.

"Danny says . . . DANIEL!"

The aforementioned boy paused as he heard the bellow from the opposite end of the Safehouse. His eyes went wide and he bolted as Stephanie began to charge toward him.

"I am going to make you bleed, boy!" she bellowed.

"Mom!" Danny yelled as he tried to reach the steel steps beside the Command Centre but failed as Stephanie intercepted him. "Please. . ."

"Grow a fucking backbone, Daniel," Stephanie seethed as she produced a trio of matching titanium throwing knives. "You know what a eunuch is, Danny-boy?"

"No . . ."

"You know what a penis is?"

"Yes . . ."

"A eunuch has had his cut off, along with his fucking balls!"

Eight-year-old Daniel had gone very white.

"Stephanie!" Mindy said as she arrived on the scene; she studied her daughter and then she smiled. "Stop fuckin' with the boy; you're a nasty bitch!"

Stephanie's shoulders sagged.

"Aww, I was having fun!" Stephanie exclaimed.

"Daniel – have you learnt your lesson?" Mindy asked of her son.

"Yes, Mindy."

Stephanie's three titanium throwing knives had vanished and she stepped forwards to give her flinching brother a hug.

"Is your mouth getting you in trouble again?" Anne-Marie demanded of her brother.

"Oh, yeah!" Daniel muttered as he allowed Stephanie to give him a hug.

"He's a sweet little brother," Stephanie grinned as she released Danny but then she punched him, very hard on his left arm eliciting a yell of pain from the boy. "I'm hungry. . ."

"You lot are bloody nuts!" Jasper commented as the crowd broke up.

The following evening
Friday, August 19th

Safehouse K

The activity the previous night had been constant as equipment was moved between the Safehouses in preparation for the night's operation.

Then, almost the moment dawn had broken that Friday morning, several members of the team had executed reconnaissance runs of the area. Marty and Abby had wired up four vehicles with cameras allowing a full three-sixty-degree view as the vehicles were driven on different plates and by different people to assuage any suspicion.

Keira was airborne, confirming the transponders exact location and obtaining up to the minute, high-resolution aerial images of the immediate area surrounding the target property.

Absolute secrecy had been maintained throughout, but Mindy knew that the moment they deployed, the news that Fusion was out in force, would get around the city in no time. Therefore, disinformation was the name of the game.

Mindy dialled a special number and spoke the moment that the call was connected.

"Fortune, this is Minotaur. Hit Girl will be at West Garfield Park, tonight."

Mindy cut the call after she heard a curt, "Good."

..._...

Vehicles, weapons, ammunition; it had all been relocated to the correct locations from whence it might be called upon as required. Every member of Fusion was busy checking their own personal equipment, and they were ready to leave at a moment's notice.

Hit Girl turned to the assembled vigilantes and she began to speak.

"Tonight, we face a difficult task. For the sake of secrecy, many of you have no idea what it is that we seek. Do not take this as any reflection on your skills or your integrity. This secrecy was enforced from the highest level of the British Government. You all know that we have a heavy British contingent with us for the operation. Due to their British status, Psyche and Jackal have already been read into the operation. Jasper, otherwise known as Sleuth, is here as a representative of the British Government to ensure continuity of custody for the items that we seek. Nemesis and Scorpion are here to fight while Q will provide technical support when he is not checking out Hal's peripheral interfaces."

There was muted laughter and a grimace from Hal, currently ensconced at Safehouse Zulu with the aforementioned Q.

"At least we don't have to put up with the sexual innuendo and heavy petting!" Battle Guy grimaced from Safehouse F where he was on watch with Psyche.

"Due to this recovery operation being complicated enough, Nightmare will be in charge of our decoy operation. She has been briefed independently and her job, with her team, will be to distract FEAR or any one of the various cunts who want nothing more than to disrupt our operations. Nightmare, is your team ready?"

"Yes, Hit Girl," Nightmare called from Safehouse F. "Rigour, Venom, and Bane are ready."

"Rigour?" Trojan enquired.

"Rigour is very new, but her competence has been vouched for by Psyche – and who am I to argue with the most famous Predator ever!"

"The more you feed her ego – the worse the little bitch'll become," Foxtail groaned to general laughter.

"You go for it, Rigour!" Psyche called out from off camera.

Rigour was wearing Wildcat's old armour, but to anybody looking, they would see Wildcat. Rigour was to ride Psyche's Honda (with switch plates) for the night's operation, while Venom and Bane would deploy in Hound as overwatch for the younger vigilantes. Nightmare would be out on her own motorcycle for the very first time.

"Nightmare – time for you to depart; stay safe."

"Yes, ma'am!"

..._...

"Talk about polishing an ego; every time I get Hit Girl's feet firmly on the ground, somebody has to re-inflate the damn thing!" Kick-Ass grumbled as Hit Girl threw a full magazine of nine-millimetre rounds in response which he easily deflected with the armour on his lower right arm.

"The guy with the big mouth and the big muscles will lead Alpha Team. With him, will be Shadow, Wildcat, and Trojan. I trust that the big guy can control both Shadow and Wildcat, assuming that Wildcat can keep her claws off Trojan for a few hours!"

"Such a funny bitch!" Wildcat growled.

"You think you can control me," Shadow purred as she looked up into Kick-Ass' eyes.

"Feel free to belt her, Kick-Ass," Jackal called over the comms.

Shadow glared at the screen showing Safehouse Alpha, her mouth hanging open. Hit Girl chuckled before turning serious.

"Bravo Team, consisting of the number one vigilante here. . ."

"Me?" Petra grinned.

"You think too much of yourself," Hit Girl retorted. "As I was saying before I was so rudely interrupted by Miss Petra, my team will consist of Mist, Miss Petra, Nemesis, and Eisenhower."

A sharp 'woof' was heard from the armour-clad hound as Kick-Ass made his own comment.

"An all-bitch team!" he quipped.

"Oh, yeah!" Mist agreed.

"Fear it," Nemesis added.

"Both Alpha and Bravo will depart from Safehouse K and approach from the north, Alpha on South Damen and Bravo on South Ashland. Charlie Team consists of Jackal, Foxtail, Raven, and Splinter. As we know, Jackal is well suited to handling spirited females, and Splinter will take no shit. Charlie Team will depart Safehouse Alpha and come up South Ashland from the South. In support, we have Delta Team which consists of Hawk, Lynx, and Medic – now that is a bitch team!"

"You got that right, queen bitch!" Lynx growled over the comms.

"Delta will depart from Safehouse W once the operation is underway – they will be in Titan. Echo, consisting of Scorpion, Sleuth, and Leon, will be in support and flying from Safehouse W. Echo will be the extraction team and they will take custody of the packages and fly them offshore to where Neptune, Ares, and Athena will be waiting in Vigilante. Vigilante's mission from that point is classified. Okay – time to tell you all what is at stake.

"The other evening, after somebody dropped a Hercules on top of me, I came across a Queen's Messenger who had been mugged. His packages had been stolen – by whom, we have no idea. To be honest, we don't think they really know what they have in their custody. Those Diplomatic Bags are deemed sacred British territory and the contents must not see the light of day outside of a British facility. The British Government has entrusted Vengeance to recover those packages and they have authorised Vengeance to seek assistance from Fusion. We will not fail in this operation. We cannot fail in this operation. Get to it, people and stay safe," Hit Girl concluded.

Everybody began to move, heading for their transport.

West Englewood

Okay, West Englewood was not exactly deemed the number one part of Chicago to live in.

However, for most of those who lived there, they had no choice. Their incomes were low, so therefore, they could only afford cheap housing for their families. About the only thing that West Englewood ever came top in, was in the local crime statistics. The Chicago Police Department only went there in numbers. The place generally had its own form of justice operated and interpreted by the gangs which ran the neighbourhood. Somewhere in the region of 35,000 people lived under the gang's thumb.

To the east of West Englewood lay the neighbourhood of Englewood which was only marginally worse than its more well-off neighbour and it also supported several gangs who saw the neighbourhood as their own territory.

Fusion and Vengeance were quite literally walking into a potentially explosive, simmering warzone.

Nine-thirty

The late hour had been selected to minimise those innocents that might be still wondering the streets.

In theory, the only people out should be those undertaking dubious and most probably illegal activities that might normally have brought themselves to the attentions of Fusion, anyway.

Alpha Team, in Sentinel, pulled onto West 66th Street and loitered outside Harper High School, only a couple of hundred metres away from their destination.

Bravo Team, in Brute, pulled onto West 66th Street from the opposite end and pulled over onto some waste ground.

Charlie Team, in Iron Hide, pulled up outside the Sir Miles Davis Academy on South Paulina Street.

The other teams deployed to their start points, ready to move on command.

"All teams, this is Foxtrot," Psyche began as the final teams checked in. "Standby to move on my command."

Everybody was focused on their own individual tasks as they prepared for the power-hungry ten-year-old to set them loose on West Englewood.

Meanwhile. . .

West Garfield Park

"Tell me, sis, why are we out here babysitting a rookie and a Yellow when we could be part of the real party?"

Venom laughed.

"Bane – you can be such a disagreeable bitch, sometimes," Venom suggested to her twin.

"I can hear you, Bane – I may have been a Yellow, once upon a time, but now, I am just as much a Predator as either of you two bitches."

"Sorry, Rigour, I just miss being part of the action – I meant no offence," Bane conceded.

"None taken," Rigour replied.

"Okay, guys, let's focus, please," Nightmare suggested.

"Not a bad idea," Rigour cut in. "We have company."

..._...

FEAR frowned as she turned onto North Karlov Avenue and only saw two motorcycles, and one armoured SUV. She recognised the body armour of Wildcat, plus one of the newer vigilantes, Nightmare. Nobody stepped out of the SUV, so FEAR had no idea how many were in there, nor who, but nonetheless something was off. She turned to three of her armour-clad henchmen.

"Mop these up and then follow on."

FEAR and her entourage of henchmen turned and headed south, leaving three men behind who climbed off their motorcycles and faced the two young vigilantes. Nightmare did the same, swinging a long leg off of her brand-new Aprilia Shiver 750 ABS motorcycle in a dark and light grey digital urban camouflage. She was quickly joined by the much shorter Rigour.

"Bane, Venom – you stick with your doughnuts; we'll handle this," Nightmare ordered.

..._...

The three men were quite large, and each wore body armour.

For Nightmare, it was just another night out in Chicago, but for Rigour, it was something quite different to what she was used to. Her last 'fight to the death' had been months before and she had been a relative novice to fighting. Since then, though, the nine-year-old had improved her skills, and as she gauged her opponents, she advanced, drawing the Wakizashi which she had been loaned from the Fusion armoury from her back.

All three attackers drew their own blades – full-sized Katana swords. Nightmare had recently graduated to her own melee weapon and as such, she drew her Tanto. Rigour moved in first, Nightmare acknowledging the Predator's greater experience with a blade.

Safehouse F

"This is Psyche . . . sound off, people!"

"Q is a go."

"Hal is a go."

"Battle Guy is a go."

"Alpha Team is a go," Kick-Ass announced.

"Bravo Team is a go," Hit Girl advised.

"Charlie Team is a go," Jackal called.

"Delta Team is a go," Hawk responded.

"Echo Team is a go," Scorpion added.

"Vigilante is a go," Neptune concluded.

With a nod from Battle Guy, Psyche triggered her microphone.

"Fusion, Vengeance . . . standby . . . Echo Team: Scramble. Alpha Team, Bravo Team: Deploy archers. Charlie Team: Cover Alpha and Bravo. Delta Team: Be ready to roll. All Teams: Stay safe!"

Battle Guy stared up at the large screens, each showing multi-coloured dots as Fusion and Vengeance members deployed on the darkened streets.

West 66th Street

Shadow went first, her compound bow held tightly in her left hand.

Behind her came Wildcat as her close support. Kick-Ass and Trojan ran across the street and took cover behind the parked vehicles. Their movements were mirrored by Hit Girl, a compound bow in her left hand, with Mist as her close support. Petra and Nemesis ran down the street, taking cover behind parked cars as Eisenhower followed along behind sniffing for any danger. After having driven a couple hundred yards closer, Jackal, along with Foxtail, Raven, and Splinter ran up South Paulina Street to provide support from the south.

Shock and awe was to be the theme for the night's activity.

6558 South Paulina Street

The property was about ninety to one hundred years old.

The upper unit was occupied by one Hector Raymond. Hector was in his early forties, slightly overweight, with a little Mexican ancestry. He ran the 'Cortez Street Gang' and he ruled everything between South Ashland Avenue and the north-south railroad tracks beside South Bell Avenue. The north and south boundaries of his 'territory' were West 59th Street and West 74th Street.

The lower unit housed his goon squad during their nightly activities. That night, about a dozen were present, offloading their cash and picking up their next load of drugs. The CPD rarely came within two blocks of the premises despite being well known for the activities that went on there. Several of the neighbouring properties were also part of his 'estate', housing what he called his 'soldiers' plus his 'women'.

The 'Cortez' were very real and very well equipped. They were also very well connected and just across the 'border' at South Ashland Avenue, lay the neighbouring 'territory' of the 'South Side Stones' which covered a very similar number of blocks. The 'Stones' was run by Phillippe Estevar. For years, the two groups had been at each other's throats, quite literally. However, there was an uneasy peace between the two factions which, at times, lent itself to mutual support.

That night was a classic example of détente.

..._...

Hector Raymond was doing very well off his nightly drug and loan shark activities. But then, something very different had dropped into his lap. At first, he had been very apprehensive about what he considered to be as safe as a live hand grenade, but then, he figured, nobody would ever find it – he just needed somebody to be able to check for boobytraps and then he could make tens of thousands, maybe even hundreds of thousands.

In a cupboard, sat a pair of 'very hot' packages, currently unopened due to the twin seals on each bag. Neither had been tampered with as there were major concerns on the British using boobytraps. Yes, he was fully aware of what he had custody of and yes, he was fully aware that he potentially held a pair of very hot potatoes. A 'specialist' was on his way to ensure that the bags were safe to open and then Hector would find out what he had and then what he could ask for the items in monetary value.

"Hector!"

"Ramon?"

"Phone call from Estevar."

Hector took the offered cell phone.

"Phillipe, Hector. . ."

"You have visitors – Fusion!"

"Fusion!"

Before Hector could drop the call, he heard breaking glass coming from the windows and a pair of objects thudded onto the carpet at his feet. Seconds later, the flash-bang devices detonated, closely followed by several more detonations on the floor below.

Hector struggled to focus, his ears ringing. He tried to reach for the pistol which lay on the table a few feet away, but he was totally disorientated.

All around him, his men were trying to recover.

..._...

Outside, Hit Girl, Shadow, and Nemesis free-climbed up to the upper balcony where Shadow pulled open the doors to allow Nemesis and Hit Girl to make their entrance.

There were seven men in the room as Hit Girl and Nemesis burst inside. Most were struggling to regain their feet and were scrambling for weapons. They were rapidly disarmed and kicked unconscious as the two vigilantes swept through them. Shadow remained on the balcony, watching for movement on the street below.

Hit Girl moved on with Nemesis, searching room by room. Beneath them, they heard gunfire and the sounds of bodily contact as Kick-Ass and his team swept through, making their own search of the lower unit.

"Over here!" Nemesis shouted as she opened a cupboard in the master bedroom.

Hit Girl ran through and she smiled as she laid eyes on the two white sacks, both imprinted with:

HM

DIPLOMATIC

SERVICE

"We have the packages!" Hit Girl radioed. "Seals appear intact. Echo, move in for pickup – we're headed for the evac point."

Nemesis grabbed the two packages and carried them towards the staircase where she found the imposing armoured bulk of Kick-Ass waiting. He provided escort as Nemesis carried the packages down the stairs and towards the exit. That was when all hell broke loose. . .

"All Teams, this is Jackal – we are taking fire, multiple gunmen coming up West 66th from the east."

Echo Team

"All Teams, this is Scorpion, we have armed men moving in from the east end of West 66th – they have vehicular support."

The gunfire below looked like fairy lights twinkling in the darkness but Scorpion was not deceived, she knew a battle zone when she saw it. The primary landing zone (LZ) was intended to be the road junction of West 66th and South Ashland but the incoming gunmen made that impossible and suicidal. The secondary LZ was a seven-hundred-metre dash north up South Ashland Avenue to the MTA Green Line Station parking lot.

Scorpion remained high enough to not draw fire but low enough to be able to monitor the situation before and ready to dive for the MTA and the pickup when required.

West 66th Street

As per usual, all had gone to shit, Hit Girl mused to herself.

The last thing they needed was a running gunfight with a pair of notorious street gangs, but they had no choice as Shadow began to rain down flash-bangs onto the street below as a distraction while Petra and Mist ran for the armoured vehicles parked down the street.

Strangely, the gunmen swept past Brute without paying it a moment's thought. They also missed Petra as the veteran vigilante slunk down the sidewalk avoiding combat and thus avoiding discovery. She was finally able to climb aboard Brute and it was only when she started the large V8 engine and began to make for the firefight that she was discovered and gunfire began to strike the armoured SUV.

Mist was in the clear and she was the first to pull up outside the target property in Sentinel. Nemesis jumped in the back tailgate with the all-important packages. Hit Girl and Wildcat dived into the back seats while Trojan rode shotgun beside Mist. The remainder would await the next transport while providing covering fire for Sentinel.

Brute pushed through the gunfire and was soon passed by Sentinel racing in the opposite direction. Petra dived for her colleagues, putting Brute between them and the gunfire. Kick-Ass, Shadow, and Eisenhower dived aboard and they provided covering fire for Jackal and his team as they raced back to Iron Hide.

Junction of West 66th and South Ashland

As Mist put Sentinel in a sideways drift before powering north, heavy rounds began to strike Sentinel's armour plating.

"Fuck!" Hit Girl yelled as she recognised the men in the familiar body armour who were opening fire on them from behind parked cars.

"FEAR. . ." Wildcat growled, her tone full of venom.

"Keep going – ignore those bastards!" Hit Girl ordered and Mist rammed her foot down, unleashing the full power of the 6.2-litre V8.

West Garfield Park

Rigour was in her element.

As she focussed all her anger onto the first armour-clad individual, she savoured the thought of drawing blood. She missed the smell of fresh blood; it had always invigorated her. In her mind, she could hear her mentor guiding each and every movement of the Wakizashi, ensuring contact with each fluid movement. It was the first time, fighting in a combat suit and she liked it; she felt cocooned from the outside world and she felt invulnerable as she lopped off the man's right arm, which fell to the ground with a clatter from the blade still clutched in his lifeless hand.

The longed-for fountain of blood exploded out of the severed stump and Rigour grinned broadly as she turned towards her next target and the blade which came sweeping towards her head. The blades clashed and the man grinned insanely as he glared down at the diminutive Predator who moved deftly, dodging the long blade of her adversary as she strove to drive her own blade home. The man had seen her blade cut through his companion's body armour like a warm knife through butter, so he was careful not to misjudge the short person before him.

His partner was fighting somebody almost a foot taller and therefore much closer to his own height than the half-pint whom his colleague was fighting. Nightmare was doing well, despite it being her first night out armed with a large blade. Nightmare knew that she had been trained well by Foxtail and she was not about to let down her mentors. Her eyes took in her opponent and she kept an eye on the very sharp blade which was being thrust in her direction.

Then her attacker made a mistake.

..._...

Venom and Bane remained inside the armoured SUV watching the mini-skirmish unfold before them.

"She's actually really good," Bane commented as she watched Electra move, spin, attack, all without a single wasted movement. "She's no fucking Yellow!"

"Yeah," Venom agreed. "A very talented girl and very lethal. I will admit that Nightmare ain't bad, either. Never really trusted that girl, to be honest – even if Mindy went soft on her because she was raped. There's something disturbing about her."

"You looked in the mirror, recently, dear sister?"

"Looking at you is enough, Bane."

"Ooh – I think Nightmare has her man; he just fucked up; ow – there goes his thigh. Not a clean cut but I bet it stings a bit . . . nice follow through, straight to the heart."

"Don't need the damn commentary, Venom."

"Better than listening to your mouth flapping all night!" Venom hissed back.

..._...

"You know, you two can be really distracting," Rigour growled as she drove her right armoured elbow joint into the man's face and his nose exploded into a cloud of blood.

Without a pause, she swung her Wakizashi in a horizontal sweep and then she stopped and looked up at her opponent. He appeared to have paused, then he sagged to one side and his head seemed to slide in the same direction before it slid right off his neck and fell to the road. The severed head was quickly joined by the rest of the body which was pumping out copious amounts of hot, steaming blood from the severed arteries.

"Now that, was cool!" Venom commented with an enormous smile.

"Passable," Bane added with a sly grin.

"Tough crowd!" Electra commented as she wiped off her blade on her most recent kill.

"You're not kidding!" Nightmare added as she followed suit.

Junction of West 65th and South Ashland

Sentinel and her precious cargo were in trouble.

There, standing in the junction was none other than FEAR herself. She stood beside her Kawasaki Z1000SX Tourer, a one-metre-long tube to her right shoulder.

"Holy shit!" Trojan exclaimed as she identified the Russian-made RPG-27, single-use, rocket launcher.

Then, before FEAR could fire the rocket, she turned at the sound of an enormous roar and her eyes would have opened wide had she not been dazzled by the blazing headlights of the 8.5-tonne armoured truck which was heading directly at her. FEAR dropped the rocket launcher and dove out of the way just as the truck struck her motorcycle and all four gigantic Michelin XZL335/80R20 tyres tore into the once beautiful machine.

..._...

"I have been waiting so goddamn long to do something like that!" Lynx yelled. "Fuck you, FEAR – that's for my daughter!"

"You go girl!" Medic laughed from the passenger seat.

"Hey!" Hawk commented. "There's another one. . ."

Lynx chuckled insanely as she turned the wheel and aimed the monstrous truck towards the dark red Kawasaki Ninja ZX-10R with neon orange highlights. The motorcycle bolted forwards, but not fast enough.

"Damn!" Lynx growled as the front bumper caught the rear of the motorcycle a glancing blow, sending the rider flying across the intersection and the motorcycle skidding along behind in a shower of sparks.

"All clear, Sentinel!" Hawk announced as the armoured SUV sped past.

Chapter 312*: Defence One

Friday, August 19th

Echo Team

Sentinel could be seen below, making for the MTA Green Line Station parking lot up South Ashland Avenue.

Scorpion expertly brought the Bell 429WLG twin-engine helicopter down towards the LZ where she touched down at almost the same instant that Sentinel hit the parking lot. Sleuth leapt out of the cockpit and pulled open the rear hatch. Hit Girl had dived out of Sentinel and run around to the rear, heaving open the armoured rear door. Nemesis jumped out and turned to pull out the two large packages.

Just then, a large calibre round struck the parking lot, inches from Nemesis' left foot. Everybody dived for cover, but just as they did so, their earpieces crackled into life.

"Leon has the sniper . . . adjusting . . . round away . . . he's dog meat; one ex-sniper . . . all clear!"

Nemesis was hauled back to her feet by Hit Girl and she grabbed the packages before running for the helicopter with the rapidly spinning rotor-blades. Sleuth grabbed the largest package and pushed it into the helicopter before Nemesis dived in behind with the second package. Sleuth waved at Hit Girl as he closed and latched the rear hatch before he climbed back in beside Scorpion.

Immediately, the helicopter performed a combat take-off, powering forwards and upwards before skimming across the rooftops as it made for Navy Pier.

Navy Pier

"What are we doing here?"

Bill Wright had been dragged out of the hospital, just four hours previously. His concussion had eased and he was all but ready to head home. He was not happy; he had failed in his mission and he had lost his packages. Now, he was being dropped off in the dead of night, beside Lake Michigan by a pair of plain-clothes Policemen.

"We are about to make you, a very happy man," Paul Murphy chuckled.

Bill was not convinced, but his curiosity was piqued when out of the night came the blatant sound of a helicopter, but without the usual accompaniment of flashing strobe lights. The helicopter settled onto the tarmac and the engines immediately shutdown, the rotors spinning slowly to a stop.

The pilot stepped out, head encased in a black flight helmet. In the darkness, it was impossible to see into the shadows of the helmet. The pilot turned to face away from the water, an MP7A1 PDW to her shoulder. He did, however, notice the Union Flag on the pilot's flight suit, plus her callsign: SCORPION. Out of the rear of the helicopter came two people, one in body armour and masked, while the other wore a simple business suit with an English cut. The man strode forwards and handed over an identity card.

"Jasper Collins, Five. You are Bill Wright, Queens Messenger?"

"Yes, sir," Bill replied as he examined the identity card.

"You are among friends, Mr Wright. Apart from the Chicago Police Department, we are all British – these two are Scorpion and Nemesis. . ."

"Vengeance," Bill commented.

"HMG wanted its property back. . ." Jasper said as he motioned into the back of the helicopter.

Bill Wright displayed obvious relief as he instantly recognised his packages.

"Still sealed and unmolested. We are placing them back in your custody, Mr Wright. From here, you shall be taken across Lake Michigan to a pickup on the eastern shore. Good luck," Jasper finished.

With that, there was the sound of powerful marine diesels starting up and Bill Wright grabbed the two packages. He was escorted by Jasper aboard the Vigilante which sat in the water alongside Navy Pier. The man at the wheel wore a navy-blue mask and he waved as the packages were passed aboard into the hands of Ares who held them until Bill Wright was aboard before passing them off to him.

Jasper followed before turning and waving at Nemesis and Scorpion. With a roar, the Vigilante took off into the darkness, rapidly accelerating to over forty knots.

..._...

A little over eighty minutes later, Neptune eased back on the power and Vigilante settled back into the water.

"What are we doing here?" Bill Wright asked for the second time in less than two hours.

"You have a ride waiting for you, plus an escort," Jasper replied cryptically. "Welcome to Benton Harbour."

The Vigilante eased up against the steel pilings, a couple hundred yards inside the breakwater. Four men emerged out of the darkness and Bill Wright froze. The men wore combat fatigues and their faces were blacked out. In their hands, each carried an assault rifle across their chests.

"Good evening," came the challenge in a British accent.

"Hotel, Oscar, Four, Seven," Jasper called out.

"Six, Alpha, Foxtrot," the voice responded. "Lieutenant Jackson, Royal Marines Commando – let's move, we have a tight schedule."

Bill Wright and Jasper were hauled out of Vigilante and the packages were passed up and handed over to the Royal Marines. The sound of gas-turbines igniting rent the air as three Rolls-Royce Turbomeca RTM322-01 turboshafts increased speed. By the time Jasper and Bill had been led up the beach to the deserted parking lot, the Royal Navy Merlin HMA.2 helicopter had its rotor blades spinning at take-off speed.

The two men, plus the four Royal Marines climbed aboard and the giant helicopter instantly left the ground and turned north-west.

Safehouse F

It was a bunch of relieved vigilantes who returned to Fort Fusion, that night.

All, were tired, but all were pleased with the night's action. Even better, it had been one-hundred-percent successful. Mindy had announced that the Vigilante had transferred the packages and the courier to the Royal Navy for onward travel via helicopter to HMS Iron Duke which was alongside in Montreal, Canada. From there, the packages would be placed aboard a British Airways flight to London, Heathrow.

"Congratulations, and well done, to everybody," Dave called out. "Also, well done to Electra – two of FEAR's cohorts will not see the day tomorrow."

"Beginner's luck," an embarrassed Electra commented as Stephanie swelled with pride.

"You trained her well, Steph," Chrissy commented.

"She had no choice but to learn – and fast," Stephanie replied darkly.

"That sounds like an entertaining story," Saoirse said. "But maybe another night – let's get some kip."

"Yeah – I'm back on watch in a few hours. . ." Stephanie groused.

The next morning Saturday, August 20th

Eastern Chicago

Connor, Lucas, and Trinity were the best of friends.

They had been together ever since the first grade. Something had kept them joined together for the next eight years – much to the chagrin of their respective parents as the three restless youngsters had dreamt up ever more ludicrous schemes to keep themselves occupied. Their current escapade was exploring derelict buildings within the Chicago area. All three fourteen-year-olds were highly intelligent and they had spent time examining old plans of the city going back to the 1950s. That evening, they had found their way into (actually, broken into) an almost lost and forgotten underground facility.

They had read about it on some obscure website that hadn't been updated in over ten years. They had been able to pinpoint the location as being just off South Sacramento Avenue. After several days searching, they had finally found evidence of a concealed doorway, partially covered in concrete. So, they had toiled up that evening and then, after telling each other's parents that they were staying at the other's house for the weekend, they left their respective homes and met up at the 36th Street & Kedzie Bus Terminal.

..._...

The three teens had made short work of the thin covering of concrete and then they had found a steel door before them. That had taken quite a bit of forcing with a crowbar and the combined strength of each of them to pry it open just enough to squeeze through. Beyond that door, they found a concrete tunnel which ran for about ninety yards beneath a long abandoned rail track before it sloped steeply downwards and it made a sharp left turn and stretched for another fifty yards or so to where they found a second steel door – although it was more of a hatch, being only about three feet in height and raised about a foot off the ground.

"This is really creepy," Trinity pointed out as they sat down for a break and some chocolate.

"Trinity, you're scared of your own shadow," Connor laughed.

"You still sleep with a night-light, Connor," Lucas reminded his friend.

"It's there for safety – I don't need it."

Derisive but friendly laughter followed, echoing into the darkness.

..._...

The hatch had not suffered as badly as the first steel door, but it still took some effort to force it open.

"Where, do you think this goes?" Connor asked.

"No idea," Trinity replied as she swung her powerful flashlight in all directions looking for anything and everything.

"These tunnels are old – at least sixty years . . ." Lucas commented.

"You think there's a bathroom down here?" Trinity quipped.

"You're kidding me?" Lucas replied.

"I need to pee."

"Well, go find a corner to pee in, then."

Trinity headed off for a patch of darkness beyond the reach of the boy's flashlights – she did not trust them not to illuminate her in all her glory. Once she was certain that nobody was observing, she shrugged off her backpack and placed it down on the floor along with her flashlight. She unclasped her belt then pushed down her jeans and panties. She squatted down and with a sigh of relief, she released her bladder and then tried to ignore the sound her pee made as it struck the concrete floor below.

..._...

Connor and Lucas were exchanging crude jokes about their friend peeing – they could hear her, if not actually see her – when they heard a rumbling sound and then the tunnel shook and a cloud of dust billowed out from the direction their friend had gone.

"Trinity!"

"Trinity!"

There was no response from Trinity. Both boys rushed forwards, covering their faces with their jackets to assist their breathing against the clouds of dust which were billowing around them. When the boys reached the place where Trinity had been, they found her flashlight, the beam aimed at the ceiling.

"Here's her back pack," Connor called out. "Trinity!"

"She's gone. . ." Lucas said as he stared at the large pile of reinforced concrete and rock which blocked their path.

"We've got to find a way around this blockage – she's gotta be on the other side, Lucas."

The two boys turned back and they both began to search for another passageway.

Early hours of Saturday Morning

Safehouse F

All, was very quiet.

The Command Centre was empty, as could be expected at just after one in the morning. The only visible activity was the computers as they monitored, among other things, the Safehouse, the Safehouse entrances, and the Safehouse surroundings. A large 27-inch computer screen, off to the left side of the large space, was split into eighteen segments, each showing the feed from a security camera. The images changed every few seconds in a seemingly random fashion to show further images from around the Safehouse, and its exterior.

Then, one image froze as the computer system detected movement and an orange border began to flash, highlighting the image. The image automatically moved to one of the larger monitors and the view showed concrete and rock crumbling from the ceiling, plus something else falling into the subterranean tunnel. The image was labelled 'X422' and it showed one of the myriads of tunnels which ran beneath the City of Chicago, only a small portion of which were close to the Safehouse and therefore monitored by the highly-advanced security systems. The tunnel in question was located approximately eighty yards to the south of the Safehouse. The tunnel defences were part of the outer perimeter which protected Safehouse F and Safehouse E from attack.

Once the computer had confirmed a security breach, it began to execute a pre-arranged set of commands. The first was to notify everybody in the Safehouse that there was a potential attack underway: a raucous klaxon sounded throughout the Safehouse and red beacons began to flash in every space. The lights in the sleeping areas came on automatically, dazzling the sleeping – and very tired - vigilantes.

The computer system armed all primary and secondary protection systems and shutdown the access routes by dropping armoured steel covers over elevator shafts and staircases, sealing off the Safehouse completely.

Level 2

Abby awoke with a start at the sound of the klaxon.

She struggled to see as she was first dazzled by a bright flashing red light, and then by the harsh white light from above her as the strip lighting on the ceiling snapped to life. Once her brain had caught up with her hearing and her sight, she jumped off the top bunk and prodded the almost-awake Hailee into life.

"Defence One!" Abby yelled at Hailee and then at Morgan and Saoirse.

All four girls scrambled as they grabbed up their clothes and ran out of the bedroom.

As Abby, and the other girls burst out of their accommodation, Mindy and Dave burst forth from their own bedroom, with Danny and Anne-Marie close behind.

"Rogue, Ravage – get to the galley and stay there," Dave ordered.

"Yes, Kick-Ass," both kids replied dutifully as they ran for the galley, pistols ready in their hands.

Mindy ran down to the Command Centre, close behind Abby who immediately jumped into her chair and began to hammer away at her keyboard.

"Status!" Mindy ordered as the klaxon stopped its deafening roar.

"We have a breach in Sector Four – Inner Ring," Abby replied as she pointed up at the image: 'X422'.

"A cave-in?" Dave asked.

"Could be," Abby confirmed.

"We need to check it out," Mindy declared. "I'll go with Petra and Raven and we'll see what's going on."

"Psyche – I want guards posted at the entrance to Echo and the ladder below. Ensure that the trainees are safe; see to it," Dave ordered the girl as she entered the Command Centre, a pistol in her left hand and her mask in place.

"Got it!" Stephanie replied as she ran out of the Command Centre. "Wildcat, Splinter – mask up, you're with me. Nightmare, Torment, Rigour; get to the galley – ensure all are masked."

Mindy also ran out of the Command Centre, pulling her own mask into place.

"Raven, Petra – with me!"

Trinity

Trinity had no idea where she was.

Everything was dark and her body appeared to be on fire. Pain was everywhere and it became worse as she tried to move. Then she heard movement and voices. The voices were not of people; they were electronically altered. Her closed eyes caught the flicker of bright lights as the voices came closer.

"Definitely, a rock fall."

"Any sign of trouble?"

"Nah."

"Holy shit!"

"What?"

"I have somebody."

Trinity heard the unmistakable sound of a pistol being made ready and she forced her eyes to open. Her eyes went wide as in the bright, almost dazzling, light she saw the gaping muzzle of a pistol just inches from her face. Beyond the pistol, she could make out a purple mask and below that a dark grey uniform with a single silver star on the collar.

"Why are her pants around her ankles?"

Trinity kicked out, hitting the person, but she passed out with the pain of moving. She awoke a short while later as she felt herself being moved. She tried to move her head but it was secured tightly, as was the rest of her body. Then she felt a jolt and a sharp wave of pain which made her pass out again.

..._...

When she next regained consciousness, Trinity was being moved onto a bed and she felt her clothes being removed – she also heard real voices.

"She's got a lot of bruising to her legs, especially her thighs. Her stomach has a bad cut – that'll need stitches. I'll need to check her out fully before I can be certain there are no internal injuries. For now, it is unsafe to move her out of the Safehouse."

"Do what you can, thanks."

A masked face appeared.

"I'm just going to give you a sedative – you're in safe hands, Trinity."

Trinity felt the prick of a needle in her left arm and then as her eyes closed, she felt nothing.

Lucas and Connor

"I think we're getting somewhere. . ." Lucas huffed as he pulled open yet another steel hatch.

"These tunnels seem to go on forever – I have no idea which way is out, Lucas," Connor replied as he gave his friend a worried look. "What time is it?"

"A little after five in the morning."

"We've been wondering around for four hours?"

"Apparently. . ."

"Let's try down here – we've got to find Trinity. . ."

After about twenty yards, the boy's progress was stopped by what looked like a large box suspended between the roof and floor by four steel wires that held the box in the centre of the tunnel.

"What is it?" Lucas asked.

"Nothing good – if I had to guess, I'd say it was a mine of some sort; I've seen 'em in my computer games."

"What do we do?"

"I can't see any other way to go but past it. We touch any of those wires . . ."

"We can just slip through – I'll go first," Lucas said as he handed his backpack to Connor.

The boy was skinny, so he was quite well-suited to squeezing through the narrow opening. He felt really nervous, not knowing if the object was truly a threat or not. He pushed through with his head and right arm, then his right leg and finally the rest of his body and remaining limbs. The boy breathed out not realising that he had held his breath the whole time.

"Pass the backpacks through . . . good . . . now, it's your turn, Connor."

"Was it scary?"

"Yeah, it was," Lucas admitted.

Connor did exactly the same as Lucas, only his right leg caught on the wire.

"A red light is flashing!" Lucas almost yelled.

Connor froze as he also saw the pulsing red light.

"Oh, God. . ." he muttered.

Safehouse F Command Center

"Disarm the primary and secondary defences," Mindy ordered and Abby punched some buttons.

"Done."

"This is a fucking nightmare! We have a fourteen-year-old girl . . . could she be a Predator?"

"Checked over her body and I couldn't find a single mark of any kind," Cathy confirmed.

"Her name is Trinity Thompson," Abby reminded Mindy.

"Yeah, her . . . we can't move her to a hospital, neither can we keep her here – her parents will be worried sick!"

"Above my paygrade, Boss," Abby quipped in an attempt to put a different spin on things – the attempt failed miserably.

"This is bad, but I suppose it can't really get any worse."

"You're tempting fate, Boss."

"I know – thanks, Abby."

Lucas and Connor

"Where the hell are we?"

"Damned if I know."

"Whatever it is; it's lit – maybe it's a . . . I dunno."

The two boys were stood facing an aluminium duct which angled downwards into the floor. Through the vent, they could make out what looked like a changing room . . . a changing room? They had to be over forty feet below the ground – maybe the place was a left over from something; no . . . there was lighting and it didn't smell musty like the rest of the tunnels. There was no sign of any activity, so Connor reached down and he carefully lifted up the air vent.

..._...

Both boys dropped down into the changing room, leaving the air vent as they had found it. The two boys found themselves in the middle of a large room surrounded by lockers. At the far end, there were toilets and showers. Then Lucas read the names stencilled onto three of the lockers: FOXTAIL, PSYCHE, WILDCAT.

"Oh, fuck!"

"What?" Connor asked but then he followed his friend's glance and his face drained of all colour.

"We just found the Fusion hideout," Lucas commented unnecessarily.

"We are in so much shit," Connor muttered as he moved over towards the changing room door.

"Ya think!" Lucas replied, moving past his friend.

..._...

Lucas eased open the door and squeezed through. There was another door a few yards away: MEN. He looked up at the door from which he had just come: BITCHES. He smiled at the sign as he turned to his left and found another door. He eased it open, pulling it towards him. Directly ahead was a small glass enclosure. Past that, there was a large room with glass walls, full of computer equipment and large screens. As he watched, a girl, her head covered in a mask and wearing a dark grey uniform with a pistol on her left hip, walked out of the glass-walled room and headed down the . . . Lucas looked upwards and he could only describe it as a large cavern. He heard voices.

"Wildcat, Splinter – stand down and go get some breakfast."

"Thanks, Psyche," a female voice replied.

The two boys slunk out of the doorway but they suddenly stopped and both quickly slunk back inside as the girl came back towards them – her right arm was held in a sling across her chest. There was no sign that either of the boys had been seen. The smell of freshly cooked bacon was wafting around the cavern and all of a sudden, both boys felt very hungry.

"What do we do?" Lucas asked his friend.

"See those steps going up?"

"Yeah."

"Let's make a dash for them," Connor suggested.

"Then what?"

"We try and hide in one of those rooms up there," Connor said as he pointed to where doors were visible on the next level up.

"On three," Lucas said as he took a deep breath. "One . . . two . . . three . . ."

The two boys ran out of the doorway and towards the steel steps which ran up beside the glass-enclosed room filled with computers; three people were visible, all facing away from them. Lucas was in front and just as he reached the steps, one of the people in the glass-enclosed room turned to look directly at him. Lucas was instantly aware of the purple markings on the mask, not to mention the name tag on the woman's left breast: HIT GIRL. His legs went weak as he tried to run up the steps. He made it to the top, but Lucas never saw the pistol as it smashed into his face; he just saw blackness . . . and then nothing.

Connor was very scared. He had seen his friend fall at the top of the steel steps. All around him he could hear shouting accompanied by the pounding of running feet. A klaxon was sounding; the loud sound disorientating the boy as he ran the length of the cavern. He crossed what looked to be a large training mat and he came face to face with a short girl in a mask, her name tag read: WILDCAT. She pulled a device from a holster and aimed it at him. Connor instantly recognised the yellow device held by the young girl but before he could do anything, all his senses went wild as his body tensed up and he fell to the ground. . .

. . . then he passed out.

Chapter 313*: Rigour Rises

An unknown location in the USA

Early June, 2014

Stephanie was led into the Head Instructor's office. She stopped the requisite distance before the desk and she looked nowhere but straight ahead – she knew the drill.

"Walker!"

"Sir!"

"We have something nice for you – well, 'nice' may not be your first reaction. . ." the bastard chuckled heartily before he continued. "You're off to Virginia."

Virginia?

The State of Virginia

About forty miles, east-south-east of Richmond

Stephanie had absolutely no idea where she was.

She had spent almost two hours in the back of a C-130J Super Hercules, enduring the incessant roar of the four Rolls-Royce AE 2199D3 turboprop engines as the all but empty transport aircraft cruised at about 348 knots on an easterly heading. The landing had been rough and the deceleration spectacular. As the aircraft taxied to a stop, the rear ramp lowered. A few minutes later, a man in camouflage fatigues which bore no rank ascended the ramp and he beckoned for the eight-year-old girl to follow him. At the bottom of the ramp, the man pointed into some trees.

"Do you see that orange marker?"

"Yes, sir."

"There are others: follow them – DO NOT DEVIATE – after about a mile, you will find a hut. Inside the hut will be your kit – get changed, rest, get something to eat. The exercise has a start time which you will find on the instructions provided with your kit. Get going, girl – I would advise you to keep up a fast pace!"

The man chuckled as Stephanie began to run, fast, towards the orange marker at the treeline. She briefly looked behind her and she saw a long runway which pointed off towards some water. The airfield was otherwise surrounded by trees.

..._...

Stephanie was worried as she found herself running hard down the side of a tarmac road with trees either side of her. She ran past a couple of large buildings with cars parked outside but she saw no people. It was humid but under the trees, she felt cold, and she would have shivered had she not been perspiring from the running. The weather was not the best and there was a slight drizzle. Her trainers were soaked within a minute as she splashed through muddy puddles and her joggers were getting heavier and heavier as they absorbed more and more water and mud.

After running through more dense woodland and getting wetter and colder, she finally reached a T-junction with an orange marker which indicated she should turn left, which she did, and then very soon, she turned right and was much relieved to find herself outside a small wooden hut in a much larger clearing amongst the trees.

..._...

As Stephanie tentatively pushed open the door to the wood hut, she tensed up, ready for any attack on her person.

The hut was cosy – a fire was lit in the stone fireplace which provided much needed warmth to the young girl. After a brief pause beside the fire to warm her hands, Stephanie moved further into the hut where she found a single camp bed, a small kitchen that consisted of a sink, a microwave, and a kettle. Beyond that, there was a surprisingly modern bathroom with an electric shower, a sink, and a toilet.

The main open-plan area in the hut, which formed the living space, kitchen, and bedroom was lit by indirect spotlights and the three small windows had shutters closed over them. Stephanie closed and locked the door before she went over to a single wooden table that had two chairs. On the table was a single piece of paper with typed instructions.

...+...

Exercise Ratchet

The exercise will begin at 1900hrs.

At that time, you will be expected to be located at the rally point: Point Ratchet, which is a 0.9-mile hike away (as shown on attached map). Further instructions will be received at that time. The exercise will be physically strenuous and will have very few limits, other than a few basic safety factors.

You will find the necessary fatigues, boots, and weapons in your accommodation. Take the spare time to familiarise yourself with the map and your weapons. You are advised to get as much rest as possible as the exercise is not over until it's over.

NOTE: As of 1920hrs, you may be attacked at ANY time, WITHOUT warning. You will use any skills or weapons in your possession, or those which you may acquire during the exercise.

Emergency Code Phrase is: BLACK DEATH.

...+...

Stephanie was suddenly very annoyed as she looked up at the clock on the wall above the fireplace; it was a little after eleven in the morning! Those fucking bastards; there had been no need to run – none . . . at . . . all! All the way to the hut, Stephanie had been sure that she was being watched – those cocky bastards were probably laughing at her, every damn minute of the run.

Stephanie kicked off her ruined trainers and then pulled off her dripping joggers along with her equally soggy shorts and underwear. The sweat-top and t-shirt joined the pile of dirty clothes as Stephanie made her way to the shower.

..._...

Twenty minutes later, a much revitalised – and much cleaner – Stephanie reappeared wrapped in a dark green towel. She stopped at the camp bed. Laid out with military precision was her kit. She pulled on black underwear, a black T-shirt, black combat trousers, and black socks. The trousers were supplied with a webbing belt which she quickly fitted through the loops. She grabbed up the remainder of the gear, except for the boots, and then headed over to the table.

She placed down a shoulder holster, which would allow a small pistol to hang under her left arm. Space for two spare magazines was allowed under her right arm. The pistol was a Smith & Wesson M&P 22 Compact. Stephanie checked through the items before her but found no magazines and the pistol was unloaded with no round in the breech. She frowned but assumed that she would receive ammunition at the rally point. She strapped on the holster, then an eight-inch combat knife was inserted vertically into a scabbard mounted on the shoulder holster strap and aligned between her shoulder blades. A black combat jacket and a black woollen cap completed the ensemble.

After pulling on the waterproof, light-weight walking boots, Stephanie heated up a can of tomato soup in the microwave and buttered several slices of white bread. She sat down on a chair at the table and slowly consumed her meal. The hot shower, the soup, and the fire, all combined to warm her body ready for the night's action.

After the meal, Stephanie double-checked the locked door before she lay down on the camp bed and the young girl quickly fell asleep.

1850

Point Ratchet

The instructor smirked as he saw the diminutive girl approach.

He was impressed by her turnout. She was dressed correctly and she was black from head to toe. Her blonde hair was hidden under the woollen cap, and her pale face had been dulled down with camouflage face cream. The kid actually appeared deadly which surprised him.

"Okay, Walker. You have two targets for tonight. Target number one, is codenamed Fury. Target number two, is codenamed Blaze. You will find your way blocked by other targets of opportunity. If you are able to take down both targets, the exercise ends. The exercise will also end if one of the targets takes down you and the other target. You have the map – DO NOT go past the marked boundaries. Understand, so far?"

"Yes, sir."

"You will find caches of equipment out there which you can make use of, as you see fit. The caches will include food. Here are three loaded magazines for you – rubber bullets. If you encounter anybody wearing a white armband – ignore them as they are neutral umpires. There is no set time limit but there will be four timeouts of one hour each, per twenty-four-hour period. The first will be at 0600, tomorrow morning. Good luck, Psyche – you have ten minutes to get going before you are open to attack."

"Thank you, sir."

With that, Stephanie ran off into the trees.

There was not long to wait as a single blast of an air horn echoed around the woods.

Stephanie prepared herself for action as she headed deeper into the woods. She kept off both the paths and the roads, preferring the safety and comfort of the undergrowth. Her short stature assisted the eight-year-old to hide within the greenery which flourished in the cold winter's night.

Stephanie thought about her instructions. She had two targets that had to be taken down – not to mention God only knew how many supernumeraries to make her life more difficult. She had a distinct feeling that there would be no silver medal for second place – besides, Psyche only went for gold.

Snap!

Stephanie braced up at the sound – it was close.

The boy was fourteen and he had only been a Phase 3 Predator for a very short time.

The exercise was to be part of his training and if he did well, he would be advanced in his training – if he failed . . . he did not want to fail. He, and fourteen other Predators had arrived at the training area, the previous afternoon. All were either senior Phase 2 or early Phase 3. They had been issued combat clothing and weapons. Then had come the briefing and the issuing of maps and supplies.

He was determined to succeed – he had to succeed. . .

..._...

The undergrowth was thick and he had had to jump over a fallen tree trunk. He had heard the branch snap beneath his boot. He froze and quickly scanned all around him. Nothing – he was safe. . .

No – something was there . . . in the darkness. It was small – maybe a wild animal . . . it was! The 'animal' flew at him just as he drew his pistol. But his final sight was of the broad smile of his attacker and the butt of a pistol as it struck his left temple.

Stephanie frisked the unconscious boy and she liberated a second knife, three more magazines of rubber bullets, and his pistol.

She decided against taking the pistol as it was a large frame Glock and she did not need the extra weight, so she disassembled the weapon and scattered the parts all around her. Then, just for kicks, she kicked the boy between the legs and quickly moved off, away from the 'kill'. About a hundred yards to the west, she stopped by a tree, and she smiled. There, at the base, was a small pack.

After a quick check for tripwires or other booby-traps, she opened the pack and found a torch, three chocolate bars, and most importantly, a litre of water. After a quick swig of refreshing water, Stephanie slung the pack over her shoulders and headed off into the trees.

...#...

About half an hour later, Stephanie turned as she heard pounding behind her and it became obvious that somebody was blindly running through the trees with reckless abandon. Their loss, she thought; an easy mark! Stephanie slipped behind a tree and she became instantly invisible to anybody running headlong through a forest in the dead of night. As the runner came closer, she could hear . . . sobbing?

At the very last moment, just as the runner made to run past Stephanie's tree, Stephanie stuck out her left arm and the runner impacted the arm with her face and was flipped over onto her back. The scream had identified the runner as a girl – the size meant a short girl. Stephanie seized the girl and dragged her fifty yards to the east to avoid any immediate attack from anybody who had heard the girl's scream. The girl was wearing near identical clothing as Stephanie was but something did not seem right and on closer inspection, the girl was completely unarmed.

"Stop snivelling, you little bitch, or I'll throw you to the fucking wolves!" Stephanie hissed into the girl's ear.

The girl immediately stopped snivelling and looked up at her captor.

"Walker?"

Stephanie dropped the girl in surprise.

"Electra?"

"What the fucking hell are you doing here, Electra?"

"I don't know. They told me to board a plane and then I found myself handed a load of clothes and they told me to change. They threw me out of a car, just a few minutes ago. The darkness scared me – I ran."

"Okay – still doesn't explain your presence."

"I was ordered to give this to you," Electra said as she passed over a sealed envelope.

Stephanie grabbed the envelope, shoving it into a pocket, then she grabbed hold of Electra and they both ran two hundred yards or so to the north to where there was denser woodland. There, Stephanie stopped and they both sat down beneath a large fir tree. Stephanie shielded the torch before she turned it on and she looked at the envelope. The envelope was dark grey – ignoring the mud and tears – and it had a single word written on the front, in red ink: 'PSYCHE'. Stephanie ripped open the envelope. Inside, there was a single sheet of paper which she unfolded and then she began to read the bold, printed text.

...#...

If you are PSYCHE, continue to read this document.

If you are NOT then you are ordered to read NO FURTHER and you are further ordered to KILL the courier.

...#...

EYES ONLY: PSYCHE

1: It has been determined that the difficulty of your task should be increased.

2: You will take immediate responsibility for ELECTRA HAIG.

3: If you complete the exercise without ELECTRA HAIG, you will be deemed to have failed the exercise.

4: If ELECTRA HAIG is taken down, you will be deemed to have failed the exercise.

5: Failure to protect ELECTRA HAIG will affect your future as a PREDATOR.

6: You may make use of ELECTRA HAIG as you see fit.

...#...

Stephanie looked over at Electra as she turned off the torch.

'Those fucking bastards!' she thought.

"You are one lucky bitch, Electra," Stephanie whispered. "If you had found somebody else, they would have killed you. Instead, I have to lump your sorry arse about for the duration of the exercise!"

"Sorry."

"Don't be – we are at the whim of some sick bastards. Let me check-out your kit."

Stephanie stuffed the envelope back into a pocket and she ran her hands over Electra's combat trousers and jacket. Everything was being worn correctly and the boots were properly secured. The only issue was Electra's pale-skinned face which shone like a beacon, so Stephanie dug out some face cream and she applied it to the younger girl's face after removing her glasses.

"Can you see anything without those things?"

"Not really."

Stephanie chuckled and gave the girl a hug.

"You stick with me, kid – I'll get us both through this. Whatever you do, stay quiet, and you do exactly as I tell you."

"I promise. I won't let you down."

"You'll do anything I say?"

"Anything."

Sometime later. . .

Electra complicated things, no end!

Stephanie had water and she had food, but unless she could secure more, she would have to share what she had – even if she was not responsible for the girl, Stephanie would have still fed her and helped her.

"Right, you stick to me like fucking glue. I duck, you duck. I dive to the ground, you follow like your fucking life depends on it – 'cause it does."

"I understand. I'll do my best."

"Let's move on – we have some fucking bastards to take down."

..._...

It was getting darker and colder as the evening turned into night. The rain was increasing too just to make everything that little bit more miserable.

Towards ten o'clock, Stephanie froze and she groaned as Electra cannoned into her from behind. Before Electra could start to apologise, Stephanie placed a finger to the younger girl's lips. She then pointed into the darkness and Electra stared ahead before she nodded in understanding.

"I have an idea but you are not going to like it," Stephanie whispered.

"Don't worry; I've not liked very much of what has happened to me since I was taken four months ago."

"I'll go gentle, I promise."

"I trust you, Stephanie."

..._...

"Are you trying to get me killed?"

"Sweetheart, if I wanted you dead, I would have snapped your pretty little neck, hours ago. . ."

"I feel so much safer!" Electra growled.

"You got something better to be doing, right now?"

"Nothing that I can think of. . ."

"Get out there and start making a little noise – remember, a little noise."

"Okay – I'll do it."

Electra swallowed hard and stepped out onto a muddy path where she took a deep breath and looked in the darkness to where a shadow was crouched down.

"Oh, shit!" she exclaimed, just enough for the shadow to hear her and stand up.

Electra turned to run as the shadow bolted in her direction. The shadow did not get anywhere near her . . . instead, the shadow suddenly fell forwards and hit the mud. The shadow was a girl – about thirteen-years-old and very skilled but all her training seemed to vanish as her face was shoved into the mud by a size two boot. She fought to breath as mud went up her nose and into her mouth. Her legs kicked, trying to get purchase in the mud. Her hands flailed trying to seek her assailant. Then she began to suffocate in the mud.

Electra could only stare as Stephanie pushed down harder on her boot and hence the girl. The struggling began to get more spasmodic as the girl ingested more mud. Electra began to shake as she watched Stephanie kill the girl – Electra had witnessed a lot in the previous four months but never a murder right before her very eyes. Stephanie removed her foot after another minute and looked over at Electra.

"It had to be done – I want them to know that I will not be fucked with."

"I think I understand," Electra whispered as her shaking turned into sobbing.

"No – please, Electra; you need to fucking toughen up."

Electra sank down to the mud beside the dead girl.

"Ok – we need to talk. Can we just get the fuck away from the scene of the crime?"

..._...

Half an hour later, they both found some deep undergrowth and after Stephanie setup some 'early warning' traps, she sat down opposite Electra.

"You're a Yellow, right?"

"Yes – I was. . ."

"Somebody seems to think that you are more than that – can't think why; as far as I am aware no Yellow has ever become anything more . . . except maybe dead. It seems that as I have been training you to protect yourself, some funny fucker decided to have me train you some more. Now, I am going to train you to look after yourself, and not just because that benefits me, but because I want to show those fuckers that Electra Haig is more than just cannon-fodder. You can be more, Electra – and I hope that being more means that you'll get the chance to live, to survive. One day, I will take this organisation down, you mark my words. But before I can do that, we need to get through this whatever it is."

Electra nodded.

"Now, let's get some rest – I hope you don't fucking snore!"

..._...

It was very cold when Stephanie suddenly came awake. It was a little after four in the morning and the early strains of daylight were spreading through the woods. She carefully nudged Electra awake with a hand over her mouth.

"Morning," Stephanie whispered.

"Hi – I need to pee."

"Okay; so, do I – go pee over there and I'll keep watch," Stephanie said as she handed Electra a single tissue.

Once Electra had peed, wiped, and was struggling to pull up her underwear and trousers, Stephanie took one more look around before she slid down her own trousers and underwear. Electra giggled as Stephanie emptied her bladder into the mud, somewhat noisily.

"Stop it," Stephanie ordered as she grinned.

After the refreshing pee, they both shared an energy bar and took a long swig of water.

"We have two hours until the first timeout – we just need to last until then," Stephanie said and Electra looked hopeful.

Both girls froze as they heard a snapping sound and Stephanie dived forwards, a pistol in her hands. It looked like a boy and he approached their hiding place before he stopped, unzipped his trousers and pulled out his dick. There was another sound from a short distance away and something fast could be heard running through the trees – a rabbit. The boy shoved his dick back into his trousers and zipped back up before moving off towards a tree.

"This should be a good one!" Stephanie hissed into Electra's ear. "You stay hidden while I take him out."

Electra giggled quietly as Stephanie slid out of the undergrowth and closed the gap to where the boy, of maybe twelve years of age, was busy unzipping his trousers and reaching inside for his equipment. Stephanie was just a foot away when the boy unleashed a yellow torrent at the tree which he stood facing.

'What is it with boys and trees?' Stephanie thought to herself as she reached around the tree and while the boy was checking out his surroundings, she grabbed hold of his manhood, just as he was finishing his urination. The boy yelped.

"Make a sound and I fucking squeeze!" Stephanie hissed with an evil chuckle.

The boy froze, knowing that the small girl, who had seemingly appeared out of nowhere, quite literally held all the cards.

"Not even a handful – you'll never impress the girls; maybe I should just cut your dick off . . . not that you'd really notice the difference . . . ewwww!"

The boy's appendage was hardening – and getting bigger - as she grasped it and that fact freaked Stephanie out, no end.

"Stop it!" she ordered.

"I can't – it does that all on its own; maybe I think you're hot."

Stephanie growled as she felt her face getting very warm. With one hand occupied, she placed her pistol against his head. Don't fucking move.

"lectra!"

The seven-year-old bounded out from her hiding place and she scowled at what Stephanie was holding.

"Is he hard?"

"Yeah. . ." Stephanie growled back feeling just a little embarrassed. "Undo his belt and his trousers."

Electra followed instructions.

"Yank them down – take a knife to his boxers. . ."

Electra pulled the boy's trousers down to his ankles and cut off his boxer shorts, leaving him naked from the waist down. The boy was unable to run, so Stephanie released the boy's dick and wiped her hand on his thigh. She kept the pistol pointed at his head.

"Remove the rest, yourself – move!"

The boy reluctantly removed his upper clothing, dumping everything on the ground. Electra kept an eye on their surroundings while Stephanie kept her pistol pointed at the boy's head. When he was finished, she ordered him to remove his boots, trousers and socks. Once he was completely naked, she ordered him to spread his legs. Stephanie smirked as she ran the tip of her knife across his balls – his dick began to rapidly soften before her eyes. She back handed his equipment and as the boy fell to the ground, his hands between his legs, she placed the pistol at the back of his head.

"Run – now!"

The naked boy stood up, tears running down his face. He took one look at Stephanie's expression and he took off into the woods. Electra giggled for a moment, at least until she heard a gunshot and a scream.

"Okay – somebody is in that direction, so let's go this way," Stephanie suggested coldly after she had gathered some items from the boy's equipment. Electra now had her own small rucksack and some rations of her own, too.

..._...

The siren blasted out at six am and they both dropped to the ground. Both girls were exhausted but due to the freezing morning, they cuddled together as they each bit into a chocolate bar.

"How much longer?" Electra demanded.

"God only knows. We've only taken down losers, so far."

Both girls slept until they heard the siren and they began to hike off into the woods together. For the next hour, they saw nobody but Electra was not enjoying the early morning walk in the woods.

"I can't do this," Electra moaned.

After a full hour of it, Stephanie was fed up with the moaning and the complaining – it had finally got to the point where Stephanie was having murderous thoughts and visions of slitting Electra's throat and dumping her body. When it really was too much, Stephanie stopped and quick as a flash, she pinned Electra to a convenient tree by that very same throat.

"Look, you little fuck: I'm sorry that your life is so shit. I'm sorry that you got taken at such a young age. I'm sorry that you're stuck here with me in this hell hole. I'm sorry that our sodding lives are now intertwined."

Electra had tears streaming down her face as Stephanie spoke slowly and clearly mere inches from her face.

"You die, I die. I die, you die. We need to stick together to stay alive. I never wanted you here – I don't need you – nevertheless, I have no fucking choice but to lug your sorry arse around these godforsaken woods. Now the crunch question? Do you want to become what I am? Do you want to become a Predator? I have a feeling that is why they dumped you with me – so that I could train you."

Electra nodded and she wiped away her tears.

"Yes, Stephanie, I want to be like you. I want to walk the walk, talk the talk – please. . ."

Stephanie grimaced and then she slapped Electra hard across the face. Electra looked stunned; Stephanie had never hurt the girl up until that point.

"That's for complaining and making me into a bitch."

Chapter 314*: The First One Falls

Saturday, August 20th, 2016
Early Afternoon

Glenview – The British Sector

"Did you know she had a massive scar, Steph?" Kaitlin enquired over the video link.

Stephanie grimaced.

"Yes – I was there when she was wounded; I treated her. . ."

"With goddamn Duct Tape!" Electra exclaimed.

"I had nothing else to hand, but it stopped the bleeding and it kept your skinny arse alive."

"It did do that," Electra admitted.

"Electra won't tell us how she got the scar – she said it was too personal," Kaitlin said.

"Well, if Electra wants it kept a secret, then my lips are sealed," Stephanie commented.

"Tell them, Steph," Electra said.

"You sure?"

"Go ahead."

Anne-Marie, Danny, and Electra got comfortable in the bedroom while Kaitlin, Naomi, and Harper did the same, some 3,000 or so miles away.

"Well, you now know how Electra found herself in the middle of a Predator exercise – now, we go back to Virginia. . ."

Early June 2014

The State of Virginia
About forty miles, east-south-east of Richmond

Electra was very quiet for the next hour.

She kept rubbing her cheek where Stephanie had slapped her and sending dirty looks towards her mentor. Stephanie was oblivious to it as she kept a wary eye on her surroundings. She felt very tired, despite the short nap earlier. She was also very hungry but she did not dare dig into her food reserves any further until she was certain of being able to replenish the pitiful supplies she carried.

At least once she had had to stop Electra drinking too much. If she ran out of water, then she would dehydrate, not to mention that stopping to wee was also very dangerous – as that boy had discovered to his cost. Stephanie smiled at the recollection – it was the very first time that she had ever touched a boy down there. To be honest, it had felt weird – very soft, but then it had hardened but was still soft; a conundrum. But a conundrum for another time.

"Electra, snap out of it – or you're going to get us both killed."

The girl nodded and smiled at Stephanie. A forced smile, but still a smile, nonetheless. Then, out of the blue, a girl dropped out of a nearby tree and kicked Electra to the ground before turning on Stephanie.

"Who the fuck, are you?" Stephanie demanded.

"They call me Fury. . ."

Stephanie grinned – Target Number One!

The girl was taller than Stephanie but dressed in a very similar fashion.

Stephanie ran her eyes across the other girl, checking and absorbing everything about her. She appeared to be about a year older than Stephanie, with an experienced air about her. Her kit was all in order, including her weapons.

'What was so special about Fury?' Stephanie wondered to herself as she slowly moved to put herself between her opposite number and Electra who was struggling back to her feet.

Fury carefully placed her feet down as she moved, keeping a set distance from Stephanie and her eyes could be seen darting around, taking in everything and maintaining a good situational awareness. Then she smirked and Stephanie caught the indicator of an attack – but only just in time as Fury lunged forwards with lightning speed and drove a fist into Stephanie's left shoulder.

Stephanie was angry at herself for getting caught out but it had only been a glancing blow and nothing more than a little pain. Stephanie responded, kicking out and missing but following through with a punch of her own which caught Fury on the left thigh.

..._...

Electra was in pain. She was tired. The sun was beginning to push its way through the trees but she was still cold. She was also very hungry and on top of everything, she was now very muddy and she had a wet arse. Stephanie was fighting the girl who had appeared out of a tree. The other girl was bigger than Stephanie, and that fact alone worried Electra. She was also very aware of another fact which sat squarely in her mind: if Fury beat Stephanie then Electra herself would be next.

While she could defeat the odd Yellow boy, who tried to hurt her, fighting properly against a skilled Phase 2 Predator was not even remotely on the cards. The idea was so remote that it sat squarely on the dark side of the fucking moon. As Electra watched her new mentor fight, she watched taking in every movement, every punch, every kick, every word spoken, every insult passed. Watching and learning were something that Electra enjoyed. Normally, she would read books, but watching the real thing was unbeatable when it came to learning something new.

Stephanie was good, but Fury appeared better.

..._...

Stephanie went down into the mud and she struggled to regain her feet as she wiped the mud out of her eyes and her hair – her hat having come off much earlier in the fight. Stephanie knew that the fight had to end and soon – the noise was going to attract other interested parties and complicate things even further.

"Get up!" came a growl as Stephanie felt someone close by – Electra!

"I'm trying. . ."

Electra looked up at Fury as she closed on Stephanie, looking for the coup de grâce. Stephanie forced herself to stand but she slumped back down again – she was exhausted, but then so was Fury; the two girls had been fighting all out for over ten minutes. For whatever reason, Fury ignored the presumably insignificant Electra – to her cost, as Electra brought up the pistol which had been seized from the naked boy and she fired three shots into Fury's chest.

The older girl fell backwards with a yell but she quickly regained her feet and advanced on Electra who just froze and dropped the pistol, fear coursing through her. Electra fell backwards with her own yell of pain as Fury punched her hard in the chest. Electra was saved from any further harm when Stephanie kicked out and caught Fury on the right thigh. She followed through with a punch to the girl's abdomen and another to her groin. Fury doubled over in agony – then the siren went, signalling the end of the latest phase.

"Till later, bitch!" Fury growled as she hobbled off into the trees.

"Good fucking riddance!" Stephanie called after her.

By the time the siren went again, signalling the start of the next phase, Stephanie was feeling very low.

The pain. The bruises. The wet clothing. The mud. The hunger. It was all coming to a head and Stephanie was struggling against the tears that kept wanting to fall. She was dejected and unsure if she could survive the event. She knew full well that if she failed, then Electra would die. How could those fucking bastards put another's life on her shoulders – she was only eight-years-old for fuck's sake!

Stephanie had spent several minutes trying to compose herself. She had to survive or the past years of hell would have been for nothing. Electra was still pure; untainted by Urban Predator. Stephanie was determined for the girl to survive – Stephane so wanted to do something right for once that did not involve killing. Electra was going to be her personal project. Electra was going to be Stephanie's way to shove one up the instructors' tight backsides.

Electra was going to become a very special Predator.

..._...

"Are we going to get out of this alive?"

"Yes."

"You certain?"

"Electra, I will get you through this, I promise."

"Don't make a promise that you can't keep, Stephanie."

"This one I have no intention of breaking and I mean that."

Electra stopped and looked up at Stephanie.

"I believe you, Steph."

Then, Electra continued walking.

'Well done, Steph – way to make promises you can't keep!', Stephanie thought to herself.

Ninety minutes later, Stephanie had cause to be haunted by that very thought.

Fury was in a fury.

The ambush had been almost perfect and for a moment, Stephanie and Electra had had the upper hand – until Fury changed tactics and she went after Electra, knowing that Stephanie would have to protect her and thus let her guard down.

It was like fighting with a millstone around her neck. She could take Fury, but having to defend Electra at the same time. Stephanie's mental agility was stressed to breaking point as she watched for Fury's attacks and she watched for Electra. Then, the moment Fury changed tactics and went for Electra, Stephanie snapped. Her exhaustion was starting to take its toll on her mind and she struggled to process everything that her senses were telling her.

Then, in a single lapse, everything fell apart when Stephanie went down onto the ground, just as Fury span, her short sword sweeping in an arc downwards. Electra screamed and she fell backwards as the sword very briefly came in contact with the front of her body. The high-pitched screaming continued as the seven-year-old girl clasped her chest, rolling in the mud.

Stephanie leapt back to her feet and she grabbed up a fallen billy club from the mud – her mind was filled with the screaming Electra and what might happen if she died. For some reason, Stephanie found herself caring about the young girl and that gave her a feral edge in the fight as she struck out at Fury, parrying every strike from the sword with the club – which was getting very dented, to say the least, and probably would not last all that much longer.

With care and deft movements, Stephanie moved the fight closer to the fallen Electra and then, just as Fury moved into a very favourable position, Stephanie lunged forwards and Fury stepped to one side . . . but her foot came down onto Electra's left leg and Fury fell backwards. Stephanie kicked out, catching the girl on the jaw, momentarily stunning her. Fury dropped her sword as she fell to the ground. The girl scrambled to grab it but she screamed out as a knife was driven through the back of her hand and down into the earth.

Fury screamed. Electra screamed harder. Stephanie stared at the blade and the hand which held it. Electra released the blade and fell backwards cradling her torso again. Stephanie was stunned - but for a totally different reason. Electra, despite her injuries, had pulled a blade from her belt and she had stabbed Fury in her right hand, preventing the other girl from regaining the sword.

Stephanie picked up the sword and she was about to run it through Fury's still beating heart when bullets began to whizz past her head. She turned to see a large boy running towards her, a pistol in his hand. She grabbed hold of Electra, dragging her to her feet, and stowing the sword in her own webbing. She pulled her own pistol and fired off several rounds in the direction of the boy, putting his head down.

With a last kick at Fury, the two girls moved off into the denser undergrowth.

..._...

Stephanie dragged the girl through the woods.

Electra was stumbling, barely making sounds as her body struggled to cope with the trauma she had just endured. Stephanie knew that she could not go on forever, dragging a wounded seven-year-old through the woods of Virginia. It took a while longer to find a thicket where she could examine Electra in peace. She placed the young girl down and then began to remove Electra's webbing.

"No. . ."

Electra made feeble efforts at pushing away Stephanie's hands.

"We need to check your wound, 'lectra – hands off!"

Ignoring Electra's pathetic efforts, Stephanie pulled off Electra's webbing and then her upper clothing.

"Crap!" Stephanie announced to nobody in particular.

The wound was long – but mercifully, it was not very deep; just a flesh wound. Stephanie pulled down Electra's trousers and underwear to follow the wound. The wound extended from just above Electra's right breast, and down to her left thigh, passing just below her belly button. The wound seeped blood and the surrounding skin was covered in the same dried substance.

Stephanie had no wound dressings, so she did the next best thing. She poured water on the wound to wash it out – Electra screamed – before Stephanie dug into her backpack and produced a roll of the ubiquitous Duct Tape. Since becoming a Predator, Stephanie had learnt to love the silver fabric tape – you could secure people with it, secure explosives to a building with it, even waterproof your lunch with it. Stephanie firmly believed in the philosophy where if a roll of Duct Tape failed to fix the problem, you simply hadn't used enough of the stuff.

Electra's eyes went wide as she heard the tape being ripped off the roll and she began to complain bitterly as Stephanie went ahead and secured Electra's wound with the fabric tape from top to bottom, and she then added a few more strips at various strategic points for good measure. Finally, Stephanie stood back to contemplate her feat of medicine.

"Well, you won't bleed to death – and no shit should get into the wound either," Stephanie explained with a satisfied expression on her face.

Electra wiped away her tears and she groaned as she looked down her body.

"You taped me up?"

"Yup."

"With Duct Tape."

"A little unorthodox, I will admit, but the end result is good – you're going to have a scar that the boys will really like, but you're going to live."

"It hurts. . ." Electra said as the tears started again.

"Damn right it will, but you've just got to put up with the pain. We have a task to complete, you and I."

"I can't. . ."

"You have to – or we both die. Do you want to die?"

"No," Electra replied after a short pause.

"Well, let's get you dressed – you can't wonder around the woods with your fanny hanging out, now, can you?"

..._...

They had barely gone a hundred yards when a man appeared; he wore a white armband.

"Can she continue?" he asked as he looked over at Electra.

'Shall I put your dog down?' – that was how it had come across to Stephanie and she bristled with hate and anger.

"Fuck you! We're both able to continue – you are not killing either of us, this day."

The umpire grinned.

"Well, I applaud you for that. Due to Haig's wound and to your exceptional behaviour, so far, not to mention the behaviour of some of the other participants, you are all being granted an eight-hour stand down. A vehicle will be coming by when the siren goes at 16:00 to take you both back to your accommodation. You will find proper medical supplies awaiting you. The exercise recommences at midnight."

The man headed off into the trees, and five minutes later the siren blew. A camouflaged Humvee pulled up almost immediately and Stephanie pushed Electra and all their equipment into the back. Electra was sobbing almost uncontrollably with the pain as the vehicle bucked and rolled over the rough terrain.

The ride was over within three minutes as they were dumped, along with their kit, outside the hut where Stephanie had begun the whole escapade the previous morning.

16:08

When Stephanie entered the hut, she froze and quickly pulled out her pistol.

"Come out, with your hands in the air!" she called out.

She heard shuffling and then she was startled to see a small boy appear, he was about the same age as Electra, but with fiery red hair. He also wore yellow joggers with a matching sweatshirt.

"Hi, Electra," he said with a wave of his hand.

Stephanie scowled.

"Hi, Billy," Electra said before she collapsed onto the floor.

Stephanie swore as she holstered her pistol.

"What. . .?"

"Go lock the fucking door!" Stephanie ordered and she watched as the boy did as he was told. "Go turn on the shower, then make sure the kettle is full and put it on."

The boy followed instructions as Stephanie set to work stripping every item of clothing off the unconscious girl. By the time the boy had returned, Electra was naked and Stephanie was pulling off the. . .

"You used Duct Tape on her?" Billy asked as he stared at the wound.

"All I had – the wound isn't all bad, but it's going to hurt like hell for a while."

"What happened?"

"Fury happened. That bitch used that sword to slash her. I'm going to fucking kill the fucking bitch!"

Stephanie began to strip off her own kit as she talked. Once she was down to her T-shirt and knickers, she enlisted the not-so-eager Yellow to assist her with carrying Electra into the bathroom and then set to work washing the girl from head to toe. The camo-cream on her face took some work and Stephanie was glad that the girl was unconscious while the decidedly extensive wound was cleaned.

Once Electra was tucked up in the bed with fresh dressings on her wounds, Stephanie stripped off completely and took a shower herself. The hot water eased her aching muscles and while it made her feel better, it also made her feel drowsy. Once she had finished, she dried off and pulled on her decidedly unappealing underwear and settled down on a blanket to get some much-needed, uninterrupted, sleep.

"Rest up, kid – wake me up at nine; unless Electra wakes, then wake me."

The Yellow nodded his head and Stephanie was asleep within seconds.

Two miles away. . .

Fury was very unhappy as she carefully applied a bandage to her right hand after enjoying a hot shower.

It had been a clean wound; the blade had missed every bone in her hand, so it was expected to heal fully – in time. The wound would hamper the way she fought and she still had two primary targets to take down. Psyche had successfully put her down, despite her having to protect that Yellow welp.

Psyche! What a fucking name! The girl had passed up the chance to kill her to save herself and that Yellow welp. Her mistake, Fury was determined to put that bitch down, permanently. Fury was the best, which was why she was there. Blaze was obviously the best from his facility, and Psyche the best from hers – from the Phase 2 level, at least.

After getting something to eat, Fury lay down to get some much-needed rest.

21:00

Stephanie came awake as she felt a hand on her shoulder.

Then there was a scream as Stephanie flipped the hand's owner onto his back on the floor before twisting the wrist.

"Stephanie!"

Stephanie stopped and looked around. She released the boy's wrist and stood back. She then looked over at the glaring seven-year-old on the camp-bed.

"Sorry, kid – Billy, wasn't it?"

"Yes."

"Electra, are you okay?" Stephanie asked.

"Yes, I feel a lot better, despite the pain. Looks better without the Duct Tape, too."

Electra forced a smile but Stephanie could see the pain in the young girl's eyes.

"Let's get something to eat before we have to get kitted up and back out there."

Stephanie headed into the kitchen to make some soup, tea, and toast. Billy followed her.

"Why do you care? You're a Phase 2 and she's just a Yellow, like me."

"A very good question, Billy. I have no damn idea – but some fucker threw that young girl into this fucking exercise and I have to keep her alive. She might be a Yellow, but she's still a human being and so are you."

"Thank you."

"What for?"

"Treating me like a human being."

Stephanie smiled at the boy as she carried three sets of hot soup over to the table before she helped Electra to sit up in the camp-bed.

"Drink this – all of it!" Stephanie ordered as she handed the girl the steaming mug of tomato soup. "You're going to need your strength. You're going to eat two slices of toast, as well as drink a mug of tea."

"You trying to fatten me up?"

"Just trying to keep you alive."

"She cares, Electra," Billy offered.

"I know – weird, huh?"

23:40

Electra was feeling a lot better having had some more food and drink – plus some painkillers.

Stephanie checked over every inch of Electra for about the tenth time, which was well past the point of annoying for the girl. Billy was actually laughing as Stephanie applied the finishing touches to Electra's face paint.

"Stop laughing, Billy!"

"You'd better listen to her, Billy – she stabbed and shot a girl, yesterday."

"She did?"

"Oh, yeah – she's a bad-ass!"

By the time the siren went off, twenty minutes later, both girls were deep in the pitch-dark woods.

Revitalised by eight hours of rest, the two young girls concocted plan after plan for what might lay ahead of them. They both knew that neither of them had laid eyes on Blaze – although Stephanie was fairly certain that he had been the large boy who had gone after them, preventing her from killing Fury.

That still rankled; she had been so close to taking out one of her primary targets - permanently. Nevertheless, Fury had been wounded – by Electra no less! Stephanie had mentioned the knife through the hand, but Electra couldn't really remember doing it.

"I just reacted, I think," was her reasoning.

"I'm glad you did or we could both be very dead."

"What's the difference between 'very dead' and just being 'dead'?" the ever-inquisitive girl asked.

"Nothing, I suppose," Stephanie replied.

There was a rumble of noise not too far away and Electra seized hold of Stephanie's left arm.

"It's just thunder. . ."

There was a flash of forked lightning and the heaven's opened, soaking both girls in minutes, despite the trees above them.

"Let go of me – let's get a move on; we need to be extra careful as we won't be able to hear anybody coming with so much rain pounding down."

"Which means that nobody will be able to hear us moving, either," Electra pointed out.

"Exactly – well done. . ."

Her mind was trying to figure out where her targets might be and what they might be doing. But, it seemed, one of her targets had taken the opportunity to alleviate that little conundrum. As appeared to be the trend, Electra was unceremoniously kicked off to one side.

"Aw, come on!" she yelled out indignantly as she hit the wet, oozing mud – again.

The boy ignored the insignificant little girl as he strode through the driving rain and he threw a punch at Stephanie.

Stephanie caught the fist and she twisted it but she missed the size 6 boot as the twelve-year-old boy kicked into her left thigh sending her splatting into the mud beside the very unhappy Electra.

"Get up!" Electra exclaimed as she wiped the rain from her face.

"I am – for fuck's sake!" Stephanie growled at Electra who just made a face and then rolled into the undergrowth.

'Good girl,' Stephanie thought. Electra had taken herself out of play.

The boy faced off against the girl who was well over a foot shorter than he was. An easy target, was his first impression, but then he considered that his targets had not been selected for their incompetence.

"Just before I squash you into the mud, are you Fury or Psyche?"

"Which was your number one target?"

"Psyche."

Stephanie grinned enormously.

"You must be Blaze – you are my number two target, so that puts me above you, you gay twat – I'm Psyche and don't you fucking forget that, bitch!"

Stephanie lashed out with her knife, catching the boy on his right cheek. He yelled out in pain and glared down at Stephanie.

"I'm going to make you regret that. When I'm done with you, I'm gonna fuck you till you can't fucking walk; you hear me, bitch!"

Stephanie laughed as she moved.

"Well, if your dick is as small as that kid's dick was, yesterday, then we've got nothing to worry about. . ."

Stephanie slashed out with her knife, catching his left lower arm, slashing the material of his jacket. He responded with his own knife, a blade which was three inches longer than Stephanie's own. Stephanie had the advantages of speed and size on her side as she ducked and weaved to avoid the razor-sharp blade. Blaze had a longer reach, to be sure, but Stephanie was able to manoeuvre her body which was light and slim offering a smaller target for the boy.

Conversely, Blaze was a larger target and susceptible to Stephanie's attacks – as long as she kept out of reach of his muscular arms. The boy was on the verge of puberty and his body was changing. He had plenty of muscle available if only he could get a firm hold of the rapidly moving Psyche. When he did, he could snap her in half, or simply crush the life out of her. His chance came when Psyche made to stab him in the thigh but her blade caught and was yanked from her hand, disarming her in an instant. Before she could react, the boy had grasped her arm and twisted it around behind her back, eliciting a scream of pain from the eight-year-old girl.

She struggled to twist herself out of the grip but the boy was very strong, much stronger than Psyche was.

..._...

Images from her training began to play through her mind, the different techniques intended for different situations. She had less than a second to come up with a way to escape. With a split-second remaining, Stephanie reached backwards and she grasped the boy's left ear and wrenched. The boy yelled out and he released Stephanie.

As far as anger was concerned, the boy was apoplectic. There was no way that the little bitch was going to get the better of him. He never let a girl beat him, ever! 'Psyche was nothing special; her age wasn't even in double figures for fuck's sake,' he thought to himself. He reached out and punched her in the face – at the last moment, she moved but not before his fist struck her left cheek and she went down into the mud.

Stephanie could do nothing as the bastard held her down. The mud was cold and sapping her strength. The rain pounded into her face and into her eyes. Her senses were failing her and so was her skillset – nothing she could think of would work as she felt a knee pushing into her stomach, pinning her down. She tried to reach for her pistol but her hand was knocked away and then she felt Blaze's hands on her neck.

She began to panic, kicking and punching at the boy – but his arms were longer than hers by a mile. She struck at his arms but she might as well have been punching a mature oak tree.

Stephanie knew that the end was in sight – for her. His hands were tightening around her neck and despite the ferocity of her kicking and punching, she could not push away the blackness which began to creep in from all sides of her vision. She needed to breathe, but she could not and she thought, she probably never would again. Her struggling was becoming less forceful as her body was starved of lifegiving oxygen and she began to suffocate and then die. The boy grinned down at her, satisfaction in his eyes – he had won, he had killed his primary target.

One down, one to go. . .

..._...

Stephanie barely registered the change in his expression which changed from satisfaction to shock and surprise in an instant. Then Stephanie felt something on her face that was not cooling rain; it was warm and she could make out blood dripping from the boy's mouth. Suddenly, she found that she could breathe again as the death grip around her neck eased. She sucked in several lungful's of lifegiving air and then she effortlessly pushed the boy away from her. He fell onto his side, then rolled onto his front, motionless.

As the lightening flashed, Stephanie was shocked to see a sword sticking out of the boy's back. After the next flash, she was even more shocked to see Electra standing behind the boy, her chest heaving with the exertion of her approach and of driving the sword into the boy's back – contrary to popular belief, driving a sword into a person's back is not as easy as it often appears to be in the movies.

A streak of fresh blood marred her face paint and the front of her webbing.

Chapter 315*: The Infiltrators

Saturday, August 20th, 2016
Early Afternoon

Glenview – The British Sector

"Well?"

"Well, what?" Stephanie replied to Harper.

"What happened after that?" Harper pushed and Naomi and Kaitlin could be seen nodding expectantly.

Stephanie looked over at Electra who smiled and nodded. Anne-Marie and Danny grinned in eager expectation.

"Okay – the next bit started well, but kind of ended on a rather sour note," Stephanie conceded.

"Tell me about it," Electra commented.

Stephanie scowled at the grimacing nine-year-old.

Early June 2014

The State of Virginia
About forty miles, east-south-east of Richmond

"You killed him."

"Was I not supposed to?" Electra growled back as they both trudged through the woods in the pouring rain as the thunder boomed and lightning flashed.

"You're a Yellow."

"So?"

"Thank you, for saving my life."

"I had to. Without you, I'd be dead, not to mention that if you had died, Blaze would have chopped me into little pieces," Electra pointed out.

"Very true!" Stephanie replied as she sat down under some bushes.

Electra squeezed in under the same bushes and she sat down between Stephanie's legs and they kept each other warm as they shivered in their wet clothing.

"You've really impressed me, Electra. You need a codename."

"I'm a . . . actually, I don't know what I am, right now . . . but I am not a Phase 3, Steph."

"Well, I am going to call you 'Rigour' and to hell with what any other fucker thinks!"

"Rigour?"

"Rigour – you are thorough and careful about what you do, amongst many other, equally good qualities, Electra."

"Thank you, Stephanie – that means a lot coming from the famous Psyche."

Stephanie grinned enormously.

"Have no fear, 'lectra; you can shower with me anytime without me killing you."

"Thanks – I think. . ."

..._...

By four o'clock, that morning, both girls were frozen. The rain had eased and the sky was beginning to lighten very slightly as the dawn began its never-ending daily ritual of forcing the nighttime darkness to retreat. They were huddling together under yet another bush, trying to keep warm and not get any wetter. The mud on their clothing had dried in parts but felt horrible on their flesh.

There was intense relief, two hours later, as the siren blew, indicating the next one-hour pause in hostilities. As the girls emerged into the sunlight which streamed through the trees, they felt the warmth of the sun and the humid heat.

"That feels so much better!" Stephanie breathed as she pulled off her webbing and her jacket.

The warmth on her skin felt like nothing on earth and she glared at the sodden jacket which lay on a patch of damp grass. Electra followed her mentor's example as she did the same and then enjoyed the same sun. They each chomped on a chocolate bar, for their breakfast, and then drank some water as they dried off. They made the most of the time to rest and prepare for what they seriously hoped was the last round.

They were not the only ones . . . apparently.

..._...

As they walked in the sun, the girls' morale had improved significantly after the night's lows. It was amazing what a few minutes in the sun could do. Despite the feeling of relative happiness, both girls kept their eyes and ears open, knowing that they were both still in mortal danger. The calm was nagging at Stephanie and she knew that, as a general rule, the calm came before the storm. She was not wrong, as a few minutes later, Stephanie stopped dead and she extended an arm to stop Electra.

There, just a couple of dozen yards away, stood Fury. She glared at Stephanie and Stephanie glared back. They continued to glare as a referee crossed the path, equidistant between the two girls. He threw out a pair of objects, in either direction, then he vanished into the undergrowth. Stephanie and Fury looked at the objects, both girls full of curiosity. Then their eyes went wide as they both recognised the combat wakizashi swords which lay on the path, about six yards apart. Both began to move at the same time, sprinting for the advanced weapons.

The two girls were well matched, diving for the blades at the same time. Stephanie caught hold of the sword as she hit the ground, rolling forwards and bringing the blade up to protect herself, just as Fury swept up her blade and brought it down towards Stephanie's head. Electra stood watching in awe as the blades clashed and the sunlight glinted off the blades.

Instinctively, she knew that the fight was to be the decider – the final showdown.

..._...

Seeing the swords flash in the sunlight reminded Electra of her actions only a few short hours previously. She had no idea what had possessed her to try something so dangerous. Had it been loyalty? Loyalty to whom? Stephanie Walker? She liked the girl, she really did – not that it would last. Walker was a Phase 2 Predator and Predators of any phase had no use for a Yellow – in fact, they detested Yellows, especially if they had had cause to be ordered about by one while naked in a cage.

Electra felt powerful when she was on duty in The Cage. She, a mere seven-year-old, was empowered to order about kids many years older than her – and not just eight-year-olds, she had had thirteen-year-old and fourteen-year-old girls and boys under her command. They would strip naked at her order and carry their urine and excrement in a bucket down a corridor to be emptied while she escorted them. She had seen the humiliation in their eyes, especially with the older kids. She had had real power – much more than any Predator ever had.

Electra worried about what was going to happen to her after the exercise. Was she to be cancelled or terminated? She knew that kids would be hauled out of classes and then there would be a solitary pistol shot, a few minutes later. The instructors did not exactly conceal when kids were terminated – presumably to reinforce in the other kids what might happen if they did not knuckle down to their training.

Was that why she had helped her new friend? Was Stephanie really her friend, or was she just being nice because she had to? There was something about Stephanie Walker which she had not seen in any other Predator; compassion. The naked Stephanie Walker had shown compassion to a Yellow in The Cage when all others had shown contempt. That Yellow had decided to do something in return.

She had pulled the sword from her webbing and without much thought, she had rolled out of the undergrowth and once back on her feet, she had approached the boy, trying to ignore the death throes of Stephanie Walker as her legs kicked from beneath the boy's own. Out of nowhere, Electra had felt anger surge up inside her and the hate which she felt for the boy and what he was doing to her friend made her lose control for a split second, but just long enough for her to raise the sword high and plunge it down with all her strength and anger, into the boy's exposed back.

Strangely, the boy made no sound as he died. All she could hear was the rain pounding down, but then she smiled, as she heard Stephanie coughing and breathing in the life-giving air which had been choked out of her by the boy. Electra gave the sword a vicious twist and the boy fell to the side, away from Stephanie before rolling onto its front.

Electra stared down at the relieved Stephanie and the corpse which was no longer a living, breathing boy.

..._...

"I understand that Blaze is dead – thank you; makes it so much easier for me to become the best."

"I am so pleased that I could be of assistance, you fucking dyke!" Stephanie yelled back as she parried the next strike and dodged an associated punch.

Fury's face was full of rage and hate. She was angry and she so much wanted the 'exercise' to be over. Mentally and physically, she was exhausted. Her body ached all over from cuts and bruises. She was annoyed that Psyche had managed to get the drop on Blaze, but nobody had said that they had to get both targets – they just had to both be very dead. Another thing that rankled was that Psyche appeared to have an assistant. Fury also wanted to meet this 'assistant'; the bitch had stabbed her in the hand and her hand was very, very sore. Therefore, Fury had made a deal during the previous pause in the action.

Stephanie paused as she heard a scream – Electra! The screaming was coming from a distance away but then the screaming was suddenly cut off.

"Say bye, bye to your little friend, Psyche!" Fury growled.

"Fuck you!" Stephanie retorted angrily as she swung the sword harder and harder at Fury.

Fury also moved harder and harder, beating the shorter girl down. Stephanie was just as mentally and physically exhausted as Fury but she did everything she could to push on. She had to destroy Fury to then go after Electra. Stephanie was so focused on Fury that she never noticed herself being manoeuvred by the other girl. It was only when Fury smiled and stopped that Stephanie smelt a rat. But before she could react, she felt her left foot falling with nothing to support it and she followed. She fell about ten feet before she hit the surface of the lake and the very chilly water. She came to the surface, just in time to look up at Fury.

"Dasvidaniya, whore!"

Fury vanished into the bushes as Stephanie struggled out of the water.

Electra was beside herself with fear.

Two boys had grabbed hold of her and dragged her away. They were very rough and they seemed to enjoy causing Electra pain. She found herself hauled into a clearing where she was thrown down at the base of a tree. She tried to escape but she was kicked in the chest and she screamed out with the pain. She barely resisted as she found the two boys, both of whom were about twelve-years-old, stripping the clothes off her.

By the time Fury arrived in the clearing, she found the two boys sitting on the ground enjoying the sun. Behind them, secured to a tree was Electra. She was naked, her clothing strewn around the clearing. Electra's face was full of hate and stained with tears. Fury chuckled as she examined her handy work.

"Not a bad wound, girl. What's your name?"

"Go to fuck!"

"Foul-mouthed, little Yellow, ain't you?"

Fury traced a finger over the wound dressings from top to bottom, pressing every few inches and causing Electra to cry out in pain.

"I need to reward you for what you did to my hand," Fury growled as she held up her right hand which was bandaged tightly. "Let's see how you like being stabbed."

With that proclamation, Fury pulled a small throwing knife from her webbing and she drove it into the front of Electra's right thigh.

..._...

Stephanie looked up in a panic as she heard the unearthly scream coming from not too far ahead. What was Fury doing to Electra? Another scream rang out and Stephanie broke into a run, the combat wakizashi ready in her hand. She was out for blood and she was going to fucking get it!

She slowed as she heard talking and laughter and stopped on the edge of a clearing. She took in the two boys. She took in Fury. She took in the screaming Electra – she had a knife sticking out of her right thigh and Fury was holding another, identical, knife in her right hand.

There was no time to lose. Stephanie bounded out of the undergrowth and into the clearing. She fired three rubber bullets at the first boy – he fell backwards with a scream and hugged his stomach. The next boy received the wakizashi into his chest and he went down next to his colleague, screaming. Stephanie turned as another high-pitched scream ripped out across the clearing. Fury was grinning as she stabbed Electra again, this time at the top of her left shoulder, just below the collar bone.

Stephanie did not pause, she drove forwards and she smashed the twin wakizashi to her own out of Electra's hands before smashing her in the face with her fist. Blood exploded from her nose and she tried to retaliate but missed as the wild-eyed Psyche dodged before kicking Fury in the stomach. Then the butt of the pistol was brought down on Fury's skull – she blacked out and collapsed to the ground.

Stephanie got to work. She released Electra and then helped her lie down on the ground. Stephanie left the knives in place, just placing field dressings around each blade and securing them in place – with Duct Tape, of course. By the time she was done, Electra had passed out from the pain.

The first boy was trying to regain his feet – his companion was dead. Stephanie placed the tip of the sword against the boy's neck, nicking it slightly.

"Stand up and if you want to live, you will do as I say."

The boy nodded – it was the same boy which she had stripped earlier on during that exercise. Stephanie directed him to drag the unconscious Fury towards the centre of the clearing. Then she began issuing rapid instructions to the boy.

..._...

Fury regained consciousness to find herself staring up into the sun. She also felt different and as she looked around, she found that her hands were above her head and tied to the base of a bush. Her ankles were bound and she could feel the rope passing under her back and tying on to the same bush. The rope had been pulled tight so that her ankles were right back by her bottom and her legs were bent at the knees. She was also naked.

"Well, hello."

Fury glared as she recognised Psyche appear in her vision and then that Electra girl.

"We are going to have some fun. Yes, it involves knives – Electra's idea. Me, I just wanted him . . . to rape you."

Fury turned her head to see a naked boy kneeling beside her with his hands on his head. Any witty retort vanished as she considered what Psyche might make the boy do to her – Psyche had gone way too far.

"Hope this hurts!" Electra growled as she knelt down and sank a knife slowly into Fury's left side, just below her left breast.

Fury screamed out in agony as the knife stopped after sinking its point in barely half an inch. Then Electra drew the knife down Fury's body about eight inches.

"Hurts, doesn't it?" Electra hissed.

"Just fucking get on with it, Psyche!"

"You ready to be raped?" Psyche growled as she pushed the naked boy on top of the equally naked, and very exposed, Fury.

Fury screamed, "NO!"

Psyche gave it a minute before she pulled the boy off the screaming Fury and then told him to run, advice which he took readily and he ran off into the trees, naked.

"Unlike you, Fury, I am not a bitch who relishes in the suffering of others."

Fury was sobbing as she glared up at Stephanie.

"May Psyche know the name of the one she vanquished?"

Fury seethed for a moment before she spat out her name.

"Wilde . . . Abigail Wilde."

Stephanie and Electra left the clearing.

Within seconds, they were met by a referee who nodded his approval and he then arranged for transport back to their hut. Once the two knives had been removed from Electra by a medic, the two girls were told to rest for a few hours before they were called for their flight back home.

Stephanie and Electra both took the opportunity to take a shower, get some decent-ish food and then they both laid down on the camp bed together and very quickly, they fell asleep.

..._...

Stephanie awoke with a start, four hours later, as somebody knocked on the door to the hut. Gently, Stephanie woke Electra up and then she walked over and unlocked the door, pulling it open.

"May we come in?" an instructor asked without awaiting a response.

Stephanie was surprised to see, a now dressed, Abigail Wilde being pulled inside by a second instructor. That instructor span Wilde around and glared down at her.

"You lose, Wilde – so now it's time for the victor to literally take a piece of your ass."

Wilde looked up at the two instructors and a very worried expression spread across her face. Before she could fully comprehend her fate, she was pushed up against the table by the instructors who then pulled down her trousers and underwear before pinning her face down across the table. One of the instructors turned to Stephanie – both had ignored Electra completely.

"Walker," he directed as he handed Stephanie a stout leather strap. "I think five should reward Wilde for coming second."

Stephanie ran her hands over the leather strap. She had felt a leather strap on her skin before – just not with her hands. The power which she held in her hands felt enormous to the eight-year-old, but as she stared down at the shaking nine-year-old, Stephanie paused.

"Get on with it, girl!" one of the instructors ordered.

"Do it!" Wilde growled, her voice shaking with fear as she tensed up.

Stephanie brought the strap down, hard.

Wilde screamed as the leather cut into her behind. Stephanie grimaced as she brought the strap down again, aiming for unblemished white skin. Again, Wilde screamed out in agony. Despite Stephanie's hatred for Wilde, Stephanie hated inflicting so much pain in a way that was normally reserved for the bastard instructors. It felt like an age before the fifth strike was administered and Stephanie dropped the strap onto the floor. Wilde was released and she fell to the floor where she shook from head to toe as she sobbed.

Stephanie made to say something to the sobbing girl, but an instructor ordered Stephanie and Electra out of the hut.

Meanwhile. . .
Saturday, August 20th, 2016

Safehouse E

The room was about nine feet by six feet in size and the walls were bare concrete, as was the ceiling and floor.

The door was steel, as were the two bed frames to either side of the centrally placed door. Each bed was made up with white sheets, pillows and duvets. But that was not all – each bed also contained a teenaged boy.

Both were sleeping soundly.

..._...

Abigail's eyes moved across to the next screen. It was an almost identical room, except that only the one bed was occupied. The occupant was female and her long deep red hair was spread over the white pillow. Her face was marred by a piece of sterile gauze, taped to her right cheek. There were scratches and grazes on her forehead and on the left side of her jaw.

"They boys should be waking soon," Cathy commented as she entered the small control room.

"I'll send in the Kitty!" Abigail chuckled.

"Why do I put up with this shit?" Wildcat growled as she glared up at a camera in the corridor outside the two rooms.

Abigail looked up at the monitor which showed the boys' room. Both were beginning to stir.

"Just go get the boys," Cathy ordered and Wildcat threw a mock salute up at the camera before swiping her access card and pushing open the steel door.

..._...

"Morning, boys!"

Connor turned his head and opened his eyes – at first, he thought he might be dreaming but then he focused on the person standing in the doorway. Whoever it was, she had nice curves and definite bumps on her chest beneath the tight-fitting, dark grey shirt. Her name tag read: WILDCAT. Lucas was doing the same as his friend, examining what he thought was a perfect figure.

"When you two have finished mentally undressing me, get the fuck out of those beds!" Wildcat ordered in her electronically enhanced voice.

The voice echoed around the concrete room and it made both boys jump out of their beds.

"Not bad, really," Wildcat mused as she checked out the two naked fourteen-year-old boys.

"Not fair!" Lucas yelled as he covered himself up.

Wildcat laughed as she threw each boy a bag.

"We had to strip you both to search your clothing – get dressed!"

Wildcat stepped out of the room, closing the door behind her. She couldn't resist giggling.

..._...

Medic pushed open the door to the next room and she walked over to the bed where the girl was sleeping.

"Trinity? Trinity?"

"Wh . . . what?"

"Trinity, wake up, honey."

The fourteen-year-old girl opened her eyes and she tried to sit up, but she paused, covering herself with the duvet.

"I'm naked."

"Yeah – well, your pants were around your ankles already, so we kinda finished the job," Medic commented.

"I was trying to take a pee – then everything went black . . . I think."

"The tunnel you were in – it collapsed. You were rescued from the rubble and brought to safety."

"Where are my friends? They'll be looking for me."

"They're fine. What are their names?"

"The blond one; that's Lucas. The other, him with brown hair; that's Connor. Who are you?"

"I am Medic."

Trinity looked stunned and her mind was working fast. Then fear spread across her face. She looked up at the masked woman.

"Fusion?"

"You got it, honey!"

"Am I in trouble – am I going to die?"

"No – you're perfectly safe here."

"I don't believe you."

"Will you believe me?"

Trinity went pale as another woman entered the room – the colours on the mask identified the vigilante without needing to read the name tag.

"You are my guest and I give you my word that nothing will happen to you, nor your hapless friends."

Trinity breathed a sigh of relief. Hit Girl was renowned for keeping her word.

"Can I get dressed?"

"Let me check you over and make sure your wounds are okay, then yes, you can," Medic replied.

Hit Girl vanished and Trinity lay back down.

Safehouse F
The galley

"I'm starving!" Lucas commented between mouthfuls of sausages.

"Me too," Connor added.

"Did either of you take a moment to consider what was happening to me?"

"Trinity!" both boys called out.

"They said you was okay," Lucas pointed out.

"Thanks for caring, Lucas."

"They're boys – food comes first!" Wildcat growled as she leaned against the wall of the galley.

Trinity gave the female vigilante the once over.

"You been entertaining the boys?" Trinity grinned.

"Nah – they've been entertaining me."

"She saw us naked," Connor explained.

"I can't take you two, anywhere!"

..._...

After breakfast, the three friends found themselves sitting on comfortable chairs in a large open room. The walls were covered by curtains and before them sat Hit Girl and Wildcat.

"You three have seen a lot – too much, to be honest," Hit Girl began.

"It was an accident – we didn't mean to," Lucas tried.

"Please – we won't say anything," Connor added.

"Thank you for rescuing me and fixing me up," Trinity said with a smile.

Hit Girl nodded.

"You will each be blindfolded and then placed in the back of a car. You will each be taken to your own home where a Police Officer will speak with your parents."

"Police!" Lucas and Connor said together.

"None of you are in trouble, you have my word."

Chapter 316*: The Predator Plan

Wednesday, August 21st, 2013

New York City

"Hello?"

"Marcus?"

"Mindy! What's going on? Are you okay?"

"I'm fine. We know where the Motherfucker's hiding. He's recruiting an army of super-villains and making homemade bombs. Marcus, he wants to burn the city down."

"You promised me. . ."

"I know you see me as this little girl . . . but I'm not and I never was. You're right, Daddy did take my childhood away, but I'm not so sure that was a bad thing. Marcus, he gave me a gift, a gift that I can't escape no matter how hard I try. Neither am I going to spend the next four years of my life trying to figure out who I am, because I already know: I'm Hit Girl!"

Sunday, August 21st, 2016

Lunchtime

Glenview

"That was the night Mindy came out," Marcus explained.

"Mindy admitted she was gay?" Megan asked incredulously.

"Do I need to tape your mouth shut?" Mindy asked sweetly.

"Nah, I'm good. . ."

"Mindy told me that she had found herself. Mindy told me that she was Hit Girl – I already knew, but I had tried so hard to stamp it out of her. Turned out to be a losing battle; I might as well have tried to hold back the tides."

"She is stubborn!" Megan laughed.

"Dave," Mindy asked. "Do you have that roll of Duct Tape handy?"

"I'm shutting up now. . ."

"It was a bad night for everybody," Marty admitted as he looked over at Dave.

Dave's expression was mixed as he thought back.

Wednesday, August 21st, 2013

New York City

". . . tonight we are going to fuck this city up, or my name is not . . ."

"Chris D'Amico!"

"That is not my name!"

"No, you're right; your new name is Little Bitch."

"Oh, this is perfect . . . are you really that stupid – there's two of you, and a whole army of us; do you really have such a hard on to die."

"No, that's why we brought our friends."

...

"Avengers assemble, asshole!"

"What's the matter, Chris? Shit hit your shorts?"

"Yeah, and I'm gonna wipe my ass with your face."

"You're gonna pay for what you did to my Dad."

"Your Dad? You blew up my Dad with a bazooka!"

"I know how to get this started . . . Schwanz!"

Sunday, August 21st, 2016

Glenview

"That was Night-Bitch," Marty said with a wary glance over at Stephanie.

"It was amazing – the barking, snarling, Eisenhower bounded through the crowd and he made straight for Chris's crotch," Dave explained as Sophia sat up and ran her tongue over her jaws.

"Eisenhower was there, too?" Stephanie asked.

"Yes, he came with me," Isaac replied.

"It was a wild fight and one which I did not expect to survive," Marty admitted. "Hit Girl was facing off with that massive bitch. . ."

"Mother Russia," Mindy mused. "She was a challenge, to put it mildly."

"You should have seen your Mom and Dad, Tommy – they were awesome!" Marty said with a look over at Tony and Shannon who sat on the other couch.

"It was an experience," Shannon admitted with a smile.

"Then Mindy left," Dave said. "It was the worst moment of my life. I never knew what I had until it was gone."

"I hated leaving, but I had to. I had to protect Marcus. I had to protect everybody that I loved – and that included Dave," Mindy admitted shyly.

"Thus, the story began. Mindy killed some guy who tried to bike-jack her and the rest is history," Dave finished.

"You don't have to be a badass to be a superhero, Dave, you just have to brave," Mindy echoed from three years previously as she leaned over and gave her husband a deep and loving kiss.

Dave grinned.

"Back then, that was my first kiss. . ." Mindy admitted, her cheeks turning pink.

"And you know what she said to me?" Dave prompted.

"Be nice or I rip your ass out through your mouth!" Mindy growled.

Everybody laughed, even Marcus.

The following morning

Monday, August 22nd, 2016

Glenview

"This is ominous," Saoirse commented as she and Stephanie were directed by Mindy to sit down in the living room.

"Tell me about it," Stephanie growled as she recognised the lady sitting across from them.

Stephanie glared at the woman for a moment before Mindy dived in.

"Obviously, Stephanie remembers you," she mused. "Saoirse, this is Deputy Director Landy of the Central Intelligence Agency."

Saoirse scowled too.

"I know you two have no love for the CIA – and your hate is well founded. I am very pleased that you are both free to live your lives as you see fit. As you know, Urban Predator is dead – but there has been immense fallout from your operation in France. There have been many high-level talks between the Governments of France, Great Britain, and the United States. All three Governments have accepted responsibility for what occurred right under their noses, within their own borders. As such, a fund has been assembled to provide each surviving Predator with financial aid to assist with their rehabilitation."

Saoirse and Stephanie both appeared surprised at that revelation.

"There are times when Governments can actually do the right thing at the right time – and yes, it surprises me too. The British Government will be providing a significant bounty to the both of you for what you did to bring down Urban Predator. The British Government will also compensate those Predators who have been rehomed, such as the girls currently under the protection of Vengeance, in the UK. The US Government will look after the Abbott girls and Aiden Maxwell in Gotham. They will also provide for any future American Predators as they are recovered," Landy elaborated. "It has taken many months to identify those Predators recovered from France. Many have no living family and they are being looked after by their home country. Some have been rehomed with relatives, if they exist. However, as you both know, it is not an easy transition from being a Predator to being a normal boy or girl. As such, I have asked Mindy to help with the re-settling of Predators and the ongoing support for them."

"I thought immediately of you two," Mindy explained. "I can think of no others who have the compassion and intelligence to help other Predators just like yourselves."

Stephanie and Saoirse appeared very surprised.

"You are both uniquely suited to the task," Mindy went on. "Will you do it?"

Stephanie looked up at Saoirse, who smiled. The two girls could communicate without speech – a skill which often annoyed Mindy, amongst others.

"Yes," Stephanie said. "We'll do it."

That same time

West Columbia

"Anybody seen my cuffs?" Marcus asked.

"I'll just go get 'em," Megan said as she vanished upstairs.

Marcus gave Paige a questioning look. Paige just looked down at young Damon and grimaced. Megan soon reappeared with the handcuffs which she passed to Marcus.

"Where were they?" Marcus asked suspiciously.

"In my bedroom. . ." Megan replied innocently.

"Why?" Marcus asked.

"Curtis was over, last night. . ." Paige offered with a chuckle.

"Never mind – I'll get a new set. . ." Marcus growled disgustedly as he handed the cuffs back to Megan and headed out the door.

Megan grinned at her mother.

"I don't know what they must think down at the precinct," Paige said conversationally with a twinkle in her eye. "We go through so many pairs of cuffs. . ."

Megan looked appalled.

The following day
Tuesday, August 23rd

Glenview

"Your first tasking," Mindy said as she dropped a pair of thick files onto a table.

"Cool!" Stephanie commented.

"Where?" Saoirse asked.

"Indianapolis. . ."

"How will we get there?" Saoirse persisted.

"Mathilda will drive you both and act as overwatch."

"When do we leave?"

"This afternoon."

Tuesday, May 10th, 2016

Toulouse, France

It was another day.

To be exact, it was day 1,630 of the boy's incarceration as a Predator. It had been four years, five months, and seventeen days since he was taken – not that he was counting. He was alone – he had been alone for all that time. His family was gone: his parents, his brother; all were gone for ever. He sat up in his bed and swung his legs out from under the duvet. His feet came into contact with the cold lino floor and he shivered. All around him, other boys were coming awake. They varied in ages from around eight-years-old to boys who were closer to fifteen.

There was a set routine which all followed – deviation brought you to the attention of the instructors and that was not conducive, in any way, to a long and happy life. He stood up and pulled off his T-shirt, dumping it on the bed behind him – his boxer shorts followed and he headed for the showers, a towel in his hand. After the hot shower, he dressed and joined the dozens of other boys as they left the dormitory and made their way to breakfast. En route, they mingled with dozens of girls as they too left their own dormitory.

Breakfast consisted of a large buffet from which the kids could help themselves. Every child ate a large breakfast as lunch was quite a few hours away and the day would be strenuous for all.

..._...

By lunchtime, the twelve-year-old boy was hungry. He had spent an hour on the range, another hour sparring with his colleagues, and then an hour listening to an instructor prattle on about covert infiltration tactics. Lunch consisted of high-protein foods, such as chicken, eggs, oatmeal, and fish. Milk was also available in almost obscene quantities. Every Predator had their diet inspected on a regular basis to ensure that they were healthy and that their bodies were building up the relevant muscle and bulk required to cope with the arduous training program.

Hunter Graves, just the week before, had reached the peak of his potential. He had been granted Phase 3 status and he had been given his much-coveted codename: Cut-Throat. That previous week had also seen a massive influx of instructors, security personnel, and other Predators. There were many rumours unfolding – each one wilder and more nuts than the previous one. That afternoon, things appeared to be taking a turn for the worst as Hunter found himself issued with body armour and a SIG Sauer assault rifle. He spent another hour at the range honing his skills with the weapon.

As he cleaned his weapon, he overheard the instructors discussing defensive tactics. Was something going on?

"Graves – stow your weapon and go get something to eat then return here for your duty posting."

"Yes, sir!"

Hunter got a nasty shock when he entered the dining room. 'Nasty' might not have been the best description but he was shaken to the core by the person he saw sat at a table with some other Predators.

"Leo?" Hunter demanded as he stopped at the table.

The ten-year-old boy turned and then his face dissolved into tears as he recognised his big brother.

"You're dead – I killed you. . ." Leo Graves began.

"I could say the same thing," Hunter replied as he hugged his younger brother. "Where the hell did you come from?"

"I just got here – few minutes ago."

The two brothers moved to a spare table where they ate their meal together and they talked. Both had believed each other to be dead, but their inner psyche had still held out hope that they would once again be reunited. As Hunter finished his food, he knew that he had to get back to his duty posting.

"Leo – I'm sorry about this but I have to go; some weird duty posting. I'm sure it's just some fucked up training thing. I'll see you later, or most probably in the morning. It's really good to know that you're still alive."

"Stay safe, Hunter."

..._...

Several hours later, Hunter found himself standing just inside an external door, his assault rifle at the ready. He was certain that the whole thing was some over the top exercise – at least until a klaxon sounded, red lights began to flash, and gunfire erupted from the direction of the kitchens. He saw an instructor gunned down, several yards away down a corridor – that brought it home to him that it was not an exercise.

Hunter had no idea who or what the enemy were – apparently, the instructors had no idea either. For over an hour, Hunter kept out of the way while he had no idea who the enemy were. He did catch sight of some armour-clad individuals armed to the teeth. Somewhere, things took a turn for the worst as Predators turned on their former instructors and captors. The place was sheer pandemonium with explosions and gunfire coming from all directions. Hunter ran towards the main accommodation – along the way, he passed several Predators who had been Tasered – but then, as he came around a corner, he collided with several young Predators.

"Hunter!"

"Leo! Are you okay?"

"Yes – we're scared and we don't know what we're supposed to do. There's people killing instructors – they have body armour."

"I know – it looks like Urban Predator is coming apart. Come with me."

..._...

Hunter moved forwards, followed by Leo and four other young Phase 2 Predators. As they made their way down the corridor, two instructors stepped out of a classroom. Without hesitation, Hunter dropped them both with a roar of gunfire.

"Leo – grab a weapon!"

Leo grabbed up a pistol while one of his friends picked up the other discarded pistol. They all ran looking for help – all they found were dead instructors and security guards. Then it happened – there was an explosion and the ceiling above them collapsed knocking out two of the kids – Leo pulled at another kid and they both helped Hunter out from underneath the smashed ceiling tiles. There was no sign of the other Predator. One of the kids yelled out as three men appeared – security guards. Leo shot one but he was knocked down by one of the guards. Hunter was unable to shoot as he found that Leo and another kid were in his line of fire.

"Get down, Leo!"

Leo dove for the ground, dragging the other kid with him. Hunter held down the trigger, emptying the magazine and dropping the two remaining guards but not before one of the guards had thrown a knife at Hunter. The knife went into his left shoulder, just above his body armour, passing all the way through, up to the hilt. Hunter yelled out in agony but he was able to scoop up a pistol as he staggered backwards. He shot the security guard in the face as he scrambled towards his brother who was huddled against the wall.

"Hunter!" he yelled out as he saw the knife protruding from his brother's shoulder.

"We gotta move, Leo – let's go!"

Leo had just got back to his feet when two more security guards appeared, one fell as an armoured individual sank a sword into his chest. The other guard fired off several bursts from his assault rifle. Hunter threw himself in front of his brother as the bullets struck his body armour, one finding his upper chest. Hunter heard a scream behind him and as he fell to the floor, he saw his brother, blood spreading across his torso.

His last sight was of a pair of crimson-clad legs which appeared between him and his brother.

The Present Day

Tuesday, August 23rd, 2016

Indianapolis

"Hello."

"I believe you are expecting us, Mr Travers."

"You are. . ."

"Saoirse Doherty and Stephanie Lizewski – our identification, Mr Travers."

The two girls handed over their CIA credentials which Mr Travers scrutinised.

"Come in, please."

He handed back the credentials before he led the two girls into the living room.

"Please sit down – I'll go get the boys."

A few minutes later, two boys came into the room accompanied by a woman with curly, light brown hair.

"Hunter, Leo – Stephanie and Saoirse," Mr Travers said as he introduced the boys.

Hunter studied the two seated girls, then he walked around to them and he stood his ground.

"Let's see 'em," he ordered.

Both girls leaned forwards and tipped their heads so that Hunter could see behind their right ears. He nodded and sighed as he sat down, pulling his brother to sit down beside him on the couch. Mr and Mrs Travers sat down on another couch.

"Hunter, Leo – cards on the table – we are both Predators. We were both there at the end, in Toulouse. We know that you have both spent two months in hospital before finding your way to your aunt and uncle. We are here to help you in any way that we can. We will not interfere, nor will we push you into anything," Saoirse explained.

"I was Phase 2, Saoirse was Phase 3. We know what you both went through. We also know how hard it is to reintegrate into society. We know that deep within you, you have an urge to kill . . ." Stephanie said.

Nicola Travers looked shocked by the blatant remark which had just come out of a ten-year-old girl's mouth.

". . . you have an urge to destroy, to maim. At times, it is irresistible; you just want to hurt somebody. You wake up at night soaked to the skin having had the most horrendous nightmare. The only thing that keeps you even remotely sane is each other – yes?"

Leo looked relieved at Stephanie's comments.

"Okay – I believe you; you obviously suffer the same way that me and Leo do," Hunter replied. "What can you do to help us? Our aunt and uncle have put up with a lot over the past few weeks and it isn't fair on them – they have three kids of their own and . . . and I know that they have both had second thoughts about taking us in . . ."

"No, Hunter," Nicola Travers said quickly. "It has been a struggle, but you and Leo are family – we would never refuse you a roof; a place for you both to call home."

"Thanks, Aunt Nicola," Hunter said with a smile.

"Could we speak with your aunt and uncle, please," Saoirse said pointedly and she received nods from both boys.

..._...

Once the boys had left the room, Stephanie turned to the Travers.

"What do you know about where the boys have been for the past few years?" Stephanie asked.

Jeremy and Nicola Travers looked at each other, exchanging a glance.

"We don't really know; the boys won't talk about it," Jeremy Travers replied in an even tone. "The US Marshal who brought the boys to us, she explained that the boys had been through hell but she could not divulge any more."

Stephanie took a deep breath before she spoke.

"Both boys were taken by force from their parents. They would have been scared stupid as they were hooded and tied. The first few days would have been disorientating as they were pumped full of drugs that played with their minds. They would have begun to forget things – even each other. They were only allowed to remember what the instructors wanted them to remember. They would have been forced to learn bad things. How to kill. How to maim. How to torture. If they did not obey, they were disciplined.

"Discipline began with the baton that all instructors carried. Those batons hurt like hell. Next came the leather strap which was used in extreme circumstances – they used it on your bare arse and you could not sit down for hours. For those who needed worse, there was The Cage. The kid would be stripped naked and thrown behind bars for a number of days. In general, you lived from day to day, hoping for something better, but it never came. The boys may have had different experiences to Saoirse and me, but not wildly so. Hunter is young, very young for a Phase 3; that marks him out as being very advanced and highly skilled. You want to know his codename?"

There was a pause before Nicola Travers nodded.

"Cut-throat."

"Oh, my God," Nicola Travers exclaimed. "You both went through all that?"

"Yes," Saoirse replied and Stephanie nodded as she spoke again.

"The place was hell on earth. I was bullied almost from the moment I was taken; I was seven-years-old. I was always too small, too skinny, too British . . . Finally, when I was eight, I snapped. I killed my main tormentor, in the shower one morning – smashed her skull to pieces. You know what the instructors did? They said well done and gave me my codename."

"They're both killers?" Jeremy Travers asked with dread in his tone.

"Yes – and if Hunter made it to Phase 3, then he is an expert. Leo, too," Saoirse confirmed.

"What is it that you can do for them?" Nicola Travers asked.

"One of the most important things is to be able to talk. Saoirse is my best friend – she used to be my nemesis; she was sent to kill me, but she failed. Now we rely on each other for somebody to talk to – it makes a difference that we can relate to one another."

"You are friends, even though. . ." Nicola Travers demanded.

"Yes – the circumstances are exceptional but we need each other to survive. Your nephews make thirteen Predators recovered, by us, so far. We can ensure that they have somebody to talk to; somebody who has experienced what they have gone through. My parents run a Dojang, in Chicago. We run special classes for Predators. The time allows them to exercise their frustrations in a safe environment. We allow one-on-one and multiple-on-one sparring. Somebody is always on hand to stop everything if things go too far. Or we just Taser their arses!" Stephanie explained. "Predators have needs. Of course, we can't let them kill, but we can let them use their skills in a controlled environment with others just like them. We can help them bury their skills if need be. We can also teach the both of you how to control them both – if needs be. Which brings me onto another question – how much do your own kids know?"

"Very little, but they have had cause to be scared of their cousins. I know it isn't anybody's fault, but things get said and Hunter or Leo just explode."

"We can also put you in touch with others who look after Predators – if that helps," Saoirse explained. "We know that gaining two more mouths to feed will also be a financial burden to you both. As such, the US Government will provide each boy with a lump sum to help with their resettlement. You will also receive a monthly stipend to help ends meet. You also need to keep your mouths shut. Urban Predator will never come out – that is for the good of the respective governments and also for the Predators themselves."

"We understand."

..._...

Once the boys had returned, Stephanie explained about the money and the Dojang.

"Why should we listen to a little girl – even if she was a Predator?" Hunter said sharply.

"Would knowing my codename help?"

"You said you was Phase 2 – they don't get codenames. . ." Hunter paused as he watched Stephanie's expression. "Only one person has ever gained their codename in Phase 2 . . . you?"

Stephanie nodded.

"You are Psyche?"

"Please don't," Saoirse commented dryly. "She's hard enough to live with as it is."

Stephanie ignored her friend.

"Yes, I am."

"Okay – we accept," Hunter agreed.

That evening

Glenview

"Well done, girls."

Stephanie smiled up at Mindy. Saoirse, though, appeared guarded.

"I get the feeling that we're not done yet."

Mindy smiled.

"Not by a long shot, my little Predator princesses!"

Both girls groaned.

Chapter 317*: Cat vs Cat

Later that same evening
Tuesday, August 23rd, 2016

Safehouse F

Stephanie was dozing on the couch in the Command Centre, when the alarm went off – she had quite literally just closed her eyes, only a few minutes before.

She came awake within seconds and she quickly scanned the computer screens.

"What's going on?" Megan asked as she ran in the door, closely followed by Curtis.

"There's gunfire in Echo – Wildcat, Trojan; arm up and get over there," Stephanie ordered.

Megan and Curtis looked at one another and then they both shrugged.

"Go!"

The two vigilantes vanished just as Electra came in the door.

"What's going on?"

..._...

Two minutes later, Stephanie's curiosity got the better of her.

The ten-year-old vigilante took a deep breath and she ran out of the Command Centre after Wildcat and Trojan.

"Mindy'll kill you!" Marty shouted after her.

"It was nice knowing you, then. . ."

"She's toast," Electra groaned.

Marty just shook his head as he continued to scan the cameras.

Safehouse E

Wildcat and Trojan moved quickly down the corridors, pistols raised before them.

"Take corridor 2E," Battle Guy directed.

"Wait for me!" Psyche called as she caught up.

"What are doing here?" Wildcat hissed.

"You're not allowed to do this!" Trojan cautioned.

"Stop your fucking whining and let's move!" Psyche growled as she took the lead, her pistol held steadily in her left hand.

They moved down the indicated corridor and then down another before they heard the gunshots coming for a room, just off to the right.

"It's coming from the Computer Store," Psyche reported back to Battle Guy.

The three vigilantes moved closer to the room in question and then they stopped as a voice could be heard shouting.

"Where are you, you little fucker!"

"Was that Abby?" Wildcat asked.

"I'll fucking teach you to chew on my goddamn copper cabling!"

Psyche groaned as she holstered her pistol.

"Stand down! Hal is on a fucking mouse hunt!" she reported.

Safehouse F

Stephanie was grinning broadly as she walked back into the Command Centre. She was about to throw some witty comment at the very unamused-looking Electra, however, her smile vanished as she saw Mindy standing beside the couch, a wooden baseball bat held in her right hand.

"Any last words, before I break your left leg, honey?"

"You left me in charge – the alarm went off; I dispatched Wildcat and Trojan from their snogging and I suppose my curiosity got the better of me. . ." Stephanie responded evenly before she placed her left foot on the couch and stretched out her left leg.

Stephanie cringed in spite of herself as she felt the baseball bat whizz past her head. Electra let out a small scream as the bat plunged downwards towards her mentor's leg at an amazing speed. There was an almighty crack . . . but no pain. Stephanie found that she had involuntarily closed her eyes. She opened them to find her leg completely intact.

Mindy grinned.

"Good work, Psyche!" Mindy chuckled as she walked out of the Control Centre, the baseball bat resting on her shoulder.

The bitch had struck the couch, just inches away from the outstretched leg.

"You're a Bitch!" Stephanie yelled after the chuckling purple vigilante.

"You never learn, Stephanie – at least not the easy way!" Electra chastised.

"I'm only ten, Electra; I'll figure it out, one day."

Across Chicago

"You will be amazing, little sister."

"I hope so."

"I would suggest that you continue at that D-JAK place – they will be able to improve your skills and I have asked for you to be placed on an advanced course that will involve sword-play. You think you can manage that?"

"Yes. I can do it."

"I will have your suit ready by the end of the week and then I can parade you before the troops. I am very proud of you and showing you off will mean a lot to me, Dread."

"Dread?"

"Your name."

"I like it."

That night

Over the previous week, reports had been trickling in of a new Chicago vigilante – a non-Fusion one.

As far as anybody could tell, the new vigilante was short, female, and apparently out to do good – at least she had not been seen doing anything bad. She was also very angry and anybody committing a crime, whom she crossed paths with, usually regretted it. For the moment, no member of Fusion had actually crossed paths with the new girl, neither did anybody know her name. The unknown vigilante was, to all appearances, highly skilled. Her personal transport was a KTM 125 Duke motorcycle – in orange, yellow, and black digital urban camouflage – which was compact, just like the vigilante who rode it.

Jackal and Wildcat had been paired for that evening – not that they minded. As they rode their motorcycles through Garfield Park, they joked and did their utmost to outdo the other with ever cruder jokes.

"Keep 'em coming, guys – I think Psyche is glowing red with embarrassment," Hal chuckled over the comms.

"Well, she is still a little girl," Wildcat laughed.

"Just 'cause you spend your nights stark naked with Trojan's fingers up your twat and your fingers wrapped around his rock-hard cock!" Psyche retorted.

"I think you touched a nerve, there, Wildcat!" Jackal laughed.

"She'll get over it," Wildcat replied.

"You and me, Wild Kitty – we're gonna fucking tango!"

"Bring it on, Psycho Psyche!"

"File that for later, little girls, we have some new vigilantes ahead," Jackal advised as he pulled over to the side of the road.

..._...

As Wildcat dismounted her motorcycle, the new vigilante did the same. Both walked towards one another, hands well away from any weapons. Jackal watched from a dozen yards away. He studied the new vigilante while keeping a firm eye on his Wildcat. The new girl was about the same height as Wildcat, with the same body form.

Her armoured suit was primarily yellow while her knee-length boots, gauntlets, and utility belt were a matt black. Her mask was in the form of a cowl, with cat-like ears on each side. The front of the mask covered all but the mouth and jaw. The mask was black, with yellow highlights. Billowing out from behind the mask, were copious amounts of fiery red hair. She carried a brace of pistols, one on each hip. Extending over her left shoulder was the hilt of what appeared to be a Wakizashi.

For a moment, each vigilante examined the other, checking out their equipment and other attributes. Then the new girl looked up at Wildcat.

"Well, hello, Wildcat," the yellow-clad vigilante growled in an electronically enhanced voice.

"What do I call you?" Wildcat asked in her own electronically enhanced voice.

"I am called, Hellcat."

"Great!" Jackal moaned as he stopped a couple of feet behind Wildcat. "Just what we need on the streets; another obnoxious kitty!"

"Fuck you, asshole!" Hellcat called out and Wildcat nodded her approval. "You don't even know me!"

"You have claws, too?" Jackal went on with a chuckle.

Hellcat grinned as she flexed her wrists and triple-bladed claws emerged from each gauntlet.

"Nice!" Wildcat declared as she triggered her own claws.

"Please tell me they're not comparing claws!" Psyche groaned.

"Like two boys seeing who can pee the farthest!" Jackal replied.

Both 'kittys' turned to glare up at Jackal.

"You get used to him," Wildcat commented dryly.

"See you later, Wild Kitty!" Hellcat laughed.

Wildcat and Jackal turned as they heard the roar of an engine and a motorcycle decked out in orange, yellow, and black digital urban camouflage skidded to a halt beside Hellcat. She deftly jumped onto her ride and started her engine before she flipped Wildcat the bird as she accelerated away alongside the other machine.

The other rider was clad in a similar fashion to Hellcat. His armoured suit was primarily orange while his ankle boots, gauntlets, and utility belt were a matt black. His chest armour was tan in colour. He wore a mask which was in the form of a cowl, with tan cat-like ears on each side. The front of the mask covered all but the mouth and jaw. The mask was orange and tan, with black highlights. He carried the same brace of pistols, one on each hip. Extending over his left shoulder was the hilt of a Wakizashi

Wildcat grinned at the motorcycle's licence plate: TIGERCAT.

The following evening
Wednesday, August 24th

Glenview

Almost as soon as dinner was finished, the five kids sat grinning up at Dave.

"I want you all ready for bed before we begin the movie," Dave ordered and the five kids vanished up the stairs.

Dave laughed as both Chloe and Mindy ran off to the master bedroom, leaving him alone with Joshua.

"Nutcases, the two of them," Joshua laughed.

"They're like sisters – inseparable," Dave confirmed.

While Chloe was like a sister to Mindy, Joshua was like a brother to Dave. The two couples were completely inseparable and they could work as the most perfect of teams, knowing each other's movements and thoughts. Both teenagers reappeared a few minutes later in overly large T-shirts which acted as nighties.

"You approve?" Chloe teased as she exposed a bare thigh, for Joshua, just enough to show a small amount of pubic hair before she dropped the t-shirt.

"You are so evil, Chloe Bennett!" Joshua growled as Chloe and Mindy dived onto a couch, pulling their long legs up, and grinning.

Seconds later, there was an almighty thundering sound on the stairs as five giggling kids burst into the living room and two of them dived onto the same couch. Stephanie, in a set of pale blue pyjama shorts and a matching pale blue pyjama top, sat next to Mindy, pulling Mindy's right arm around her. Megan, in an identical set of pyjamas, sat beside Chloe, crossing her legs and scowling at Joshua as she leaned against Chloe. Anne-Marie and Danny flopped down onto the mat and casually waved their bare legs in the air as they propped up their chins with their arms. Both youngsters wore pyjama shorts and tops. For Anne-Marie it was a My Little Pony themed top of the Mane Six while for Danny, the theme was Star Wars. Electra sauntered in last, once the free for all was over. Electra wore a site of red pyjama shorts and a matching top – apparently, Electra favoured the colour red. She sat down next to Stephanie and snuggled into her friend.

The movie for the night was an old one, but one which the girls had selected: Sleepless in Seattle. Talk about tears! Apart from Dave and Joshua, all were crying by the end of the movie – even Danny. Joshua had had to go and seek out copious amounts of tissues for the tearful ladies to share. Mindy, in conjunction with Megan, then insisted on watching Dirty Dancing. However, Mindy and Chloe had passed around mugs of marshmallow-reinforced hot chocolate. It had then only been another twenty minutes. Dave and Joshua thought it was cute.

Stephanie was cuddled up with Mindy and both were fast asleep. Megan was snuggled up with Chloe and again, they were both fast asleep. The twins were sprawled out on the rug, just as out of it, a sleeping dog close by each of them. Electra lay beside Stephanie, her left hand gripping Stephanie's right.

Horatio sauntered in and with a brief meow, he jumped up beside Joshua.

"Just the cat and us, pal," Joshua commented to Dave as he changed the chick-flick to something with a bit more action. . .

That same night
Indian Knoll Road

Hailee smiled as Adam gave her a kiss on the cheek.

"Mom, this is Adam. Adam, this is my mother."

"Mrs Richards."

"Hello, Adam."

Vicky Richards ran her practiced eyes over the young man before nodding her approval. Ultimately, there was nothing much that she could do about him; her daughter was eighteen and responsible for her own life. Vicky could also see that the relationship was at an advanced stage. At the back of her mind was the state which her daughter had been in on her return from Europe. Was she ready for a 'hands on' relationship?

"Mom," Hailee said, shrewdly recognising her mother's expressions. "It's all in hand – I'm fine."

"Stay safe, Hailee."

"Yes, Mom, love you."

..._...

"Your Mom really cares about you," Adam noted as Hailee led him up the stairs to her bedroom.

"She's all I have and I love her very much," Hailee replied. "Talking of love, how about we make some. . ."

Adam smiled.

"You sure?"

"You don't want me?" Hailee mumbled, faking annoyance as she pulled off her T-shirt to reveal a light blue bra.

"I wouldn't say that," Adam offered as he gently ran his hands up Hailee's silky soft skin, tracing up the sides of her body.

Hailee giggled.

Adam's lips kissed her lips and she kissed him back. It had been quite a while since she had last had anybody touching her in a loving manner. The nightmares still came and went. The beatings and the humiliation - they were never far from the back of her mind. But for the first time in many months, she felt comfortable enough to allow somebody to touch her most private parts. She felt Adam releasing the clip on her bra and she felt the tightness of the garment slacken as he gently eased it up her body to expose her breasts.

For some reason, she giggled.

Thursday, August 25th

Over the North Atlantic

It had been an early start – 6am!

Dave had ferried Saoirse, Stephanie, and Electra to the airport where they had boarded the Gulfstream. He trusted them and he knew that they would stay safe – hell, there were three Mindy's on that damn aircraft!

"I could really get used to this," Electra commented as she relaxed in the forward-facing seat on the starboard side, facing Stephanie.

"It's nice – I like it; the only way to travel."

"Would you ladies like a drink?" Amy suggested as she appeared from the forward galley.

Electra smiled, "I'll have a glass of milk, please."

"Girl Scout!" Stephanie growled. "Pepsi Max, please, Amy."

"I'll take the same as Steph, please," Saoirse added.

"For a killer, you really are a pussy, 'lectra!" Stephanie commented.

"Just 'cause I can, does not mean I enjoy it. Also, for your information, missy, milk is good for a growing girl. . ."

Electra replied in a calm and level tone.

Saoirse sniggered.

"Laugh it up, you Irish tart," Stephanie retorted.

". . . One day, I want boobs like Saoirse," Electra finished and Saoirse's cheeks went pink as Stephanie roared with laughter.

"She likes to speak her mind, doesn't she," Saoirse stated.

"Tell me about it – her gob has got me into trouble on more than one occasion," Stephanie growled.

"Is the great and powerful Psyche, complaining?" Electra asked with feigned sweetness.

"No, she is not."

Friday, August 26th

West Columbia

*Well, I'm just outta school,
Like I'm real, real cool,
Gotta dance like a fool,
Got the message that I gotta be a wild one,
Ooh, yeah, I'm a wild one.*

Marcus picked up his cell as the ringtone rang out.

"Which one?" Paige asked.

"Our one is still in the shower," Marcus pointed out as he accepted the call. "Morning, wild one!"

Mindy laughed.

"Morning, old man."

"I know you never sleep, so I won't comment on the early hour."

"Dave and I are thinking of going on a trip – any chance. . ."

"You need somebody to look after the munchkins?"

"You've had an easy few weeks – time to so some work," Mindy chuckled.

"You're one funny girl!"

Glenview

"We're going to miss you," Anne-Marie pouted.

"I need to go see what your sister is up to, among other things."

"Don't be gone, long."

"I'll be back before you know it."

Mindy gave Danny and Anne-Marie a big hug – she hated to leave them, but she knew that they would be perfectly safe with Dave.

"Love you, Dave."

"You be good – leave the Brits alone and don't cause any trouble," he said with his dorky grin.

"I'll behave, I promise."

Chapter 318*: Hit Girl in San Diego - Part I

Author's Note: Events in the latter part of this chapter, and in the next, will operate in parallel with Chapter 5: Escalation and Chapter 6: Take Down of my other story, Creatures of the Night.

Monday, August 29th, 2016
Early morning

Glenview, Chicago

"Oh, come on!" Mindy exclaimed.

"Mindy, you have a reputation for, how should I put it. . ." Marcus chuckled.

"Invading sovereign territory. Sinking foreign yachts. Blowing up just about anything and everything," Megan finished.

"There are times that you need a damn good thrashing – only, I think you'd actually enjoy getting your ass cracked!" Mindy growled.

"You know me so well. . ." Megan laughed.

"I promise – no explosions," Mindy promised.

"One tiny explosion and I tan your backside, young lady," Marcus warned.

"I'd pay to see that!" Paige laughed as Mindy scowled.

"No tiny explosions, I promise."

"I can guarantee no tiny explosions," Megan offered. "It's Mindy – they'll be massive!"

"You are not helping, you little bitch!"

"Love you, big sis. . ."

That same day
Late afternoon

Mission Beach
San Diego

The heat was incredibly soothing after the long flight.

Mindy wasted no time changing into her bikini and heading down to the beach. Dave had also changed and he spent twenty minutes taking his time, coating Mindy in sun cream.

"I am not exposing my nipples, so why cover them in cream?" Mindy demanded with a giggle.

"Just being cautious. I understand that sunburnt nipples can be very sore. But, on the other hand, well creamed ones are very hard!"

Mindy laughed as she pushed his hands away.

"I need a swim."

That evening

Aboard Pacific Predator

Mindy flopped onto the couch on the starboard side of the flying bridge.

Dave appeared a few minutes later with two plates of food. A healthy chicken Caesar salad with a side of fresh fruit. They ate and chatted as they took in the perfect view from their mooring in Quivira Basin. Dave preferred the perfect view that he had of his wife's scantily clad body. Her skin shimmered in the sun that filtered through the sunshade above them.

Mindy pretended not to notice his roaming eyes but the fact that she was assisting with the large and prominent bulge in his shorts made her feel just as aroused. After finishing her meal, Mindy headed below into the main salon. As she went, she shrugged off her bikini before vanishing down the next set of steps to the lower deck. She turned left and entered the master suite. There she strode into the shower and spent ten minutes washing off the sweat and sun lotion.

As she stepped out of the shower, her naked husband pushed past, rubbing his body up against his wife.

"Dave . . . you're all sweaty and I just got clean," Mindy moaned half-heatedly.

"well, we better wash you off, honey," Dave grinned as Mindy reached down and began to caress his stiff member.

..._...

After her second shower of the evening, Mindy dressed in black knickers, black sports bra, black leggings, a black T-shirt, and a black leather jacket. On her feet, she wore black socks and lightweight boots, which were also black. Dave was dressing in similar clothing, only he wasn't wearing knickers or a sports bra – just boxers in lieu. He also wore black combat trousers instead of the leggings.

Mindy finished gathering her equipment before smiling at Dave as he finished his own preparations.

"You ready, Mr Lizewski?"

"Are you, Mrs Lizewski?"

"I was born ready!"

An hour or so later

West Harbor Drive

The two Kawasaki machines cruised through the twilight.

Dave was riding a candy lime green and metallic spark black 2016 Ninja 650 ABS motorcycle. Mindy was beside him on a metallic matte carbon grey 2016 Ninja ZX-10R ABS motorcycle.

"We're being followed," Mindy commented over the communications, soon after they had left Seaport Plaza, heading south-east on West Harbor Drive.

They had both paused at the Plaza for twenty minutes to enjoy the evening and talk about nothing in particular.

"I know – Honda Interceptor, three vehicles back – two riders," Dave acknowledged.

"Split up – we'll meet in fifteen at Point Delta," Mindy directed.

Mindy made a hard left at the next intersection, beside the Convention Centre, heading north up 5th Avenue while Dave continued straight ahead following West Harbor Drive. Their follower turned left after Mindy, but then turned right down L Street.

"Either they weren't following us, or they have training," Mindy mused as she watched her mirror.

Mindy was about to double-back and follow the follower, but then just as she was heading down K Street and approaching the baseball stadium, something else caught her attention and her happy demeanour changed completely as winter came to her expression.

"Dave – black Camaro; I'm trailing. We're heading east on J Street. It's a fucking druggie."

There was a pause before Dave came back over the comms.

"You wanna do this now, honey?"

"You know me, when. . ."

"When you see evil, you just have to act – it's one of the many reasons that I love you."

Mindy grinned enormously.

"Let's go, GI Mindy!"

..._...

The Camaro had zigged and zagged its way through the streets before passing beneath the 75 freeway on East Harbor Drive. Dave had joined up with his wife and he was about thirty yards behind her. Then, rather surprisingly, the Camaro turned right into an industrial area. Dave and Mindy could not follow as the Camaro had passed through steel gates which were guarded by armed security guards.

Dave and Mindy turned around and they hid their motorcycles under the freeway, beneath some trees. It did not take them long to find their way back down the road and then over a low fence into the industrial area.

Mid-City, just south of Downtown

The industrial area was just that.

Buildings crammed with heavy machinery of indeterminable use and lots of grease. After a brief search, Mindy smiled as she heard voices. She and Dave moved from shadow to shadow until they found a good vantage point. From there, Mindy studied the brightly-lit scene before her with a monocular.

The scene was not much of a surprise. Mindy found herself staring at a bunch of naked females – maybe thirty or more of them. The naked females varied in age from girls not much older than Chloe to women in their late twenties. All wore white dust masks over their faces and their hair was covered by white paper hats. Their only other covering was a pair of rubber gloves on their hands. So, why were they naked? It was the druggies' product protection scheme. While the naked girls and women packed their expensive product, they were free of the temptation to steal as there was nowhere to hide even the smallest sample of powder. Mindy decided that she needed to get closer – she wanted to gather more intel on what was going on.

"I want to get a closer look – see what we're up against."

"How?"

Mindy pointed over to a door, off to one side. Almost on cue, the door opened and a young girl stepped out – she was completely naked, except for a white dust mask which covered her mouth and nose.

"You're just gonna strip naked and saunter in there?" Dave asked – almost rhetorically.

Mindy's cheeks went a little pink and she grinned.

"Remember, eyes on my snatch only!"

"I can do that," Dave replied with his own enormous grin.

Mindy passed back her weapons and other accoutrements before heading for the changing room.

..._...

It took a lot of willpower to strip off all her clothing and don just a dust mask, along with the paper hat and rubber gloves. She felt very exposed and vulnerable. The trepidation and nervousness were very real which added to her cover. Just as she reached out to pull open the door, it was pushed open from the other side and a striking red-head walked in – she looked just as nervous and apprehensive as Mindy felt. Mindy left the changing room but paused before entering the dazzling array of lighting. A couple of minutes later, the red-head appeared completely naked – she was a true redhead, Mindy noticed. She allowed the young girl to approach and beckon Mindy to go with her. Mindy did, following a foot behind, studying the younger girl.

There was something off about the redhead. She wasn't the average street girl looking to make some money by spending a few hours stuffing bags of drugs while standing completely naked so half-a-dozen goons could enjoy a bit of female skin. The girl's body was too perfect – her muscles too honed. There was barely any fat on her body and Mindy was reminded of somebody else with a similar looking body – her own. The girl could only be about fifteen, maybe sixteen. Then Mindy smiled inside as several pieces of the 3D puzzle in her mind began to slot together.

Mindy took in everything as she strode timidly across the brightly lit area. She saw the eyes of the men and the grins as they took in the fresh meat as it walked towards the table. One of the men pointed them both to a space at an array of long tables, laid out in a 'T'. Mindy watched as the other women scooped white powder out of large steel tubs, before pouring said powder into small plastic bags. The bags were weighed and where the necessary product was added or removed. It was obvious that the guards preferred the younger girls, like Mindy and the redhead. The man at the far end of the table was looking at Mindy – his looks were giving her second thoughts about exposing herself so blatantly and her skin crawled as she felt his eyes running over her breasts and moving downwards to her dark pubic hair.

Beyond the creepy man, Mindy could see another room. In that room were more men, all armed, all smoking, and all playing cards. There were about eight of them. So, about thirty workers, and about fifteen guards. Then . . . fuck me! In the same room as the armed men playing cards, there was a man counting wads of cash. As the fat bastard counted the cash, he placed the wads into a large leather case. There was another man, off to the side – he had to be a courier waiting to take the cash somewhere safe at the end of the night.

..._...

It wasn't until Mindy was busy stuffing small plastic bags with white powder that Dave noticed another watcher in the shadows – okay, he had been distracted a bit, watching Mindy's tight butt as she stood at a table beside a stunning looking redhead who, Dave had noticed, was very much a natural red-head from the thick red pubic hair visible in her crotch.

The other watcher was small – maybe a very young girl. She was wearing a bandanna across her face and a cap to put her face into shadow. Was the girl a threat? If so, to whom? Was she a threat to him and Mindy, or just a threat to the drug dealers? Dave moved so that he could keep both Mindy and the watcher in his frame of vision.

As he watched, the watcher began to look around her – something was wrong; she smelt a rat. Dave knew he was safe, hidden in the shadows. As he watched, though, he was very surprised to see the watcher stand up behind a piece of machinery and then begin to strip. Within two minutes the watcher had turned into a naked girl of about thirteen. The girl ran barefoot and very naked towards the bright lights and the other naked girls. Dave heard laughter and then a man's taunt.

"Piss off, little girl – come back when you've got some tits and a pussy!"

The naked girl had fled back into the darkness and back to her clothing, donning everything as fast as she could. Dave took in the tears streaming down the girl's face as well as the pistol which she scooped up off the floor and stuffed into the back of her pants. There was more to that girl than met the eye – a Predator?

"Okay – times up beautiful ladies, get your Jacksons, get your clothes – and fuck off home!"

Dave was very relieved to see Mindy scampering off towards the changing room after collecting the wage for her work. He enjoyed seeing Mindy run naked – it was a definite turn on. He was a little disappointed to see her appear a few minutes later, fully dressed. Mindy saw his expression on her return.

"Don't worry, I'll strip the minute we're aboard and you can have your wicked way with me, big boy!" she promised.

Pacific Predator

Mindy was true to her word.

The moment the doors were closed and latched, Mindy shed everything and stood there, hands on her hips as Dave ran his eyes across her gorgeous body. Mindy grinned as she stepped forwards and began to undress her husband. Off came his t-shirt to reveal the chest which Mindy found so attractive. She ran her hands across the firm pectorals and she worked her way down to his pants. The belt was rapidly released and the combats fell to the floor as Mindy undid the button and pulled down the zip.

Mindy groaned as she saw that just a thin piece of cotton separated her from her target which was standing up very straight behind its cotton protection. Mindy could not stand it a moment longer. It had surprised her how much standing naked in public had actually turned her on inside. The ride back and the thought of what she was going to do once back aboard had kept her going long enough so she could feel herself very ready. She yanked down the boxer shorts and gently rubbed the hard member which stood before her. Dave moaned with pleasure – he had been hard for quite a bit of the evening, what with so many naked women about.

Mindy began to kiss Dave on the tip of his cock, licking some of the precum which seeped out. Enough was enough – the taste had set her off.

"Dave – I need you. . ."

Dave picked up his wife and he kissed her full on the lips, pushing his tongue inside as Mindy did the same. They both sagged down onto the floor of the main salon and they went to town on each other's body. Mindy squealed as Dave's fingers worked their magic on her rock-hard nipples. Then one of his hands moved downwards.

"Wow – you are hot and moist, tonight!"

"More action . . . less talk . . ."

Dave's magic fingers moved up and down on Mindy's labia exciting them to levels which Mindy was struggling to handle. Her breathing was becoming more laboured as she came (pun intended) closer to a raging orgasm. There were times when she feared her own orgasms – they were that strong. One was building up steadily inside her, the epicentre at the top of her vulva as Dave moved his fingers to the top of her labia. Dave cringed as Mindy's fingernails dug deep into his back as she struggled to cope with the body shattering orgasm which exploded inside of her. Mindy screamed and she rolled over into a tight ball.

Dave grinned as he ran his fingers up and down Mindy's taugt backbone. He watched the tremors in her back as he did so and he heard her moan. To Mindy it just accentuated her orgasm – yes, it was a form of torture, but he knew that Mindy loved it. It was another few minutes before she opened her beautiful green eyes and she smiled. To Dave, she was the most beautiful thing in the world as she lay on the thick carpeting, with sweat glistening across her naked body.

"You ready for round two?" Dave asked.

Mindy giggled as she lay on her back and spread her legs wide open.

The following morning
Tuesday, August 30th

Over breakfast, Mindy studied her laptop.

"You going to get dressed anytime soon?" Dave asked as he enjoyed the view.

"I need a shower first," Mindy replied as she nonchalantly dug into a bowl of cereal while she studied the map of San Diego on the laptop screen.

Mindy was still naked from the previous night and her skin glowed.

..._...

An hour later, they were both out on the road. Each had tasks to complete before the big mission that night. While Dave was busy sightseeing, Mindy rode up I-8 on an easterly heading. After seven-and-a-half miles, Mindy turned north onto I-5 and then off to the right into the urban surroundings. She pulled over on San Diego Mission Road and she studied the nearby apartment complex. Mindy pulled out her smart phone and selected a particular app. A pulsing symbol was visible on the map of San Diego.

The girl was still there – just a few dozen yards away.

Qualcomm Stadium Station

Mindy had watched them leave the apartment and followed them.

On arrival at the stadium, she had taken a faster route to the station – the two girls on the motorcycle were in no hurry. Thus, she was ready for them when they pulled up.

"Good morning!"

The older girl slipped off the motorcycle and she turned to face Mindy.

"What the fuck do you want?" the older girl demanded as she stood covering the younger girl who looked very scared.

Mindy studied the older girl for a moment before she responded.

"I just wanted to talk with you – we appear to have a similar agenda."

"Fuck your agenda – stay away from us," the girl warned.

Mindy kept her eyes on the girl but then she saw movement behind her and a pistol came into view. Then flashes as the suppressed bullets were expelled from the muzzle of the pistol. She felt two of the bullets strike home, pushing her off her feet – the third bullet missed.

..._...

'The fucking bitch!' Mindy thought angrily as she felt the searing bruises on her left shoulder and chest.

She heard an exclamation and then feet coming towards her – she remained still – at least until she felt the presence of somebody else very close. She took a breath and reached out with her legs, dragging the girl to the ground. The girl was skilled, Mindy would give her that. For the moment, she would give the girl a pass and just play with her.

It wasn't long before they were both back on their feet, facing off against one another. The girl dived forwards attacking Mindy. The strikes were good, but Mindy was able to dodge or absorb all of them. In return, Mindy was able to connect with a good amount of her strikes causing the girl to call out in pain. Then Mindy got in a good kick to the girl's left thigh and she went down. Mindy dived after her, pinning her with a leg across her throat. The fight was all but over, but then out of the blue, came a kick from the younger girl. Mindy punched her hard in the chest and the girl screamed as she fell backwards against a concrete pillar.

"Stay out of this!" Mindy suggested.

The fight was over, plus the police were probably not all that far away. Mindy released the girl and ran for her motorcycle, grabbing her helmet as she swung a leg over the machine.

"Till we meet again!" Mindy called out to the two girls before she accelerated away.

Aboard the Pacific Predator

"Have a fun morning?" Dave asked.

"Yeah," Mindy mused.

"Anything exciting happen?"

"Nothing that I'd call exciting. . ."

"You fought that girl, didn't you?"

"She was good – not as good as me, obviously."

"Obviously. . ."

"I'm going to speak with Homeplate – you doing lunch?"

"Obviously," Dave mused as Mindy vanished below.

..._...

Down in the master stateroom, Mindy set up her laptop and dialed Safehouse F.

"Fusion Operations – speak to me, but be warned: Psyche is very busy right now."

Mindy grinned as she enabled the far end camera and saw her eldest daughter lounging in the Kirk Chair with a large chocolate bar in one hand and a large glass of Coke in the other.

"Well, young lady, could you tear yourself away from that tasty chocolate bar for a moment?"

Stephanie almost dropped everything as she swallowed her mouthful of chocolate and placed the glass and the chocolate down on the adjacent table before stabbing a button on the arm of the chair.

"Hi, err Mum!" she smiled as Mindy appeared on the giant wall-mounted screen before her.

"Hi, Steph; you look as though you're enjoying yourself."

"It's been a slow day."

"I bet it has!" Mindy chuckled. "Has Marty got that data I requested?"

"Yes – he mentioned that you were up to no good, out there," Stephanie replied with a fiendish grin. "Shouldn't you be setting a good example for your kids?"

"Would it make a difference?" Mindy asked seriously.

Stephanie thought about that for a moment.

"Probably not," Stephanie replied.

"Hi, munchkin!" Dave called out as he entered the stateroom.

"Hi, Dad – is Mum behaving?"

Dave grinned.

"It's Mindy – what do you think?"

"Hey!" Mindy growled good-naturedly.

"Hi, Mindy: the packet is ready for us to send to your laptop," Marty commented from offscreen.

"Hi, Marty – thanks for your help," Mindy replied.

"You two stay safe," Marty called out.

"Hey, it's me!" Mindy laughed.

"That's what we're afraid of!" Marty and Stephanie said at the same time.

..._...

"You find what you needed?" Mindy asked as she dug into her chicken sandwich.

"I did – enough for us to go for a little ride, tonight, honey."

"Will I get to kill someone?"

"It's highly possible," Dave chuckled.

"Cool – I'm going to lie down, up top, for an hour or so . . . you wanna oil me up?"

Dave grinned as he wolfed down the rest of his sandwich. A few minutes later, he was very angry.

"You got shot!"

Dave glared at the twin bruises on his wife's shoulder and chest.

"It was the little bitch – her third shot missed," Mindy growled.

Dave relented as he leaned down and tenderly kissed each bruise.

That evening

National City East 19th Street

The ride had taken about thirty minutes and they had arrived at their destination after dark.

Hit Girl parked up her motorcycles, some sixty yards down the street and moved in under the cover of the darkness and numerous unlit light poles. The target was a non-descript house set back from the street. Within that house, there was a lot of cash – upwards of $200,000. It was where the cash went when it left the industrial facility. Dave had been able to track it down with information gleaned from local sources. The plan for the night was to take the place down and confiscate the cash. There was also no requirement to leave anybody alive which Mindy felt was very agreeable.

At the front of the property, three men were visible, one in the drive and the other two patrolling the front lawn. No weapons were in evidence, but they were there.

..._...

Kick-Ass made his way to the rear of the property and hopped over the concrete wall there while Hit Girl made her way towards the front of the property. The men decorating the front lawn were the first to die as Hit Girl vaulted the fence and silently severed a pair of carotid arteries.

"Well, that's the lawn watered," she muttered to herself as she moved just as silently towards the guard on the drive.

He never heard death creeping up behind him. The first he knew was when an arm wrapped itself around his neck and his head was twisted violently to the right. His dead body was dumped under a tree out of sight.

"Three down – moving towards the house," Hit Girl reported.

..._...

Kick-Ass moved silently across the back garden. No guards were evident but he knew that they would be close by. As he closed the house, a door opened and Kick-Ass hid behind the garage. A guard stepped out of the door and he lit a cigarette, his automatic weapon dangling by his side. That was his loss. He never saw the fist which came out of the darkness and smashed his head against the garage wall. A large red stain on the white wall indicated that the man was all but dead.

"One, kind of down – I'm at the back door," Kick-Ass reported.

..._...

"Breaching in three . . . two . . . one . . ."

Hit Girl ignored the door – it was armoured – and she instead crashed through a window, rolling and coming up with a suppressed pistol in each hand.

"Fuck!" came a voice.

"Not very original!" Hit Girl growled as she dropped the speaker with a single bullet to the head.

Three more men died where they stood as they tried to bring weapons to bear. There was the sound of running as two more men appeared but before Hit Girl could open fire, they both fell forwards as bullets tore into their backs. Kick-Ass stood in the doorway looking at his wife, a suppressed Glock 17 in his gauntlet.

"That was fun!" he drawled.

"Let's get the cash," Hit Girl directed and they kicked open the door to a bedroom.

Gunfire ripped out, narrowly missing the two vigilantes. Hit Girl dived inside and kicked the MAC-10 out of the hands of a large man who was evidently the guard for the large packages of cash which were stacked up all around him. The man was strong – he punched hard, much to Hit Girl's annoyance. He had obviously been selected for his guard duty because of his skill and his bulk.

As Hit Girl fought the man, she could hear more fighting outside in the corridor. Two more men had appeared from outside and they had attacked Kick-Ass. Pandemonium ensued as the two veteran vigilantes fought their attackers in close quarters combat. Kick-Ass was fighting in a corridor which prevented him from using any of his weapons – however, it also prevented his attackers from attacking in a coordinated fashion.

Hit Girl was exchanging punches and kicks when the drywall beside her suddenly exploded outwards and a body crashed down between her and her opponent. Immediately behind the body came the muscular bulk of Kick-Ass who took the opportunity to kick Hit Girl's assailant in the chest with enough force to send him crashing into another wall and destroying some more drywall. Hit Girl wasted no time in putting a bullet in his head before she ran out into the corridor and then into the kitchen.

The last man was deciding whether to attack or run, but Hit Girl made his decision for him as she kicked him into the corner of the kitchen where he fell hard against the cooker.

..._...

"I think we're done, honey!" Kick-Ass announced as they began to check out the packages of cash.

Hit Girl ran an electronic device over and around the packages looking for any transponders – she found two which she left in the room. The packages were then hefted out of the room by Kick-Ass and into the back yard. Kick-Ass jumped the wall and opened the back door of a Jeep SUV. From the back yard, Hit Girl passed over the packages of cash in a speedy fashion before they both headed back inside the house to check for anything that they had missed.

"Do I smell gas?" Hit Girl demanded.

"Oh, shit!" Kick-Ass responded as he kicked out the nearest window.

"We need to get the fuck outta here!" Hit Girl pointed out unnecessarily.

"Let's go!" Kick-Ass suggested as he picked Hit Girl up and threw her out the window.

"Hey!" she yelled as she flew through the air before coming down hard on the grass beside the house.

Kick-Ass dived after her just as there was an almighty explosion which showered the area with flaming bits of house.

"Okay – it went bang!" Hit Girl growled.

"Marcus is going to. . ."

"Marcus doesn't need to know!"

Kick-Ass rolled his eyes and he chuckled as his wife scowled.

Chapter 319*: Hit Girl in San Diego - Part II

Author's Note: Events in the first part of this chapter, and in the latter part of the previous one, will operate in parallel with Chapter 5: Escalation and Chapter 6: Take Down of my other story, Creatures of the Night.

The next afternoon

Wednesday, August 31st, 2016

Pacific Predator

"Well, that was fun," Dave commented.

"I think it is the right thing to do, don't you?"

"I just hope it doesn't backfire on us . . . or anybody else for that matter."

"I'll explain it all to Erika – she'll have the job of keeping an eye on them. It's only a couple of hours' drive, or an hour's flight time, from L.A. to here," Mindy commented.

"She's gonna love you!"

"She'll get over it – I got her the car she wanted, so she can't exactly complain if I make her life a tiny bit more complicated."

Dave just shook his head and he went back to cleaning his weapons ready for the night's action.

That night

Mid-City, just south of Downtown

It was a little after eight that night when Hit Girl and Kick-Ass broke through the outer perimeter of the industrial complex.

It had not been much of a surprise to find an increase in the number of roving guards – a direct consequence of the previous night's activities. As far as they could tell, there were about eighteen armed men and women scattered around the outside of the facility – a walk in the park as far as Hit Girl was concerned. They both wore their Fusion Covert Combat Suits or FCCS for short, just as they had on the previous evening.

Hit Girl went first – she was the more stealthy of the pair, after all. Kick-Ass followed, packing a Franchi SPAS-12 combat shotgun and a suppressed .45-calibre Glock 21. Hit Girl was packing twin suppressed .40-calibre Glock 23 pistols, as well as her numerous ever-present blades. Almost every floodlight was lit but there was plenty of shadow, not to mention that there was plenty of space to manoeuvre above the bright lights.

As soon as they closed the lights, Hit Girl preferred to take the more challenging route above – it was so much more of a challenge, she thought. Kick-Ass remained below on the ground – he felt safer on the ground. He ensured that he could see his partner at all times, just in case he had to intervene. Hit Girl knew that she was good, but she also knew that she was not invincible, so knowing that Kick-Ass was close by filled her with a feeling of well-being.

The first man fell to Kick-Ass, much to Hit Girl's annoyance. The man had stepped into a suitable shadow so that he could have a cigarette.

"Well, they do say cigarettes kill," Kick-Ass quipped.

"Funny, green asshole!"

Hit Girl swung down from the pipe network, hanging upside down as she dropped two guards with her pistols.

"That's two to your one – your move!" she growled as she flipped down to the ground.

Kick-Ass chuckled as he kept moving.

..._...

"That's three to your two, honey!" Kick-Ass laughed as he drove the butt of his shotgun into the head of one and then the other guard.

Hit Girl was getting angry – she was not about to be upstaged by a dick in a wetsuit! Then she paused as she came around the far side of the facility – there was a body on the ground, lying on her back. On closer inspection, Hit Girl found the knife wound in the chest. Just the single stab wound, nothing more. There was no sign of a struggle, either, indicating a professional strike out of the darkness.

"We have company, Kick-Ass – we have a Predator, maybe two."

"I thought I was getting a week away from goddamn crazy nutcase killers!" Kick-Ass growled.

"What about me?"

"You're not crazy," Kick-Ass pointed out.

"So, I'm a nutcase as well as a killer?"

"I would say so."

"Let's get on with this before they get all the kills!"

..._...

It was crucial to gain entry to the facility before the men inside realised that something was wrong – if they were concerned for their safety, then they might kill their workers. Kick-Ass and Hit Girl put down a guard each before they headed for the target building and quickly made their way inside. It felt good to Hit Girl to be inside the building with clothes on; she was not repeating that exercise.

They closed from the southern end of the building and stopped within the confines of the shadows, a few feet from the dazzlingly bright arc lights. As before, there was a group of about thirty naked women going about their taskings. Watching over them, were twelve armed men, a combination of pistols and automatic weapons in evidence. At the head of the T-shaped table, a large guard stood before the counting room where there appeared to be heavy security – at least six men were visible around the man who was busy counting a large amount of cash – obviously eager to make up for what they had lost.

Hit Girl looked over at Kick-Ass.

"You ready for this?" she asked.

"You really have to ask?"

"Nah! Fire in the hole!"

With that, they each threw a pair of M84 stun grenades into the light.

..._...

The detonation of seven stun grenades, each good for 180 decibels, was monumental and the entire building shook as the sound reverberated around the metal work, amplified as it bounced around. The million-candela flash multiplied seven times was just as monumental and every person within the facility (excepting the four vigilantes) reeled in pain from the combined effects of disorientation, confusion, loss of balance, and loss of coordination. They all suffered from intense inner ear disturbance, tinnitus, and deafness – not to mention the flash blindness.

Kick-Ass and Hit Girl, protected from the effects by their high-tech masks, rushed forwards and pushed the naked girls to the floor while they targeted the guards. The additional three M84s had been a rude surprise but not entirely unexpected. It was obvious that the opposing team was present and following a very similar plan of action. It was also equally obvious that they had not expected the additional M84s and Hit Girl could see a pair of black-clad forms rolling about on the ground a few feet from the incapacitated gunmen.

"I'm going for the Predators – you get the girls moving!" Hit Girl ordered and she ran over towards the two girls.

"Fucking get up!" she yelled as she pulled them both to their feet.

The taller one was the first to respond, shaking her head and then pulling away as she took in who had helped her. She pulled her younger friend with her.

"Watch yourselves!"

Hit Girl drew her pistols and she began to drop any guard within sight. Kick-Ass was visible pulling naked girls to their feet and shoving them bodily towards the exit. Most were responding but some of the younger ones were struggling from the effects of the explosions and bright flashes, not to mention the sounds of gunfire which was echoing around the building. It was obvious that some of the guards had responded well to the grenades – maybe they were used to the non-lethal weapons. Either way, they were responding with everything that they had to hand.

But then so was Hit Girl.

..._...

The guards were organised – they were protecting their money and the man counting the money. The standoff was obviously intended to give the men in the backroom time to pack up the cash and make a run for it. The backroom had a back exit – typically. However, when one of the guards tried to open it.

"Hey! The damn door is stuck!"

Yeah – Kick-Ass had kind of pushed a large dumpster against the outside of the door . . . seemed the right thing to do at the time. The language that flowed out of the room was borderline extreme – even by Hit Girl's standards. The gunfire increased as the guards made to push their escape. Then one of them made a stupid mistake – he threw a smoke grenade out towards the machinery in a bid to cover their escape.

The heat generated by the device as it issued copious amounts of white smoke set fire to a pile of oily rags. It did not take long for the additional black smoke to begin filling the building.

"Fucking, cretins!" Hit Girl breathed.

"Well, that puts a clock on things," Kick-Ass pointed out.

"Yeah – we'll have fire and police here in minutes," Hit Girl agreed as she made her way through the smoke.

Bullets were being fired off, indiscriminately in all directions and in some cases, they then ricocheted off the steel work back down to earth in unexpected directions. Kick-Ass saw four men were escorting the money man. He was a fat man and choking on the thick smoke as he was pushed forwards and in the direction of assumed safety. The five men made their way down behind an enormous piece of machinery.

Kick-Ass followed, trying to get into a good position to take down the guards, all of whom carried automatic weapons. Hit Girl made a wide sweep to try and flank them. As she went, she found a firefight in progress which appeared to end as a gunman sprawled to the ground, blood spilling out of his torn torso. Two more gunmen took off, so Hit Girl dropped them both with a couple of rounds each.

Hit Girl noticed the taller girl over by some machinery, the younger girl next to her. Hit Girl waved a hand in their direction before she dived into the swirling black smoke.

..._...

Kick-Ass kept up a running commentary over the communications as he tracked the five men through the facility. Hit Girl, meanwhile, was closing in from her own direction. They were making their way towards the southern end of the facility – towards the water. Hit Girl assumed that they had a waterborne escape planned. She could also hear sirens wailing in the distance over the sounds of the crackling flames.

"They're just approaching the back exit – hold on . . . I just got a look through a gap in the smoke; the girls are down. You think you can handle the goons?"

"I should be insulted that you would even suggest that I could not handle a five to one fight – but I know you like to worry, so I'll let it slide."

Kick-Ass chuckled to himself as she jumped onto a catwalk and ran through the smoke, his mask protecting him from the worst and his low-light vision allowing him to move at speed.

..._...

The two girls were both on the ground, coughing and spluttering. The younger one looked to be in a bad way while the older one was struggling to stay conscious. Kick-Ass jumped down behind them and without a moment's thought, he swept up both girls and he ran in the direction of the five running gunmen.

As he came closer, he could hear the sounds of mayhem and mutilation that could only be attributed to Hit Girl on a rampage. Indeed, the southern end of the facility was relatively smoke free and as such he was able to see his vigilante companion as she flew through the air, twin Wakizashi swords in her hands. One man was already badly mutilated and he lay in a growing pool of his own blood. Two more men were impaled and then eviscerated as Hit Girl regained her feet to face the final gunman and his overweight protectee.

The gunman made a feeble effort to fill the air with lead but to no avail as Hit Girl bent and twisted her body before coming to rest behind the gunman and she drove both blades into his back, allowing him to fall to the ground as she turned to the money man.

"Take it – it's yours, all of it. Please . . . just let me live. . ."

The wimpy fuck was crying as he begged for his life. Hit Girl was not one to give mercy. Yes, she had changed and matured over the years and she chose who and when to kill. However, there were certain people who she came across that turned her back into that feral creature which Kick-Ass had first discovered slaughtering cunts in a downtown apartment. Kick-Ass knew when to steer well clear and allow his partner to dish out her own form of vengeance and justice. The money man fell beside his guards, his insides spilling out around him as he bled out. The pain was beyond anything which he had ever experienced and he went to hell with his own steaming intestines being the last thing which he would ever see.

..._...

The area behind the facility, on the south side was relatively safe; all the police and firemen were towards the north end where the fire was raging at its worst. Kick-Ass had laid the two girls out in the recovery position and he had given each of them a blast of pure oxygen to relieve their lungs. Both were still out cold. Hit Girl took a moment to check behind the right ear of each girl while they lay unconscious. She was very surprised on checking the younger of the two girls and finding nothing there. Whatever their story was, it had to be a good one.

After a comprehensive sweep to ensure that the girls were safe and secure, Kick-Ass and Hit Girl returned to the two vigilantes for a moment before leaving the scene.

"Sleep tight," Hit Girl said to the older girl as she and Kick-Ass blended into the swirling smoke.

Late the following afternoon
Thursday, September 1st

Chicago

"Why are you staring at my ass?"

"Just imagining what it'll look like once Marcus has finished spanking you."

Mindy's cheeks went pink at the suggestion.

"How about you spank me?"

Dave smiled wistfully as he walked towards the hatch. Once he was on the concrete, he managed to walk almost ten feet before the sprinting Stephanie slammed into him and her arms gripped him tightly around the waist.

"Dad!"

"Good to see you, Steph," Dave replied as he hugged his daughter back. "Any chance I can be allowed to breathe?"

Stephanie grinned up at Dave as she released him.

"She's been insatiable, ever since I picked her up, this morning," Paige laughed. "Marcus has taken Megan, Anne-Marie, and Danny into the office with him. We'll pick them up – assuming they haven't destroyed the District – on the way home, Dave."

"Suits me," Dave commented. "Hi, Electra – you okay?"

"Yes, thanks, Dave – Stephanie has been keeping me very busy."

"You two been mile-highing?" Paige quipped.

"I'm not one to kiss and tell," Mindy grinned deviously as she joined Dave.

"Ewww! Do we need to clean off the seats before I sit down?"

"Oh, yeah, little Stephy!" Mindy chuckled.

"See you, Dad!" Stephanie called out as she scampered for the steps and vanished aboard the jet followed by Electra who waved at Dave.

"You be good, now," Dave suggested.

"I can't promise anything," Mindy replied as she gave her husband a very deep and very passionate kiss which had Paige blushing.

..._...

Once aboard, and with the hatch shut, Mindy turned to Stephanie.

"You gave Dave a hug, why not me?"

"You get better, Mum," Stephanie grinned. "You get me, on a plane, for seven hours!"

Mindy laughed nervously.

"Where are the parachutes," she commented dryly.

"This could be a very long flight," Electra added.

"With you aboard, yes!" Stephanie countered and she was still grinning as she planted herself in a seat and strapped herself in. "Well, I want to know all about those explosions in San Diego – Marcus says he wants to tan your arse!"

"It was an accident – well, kind of. . ."

"Okay, Mother – let's hear it."

"This ought to be good," Electra grinned.

..._...

Mindy awoke part way into the flight and headed aft to make use of the bathroom. On her return through the darkened cabin, she noticed that Electra was awake. The two girls had gone to sleep on the same settee.

"You okay, honey?" Mindy asked and Electra nodded.

Mindy sat back down where she had been sleeping and she saw Electra eyeing up the seat next her.

"Come and sit down beside me and we can talk," Mindy suggested.

"Thanks."

Once Electra was settled, with her legs crossed and facing Mindy, Mindy spoke.

"I have a question, Electra. I noticed that Steph calls you 'lectra – dropping the 'E'. I also noticed that when Megan tried that, you nearly ripped her head off."

Electra smiled.

"Stephanie was the first to call me that . . . and, well I liked it – but from her only. Mindy – you can call me 'lectra too, if you'd like."

"Thanks, 'lectra. You and Stephanie have a history; I know that . . . but there's more, I think."

"Stephanie was the first person to treat me like a human-being. I was a Yellow, as you know. Nobody paid any attention to us Yellows – not that I ever blamed the Predators; they had a lot on their plates and they were treated pretty harshly. I found that out . . . once I became a Predator myself. Anyway – even though Stephanie was in a cage, stark naked, she still had the time to treat me like a human being. I first met her, when she came under my custody for two weeks of hell in The Cage. When she was brought in, naked, she was unconscious – they had beaten her really badly. Then she noticed a blackeye, one morning. Despite her privations, she taught me how to protect myself from the Yellow who had punched me. Without her, I would be dead – Yellows never got a chance to prove themselves; Stephanie got me that chance.

"Okay, it went badly for me, at first – I got stabbed and slashed, but Stephanie stayed with me the whole time. Yes, she had no choice, but she helped me way more than I thought she ever would. I love her more than anybody else, ever – I have nobody, but Stephanie. She's a really strong girl – putting up with being a Predator, then she gets stuck with me. No matter what anybody throws at that girl, she always pushes through it. I feel blessed having found Stephanie and then I was rescued by Cassie's Dad – any other ship and I don't know. He was the first to treat me as a human being, since Stephanie. That was why I gave up fighting and allowed him to rescue me."

"Thank you for telling me that, 'lectra – you've been very brave for anybody, let alone somebody your age."

"You know something, Mindy. You are nothing like what we were told Hit Girl was like. We were told that she only thought of herself and didn't care about anybody."

"They were right – at least until I found Dave and then Chloe. Together, they introduced me to my emotions. I found that I could really care about somebody and I found that I liked caring about people. It was hard; really hard. Then I became a parent – what I felt when Anne-Marie was taken; I had never felt those feelings before. But the feeling when I finally found her. . . Then, a couple months back, when Stephanie was shot, I felt so empty. I worried about how I could go on without Stephanie in my life. She lights up my world – I love her. Each time she died; I died inside. She's a very special girl and I'm learning things from her, just as she is learning things from me."

"Thank you for telling me – you've made me part of your worldwide family. The family of Fusion, with its cousin, Vengeance."

"Let's get some sleep and we can talk again over breakfast," Mindy suggested.

..._...

With a little over an hour before landing, Mindy awoke and she stretched her long legs.

"Coffee, Mindy?" Amy asked from the galley.

"Thank you," Mindy replied as she took the steaming mug of coffee.

"Breakfast will be along in about ten minutes," Amy added as she returned to the galley.

Mindy looked across at the sleeping Stephanie and Electra. Like most little girls that age, they both appeared angelic while sleeping. Dave referred to Stephanie as a coiled viper when she was sleeping. The euphemism was very apt, considering that the girl could go from asleep to defensive in an instant. Mindy gently shook her daughter by the shoulder until she snapped awake and groaned.

"I need to wee!" she exclaimed as she suddenly bolted up and ran aft to the head.

A few minutes later, Stephanie reappeared looking refreshed and neat – having taken the time to tidy her hair and wash her face. Electra had awoken and was awaiting Stephanie's return, so she quickly scrambled aft to the head just as needy for the facilities.

"Morning, Mum – morning, Amy!" Stephanie called out.

"Morning, sweetie," Mindy replied.

"Good morning, Stephanie," Amy replied as she placed a glass of orange juice down at a table for Stephanie, plus another for Electra.

"Thank you. Umm, that smells good – I'm ravenous," Stephanie commented as she sat down.

"What's new!" Mindy chuckled as she sat down opposite her daughter.

They were joined a few minutes later by Electra who also looked much more herself as she sat down and took a long gulp of orange juice.

Amy reappeared with three steaming plates piled high with bacon, eggs, sausages, baked beans, and hash browns. Electra and Stephanie smiled broadly as they got stuck in.

"Thank you, Amy – have you all eaten?"

"Yes, thank you, Mindy."

"I hope you enjoy your time in Edinburgh – we won't be needing the jet till the weekend."

"Oh, we have plans!" Amy grinned.

..._...

"You two enjoy your heart-to-heart, then?" Stephanie asked as she munched her way down a sausage.

Electra's face went pink.

"How much did you hear?" she asked.

"A good amount," Stephanie replied, her own face turning pink. "It's not often I hear somebody say such nice things about me."

"I meant every word, Steph," Electra confirmed.

"You are a very special girl, Steph," Mindy added. "Despite your antics. . ."

"Thanks, Mum – it feels good to have people like me for who I am," Stephanie said meekly.

"At least the nice side, which is usually overshadowed by the bitchy Psyche who thinks she's the queen-bee," Electra stated as she finished bacon.

Stephanie grinned as she downed her orange juice.

"I must have been a very bad person in a former life to have to suffer you two," Mindy complained as she stabbed an errant hash brown.

"Past life – you looked at yourself in this life?" Stephanie quipped and she ignored the icy 'Hit Girl' stare.

"Once upon a time, I was feared by all, even Kick-Ass – now I get no respect whatsoever!"

"When she moans, she moans!" Stephanie commented to Electra.

"Does she ever!" Electra replied as Mindy scowled.

Inside, Mindy felt happier than she had been in a while. For once she appeared to be getting something right in life and she had her family that she adored and who appeared to adore her in return. Her life was perfect and she hoped that her Daddy was proud of her, wherever he was.

"Right, you little varmints – I would suggest that you both finish your food because we're going to be landing very soon," Mindy growled good-naturedly.

"She does like to growl, doesn't she?" Electra commented.

"She's not called a bitch for nothing," Stephanie replied. "Dave says she likes having her tummy rubbed, too."

Mindy's face went very pink as she drained her coffee mug and headed aft, ignoring the snickering coming from the two little girls.

Chapter 320*: Back To School

Saturday, September 3rd, 2016

Blairhoyle, Scotland

"I honestly can't believe that I'm saying this to you, Abigail, but you stay safe, okay? We may be mortal enemies but we both love a boy for very different reasons and we both want to see him back in our lives."

"We'll find him, Stephanie – I promise. You stay safe, too, okay – we need a rematch, you and I."

"I'll be there, bitch!" Stephanie grinned as she turned to a very tearful Electra. "I'm going to miss you 'lectra, but at least I'll be free from your snarky comments. Now, don't you let these bitches get one over on you, okay? Remember everything that I've taught you. You're a survivor."

Electra hugged her mentor, tears streaming down her face like Niagara Falls.

"She talkin' about us?" Kaitlin asked facetiously.

"Think so," Naomi replied.

"Cool!" Harper added.

After more hugs, all around, Stephanie and Mindy left for the airport and home.

Tuesday, September 6th

Glenview

Chicago, United States of America

"Are we not picking Megan up?"

"No, Anne-Marie; Megan is starting Junior High, today," Stephanie advised her younger sister.

Anne-Marie nodded and then an evil smirk drifted across her face.

"Bet a certain boy is looking forward to seeing you," she teased her big sister.

Stephanie turned around in the front seat of the Jaguar XJR and glared at Anne-Marie.

"Well, you did take longer to get ready than you usually do," Mindy admitted.

"I have a weak right arm," Stephanie responded lamely as her cheeks turned pink.

"Yeah, right!" Mindy laughed.

"You do look very smart, Steph," Danny said.

"Thank you, Danny."

Lake View High School

"Hi, Megan – you ready for high school?"

"Hi, Chloe – yeah, I think so."

"What's up?"

"Talk about a humiliating morning . . . Mom – she was crying this morning because her little girl was starting high school!"

Chloe laughed.

"Been there – Mom cried on the phone this morning; 'her big girl is growing up too fast', apparently."

Megan was a little surprised at Chloe's candidness. Chloe grinned.

"Megan – you're my friend and you're like a sister to me; I have no secrets from you, all that's in the past."

Chloe ruffled Megan's hair generating a scowl.

"Bennett, I hope you aren't bullying the new kids."

"No, Mr Swanson; just checking that Megan is okay," Chloe grinned as Isaac Swanson winked and sauntered off down the corridor.

"Megan!"

"Hi, Zach."

"Wow, you look hot!"

"Hell, yeah!" Jake added.

Megan blushed.

"She's done a lot of growing over the summer, boys, but she could do with a little bit more hair down below," Chloe teased and Megan's mouth dropped open in shocked astonishment.

"Can I see?"

"No, you cannot!" Megan responded tartly, her cheeks a fiery red. "I do not just flash my naked body for anybody. . ."

"Nah, just a dozen people, or so. . ." an Irish lilt quipped.

Megan scowled at the grinning Saoirse as she walked past with Morgan.

"Chloe!"

..._...

Chloe turned to find her two best friends moving towards her through the throng of excited teenagers. Avery and Riley hugged their friend tightly.

"You've been busy, girl!" Avery pointed out.

Chloe rolled her eyes, knowing exactly what she meant. She was not referring to Chloe, but to her alter ego, the vigilante known as Shadow.

"We were worried about you – we never saw all that much of you," Riley said. "How's Stephanie?"

"She's had a rough time over the summer – really rough – but she's pulled through."

"I heard that Shadow was injured," Avery said very quietly.

"Yeah – arrow in my thigh; it was sore as hell, I can tell you."

"You better now?"

"Yeah."

North Park Elementary School

"Stephanie!"

The ten-year-old paused and she closed her eyes, wishing that she was invisible.

"I won't ask if you had a good summer, as I know you didn't. We're really glad to see you up and about, not to mention in one piece."

"Thanks, Jackson."

The eyes of Jackson and Craig wandered all over Stephanie's body and she felt a little weird.

"You look really nice, Steph – I like the skirt," Katy offered.

"Despite what some may think; I am a girl," Stephanie pointed out with a grin.

"Taken you long enough to realise that!" Ali commented dryly.

..._...

Almost from the moment she had set foot out of the car, that morning, Stephanie had been mobbed by well-wishers and curious kids wanting to find out more about the shooting, several weeks previously. There was even an argument between a group of boys about which one was going to carry Stephanie's schoolbag – eventually, Stephanie just left them arguing and carried her own bag to class.

The teachers, too, were very curious, but happy to see the rambunctious ten-year-old back at the school. While they often tired of Stephanie's behaviour and often violent and foul-mouthed outbursts, she was a firm favourite amongst the teaching body as a whole. Stephanie was quick to show her anger and even quicker to resort to physical violence, but she would never hurt anybody younger than herself and she was very quick to defend any youngster who was being bullied.

Indeed, in the months that Stephanie had been attending the school, the bullying statistics had dropped sharply. Her aunt, Megan Williams, had also seen to a lot of the bullies but Megan had deigned to be less obvious and overt about her threats of violence. Stephanie had been warned about vigilantism in the school, but the fact that she only targeted active bullies allowed the school to turn a blind eye to Stephanie's actions. It usually only took her arrival outside at recess for the bullies and troublemakers to fade into the background and the more timid children to come to the fore and enjoy their time outside the classroom.

Stephanie was a very popular pupil and education-wise, she was very intelligent.

That evening

Glenview

"Mindy, when are we going downtown?" Stephanie asked almost the moment they had all arrived home.

"Not tonight, honey."

"Why?" Stephanie demanded petulantly

"Less of that tone, young lady – homework, please."

"I want to go downtown – I can do my homework there."

"No Psyche on a school night."

"Fuck, that!"

"Stephanie! That is enough – get upstairs, now!" Dave roared.

Stephanie glared at Dave and then Mindy before she ran up the stairs, muttering and swearing.

"I'm off to do my homework – see you at dinner," Danny called out as he headed off up the stairs.

"Pussy!" Anne-Marie called after him.

"Anne-Marie!" Mindy growled.

The eight-year-old grimaced.

"I know. Anne-Marie: put a buck in the jar. Anne-Marie: go do your homework."

Mindy smiled as the young girl dejectedly stuffed a dollar bill into her personal swear jar and then she headed up the stairs.

..._...

Up in the British Sector, Stephanie was calming herself down as she sat at her desk, her school books laid out before her. Mindy had been absolutely right and she had just behaved like a petulant child just because she could not get her own way. That annoyed Stephanie. She was trying to act more mature, hoping that Dave and Mindy might see that she was growing up and that she was due some more responsibility. That idea had failed in a most spectacular way!

Stephanie picked up her mobile and she sent a text:

Sorry Mum :)

A few seconds later, a response arrived:

No harm done :)

..._...

Downstairs in the kitchen, Mindy smiled as she read the next message:

Love you Mum

Stephanie was growing up and showing increasing levels of maturity way beyond her years. But then, Predators had been encouraged to grow up and mature much faster than they needed. Mindy was very pleased with how the girl was growing up. Mindy's cell beeped again:

Steph is sending texts instead of doing her homework :)

It was Anne-Marie trying to get Stephanie into trouble.

Steph is talking with ME!

The reply arrived a second or two later:

busted :(

"Let me guess," Dave chuckled as he saw his wife's expression. "Anne-Marie trying to get Stephanie into trouble?"

Mindy nodded as she sipped her coffee.

"Steph's doing well. Must be hormones – kind of reminds me of another girl about the same age. . ."

"I was older. . ."

"Still suffering from hormones – I mean; she was a fucking show off, but a moody bitch, too."

"I suppose, I was," Mindy admitted, "a little hormonal."

"A little!"

"Funny!"

That evening

D-JAK Prime

It was a busy evening.

As Mindy left the back office wearing her black Gi, she looked over her burgeoning clientele. Many faces were recognisable – indeed, many were her friends while others were her friends but they had no idea that Mindy was their friend having only met her in her Hit Girl guise.

In the introductory class, with Kyle, were five teenage friends: Elizabeth, Jesse, Kate, Laurence, and Peter. To most at D-JAK, they were just five friends all learning to defend themselves. To Mindy, they were Synthesis, the hacker arm of Fusion. The kids were true to their word (or just scared of Hit Girl) and as such, they turned up regularly to learn the art of self-defence – with a few extra skills thrown in.

Further over, the intermediate class was being taught by Megan and Curtis, who each wore a blue Gi. In that class were two sisters: Lauren and Lizzie. In the same class were two of Chloe's friends: Avery and Riley. Avery enjoyed throwing her friend down to the mat but Riley was also quick to put Avery down, just as hard. Megan or Curtis would usually stay close to Lauren as the girl would sometimes get a little carried away when she sparred against her sister.

The advanced class was being taught by Hailee with help from Saoirse. That class had a certain young girl learning advanced skills. Her name was Kelly and she was something very special. So special, that only half-a-dozen people knew that she was a double-agent. The girl had no idea that the smiling young woman in the black Gi had an alter ego for whom she was now working clandestinely.

..._...

Over in a distant corner of D-JAK, were Stephanie and Tommy.

Mindy noticed that something appeared off, the moment she approached. Stephanie was making use of the punch bag with Tommy to help - the two youngsters had been spending quite a bit of time together since Stephanie's return from the hospital and Tommy was helping his friend to regain her previous peak physical condition.

Almost immediately, Mindy noticed that Stephanie seemed annoyed about something and her face was pinker than usual – and not just from the exercise. Mindy looked past the youngsters and she rolled her eyes as she found a very good reason for Stephanie being annoyed – actually three of them. Joshua and Chloe, along with Anne-Marie, were talking together and by Anne-Marie's giggles, Mindy assumed they were all up to no good.

"I suppose you could be right; there is something showing, well two somethings – not much, though. . ." Chloe commented as she studied Stephanie from a safe distance.

"You sure; I can't see anything?" Joshua replied with an evil grin.

"They're there," Anne-Marie assured them both. "I've seen 'em – a bit like fried eggs."

Stephanie was wearing a sports bra while she exercised her weakened right arm. Naturally, the garment matched the contours of her body and yes, there were two very gentle mounds on her chest.

"Yeah – I suppose you could call those breasts," Chloe continued.

Mindy groaned, figuring that Stephanie was on the verge of exploding – the body language of the ten-year-old was unmistakable.

"Enough – Chloe, Joshua, Anne-Marie," Mindy said, attracting everybody's attention. "Chloe, according to your mother, Stephanie has bigger boobs at ten than you had when you were twelve. Anne-Marie, I am going to allow Stephanie to respond as she sees fit – don't look at me like that; I'm sure it will be quick, but very painful. . . Joshua – how about you spar one on one with Tommy; I am sure he will be fair."

"Sorry, Steph," an embarrassed looking Chloe said.

"Yeah – just joking around," Joshua added.

"Just winding you up a bit – you'd never hurt your little sister," Anne-Marie tried.

Stephanie just scowled at each of them in turn.

..._...

Stephanie smiled at Mindy as she headed towards the back office for a drink. As she went, she heard a yell of pain from Joshua as Tommy laid him out on the mat, closely followed by a scream from Chloe as she was thrown on top of her boyfriend. Anne-Marie had fled. Stephanie saw Saoirse standing with Paige and she altered course.

"So, the ungrateful bitch returns," Saoirse commented as Stephanie approached her.

"Yeah – I spoke out of turn, but I'm glad to have a best friend to set me straight," the chastened Stephanie replied as she surprised her best friend by giving her a hug.

"You can be a big softy, Stephy," Saoirse laughed as she returned the hug.

"About that. . ." Stephanie muttered as she pulled away and punched her friend in the left breast. "I have a reputation to uphold, you know."

"You bitch!" Saoirse called out as she rubbed her breast.

"That's better!" the laughing Stephanie called out as she bolted to safety.

"When you grow some tits, I will make you pay!" Saoirse yelled after the retreating girl.

..._...

Mindy just shook her head as she saw her daughter laughing while she sprinted across D-JAK. Stephanie was still favouring her right arm and that was affecting her running, but not by all that much. The swimming plus a strict training regime had ensured that her arm was returning to full functionality. It had been very painful but with the help of her family and friends, Stephanie had pushed through and she was very close to the home straight.

Saoirse was the driving force behind Stephanie's recovery and Mindy knew that she owed the fifteen-year-old. Maybe Saoirse felt guilt over her attempts at killing Stephanie, so she wanted to do everything that she could to help Stephanie recover from her wounds. Whatever the bond was between them, they were inseparable and they both needed each other. Seeing Stephanie laughing was amazing considering what the poor girl had endured over the previous few months.

Stephanie finally calmed down but Anne-Marie refused to sit next to her in the car on the drive home.

The following afternoon
Wednesday, September 7th

Morton Grove

"Hi, honey!"

"Hi, Mom!"

"For what do I owe this little visit?"

"Is Curtis in?"

"He's – how should I put it – entertaining Megan, 'downtown'."

Chloe was staring down at the floor, unable to meet her mother's eyes. The sixteen-year-old's body language made her mother wary of what was coming next.

"I've missed my second period in a row . . . and . . . a few weeks back, we had a condom rip. . . Mommy, I'm scared."

Those last two words were a phrase which Doctor Catherine Bennett had not heard her daughter say in a long, long time. It was also something that she had never expected to ever hear coming from the mouth of the famed Fusion vigilante known as Shadow.

"Well, honey, it shows me that you're taking your new situation seriously."

"You're not mad?"

"I'm a little angry and very worried – you are only sixteen, but I trust you, and I know that you took precautions. You are not the careless young girl from three years ago; it is not your fault. Does Joshua know?"

"About the busted condom? Yes. That I'm pregnant? Not yet."

"What do you think he will say?"

"He'll support me, whatever decision I take; he loves me and he respects me."

"I know he does, honey."

"What am I going to do? I'm only sixteen!"

"Well, in seven months, or so, you are going to become a mother, and Joshua a father."

"Josh a Dad. . . Oh, God – what will Daddy say?"

"He'll be mad, but he loves you very much and I know that he trusts both you and Josh, so I don't see any real problems there."

Chloe sank down onto a couch and she began to cry.

The following evening

Glenview

Mindy had just learnt of Chloe's situation.

"I'm taking you off operations, Chloe."

"I know. What am I going to do, Mindy?"

"If I can bring up a kid, you can!" Mindy pointed out.

Chloe forced a smile.

"I should be happy, but I'm just scared."

"That's what I said to Marcus when we returned from Gotham with the twins."

"I'm too young for kids – I'm. . ."

"Everybody stood by me when I gained the twins – they'll do the same for you. You have a very big family, Chloe."

"I know."

Chloe began crying again. Mindy had no idea what to do, so she just hugged her best friend. It wasn't the first time that Mindy had cursed her Daddy for not teaching her how to cope with emotions rather than just teaching her how to block the damn things out! Dave had spoken with Joshua – who had taken the news of impending fatherhood in his stride – and discovered that Joshua was scared stiff about the responsibility of bringing up a child. Mindy had heard Dave's response – and growled at it.

"I was scared at the thought of bringing up the twins and then Stephanie, but then I figured that I had survived Mindy going through puberty, so nothing could possibly be worse than that!"

Joshua had laughed.

Chapter 321*: The First Ones

November 2006 – Operation Treadstone and Operation Blackbriar come apart. Dr Albert Hirsch and CIA Deputy Director Noah Vossen continue their research into the ultimate assassin.

September 25th, 2009 – Big Daddy is murdered, live on the internet. Hit Girl is, very briefly, shown to the world, live on the internet.

November 31st, 2009 - Dr Albert Hirsch and CIA Deputy Director Noah Vossen instigate the Urban Predator program.

January 6th, 2010 – The first Urban Predator student is recruited and trained in Hit Girl's image.

They were the first – the very first.

They were the first victims of the experiment which would ultimately result in the deaths of hundreds and lead to the loss and the destruction of hundreds of childhoods.

At the tender age of ten, neither of them had any idea of what it was that they were beginning. For the first eight months of the program, the two youngsters; one boy and one girl, were very much alone – other than having their adult instructors for company. As time wore on, they both forgot about their early lives; they were both street rats – nobody would miss them, nobody would file a police report.

The girl quickly forgot about the night when she was seized from the Hawaiian beach. The boy quickly forgot about the night when he was seized from the frozen streets of London. They both quickly forgot about being normal children.

Instead, they focussed only on what was ahead of them as their Instructors turned them into finely tuned killers; a tool to be used and quite literally, abused.

By the time they were both eleven-years-old, nine months after they had been taken, any recollection of life beyond the concrete walls where they were to exist for the next five years of their lives, had faded completely.

Wednesday, January 6th, 2010

The first twenty-four hours of her incarceration were a very rude awakening for the girl.

She was seized off that beach in Hawaii, in the dead of night, thrown into the back of a car, and then pushed aboard a large cargo aircraft. The flight appeared to take hours, somewhere close to seven, and it was very noisy and uncomfortable. The girl was dazed by her swift abduction and she was being moved around so fast that she never even considered resisting.

After landing, again at night, she was hauled off the aircraft into a cold habitat that was very different to the tropical islands of Hawaii. Before she could see very much, she was bundled into an SUV and driven a few miles to a large concrete building that seemed to appear out of nowhere.

Then had begun her induction into the world of the Predator.

Within minutes of entering the building, the ten-year-old found herself summarily stripped and shoved into a shower.

Her clothing vanished from sight during that shower and when she was finished, she was handed a white towel and dragged off to see a thoroughly unpleasant female doctor. After a host of very invasive and incredibly thorough examinations, and despite her forceful objections, her long dirty blond hair was cut short and the remainder shaved to a number 4 cut. Finally, a plastic bracelet was attached to her right wrist and another to her left ankle.

She was sent back for another shower and as the remains of her lovely hair was washed off her body, the girl began to shake as the reality of her situation hit her like a block of concrete. After the shower, she was led down several concrete corridors, barefoot on the concrete floor, to a room. The door was opened, she was pushed inside, and the door was pulled closed behind her – then locked. She was alone for the first time in many hours. She had no idea where she was. Her only possession was a white towel wrapped around her body.

The room was about three metres long by four metres wide and finished off with concrete on the walls, floor, and ceiling. Four light fittings were sunk into the walls and they provided illumination for the room. The girl reached for the light switch by the door and flicked it – the lights went off . . . and back on again as she flicked the switch back. Other than the lights and the light switch, there was a bed, a desk with a chair, and a three-drawer unit beside the bed. All were made of steel and bolted to the floor. On the wall, adjacent to the door was a full-length steel mirror – the girl frowned at her new reflection; she hated it.

There was another door, off to the left. It led to a very small bathroom that consisted of a shower stall, a sink, and a toilet – again all were steel, even the mirror over the sink. The girl returned to the bedroom and she pulled open the drawers . . . they were full of clothing – all sorts of clothing. She pulled out a pair of white boy-shorts and a white T-shirt. These, she pulled on after shedding the towel. Then she sat on the bed which was made up with a pink duvet and two white pillows over a white sheet.

She pulled her knees up under her chin and as she sat there, she began to cry.

Thursday, January 7th, 2010

The boy awoke in his concrete cell.

He had slept surprisingly well. The bed was comfortable; the best that he had slept in . . . probably ever. But it was not that; he had been exhausted when he had been pushed into his cell the previous day, wearing nothing but a white towel. He had been stripped, showered, probed by a very unpleasant female doctor, and then his head was shaved leaving barely half-an-inch of hair on his scalp. Another enforced shower had been followed by the fitting of a pair of permanent plastic bracelets on his left ankle and right wrist.

His 'cell', maybe bedroom would be a better description, was well equipped and he had found a pair of boxer shorts in a set of drawers full of clothing – surprisingly, all the clothing was in his sizes.

..._...

He thought back over the past few days. That night in London when two people, a man and a woman, had grabbed him off the very cold streets and then thrown him into the back of a white Ford Transit van. His questions and demands and gone unanswered as he was driven through the night and he soon found himself at an airfield where a large passenger aircraft, with jet engines mounted at the base of a large T-shaped tail, sat with the engines screaming. A man pulled him out of the van and he was taken aboard the jet which took off minutes later.

After landing, many hours later, it was still night, and he was hauled off the aircraft into a cool habit that was very different to the frozen streets of London. Before he could see very much, he was bundled into an SUV and driven a few miles to a large concrete building that seemed to appear out of nowhere.

Then had begun his induction into the world of the Predator.

One week later. . .

It was time for the two recruits to become aware of one another.

They had been kept separate until their instructors were happy that the mind-bending drugs which the youngsters had been fed had started to take proper effect on their young minds. Both ten-year-olds were very strong-willed, especially the girl. It had not been easy keeping them apart – both were naturally curious children and they had spent many hours investigating their new home – another reason to bring them together.

Naturally, the instructors had a cruel streak, so they had devised a smart plan for putting the two kids together.

..._...

Both kids had been undergoing intensive physical training that morning and it was coming up to lunchtime. Therefore, both headed for the showers – up until then, they had used their own changing rooms. But that morning, the boy, just after he had stripped and stepped under the hot water, was ordered into the next door changing room. He thought nothing of the steam already belching out from the showers, assuming that somebody had turned on the hot water for him – as if! It was only when a slim, pale-skinned arm appeared out of the steam followed by a . . .

"Who are you?" the boy demanded.

The girl was momentarily startled to hear another voice in the showers, but then stunned to see a naked boy standing before her.

"L – Lucy. . . Who. . .?"

The boy's eyes drifted lower as the steam drifted and his face went pink. Lucy quickly covered herself.

"My name . . . err, Leo. . ."

Lucy laughed, shook her head, and then shouted into the steam.

"Funny bastards!"

Leo's eyes snapped back to Lucy's face.

"Devious would be my comment," he offered as he began to soap himself.

"You been here long?" the embarrassed Lucy asked as she retreated deeper into the showers and was soon hidden by the steam.

"About a week, you?"

"Same."

..._...

Lunch that day was a funny affair. The two kids sat opposite one another, eating their hotdogs in silence.

Leo felt very awkward – he had always felt that way around girls, but meeting one for the very first time when both were naked, was just weird. Yes, he had enjoyed what he had seen; not that there had really been anything to see, as far as he could remember. Mind you, his own body had not been much better. The girl was pretty, about his own age, but she scowled a lot.

As far as Lucy was concerned, the boy was just an annoyance. She had been annoyed to find a boy running his eyes over her naked body in the shower, but considering that she had nothing much to show, it was not all that bad. He was a skinny boy with thin arms and thin legs. She had about an inch on him as far as height was concerned and she assumed that he was about the same age as her. She left her thoughts as Instructor Millar came over to the table and he sat down beside Lucy.

"So, you two have met?" he asked politely.

"Well, considering we met in the shower, it's not like we have any secrets from each other!" Lucy pointed out sardonically and the instructor laughed.

"Not my idea, but at least you now know about each other's existence. You are both Predators and you will train together from this point on. There is no need for you both to become friends; but you must be able to work together as partners."

"With him?"

"With her?"

"Let me get serious: you both work as a team, or you don't work at all. . ."

"You mean, we can leave?" Leo asked hopefully.

"With a bullet in the head, yes," Instructor Millar replied darkly.

Lucy smiled at Leo.

"Hi, I'm Lucy; we're going to be working together," Lucy said as she offered her hand.

Leo sighed and held out his own hand.

"Hi, I'm Leo. I look forward to working with you, Lucy."

Both shook hands, somewhat earnestly – they both knew that their lives depended on it; they both knew that their lives depended on one another.

Thus, the world's first team of Predators came into being.

The Urban Predator rulebook was written during their first year, or to be more exact, the rulebook was written for them.

Each and every time either one of them fucked up, which was often, another rule was added to make the lives of both present and future Predators just that little bit harder. Between the two of them, the ten-year-olds were determined to push the bounds of their captivity and enforced training. They also took perverse enjoyment in pushing the limits of their instructors' sanity as far as they deemed safe.

By the time the boy and girl both turned eleven, other Predators had joined the program; Lucy and Leo had gained companions – other children, who just like them, had been seized from their comfortable lives to be trained at the whim of their instructors. The presence of the other children changed Lucy and Leo – they began to rebel against the instructors and their authority. Neither child was much liked by the new waves of Predators which followed, mainly due to their harsh tempers and training methods.

The two rebels began to terrorise the other Predators and sabotage the facility behind the backs of their instructors. That added complication soon gave the instructors the requirement to monitor both the girl and the boy, twenty-four-hours a day. Not surprisingly, the instructors were already fed up with watching the rebellious children, so they had created a new way to monitor the Predators; thus, the 'Yellows' came into existence.

Yellows were drawn from the younger kids who were normally 'disposed of' as they were deemed surplus to requirements. Instead those youngsters, both boys and girls, were retained as nothing more than servants at best, slave labour at worst. They were given menial tasks normally deemed beneath the average Predator and they were looked down upon by the other kids as being just that. For example, a team of eight Yellows was designated to watch the girl and the boy, all day and all night. They would report back to the instructors and detail anything that either did wrong.

Naturally, the eleven-year-old girl hated being monitored by kids of seven and eight. The cruel instructors even ensured that it was a male Yellow who was posted to watch her shower and make use of the facilities, each morning and night. After two yellows died at Lucy's hands, she was punished severely, and after a very public strapping – yes, the strap was brought in because of the girl's behaviour – the almost twelve-year-old girl was forced to spend an entire week without clothes. That, in itself, did not go well either – a Phase 1 Predator died after pushing his luck teasing the girl and after he actually dared to lay his hands on her naked body; the rebellious Leo killed him. Thus, a new punishment regime was instigated – The Cage.

Considering that the girl was barely twelve, but already had two murders under her belt, you would have thought that her time as a Predator was all but over. But no, she was deemed perfect; at least the instructors thought so: what were a few dead kids along the way when you were creating perfection – the deaths were a worthwhile price to pay for the ultimate in assassins.

..._...

Thus, by the time that Lucy and Leo both turned twelve, they were a truly fearsome team – as well as becoming the very first Phase 2 Predators. The girl and the boy were skilled in various forms of the martial arts and physical weapons of every description. Many instructors had gained not insignificant injuries at their hands, during sparring. The bodies of Lucy and Leo were almost permanently marred by bruises due to their remarkably high tolerances when it came to pain; Lucy especially could absorb blows way beyond many of her peers.

When they became the very first teenaged Predators, they became the very first Phase 3 Predators and as such they gained their coveted, and long promised, codenames. For Lucy: Piranha. For Leo: Wolf. To mark the momentous event, both teens were allowed to acquire a tattoo each. Lucy, a tattoo of the omnivorous fish which featured on her right thigh and was highly visible when she wore shorts. Leo, a tattoo of a howling wolf on his own right thigh. The instructors were a little unsure of the results – the idea had been to give graduating Phase 2 Predators a tattoo which would act as their identification – 'too large' was the main comment, among others.

The pair, therefore, became the first to gain a much smaller tattoo behind their right ear – the ubiquitous command dagger, which signified the skilled capability of each and every Predator. The tattoo was summarily issued during the Phase 1 stage for Predators deemed suitable to continue their training: if you did not receive a tattoo, you generally received a bullet in its place.

Despite the pride felt by the instructors for what they had created, they were also very wary of their most advanced creations. The powers-that-be were also not above punishing and humiliating either the boy or the girl, constantly reminding both of who was actually in charge. Care was taken to keep the youngsters balanced psychologically so that they would not turn on their creators and kill them – a constant and very real fear for the instructors. Lucy and Leo spent many hours with The Doctor undergoing 'shrinking' sessions to reinforce the intensive drug program and other, more disturbing, brain management sessions.

A few weeks short of their fourteenth birthdays, Lucy and Leo graduated from the Urban Predator Academy and they were allowed to decompress in preparation for their very first official missions.

Approximately eight months later
Sunday, September 12th, 2010

The Urban Predator Academy
Colorado, United States of America

"What's going on?"

Lucy was a little over two weeks short of her eleventh birthday. The skinny, unhealthy girl from eight months earlier was long gone. Lucy now had a tight physique with barely an ounce of fat on her slim frame. Her muscles and abs were as tight as they could be and her fitness was second to none. Her dirty blonde hair had been allowed to grow back and was currently tied up in her customary ponytail, high on the back of her head. She wore a tight black sports bra which highlighted the limited growth in her chest and black jogging pants with black running shoes.

"You, our little snapping viper, are about to gain some little friends to play with."

"Fuck, you, Instructor tight-ass!"

"One of these days, Lucy. . ."

"Yeah, bite me!"

Lucy sat down in the otherwise empty cafeteria. It had always been empty, usually just her, Leo, and a half dozen instructors. A few moments passed before Leo, dressed in a black T-shirt and black joggers entered and sat down beside her.

"Something happening?" he asked.

"I think we have visitors," Lucy commented.

Before Leo could respond, there came the sounds of shouting and yelling coming towards the cafeteria. The doors to the cafeteria opened and eighteen kids were pushed through the door and guided to three tables a short distance away from Lucy and Leo. Each three-sided table could seat six and once each was full, the two Predators studied the occupants. It was an even mix: nine boys and nine girls. All were about ten years old. Two girls in particular stood out from the crowd. As well as them both being an inch or so taller than the other girls, they were also absolutely identical. Several of the kids were struggling as they were forced to sit.

Both of those girls and three of the boys each sported a wicked bruise on a cheek – they had obviously resisted their forced appropriation. Lucy noticed one of the instructors holding a three-foot baton in his hands. Lucy was very familiar with the device having experienced its gentle touch on more than one occasion – Leo was grimacing too; he could remember the same gentle touch.

"Welcome!" Senior Instructor Hanley called out. "You are now Predators – at least you will be if you survive. . ."

The instructor broke off as one of the kids – a girl with short blond hair made to run. She made it twenty feet before Lucy kicked her to the ground and pinned her. Senior Instructor Hanley smiled.

"Lucy - release her! Leo!"

Lucy rose to her feet after leaving her customary two seconds before following the command. Hanley growled and he shook his head at the girl. Leo was already standing up, frowning at Lucy's continued display of insolence, knowing that one day, the girl would push things way too far.

"These two here, are Lucy Ford and Leo Shepherd. They are senior to you little bastards. They are Phase 2 Predators, while you worthless pieces of shit are Apprentice Predators. If any of you survive the next four weeks of hell; you will each become Phase 1 Predators. Lucy is a cocky little bitch, but you will listen to her when she gives you orders. You will listen to Lucy and Leo when they train you. I would also advise you not to piss Lucy off. . ."

The remaining seventeen kids all looked down at the sobbing girl lying on the floor of the cafeteria – a good demonstration of what the girl called Lucy was capable of. The bastard laughed as he walked out of the cafeteria leaving eighteen very scared kids behind.

..._...

Senior Instructor Hanley's deputy stepped forward and he faced the unfortunate Apprentice Predators.

"That was Senior Instructor Hanley. I am Instructor Millar, his deputy. Stand up!" Instructor Millar called out. "You will each strip out of your clothes – just dump them on the floor in front of you; you won't be needing them again."

As they stood up, none of the kids looked very happy at that order; especially the girls who had no desire to strip in front of any boys, let alone the adults present.

"Move – or we will strip you. Forget about your modesty, girls; there is no need for any of that nonsense from this moment on," Instructor Morris growled.

Instructor Morris was one of the two onsite female instructors and she was a total bitch – at least as far as Lucy was concerned, and from her own personal experience, Morris was beyond cruel. Nobody moved, but several of the kids began to shake with fear. Instructor Morris stepped towards the girl who still lay on the floor sobbing. Without a pause, Instructor Morris yanked off the unfortunate girl's clothing until she was completely naked. The young girl struggled and fought throughout the enforced stripping and it was obvious that the girl was frightened beyond belief as a pool of yellow liquid spread beneath her body.

Another instructor, this one a male, Instructor Knight, came forward holding a large black rubbish bag and he held it open. There was general hesitation amongst the remaining seventeen ten-year-olds but with a single fearsome glance from Instructor Morris, plus a look at the girl on the floor, every kid jumped up and clothes began to land on the same floor. Five minutes later, just like the girl on the floor, all nine boys and the remaining eight girls were as naked as the day they were born. All, made efforts to cover themselves from the prying eyes of their new colleagues. Two of the girls and one of the boys had urine running down their legs; they were so scared by the events unfolding around them.

"Clean it up with your clothes, you dirty little shits," Instructor Morris barked. "Ford, Shepherd – take these rejects down to the changing rooms. Little shits – pick up your own clothing and dump it in that black bag."

"Yes, Instructor," Leo replied.

"Yes, Instructor," Lucy replied smartly; Lucy did not fuck about where Instructor Morris was concerned.

..._...

Instructor Knight stood beside the open doors and each kid reluctantly dumped their clothing into the gaping black bag knowing that they would never see their clothes again. The thoroughly humiliated and scared kids were led naked down several cold concrete corridors before they entered the changing rooms and stopped beside the other onsite female instructor. Instructor Turner was nicer than Instructor Morris, but not by much.

"One, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine – over that side," she ordered, randomly selecting the first nine kids, irrespective of gender. "The rest of you this side."

The two groups of kids were waved towards two groups of showers where they found Instructor Matthews waiting.

"Collect some shower gel as you go. No playing grab-ass: boys, hands off the girls – girls, hands off the boys. Concentrate on your own body and once you are done, step out here," he ordered.

The kids, expecting to be able to wrap themselves in one of the many white towels piled by the door, moved fast, washing themselves speedily and trying to ignore the fact that the opposite sex was watching their every move. Only, the first kid out - one of the twins - found herself grabbed and her long hair quickly cut off, then the rest of her hair was reduced to a grade 4 cut. The same task was repeated on every child without exception, both boy and girl. After the impromptu haircut, they were ordered back into the showers.

Only then were they each allowed to wrap themselves in one of the white towels.

..._...

Lucy and Leo were then ordered to escort the eighteen towel-wrapped kids down to see the nurse.

The Urban Predator facility had a very well equipped medical wing, with a permanent medical staff consisting of a doctor and six nurses. Each of the Apprentice Predators was lined up under the watchful eye of Lucy, Leo, and Instructor Morris. They were then called into the Nurse's Office, wrapped in their white towel. There they endured a full and very invasive medical before reappearing, fifteen minutes later, dressed in light grey joggers and a white T-shirt. They were still bare-foot and none of them wore underwear, but at least they were covered up, they all thought.

Lucy was given a clipboard and the instructors vanished. If the kids thought that they were going to get an easy time, they were very, very wrong. As far as Lucy was concerned, she could see no reason why her own suffering should not be endured by those eighteen kids. Leo was the same – if it could happen to him, it should happen to them.

The first task on her list was showing the kids their accommodation and their home for the next few years.

..._...

The dormitory was in the next corridor from the more private rooms occupied by Lucy and Leo. There were twenty-four beds, arranged in four groups of six, each group was separated by six large lockers, arranged in threes back to back.

"Take a bed," Lucy announced. "That bed will be your bed for the rest of your time here. . ."

"I'm not sleeping in the same room as boys," one of the girls announced in a voice tinted with a British accent.

"You'll do what you're fucking told, bitch!" Lucy growled.

"Fuck you!" came the instant retort.

"Name!" Lucy growled as she strode over to the girl and she glared down at her, despite their barely being an inch difference between them in height.

"Willow."

"Well, Willow – you're gonna do what the fuck you are told. . .," Lucy began but then she paused and turned to face the whole group. "I have no love for this fucking place, nor for any of you. But I am going to be nice, just this once – you want this to be as easy as possible, then you follow instructions. Life is gonna be hell for you all – we know; we've been here for eight months."

"What is this place?"

"Hell, on earth! Now, you will all follow Leo and draw the remainder of your clothing from the stores."

Sunday, September 26th

Colorado Springs

"Hi, honey!"

"Shannon got into trouble at school today. Iain bit Annabelle, so she bit him back," Taylor Millar advised her husband as she vanished back into the kitchen.

"Hi, Daddy," seven-year-old Shannon offered sweetly.

"What did you do?" Patrick Millar asked his daughter resignedly.

"Well . . . a boy said something nasty . . . so I hit him. . ."

"Tell your father where you hit him," her mother prompted.

The girl looked miserable but she looked up at her father as she continued.

"I hit him in the . . . you know . . . between the legs. . ."

"Shannon, what have you been told about hitting, period?"

"Don't hit people unless you want them to hit you back – I apologised to the boy."

"Did you get punished?"

"I got detention. . ."

"Good."

"Patrick, honey – Annabelle and Iain are squabbling!"

The Urban Predator Academy Colorado

The seventeen Apprentice Predators were halfway through their hell month – yes, seventeen.

One, a girl called Teresa Palmore, had been summoned to see the Senior Instructor that very morning and she had not returned. However, a single pistol shot from the direction of the Senior Instructor's office had shaken up the remaining Predators who had figured out what the gunshot probably was almost immediately. The girl had been struggling to keep up with her other Apprentice Predators, she had been warned, but to no avail – the girl had just given up.

Her death had given the remaining kids extra resolve to stay alive. It had also driven home their very precarious situation: train or die. Their lives were quite literally hell – the girl, Lucy, had been very accurate in her description of Hell Month. Lucy and Leo would take turns getting up to wake the Apprentices at five. Lucy took immense pleasure in storming into the dormitory, flicking on the strip lights, and then ripping off the duvets covering the tired youngsters.

"Move it!" she would yell as they all fell out of bed and staggered for the bathroom.

By the end of the second day, boys and girls intermingled in the bathroom, making use of the facilities and showers without complaint or concern at being in the presence of the opposite sex. To speed things along, Lucy would shut off the hot water and then laugh as eight kids screamed as they received a dousing in freezing cold water.

Once they were dressed, Lucy and Leo would escort them on a two-mile run. Whomsoever came last, at the end of the run, had the job of clearing up the dirty clothing from the previous day and carrying it all down to the laundry. After the run, everybody showered before heading for breakfast. That occasion, each morning, was one of the few times that any of the kids actually smiled. The food was good and plentiful. The kids were encouraged to eat big meals, which were high in protein and all the other things that growing kids required.

After the 7am breakfast, which lasted about an hour, lessons began at 8:30am, lasting an hour for each lesson period. There was a short break of twenty minutes at 10:35am before another hour's lesson lasting until noon. The Apprentice Predators were allowed five minutes to get between lessons – lateness was not tolerated. An hour was allowed for lunch, with the afternoon lesson starting at 1:30pm and lasting two hours. At 3:30pm, the trainee recruits were allowed two hours of self-study where they were monitored by the instructors. The much awaited 6pm would allow the kids to eat again, and they would be famished after having endured a thirteen-hour day to that point.

After the meal, for which an hour was allowed, the kids had two hours of free time before they were to be in bed for 9pm. There were no complaints about the bedtime; indeed, many of the thoroughly exhausted kids were often in bed before eight and fast asleep within seconds. The majority of their training for the first month, was physical and very strenuous. The training was intended to weed out those deemed unable to succeed as a Predator. It was tough, but they had all made it through almost three weeks of hell.

Almost. . .

Chapter 322*: The Wolf and The Piranha

Tuesday, October 2nd, 2010

*The Urban Predator Academy
Colorado, United States of America*

As a combined birthday present, the two eleven-year-olds, Lucy and Leo had been moved into a mini apartment, across the corridor from the two main dormitories, only one of which was in use.

The suite consisted of two ensuite bedrooms, very much like those they had inhabited for the first months, plus a recreational area adjoining both bedrooms which was equipped with a TV, a secure computer, and a small kitchenette. It was intended as a show of trust from the instructors – and a place for Lucy to play her 1980's music which they were fed up of hearing around the facility!

..._...

"Lucy! Leo!"

There was banging on their respective bedroom doors which were shoved open and their bedroom lights were switched on. The girl's eyes squinted in the dazzling light but she quickly snapped awake and swung her legs onto the floor.

"We have a job for you, girl," Instructor Millar offered cheerfully.

"What?"

"A pair of Apprentices have escaped. We want you to hunt them down. . ."

Lucy smirked. Finally – some action!

While the instructor vanished across the way to notify Leo, Lucy stripped naked before she pulled on some clean black boy-shorts and a black sports bra. She then pulled on a pair of black combat trousers, a black T-shirt, some black socks and her black lightweight combat boots.

She emerged into the recreational area to find Leo waiting – he was dressed just the same (except for the boy-shorts and the bra!).

"Your kit – let's move!"

Millar handed Lucy and Leo a set of black webbing each. The webbing was pre-equipped with a pistol, knife, plus other supplies and equipment. Lucy and Leo pulled their webbing on and strapped it into place as they ran after Instructor Millar. A pistol holster hung over their right hips and was clipped around their right thighs. The eight-inch knife hung vertically on the left side of their chests.

By the time the group reached the vehicle garage, both were ready. A desert camouflage Humvee sat with its engine running and the left rear door open. Inside were three members of the Urban Predator Security Force. They smiled as Lucy and Leo climbed aboard and slammed the door shut.

"You ready, young Lucy?" Rudy Boise laughed.

"Bite me, Boise!" came the insolent reply to which the three men laughed.

..._...

The Humvee quickly left the blacktop and turned off-road. The two kids had obviously been missing for a while and covered some distance.

"Who are they?" Leo asked.

"Robert Evans and Trina Carroll. They were found missing, about four hours ago. Hanley has ordered their termination," Boise advised the two youngsters.

"We can handle that," Lucy advised.

A couple of minutes later, the Humvee skidded to a stop and Boise turned to Leo and Lucy.

"Go get them – call on Channel 2 when you need picked up."

"Don't wait up, boys!" Lucy growled as she left the Humvee and vanished into the darkness with Leo close behind.

Boise watched them go. It was a fortunate test for the two youngsters. Somewhere along the line, they would have to learn to kill, to take a life, if they were to become assassins. Hanley had made his point very clear. Either the runaways died at the hands of Lucy and Leo, or Lucy and Leo would die at Boise's hands.

To Hanley, life was cheap.

..._...

Lucy paused in the darkness, listening.

Leo was a dozen yards away, doing the same. They had both been taught how to track down prey and the night only made it easier. In the desert around them, sound travelled remarkably well, especially at night. The runaways were expected to be heading in a westerly direction but they had no idea if that were accurate, nor the exact direction in which they were headed.

The two kids in question were both ten-years-old and very green. They had learnt fast how to fight and both were very fit, but there were significant gaps in their training, which Leo and Lucy would exploit – should they catch up with the runaways. Leo and Lucy had spent time talking together a lot since they were pressed. At first, it had just been idle conversation between two kids getting to know one another, but then they talked about their new lives as Predators. They had discussed what they were there for.

Only once had an instructor alluded to their eventual future – as assassins. That had been backed up by their training in knives, shooting, fighting – not just defensive stuff, but offensive stuff too. They had been taught where on the human body it was beneficial to strike with a knife. The same with where to place a bullet for a quick – or a slow death. Leo had first broached the subject, about two months into their training.

"Luc – could you kill?" he had asked.

"I don't know, Leo," had been the response. "They make it sound so easy . . . but to actually take a life. . .?"

"We'll worry about that when we get there, eh, Luc?"

"A typically English response!" Lucy laughed.

Neither Lucy, nor Leo, were stupid. They both had a shrewd idea that they were being tested – they had learnt enough about Urban Predator to know that you had limited opportunities to prove yourselves worthy of continued life.

Should you not prove yourself, you were deemed disposable and 'disposable' meant death.

..._...

The two escapees were quite literally running for their lives. They both knew the penalty for their escape, should they be captured. Neither Robert nor Trina had much of a life to return to. Both had been troubled kids and their parents would not be missing them. A Predator's life was not for them – they wanted to live in peace, not be turned into killers . . . or worse. They had both heard about what had happened to the Palmore girl – a bullet to the temple. That had galvanised them both into action and they had slipped out, earlier that evening. Neither child had any idea that the alarm had been raised, nor who might be sent after them.

They moved as fast as they could go, knowing that they had to put as much distance between them and their former home before daylight revealed them. Fear coursed through them both, each and every time they heard a noise. The desert was full of wildlife and much of that wildlife was out and about that night making noises as it went about its business.

"I need to pee. . ." Trina Carroll whispered to her friend.

"Can't you hold it?" Robert Evans replied.

"No."

"Over there, by that bush, and be quick about it, Trina."

Trina ran over to the bush and she quickly pushed down her joggers and panties. She felt relief as her warm liquid spilled out onto the sand beneath her.

"Hurry, Trina!" Robert whispered as he kept a lookout.

"Okay, I'm done – let's move."

..._...

Fifteen minutes later, Lucy paused beside a bush and she sniffed the air. She knelt down and observed a dark patch of sand which was slowly drying in the coolness of the night.

"Somebody stopped for a pee – a girl, not that long ago," she whispered to Leo.

"You can tell it was a girl?"

"Easy. There are foot prints either side of the pee where the girl crouched down. If it were a boy, the piss would have gone all over the place – you boys insist on waving it around when you go."

"What's wrong with a bit of fun while you wee?" Leo retorted.

"I am not having a conversation about peeing, Leo, ewww! Let's get after those two little shits."

Leo smirked as she started moving again. The two youngsters were firm friends with nothing between them. They had learnt to trust each other, implicitly. Each knew what the other was capable of and when the other needed support . . . or just a shoulder to cry on. The first few months had been miserable and they had both done a lot of crying. They had had only themselves to console each other as they struggled to get through everything which was thrown at them.

It was the very first time that either of them had been entrusted with live weapons. All weapon use was strictly supervised for obvious reasons and generally limited to range use only. They had training devices for use during classes which had no capacity to actually cause anybody any harm – unless you hit them over the head with it, of course!

Leo paused, his ears picking up something. He used hand signals to inform Lucy that he had heard something, a short distance ahead.

..._...

The attack came out of the darkness and the first either of the escapees knew about it was when they found themselves shoved to the ground and then punched into submission.

"Please. . ."

The begging was ignored. Lucy had a hold of Trina and was punching her in the face and chest. The girl was screaming for mercy, but Lucy knew that with Trina's death would come her own elevation in status. She knew no other life than what she had at that moment and she was determined to excel at it – of that was what it took to stay alive. Lucy considered her pistol but she decided that would be too easy and too clinical. Instead, she pulled her knife and while she stared into the panic-stricken eyes below her, she rammed the knife upwards into the abdomen of her prey. Trina stopped struggling as the shock of the intrusion into her body paralysed her for a moment.

Lucy placed a hand over the girl's mouth as she tried to scream. Lucy twisted the blade to the left causing the body beneath her to shake violently before all movement ceased within thirty seconds. Lucy could feel the warm blood seeping into her own clothing and coming into contact with her own skin. The eyes of her prey had shown fear and then pain and maybe betrayal, but then they showed sorrow and then nothing. She stood up, pulling the knife out of the stomach cavity and wiping it off on the dead girl's clothing.

A few yards away, Leo was doing the exact same thing, a dead ten-year-old boy at his feet. Leo had also opted for the more personal kill provided by a knife. He surprised himself by feeling nothing – no remorse, just pride at having completed his mission.

"You ready to call in the cavalry?" Lucy asked as she stowed her knife.

"Make the call, Luc."

Two hours later

That morning was very different for the Apprentice Predators.

Everything had changed. There was general unease in the cafeteria as the tired Predators entered for their breakfast. The cause of their unease? Lucy – no real surprise; most of the Predators were uneasy around the eleven-year-old girl. That morning, though, they were surprised to see the girl fully kitted out for combat, but nonchalantly digging into a full cooked breakfast. She was dirty, her kit was dirty, right down to the sinister black pistol on her right hip. She seemed oblivious to the dried blood on her face and arms. It was the blood which freaked out most of the kids – they knew that there had been an escape attempt in the early hours and it did not require all that much intelligence to figure out why the two senior Predators were covered in blood.

Leo sat across from his partner, enjoying his own breakfast. He was just as bloody as Lucy, but he paid it no heed. While most of the Phase 1 Predators were scared of Lucy, Leo was different. While he was slower to lose his temper, he spent longer considering his actions before he engaged. But when he did get angry, you instantly regretted making him angry enough to attack you. He was also fiercely protective of Lucy, not that she needed his protection. Everybody learnt very quickly that you did not say a single word about Lucy in the presence of Leo unless you had a death wish.

Both Predators were exhausted after their early morning stroll across the desert. Boise had been very impressed when he had turned up to find the two kids nonchalantly sitting beside a pair of corpses. Boise had made a mental note not to piss off either child as they appeared to both be cold killers. Once his men had loaded the dead children into the Humvee they had headed directly back to the facility. Lucy had dozed off, cuddled up with Leo who catnapped, keeping a wary eye on Boise and his men while watching over his Lucy. Boise also knew that Leo was fiercely protective of Lucy. It was a bit of a joke amongst the instructors, but Leo was very serious about 'his girl'.

..._...

Instructor Millar looked down at the two kids as they ate their breakfast.

"Well done, both of you. Go get yourselves cleaned up – maybe a long hot shower and then get some rest. You are both excused classes today, but SI Hanley wants to debrief you both at four, this afternoon."

"Thank you, sir," Leo replied as he helped Lucy to her feet and they both stumbled back to their rooms.

The two youngsters had no secrets from one another, so the moment they entered their 'apartment', both stripped off their weapons and clothing before they headed into their respective showers. Leo was busy soaping himself down when the bathroom door opened and Lucy entered, naked and still with soap on her body. She pushed her way into the shower and sagged down onto the tiled floor. Leo sat down beside his friend. Neither said a word for a minute or two before Lucy spoke up.

"We just killed, Leo. I just killed a ten-year-old girl."

"It scared me, killing that boy – but it was them or us, Luc."

Lucy had obviously been crying – her eyes were very red. She began to sob and she leaned into Leo. Despite Leo's attempts to be strong, especially in front of Lucy, he felt his own tears welling up inside him. They both sat there crying, for almost ten minutes, allowing the hot water to wash away their tears and the blood of their victims which had seeped through their clothing and onto their skin.

For Lucy, it had been the sight of the blood on her tummy – another girl's blood. She had started her shower, but then she felt lonely and she did not want to be alone, so she had just left her shower and run through to Leo. She felt safe when she was with Leo. He had endured everything that she had and they could each relate to each other's fucked up lives. When they had been awoken, about six hours previously, she had been excited about going out into the desert.

"I looked into her eyes. She was so scared – she knew what was going to happen. She begged me to let her go. . ."

Leo wanted to say how he felt, but he could not. He wanted to stay strong for Lucy. He allowed her to cry on his shoulder but then he told her to stand up and he washed her shoulder length blonde hair for her. Lucy just stood there, unable to move as she thought about what she had done that morning. She was only just eleven-years-old, yet she had just taken the life of another child, even though she was still only a child herself. She could tell that Leo was feeling something similar; she had learnt to read his expressions. She had also seen Leo crying. Leo almost never cried, so that was a sign of his own internal worries, just like hers.

When they had both cleaned off all the blood, sweat, dirt, and sand, they both lay down on the couch together. Leo wrapped his arms around Lucy and they both fell asleep within minutes.

..._...

That night, Leo was not surprised to find Lucy squirming into bed with him. He was glad of her company, not having wanted to go through to Lucy. A girl climbing into a boy's bed for company was deemed okay. A boy climbing into a girl's bed would be seen as something bad.

"Thanks for being there for me, Leo."

"You too, Luc. I'll always be there for you."

They had slept till almost three, that afternoon, when Instructor Millar had awoken them. He had pointed to their lunches which he had left on the table, three hours earlier, then left them alone. He had smiled at them both cuddled up together. They had obviously fallen asleep together after taking showers as both had been loosely wrapped in a white towel each.

Millar did not agree with what was going on – at least not anymore. At first, he had seen it as something workable as only street rats were being selected, or so he thought. The First Predator Intake had had only six street rats out of the eighteen recruits. He had queried where the others had come from, but the good Doctor Hirsch had made some noncommittal remark and sidestepped the question. He had known Lucy and Leo since their very first day as Predators, almost nine months previously. He liked the kids; they were full of life and Lucy was a firebrand with a fire inside her that nobody could quench, no matter how hard they tried.

Leo was very different. He was a British boy who was more reserved and less forward than Lucy was. He was slow to anger, but when he was angry, woe betide anybody who got in his way! The boy always smiled and he got on with his studies, causing a lot less trouble than Lucy. The boy was polite and well-mannered. He had some funny habits which most just put down to the fact that he was British. Millar hoped that the two youngsters might survive the CIA's abhorrent attempt at creating master assassins.

If anybody deserved to survive, Lucy and Leo did.

That afternoon
16:00 hours

Senior Instructor Hanley was impressed.

Both eleven-year-olds stood before him, immaculately turned out in white T-shirts with black joggers and dark blue trainers. Lucy's hair was pulled back into a ponytail, high on her head and surprisingly, the usual obnoxious expression was missing, replaced by one of the utmost seriousness.

"Well done, both of you. You both exceeded my expectations of you both. You have both taken a momentous step forwards in your training. As a reward, you will both be given more responsibility and freedom around the facility. Lucy – please do not abuse that extra freedom."

Lucy scowled.

"We know you, Lucy. We know that you like to push your luck. Leo, please help Lucy stay on the right track."

"I'll try, sir, but I cannot guarantee anything."

Senior Instructor Hanley laughed.

"Diplomatic as always, young Leo!"

Leo smiled and so did Lucy which was a surprise. She hated Hanley but so did Leo, only he chose not to antagonise the man, unlike his tomboy pal.

..._...

A few hours later, after dinner, the Phase 2 Predators were listening to Lucy's Pet Shop Boys album. The current track was her favourite: It's a Sin. They both felt a lot better after a good meal and knowing that they had 'exceeded' Senior Instructor Hanley's expectations which in itself was an event so rare as to be almost impossible. Instructor Millar pushed open the door and he grinned at the two smiling youngsters.

"Vehicle garage – now!"

Lucy reluctantly shut off her music then she and Leo followed the instructor to the far side of the facility. By the time Lucy and Leo arrived in the vehicle garage, they found fifteen Predators waiting outside the double doors. They, plus Lucy and Leo, were paraded through the doors and into the vehicle garage.

There was stunned silence as the group of ten-year-olds, plus the two eleven-year-olds took in the two dead bodies of their colleagues which had been laid out on a steel-topped table. Both bodies were nude, their clothing having been cut off. The absence of clothing allowed the cause of their deaths to be readily evident – there was a single stab wound in each abdomen and copious amounts of dried blood encrusted the stomach area. The faces of both dead children were bloody and bruised.

"This is what happens should any of you try to escape," Senior Instructor Hanley explained in an even tone.

A few faces turned towards Lucy and Leo. Both of whom stared straight ahead ignoring the body and the appalled looks which they were receiving from their fellow Predators.

Chapter 323*: The First Kiss

Friday, September 9th, 2016
Early morning

Glenview

The dreams had been particularly vivid.

"You murdered me."

"No, Jamie; you're alive. I did not kill you."

The vision of her five-year-old brother with a bullet hole in his forehead dissolved and instead, she saw the five-year-old reappear with an accusing expression.

"You abandoned me."

"I had no choice – I didn't want to leave you. They took me away from you."

"But you did leave me; I was alone. You left me all alone. I was only five-years-old."

"Jamie – I tried. . ."

"You did nothing to find me."

"I thought I had killed you."

"But you did."

The vision changed back to the boy with a bullet hole in his forehead. Stephanie found herself in a vicious circle and no matter what she did, she was faced with the fact that she had murdered her little brother. She now knew that that was not true, but her subconscious kept trying to tell her something different. She found herself going from virtual room to virtual room in her dream – or nightmare – and each time she entered a room she would find her brother dead in a different manner . . . different, but all caused by her.

Stephanie began going out of her mind as the visions chopped and changed before she finally fell to her knees and she began screaming and screaming.

..._...

Anne-Marie was dragged out of her own dream – a good dream where Rogue was winning a massive battle single-handed – by the sound of screaming. She recognised the scream as being that of her big sister. Less than a minute later, she heard footsteps padding across her carpet and then a body pushed its way into the bed beside her. Anne-Marie could feel the sweat on Stephanie's skin and the older girl was shaking as she cried into the pillow. Anne-Marie wrapped her arms around her big sister providing what comfort she could.

Stephanie had always been there for Anne-Marie, so Anne-Marie was determined to be there for Stephanie. She felt very sorry for what Stephanie had been through in her short life. So much hell. So much pain, both physical and mental. How could Stephanie remain sane through it all? Anne-Marie knew that Stephanie was not entirely sane – she could not be. Mindy had tried to explain Stephanie to Anne-Marie and her brother, but to no avail – Stephanie's mind was a complicated one to understand.

Either way, Anne-Marie hugged her sister, calming her down until they both fell asleep.

Later that morning

Mindy breezed into Anne-Marie's bedroom at seven o'clock – she and Dave took turns waking the kids.

"Morning, Anne-Marie! Time to get up for school!"

There was a groan and then a little girl sat up in the bed, rubbing her eyes.

"Morning, Mom."

Anne-Marie motioned at the bump beside her in the duvet and Mindy grimaced. It could only be one person.

"I was awoken up by her screaming. Then she came through and climbed into the bed. She was all sweaty and shaking. I hugged her until she cried herself to sleep."

"Thanks for being there for her," Mindy said as she sat down on the bed.

"No problem, Mom – she's always been there for me, so I want to be there for her."

Anne-Marie scrambled out of the bed and ran for the bathroom which she shared with her twin brother who was already busy with his own ablutions.

"Hey! Hurry up, doofus, I need to pee!"

"I'm peeing as fast as I can, jeez!" Danny called back.

"Well, pee harder!" Anne-Marie called back.

Mindy chuckled at the twin's early morning bickering and she slowly pulled back the duvet to reveal the sleeping form of Stephanie Lizewski. She rubbed her daughter's back gently and very carefully. Stephanie moaned as she began to straighten herself out. Her eyes opened and she looked up at Mindy. She did not smile, in fact, Stephanie bore a very sad expression on her face. She sat up and wrapped her arms around Mindy, squeezing hard.

"Another nightmare?"

"It was the Jamie one again."

"It's understandable, honey. You've been through worse nightmares. We're going to find him, I promise."

"How will ever face him? I betrayed him – I allowed them to take him."

Mindy pushed Stephanie away from her.

"Now you're just talking stupid, Stephanie."

"I – left – him."

"You had no goddamn choice!" Mindy said loudly enough to get her daughter's attention.

"I could have fought back. . ."

"Christ!"

Mindy pulled Stephanie off the bed and down the corridor to her own bedroom, slamming the door behind her as she went. Stephanie was almost thrown onto her own bed, bouncing twice before she came to rest.

"Snap out of it, Stephanie! You were seven-years-old and you knew nothing!"

"I would have tried!" Stephanie yelled back. "I would have died trying!"

"Grow up, Stephanie!" Mindy retorted. "The scared little girl that you were back then was unable to do much more than fucking piss her panties and you damn well know it. The girl before me now, she would have died trying, but you have almost three years of training behind you, yes?"

"Yes."

"Don't play the blame game. Dave does that with my Daddy and me. Shit happens in life. I blame myself for not getting to my Daddy sooner, but no matter how good I was back then, there was nothing that I could have done – I lacked the experience."

Stephanie smiled for the first time.

"I did fucking piss my panties, you know."

"I wouldn't have blamed you for it," Mindy said calmly with a smirk. "I think you need a diversion and I have just the idea."

That evening

Glenview

"You finished your homework for the week?"

"All except today's."

"You been in trouble this week?"

Stephanie looked hurt.

"No."

"Do I have any letters on the way from the Principal?"

"Not that I am aware of."

"Very diplomatic," Mindy laughed. "Go get yourself showered and changed. Your date awaits."

Stephanie's face lit up and she was gone in a flash.

..._...

Nervous . . . so nervous.

It was so ridiculous – he was a boy, a boy that she had known for months, so what was the damn problem? Okay, they were friends and he was an awesome fighter and he was also cute, but he was twelve and she was only ten. . . What should that matter? Her Mum had said that it was okay and that was all she really cared about. God damn it! Why did she feel so nervous? Her stomach felt like she had been on a goddamn roller coaster.

'Oh, God! He's here – his Dad's dropping him off. Get yourself together girl!' she thought quickly.

Stephanie climbed out of the Jaguar and she just stood there feeling very stupid and her face was burning like a nuclear fire. He looked smart, Stephanie thought, much neater than usual and he looks nervous too, good. Stephanie scowled as she looked up at her Mum; she was smirking. . .

"Now, you two be good – no talking to strangers and no killing!"

"Yes, Mum!"

"Yes, Mindy!"

The nervous boy turned to Stephanie and he checked her out from head to toe. Stephanie put a hand to her stomach which was busy doing loop-the-loops.

"You look good tonight, Steph."

"So, do you, Tommy."

..._...

They started the evening in McDonald's, enjoying a burger each and just talking.

"My Dad thought it was really funny when Mindy called up to arrange this," Tommy muttered.

"Yeah, parent's like to have their fun, don't they," Stephanie agreed. "Thank you for agreeing to come."

"Steph – I would never turn down time with you."

Stephanie giggled which made her feel stupid but Tommy's smile reassured her. Nevertheless, she took a large bite out of her quarter pounder to disguise her embarrassment. The conversation continued on with more mundane things. By the end of the meal, all the uncomfortable feelings had gone and they were happily laughing at each other's crude jokes. The two youngsters had a lot in common considering their fractured childhoods. Both had been taken and forced into lives which involved fighting to survive.

After they had eaten, they both headed outside to talk where they could not be easily overheard.

"When did you first kill, Tommy?"

"I was almost nine. I had been with the Russians for about four months. I had learnt to look after myself; there was no choice if you wanted to survive. Another boy – a Russian kid; Mikhail, his name was. He was about a year older than me and he tried to steal my food. We didn't get much; barely enough to survive on. You had to earn your food. Fighting gained you food – winning gained you even more. The kid was probably desperate; he had no choice – but it was him or me. I challenged him but he blew me off. I stabbed him with the knife I had been using to eat with. It was a lucky strike – the blade punctured his heart and he bled out fast. I was shocked by what I had done on pure reflex. You know what? They rewarded me with improved conditions, just for killing that kid."

"Been there," Stephanie commented dryly.

"What sort of a place rewards a kid for killing?"

"The very same thought that went through my mind when they gave me my codename. I suppose I was lucky – I lived in a relatively structured environment. You lived in hell, Tommy."

"It was bad, but they looked after us – to a point. We were valuable – at least those who could fight and those who would win fights. My biggest problem at first was learning the lingo. When I was taken, I had never even heard anybody speak Russian, let alone knew any of the language. That was one hell of a learning curve. One of the older boys took pity on me and he taught me some basic Russian – enough for me to get by and survive."

"Why do you like me so much, Tommy? I mean; you know what I was, what I am."

"Stephanie . . . you're beautiful and I love the way you talk – your accent is awesome."

Stephanie was blushing and so was Tommy.

"You've also been through a lot – just like me. I feel that I can relate to you. You're also an awesome fighter and I respect you for who you are. . ."

Tommy tailed off with embarrassment. Stephanie stopped walking and she turned to Tommy. Then she reached up and she kissed him, putting as much meaning into the kiss as she knew how. She pulled away, her face burning. Tommy was grinning.

"What was that for?"

"For saying such wonderful things about me. I know I kissed you before, but this was my real first kiss, so suck it up, asshole!"

Tommy laughed and he put his arm around Stephanie's shoulders.

"You are a fucking nutcase, Stephanie Lizewski!"

"That's rich coming from you, Tommy Morgan!"

Stephanie pulled Tommy around into another kiss – she was enjoying the tingling feeling on her lips each time they kissed.

"You think anybody is watching?" Tommy asked.

"Probably – you know who my Mum is."

"Yeah – she'll have a dozen cameras on us at all times. If I so much as make an advance on your body, she'll appear out of nowhere and slit my throat," Tommy laughed.

Stephanie laughed as they sat down on a vacant bench.

"I don't have much of a body, I'm afraid."

"It looks lovely from my point of view."

Stephanie found herself giggling again.

..._...

"So, Mum – you get everything on camera?" Stephanie asked Mindy as they headed home, an hour or so later.

Mindy laughed.

"Dave persuaded me not to have Marty monitor your activities. I'm sorry; I just wanted to protect you. I know, I'm being stupid."

"No, Mum. It feels good to know that you care."

"The kissing looked fun!" Mindy quipped.

Stephanie's mouth dropped open and her entire face exploded into life and turned a very deep shade of red.

"It was my first proper kiss. . ." Stephanie mumbled.

"You'll remember that kiss forever."

"I hope so. Thank you for setting this up, Mum. It was a great evening and it allowed me to have some fun without worrying about Jamie all the time."

Mindy smiled happily. It had been Dave's idea – as usual. She was very pleased that all had gone well.

Glenview

"Had a good time?"

"Yes – thanks Dad," Stephanie said as she gave Dave a big hug.

"You two had sex?" Anne-Marie asked and Stephanie's jaw dropped open.

"Can I slap her?" Stephanie asked.

"No," Mindy said with a chuckle.

"Maybe a finger-fuck?" Anne-Marie went on.

"Anne-Marie!" Dave exclaimed.

"Just askin'" Anne-Marie muttered.

"Now, you can slap her!" Mindy suggested as she scowled at her youngest daughter.

Anne-Marie let out a little scream as she bolted for the kitchen, continuing through into the pool area. Stephanie gave chase.

"Get back here, you little bitch!"

..._...

Dave and Mindy listened to Anne-Marie's screams and Stephanie's crude language. Then they heard giggling and uncontrollable laughter – Anne-Marie was being tickled; apparently mercilessly.

"I'm – going – to pee – myself!" Anne-Marie managed to get out as Stephanie tickled her.

Then the giggling stopped and Anne-Marie screamed again.

"No!" she yelled before there was an almighty splash.

Dave and Mindy ran through to see Anne-Marie in the water, swimming towards the steps. From the view, and the pile of clothes beside the pool, it was obvious that the eight-year-old was naked. Stephanie was smiling sweetly, trying to look innocent.

"What have you done, now?" Danny asked as he entered the pool area and took in the smiling Stephanie and his naked sister sitting on the pool steps.

"I opened my mouth," the dejected Anne-Marie groused.

"That's normally all it takes," Danny mused. "However, I have to protect my twin, so. . ."

Danny shoved Stephanie and she fell into the water, swearing violently.

"Far from us to have a favourite twin, so we must treat you both fairly," Mindy said as she gave Danny a shove and he fell in beside his big sister.

"Far from us to miss out," Dave chuckled as he grabbed Mindy around the waist and then jumped into the deep end.

Mindy screamed bloody murder but she then laughed as she tried, unsuccessfully, to duck her husband. Danny had pulled off his soggy clothes and he quickly joined his sister in the buff as they swam around chasing one another. Stephanie kicked off her shoes and her jeans, chucking them onto the side of the pool. Dave and Mindy removed their outer clothing and Dave began to chase Mindy who pretended to be scared and she emitted mock screams, mimicking Anne-Marie who just laughed.

..._...

"Feeling better?" Anne-Marie asked Stephanie almost an hour later.

"Yes – it's been a very memorable evening," Stephanie replied as she lounged around on the steps. She too had stripped off her wet clothes and was just as naked as her siblings. "Thanks, all of you, for helping to give me something else to think about."

"You're worth spending time on, Stephanie," Dave said with a smile.

"I'm hungry," Danny complained.

"Let's go get something to eat," Mindy suggested as she climbed out of the pool, followed by Dave.

"I'll go get some towels," Dave suggested as he jogged around the pool to a table which was piled high with fluffy towels in assorted colours.

He selected five towels and walked back around the pool to where everybody was waiting, standing on the side of the pool, before handing a purple one to Mindy, a pink one to Anne-Marie, a yellow one to Danny, and a blue one to Stephanie. Dave wrapped himself in a green towel. Everybody grabbed a stool at the breakfast bar while Dave began to pull food out of the fridge. He threw some bacon into a pan on the stove and then began to butter some thick slices of bread. Mindy took the time to take off her panties and her sports bra, wrapping herself tightly in her purple towel. By the time she had finished, Dave had the bacon cooked and he had passed out the thick bacon sandwiches.

"You going to start wearing a bra?" Mindy asked as she looked pointedly at Stephanie's chest – the ten-year-old had only bothered to wrap the towel around herself loosely and it had slipped down – not that she was particularly bothered.

"Nope!"

"I think she wants Tommy to be able to see them properly," Danny laughed.

"Maybe I do," Stephanie pouted.

"I think they need to grow a bit, don't you?" Anne-Marie grinned.

"So, Anne-Marie," Dave asked conversationally. "Where did you hear that phrase?"

"Which one?" Anne-Marie asked innocently – she had hoped that everybody had forgotten about her little faux pas!

Mindy laughed as she dropped a big hint, "That would be the 'finger-fuck' one."

"Oh. . ." Anne-Marie replied. "I heard SD say it to Morgan at Foxtrot."

"I might have known!" Stephanie commented. "Do you actually know what a finger-fuck is?"

Anne-Marie thought about it for a moment, but then she shook her head.

"No, I don't?"

"It's when a girl has a finger stuck up her snatch and she receives stimulation," Stephanie explained.

Mindy raised an eyebrow at Stephanie's explanation.

"I must have read it somewhere," Stephanie muttered as she went red in the face and dug into her bacon sandwich.

"Ewww – that's totally gross!" Anne-Marie growled as her own cheeks went very pink.

"Oh, I don't think so," Mindy commented as she took a deep breath. Dave's hand had wandered up her towel and was 'busy'. "Not gross – just . . . aaahhh . . . not now, Dave!"

..._...

At bedtime, that evening, Stephanie had just pulled on her pyjamas and she was climbing into bed when Anne-Marie and Danny trooped into the bedroom.

"What do you two want?" Stephanie demanded. She was tired, but not looking forward to going to sleep.

"We're here to keep you company, tonight," Danny explained as he clambered onto the bed and dived under the Duvet beside Stephanie.

Stephanie scowled as Anne-Marie did the same on the other side of her.

"I know I'm not the boy that you really want in bed with you," Danny went on.

Stephanie laughed.

"One more word, Daniel! Thank you, both of you."

"We love you, big sis," Anne-Marie offered as she cuddled into Stephanie.

Stephanie smiled happily, "I love you both very much, too."

Mindy peeked into the room and she smiled at the sight of the three kids settling down for the night.

"You three be good, okay?"

"Night, Mom!" the twins called out.

"Night, Mum!" Stephanie added.

"Sleep tight," Mindy replied as she turned out the light.

The following morning
Saturday, September 10th

Safehouse F

"In light of the current influx of Predators, we've been compiling lists of who we know to be alive, who we know to be missing, and who we know to be dead. We have more and more information coming from Marty's data extraction of the CIA data we originally acquired, back in May," Mindy explained.

"Oh, wow," Saoirse commented as she read through the names which ran down the large screen in the Command

Centre. "I recognise many of these – you even have Lucy and Leo. Those two were very special; if they are still alive, Lucy would give Hit Girl a run for her money, Mindy."

"Oh?"

"She was the best that I have ever seen and totally dedicated to her training. She was a bitch, no denying that – but no worse than Hit Girl. . ."

Mindy growled.

". . . I liked her – some of the time – at least when she wasn't humiliating me. If you meet her – she is deadly; be warned. Leo is just as highly skilled. I've sparred with them both and they never lost a fight – never. Lucy is a seasoned killer – she has the deaths of at least three Predators and three Yellows on her conscience. Leo has killed at least two Predators to my knowledge."

"I look forward to meeting them – assuming they are still alive," Mindy commented.

Saoirse looked very pensive for a few minutes as she thought back to her early days as a young ten-year-old Predator. Mindy came over and she wrapped an arm around Saoirse's shoulders.

"I didn't mean to bring back bad memories, SD."

"No, it's nothing like that. Seeing those names: Lucy, Leo, Willow, Guinevere, Carrie, Dakota – it brought back memories, yes, but they weren't all bad. While we did not exactly have friends – some of us got on together, at least enough for moral support, anyway. We all suffered together, so I can't hold grudges, just as I don't with Steph."

"You've been through a lot, Saoirse. It's good for you to have a positive outlook on things."

"Thanks, Mindy."

..._...

Saoirse headed up to the galley for a hot drink. She found Sarah and Marc there along with the Abbott twins. They were chatting raucously and enjoying each other's company. They stopped chatting as Saoirse sat down with her cup of tea.

"Saoirse," Sarah began. "From what I understand, you are uniquely qualified to answer this question. As the only person, presumably ever, to have been actively hunted by Hit Girl and to have actually survived – what did it feel like?"

Saoirse grimaced and then her face took on a very pained expression and she looked like she might be physically sick.

"That night, the night when I realised that Hit Girl knew my whereabouts . . . I had never been so scared in all my life. I was only fourteen and at that moment, I never expected to reach my next birthday. I knew that I would never see the sun rise the next morning, or ever again for that matter. So many things I had not done – I considered my life to be over; finito. I just sat in a chair and I awaited my fate. I cried for hours as I waited. I wanted to have kids. I wanted to fall in love. I wanted so many things – I knew that I would never get to experience any of them.

"Then she appeared in my apartment – like a ghost in the night. Don't laugh – but I pissed myself when I realised she was there; I was that scared. I thought I had mere seconds left to live . . . but then she let me go – I was stunned beyond belief. Nobody's ever explained to me why she let me live. Then Stephanie did the most wonderful thing – she forgave me and she offered me a life. I can never repay her kindness and I will always look on her as my best friend, no matter what."

"I saw something in you," came a voice and everybody turned to see Mindy walking over towards them. "I was going to kill you, right there in your apartment. I looked into your eyes, just as I have done with so many of my victims. I saw a frightened little girl in them. A little girl who had been forced into a life of killing. I knew it was not your fault that you were trying to kill Stephanie. I knew that you had no choice but to follow orders.

"Stephanie lost it – she called me a 'soft fuck'. I explained to Stephanie that Foxtail deserved to die, just as much as she did. Just as much as I did. Just as much as all of you here. I saw myself in Foxtail's eyes. I saw Stephanie. I couldn't kill her, I could not kill Foxtail. We hatched a plan to turn Foxtail. It worked and we brought Saoirse Doherty into our midst. It is a decision that I have not regretted. Mind you, the two Predator Princesses have kept me up, many a night with their antics!"

Saoirse grinned as Mindy finished.

"Thank you for telling me that, Mindy. I was too scared to ask you why you didn't kill me."

"You have no reason to be scared of me, Saoirse. You've earned my trust on many an occasion. You are selfless and a very good friend to all who see you as their friend," Mindy said.

"You will always scare me, Mindy," Saoirse commented.

"That's good, I suppose," Mindy reasoned with an evil smirk.

"Did Stephanie really call you a 'soft fuck'?" Marc asked.

"Yes, she did."

"What did you do to her?"

"I kicked her across that very mat, down there," Mindy replied with a twinkle in her eye.

Chapter 324*: Psyche Rampage

That same morning

Saturday, September 10th, 2016

Safehouse F

"Stephanie!"

Stephanie looked up above her to see Mindy waving at her from the steel walkway and then pointing towards the Command Centre. Stephanie nodded at Tommy who stepped back from their sparring and she headed over to meet Mindy at the bottom of the steps. Stephanie frowned – Mindy looked unhappy.

"Steph – we need to talk."

"What about?" Stephanie asked as they both headed into the Command Centre and the door locked behind them and Mindy motioned her daughter over to the couch and they sat down.

"Vengeance ran an operation, yesterday, in London," Mindy started to explain.

"Jamie?" Stephanie's tone was full of hope.

"No – but some valuable information was obtained. We have lead – a very good lead."

"Why didn't you let me know, yesterday?" Stephanie's tone had a hint of anger in it.

"I didn't want to get your hopes up unless we really knew something."

"I accept that; thanks for being honest with me."

"Steph – no lies between us; we promised each other, right?"

"Yeah, we did," Stephanie replied with a smile before she got down to business. "What leads?"

..._...

"Vengeance tracked down where Abigail was being held, along with Jamie. They spoke directly to the top dog, a William Fraser – CEO of Scorpio Enterprises. Apparently, he knows all about Predators and he sees a financial angle. He says that has Predators in his custody. . ."

"Jamie?" Stephanie interrupted.

"We don't know. We believe that he has others – but we have no idea who. We have one clue: he told us . . . well, listen to it for yourself."

Stephanie frowned as Mindy waved at Marty who punched a button on his keyboard. Sound began to emanate from the speakers in the room:

"I'll leave you with a teaser – Jamie and his whore headed southwest, maybe a hundred miles or so. Take it, or fucking leave it."

Stephanie's face contorted into anger as she listened to the voice. She imprinted the voice onto her brain so that she would recognise that bastard the moment she heard his voice again – then she could kill him.

"So – where does that put us?" she asked, looking up at Mindy.

Marty brought up a map which showed the southern section of the United Kingdom. A red circle was displayed centred on the Scorpio HQ in London.

"One hundred miles puts us towards the southwest of the UK – east of Portsmouth and Southampton," Marty advised.

"What's there?" Stephanie asked.

"Not a lot!" Marty commented. "Several large towns: Bath, Shaftesbury, Bournemouth. He could be leading us on a wild goose chase, or. . ."

"He could be leading us into a trap," Stephanie growled.

"Exactly," Mindy admitted.

"There's more," Stephanie stated, seeing Mindy's expression.

"Natasha and Abigail chased Fraser for over sixty miles. He was being a little obvious about it too which leads us to believe that he is leading us into a trap – he knows that there are many more Predators out there and we believe that he may be recruiting them to use for his own devices. Now, my girl, I want to assess you to see if you are capable of going back out into the field. Do you think you are ready?"

..._...

It had been many weeks since Stephanie had been shot, but she had been healing inside and out all that time. The ten-year-old had been constantly monitored and she had received many check-ups to ascertain how her shoulder and side were healing, not to mention everything inside her young body which had been moved about. Both Cathy and Mindy had come down heavily on Stephanie whenever she tried to hide any problems with her body. Both Mindy and Cathy had noticed pain in Stephanie's eyes when she moved her right arm and when she overstressed her left side.

Mindy had reminded Stephanie of their bond and that they would not lie to one another. In turn, Stephanie had tearfully admitted that she was still in pain. Cathy had arranged some different drugs to combat the pain while Mindy had devised a new training regime for her daughter. That, in turn, had improved and assisted the healing muscles in Stephanie's right shoulder. The weeks in bed had wasted away at Stephanie's finely-honed body but since then, she had spent many hours returning her body to its previous state of excellence.

Mindy had no intention of allowing Stephanie into the field if she was not ready. Mindy was fully aware that she might have to physically restrain her daughter to prevent her from going after her brother, but should that be necessary, then Mindy would do it. She would do anything to keep the young girl alive – even if it meant putting a rift between mother and daughter.

..._...

Forty minutes later, Psyche was on the mat.

For the first time in months, her body was encased in a combat suit. But not her original one – no, this one was brand new. Psyche was covered from head to toe in ultra-flexible Type IIA armour. The torso was a dark royal blue along with the arms which ended in deep royal red gauntlets. The remainder of the armour was a deep royal red right down to the boots on her feet. Embossed onto the chest was the gold symbol denoting the Greek letter 'psi'.

Around her waist, a gold utility belt held a pair of SIG Sauer P225-A1 Nitron Compact pistols in 9-mm calibre, each with a capacity of eight rounds. Also on the belt were a pair of SR09-K suppressors to fit the threaded barrels of the pistols. In the top of each boot, Psyche's custom-designed Sais fitted securely. Her right thigh supported a mount for three titanium throwing knives. Hanging from the utility belt, a much shorter, deep royal red skirt was visible.

The mask was new and it covered her face completely. The majority of the mask was the same dark royal blue but with a red stripe accentuating her eyes. The cape was also there.

"You ready?" Hit Girl demanded.

"Bring it on, bitch!" the electronically enhanced voice of Psyche replied.

..._...

The two vigilantes, mother and daughter, were both fully suited and booted. Both were fully equipped with their weapons and accessories. Kick-Ass was on hand in his own combat suit to act as referee. There was quite a large crowd on the balcony that morning and there was an ample supply of fresh popcorn available – thanks to Cathy and Paige. There was the sense of a carnival atmosphere in the safehouse as everybody gathered to watch a spectacle like no other.

"You can pull the plug at any time, honey – understand?" Hit Girl warned Psyche.

"No chance, Mum – but I promise not to push it too far," Psyche replied. "I promise not to hurt you, either!"

"As if!"

Then the festivities began as Kick-Ass addressed the assembled watchers.

"Ladies and gentlemen! Boys and girls! Predators and vigilantes! Curtis and Megan! Welcome to the extravaganza of the weekend. We have a mother vs daughter fight: Hit Girl vs Psyche. Can we please have a cheer for Psyche and her new combat suit."

There was a roar of clapping and cheering to which Psyche bowed theatrically.

"How about a cheer for our purple queen?"

"Fuck that!" Chloe yelled but she cheered none the less with everybody else.

"Hit Girl, are you ready?"

"I was born ready, green asshole!"

A ripple of laughter echoed around the Safehouse.

"Psyche, are you ready?"

"Hit Girl is going down!" Psyche called out and she was cheered on by a huge roar of approval from those watching.

"In your fucking dreams!" Hit Girl growled as they both shook hands before moving a few feet apart and facing one another.

"Let the fight begin!" Kick-Ass yelled as he stood away from his wife and daughter.

..._...

Hit Girl opted to give her daughter a chance – it was an assessment after all and not a 'kick the shit out of Psyche' fight. Psyche, on the other hand, saw the fight as a 'kick the shit out of Hit Girl' fight and she was not intending on holding anything back. Her mind had been working out how to put Hit Girl down but nothing workable had come to fruition so Psyche was just going to go all out and hope for the best – at least until something better came to mind.

Psyche did, however, have an ace-in-the-hole. The ten-year-old had spent many hours with Chloe and Tommy. With their help, Stephanie had been able to regain full use of her right arm. Chloe, naturally, was well aware of how difficult it was to regain the use of your shoulder once a bullet or two had fucked around with it. Chloe had also pushed Stephanie past the pain to get her arm moving. The air had been turned blue as Chloe had helped work the shoulder and also the elbow. Tears and some screaming had also been a standard part of the recuperation.

As a sweetener to Stephanie to apologise for causing her so much pain, Chloe, Tommy, and Joshua had helped her to learn some new moves. Nobody had told Mindy about them – which was part of Chloe's plan! The new moves were running through Psyche's mind but she had to wait for the right opportunity and she did not want to tip her hand too early.

Hit Girl struck first with a swift punch which Psyche dodged and she retaliated with an equally swift kick to Hit Girl's left leg. There was a cheer as first contact went to Psyche. Hit Girl was not one to allow another to savour victory, so she quickly smacked her daughter in the chest, shoving her to the mat – a loud 'boo' followed the attack to which Hit Girl gave everybody the bird. Hit Girl was not exactly known for her kindness (Mindy was something else) and she demonstrated her cruel streak by executing a perfect spinning kick, catching Psyche around the head and sending her crashing to the mat.

Psyche scrambled to her feet, drawing a Sai with each hand and rushing at Hit Girl. Psyche was very skilled with the three-pronged weapons and Hit Girl knew it. The purple queen dodged each thrust, watching her opponent and the tips of each weapon with practiced ease. Hit Girl had a situational awareness like no other which she used to maximum advantage during a fight. Within another minute, Psyche had lost first one Sai and then the other and she was suddenly on the defensive with a very angry Hit Girl on the offensive, bearing down on her.

..._...

"She's fucking dead!" Lauren exclaimed and to be brutally honest, many agreed with her.

"Come on, Steph – you can take the bullying bitch!" Saoirse yelled out and there were cheers for Psyche.

Psyche, however, had her own ideas. As she stumbled back and fell to the mat, she swiftly rolled off to one side. Psyche then came back up with a pistol in each hand and she emptied both magazines into the approaching Hit Girl who fell backwards under the barrage of low-velocity training rounds. Psyche smoothly swapped out her empty magazines and she re-holstered her pistols as she closed on Hit Girl who was regaining her feet. Psyche struck just as Hit Girl turned to face her opponent and she received a kick to the shoulder followed up by a hard punch to the chest.

Hit Girl never learnt how to stay down, only how to stay standing. She absorbed the punches, showing no fear. Then she seized hold of Psyche and flipped her over as easily as she might turn over a mattress. Psyche hit the mat hard, knocking the air out of her lungs. The younger girl rolled away from her attacker and quickly regained her feet before turning back to face Hit Girl. Psyche punched and kicked, punched and kicked, not allowing Hit Girl a moment to gather her thoughts and reattack. Then, just before Psyche's energy began to flag, she shocked the fuck out of everybody there – especially Hit Girl.

Saoirse was getting very worried. While she could not see her best-friend beneath all the body armour, she knew that Stephanie had to be in pain and sweating buckets, not to mention being exhausted. The attack on Hit Girl was blistering and the colliding limbs were almost blurred with the speed of movement, both on attack and on the defence. Then, just as it seemed that Hit Girl was about to turn the tide of the fight with her infinitely superior skills, Psyche executed her endgame. If you blinked, you might have missed it, but Psyche struck out at Hit Girl with her left fist before pushing off with her right foot and then flipping herself over and clobbering Hit Girl around the back of the head with the armoured boot on her left foot.

Hit Girl went down like the proverbial sack of spuds!

..._...

The Safehouse was almost totally silent as Hit Girl hit the mat and rolled off to one side. Psyche sprang back to her feet and she swept up a discarded Sai. She ran over and kneed Hit Girl in the solar plexus. Hit Girl yelled out in pain but she did not move as she found the very sharp point of a Sai against her neck.

"You yield?" the victorious Psyche demanded.

Hit Girl considered her situation and for the first time ever, she uttered two words which she thought would never pass her lips. However, under the circumstances, she was very pleased to be saying them.

"I yield."

Psyche stood up and pulled off her mask, grinning hugely at the crowd of smiling faces above her. Hit Girl pulled off her own mask and then she seized Stephanie's right arm and raised it high.

"The champion!" Hit Girl called out with a broad smile.

The Safehouse erupted with cheering and yelling. Stephanie, sweat pouring off her, just stood there grinning like an insane idiot.

"Well done, honey," Mindy whispered into her daughter's right ear.

Stephanie swung around and hugged Mindy tightly.

..._...

Mindy cringed as she pulled off her body armour and she rubbed her abdomen. She was sweating buckets and after returning her weapons, she walked back to her suite in just her sports bra and boy shorts. Stephanie followed and joined Mindy in the capacious shower. While Mindy washed Stephanie's sweaty, tangled hair, they talked.

"I'm sorry if I hurt you," Stephanie said as she saw the large bruise in the centre of Mindy's chest, just below her breasts.

"I'll heal – I always do. I will admit, I was shocked with that somersault kick. Did Chloe teach you that?"

"I can neither confirm nor deny such a comment," Stephanie replied. "It was good, huh?"

"It was perfectly executed and in the perfect place, too."

"And the student shall become the master," Stephanie quipped.

"Not fucking yet, honey!" Mindy said as she pulled downwards on her daughter's hair to look her in the eyes meaningfully.

Stephanie giggled as she received a face full of water from the shower head.

"So – am I cleared for action? Is Psyche back on the streets?"

Mindy looked down at the hopeful expression. Stephanie was biting her bottom lip, much like Mindy herself often did to reassure herself.

"Aww come on! Do I have to fucking beg?"

"You passed – just don't hug me, you fucking nutter!"

Stephanie sat down at the side of the shower and she began to cry. Mindy left her be. She could see the smile as well as the tears. She knew that it was sheer relief. Passing that assessment had brought Stephanie full circle. The shooting. The painful recovery. It was over – well, almost. . .

"Your arm hurts, doesn't it?"

"Like the buggery!" Stephanie grinned.

"You Predators are fucking psychotic!"

"It's a state of mind, Hit Girl!"

"I suppose."

..._...

Twenty minutes later, the freshly showered Mindy and Stephanie reappeared to cheers and yells.

"Mum says I'm psychotic," Stephanie informed Dave.

"Like mother, like daughter," Dave chuckled.

Anne-Marie and Danny rushed forwards and both hugged Stephanie, ignoring her cringing as they crushed her right arm. Chloe pushed through and hugged Stephanie and she whispered her congratulations into her ear. Mindy just growled and punched Chloe on her left shoulder.

"Ow!" Chloe grinned.

"Thanks – you too, Tommy and you, Josh. You all helped my little girl regain who she really is, thank you."

"I'm off downtown with Riley and Avery – see you guys soon!" Chloe said and she headed towards the exit.

"Right, Psyche – get your butt into that armoury and clean those pistols!"

"Aye, aye, Hit Girl, ma'am!" Stephanie replied with a mock salute as she ran to the steel steps which led below.

"Megan, Curtis, are you both ready to head up to D-JAK?" Mindy called out.

"Aye, aye, Hit Girl, ma'am!" Megan yelled as she snapped to attention and saluted – Curtis just rolled his eyes and grinned stupidly.

Mindy laughed as she headed down to her Jaguar.

Much later that afternoon

Central Chicago

Chloe was out with Avery and Riley enjoying a brief shopping trip.

They had not done very much – just been for something to eat and they had had a good chat. It was the first time that the friends had had to catch up with one another since school had begun; the first week had been very busy. They were walking down North Michigan Avenue when Chloe suddenly stopped dead and Avery almost bumped into her. Then as Avery and Riley watched in horror, Chloe doubled over, gripping her stomach and she fell to the sidewalk screaming out in agony.

"It hurts! It hurts so much!"

Avery quickly regained her senses and she began looking around desperately for help. A couple dozen yards away, she saw a police officer running towards them, alerted by the Chloe's screams.

"Quick, my friend needs help," she said in barely restrained panic as the cop reached her.

"We need an ambulance at corner of East Ohio and North Michigan," the police officer radioed as he knelt down.

The man tried to pry Chloe's hands from her stomach but she had an iron grip as she writhed with the agony.

"Are you injured, miss?" he asked but Chloe was in far too much pain to respond.

"She just keeled over," Riley offered as she stared down at her friend.

The ambulance was there within two minutes and Chloe was quickly helped to her feet and taken aboard.

"I'm pregnant. . ." Chloe managed to say as the paramedic helped her to lie down.

"What!" came the shocked exclamation from Riley and Avery as they joined their friend in the back of the ambulance.

"Let's move it!" the paramedic directed as she slammed the rear door and pounded on the bulkhead for the driver.

The ambulance accelerated away, siren screaming.

Chapter 325*: Shadow Chloe

Earlier that afternoon

Saturday, September 10th

D-JAK Prime

"I expected you sooner," Paige commented as she checked her watch.

"Mindy stuck to the speed limits!" Megan complained.

"Oh!" Paige sounded surprised.

"Must be sore after having her ass handed to her by a ten-year-old!" Megan grinned.

"Language, Megan!" her mother cautioned.

"Is 'ass' a swearword now?"

"For you, yes."

"Oh, brother!"

"Stephanie's assessment?" Paige asked Mindy while ignoring her petulant daughter.

"Yeah – she passed!" Mindy chuckled.

"Brilliant! Bet she's happy."

"That's an understatement," Mindy admitted.

"Mindy got kicked down – it was so awesome!" Megan grinned.

"I mean this in the nicest possible way, dear daughter: fuck off, you little shit!" Paige said and Megan's mouth dropped open.

Mindy spun the speechless eleven-year-old around and pushed her out the door.

"Now, Boss – how about this getting your ass handed to you by a ten-year-old!"

Mindy rolled her eyes and pushed the door shut.

"As Megan said; it was awesome. . ."

..._...

"Do I have to?"

"Yes, Zoe, your Aunt Kim suggested that it might help you settle in – you know, meet some other kids your own age and maybe learn some useful skills."

"But I know some of that stuff – Aunt Kim taught me some stuff when I was eight."

"Please?"

"Okay, Mom – I'll give it a try."

"Zoe!" came a loud voice as Kim Eisenburg came running over.

"Hi, Aunt Kim."

"Let's get you into a class – but first, I'll let a friend of mine see how good you are."

Kim led her niece across the floor and over to where a young girl, not much older than Zoe was kicking a punchbag while a boy of very similar age held it steady. The girl and the boy both wore a Gi in blue with a green belt.

"Megan, this is my niece, Zoe."

"Hi, Zoe."

"Hi, Megan."

"Megan, could you check out Zoe and see where her skill level lies, please?"

"She know anything?" Megan asked.

"I've taught her one or two things," Kim offered with a smile.

..._...

"Taught her one or two things, huh!" Megan growled ten minutes later as she lay flat on her back.

"Yeah – one or two things," Zoe grinned as she held out a hand to Megan.

"You fight well, Zoe – damn well!"

"Well, a girl needs to be able to defend herself – am I right?"

"Damn right!" Megan replied as she allowed Zoe to help her to her feet. "Come and meet Curtis."

"He's your boyfriend, right?"

"Kind of."

"Aunt Kim says you and him mess about in bed, naked."

Megan's cheeks went very pink.

"A little – we've known each other for about two years."

"You two done it yet?"

"Huh?"

"Has Curtis stuck his dick inside you, yet?"

"You ask a lot of very personal questions, Zoe – no, we have not had sex. How about you?"

Zoe's face went pink.

"I've never been with a boy."

"Well, hands off Curtis – assuming you don't want your hands chopped off," Megan advised sweetly. "Curtis – this is Zoe; Kim's niece."

Curtis studied the new arrival.

"Hi, Zoe. Nice moves on Megan, over there."

"She has some nice moves, I'll agree – just don't applaud her too much, Curtis, or you'll be pleasuring yourself, tonight." Megan retorted.

There was the sound of sardonic laughter from behind the three youngsters.

"I don't see Megan passing up playing with Curtis' dick!" Nikki Hutchens laughed.

"Thanks, Nikki – tasteful," Megan growled.

"Oh, she tastes his dick, too!" Nikki laughed and Zoe giggled.

Central Chicago
North Michigan Avenue

Chloe was over the moon that Stephanie had passed her assessment.

Chloe knew what it meant to be side-lined due to injury. Admittedly, Stephanie had taken it a lot better than she herself had, but then Stephanie had been younger and she had had much more support. Chloe was pleased that she had been able to help the young girl. Stephanie was like a niece to her, just as Mindy was like a sister. It was even better that Stephanie had been able to put Hit Girl down. Chloe knew full well that Mindy had not put her heart and soul into the fight – if she had, then Stephanie would have died within two seconds of the fight beginning!

So much was going on in everybody's lives. School, Fusion . . . a baby. Joshua had been stunned, but within seconds his face had exploded into a massive smile. He had hugged her so tightly, Chloe had actually had to use their safe word – yes, they had a safe word, and never mind why! They had sat and talked for hours while Joshua had gently rubbed his hands across Chloe's stomach. It was a weird feeling, knowing that there was something growing inside of her – a new life. Between them, they had discussed how they might bring the child up – would he or she follow their parents into a life of vigilantism, or would he or she be allowed a childhood.

It was an awesome responsibility and Chloe was scared of what was to come. Joshua too had fears of his own. He loved Chloe more than anything else in the world and he would support her through anything. However, the thought of being responsible for a miniature human being was a daunting thought. Would he be a good father? Would they be able to cope? They were both very young – very young. No – they would receive help from their friends; whether they liked it or not, Chloe knew. A baby! Her mind was still struggling to come to terms with her new condition.

'Oh, Chloe! You do get yourself into some pretty wild situations!' she thought to herself.

Her next problem was spreading the news. That afternoon she had intended on telling Riley and Avery, her two best friends – but what might they think of her? Chloe already had a certain reputation around the school – and not the violent one, either. Some called her a slut – not to her face, of course – they were wrong; she only had eyes for Joshua and as far as she knew, she had only had sex with Joshua. What might people think and say when they found out that she was pregnant at sixteen? Chloe did not normally care what people thought about her but somehow, she felt incredibly vulnerable and she didn't want to become an embarrassment for her parents.

"Chloe – you okay?"

"Yeah, Avery; I've just got a lot on my mind."

"Thinking about some new sex positions?" Riley teased.

"There can't be all that many left for you two to try!" Avery added.

"Funny – so funny!" Chloe grinned. "I have something to tell you guys."

"You sound serious," Avery commented.

"Yeah – it is serious; I'm . . ."

Chloe suddenly stopped dead and Avery almost bumped into her. Then as Avery and Riley watched in horror, Chloe doubled over, gripping her stomach and she fell to the sidewalk screaming out in agony.

"It hurts! It hurts so much!"

Two hours later

Northwestern Memorial Hospital

Chloe felt numb.

Her happiness from earlier was gone as if it had never been. It wasn't the only thing that was gone as if it had never been. Her baby was gone. The new life that had been growing inside of her for a number of weeks – it was gone. The word that the nurse had used still echoed in her mind: miscarriage. A horrible word as far as women were concerned. Devastating for a mother-to-be. Her mother had been there with her for most of it and then Joshua had burst in just fifteen minutes previously. He shared her devastation; he had wanted the baby just as much as she had. They had both lost something very special.

The young man had not known what to say – in fact he had not said a word since his arrival. He just sat there, stunned, but holding Chloe's hand tightly. His being there was enough for Chloe. She needed him there. Words were unnecessary; she knew how he felt. She could sense his feelings, just as he could hers. They both had a link which was unbreakable and to others, unfathomable. Cathy called it love and maybe she was right. It was one of the very few times that Chloe had ever seen Joshua cry. Chloe worried about him, just as much as he worried about her. Cathy had called Mindy to advise her of what had happened, but nobody else had been informed – most did not even know that she had been pregnant in the first place.

Sitting outside the room were two very miserable teenagers. Riley and Avery had been very upset with what was happening to their friend. Cathy had done her best to explain everything to them and assure them that Chloe was fine. True, there were no medical complications and Chloe would be free to go home in a matter of hours, but it would be the mental scars which would be difficult if not impossible to eradicate and Chloe would carry them for the rest of her life – Joshua too. Cathy had mixed feelings – maybe it was for the best; they were both too young to have children, but Cathy still felt for her daughter and a boy who Cathy cared for as if he was her own.

From purely a medical standpoint, it was a miscarriage – a fact of nature. Chloe's body had decided that the foetus was unviable and therefore ejected the unborn and undeveloped human being. Chloe was tough – very tough. It would be difficult but she would survive. The bleeding had been heavy, so Chloe was weak but a few days of rest would help her body to recover.

That evening

Glenview

Mindy looked out of the kitchen window.

Her mood was mixed. She was happy for Stephanie who was currently running around the garden with Razor and Horatio. Horatio was just getting in the way, but he loved a bit of rough and tumble with his canine friend. Anne-Marie was out as well, with Kiara. Sophia was a few feet away from Mindy keeping her company. On the flipside, Mindy was miserable – her best friend was struggling to cope with the loss of something very special.

Mindy had to come to a decision. She was putting together a team to go to Europe and normally, Chloe would be at the very top of that list. There were times that difficult decisions had to be made and Mindy hated them with a passion – it was always the bane of every leader. Mindy had been to see Cathy and had sought her opinion on her daughter's condition. Cathy had expected the visit and she had, as always, been prepared. Yes, Chloe was okay to travel – physically at least. Mindy decided to leave it to Chloe to come to a mature decision.

..._...

Chloe arrived with Joshua in tow a little after nine that night. Cathy had driven them both over and left them as they would both spend the night at Glenview.

"Okay, Chloe – you know what I am going to say."

"I have to come, Mindy – I'm okay; I just need some heavier tampons is all."

"Chloe – you're my best friend; I know a little of what you're going through. . ."

"What the fuck would you know about losing a child?" Chloe blurted out but then her expression of anger changed instantly to one of horror at what she had just said. "Oh, God, Mindy – I am so sorry; I should never have said that."

"Chloe, you're allowed to be angry. . ."

"Not with you and not with something like that. I know from a very personal point of view the personal hell that you endured when Anne-Marie was taken and then when Stephanie was shot and each time she died. I just want to be there; you need me."

Chloe hugged Mindy tightly. They had both been through a lot together and Chloe needed Mindy, just as Mindy had needed her before.

Stephanie stopped at the entrance to the living room.

Mindy was on the couch with Chloe, only Chloe was cuddled into Mindy and sobbing her eyes out. Mindy just shook her head and Stephanie backed off. Instead, she headed into the kitchen where she found a morose looking Joshua sitting opposite Dave.

"What the fuck is going on?" she demanded.

Joshua stood up and he guided the ten-year-old through into the living room. He sat her down on the opposite couch to the two girls and then sat down beside her.

"Chloe has had a miscarriage," he explained. "Do you know what that is?"

Stephanie was horrified – she knew exactly what a miscarriage was. Her eyes filled with tears and she her heart went out to both Chloe and Joshua.

"Yes – I do, but I never even knew that Chloe was pregnant."

"We hadn't announced it. . ."

Stephanie saw the tears spilling down Joshua's cheeks and she hugged her friend. He had always been there for her – now it was her turn to be there for him.

Chapter 326*: Stormtide

Sunday, September 11th, 2016

Chicago, USA

Fusion was embarking to cross the Atlantic.

Equipment and supplies were being loaded aboard a giant Lockheed LM-100J transport aircraft. The equipment had all been loaded into cargo containers suitable for loading into the aircraft's cavernous belly. A lot of the equipment would probably never be used but it was better to have it than not and Mindy did not want to deplete the Vengeance equipment reserves unnecessarily.

After much soul-searching, Dave and Mindy had chosen to leave the twins with Marcus and Paige. Stephanie would be travelling, of course, as would Saoirse, Abby, Chloe, Joshua, and Mathilda. They would all fly out on the Gulfstream a few hours after the Lockheed transport which flew at half the speed of the executive jet.

Three hours before departure, Mindy received an urgent call to go see Synthesis at their facility. Naturally, with a lot still to arrange, Mindy was not happy.

Synthesis Data Facility

"This had better be good!" Hit Girl growled.

Libby turned to face the purple-clad vigilante queen and she swallowed deeply before she spoke.

"I was talking with Q and, well, we had an idea. . ."

"Spit it out, girl!"

"Back in early June, there was a gunfight in the English seaside town of Whitby – it ended up on YouTube."

Libby clicked on a button and on one of the large screens, a video began to play. The video was entitled: 'Young boy shoots man on Whitby street'. As Hit Girl watched, she saw an image of the Yorkshire fishing town on the west coast of England.

...+...

The sun was shining and it looked like a typical family video. Until . . .

A young boy could be seen looking down the street, then he dived flat to the floor and several pistol shots were heard. The boy reached into his pack and he produced a small pistol. Very quickly, he came up into a kneeling stance and very calmly, he began to return fire. His smaller pistol issued sharper cracks compared to the heavier booms of the opposition's weapons.

The camera had moved to show three adults, each with large pistols evident in their hands. One, a woman, dived into cover behind a parked van. A man followed suit but the third member received two bullets to his chest and he went down hard. The boy showed no fear, nor any remorse, as he emptied his magazine towards the adults before calmly reloading and running towards the swing-bridge across the water. He just made it to the other side before the bridge began to open for an approaching boat.

Screams and sirens could be heard as people dove for cover. The young boy was last seen running into the narrow streets of Whitby.

...+...

"Holy shit!" Hit Girl murmured.

"Yeah – not your average event on a sunny afternoon in an English town."

"More like Chicago on a Saturday night!" Hit Girl commented dryly.

"Well, after witnessing that attack on Scorpio, in London, we began to do some thinking. . ."

Libby paused as Hit Girl began to growl.

"Look – we're not stupid; I assume you would not have recruited us if we were," Libby said and she visibly breathed a sigh of relief when Hit Girl nodded and then waved for her to continue. "Those kids were amazing – they were also really violent. We heard the term, 'predator' in relation to them, so we assumed that they were some highly trained kids – you know, like that girl in Stranger Things."

"Go on."

"Well – seeing the way those kids fought; well, it kind of reminded me of that boy in the video. So, I got to thinking – the video was crap; always is from phones and when caught on the fly. We did what we could to acquire a clean image of the boy's face and body – the results were poor, but Kate and Laurence managed to clean things up and they were able to obtain height, approximate weight, and some very crude facial stats. Kate?"

"Err yeah, we started searching cached CCTV in London – never mind how! We got a hit, about three hours ago – then another, and another."

"Okay," Hit Girl said. "Show me what you got."

A grainy image appeared on the screen – it was early morning, but Mindy could make out a young boy and an older girl standing on a busy street. Then another image appeared beside it. It was of better quality than the first and it appeared to have been taken in a parking lot late morning. The image showed a boy and a girl – it wasn't a perfect match, but they could be the same pair.

"We identified the motorcycle that they were riding. We were able to access the motorway camera network that the Brits use to track licence plates. We found several hits on the plate – they were heading west. They also came back a few days later – heading east before we lost them about sixty miles west of London."

"Very good, Synthesis!"

"You can pass on the details to Battle Guy, but for now, where did they go?"

"Blandford Forum – a market town."

That same time

Blandford Forum, England

There had been six deliveries over a period of four hours.

The British Army Foden DROPS trucks had deposited six containerised loads side-by-side before disappearing. One of the flatbed containers contained two fuel tanks – petrol and diesel. Five identical Range Rover Sentinels were also delivered and they were parked undercover behind the containers.

The site was an MI5 Safehouse and it was currently being occupied by the Vengeance forward unit which consisted of Eric, Natasha, and Abigail. Together, they inventoried all the supplies and they ensured that everything was ready for the arrival of Fusion. Nothing was overlooked – Eric of course ensured that Abby would have the required secure internet connectivity as well as readying one of their drones for a reconnaissance mission. Back in London, Commander Lawrence and Jasper were busy deconflicting the Vengeance/Fusion activities to ensure that there would be no interference from the military, nor from the local police.

That, in itself, was dangerous as nobody knew how far Scorpio might have the local police penetrated. Commander Lawrence had to assume that Scorpio would be fully integrated with local law enforcement so no local police were notified, however, the Home Office was prepared to intervene should the police report any potential terrorist activity in the West Country. It would not do for any blue on blue strikes nor did HMG wish to publicise the fact that they were actively allowing vigilante activity within UK borders.

It was also very important to ensure that the press did not get wind of Chicago's own vigilante queen causing bloody havoc in a sleepy part of England.

Monday, September 12th

MI5 Safehouse
Blandford Forum

It was something which always amazed both Cassie and Keira.

The giggly little girls who were always out to cause trouble were totally different when they were deployed as their not-so-alter egos. From eight-year-old Kaitlin to twelve-year-old Craig, there was one-hundred percent concentration.

Keira had just driven in with Harper and Craig, each of whom had flown down to their temporary base at Royal Naval Air Station Yeovilton. Twilight was stored out of sight in a hanger beside helicopters which were much more familiar to the ex-Royal Navy pilot. The helicopter was also being transformed into its attack guise under the guidance of the Chief who was very pleased to be back in his former surroundings.

Harper and Craig got on amazingly well – Keira had been forced to listen to an hour's worth of conversation which had covered the internals of various machineguns and the benefits of a closed-bolt design over an open-bolt design. A conversation which Keira had found both very boring and one which was very odd for a nine-year-old girl and a twelve-year-old boy to be actively engaged in.

The Predators were in the dining room, busy checking through all the weapons and loading magazines. They were very skilled and efficient at it too. The conversation was limited and only relevant to the task at hand.

"Maybe we should have them servicing weapons and loading magazines 24-7," Cassie quipped.

"Would give us a peaceful life," Keira agreed.

Kaitlin barely looked up from her magazine filling.

"A couple of murders would give us a peaceful life too," she muttered to nobody in particular.

Before Cassie could respond to Kaitlin's suggestion, there was a commotion from outside the Safehouse. Cameron peeked his head into the dining room.

"They're here!" he called out before vanishing.

Harper, Naomi, Kaitlin, Electra, Abigail, and Yvette bolted out of the room like they were being chased by the hounds of hell. Craig shrugged and followed on more sedately.

..._...

Parked up outside were two extra vehicles.

There was a large 26-foot Euro6 curtain-sider truck with a Mercedes cab and a Mercedes V-Class MPV. Dave was climbing down from the truck along with Mathilda. Out of the MPV came Stephanie, Saoirse, Abby, Chloe, and Joshua. Mindy climbed out of the driver's seat.

"You allowed Mindy to drive?" Natasha quipped.

"Hi, Nats!" Mindy laughed as she gave her friend a hug.

Naturally, all the female Predators began screaming and they each dived onto Stephanie and Saoirse. Saoirse was unused to the big welcomes which Stephanie seemed to attract and she looked a little freaked out as she was hugged by each girl in turn. Abby, of course, appeared to vanish along with Eric. Keira studied Chloe but Joshua just shook his head and Keira left it for later – she could tell that something was wrong.

After everybody had finished enjoying the welcoming ceremony, Stephanie took Abigail and Electra off to one side. Electra knew what was coming and her doleful expression showed it.

"You going to kick our arses?" Abigail asked.

"I should – when I heard about what you two did, I wanted to come over here and tear you both apart."

"We worked out our differences and while we're not exactly fucking each other, we're not fucking each other over either," Electra commented with a smile.

"You really do have a way with words, 'lectra!" Stephanie laughed. "Just stay friends, that's all I ask."

"We're working on it," Abigail said as she put an arm around Electra and hugged her.

Electra cringed.

..._...

"It's good to be together, again," Dave said as he sat down with Cameron and Joshua.

The Predators, now joined by Stephanie and Saoirse, had gone back to preparing the weapons. Chloe was off with Mindy and Cassie checking out the truckload of cargo while Keira was helping Mathilda with her personal weapons. Abby and Eric were conspicuous by their absence although the Vengeance Command Van known as Cyclone appeared to be moving around a bit on its suspension.

Once all the equipment was unpacked and passed onto the Predator production line for further checks, Mindy and Cassie went for a ride on a pair of Triumph Tiger Explorer XCA motorcycles. Mindy was in her element as she raced around the narrow lanes many of which were sunken and the tops of the hedges were several feet above them. They passed through Tarrant Rawston and then rode past the old World War II RAF airfield at Tarrant Rushton. At Witchampton, they stopped to check out the access roads to what they were calling 'Scorpio Satellite Site B'.

The location sucked as far as making a covert assault was concerned. Any assault would have to execute after dark and on foot. Any vehicles approaching would be heard a mile away. Images from a high-flying drone, EAGLE-1, had revealed many heat blooms indicating upwards of thirty occupants on the site. The nine buildings were a mixture of old and new and were primarily on the north side of the almost eleven-acre site. Nobody had any idea if it would be all gunmen, or kids being held against their will – or something else.

A quick ride up the A3078 with a left at the Horton Inn, took Mindy and Cassie down some excellent roads as they headed north-west. Naturally, Mindy got a bit ahead of herself and she put the 1,215cc 3-cylinder engine through its paces, racing along the narrow lanes at over seventy miles-per-hour. They slowed down as they approached the small village of Tollard Royal and what they were calling 'Scorpio Satellite Site A'.

Site A was a large manor house dating back to the 1800s. It would be a very difficult place to assault but it was doable. Both Mindy and Cassie agreed with earlier ideas that the assault would be best with helicopter support. They had Twilight, however, a second helicopter would have been useful, but Scourge was not ready and they did not have a second combat pilot anyway. Drone imagery had also identified the presence of a Storm Grey McLaren 675LT parked outside the building and the tracker which Abigail had been placed on William Fraser was still functioning and it indicated his presence at the site.

There was a lot of planning to complete.

MI5 Safehouse

The return of Mindy and Cassie signalled dinner time and then bedtime.

The kids were sent to bed once they had all been fed – they would all need their energy for the next twenty-four hours which promised to be exciting. The accommodations that night were tight to be fair but the kids were used to it. Harper was sharing a room with Craig.

"I hope you two won't be screaming like Cassie does when she has sex," Kaitlin commented as she walked past the door to their bedroom.

"Kaitlin – shut the fuck up!" Harper growled as Craig's cheeks went red.

"Why else would a boy share a room with a girl?" Kaitlin asked innocently.

"Because there's no space anywhere else, you dumb fuck!" Naomi advised her cousin.

"There's no need for bad language," Kaitlin retorted as she vanished down to the room which she was sharing with Abigail, Electra, Yvette, and Naomi.

The following afternoon
Tuesday, September 13th

Scorpio Satellite Site B

The facility was of a very utilitarian nature but the landscaping had been completed well, thus blending the site into the surrounding countryside.

Shadow and Hal had been studying the site from a distance using high-powered optics. It was forbidding, but it had been deemed that two people could slip in and hopefully out without any significant issues. They needed intel and intel was what they were there to acquire. Shadow would get them both in, and then Hal would go to work on the Scorpio computer systems with remote help from Synthesis. High above them, the $3million ScanEagle X200 Unmanned Aerial Vehicle (UAV) known as EAGLE-1 flew in a large racetrack pattern. The 22kg aircraft with its three-metre wingspan and 1.5-horsepower engine flew at 60 knots and was capable of remaining airborne for over twenty-four hours. The high-definition cameras were aimed at Site B and they were watching the area to help guide the two vigilantes inside the facility.

Then they found an ally as the heaven's opened, drenching the Wiltshire countryside in sheets of freezing icy rain. The vision suddenly dropped to mere yards instead of the half-a-mile that they had enjoyed only minutes previously. They both jumped up and ran forwards. They had a thousand yards to cover over two muddy fields, not that it was a problem for the two ultra-fit vigilantes. Both wore their Fusion Covert Combat Suits, complete with masks, under British MTP camouflage clothing. As they ran across the fields, they were quickly covered in mud and soaked, but their skin stayed dry thanks to the combat suit which let sweat out but prevented the rain getting in.

..._...

Shadow raised her clenched fist and Hal stopped dead. Directly ahead of them was a hedge, beyond that hedge were two long buildings – the first of Site B. On closer inspection, the hedge was concealing security measures and if they had simply blundered through, then they would have triggered off alarms and . . .

"Is that a fucking Claymore?" Hal demanded.

Shadow nodded as she pointed out the trip wire and the detonation device. Shadow sent an image of the device back to Q who would add the intel to the burgeoning stack of intel back at the Safehouse. Shadow disabled the detonation device and they moved through the hedge and stopped beside the first building. There were no visible windows in the sides of the building so Shadow led the way down the side towards the front of the building.

The building had a sign on the door – 'Generator' – another image was sent to Q as Shadow picked the simple Yale lock and eased open the door.

That same time

M15 Safehouse

"Welcome!"

"You must be Hit Girl," the man said as he took the offered hand.

"You must be Astute."

"Thank you for allowing me to join your team."

"We want to get your daughter back, and I need to find my daughter's brother," Mindy replied.

"I understand you've tracked them down?"

"We think so."

Patrick Millar looked around the room and he took in the nine kids. His face went very serious as he realised what they were.

"I know you," the eldest girl stated.

"Saoirse Doherty – Second Intake."

Mindy frowned.

"Instructor Millar was there when I was taken. He was there when we were stripped naked and we had our hair cut off," Saoirse explained.

"I remember every kid who was there while I was and I can only apologise, Saoirse. I believed in Urban Predator when it was just Lucy and Leo – they were street rats given a new life. Then they began taking kids like you – kidnapping you and forcing you into a different life. Lucy and Leo had no life, no future; you did – as did you all."

There were a lot of glares from the kids' present once they realised that they had an Urban Predator instructor amongst them. Saoirse noticed and she moved in between the potential lynch mob and their target.

"Leave him alone," she ordered. "Instructor Millar was never cruel. He looked after everybody there, when he could. I hated him at first, just like the rest; they had humiliated me and taken away my individuality. But then a scared ten-year-old found that there was somebody who would listen when things got too much. Somebody who would stand up for our welfare. I know that Leo and Lucy both spoke highly of him. You guys want to lynch him then you're going to have to go through me."

"Did you know, Mindy?" Abigail asked.

"Yes, I did. He was vouched for. The girl currently running with Jamie? Shannon is Patrick's daughter."

"They took her when I rebelled against them. I was being transferred – Shannon got angry and she stormed out to let off some steam. That was back in 2011; I never saw her again."

"Shannon Millar?" Saoirse asked.

"Yes."

"I remember her but I never made the connection," Saoirse said. "She came in out of sequence; three months after the rest of her intake. She received harsher treatment compared to the rest of us. They stripped her in the vehicle garage and marched her naked through the facility to the showers where she had her head shaved in front of everybody. She sobbed for three days straight – she was so scared. She was beaten badly, several times during her first month. Now it makes sense; they were punishing her for what you did."

"Thank you for telling me that, Saoirse. I know how much you must all resent me and what I represent. Where is Stephanie?"

Stephanie raised her hand.

"I spent many weeks in contact with Miranda and she talked about you. She was a very courageous woman and I'm sorry she died."

"Thanks," Stephanie said simply and she held out her hand to the man.

He hesitated, unsure of taking the hand.

"We all have scars. We all have things we did. We all have regrets. We've all been given a second chance and we need to embrace that," Stephanie stated as she resolutely held out her hand.

Patrick Millar took it and he shook it.

"Welcome to the club, Mr Millar," Saoirse grinned.

Scorpio Satellite Site B

The generator building, unsurprisingly, held a large generator.

However, that was not all. Hal was pleased to see a computer terminal which was patch into a cabled network connection. While Shadow kept a lookout, Hal set to work hacking into the Scorpio network. It did not take long and she was able to connect up a small wireless interface which would then allow Synthesis to connect into the network from Chicago.

Hal ensured that her freshly installed equipment was not visible before she and Shadow made their way back outside and back into the driving rain. They had only moved a dozen yard before there was movement close by and a rain-soaked guard appeared from around the next block. Shadow seized him and threw him down into the mud, punching him hard in the face with her armoured gauntlets. The man was out cold before he even knew that Shadow and Hal were there. But before they could gain entry to the next block, the rain began to lift and they heard a challenge from across the compound.

"Command – contact, contact, contact!" Shadow radioed.

Shadow then snapped off a bullet in the direction of the challenge and she dove behind the block with Hal beside her.

..._...

Their presence was most unwelcome, but not all that unexpected, it seemed. People began to spill out of the blocks. Most of them were armed and bullets began to fly. Shadow and Hal were both lightly armed – it was only supposed to be a stealthy infiltration, after all! But they were not unsupported – not by a long shot.

The long shot came out of the rain and a guard fell backwards into the mud, a large hole in his chest. Another guard ran over to check his colleague – his head exploded as the .50-calibre BMG round passed through and continued on for another few hundred yards. Eighty metres away, Leon adjusted her aim for the next target of opportunity. Leon had a personal hatred for people who targeted children and she felt no remorse as she coldly dropped another guard before moving on to the next.

Something caught Shadow's eye, across the far side of the compound. It appeared to be a young girl – not altogether a surprise – but the girl was very small. Before Shadow could move, she heard several yells and the guards began to withdraw, running back to several parked four-wheel-drive vehicles. They were obviously bugging out in the face of superior fire-power. The mere presence of an unseen but very deadly sniper was enough to scare the crap out of anybody. Three vehicles vanished down the muddy track. The last vehicle, however, deviated from the course of the other vehicles.

Shadow looked on in horror as the Land Rover drove directly at the little girl with the obvious intention of killing her; she was evidence, after all.

..._...

Shadow yelled out a warning but the little girl had already reacted with lightning speed. A very impressed Shadow watched as the girl dropped to the swirling muddy torrent at her feet and balled herself as tight as possible, like a peanut, and the large 4x4 drove directly over her with barely an inch of clearance. Shadow bolted forwards with Hal beside her and they both emptied their pistols at the retreating vehicle. Shadow smiled with undisclosed pleasure as she registered a large dark smudge which appeared on the windshield and the Land Rover careered into a concrete wall, rebounding and then stopping against a parked car.

Shadow ejected her empty magazine and inserted a fresh one, as did Hal. As she did that, she ran forward and quickly scooped the little peanut out of the mud and into her arms.

"You alright, peanut?" Shadow asked.

The little girl looked up at Shadow out of her pale brown eyes. She brushed the wet hair out of eyes and she smiled. Then she frowned.

"My name is Becky, not 'peanut!'"

Shadow laughed at the fiery, indignant response.

"You okay, Becky?"

"Yeah – that was scary."

"Let's get you some place safe, okay?"

The little girl's smile vanished and tears began to fall.

"I have nowhere to go."

"Oh, yes, you do, honey. You wanna come home with me?"

The smile returned, but the tears remained.

"Can I?"

"Of course, Peanut. Is there anybody else here?"

Becky shook her head, "No."

Shadow wiped away the little girl's tears which seemed just a little bit redundant considering the pounding rain which soaked the little girl's skin and she headed out to the RV Point with Hal protecting their rear.

..._...

Fifty yards to the north of the site, Hal popped a smoke grenade and threw it a few yards away. While the smoke was all but invisible in the rain, the heat-bloom from the grenade's chemical reaction blossomed onto Scorpion's Forward Looking Infra-Red (FLIR) display and she dived Twilight down through the rain.

"Standby for pickup, Chief!" Scorpion ordered.

Aft of her, in the main cabin, Chief Montgomery checked his safety harness before he pulled back both side doors and latched them open. He picked up a Heckler & Koch G36K short submachine gun and prepared for the extraction. Through the NVGs mounted on his flight helmet, he could make out three people – one much smaller than the other two - awaiting pick up. Scorpion was seconds away from placing Twilight down beside Shadow and Hal when The Chief issued an urgent warning.

"Pilot, Crewman – trouble inbound at ten o'clock!"

Scorpion abandoned the landing and she spun the helicopter around on its access, arming the weapons systems as she went.

"Shadow, Hal – aborting pickup; un-friendlies inbound – take cover while we prosecute, Scorpion out!"

Shadow and Hal flattened themselves on the ground with Shadow on top of Becky. Scorpion lined up Twilight and she prepared to attack the three approaching vehicles. As the aiming reticule in her visor adjusted under the control of the firing computer, Scorpion steadied the aircraft and then just as the reticule passed onto the target, she flipped up the cover on the guns button just above her right thumb.

With that simple movement, Scorpion fired off Twilight's first ever war shots.

..._...

The helicopter had not been visible as it had closed but Shadow and Hal had both heard the turbines and rotor blades. Twilight had been in full combat mode with no visible illumination on the aircraft helping the dark grey helicopter to blend into the driving rain. Just before it had aborted the landing, Shadow had taken in the helicopter's latest guise.

Twin pods were mounted, one on either side of the fuselage. Each held a 12.7mm (.50-calibre) FN M3P machinegun which was capable of firing 1,200 rounds-per-minute with each pod holding 250-rounds. Mounted under each pod were three launch tubes for three 2.75-inch unguided HE rockets.

Shadow's immediate thought was how deadly the helicopter looked but then she almost jumped out of her body armour as a single burst of machinegun fire leapt from each pod-mounted .50-calibre weapon. As far as Shadow was concerned, the sound was stupendous. It was also extremely accurate as a dozen bullets cut into the bonnet of the first Land Rover, destroying the engine and killing two of the four men on board.

The other two vehicles rapidly performed one-eighties and roared off back down the track.

"Shadow, Hal – target prosecuted; Twilight inbound for pickup – forty seconds!"

"Copy that, Twilight," Shadow replied as she stood back up, pulling Becky with her.

..._...

As Twilight came around into the wind, The Chief resumed his position ready for a combat pick up. Scorpion brought the helicopter in fast, flaring at the last second and dropping the undercarriage. The helicopter settled into a hover, three feet off the ground – she did not want to get the tyres muddy! While Hal kept watch, Shadow threw Becky up to The Chief who shoved her firmly into a seat – niceties could be observed once clear of the combat zone. The Chief then reached down and he hauled Hal up into the helicopter followed by Shadow who quickly grabbed hold of a second H&K G36G and took post at the open port door. The Chief did the same as he contacted Scorpion.

"Pilot, crewman – team aboard; clear to depart!"

"Acknowledged!" Scorpion responded as she firewalled the engines and pulled up on the collective, pushing forwards the cyclic.

Twilight rapidly accelerated forwards and upwards, gathering speed and quickly passing one hundred knots. Scorpion was very pleased to be moving skyward; a helicopter's transition from the hover to forward flight was its most dangerous when in a combat zone. Once clear of the ground, Scorpion altered course to the west and within minutes the sound of turbines and churning rotors vanished from the area.

The Chief closed both side doors and everybody settled into their seats for the ride to safety.

MI5 Safehouse

Scorpion set Twilight down behind some trees to one side of the Safehouse and dropped off Chloe and Becky – Hal, Scorpion, and the Chief still had a lot of work to do.

When Shadow entered the otherwise empty Safehouse, she sat Becky down on a couch in the living room. Shadow pulled off her mask and smiled down at the youngster.

"I'm going to get cleaned up and changed, then I'll sort you out, okay?"

Chloe turned and she headed for her room but before she could move more than a foot, she felt a small hand inside her own. Chloe looked down and she saw the scared look.

"Let's go, Peanut."

In the bedroom, she placed Becky on the bed and moved towards the bathroom. Becky was slipping off the bed before Chloe had made it to the door, just a few feet away.

"Can't I shower in peace?"

The look Chloe received, said 'no'. Luckily, the bathroom had both a bath and a separate shower, so Chloe ran a bath for Becky – there were no bubbles, so soap would have to do. While the water was running, Chloe pushed Becky back into the bedroom.

"Get undressed and I'll dump you in the bath."

Becky quickly began to shed her clothes. The little girl's face was covered in cuts and bruises, as well as mud, so Chloe should not have been all that surprised to find out that the child had many more which had previously been covered up by her clothing. As Becky revealed more and more skin, Chloe got angrier and angrier: almost every square-inch of the eight-year-old's body had a mark of some sort on it. Her neck, chest, stomach, legs, back, and her backside itself showed evidence of her having taken a beating, recently too. There were numerous cuts, some healed over. The poor girl had obviously been abused over her entire time as a trainee Predator.

Chloe's heart went out to the little girl as she was lowered gently into the hot water. Becky cried out as her fresher injuries touched the water and Chloe had never felt so horrible inside. How could anybody do such a thing to such a sweet little girl? Chloe so hoped that Vossen and his pals were having a really good time in hell and if she had her way, they would be gaining a colleague!

Once Becky was busy soaping herself, Chloe stripped off and dived into the shower. She was very glad of the water as it washed away the tears that she hoped Becky had not seen.

Meanwhile . . .

The A354 west of Tarrant Hinton

The girl was frozen.

Her clothing was soaked and the rain was unrelenting. She had never felt so cold. She had no idea where she was going nor what she was going to do once she got there. She had nobody, she was alone. Who could she contact? Her mind was a muddle – she couldn't think straight. That little girl kept popping into her mind alongside Jamie. Both were at risk. The little girl meant nothing to Shannon - but the little girl had killed for her; she was obviously a Predator, so she deserved to live, to survive. Only, Shannon would have to survive first and then find help before she could return to help that little girl – and rescue Jamie.

Shannon shivered as a gust of wind blew through her clothing. In seven weeks, she would be fourteen-years-old – but right at that moment, she was beginning to think that she would not live that long, and real tears of both fear and failure joined the torrent of rain which flooded across her face. Then she paused and her Predator training came back to the fore as she heard a deadly sound – an approaching helicopter.

The girl dove into the mud beside a hedge which ran alongside the road.

..._...

"Hit Girl, I have a heat signature, a mile ahead of you – it's hiding behind a hedge to your right," Scorpion radioed.

"Copy that, Scorpion, thanks," Hit Girl replied.

The five-vehicle convoy was headed east at speed towards the Scorpio Satellite Site A. Hit Girl was in the front passenger seat of the leading vehicle while Kick-Ass was driving. Behind her sat Psyche, Stripe, and Rigour. In the vehicle behind, Jackal drove with Foxtail beside her. In the rear seat were three very eager young girls: Prowl, Polaris, and Glide. The rear vehicle had Drift at the wheel with Nemesis beside him. In the rear seat were Fury, and La Terreaur.

The fourth vehicle: Cyclone, followed the three Range Rover Sentinels with Q at the wheel and Hal in the rear with her equipment. The intelligence obtained by Hal had also included access to certain systems at Site A. Synthesis were busy hacking in at that moment and passing across whatever they found to Hal.

The fifth vehicle was the tail-end-Charlie and it was being driven by Crimson with Astute in the seat beside her.

Scorpion kept the heat signature visible as the convoy closed. Her immediate job was to prevent any ambush on the combined Fusion/Vengeance attack force.

"Target is sixty yards on the right," Scorpion radioed.

..._...

The convoy slowed and stopped as the vehicles took up tactical positions – the two rear-most Sentinels guarding the Command Van. Hit Girl climbed out of the Sentinel, her SIG Sauer MPX-K raised ahead of her. Kick-Ass covered her with an identical weapon. Hit Girl leapt over a wooden five-bar gate and quickly levelled her weapon at the dark shape huddled under the hedge. With a slight movement of her finger, a dazzling light illuminated the target.

"Hi, there, my name is Hit Girl – you would not, by any chance, be called, Stormtide?"

Stormtide raised her hand against the dazzling light, temporarily blinded. Her senses and training ordered her to react, but the electronically synthesised voice had scared her and the young girl had nothing left to resist with. Throughout her training, she had been told that one day, Hit Girl may come for her life. That day had come and she was going to die without ever seeing Jamie again.

"I am Stormtide – are you here to kill me?"

Hit Girl laughed.

"No, I came to rescue you. There are is somebody in particular who is desperate to see you."

"Shannon!"

Shannon's head came up and she turned toward the voice.

"Oh, my God – I never thought the day would come," Patrick Millar said as he emerged from the rain and he laid eyes on his daughter properly for the first time in five years.

"Daddy?"

It had been many years, but she still recognised her father's voice. The thirteen-year-old girl broke down and she sobbed as her father hugged her tightly. Nemesis came over and she helped the sobbing, shivering girl into the waiting Range Rover. But Stormtide stopped and she turned to Hit Girl.

"You gotta help him – he is alone; please."

"Help who?"

"Rage – they're gonna kill him."

This storyline continues in Chapter 20: Jamie of Predator as well as simultaneously in Chapter 23: LV-426 of Vengeance and Chapter 327: Scorpio Satellite Site A of Forsaken.

Chapter 327*: Scorpio Satellite Site A

That evening
Tuesday, September 13th

Attack Force 1

Scorpion was flying low, very low!

The three-ton helicopter was flying at what seemed like only feet above the ground as she came in from the west without lights. Scorpion was making use of her NVGs and a Forward Looking Infra-Red (FLIR) turret to see where she was flying. The flight was relatively short and very soon, Scorpion held up two fingers, indicating two minutes.

"Stand by to deploy!" Scorpion radioed.

A very fast two minutes later, Twilight flared and accelerated upwards forty or so feet before she came into the hover about two feet off the flat roof of the main house. The side doors were both locked back and the six-person team jumped off the helicopter – three to port and three to starboard - before they crouched down facing outwards, as the helicopter dipped forwards and rapidly increased speed. The noise coming from the twin 714-shp engines was deafening and the down-blast from the 10.8-meter, four-bladed main rotor was almost incapacitating.

Kick-Ass, along with his team: Psyche and Foxtail, prepared their weapons. On the opposite side of the landing zone, Hit Girl with her team: Jackal and Stripe, followed suit.

Attack Force 2

Over to the south, Crimson with her team: Polaris, Rigour, and La Terreur, approached the main building.

Less than fifty yards ahead of them, they could see their target. The building was lit up and the occupants did not appear to be expecting an attack. The approaching team knew otherwise. While Twilight was fitted with silencers for her turbines, there was no hiding the sound of the rotor blades; the building's occupants must have heard the helicopter.

The team paused to check over their weapons and equipment before they moved onwards, towards the house.

Attack Force 3

Moving in from the west, below Twilight's flightpath, Drift's team appropriated the downdraught and noise from the helicopter's approach to cover their dash across the open gravel-covered area towards the main entrance to the house.

Above Drift, Nemesis, Prowl, and Glide, there was the sound of weapons' fire. Some of the weapons' fire was automatic, but some were single shots. Bright flashes could be observed coming from some of the upper windows and they could all hear the 'crump' of flashbang grenades being used high above them.

The team headed directly for the main door in an arrow formation. Nemesis had the point position, with Prowl behind and to her left. Drift was behind and to her right with Glide behind and to his right. Each member had a SIG Sauer MPX-K raised to their shoulder covering their own arc of advance. Not surprisingly, when they reached the main door, they found that it was closed and locked! Drift gave the large, wooden, blue-painted, double doors a good kick in the centre and they burst open. He moved forwards into a small entrance hall where there was another set of much heavier wooden doors. Again, they were closed and locked.

Nemesis applied a C4 demolition charge to the centre region of the two doors and then inserted a detonator. She yanked out the initiating tab then ran back outside waving everybody to take cover. The explosion when it came, was loud and bits of wood, large and small, flew out past the sheltering vigilantes and several windows shattered. There were quite a few unhappy sounding shouts and screams coming from inside the building. For good measure, Nemesis threw in a pair of flashbangs, both of which exploded a few seconds later with a blindingly bright flash and a devastatingly loud bang, as expected.

Under the cover of copious amounts of dislodged dust and plaster, the team entered the main building.

Attack Force 2

Ground Floor, South End

The six-foot-tall, six-paned, window disintegrated as Crimson fired off three breaching rounds into the wooden frame.

The crimson-clad vigilante stood to one side as Polaris, Rigour, and La Terreur burst through the wreckage, kicking what was left out of their way. They landed in a large, high-ceilinged room which was laid out as a Library. Books towered above the three girls, otherwise, apart from some tables and chairs, the room was devoid of human presence. Without words, Rigour ran to the interior set of tall double doors. She paused beside them, listening for what might be going on, on the other side. Polaris and La Terreur held position a few feet away, covering the closed doors.

"I have footsteps!" Rigour warned as she scrambled backwards, away from the doors. "And a weapon being cocked!"

Automatic gunfire ripped out, shredding the wooden doors, the remains of which were kicked out of the door frame as three men burst in, shredding the shelves with bullets. They looked around, taking in the devastated window and the otherwise empty library.

"They must have jumped back out the window," one of the men stated.

"Or it was a diversion," another commented.

"You talk so much shit, the both of you," the third one growled as he studied the tables and chairs.

Almost without warning, one of the tables leapt into the air and something crimson leapt into the men's view.

"You should listen to your pal, next time," Crimson suggested as she gunned down all three men.

"Not that there's gonna be a next time," Polaris growled as she put a bullet into one of the men who was still twitching.

Attack Force 1

Second Floor

The helicopter had dropped them off onto the flat roof of the main building just as the other teams were beginning their coordinated assaults.

Kick-Ass and Psyche had gone first, sliding down the old lead tiles to the balustrade below. Hit Girl and Foxtail followed, both pairs taking up positions beside a window. Jackal and Stripe kept watch from the rooftop as their colleagues smashed open windows and threw in flashbang grenades before standing back and avoiding the flying glass and wood splinters.

Jackal joined up with Hit Girl and Foxtail while Stripe joined Kick-Ass and Psyche. Each team took a window and dived through into what appeared to be staff quarters. Naturally, the majority of the staff were elsewhere in the house which meant very few pickings. Stripe, it appeared, was very angry with anybody who was involved with the mistreatment of Predators – and he showed it! The first person he came across was barely able to move a muscle before Stripe flipped the woman over and smashed her head against a door frame, leaving fresh blood on the gloss paintwork. A quick check showed that the woman had been armed with a pistol, despite her uniform which indicated that she was a maid.

"Hope that's not how you treat all your girlfriends, Stripe," Psyche commented as she headed further down the corridor.

Attack Force 3

Ground Floor, West Side

As Nemesis' boots crunched through the broken glass, wood chips, and discarded plaster, she could see at least three dead bodies and several live ones.

The live ones squirmed with their hands over their ears; each was rapidly put out of their misery with single shots to the head. The team found themselves standing in a large, high-ceilinged entrance hall. There was an enormous fireplace, over to the right and three exits; a large wooden door to the left, with a smaller wooden one about six feet past it, and a large open archway in the far right corner just beyond the fireplace. The floor beneath their feet was wood and the walls were covered in a dark wood panelling. Gunfire could be heard from beyond the archway. The smaller door over to the left was open, so Glide and Prowl moved over to cover the potential threat sources of the doorway and the archway.

Drift and Nemesis made for the larger wooden door and Drift kicked it open for Nemesis to dive inside. She came up and scanned the room which had a large snooker table in the centre and comfortable seating around the walls. It had the same high ceiling and several large floor-to-ceiling windows. Nemesis and Drift proceeded down the room in tandem checking each nook and cranny. At the far end of the room there was a single door in the right-hand corner – it was opening as they watched. The muzzle and barrel of a pistol appeared, followed by a head.

Nemesis then splattered that very same head over the tastefully painted wall with a single bullet.

Attack Force 2

Ground Floor, South End

Crimson and Polaris moved out of the library.

Echoing around the house and mostly coming from upstairs, they could hear shouts, screams, and gunshots, with the occasional crash of a flashbang or the larger bang of an explosive hand grenade. As Rigour and La Terreur joined them, they found themselves in a long room with the same high ceiling and dark wood panelling along the walls. At the near end, beside them, were two large glass doors which led outside. Leading off each side of the room were two pairs of doors, arranged opposite each other. They had just come through one of those doorways. Another was a few feet away opposite them, with the other pair right down the far end. Past those doors, there was another doorway and over to the right, there was a large wooden staircase sweeping upwards and turning to the left. Over to the far left corner, there was a large open archway.

From their current position, they were unable to see if the further pair of doors were open or closed. The door directly ahead of them was closed – well, it was until Crimson kicked open the doors and Polaris lobbed a hand grenade into the room before jumping back away from the doorway. The team awaited the explosion with baited breath. Just before the explosion, they heard screams and yells which were rapidly cut short as the grenade exploded with a deafening crash. The explosion was followed by a large crashing sound and a cloud of dust and plaster exploded out of the door. Once the majority of the dust had died down, Polaris and Rigour dived through the damaged doors and swept into the room. They found two dead bodies which had not been killed by the grenade directly. In the centre of the room, there was originally a large crystal chandelier hanging from the ceiling but the grenade must have dislodged it and the chandelier had crashed down on top of the two men. All of the windows had been blown out, with no glass remaining in the frames. Sections of wood panelling had also come off the walls. Three men and a woman were dead.

As the team left the room and moved down the long room, they saw several shapes appear from the archway over to the left.

Attack Force 1

Second Floor

The building was extensive.

There were many rooms, cupboards, and dark spaces, all of which needed to be searched. It made the progress slow going, but they were not taking any chances.

"Oh, fuck!" Psyche commented as she found herself face to face with a Claymore mine. "Nobody move!"

Everybody froze as the ten-year-old followed the triggering wire to the detonator and then to a tripwire. With practised ease, Psyche disconnected the triggering wire and then released the tripwire.

"All clear!"

"Well done," Kick-Ass commented with a squeeze to his daughter's left shoulder.

"That was dangerous, leaving that there; any kid could have found it," Psyche commented.

"A kid did find it," Foxtail commented dryly.

"Ha, fucking ha!"

"Enough bickering!" Hit Girl growled. "You two Predator Princesses better get a move on – well done, Psyche!"

"Ha!" Psyche threw back at Foxtail as she strolled past.

Stripe just shrugged and followed Psyche.

"Please tell me, Kick-Ass. Was I ever that obnoxious?" Hit Girl asked.

"No, definitely not. . ."

"Good to know."

". . . You were way worse!"

Kick-Ass chuckled as he left a fuming Hit Girl standing alone in the corridor.

Twilight

As Scorpion flew over the main house in a wide orbit, keeping an eye open for trouble, her electronic warfare suite lit up.

"Twilight is defensive! I'm being locked up!"

Scorpion accelerated and climbed vertically, triggering off a dazzling array of flares and chaff into her wake. Her AN/AAR-57 electronic warfare suite indicated the direction of the threat and the heads-up-display in her helmet directed her towards an interdiction position from where she could counterattack her attacker. The target quickly came into sight: It was a Land Rover 120 fitted with a triple Javelin launcher in the flatbed.

The attached laser tracker was attempting to lock onto Twilight.

Attack Force 3

Ground Floor, West Side

Prowl and Glide went first with Nemesis following.

Crimson and La Terreaur kept a lookout, covering their fellow vigilantes' backs. They passed through the large open archway. There had just been a large explosion down the far end of a long hall, followed by gunshots. Attack Force 2 was expected from that direction but it would not do to take chances.

"Big Daddy!" came a call out of the semi-darkness and swirling smoke.

Nemesis smiled as she yelled back the response to the challenge.

"May the D'Amico's rot in hell!"

Out of the smoke, came the very recognisable form of Polaris, followed by Rigour and Fury. Crimson was very pleased to see her friends and all in one piece and uninjured, too. The Predators tapped fists all round – they were too professional to go in for hugs during combat, even if that was what they would have preferred.

..._...

Together, the two teams kicked down the two remaining double sets of doors to clear what turned out to be empty rooms. That left a single door which was locked.

"I'll take care of this," Glide commented as she produced a quarter block of C4 and a compact detonator from her utility belt.

With considerable care and skill, she attached the C4 to the door and then she added the detonator. She tugged the short plastic strip which initiated the timed detonation sequence and she stepped back smartly, waving everybody into cover. A few seconds later there was a small 'crump' as the lock on the door was vaporised. Nemesis waved Prowl and Glide forward into what turned out to be a private study.

"Polaris, crank in one of Q's 'hack-me-quick' devices into that computer," Crimson directed.

The young girl dug a small USB device out of her utility belt and she inserted it into a slimline computer which sat on the desk.

"Q, you getting anything?" Polaris radioed.

"Connecting now, Polaris . . . looking good; downloading is under way."

"Copy that – we got some killin' to do!" Polaris replied.

Twilight

The Javelin operator moved his weapon system around to keep the targeting laser locked on to Twilight.

But Scorpion was having none of it and before he could fire, Scorpion triggered off a pair of CRV7 2.75-inch unguided rockets, one from each pod and they flew in his direction at over 1,000 metres per second.

Both 4.5-kg high-explosive warheads detonated on impact and the man, plus his missiles vanished in a spreading cloud of flame while Twilight flew through over the wreckage unscathed. Scorpion took up a new orbit, constantly altering the orbit to confuse any watchers. There had not been any intelligence to point towards surface-to-air weapons, but Scorpion had been ready and it also confirmed that Fraser had his fingers in some serious pies.

High above Twilight, the EAGLE-1 UAV orbited, its sensors searching for trouble.

Attack Force 1

Second Floor

Foxtail was on point and she stopped when she heard a noise over to her right.

She raised her left hand which was clenched into a fist. Those following her stopped and took up covering positions. Foxtail indicated hearing a noise from beyond a closed door to the right. The door actually turned out to be a set of double doors and Foxtail kicked them open, while Psyche covered her friend with her weapon. Stripe threw in a flashbang and Hit Girl followed close behind with Kick-Ass and Jackal, almost immediately after the detonation. Four men were in the room and each was shot, in rapid succession, with a three-round burst.

Hit Girl's ears perked up as she recognised the sound of a submachine gun being cocked, closely followed by an identical sound. Both came from the other side of the false wall beside them.

"Get the fuck down!" Hit Girl growled loudly and everybody dove the floor just as the wall beside them was very quickly turned into Swiss cheese by around sixty 5.56-millimetre bullets.

The moment the bullets stopped, Kick-Ass jumped up and he smashed through what was left of the wall. Hit Girl followed behind and she calmly gunned down the two men who had turned the wall into Swiss cheese. A man jumped up from a far corner of the room and he fired off several shots from a pistol into Hit Girl's chest armour. The man, in turn, was almost cut in half and shredded as Psyche emptied an entire magazine into his torso.

"You okay?" she asked Hit Girl.

"Thanks, Psyche – but that was a little over the top."

"He earned every bloody bullet!"

"Nobody shoots Hit Girl when I'm about . . . and survives," Psyche growled.

"I love you, too, honey!" Hit Girl chuckled.

Primary Rendezvous Point

Half a mile to the east

The Primary Rendezvous Point (RV) was hidden from the main house in a copse of trees.

All the vehicles were laagered together with the Command Van, Cyclone, as the focus. The RV was being guarded by Astute and his daughter, Stormtide. Mindy being Mindy, she had brought spare clothing for Shannon and Jamie, just in case. As soon as they had parked up at the RV and the teams had moved off to attack the main house, Shannon had unwrapped herself from the thick blanket which was keeping her warm. While her father stood guard, she had stripped off her wet clothing and towelled herself dry. The clothing which Hit Girl had handed her was a very good fit. There had been knickers, a sports bra, jeans, and a T-shirt, plus socks, a pair of boots, and a rain jacket. Once fully dressed, she opened the back door of the Range Rover Sentinel and slipped outside into the rain, pulling up the hood of the jacket.

"You know how to use one of these?" her father asked as he passed over a SIG Sauer MPX-K.

Shannon glared at her father as she removed the magazine before expertly clearing the weapon and then returning the magazine into place and cocking the weapon. Patrick nodded his approval but Shannon, despite her earlier happiness at being rescued from her life of hell and finding her father, just glared.

"Get this on, please, honey – I don't want to lose you again."

Shannon took the offered body armour and she strapped it on over the jacket with her father's help. He pulled the straps tight and made sure that it was secure.

"I hated you," she began. "I hated you for ages. When I was taken – I was only a block away from home – I was so scared. Then they took me to a place that could only be described as hell. A boy forced me to strip naked in front of him and within sight of other kids – boys and girls – he then made me chuck my clothing into a dumpster. I was forced to parade myself, stark naked, down corridor after corridor. I was sobbing, wishing that my Daddy would come to rescue me. Then they made me shower with a group of boys and they cut off my hair – my lovely hair was taken from me."

Patrick Millar grimaced. Shannon had loved her flowing hair which had been very long and thick. For her to lose it, at only nine-years-old would have been very hard for you – not to mention all the other degradations forced upon her.

"After two weeks, one of the bastard instructors explained to me why I was being treated so harshly. He said that it was because of my father. I was devastated to find out that my own father had been an Urban Predator instructor – I hated you from that moment on. I swore that if I ever saw you again . . . I swore that I would kill you. I blamed you for every injustice. I blamed you for every bad thing that happened to me. Then, after about a year, I began to think differently – I decided to give you a chance at explaining yourself. You had a family – you had me, you had my brother and sister; I could not understand how you could have betrayed me."

Patrick braced up, feeling very sad, but he did not react as his eldest daughter turned her weapon on him. He looked straight down the barrel.

..._...

"When I helped bring about Urban Predator, it had a noble plan. When we recruited Lucy and Leo, they were the ultimate example of what we were doing. We were to take homeless kids with no future and we were going to give them a future. They were to be trained as assassins in Hit Girl's image. But then some dumb fuck decided to change that and about half of the First Intake were boys and girls who had been abducted from happy lives with families. Shannon – when I began to question what was happening, I was warned off. They transferred me – I accepted on condition that they left my family alone. I found out soon after I had left that you had been taken. I was naïve enough to not immediately consider that you had been taken by those bastards.

"When I tried to trace you, I kept hitting brick walls. That was when I knew that they had you. But what could I do – I was but one person against the sinister forces of the CIA. I did everything that I could to track you down. I came across another CIA agent who had reason to hate Urban Predator. She was killed in Europe, back in May. Then I picked up your trail in Whitby. I saw that boy on the bridge, shooting at those CIA assholes. I tracked you both across the country, York, Nottingham, London. I was very impressed when you tortured those two women to get the location of your friend – yes, I was watching you. I tried to intervene with Jamie when they took him but I was out of position. Did you enjoy getting that tattoo? Must have hurt."

Shannon felt all the pent-up hate for her father vanish.

"That, was you?"

"It was."

"Yes, it hurt!"

..._...

"I'm sorry, Daddy," Shannon said as she lowered the weapon.

"So am I, champ. I know you're not my little girl anymore but I'm real proud of how you've turned out and I know your Mom will be so happy to see you again."

"Does she know about what happened to me?"

"Yes, she does – that was not easy, telling her."

"Does she know that you've found me?"

"Not yet – we can call her once all this is over."

"Thank you, Daddy."

"Now, let's get back to protecting these vehicles or we'll both be answering to Hit Girl!"

Over to the Southwest

It was almost impossible to see the prone form as she lay absolutely still to one side of the field.

Her eyes and ears tracked everything that moved within a thousand yards. Beside her, she had an eight-inch screen relaying information from the UAV, high above her. She had preselected six locations for her perches. The current perch allowed her to cover the rearmost advances to the main house – which just happened to be the direction from which the main garrison would arrive. The UAV had identified the heat-blooms of six vehicles and over thirty bodies. Within another minute, they would parade before her and then she would start taking lives.

The Accuracy International AS50 sniper rifle was among the top rifles in the world and used by the best in the world. The weapon held five rounds and could snap off a full magazine in around 1.6 seconds. For the night, Leon had a heavy load of twenty magazines in her pack. Each magazine held five .50-calibre BMG rounds. She had a selection of rounds available: standard ball, tracer, armour-piercing, and incendiary. The weapon could disable a vehicle with just a single round, just as it could tear apart a human being.

Leon smiled as she controlled her breathing, lining up her sights and mentally ordering her targets. Her first round was to be armour-piercing. She adjusted her sights to take into account the wind and the rain and then settled the aiming reticule on her first target, moments later, she squeezed the trigger.

Scorpio Garrison Commander

Nobody had expected the attack that evening.

The intelligence had, however, expected the attack within a few days. Site B had been attacked only a little over an hour before with light casualties. Suddenly the main house had been assaulted from teams on the ground and from the air. Devastating firepower was being used to counter Scorpio's heavier weapons, such as the Javelin battery – which was being rapidly replaced. His men had been preparing for the upcoming attack, but it had taken them time to ready themselves and the intention had been to move out and protect Site B. Then the attack had begun and contact with security staff at the main house had ceased.

The commander had watched the main house through a night-scope and through the rain, he had seen the flashes of pyrotechnics. He had also heard the steady beat of rotor blades above them. The helicopter was obviously heavily armed as the Javelin battery had discovered to its cost. The Boss was not happy and he was headed down from his house three miles away, to take personal control of the situation. Nobody had any idea, yet, how many losses they had taken, nor for that matter, who the enemy actually was. His intention was to. . .

The armoured 4x4 in which he rode was shaken as something struck the engine compartment and then the vehicle ground to a halt. The driver tried to restart the engine but while the starter turned for a second, it stopped and refused to turn again. Smoke crawled out from under the bonnet and . . . the heads of both the driver and the front passenger exploded a milli-second apart, showering the other occupants of the vehicle with blood, bone, and brain matter. The commander and the man beside him rapidly dived out of the vehicle and to the soggy, muddy, ground. The vehicle immediately behind had met the same fate and the engine was smoking.

"Get the fuck out of the vehicles!" he ordered over the radio and his men quickly dived to the ground.

There was a resounding clang as something struck the next vehicle along – a sniper!

Attack Force 2: Crimson, Polaris, Rigour, Fury

Attack Force 3: Drift, Nemesis, Prowl, Glide, La Terreaur

Ground Floor

The combined teams moved out with Polaris and Prowl on point.

They passed through the main entrance hall and then headed down a corridor. The corridor was about twenty yards long and had four doors and an archway leading from it, down near the end of the corridor and to the right. Rooms were cleared they were passed – they were nothing special, mainly store rooms. No opposition was found in any of the rooms giving everybody a short but much appreciated, breather. At the end of the corridor were the kitchens. They did not take long to clear as they were relatively open-plan.

Once the kitchens had been cleared, the combined teams moved through the archway. Behind the main house were several buildings that were attached to the main building by a long corridor that ran beside a laundry and some store rooms. The corridor was about eighty yards in length and ended at two doorways, one to the right and one directly in front.

At that point, the two teams split up, with Crimson and her team headed to the right while Drift took his team straight ahead.

Attack Force 3

Nemesis pulled open the door and Prowl moved into a large room that was obviously used for changing and there were showers off to the left. The security personnel who used the place were either dead or elsewhere in the facility. Glide and La Terreaur cleared the showers before the team moved on.

Prowl was on point as she passed through an archway. Out of nowhere, she was attacked from her right by a man armed with a pistol and a combat machete. She expertly blocked the man's weapon with her assault rifle and she tried to push him back but his machete came down again. Prowl kicked out and broke the man's left knee, which stopped his attack and he fell to the floor screaming. Glide was close behind and she shot the screaming man in the head with a single bullet. The team was no much warier of advancing. The security force had apparently sorted itself out and were now using ambush tactics to improve their chances against their attackers.

Prowl listened for even the minutest sound that came from around her and the team. Then, a dozen yards ahead, she was ready and she raised her left hand in a clenched fist to warn everybody. The team stopped and Prowl deployed the Bagh Naka embedded into her left gauntlet. The razor sharp curved claws were lethal. With her right hand, she passed her assault rifle behind her to Glide and pulled out her six-inch combat knife. Somebody was here, almost directly in front of her. With a nod from Nemesis, indicating that she was covered from behind, Prowl moved forwards, sensing her surroundings. There was movement in the darkness and as she was attacked, she pirouetted around and seized hold of the attacker's neck with her left gauntlet, sinking the claws into the soft skin and ripping open the carotid artery. The attacker was a woman but Prowl paid no heed as she sank the blade of her knife into the bitch's chest, severing her heart in two. The woman was all but dead as she sank silently to the floor. Prowl pulled out the blood-soaked blade and triggered her equally bloody claws to retract.

La Terreur had swept up the combat machete from the previous kill and she ran forwards, stabbing into the darkness just beyond Prowl. The young girl had caught a movement and attacked, knowing that there was no time to alert Prowl, nor time for her to react. La Terreur pushed her attack hard, forcing the attacker backwards until she hit the wall. The French Predator could see fear in her eyes as she knew that death was coming.

"Mourir comme l'écume que vous êtes et puis pourrir dans l'enfer pour toute l'éternité," she hissed as the woman slumped to the floor.

"What was that?" Prowl asked.

"Die like the scum you are and then rot in hell for all eternity – or something like that," Q reported from the command van.

"Exactly," La Terreur offered coldly as she wiped off the combat machete on the dead woman's clothing.

"Damn – you are cold!" Glide commented.

Attack Force 2

After leaving the other team, Polaris took point and led her team into the unknown.

They passed through a set of double doors which opened up into a large open area. Twilight could be heard orbiting almost directly above. It was comforting to know that the helicopter was there in close support. Rigour and Fury went from room to room, finding nothing. Crimson kept watch on their backs while Polaris kept watch on an opening at the far left corner of the open area. Once the four rooms had been cleared, Crimson and Polaris peered down the next corridor which had several doors leading from it. The corridor was not straight and it had a slight turn to the right about twenty yards down, so they could not see what was at the far end of the corridor.

Slowly and stealthily, Polaris and Fury moved forwards, towards the first door on the left while Rigour kept watch down the corridor. Polaris kicked open the door and Fury dived in rolling up to one knee and . . . Fury paused as she felt something against the side of her head.

It was the barrel of an assault rifle.

Fury considered the odds of survival and she came up with some pretty poor numbers.

Attack Force 3

Ground Floor

Prowl was back on point – she enjoyed being the first to spot danger.

She just ignored the fact that she could also be the first to enter into contact with an unknown enemy at any moment. Prowl had led the team through into a large room which looked to be a recreational facility for those on guard duty. As would be expected during an attack, it was empty, with half-eaten sandwiches and pizzas scattered on tables along with abandoned cups of coffee. With Glide and Nemesis providing direct cover, Prowl reached for the door handle of the opposite door leading out of the room. The door suddenly burst open and a small form rolled into the room before coming up ready to engage.

Prowl placed the muzzle of her assault rifle against the invader's temple and she squeezed the trigger.

..._...

The trigger of the MPX assault rifle required a pressure of 4.25-pounds of pressure to break and then initiate the sequence which resulted in a bullet exiting the muzzle and spinning towards its target.

As Prowl's finger tightened on the trigger, she registered a voice calling out.

"Prowl, stand down, for the love of God!"

At 4.1-pounds of increasing pressure, Prowl released the trigger and she looked up at Nemesis, then down at her intended victim. Prowl's brain registered the compact combat suit worn by Fury and she suddenly felt a chill shoot up her backbone.

"Fuck!" the nine-year-old growled as she held out a hand to Fury.

The hand was gratefully taken and Fury stood up before nodding at her friend. Nemesis breathed a huge sigh of relief as she got back to the plan.

"Let's go – we have a corridor to clear!"

Attack Force 2 & 3

Ground Floor

Both teams moved down the corridor.

As they passed each doorway, a pair of vigilantes cleared each room. After four rooms were cleared, with no gunmen or anybody else found, they all started to get a little bit concerned. What might be waiting for them around the bend in the corridor?

"Anybody got any flashbangs or grenades?" Nemesis asked.

"Fresh out," Drift replied.

"Well, we'll just have to use good old-fashioned brawn and courage," Crimson suggested.

..._...

A few minutes later, Nemesis was leaning against the wall at the bend in the corridor and she held a mirror in her hand. She gently eased it out past the bend and the far end of the corridor came into view. Two doors were visible, one on either side of the corridor, about fifteen feet away – that was the good news. As Nemesis studied the image, she could make out the shape of a man crouching in each doorway. Further down, past the two doors, right at the end of the corridor was a set of double doors and in front of the doors were another four gunmen. All had large weapons in evidence, which were probably assault rifles. Nemesis relayed everything that she saw back to the two teams who were awaiting the assault down the corridor.

Polaris and Prowl went first, crawling into position and sending automatic gunfire down the corridor to keep the gunmen's heads down. Behind them, Glide and La Terreaur took aimed shots at the gunmen in the doorways, dropping both within seconds. The four remaining gunmen sent bursts of automatic fire back down the corridor while avoiding the accurate gunfire of Polaris and Prowl. Three men fell before the fourth pushed through the double doors at the far end of the corridor and vanished.

Crimson and Drift ran forwards, kicking in the doors to the final rooms and clearing both. Nemesis and Polaris pushed through the double doors to find themselves under sustained gunfire from the escaping gunman. They both dived to the floor before Polaris outflanked the man and while his attentions were on Nemesis, she shot him in the head.

"Command, Nemesis! Ground floor clear!"

The story continues in Chapter 21: A Bonus Twist of Predator.

Chapter 328*: So Many Changes

Author's Note: This is the continuation of the storyline from Chapter 21: A Bonus Twist of Predator as well as of Chapter 23: LV-426 of Vengeance.

That night
Tuesday, September 13th

Chicago, USA

Sky News Excerpt

". . . Reports of black helicopters flying over the West Country, today, were compounded by additional reports of armed helicopters operating, both in the West Country and in the South, around the Southampton Container Terminal. Eye-witnesses in Southampton reported the presence of a Royal Navy Mk6 Seaking helicopter that was operating a machine gun over marshland, just to the south of the terminal. A representative from the Ministry of Defence, speaking on behalf of the Admiralty, advised that the Royal Navy 'no longer operates the Seaking Mk6 operationally', so it could not have been one of their helicopters . . ."

Marcus growled.

"I hear things like that and I see purple!"

"Just Mindy letting off some steam," Megan suggested.

"Has Mom done something bad?" Anne-Marie asked.

"One of these days, the Brits are going to throw her into the Tower of London and throw away the key!" Marcus muttered dryly.

"Let the girl have some fun!" Paige offered coolly.

"At least she doesn't seem to have blown anything up," Danny said.

"Yet!" Marcus growled.

MI5 Safehouse

Blandford Forum, England

Joshua discovered that he had a lot to get his head around by the time he returned to the Safehouse.

He had been aware that Chloe had managed to get herself into a solo action chasing after a young Predator. He was also very concerned as to her motivations behind that chase. Chloe had returned to the Safehouse just fifteen minutes after Joshua. She was a mess – there was no other way to put it. Between the face paint, the gun smoke, and the general dirt, he barely recognised his girlfriend. Standing beside Chloe, as she had entered the living room, had been a similarly dirty little girl. Chloe had hugged Joshua for what seemed ages until they had both heard somebody clearing their throat in a rather annoyed fashion.

Chloe looked down to find a very disapproving eight-year-old and she grinned.

"Joshua, please meet Rebecca. Peanut, please meet my boyfriend, Joshua."

"Hi, Rebecca," Joshua said as he crouched down to Becky's height.

"I prefer: Becky."

"I prefer: Josh."

Becky smiled.

"Hi, Josh."

"Hi, Becky. Not: Peanut?"

"Becky. Only Chloe is allowed to call me that."

Chloe gave Joshua her best smug expression.

"Okay, I can respect that," Joshua replied before he gave Chloe a very pointed look. "May I speak with you?"

Chloe nodded with a resigned expression on her face and she followed her boyfriend towards the bedroom which they shared. Joshua noticed Becky following.

"Alone!" he said pointedly and Becky nodded with some reluctance.

..._...

Joshua closed the bedroom door behind them both before turning to Chloe.

"You've become attached to that girl, am I right?"

"Yes – I have become very attached," Chloe replied honestly.

"I want to be sure that you are doing this for the right reasons, Chloe. Rebecca is not a replacement for our baby."

"No, Joshua, Rebecca is not a replacement for our baby. Nothing can ever replace our baby. Yes, I feel a loss inside of me – both physically and psychologically. I miss having our baby growing inside of me. I miss dreaming of how we might bring up our child. Yes, I want to take care of Rebecca – the little girl has been through a lot. I'm getting close to her because I see some of myself in her. I am not doing it just because I lost my baby a few days ago."

Chloe was bristling for a fight and her expression dared Joshua to speak out of turn. But he knew his Chloe; he knew her very well. He knew that while she was goading him, he had been goading her to find out how Chloe was really feeling inside. He had his answer.

"I'm behind you, Chloe," he stated, simply.

Chloe hugged him tightly.

"Are you okay? Any injuries?"

"A few cuts, many bruises – and a flesh wound from a bullet, otherwise, I'm fine – just very sore; I don't think I'm ready for all this physical shit yet. Lucky Mindy sent me on an easy mission, huh?"

"You two finished, or are you both about to engage in sexual intercourse."

Joshua stared down at the little girl who had snuck into the bedroom without either of them noticing.

"Peanut – bath – now!" a red-faced Chloe ordered and the cheeky little eight-year-old saluted with a broad grin.

"Aye, aye, Shadow!"

Joshua laughed as the little girl vanished into the bathroom for her second bath that day.

"You need a bath, too, Shadow – you stink!" Joshua chuckled as he took in the face paint and other crap on his girlfriend's body. "We can check out your wounds, too."

"How about you help me with Becky – maybe wash her hair?" Chloe suggested.

Joshua knew that there was more to Chloe's simple suggestion but he let that slide.

"You okay with that, Peanut?" Chloe asked as a mostly naked Becky appeared at the bathroom door.

"You'll get no complaints from me – I assume he's seen a girl naked before."

"Congratulations, Chloe; you've found a total nutcase – but I suppose it takes a nut to find a nut!" Joshua complained as Chloe grinned sheepishly.

..._...

Once Chloe had run the bath for Becky – she had added copious amounts of bubbles (Spook had managed to obtain some urgent shopping to replace that which had been destroyed when the Sentinel had been blown up) which Becky was happily playing with – she stripped off and dived into the shower. Joshua's expression while Becky had climbed into the bath had turned very dark indeed. He had taken in all the cuts and bruises which occupied most of the girl's small body. He looked over at Chloe who returned his dark look as she carefully cleaned her leg wound.

"From this moment on, Becky, you will always be safe," Joshua said in a calm tone as he began to wash the little girl's long brown hair.

Nobody spoke much as Chloe and Becky washed. After Joshua, had finished with Becky's hair, he started work on her face which was covered in God only knew what.

"Oh, oh, I made a clean spot here; now I've done it. Guess I'll have to do the whole thing!"

He soaped a washcloth and very gently he began to clean her face, starting from her forehead and working down each side.

"Hard to believe there's a little girl under all this! A pretty one, too."

Becky giggled and she smiled up at Joshua for a moment, before her hand slapped a good amount of bubbles onto his face. Becky laughed out loud as Joshua spluttered – Chloe caught the exchange and she laughed too as she worked at cleaning the gunk off her own face. Joshua growled as he came across a fresh wound on Becky's forehead, not to mention the vivid bruise on the side of her face.

"That looks like it hurts."

"Not really," Becky replied bravely. "It's just a graze; I've had worse."

Joshua's expression was grim, but he let her comments pass. After another few minutes, Joshua held out a towel for the much cleaner Becky, who stood up and allowed Joshua to wrap the towel tightly around her body. He lifted the little girl out of the bath and she wrapped both arms around his neck before bursting into tears.

..._...

Joshua carried the eight-year-old through to the bedroom and he sat down on the bed, hugging the girl tightly.

"What's wrong, sweetie?"

"I'm just glad it's all over . . . it is over, right?" Becky asked.

"It is, sweetie. You will never need to experience anything bad, ever again," Joshua said soothingly as Chloe joined them, wrapped in a towel.

"You will never be alone, Peanut – no matter what you choose," said as she joined the hug.

"Can I stay with you two?"

"If that is what you want, then we will do everything we can to make that happen, sweetie," Chloe offered as Joshua nodded. "You ready to go meet everybody?"

Becky looked up at Chloe and the eight-year-old rolled her eyes.

"Like this? I'd rather get dressed first," she suggested with a smile.

Mindy was observing her teams as they all unwound and cleaned themselves up after the intensive combat mission.

There had been a rotation of sorts as combat suits were removed and weapons were cleared, then people drifted off to the bathrooms to shower or take baths. Everybody was tired, but they all had tasks to perform before they could settle down and rest.

"Fucking Predators!" Cassie growled as she stormed out of one of the bathrooms, her T-shirt very wet. She looked over at Mindy. "Harper thought it a good idea to save time by sharing a bath with Electra and Abigail – not one of her best ideas! Naomi and Kaitlin aren't exactly helping, neither."

Mindy laughed, glad that there was some humour drifting around – even if it was dark humour, or just generally being an ass. Mindy was one of the last to go and shower, along with Dave – they always checked on her underlings first. After the refreshing shower, she returned to the living room. Mindy was concerned about her two senior Lieutenants. Chloe had suffered a devastating blow, only days previously. In turn, Mindy had offered her the easiest mission possible, knowing that Shadow would not willingly restrict herself to a non-combat operation. Mindy had caught sight of the little girl as Chloe had brought her in. Mindy had also seen Joshua's expression and Mindy knew that Chloe and Joshua would be having a serious heart-to-heart.

Mindy smiled as Chloe came out of the bedroom, followed by the little girl – now dressed in brand new, clean clothing – and Joshua. They steered directly for Mindy and also Dave who had appeared from his shower.

..._...

"Dave, Mindy – please meet Rebecca Wren; she prefers to be called Becky."

"Hello, Becky," Dave said with a reassuring grin.

"Hi, Becky," Mindy added.

"Becky, this is Dave and Mindy."

Becky studied Dave and Mindy for a few moments before she looked up at Chloe and waved the taller girl down to her own height.

"Is it safe to talk about 'you know what'?"

Chloe laughed.

"Yes, Peanut, it is."

Becky looked back up at Dave and then at Mindy.

"You are very beautiful, Mindy, so you must be Hit Girl," Mindy blushed as Becky looked over at Dave. "You are a handsome hunk, so you must be Kick-Ass."

Mindy looked over at Chloe who grinned.

"I like this girl!" Dave commented with his dorky grin.

"What makes you think that?" Mindy asked.

Becky rolled her eyes.

"Chloe said you were intelligent!" Becky huffed before she lectured Mindy. "If Chloe is Shadow, then Joshua has to be Jackal – I could then speculate that you are Hit Girl and that Dave is Kick-Ass."

"Speculate?" Mindy enquired.

"It means to theorise or . . ."

"I know what it means – I just never heard an eight-year-old use the word," Mindy cut in grumpily.

"Read it somewhere – I like to read."

Just then, Stephanie appeared in the living room, fresh from her own shower.

"Who's the half-pint?" she asked.

Becky looked at Stephanie strangely as she caught the accent.

"My name is Becky. Are you saying that I am short? You're not exactly perfect in that department."

Stephanie grinned.

"I'm sorry if I insulted you, Becky."

"No problem – err. . ."

"Stephanie, but you can call me, Steph."

"Stephanie is also one of our senior Predators," Mindy explained.

"Oh," Becky replied thoughtfully. "That figures – I've seen a photo of you before."

"Where?" Stephanie asked, intrigued.

"It was in the Senior Instructor's office – it was pinned to the back of his door and it was full of holes plus a couple of throwing knives. I don't think he liked you very much."

Chloe and Mindy burst out laughing while Stephanie just growled dangerously.

..._...

When Abigail came out from her shower, she stood facing Jamie.

Neither spoke for almost a full minute. Neither had had the opportunity to say much more than a brief 'hi' during the rescue. Then they both hugged and ignored the wolf-whistles from all those watching. Abigail tenderly touched the boy's bruised left cheek.

"A present from that bastard, Fraser."

"I'm really pleased that you are alive, Jamie."

"You, too, Abigail."

"You vanished and we feared the worst," Shannon added as she came over.

"Hi, Shannon," Abigail said, giving the older girl a big hug.

"Jamie, Abigail – please meet my father. . ."

"Patrick Millar – it's very good to meet you, Jamie."

Jamie shook the man's hand.

"Shannon said that you were an instructor."

"Yes, Jamie. I oversaw the induction of many kids into Urban Predator, including your friend, Saoirse. I cannot undo what I have done – I can only help to make things better."

"You have done, Mr Millar," Jamie replied with a smile.

..._...

"Hi, Rebecca," Shannon said as she sat down beside Becky.

"I prefer, Becky."

"Okay, Becky. I'm really pleased to see you. I never got a chance to really thank you."

"I did what I had to do," Becky replied simply.

"You helped my friend," Jamie added as he joined them. "I saw what they did to you. . ."

"You took part of that beating for me, Jamie – thanks," Becky cut in.

Jamie's face had turned pink and he muttered something unintelligible as his sister came over to see what was going on.

"Stephanie Walker – Psyche – well, well, I never thought that we would ever meet," Shannon said. "I've heard about you – you were infamous; you were always rebelling against 'the system'. I've since heard about what you've been doing and I owe you – every Predator owes you. You too, Saoirse – you are just as guilty as her. You both took down an organisation which I never thought could fold. You freed us all – both of you."

Both girls were feeling distinctly uncomfortable as Shannon preached.

"We had a little help," Stephanie replied meekly.

There was a growl from Mindy at that comment.

"A lot of help, actually," Stephanie corrected quickly.

"I find myself owing my life to Hit Girl," Shannon proclaimed as she turned to Mindy. "For many years, I had planned what I wanted to say to you, if I was ever unfortunate enough to find myself facing you in battle. I blamed you for my life. I blamed you for giving the CIA a template for them to force us all into. But then I mellowed and realised that you didn't choose to become Hit Girl, just as we never chose to become Predators. However, you lived up to your awesome reputation and you faced off against the CIA and you won. Ultimately, you supported Stephanie and Saoirse, giving them the resources to complete their mission."

It was Mindy's turn to feel distinctly uncomfortable inside. She hated praise, but she tolerated it nonetheless. However, worse was to come. Shannon stepped forwards and she hugged Mindy, before moving onto Stephanie, and then onto Saoirse. Shannon finally finished her love fest and she giggled.

"Wow – I just hugged Hit Girl without being killed," she said.

"Surprises the fuck outta me, some days. . ." Mindy mused.

"You're just a big softy, Mum," Stephanie laughed as she gave Mindy a hug around the waist.

"Shannon's no longer the little nine-year-old that I once knew," Patrick said wistfully. "It's going to take time to get to know her again."

"I'm still the same little girl, Daddy," Shannon replied.

"Only, she now has boobs – soft ones at that – and she has some lovely thick. . ." Jamie paused as he caught various glares, then he grinned. "I think I'll be talking about something else. . ."

Shannon was blushing furiously but she winked at Jamie nonetheless.

..._...

"So, what's Jamie like?" Saoirse asked Shannon with a smirk.

"An evil little shit who constantly winds me up and doesn't know when to quit!" Shannon exclaimed. "What's Stephanie like?"

"An evil little shit who constantly winds me up and doesn't know when to quit!" Saoirse laughed.

"Hey!" Stephanie and Jamie exclaimed together.

"You can tell they're brother and sister, can't you?" Joshua commented with a grin. "You've got your hands full, Mindy – you too, Dave."

"Oh, yeah!" Dave muttered with a grimace at his wife.

Jamie looked up at his sister who was grimacing and rubbing her right shoulder. Stephanie noticed the glance.

"Don't worry about it, Jamie – I'll tell you about it, later," she suggested.

"Okay. This is the happiest day of my life, Steph. Finding you. . ."

"I know. . ."

Mindy smiled happily as she saw the two siblings hugging and exchanging tears. Stephanie's greatest wish had come true – as had Jamie's. Mindy considered what the twins were going to say; they had no idea that Stephanie had a living brother, nor that he was about to be moving with them. Jamie was older than the twins – only by about six months – so he would be their big brother. Mindy hoped that both Daniel and Anne-Marie would welcome him and that they would get on well, together. It was still very early days and Mindy was aware of how Naomi and Kaitlin had drifted apart since their rescue. Cassie had explained that the two girls were often squabbling over the stupidest little things. Mindy's worry was that Stephanie and Jamie may be too independent to go back to being as close a brother and sister as they apparently had been; it had been so long since they had last been together and they may no longer tolerate each other's idiosyncrasies.

Only time would tell.

..._...

Shannon had never felt so nervous about anything before – not even having sex with Tempest in front of two-hundred kids. Her hand shook as her father handed her the phone. She took it and she held it up to her ear.

"Mommy?"

There was a pause and a stifled sob but then, for the first time in five years, Shannon heard the soft voice of her mother.

"Shannon."

For Shannon, it was too much and she slid down the wall to the floor and she sobbed, hugging the phone as she did so. Her Father sat down beside her and he hugged his daughter tightly for only the second time in five years. It was several minutes before Shannon was able to talk coherently.

"I've missed you, mommy. . ."

"Shannon, it's so good to hear your voice – I have waited for this day for so long. Are you well?"

"I'm fine, mommy – a little bruised and very tired, but I'm okay."

"Your father and I are looking forward to having you home, as are your brother and sister."

"I've really missed them – although I almost forgot about them at one stage and that scared me. Will they remember me?"

"They have never forgotten that they have a big sister and they talk about you a lot."

The conversation was starting to get to Shannon, so she said her goodbyes and handed the phone to her father who chatted for a few minutes with his wife. Shannon made for Saoirse and tapped her fellow Predator on the shoulder.

..._...

Saoirse looked up at Shannon and she instantly saw that something was wrong.

"Steph – I'll be a few minutes," Saoirse said and Stephanie nodded as she took in Shannon's expression.

"What's up, Shan?" Saoirse asked as they moved away from everybody.

"Where am I sleeping, tonight?"

"With me and Cassie, I think – although Natasha may be in with us, too. Why?"

"I just wanted to be alone."

Saoirse showed Shannon the camp bed which had been allocated to her. The thirteen-year-old girl slumped down onto the bed and buried her face into the pillow. Saoirse heard the tears and she closed the bedroom door before sitting down on the floor beside Shannon. She rested her hand on the younger girl's back. Saoirse could remember Shannon's first day, like it was yesterday. The girl had been so frightened and Saoirse had done what she could to help the girl. Saoirse had been a Predator for eight months which had allowed most of her bitterness to pass. Her hair was still being shaved but she had been able to live with that but the new girl had appeared more devastated than most when she had been shown into the dormitory. Saoirse had found out why, during the evening meal.

Some of the boys had been discussing the new 'naked girl' who had been forced to walk through most of the facility butt naked. That had been a surprise revelation as most public humiliation involving nudity had ceased a couple of months previously when a certain senior female Predator had been disciplined quite severely and there had been some repercussions that the instructors had not expected. Saoirse had figured out, almost immediately, that the instructors had had something in for the girl.

No single Predator had received such abuse – until one certain little girl who had begun her life as a Predator in October 2013. Saoirse still felt bad about how much she had made that little girl's life so horrible.

..._...

"Saoirse?"

Shannon looked up and she turned her head to look at who was rubbing her back.

"Yeah – I wanted to stay with you; make sure that you're okay."

"Thank you, Saoirse – you always were a good friend to me. I'm worried, so worried. This is going to be the first night in months where I know that I am going to be safe. I thought that that would make me happy but I keep worrying about what my family is going to think about me. The last time they saw me, I was just a little girl – now I'm a fucking assassin!"

"You don't have to be, Shan. Your family will love you no matter what."

"What if they don't?"

"Shannon!"

Shannon sat up at the sharp rebuke and Saoirse looked up at her.

"I tried to kill Stephanie – three times. You know who my best friend is now?"

Shannon looked blank.

"Stephanie. We are the best of friends because we need one another. What we've done – all that shit is buried. What you've done – nobody will bring that up unless you want to. When you are back in the States, you will always have friends and somebody to talk to. My door is always open to you, Shannon – as will Mindy's."

"Thank you, Saoirse – I'll remember that. This is all so new to me."

"Give it a couple of weeks and you will be enjoying your new life, I promise you."

"I'll sleep better – thanks."

"You want to borrow a T-shirt for bed?"

"Yes, please."

..._...

Mindy faced everybody as they gathered in the lounge.

"I know you're all tired, so I shall keep this short. We've accomplished a lot, tonight. Fraser is missing, but he won't get far – not after what Rigour did to him. Well done, all of you. I am very, very impressed by how you Predators fought, tonight. It was the first real opportunity for you all to fight together and a first for the Vengeance Predators. You all have Hit Girl's respect and gratitude for your impressive courage and your professional conduct. I speak for Kick-Ass when I say that we would both happily fight alongside any one of you."

The embarrassment on the young faces was palpable as the praise and cheering was dropped upon their very young shoulders.

The following morning

Wednesday, September 14th

That morning the group began to go their separate ways.

For the younger girls, there were tears – which had surprised Mindy.

"Just because you've got the emotional range of a teaspoon, doesn't mean we all have, Mindy!" Chloe teased.

"You watch too much Harry Potter," Mindy groused as she gave Chloe her best scowl.

"Chloe loves Harry Potter," Abby chuckled as she strolled past. "I solemnly swear I am up to no good!"

"She's off to say goodbye to Eric," Chloe commented with a grin.

..._...

Vengeance was packing up for the short road trip to Bournemouth International Airport and from there a flight back to Scotland.

There was a slight difference, in that Abigail would not be returning to Scotland, and neither would Electra – at least not at first. The same with Yvette, who was heading back to Paris. That caused a small scene as the girls sobbed their way through lengthy goodbyes.

Craig was joining his father up at RNAS Yeovilton where he was overseeing repairs to Twilight – the helicopter had been collected by a Royal Navy recovery team and carried back to RNAS Yeovilton on the back of a truck. Keira was also joining them before flying back up in a few days.

Mindy and Dave were remaining in the UK for another day or so, along with Stephanie and Jamie. Everybody else was flying back to the USA, later that afternoon once the Gulfstream jet had returned from Scotland.

..._...

There was one other issue: the girl, Amber.

She was an unknown quantity and despite Jamie commenting that she carried a pistol, she did not appear to be a Predator; there was no tattoo of a dagger behind her right ear, for a start. Since her return from the attack, Amber had been kept in a back bedroom so she could not see any faces.

Ultimately, she was to be left with Vengeance and she would be their problem.

Later that afternoon

Aboard Alpha Foxtrot

Once the Gulfstream 650ER executive jet had climbed to its cruising height, everybody settled down for the long flight westward.

Becky looked over at Chloe.

"Are we gonna sleep, all the way home?"

"All the way home."

"Can I dream?"

"Yes, honey, I think we both can – sleep tight."

"Affirmative!"

Chapter 329*: New Kids in Town

Wednesday, September 14th
Early evening

Chicago, USA

"Look at what we have here – two little kitties in the wrong part of town."

"They look so cute."

"Get out of our way," Tigercat growled in an electronically enhanced growl.

"Or what, you little freak?"

"Or we'll kick your fuckin' asses!" Hellcat growled in her own electronically enhanced voice as she deployed her claws.

"Ooh, she has claws – I'm so scared!"

Hellcat dived forwards, driving her claws into the man's left side before spinning off and striking with her other set of claws. The man yelled out in agony as his torn side spilt blood down his leg. His partner fared little better as Tigercat attacked with his own claws. With a final punch in the face, Hellcat stood back to admire her handy work.

"Let's move!" her brother suggested.

"Why – we killed them," Hellcat responded.

"We need to go!" Tigercat persisted.

"You should have listened, kid," a voice purred.

Hellcat felt fear coursing through her as she turned to face her fear. Tigercat did the same, his legs feeling weak beneath him.

"Two more hides for my wall," FEAR drawled as she drew her battle sword.

The two pint-sized vigilantes drew their Wakizashi swords and took up fighting stances.

Two miles to the east

"You noticed that the streets tend to be quieter when Hit Girl is out of town?"

"She'll kill you for saying that, Splinter," Trojan laughed as they patrolled. "You missing your girlfriend?"

Splinter did not reply. It was not a goad; he knew Trojan better than that. Yes, he missed Stephanie but he did not want to admit it.

"Your silence speaks volumes," Trojan commented.

"I miss her a lot more than I thought I would," he admitted grudgingly.

"It gets worse, pal – I feel horrible inside whenever Wildcat goes out of town without me."

"You mean you have to wank yourself?"

Trojan laughed.

"You're picking up some of Stephanie's crude language!" Trojan laughed. "I have no problem with getting myself off. Do you and Steph . . . err?"

"No – I haven't even started puberty, yet, and Stephanie would cut my hands off if I so much as touched her near her snatch."

"It'll be worth the wait, pal – I assure you."

"Trojan – FEAR has been spotted two miles to the west of you; take care," Battle Guy radioed. "Petra and Mist are inbound."

"Copy that, Battle Guy – am on the way with Splinter."

The two youngsters ran off down the street, towards their motorcycles.

Hellcat and Tigercat

They knew that facing off against FEAR was suicidal but their escape had been cut off by her minions.

The fight started easy as FEAR appeared to toy with them and she easily fended off the two apprentice vigilantes. They used their combined skills to attack FEAR from two sides – only she was too good for them and she appeared to have no issues avoiding their thrusts.

"Hellcat, Tigercat – what the hell, do you think you are doing?"

"We're not fighting her by choice, Audacious," Hellcat responded as she dived out of the way of the huge battle sword.

"Withdraw as soon as you can."

"We will!"

Hellcat was very scared – facing off against thieves and rapists was one thing, facing off against the arch-villain known as FEAR was something very different. Were their lives about to come to a very abrupt end at the hands of FEAR? The youngster's thoughts were cut off as gunfire ripped out and FEAR's minions began to drop by the wayside. FEAR herself span around as she was struck by what appeared to be a chain whip which cut into her body armour but did not penetrate.

"Why don't you pick on somebody your own size?" an electronically enhanced voice suggested.

Hellcat instantly recognised Petra and Mist as they faced off against FEAR. Before she could see any more, she and her brother were pulled out of the combat zone and they found themselves facing Splinter and Trojan.

"Get back to your rides and get the hell outta here!" Splinter ordered.

Neither vigilante needed telling twice as they stowed their Wakizashi's and they ran down an alleyway.

Unknown location Northern Chicago

"Hurry up, you two – we have to get home."

Hellcat pulled off her mask and growled. Normally, they were allowed plenty of time to get themselves cleaned up. Her brother appeared from beneath his own mask looking dejected after their narrow escape.

"What about getting cleaned up?" Annabelle Millar demanded.

"You can both shower when we get home – in fact, I insist on it!" Taylor Millar grinned.

"Gee, thanks, Mom!" Iain Millar replied as he pulled off his combat suit.

"I'll be in the car."

Sheridan Road

Shannon Millar was very scared as her father stopped the car on the drive.

"You're gonna be fine, Shannon," Patrick Millar said as he took his daughter's shaking hand.

"Will I recognise them? Will the recognise me?"

"Yes."

Patrick had to go around to open the door for his daughter as she was frozen with real fear. The house was new to her and unfamiliar – as would be the people inside.

"Just hold my hand and you'll be fine."

They walked up the drive and Patrick opened the front door. He waved his daughter inside but she wouldn't move until Patrick guided her inside. Taylor Millar appeared from the kitchen and she froze as she saw her husband and the tall girl who stood beside him.

"Shannon!"

"Mommy. . ."

Shannon released her father's hand and she bolted forwards hugging her mother for the first time in five years. They both cried openly, out of sheer happiness as they renewed the broken bond that had existed between mother and daughter. Patrick stepped forwards and he wrapped his arms around mother and daughter, completing the parental circle for Shannon.

"It is so good to see again, Shannon," Taylor said happily as she stepped back to look over her daughter.

Shannon was no longer the skinny nine-year-old. She was much taller with long, shapely legs, a feminine waistline and gently curving thighs. A major difference was that Shannon had a chest which had not been there before. Shannon was very much a young woman. For Taylor Millar, she would have recognised her daughter anywhere, no matter how much time had passed – the eyes were unmistakeable.

Shannon had barely wiped away her tears when there was the sound of pounding feet from upstairs which quickly descended the stairs.

"Is Dad back?" came a girl's voice.

"We saw the car," a boy's voice added.

Shannon began to shake again as a boy and a girl came into view. The girl was tall, with flaming orange hair. The girl was showing the signs of puberty with gentle swellings on her chest and spreading hips. Shannon guessed her age to be twelve. The girl was examining Shannon very closely as was the boy. The boy was a couple of inches shorter than his sister and typically for a boy of his age which Shannon estimated to be about ten. He also bore a cheeky grin.

"Mom?" came the worried query from Annabelle, her voice shaking.

"Shan?" Iain Millar burst into tears as he ran to hug his big sister.

The boy had only been five when he had last seen her but again, it was the piercing blue eyes which gave Shannon away. Annabelle quickly followed her brother as she joined in the welcome. Her mind went back to when she was seven and had last seen her older sister. The happiness was overwhelming for the entire family and the tears flowed steadily. Ten minutes passed before the three siblings separated and Shannon found herself being dragged into the living room and pushed onto a couch with sibling on either arm. Shannon was still overwhelmed by it all as she studied her new surroundings and the two youngsters who held onto her arms.

Shannon was finally able to pull her arms away from Annabelle and Iain and she then turned to them both, studying each child. She could remember them both – only they had been much smaller. The cheeky grin for Iain was still the same, as was the cheeky smirk for Annabelle.

Then Shannon noticed something and she felt the anger welling up inside her as she stood back up and turned to her father and mother.

..._...

Patrick caught it first – he was more familiar with young assassins and he saw the darkness cloud his daughter's face.

"What is it, Shannon?" he asked carefully with a warning look thrown at his wife.

"What have you done to them?" she demanded with malice in her tone.

Shannon had picked up several tell-tales. The two kids had both come downstairs fresh from a shower – nothing untoward there. However, Shannon had noticed her siblings' skin. Annabelle had significant bruising on her stomach and on her chest which had been visible to the much taller Shannon beneath the loose pyjama top. Iain had bruises visible on his legs – the same with his sister as both wore pyjama shorts. Shannon took hold of Annabelle's hand.

"You been cleaning weapons, tonight?"

"Huh?" Annabelle responded.

"I can smell the gun oil – it's under your fingernails – and don't tell me you've been doing Taekwondo or some other shit. Those bruises are from combat," Shannon stated as she lifted her sister's top to reveal the bruising. "You turning them into vigilantes, Daddy?"

Patrick could see that his daughter was furious and he opted to tell the truth.

"We wanted to break it to you, honey – but only when we thought that you were ready. Annabelle and Iain are vigilantes – they were out, tonight."

Shannon took her brother by the jaw and she studied his eyes. She glared at her mother and father.

"You've turned them into killers – just like me. How could you do that? You fucked up with me – that was bad enough – but to do the same thing with them?"

"We knew that you would come back a veteran and that you might find it difficult to adjust. We thought that you could take command of your siblings and all three of you could go out together, using your skills for good," Taylor responded. "It all started as self-defence. After you went missing, I insisted that they learnt the skills needed to protect themselves. Your father and I chose to teach them so more unorthodox fighting styles as well as offensive fighting styles. They both learnt weapons and they both learnt to ride a motorcycle before they were eight."

"Do they know what I am?"

"No," Taylor admitted.

"Mom?" Annabelle asked.

"Shannon, honey, please sit down," her father directed.

Once everyone was seated, Patrick Millar spoke and he did not stop for a little over two hours. Shannon interceded to add her own views and by the end, both youngsters were shocked by what was revealed about a program called Urban Predator and by what their sister had subsequently endured over five years of hell. By the time the truth had come out, everybody was tired and there was a lot to think about as everybody headed upstairs to bed a little after midnight.

The second floor, Shannon discovered, was occupied by her parents in the Master Bedroom and their father's office. Two further bedrooms were kept available for guests. Annabelle and Iain dragged their sister up to the third floor to where they both lived.

"This is my room – looking out over the back yard," Annabelle explained proudly.

"My room is just at the top of the stairs, looking out over the front and side," Iain added.

"Your room is in between," Taylor explained.

Shannon gingerly pushed open the door to find a large bedroom with a window looking out over the front of the house and another to the side. There was a double bed tastefully made up with pink bedding and a pile of pillows. There was a dressing table, fully equipped with accoutrements. A built-in wardrobe lay empty, as did a stack of drawers.

"We'll go shopping in the morning," Patrick suggested.

Atop the stack of drawers, Shannon saw all the soft toys which she had not seen since the day when she had been taken. The girl sat down on the bed and she cried. She was so happy to be home and safe with her family.

"Goodnight, sweetheart," Taylor said as she hugged her daughter, handing her a large T-shirt to use as a nighty. "I love you so much."

"Sleep well, Shannon. Love you," Patrick added.

"I wish I could say the same thing, only a lot has come out tonight that's got me worried. I hope you can understand that while I do love you inside, I can't bring myself to say it right now."

Shannon stripped off once everybody was heading off to their own bedrooms and she pulled on the T-shirt. The bed was amazingly comfortable and she could hear giggling coming from the bedroom that belonged to her little sister.

"Night, Shannon!" Annabelle called out.

"Night, Annabelle."

"Night, Shan!" Iain added.

"Night, Iain."

Despite her anger, Shannon smiled as she swiftly fell asleep.

The following morning
Thursday, September 16th

"Shan?"

"Come in, Annabelle."

"I didn't want to intrude."

"Never used to bother you."

"You're older now."

"So are you, and you look amazing."

Annabelle blushed.

"You're angry with Mom and Dad."

"Yes, I am."

"We both know what we are doing, Shan."

"That isn't the point. I've seen hell, Annabelle, and it really hurt to find that you've been trained like I was."

"Our training was nothing like yours, Shan. You went through hell while we were pushed but not forced. I may have only just turned twelve but I know what I am getting myself into."

"I can tell by your eyes that you've taken a life."

"That was hard. It was just a month ago – a man. I've killed three times since then. Iain was a week later – just one since."

"I've killed so many times it scares me. I've tortured people but I've always put them out of their misery. You never forget those kills. To take a life tears at your soul in a way that can never be repaired."

"I understand. Will you be a part of it?"

"I don't know. I just want it to be over. . ."

"I'm sorry."

"Don't be. You are my sister and my door is always open to you, Annabelle. I really do love you."

Shannon hugged her little sister tightly.

"What about me?"

"You too, brat!" Shannon grinned as she pulled her brother into the hug.

Later that morning

Once Annabelle and Iain had left for school, Shannon settled down on the couch in the living room to watch some TV.

A little after ten, she heard her mother answering the front door. She had been avoiding her parents but they had respected that and given her the space that she needed to think. Shannon was, however, surprised at who the visitor was.

"Hi, Mrs Millar. I'm Saoirse and this is Marc – we've come to see Shannon."

"Come in, Saoirse. My husband told me about you."

Marc? No – it couldn't be. . . Shannon stood up to welcome Saoirse but just behind the girl, Shannon laid eyes on. . . No words passed her lips as she shoved Saoirse off to one side and she seized hold of the smirking boy. He never got a chance to say a word as Shannon pulled him into a firm embrace, lips joined like they were welded together. After thirty seconds, Taylor spoke.

"I take it they know one another. . ." she commented dryly.

"Oh, yeah!" Saoirse replied.

"Well?"

"Oh, they've gone way beyond kissing."

"How far?" Mrs Millar enquired with a scowl.

"Penis, vagina – the whole nine yards!" Saoirse confirmed.

"They stay connected, somebody is going to pass out," Taylor Millar chuckled before she raised her voice. "Hey! Love birds!"

Marc pulled away from Shannon who looked very annoyed.

"If you two are going to be making out, I do hope you've brought condoms, young man," Shannon's mother commented.

Marc went bright red, as did Shannon, who giggled.

"For fuck's sake!" Shannon growled. "Here's two."

Shannon almost took Saoirse's fingers off as she snatched the condoms out of her hand and she dragged Marc up the stairs. Saoirse and Taylor exchanged a look as they heard a door slamming far above them.

..._...

Fifteen minutes later, Shannon returned, wrapped in just a towel and with a very sheepish look on her face.

"That was quick," Saoirse commented with an evil grin.

"Marc struggled to control himself but considering neither of us has had sex in months – we both went off like a damn rocket."

"We heard the screaming!" Taylor laughed as her daughter shrank onto the couch her face threatening to set fire to something.

Marc appeared, just then. He was dressed and he bore a very satisfied look on his face.

"You both reconnected, then?" Saoirse chuckled as Marc blushed.

"Her boobs have grown," Marc commented with a grin.

"So's his dick," Shannon countered with a giggle.

That same morning

Morton Grove

The little girl was very nervous as the car pulled up outside the house.

Naturally, as they entered the house, with Becky gripping Joshua's hand tightly, Chloe was ambushed by her mother and then her cousin. Then, after the hugs had ceased, including Cathy hugging Joshua, Cathy noticed another little person present and she raised an eyebrow.

"Mom, Curtis – this is Rebecca and she is going to be staying with me and Josh for a while. She prefers to be called: Becky"

Cathy looked at Joshua who just shook his head and Cathy saved the inevitable questions for a later moment.

"Hi, Becky. My name is Cathy and I am Chloe's mother."

"Hello, Mrs Bennett," Becky said politely.

"A Brit?" Cathy commented, a little surprised. "Please call me, Cathy, Becky."

"I will."

"Hello, Becky. I'm Curtis, Chloe's cousin – I live here."

"Hello, Curtis. You're nice."

"If only you really knew him like I do!" Chloe chuckled.

"You a Predator?" Curtis asked.

"You a vigilante?" Becky countered.

Chloe nodded at Curtis.

"Trojan at your service."

"Wow!"

..._...

While Becky got to know Curtis, Cathy took her daughter and Joshua off to talk.

Chloe wilted before her mother's piercing stare as she built up the courage to say what she needed to say.

"Mom, before you begin . . . I've already had Josh go through me about Becky and while I won't say that she has nothing to do with losing our baby, that little girl is not a replacement. We are doing this out of love for the girl. She has no home and she has suffered so much. Yes, she is a Predator and as far as I know, she has killed twice. I want you to check her over, Mom. She's been beaten and there is barely a square inch of her skin which isn't cut or bruised."

Cathy smiled at her wayward daughter.

"I am going to give you both the benefit of the doubt as I trust you both. Don't think that this is getting you out of school, either. That applies to the both of you."

"Yes, ma'am!" both replied in unison.

"So, am I to be 'grandma'?" Cathy grinned.

Chloe just smiled.

..._...

Joshua found Becky talking to Curtis in the living room. The two appeared to be getting on very well. Then Chloe knocked over her coffee with the expected response.

"Oh, fuck!"

Joshua heard a quick intake of breath and he turned back to see an astonished Becky with a hand over her mouth.

"You said a bad word!" she exclaimed.

"Sorry!" Chloe replied. "How long were you a Predator? Two months? I would have thought that you would have heard many bad words and phrases."

"I did. Just 'cause others use 'em, does not mean that I should."

"Okay. . ." Chloe replied, a little surprised.

"I love this girl!" Joshua chuckled. "You wanna be my girlfriend?"

Chloe glared at Joshua.

"Not a chance!" Becky replied. "You are way too old – almost ancient."

"Ancient?" Joshua enquired. "I'm sixteen, for Heavens' sake."

"Yes, and that's twice my age," Becky reasoned.

"Your loss. . ." Joshua mused with a grin and a wink at Chloe.

Curtis laughed. He thought that Becky was awesome and as far as he could glean, it looked like he was to become her uncle or something like that.

Later that afternoon

Glenview

Another youngster was feeling just as nervous as Dave turned into the drive and stopped.

"We're both here with you, Jamie – so don't worry," Abigail offered supportively.

As they all walked towards the house, Stephanie paused and she turned to her brother.

"I forgot to mention – you've now got a younger brother and sister. . ."

The twins came out of the living room, almost the moment the door had opened with Megan close behind.

"Jamie, this is Danny and Anne-Marie, they are now your younger brother and sister," Stephanie said. "The other girl is Megan; she's our auntie."

"Danny, Anne-Marie – this is my brother, Jamie. This girl here, she's called Abigail and she is a friend"

There was barely a flicker of surprise on both youngsters faces as they took in the news about Stephanie having a brother. It appeared that Paige had already broken the news as Mindy had requested. Paige had also sorted out sleeping accommodation for everybody.

"Hi, Jamie – you wanna go see your room?" Danny asked after he and his sister had hugged their parents.

I saw Stephanie squeeze Jamie's hand. The boy smiled and he let go of Stephanie's hand for the first time since they had left the plane.

"Okay."

Anne-Marie and Danny vanished up the stairs, Danny dragging Jamie with him while Anne-Marie dragged Abigail with her.

..._...

After Mindy had hugged Marcus and Paige, she gave her attentions to her little sister and hugged her too. Mindy raised an eyebrow as she saw the brace on Megan's right wrist. Megan saw the look and she quickly tried to hide the offending wrist. Mindy smirked.

"Did you get that jerking Curtis off?"

"No!" Megan retorted in an exasperated tone. "Why does everybody think that we grope each other, morning, noon, and night?"

"Do you?" Mindy asked.

"Well, yes, but that's not the point!"

"Did you get that fending off hordes of cunts?"

"No."

"Doing something valiant?"

"No."

Marcus could not take it any longer.

"Megan, tell her – she'll find out anyway," he pointed out with a huge grin.

Megan's face went bright pink as she gave in.

"I tripped over the sodding dog!" Megan exclaimed reluctantly as she gave Piper a nasty look.

"Sodding?" Mindy inquired.

"I got it from Stephanie – it means. . ."

"I know what it means but I've never heard it spoken by an American," Mindy cut in with a chuckle. "Still – very funny!"

"Laugh it up, purple bitch!" Megan growled.

That night

Jamie had been allocated the space above Danny's room.

Both boys were of comparable ages, with only six months between them and Jamie being the eldest of the pair. The two boys had hit it off at once and even Anne-Marie had latched onto the boy. Nobody had had any idea how Jamie might fare in his new surroundings; the boy had been thrust into not just a new family but he had also been reunited with a sister that he had thought to be long dead, and one that he had thought to have been murdered at his own hands.

On his first night at Glenview, Mindy had gone to check on the kids before she turned in and she had found Jamie's bed empty. For a moment, Mindy had begun to panic – then she had headed over to Stephanie's bedroom where she had found Jamie cuddled up with his big sister. Abigail was on the other side of him and all three were sleeping soundly.

Mindy had just smiled and left the two siblings sleeping.

The next day
Friday, September 16th

Glenview

That first morning – it was busy, to put it mildly!

There were five kids to get up, showered, and dressed before breakfast. Everybody had a busy day ahead of them – Jamie and Abigail were about to meet their new world. Standing in the kitchen and watching the five kids eat their cereal at the counter, you could tell that Stephanie and Jamie were related. Their expressions as they smiled, smirked, and laughed were almost identical. Despite the joviality over breakfast, Mindy could tell that while Jamie was happy, he was still haunted and troubled by his past – as was Abigail.

The only person who seemed to have noticed, other than Dave and Mindy, was Anne-Marie – that girl could be super-perceptive at times. Anytime that Jamie seemed to be getting buried by his big sister's almost overbearing love and attention, Anne-Marie would dive in with a joke or something to break the tension. Stephanie had been unable to let her brother out of her sight – which, while understandable, seemed to be too much for the young boy.

Still, it was early days.

Chapter 330*: Promotion

Friday, September 16th, 2016

North park Elementary School

Jamie and Abigail supported each other, that morning.

It was a completely new environment for them both; neither had attended an American elementary school before and Jamie hadn't attended a real school since he was five. Stephanie, of course, breezed in like nothing was wrong and she dutifully aimed Jamie for his correct class. Abigail, it turned out, was to be the same class as Stephanie. Abigail made a distinct point of sitting as far away from Stephanie as she could – not that Stephanie minded; they had shared a bed for the night and both girls needed their space.

At lunchtime, Stephanie laughed as she saw Jackson's expression when Jamie came over to sit next to her.

"Have no fear – he's not my boyfriend . . . and neither are you, butt breath."

Jackson Evans visibly deflated and he feigned a hurt expression, but he grinned all the same as his sister laughed at him.

"This is Jamie, and he is my little brother. We got separated when we were small, but now we are back together again," Stephanie explained simply.

"Is he as wacky as you are, Steph?" Ali asked.

"Way wackier!" Stephanie admitted and Jamie grinned as he sat down at the table.

"Who are you?" Jackson asked as he looked at the other new girl with an eager grin.

"You must be Jackson – Steph warned me about you. My name is Abigail and I don't need a boyfriend."

Everybody laughed as Jackson pretended to sulk.

Lake View High School

"Here she comes!"

"Funny, SD!" Megan growled.

"How's it feel, being twelve?" Morgan asked. "Happy Birthday!"

"Good – it feels good," Megan admitted with a smile. "Thanks."

"Happy Birthday, Megan!" Chloe said as she hugged her friend.

"Happy Birthday, short-arse!" Joshua called over with a grin.

After some more good-natured abuse, Megan vanished with Curtis following close behind.

North park Elementary School

At lunchtime, Anne-Marie and Danny both sat with Becky.

They had been introduced that morning when Chloe had dropped her off at Glenview. Becky had been very quiet and she had kept to herself all morning in lessons. Anne-Marie had tried to start conversations but she had failed miserably. Danny was worried about Becky. He was aware that Becky was a Predator but he sensed something deeper and darker.

"Becky – you know it helps to talk, huh?" he tried.

Becky's shoulders slumped and she put down her sandwich. She turned to face Danny and he could see that her eyes were filled with tears.

"I'm lonely."

"We're here with you," Danny said kindly. "You know who our Mom is, right?"

"Mindy, yes I know."

"You know about what Mom does at night, yeah?"

"Yes."

"We do that too," Danny said as he leaned closer and lowered his voice. "I'm Ravage and my sister is Rogue."

"You are vigilantes?"

"Yes. We've had a rather violent year," Anne-Marie chimed in.

Becky smiled.

"I didn't feel like I fitted in – I'm not normal, but I thought you guys were."

"We are far from normal!" Danny grinned.

Danny was pleased, the tears appeared to have vanished and Becky was smiling.

"Thanks," Becky said shyly.

"Don't forget Steph is over there and so is Jamie – Abigail, too."

"I know – I just didn't want to look weak."

"Screw that!" Anne-Marie laughed. "We are what we are."

Lake View High School

"Those two are weird," Lauren commented.

"Yeah," Lizzie responded. "They just stare at each other – that's the same sandwich the new girl's been holding for the last twenty minutes. I wonder if she knows that Marc is not a normal boy."

"From what we saw of him the other week, he looked perfectly normal. You couldn't take your eyes off his dick, Lizzie."

Lizzie scowled.

"I'd never seen one before then and I got to see two!"

Lauren laughed.

"What's her name, anyways?" Lizzie asked her big sister.

"Shannon, I think."

That evening

Safehouse F

The place was bursting at the seams with people everywhere.

"May I have your attention, please!" Hit Girl called out as she stood up on the walkway with her senior staff.

Beside her stood Kick-Ass, Battle Guy, Shadow, and Jackal. Below, spread out across the mat were over thirty individuals – not including the animals (by animals, we mean the four-legged ones – not Megan, Curtis, and Stephanie). All those with uniforms were wearing them. There were also several new faces who had never before been in the Safehouse.

"Before we get to the fresh faces amongst us, we have some promotions to get out of the way."

"Mist – front and centre, if you please!" Kick-Ass ordered.

Mist jogged up the steps to the walkway and she stopped facing Hit Girl. She grinned in eager expectation.

"Mist is receiving quite a lot, this evening – greedy, bitch! Not only is she being promoted to Sub-Commander, she is also receiving her Fusion Wings. Congratulations, Mist – you are our first Fusion pilot."

There was cheering and applause as Mist received her new ID card, the new insignia on her collar, and the patch for her flight suit. The patch consisted of FUSION and MIST above and below the gold wings of a Fusion pilot.

"Next, on the list is somebody who I see as a key member of Fusion. With Mist departing soon for sunnier shores, we find ourselves in need of another Senior Operator to join Petra. After not all that much deliberation, we selected a worthy candidate."

"Foxtail!" Kick-Ass bellowed and the girl in question could be seen to almost faint.

Foxtail looked very bemused as she made her way to stand before Hit Girl.

"Let me get this straight," Psyche called out from below. "She tries to kill me, three times, and then gets promoted?"

"I've tried to kill you," Fury pointed out. "Maybe I should be promoted."

Hit Girl laughed.

"If we rewarded everybody who tried to kill Psyche, we'd have way too many Senior Operators!" Hit Girl quipped and she received an icy glare from Psyche.

Hit Girl replaced Foxtail's twin vertical bars with the gold oakleaf of a Senior Operator.

"You've earned this, Foxtail – not least for putting up with Psyche!"

"Thank you," Foxtail said quietly as she meekly accepted her new ID card.

The fifteen-year-old girl couldn't help smirking as she headed back down below. There she received a hefty pat on the back from her best-friend.

"Next, comes a young girl who needs no introduction!"

"Psyche!" Kick-Ass called out to simultaneous cheers.

The girl bolted up the steps and stood grinning before her parents, resplendent in her uniform. Hit Girl took her time swapping the existing insignia to the twin vertical bars of an Operator.

"Well done," she whispered as she handed over a new ID card.

"Thanks, Mum!" Psyche grinned before she ran back down the steps to make way for the next victim.

"Splinter!"

The twelve-year-old boy smirked as he headed up to the walkway where he received his own promotion to Operator. He grinned down at his father, Ares, as he hastily rejoined Psyche on the mat.

"Nightmare and Torment!"

The two girls looked very surprised as they both glanced over at their grinning mother, Athena, before running up to stand before Kick-Ass and Hit Girl.

"You two have impressed us all. Nightmare, while you have lived up to your name, you still have a lot to learn, however, you deserve a promotion to Junior Operator. It will be on a provisional basis to ensure that you are up to it but I am sure you will be. Torment – you are now the Senior Trainee Operator and you will be in charge of our training squad which, as you will learn, now numbers seven."

"Seven?"

"Seven."

Once the newly promoted sisters had received their new ID cards, they both ran below eagerly to show their mother.

..._...

"Now, the more observant of you will have noticed one or two new faces in the Safehouse, tonight. I think some introductions are in order. Could the Millar kids come up, please?"

Three faces cringed as their parents pushed them forwards. The two youngsters looked up in awe as they faced Hit Girl and Kick-Ass. The younger girl actually giggled as she comprehended where she was and who she was with. All three youngsters wore Fusion uniforms but with no visible rank. The two youngest had only met the unmasked Hit Girl and Kick-Ass an hour before and they were both still reeling from being so close to their idols.

"The tall young lady, here, is Shannon," Hit Girl announced and the tall young lady blushed as all eyes fell on her. "Beside Shannon are Annabelle and Iain. Alternatively, they are Stormtide, Hellcat, and Tigercat."

There were some surprised looks – Wildcat for one. For most, it was good to know who the two new vigilantes on the streets of Chicago were.

"Stormtide is a Predator who was rescued just a few days ago. Please treat her well as I know you all will – Tempest, it appears, already is!"

There was laughter at that and both Stormtide and Tempest had very pink faces.

"Stormtide, you are being made an Operator. Tigercat and Hellcat, you are both to be Senior Trainee Operators and you will operate alongside Torment in Training Squad – your ranks will be provisional as you train, but from what Fusion members have already seen, neither of you will have any problems. Fusion would also like to welcome the parents of these three youngsters, Patrick and Taylor – we will know them as Astute and Audacious."

After a brief round of cheering and applause, the embarrassed youngsters ran back to their parents – and Marc.

"Next, we have five more Predators – Jamie, Abigail, Hunter, Leo, and Becky. Please come up, all of you."

Jamie needed a shove from his big sister before Abigail seized his hand and pulled him up the steps. Becky received a similar shove from Cathy. The two Graves brothers hesitated but followed on.

"Hunter Graves is Cut-Throat and he will join Nightmare as a Junior Operator. His younger brother, Leo, will join the younger Millar kids as a Senior Trainee operator – he is known as Relentless. That just leaves three. We have the latest – and last – addition to the Lizewski household, Jamie – Stephanie's younger brother, known as Rage. He will become a Junior Operator, as will his friend, Abigail Wilde, who many will learn the hard way, that she suits both her surname and her codename: Fury! That just leaves a new member for the Bennett clan: Becky Wren, also known as Scamp. Don't be fooled by the cute little British girl routine – Stormtide owes the little girl her life."

Scamp grinned enormously and Stormtide nodded her approval. The youngsters each received their coveted Fusion ID Cards and rank before re-joining the crowd below.

"The final changes are Tempest and Discord who are finally becoming active as Operators. Discord will also be running Safehouse Q for us."

Tempest gave Stormtide a longing glance before he ran up the steps with Discord and they both received their rank and their ID cards.

"Due to the large size of Fusion – we number over forty, now – we will be splitting the Operations Section into two eight-person squads. The squads will be known as Leopard Squad and Jaguar Squad," Hit Girl explained. "Each Squad will have a commander, a second-in-command, four Operators, and two Junior Operators. Leopard Squad will be commanded by Shadow with Foxtail as second-in-command. They will be joined by Stormtide, Wildcat, Tempest, Trojan, Cut-Throat, and Nightmare. Jaguar Squad will be commanded by Jackal with Petra as second-in-command."

They will be joined by Raven, Psyche, Splinter, Discord, Rage, and Fury."

"We will also operate a training squad which for now consists of Torment in command. She will be joined by Tigercat, Relentless, Hellcat, Ravage, Rogue, and Scamp. That Squad will be called Panther Squad. As required, members of Panther Squad will join Leopard and Jaguar on operations. We are also very pleased to have Audacious joining Medic to bolster our medical support – I hate to say this, but we have some dark times ahead of us and we will need them both. Thank you for your time," Hit Girl finished.

"There is just one more thing," Kick-Ass interceded. "Who in their right mind gave the dogs insignia and a uniform?"

The crowd parted slightly as everybody turned to look at the eight animals who sat patiently. Each wore a dark grey harness which was adorned with their name on either side and their rank. Eisenhower bore the insignia of a Senior Operator. Loki bore the insignia of a Senior Trainee Operator while the other animals each bore the inverted stripe of a Trainee Operator.

All eyes turned on Hit Girl.

"It seemed a good idea at the time. . ."

A little later. . .

"Where the hell, are you taking us?"

"All will become clear, my dear daughter," Hit Girl responded cryptically as they walked down a corridor into Safehouse E and then. . .

"A lift?" Psyche asked. "To where?"

"Down," Hit Girl replied as she swiped her access card and the doors opened.

The lift car was enormous – three metres by five metres – which allowed everybody onboard in two runs. The trip down was quick and they soon stopped at 'LEVEL 0'. The doors opened onto a large open area that appeared to be a massive training mat surrounded by a raised walkway about a metre above. Directly ahead, overlooking the mat, was a massive concrete structure with recessed windows.

"Welcome to Training Facility Echo!" Hit Girl announced once the second party had arrived and everybody had spread out around the walkway. "Directly before you all is the Primary Training Area. This is where you will train from now on. Safehouse F is way too small for all of us. That steel-reinforced concrete structure extends down four levels. On this level, you will find the Command Bunker. Beneath is the Server Facility spread over two levels with the Main Armoury on Level 3. The walls are up to three feet thick and the windows are armoured. Behind the Command Bunker are changing rooms and showers plus a store for training equipment. There is a second elevator in the far corner. Only this elevator connects with Safehouse F."

"Awesome!" Wildcat exclaimed as she set foot on the enormous five-hundred-square-metre mat.

"Let's head down to Level 1," Kick-Ass directed.

..._...

This time, when the elevator doors opened, the first group exited into a three-metre wide corridor which extended ahead to a set of double doors.

"Level 1!" Hit Girl announced proudly. "To the left is the Medical Centre with beds for eight and a complete trauma theatre. To the right is the Medical Store. Straight ahead is the Dining Room with the Kitchen off to the right."

"Wow!" Trojan exclaimed as they all swept into the Dining Room which had tables and chairs arranged in a dozen separate groups which seated six in each group.

The same concrete edifice extended floor to ceiling. Steps on each side of the structure allowed access to a corridor.

"Behind the Server Facility – Upper Level, is the Computer Room and the Kitchen Store with larder and freezers. Onwards!"

..._...

"Level 2!"

"Bloody hell!" Tempest exclaimed and Mindy grinned.

"Living quarters. This is the main Recreational and Briefing Space."

Soft couches and a massive wall-mounted screen dominated the space. Around the walls were workspaces and a small area for making drinks and snacks. The layout was similar to the previous level with the same concrete edifice and steps either side. Hit Girl took the left set of steps and followed a corridor, at the end of which was another elevator. Psyche followed directions and she pushed open a set of double doors to the right and she stopped dead.

"Six cabins, three per side – each of which can sleep eight in bunks with four more on the floor. Bathrooms are beyond – unisex."

"Nice seats!" Foxtail commented as she tested out one of the couches outside the cabins.

"Onwards again!"

...+...

Earlier, that evening, Hit Girl had taken Rage and Fury on a tour of Safehouse F which had included the armoury.

"It's not much of an armoury, really," Rage had commented. "I've seen better."

He had looked up at Hit Girl who had smirked. "You want to see inside the armoury that feeds this one?"

"Try me!" had been Rage's challenge.

...+...

"Level 3! This level is basically storage with the Main Armoury and lots of equipment."

Psyche saw Hit Girl smirking as she walked through the Equipment Storage Area and then up a central set of steps before she turned left along a raised walkway and then right down a corridor. Ever since they had entered Safehouse E, Psyche had been concerned that Hit Girl might decide to have some fun. True to form, she just had to go and open her big gob.

"Has Steph told you about the time she ran through the Safehouse butt naked?" she asked Rage conversationally.

Rage turned and he smiled at his sister whose face turned a pleasant shade of pink with a hint of red.

"No, she has not."

"Now, ain't the damn time!" Psyche growled as the group stopped outside the door labelled, MAIN ARMOURY. She swiped her access card but nothing happened. "Huh?"

"Only Senior Operators, Psyche," Mindy chuckled as she swiped her own access card.

"Foxy has access to here?" Psyche demanded.

"Of course," Hit Girl grinned as she pushed open the heavy steel door.

Psyche muttered obscenities under her breath which had Scamp blushing as she pushed past Hit Girl into the armoury.

..._...

"Oh, wow!" Rage exclaimed.

The place was enormous – over 360 square-metres and a little over three metres in height. While the Equipment Storage Area had consisted of rack upon rack loaded with combat gear, body armour, boots, webbing, and God only knew what else, the Main Armoury held everything which was explosive. Over to the left was a large caged area with warning signs and a locked gate. Through the mesh, Rage could make out many blocks of C4, crates of hand grenades, stacks of M81 Claymore mines, LAW rockets, dynamite, and . . . was that the business end of a torpedo?

Hit Girl led Psyche and Rage over to the right where the smaller weapons were stored. Everything had its place. Rage recognised several M2 Browning .50-calibre machine guns, at least two M134 mini-guns, several M60E4 and M60E6 machine guns, four L7A2 GPMGs and an entire rack of FN Minimi L110A2 light machine guns. There were many racks filled with a selection of almost every pistol he could think of. It was apparent that Hit Girl obviously preferred to buy Glock and SIG weapons, although H&K was well featured too.

Rage loved the array of shotguns, including the monster AA-12 automatic-shotgun, one of which had green and yellow highlights – it obviously belonged to Kick-Ass. Next, came the assault rifles, submachine guns and PDWs; there must have been hundreds of them – Hit Girl liked to buy in bulk it seemed! M16s, M4s, MPXs, MP5s, MP7s, and P90s were visible among many.

Rage turned to Hit Girl and he grinned.

"You win!"

..._...

"Level 4!"

Nobody said a word as they emerged into a giant cavern which extended 105-metres into the distance and was forty metres wide. The concrete ceiling towered five metres above them and was supported by a dozen two-metre diameter concrete pillars.

"Is that a running track?" Stormtide asked.

"Yes, it is – four-hundred-metres and four lanes," Hit Girl replied proudly.

"A pool!" Rogue yelled as she bolted forwards and she was quickly joined by some of the other members as they stopped to admire the Olympic-sized swimming pool with curved ends.

"You have outdone yourself, this time, girl!" Medic chuckled as she stood beside the eighteen-year-old vigilante. Then she gazed down toward the far end of the cavern "What is that?"

"Oh, you've seen the climbing wall. . ."

The climbing wall was double-sided and built over a hollow frame. It was 8-metres wide and a metre deep. It extended all the way to the ceiling which towered ten-metres above them.

Training Facility Echo Dining Room

"How's it going, Scamp?"

"Fine, thanks, Steph."

Becky was sitting at a table, a bottle of Pepsi in her left hand and her brand-new Fusion ID card in her right. She was smiling.

"You look happy," Abigail pointed out.

"I am – this is the best thing that could ever have happened to me. I have Chloe and Josh. I also have you guys."

Stephanie smiled.

"We are all here for each other, aren't we Abigail?"

"I suppose," Abigail replied.

The ten-year-old was still struggling to handle her new relationship with Stephanie. There was a deep-seated hatred for what Stephanie had done to her – not to mention the humiliation at her hands – but she owed it to Jamie to try and be civil to his newly-discovered sister. Stephanie grinned – she knew that Abigail was unhappy living with her and Stephanie wasn't exactly over the moon about it either. She also knew that her brother had a deep-seated affection for Abigail and she had no desire to spoil that for him.

"You two really hate each other, don't you?" Becky stated.

Abigail laughed.

"Yes, we do," Stephanie replied. "Only we are trying to get past it."

..._...

"Hi, Shannon."

Shannon looked up as two identical girls sat down across from her and Marc.

"Can't say I'm happy to see the 'Bitch Twins!'" Shannon growled.

"Shannon!" Marc growled.

"Sorry," Shannon said quickly. "I'm still trying to get used to all of this. I know that was uncalled for."

"It was a lifetime ago and we had no choice – we apologise for what we did to you," Sky said and her sister nodded.

"I accept that – but it was bad," Shannon said with some reluctance.

"Yeah, it was," Chrissy admitted with a pained look.

..._...

"So, what do you guys think?" Saoirse asked the Graves brothers at another table.

"Awesome!" Hunter grinned.

"Out of this world!" Leo added.

"It's going to be hard work – I won't lie about that. Hit Girl can be really hard; she can be a complete bitch, too."

"I've noticed," Hunter commented.

"How's the move coming along?"

"Really good – we should be moving by the end of the month."

"Glad to hear it. Now, remember to keep things secret. None of what you are wearing is to leave here – the ID card stays in your locker, understand?"

"Believe me, you don't want to take that card outta here!" Anne-Marie commented as she strolled past with a pained expression.

..._...

"So, we finally meet."

Annabelle and Iain looked up at the young girl who then sat down across from them with a boy of similar age.

"I am Wildcat, and this is Trojan – but you can call us Megan and Curtis."

"Hi," Annabelle said with a smile.

"Good to meet you, at last," Iain added.

"You, too – you fight well and I am looking forwards to fighting alongside you both," Trojan said.

"This must be the 'Kitty Table'," Joshua laughed as he sat down beside Trojan.

"You always did like to play with kitties, cousin!" Chloe chuckled as she sat down beside Annabelle.

Curtis glared at his elder cousin.

"You are so funny, Shadow!" Megan growled. "You too, Jack!"

"Sorry – just having a bit of fun at my little friend's expense!" Joshua said as he ruffled Wildcat's hair.

"You lot are mad," Annabelle commented with a grin.

"You can talk!" Iain said as he nudged his sister.

"So, Megan – what did Curtis get you for your birthday?" Chloe asked.

Megan's cheeks turned pink and she rubbed her neck. Chloe laughed and she smiled knowingly.

"I see. . ." she said. "Don't forget to agree a safe word!"

Megan's mouth dropped open and she glared at her friend. Curtis' face was a deep red and he had slunk down in his chair.

"Megan likes to wear a kitty-collar," Chloe explained with an evil smirk. "Long story, but she borrowed a spare from Sophia and they have fun with it. She's twelve today, by the way."

Annabelle giggled and Iain looked very embarrassed – not as much as Megan, though.

"You two having fun?"

Annabelle and Iain looked up into the smiling face of their big sister, but before she could say anymore. . .

"Hi, Stormy!"

"Jamie!" Shannon growled as the boy came up behind her and then stood beside Joshua. "Don't call me that!"

Iain laughed and Annabelle giggled.

"Either of you call me that and I'll kick your fucking asses!" Shannon growled.

"Yes, Stormy!" her siblings said together and then they both laughed.

Shannon screamed.

"Now, look what you've done; you little cunt!"

Jamie laughed out loud and he grinned, then he yelled out in pain.

"Stop that, Jamie!" Abigail growled as she slapped him on the back of the head.

"Just having a little fun. . ."

"Learn to respect your elders!" Abigail persisted.

Jamie swore violently as Shannon laughed.

"She's a wonderful young girl."

Several sets of eyes had watched ten-year-old Abigail Wilde throughout the evening.

"She has a furious temper when provoked," Mindy commented.

"She will be hard work," Dave added.

"You go first, partner; Rachel always wanted a daughter – a sister for Brad," Sam Fellowes offered.

"We'd love to," Paul Murphy replied. "If you are sure."

"Go for it."

Chapter 331*: Advance Preview of Fusion: Los Angeles

Coming up, very soon!

A new story from the Forsaken Universe!

Please be advised that some of what you see below may not actually appear in the story, or may be changed considerably. Most of the below will be out of context (on purpose) and not necessarily in the right order (on purpose). Also, the below spans many chapters, so you may not see certain sections for quite a while.

Synopsis: Sky and Christina Abbott are sixteen-year-old twins. Their parents are dead and the two girls were the survivors of a heinous CIA program destroyed by Fusion towards the beginning of the year. After many weeks of recuperation from serious injuries inflicted at the hands of Shadow, the two girls, codenamed Bane and Venom, were then offered a new life by Hit Girl. Despite them not holding the repentant Shadow to blame for their injuries, both girls decided that they needed a completely fresh start away from the City of Chicago.

Hit Girl jumped at the idea to broaden the scope of her organisation and thus, a new branch of Fusion was born. While Vengeance, in the UK was based on Fusion, the British organisation went its own way as far as support and operating methods were concerned. The Los Angeles 'branch' of Fusion would remain true to its mother organisation.

One member of Fusion would be going along with the girls to act as their mentor and the leader of the new offshoot. That member suffered an horrific loss in Chicago, therefore, Los Angeles was hoped to be an important way for her to come to terms with her loss.

All the leaves are brown and the sky is grey
I've been for a walk on a winter's day
I'd be safe and warm if I was in L.A.
California dreaming on such a winter's day

...+..._...+..._...+...

FUSION: LOS ANGELES

...+..._...+..._...+...

ABC7 Eyewitness News

Los Angeles appears to have gained its own true vigilantes. Two armour-clad females were spotted on the streets of Santa Monica, late last night. Eagle-eyed vigilante spotters noticed that the women were equipped in a very similar and professional manner to those vigilantes known to exist in the City of Chicago. A select few observers obtained a much closer look at the two vigilantes. Those observers identified the symbol which was visible on the left chest of each woman. The symbol was identical to that worn by those very same Chicago vigilantes that make up the organisation known as Fusion. Fusion, is the organisation headed up by the purple vigilante, Hit Girl.

...+..._...+..._...+...

"I could get used to this!" Sky commented to her twin sister as they both set foot on the tarmac.

...+..._...+..._...+...

"How can I go out on the beach looking like this?" demanded Chrissy as she checked out her own bruises which were spread out across her abdomen.

...+..._...+..._...+...

"Six bedrooms – four in the main house. Master Suite on the second level. You two girls get to have a suite each on the main level. Every door is armoured, as is every pane of glass. The grass outback can handle a helicopter as required."

...+..._...+..._...+...

Each suit was of a skin-tight design and was made up of an ultra-flexible and ultra-light composite armour which covered every inch of the body from the ankles to the neck. Lightweight, high-strength, stab-resistant boots matched the suit colour. For the hands, armoured gloves extended up past the wrist. A mask covered their entire head and eyes down to the bridge of their nose leaving only the lower half of their faces exposed.

...+..._...+..._...+...

"You are about to enter a world which is secretive by its very existence. You are about to enter the world of the vigilante. You are about to enter a purple hell."

...+..._...+..._...+...

"What the fuck is this? Who the fuck do they think they are, coming into my fucking city and causing fucking trouble?"

"I want them dealt with before they can get settled into L.A. – I will not have any of that vigilante bullshit here in my city! The fucking arrogance of those bastards!"

"Kill them and I want their dead bodies so that I can display them as a warning to any other fucking wannabe vigilantes. Do not fuckup like that bastard, D'Amico!"

...+..._...+..._...+...

"You are shitting me!"

"You guys do not fuck around when it comes to Safehouses, do ya?"

"Hit Girl has a thing for being prepared – she must have been a boy scout in a previous life!"

...+..._...+..._...+...

The interior of the space was pristine and could not have been cleaner. To the right, were weapons of every kind. To the left, in racks, were boxes of loose rounds and other ammunition. Straight ahead were the combat suits.

...+..._...+..._...+...

The girl aimed down the room and then squeezed the trigger.

Bang!

Scream!

Thud!

Laughter!

"What the hell did you drop it for?" I demanded as Sky rolled around on the floor laughing.

...+..._...+..._...+...

"When you two decide to grow up, let me know," Erika growled as she glared at the two girls.

...+..._...+..._...+...

"I see scum, Venom. Scum that prays on the innocent. Scum that needs to be taught a lesson."

...+..._...+..._...+...

"Welcome to Los Angeles, Mindy – you too, Steph, Saoirse."

...+..._...+..._...+...

"You having a midlife crisis or something, Erika?"

"Or something..." Erika replied coolly.

...+..._...+..._...+...

"This . . . place . . . is . . . fucking . . . awesome!"

...+..._...+..._...+...

"I hacked the fuck out of the CIA."

"Yes, you did – not bad for a thirteen-year-old. Would you like to know what you found?"

"Would be nice – the fucking file was encrypted up the wazoo and they caught me before I could start decrypting it."

...+..._...+..._...+...

*"You are a very important part of this team. We want to keep you alive.
You need to learn to look after yourself – I am not babysitting you every damn night we go out!"*

...+..._...+..._...+...

"I have no time to talk – I have a mission to complete."

"A mission? Who for? Urban Predator is dead."

"You don't understand. I have to complete this mission."

"No, you don't."

"Get out of my way, Steph – or I will shoot you."

"Do it, then."

...+..._...+..._...+...

FUSION: LOS ANGELES

...+..._...+..._...+...

*All the leaves are brown and the sky is grey
I've been for a walk on a winter's day
I'd be safe and warm if I was in L.A.
California dreaming on such a winter's day*

Chapter 332*: A Change of Pace

Saturday, September 17th, 2016

Northern Chicago

The assault, when it came, was silent.

The civilian guard force never knew they were under attack until the very moment of their death. The strike was made with military precision on a facility which was deemed to be 'black'. It did not feature on any publicly available records and very few who lived nearby had any idea what was stored there.

They attacked with military precision in teams of six. Four teams had been deployed. Nobody was left alive and the only evidence which remained were the shafts sticking out of the victim's bodies. The only weapons employed appeared to be arrows and knives. They left with slightly more noise as six trucks were stolen. Each eight-tonne truck was preloaded with military supplies and ready to deploy at a moment's notice. Thus, the US military lost 48-tonnes of military stores in an attack which lasted just twenty minutes.

The attack was not discovered until a failed check-in, forty minutes later.

Training Facility Echo Level 4

Dave smiled as he observed the activity.

Megan, Curtis, Stephanie, and Tommy were pounding around the 400-metre track on their second lap. They were not racing – it was training and they were all keeping up a steady pace. Sweat was evident as they ran but they were all smiling, enjoying the exercise. The swimming pool was occupied by most of the younger vigilantes which included: Anne-Marie, Danny, Annabelle, Iain, Lauren, Lizzie, Leo, Abigail, and Jamie. Hailee was patrolling the pool as lifeguard and referee as the youngsters swam lengths of the fifty-metre pool. Those lengths were randomly interrupted by some good-natured fooling about. All, were competent swimmers although Abigail and Jamie both showed a marked dislike for the water.

Further around, the climbing wall featured Shannon, Marc, and Mindy part way up, with Joshua actually at the top.

Level 0

Saoirse and Morgan were sparring on a section of the mat, as were Hunter and Sarah.

Chloe was referring a sparring match between Paige and Taylor which was getting very bitchy! Patrick was instructing Abby in some self-defence techniques over in another corner of the giant mat. Marty peered out of his armoured windows as he finished off some computer updates. He was amazed at how well things were coming along but at the back of his mind, he knew that very soon everything could come apart.

Everything that he had helped to build – it could all come crashing down.

That afternoon

Level 2

The briefing area was very full and it took a few minutes for all the gossiping and giggling to cease.

Everybody was in high spirits, which was good, however, Hit Girl had to burst everybody's happy bubble – she had no choice; it was time for the serious side of Fusion to come out. She had to remind everybody of what was at stake and why Fusion existed in the first place. As silence settled on everybody, some of the smiles faded as the grim expressions on the faces of their leaders gazed down at them.

"Three weeks!" Hit Girl almost yelled.

There were a few confused expressions.

"For those of you who do not know – Fusion was given a three-month ultimatum to leave Chicago. We are not leaving Chicago. That means we need to train and we will train and guess what? We continue to train! Chicago faces a living hell if we back down and leave the city in the hands of the most evil people in America."

"Every Fusion facility is being made ready. Every member of Fusion will need to be ready. As the team which we are, we will prevail. Until the deadline, we will protect this city, but we will not take any unnecessary risks and risk anybody being on the side lines when we really need them. All of you newbies – get with the program and learn from your mentors. We need everybody to work together. Fusion succeeds because it is a group of individuals who work together like nothing else.

"This is not just a pep talk – I want you all to realise the seriousness of what you are training for. Fusion is not an after-school club – it is a paramilitary organisation with a slant on vigilantism. If any of you have reservations of what you are getting involved with, then please let us know as soon as you can and we will try to resolve any problems. I have seen many of you in combat and I know how highly skilled you are. You Predators – I have seen how you fight and while I abhor how you came to be what you are, I am proud to have you fighting by my side.

"The next four weeks will decide the future of Chicago. The next four weeks will decide the future of Fusion. I just hope that in four weeks, I will be able to look upon you all, just as you are now. I won't lie to you; people will get hurt. We do not know what is out there waiting for us – but it won't be good and it will be intent on killing us all. For my part, I will provide each one of you with the best weapons and the best defensive equipment that I can get my hands on. Your safety is of paramount importance but we have innocents to protect and that means we have to put ourselves, our bodies, in harm's way.

"That is a tall order for the younger members here but an everyday occurrence for the older and blooded ones amongst us. To put it in perspective: 2.7-million people are relying on the forty of us to protect them. As soon as we have confirmed intelligence, then we will have regular briefings to bring everybody in on the full picture. Some of the intelligence will be classified but I will not keep you in the dark."

Mindy's oration had been long but it had focussed the minds of everybody present as Mindy had intended.

The following afternoon
Sunday, September 18th

Training Facility Echo
Level 1

"Why are you looking like a kid who just lost her ice-cream?" Mindy asked her Lieutenant.

"She's feeling frustrated," Joshua explained.

"Huh?"

"Sexually frustrated."

"Huh?"

"We seem to have appropriated a human contraceptive."

"Huh?"

Joshua sighed before he began orating as Chloe's forehead hit the table with a bang.

"First night – she was in her own bed for ten minutes before she slipped in between us and fell asleep. Second night – I'd just got Chloe's motor going and I was just about to penetrate. . ."

Mindy growled.

". . . Well – she appeared again. 'Don't mind me,' she said as she slipped under the duvet and fell asleep between us. Third night – we'd just stripped off and climbed into bed but then Chloe felt something in the bed and she was there again. She wriggled up the bed and sat there smiling for a minute before she rolled over and closed her eyes. 'Your dick's not sticking out like it was last night,' she says. We haven't bothered since."

Mindy smirked but then she couldn't help herself and she giggled before regaining her composure after a minute or two. She turned to the little girl two tables over.

"Becky!"

"Yes, Mindy," Becky said as she scampered over – a big grin on her face.

"Would you like to spend the night at my place, tonight?" Mindy asked.

Becky's face lit up.

"Will Anne-Marie be there?"

"Yes, she will – no doubt she will want to have you in her room. You okay with that?"

Becky's grin was enormous as she ran off to find Anne-Marie. Chloe lifted her head off the table and she smiled at Mindy as she mouthed, 'thank you'.

"And people see me as a 'cold heartless bitch!'" Mindy laughed.

"You are a 'cold heartless bitch', honey – one day, you're going to have to face up to that," Dave chuckled.

"I have no problem being a 'cold heartless bitch'," Dave. "It makes me what I am."

Then Mindy scowled as Stephanie gave her a hug around the waist.

"What are you doing?" she demanded.

"I was feeling overheated so I thought I'd hug you to cool down," Stephanie replied with a cheesy grin on her face as Mindy growled.

Level 0

"I can't do it – everybody is bigger than me."

"Becky – you killed a grown man with a knife!" Shannon pointed out.

"He had no idea I was there," the girl pointed out.

"I think we can show that size isn't everything," Foxtail said as she pulled on her mask. "Rogue!"

The diminutive Rogue came out onto the mat and she faced off against the taller, larger girl. Both wore their full combat suits and at a nod from Foxtail, both girls reached behind them and drew their highly-polished, devastatingly sharp, Butterfly Swords. There was a lot of murmuring from those watching as they took in the amazing weapons held by the two girls. Very few saw the swords out during training without some form of protective cover in place as they were beyond lethal.

The girls began slowly, gauging their attacks as they circled, their blades darting out and clashing with the sound of metal upon metal. The smaller girl darted in for an attack before her strikes were parried away by the bigger girl but Rogue pushed back before catching Foxtail on her backside with the flat of one of her swords. Rogue laughed out loud as she dodged a counterstrike and with an amazing twist, she flipped on of Foxtails blades out of her gauntlet and sent in clattering to the mat.

There was a sharp intake of breath from all those present as Foxtail did not flinch as she continued the fight with only one blade. The clang of the blades resounded around the concrete box which was the Safehouse and all eyes followed the flashes of the lights which flashed off the keenly sharpened blades. Foxtail was good and she was able to push back the smaller Rogue, despite Rogue still having both of her swords to hand.

Foxtail was not losing the fight so she waited for Rogue to make a mistake which did not take long as the younger girl opened herself up too much and Foxtail parried a blade to the side and she kicked the eight-year-old in the stomach. Rogue fell backwards, her blades crossed over her chest as she crashed to the mat. Then she froze as Foxtail went down on one knee, the hyper-sharp blade to Rogue's neck.

As Foxtail pulled Rogue back to her feet, there was cheering from the dozen or so faces who were watching.

"That was bloody awesome!" Becky announced.

..._...

Patrick studied his daughter as she patiently guided her younger siblings through their training. Patrick was impressed as he watched Iain and Annabelle watch and take in everything that their elder sister told them. It was as if they had never been parted. Patrick was amazed by how mature Shannon was and how much she had grown. He so wished that he had been able to recover Shannon while she still had her innocence, however, he knew very well that few kids retained their innocence much past five or six months as a Predator. By then, they were nothing better than feral – a state brought on by a combination of drugs, influence, punishment, and indoctrination.

Patrick was fully aware of how his eldest daughter disagreed with what he and his wife had done with her younger brother and sister. He hoped that she might mellow over time – only time would tell. He had had second thoughts about throwing everything in with Hit Girl and Fusion and his initial intentions had been to keep his three kids as a team operating as Fusion allies. But then he had seen how Fusion fought with immense skill and professionalism. He had seen how the Predators had fought using every skill that they possessed and had learnt since their freedom had been realised. They fought because they wanted to fight rather than fighting just because some bastard was holding a big stick over them.

He knew that Mindy and Dave were very well off and financially secure for life. However, he also knew that every member of Fusion wanted for nothing. Mindy had obviously spent enormous sums on the best weaponry and the combat suits were way beyond state-of-the-art. The training facilities open to Fusion vigilantes was the best that Patrick had ever seen. Dave and Mindy were not using Fusion to make money – that was just a benefit – Dave and Mindy had a professional organisation headed by the famous Hit Girl and Kick-Ass team.

Patrick was familiar with the long and illustrious list of those who had taken on Kick-Ass and Hit Girl – and lost everything, if they were lucky. Most simply lost their lives and as far as Patrick was concerned, if Hit Girl was after them, then they probably deserved everything that they got. Surprisingly, Mindy had morals – of a sort. It was amazing to see that Mindy had taken a Predator as her own – a famous one too.

Saoirse had sat down with Patrick and brought him up to date with everything she knew since he had left the Urban Predator program. Saoirse had related how terrible things had got and then what had happened to the 'new girl' and her subsequent abuse. Patrick had believed in a program which rewarded the Predators – only, while Lucy and Leo had been rewarded with their own accommodation and better conditions, the later Predators were deemed undeserving of reward – except for being rewarded by slightly less abuse.

Saoirse had told him about a young girl who had been bullied to the point where the eight-year-old had killed a girl, four years her senior. Patrick knew that under his regime, Stephanie would have gained better conditions and maybe her own room. He hated how those bastards had mutilated and ultimately destroyed the vision which he had helped create. He felt responsible for all those kids who had been slaughtered in Europe. But he felt pride at knowing that many had survived and some had been able to avenge every Predator.

Mindy had joined them towards the end of their discussion and she had explained about Fusion's latest problem and the ultimatum which was rapidly approaching. Patrick had again considered keeping his kids out of it but that would not be fair – without Mindy, Shannon might . . . Shannon might be dead.

There was, however, one other more disturbing issue which he and his wife had deemed to be beyond their control: Marc. Saoirse had explained to Patrick about the demonstration which Marc and Shannon had put on before two hundred witnesses. She had also mentioned the suspected relationship which had meant that Shannon, instead of being deployed with Marc, was replaced by Sarah. Since Shannon's return and her meeting up with Marc – well, they had been 'at it' as Annabelle had put it. He knew that he could not prevent Shannon from having sex with Marc – and he was not about to try; he had caused enough heartache for the girl.

He would just have to put up with the continual squeaking of the proverbial bed springs!

..._...

"Okay, Scamp – let's see what you can do," Hit Girl announced.

Scamp wore a pair of dark-blue shorts and a white T-shirt, both with the Fusion shield embroidered onto them. The eight-year-old girl was barefoot as she faced off against the identically clad Rogue. Scamp was about three inches shorter than Rogue and quite a bit thinner.

Scamp darted forwards and she kicked out at Rogue who dodged the kick kicking out herself, catching Scamp on the left shoulder. The younger girl – by one month – grimaced but otherwise ignored the strike. The idea of the sparring match was to see how skilled Scamp was and where her weaknesses lay – a custom training regime could then be worked out. Scamp was fast, darting around, using her strength which was her manoeuvrability and avoiding her liability which was her muscular strength.

Rogue had been sparring for almost a year and she was highly skilled and focussed when she fought – as two men had found to their cost, earlier in the year, when Rogue had killed them both during a European tour. The older girl did not hold back as she kicked out and sent Scamp flying backwards onto the mat. Scamp scrambled back to her feet and her face scrunched up in anger as she dove at Rogue and drove a fist into her opponent's left thigh eliciting a loud scream of pain as she did so. Rogue returned the compliment with a sharp kick to Scamp's own left thigh which she had left vulnerable.

Scamp screamed out as she fell to the mat and Hit Girl saw Jackal bolt forwards but he stopped as Shadow rested a hand on his lower arm. His expression was grim as he watched Scamp regain her feet, tears running down her cheeks. The girl was very brave and despite the pain in her thigh, she was game enough to continue the sparring. Hit Girl was in two minds about stopping the fight then and there – not least because Jackal was about to kill somebody to protect his Scamp. Nonetheless, she allowed the fight to continue.

Scamp glared up at Rogue who frowned at her opponent. She was worried that she might have gone too far and she was fully expecting Jackal to come over and flatten her. Hit Girl nodded and Rogue darted forward but she found Scamp doing the same thing and she was shocked as she felt considerable pain in her abdomen as Scamp drove both fists into Rogue's stomach knocking the air from her lungs. Rogue fell to her knees gasping for breath as Scamp kicked Rogue in the side sending the gasping girl over onto her side.

Then Scamp brought back her right foot and she drove it forwards towards Rogue's face.

..._...

Hit Girl grabbed hold of Scamp just before her foot came into contact with the cringing face of Rogue.

"Easy there, girl!" Hit Girl said as she brought the angry young girl back down onto her feet.

Rogue stood back up and she held out her right hand to Scamp as she smiled at the younger girl. Scamp was seething with anger as tears of frustration flooded down her face.

"I'm sorry, Scamp," Rogue offered. "Well done."

Scamp began to control her breathing and the tears stopped. Shadow and Jackal ran forwards but Hit Girl waved them back, giving Scamp time to sort herself out, by herself. With supreme effort, Scamp controlled her temper and she held out her hand, forcing a smile. Rogue gripped the proffered hand and they both shook.

"Thanks, Rogue."

Both girls were dripping with sweat after their sparring match and both received a cold bottle of water from a grinning Ravage.

"Wow! That was awesome, sis – you too, Scamp; ice cold!"

..._...

"Mindy – that went too far!" Joshua growled

"Josh – she could handle it. Diving in would have given her cause to doubt herself. I needed to see how she could handle herself and you know that. Believe me, Josh, I know what it is like to worry about somebody you love and I am very proud of you for your reactions towards Becky. She's a wonderful little girl and she has a lot of hard-learned skills that we can build on. She's safe and I promise to look after her, tonight, okay?"

"Josh; Mindy's right," Chloe said as she looked up into her boyfriend's anger-filled eyes. "God, you made me proud today – and so did Becky."

Joshua relented and he smiled at Chloe before looking at Mindy.

"I know you'll look after her, Mindy – I just saw red when Anne-Marie hurt Becky."

"You remember what Mindy was like that day Anne-Marie had her nose punched by a boy accidentally?" Chloe asked.

"I thought she was going to go all Hit Girl on the poor kid," Joshua replied with a laugh.

"I never knew that bringing up kids was so hard," Mindy said. "It is damn hard but it is also the best thing ever to see them smile at you and to feel their love."

"I'm looking forward to that," Joshua said as he hugged Chloe.

..._...

"Anne-Marie?"

Anne-Marie was busy soaping herself in the showers when she saw Becky hang up her towel and grab a bottle of shower gel from the shelf at the entrance to the showers. Anne-Marie winced as she saw the vicious red marks on Becky's body – they were healing but it had barely been five days since they had been inflicted. The bruise on the little girl's face was slowly healing too but it showed that the girl had been through a lot.

"Hi, Becky."

"I'm sorry I went to kick you in the face – it was just instinct and I was angry."

"I'm sorry as well, Becky. I went a bit far."

"I think Mindy wanted you to go to town on me just to see how I reacted."

"Mindy can be very tough but she means well and . . . well, I wouldn't be alive today without the training which Mindy has provided me. We may be little kids but we are training to fight in a nasty world full of people who want to fuck over people like you and me . . . what's the scowl for?"

"I don't like swearing."

"Sorry – I've picked up some bad habits from Steph . . . and Mindy!"

"Thank you for making me so welcome. I can't believe that it was only Tuesday when I was being strapped for helping Shannon escape. I've killed four people – two I killed on Tuesday."

"I killed two men, back in May – they tried to kill me and my brother and Hailee. Danny took down one man, too. I hated doing it and I still get nightmares; it was the first time that I had used my beautiful swords."

"You two going to finish showering or what?" Megan asked as she walked into the shower area and began to wash. "I think Mindy is looking for you both."

"Oops!" Anne-Marie muttered as she quickly rinsed off the last of the shampoo from her hair and Becky finished off her own.

The two younger girls quickly left the showers to get dressed, grabbing their towels as they went. Stephanie, Lauren, and Abigail soon joined Megan in the showers. They were all chatting when Saoirse and Shannon appeared.

"Hold it!" Saoirse said as she caught sight of Stephanie. "The last time I saw Stephanie in a communal shower, she was killing somebody. Are we safe, Steph?"

Stephanie laughed at her friend's expression and she went back to her shower without rising to the bait.

Glenview

The house was pandemonium!

Mindy was making a vain attempt at sitting quietly so that she could read her 160-page Guns and Ammo magazine which had recently arrived. Unfortunately, a combination of four-legged and two-legged hyperactivity was preventing Mindy from concentrating despite her best efforts. The ginger kitty landing with claws extended on her magazine with a pair of large German-Shepherd dogs in hot pursuit, not to mention the two eight-year-old girls who were screaming as they chased the dogs, was just a little too much for Mindy and she growled.

Stephanie heard the growl and sensing an explosion with the potential to go nuclear, she grabbed both girls and quickly dragged them out of the living room and shoved them both towards the stairs.

"Go play upstairs," Stephanie suggested.

Becky and Anne-Marie giggled as they ran up the stairs while the two dogs sat staring up at Stephanie, tongues hanging out and panting heavily.

"You two look so stupid!" Stephanie told Kiara and Razor

..._...

"Sorry, Mum."

"Don't be silly, Steph – they're just letting off some steam," Mindy chuckled as she glared at the ginger menace which lay across her legs, purring happily as he looked up at Mindy, his eyes half closed.

"I thought that they were about to be slaughtered," Abigail commented as she looked up from another one of Mindy's Guns and Ammo magazines.

"My thoughts exactly," Stephanie commented.

"Those two really look dumb," Abigail pointed out as the two canine trainee vigilantes stared at the girl, their tongues lolling out the sides of their mouths.

"They do that – I think their brains sometimes get disconnected, or something," Stephanie replied as she stroked Razor while Abigail concentrated on Kiara.

Mindy smirked as she went back to her magazine. She was pleased that Stephanie and Abigail could get some quality time together without ripping each other's throats out. Fifteen minutes later, Jamie ambled into the living room with Danny beside him.

"Do I want to hear this," Mindy asked as she read the boy's expressions.

"We've not done anything," Jamie offered with a sly grin.

"The two girls, however. . ." Danny grinned.

Mindy sunk her head into her hands for a moment. She had worried that it would have been Stephanie and Abigail killing each other which would have upset the evening.

"Where's Dave?"

"He's taking a shower."

Mindy listened hard and from somewhere upstairs, she could hear giggling – loud giggling – and . . . was that water splashing?

..._...

Mindy had no idea what she was going to find as she climbed the stairs, followed by Stephanie, Jamie, Danny, Abigail . . . and the two dogs – Horatio remained stretched out on the couch in kitty heaven. The giggling got louder, as did the sound of splashing. Mindy made her way down the corridor and then into Danny's room. She pushed open the door into the shared bathroom and she froze as she felt her socks suddenly feeling very damp.

"Holy, fuck!" Stephanie exclaimed as she splashed into the bathroom beside Mindy. "You two are so dead!"

The two in question, Scamp and Rogue, were pretty-much naked and what clothing they wore was soaked. Scattered around the bathroom were sodden lumps which were evidently the girls' discarded clothing. The bath was full and overflowing. The shower was running and water was streaming from the stall across the floor. Even more surprising was who was in the shower stall.

"Sophia!" Mindy exclaimed as the dog whined and looked a little sheepish.

Stephanie pushed past and she shut off the shower while Abigail reached into the bath and she yanked out the plug. The water gurgled as it flooded down the plughole.

"You hear that noise, girls – that's your freedom going down the drain!" Mindy stated and both girls groaned. "Anne-Marie – go find towels for you and Rebecca. Rebecca, I am going to be speaking to Chloe about this."

Becky knew that she was in big trouble as soon as she saw Mindy appear in the flooded bathroom. The use of her full first name just reinforced the fact. She was also unhappy about disappointing Chloe. Jamie and Danny just shook their heads as their sister reappeared with towels for Becky and herself.

"Steph, Abigail – please escort Sophia downstairs to the basement and get her dried off."

The unhappy looking Sophia headed off downstairs in the custody of Abigail and Stephanie. Mindy smirked as the dog vanished – the animal could kill if she so desired but as Sophia, she was soft as a rag and she loved to play with the kids. Then Mindy's expression went cold.

"Anne-Marie – you and your friend get to bed, now!"

"So immature!" Danny exclaimed as the two girls vanished from sight.

"Okay, Mr Mature – go get a bloody mop!" Mindy growled.

Chapter 333*: Fury v Psyche

Sunday, September 18th, 2016

Glenview

"I'm sorry, Mindy. . ."

"Chloe – shut the fuck up!"

"I'm responsible for her, so. . ."

"Did you bring her school stuff?"

"Yes. Can I see her?"

Mindy and Chloe headed up the stairs. They paused at the door to Anne-Marie's room which was partially open – the room beyond was quiet. Both young women peeked inside and they smiled. Becky and Anne-Marie were fast asleep. Becky's dark brown hair was spread out on the pillow beside the lighter brown hair of her friend.

"Little terrors!" Chloe chuckled as she turned away from the little girl who had recently become the centre of her and Joshua's lives.

"Go get fucked!"

Chloe scowled and Mindy laughed.

"I mean it – go get fucked by your man. . ."

Colorado Springs, Colorado

Lucy hated Sundays.

Something to do with Monday following on close behind. The girl sat astride her black Yamaha FZ-09 motorcycle, just off Vietnam Veterans Memorial Highway, about six miles south-south-west of Colorado Springs. Below her, in the valley, just to the south of Fort Carson, were the ruins of a large complex of concrete buildings. All were destroyed, mostly by fire and, her skilled eyes told her, explosives.

To Lucy, the place had been hell on earth, but for almost five years, it had also been the closest thing she had had to a home. It was also where they had first met, seven long years before. A single tear ran down her left cheek at the thought of what she had lost.

"Fucking pussy!" she growled, ashamed at herself for showing her feelings.

With a kick of her left boot, she kicked the motorcycle into first gear and accelerated down the road, leaving her past behind her.

The following day

Monday, September 19th

Chicago, Illinois

Glenview

"Mindy?"

"Yes, Becky."

"I'm really sorry for my behaviour, yesterday."

"I know you are – you're just being a kid and no harm was done. Apology accepted."

"Thank you."

"Go get your breakfast, sweetie – you look very smart."

Becky blushed and giggled as she joined Anne-Marie in the kitchen for a bowl of chocolate cereal before school. They were joined by the two boys, as well as by Stephanie, soon after.

Mindy finished off her own breakfast as Dave breezed in, gave his wife a kiss, said goodbye to the kids, and headed out the door.

That evening

Training Centre Echo Level 0

"You sure about this, honey?"

"Yes, Dave – it'll be fine . . . I think."

"Okay – you going to talk with them first?"

"Yes, I will."

Mindy headed for the changing rooms where she found Stephanie, Megan, and Abigail.

"You guys, okay?"

"Hi, Mindy," Abigail replied with a smile. "Thanks for this."

"Okay – while Megan finishes dressing you, let's go over a few things. Stephanie, Abigail – I know that there is no love lost between you two. This sparring session is intended to allow Abigail to get used to fighting in her new combat suit. I am also allowing you two to vent a little against one another – but you both need to remember that killing each other is in the past. Please do not abuse my trust – I think you both know what might happen should you abuse my trust."

"We do," the two girls replied.

"I'm expecting to see some good moves out there – use your skills and demonstrate what you are both capable of. While I am familiar with what Stephanie can do and I have seen some of what you can do, Abigail, I need to be certain that you can keep up with the rest of us."

"I can!" Abigail growled.

"Yes – but I want to see it."

"Okay."

"Megan – send them both out when Abigail's ready, okay?"

"Will do!" Megan replied.

..._...

Okay, Mindy was being devious – not really a big surprise – she was setting up Psyche and Fury; just for a bit of fun, of course – just some harmless fun.

There was cheering from the assembled vigilantes as the two masked vigilantes made their way down the steps and onto the mat. Psyche was dressed in her combat suit and ready for action. Her adversary was Fury, who was appearing for the very first time in her new combat suit. The ten-year-old's slim frame was covered from head to toe in body armour which was predominantly scarlet in colour but with her chest armour and thighs in graphite grey. Her face was completely covered and the young vigilante showed no skin. Her eyes glowed a luminous yellow to accentuate the furious look of the mask. Her utility belt held a single Heckler & Koch P30SK pistol on her right hip with four spare magazines, plus communications equipment and a combat knife. She wore gauntlets with graphite grey armour on the back of her hands. Her boots were also graphite grey and they rose up her lower leg to just below the knee. Fury's primary weapon was a custom double-ended carbon-fibre bō-staff which she held in her left hand.

As Psyche looked around, she smelt a rat – she had expected to see her brother on the sidelines watching the fight; he was not there. The veteran Predator, and more recently, veteran vigilante, had no more time to dwell on her thoughts as Fury attacked. Psyche struggled to clear her mind which was dredging up memories which she never wanted to see again. She saw the naked Electra with vicious, bloody scars across her body. She saw Electra stabbed and tied to a tree. Then she saw the cause of those horrific injuries – she saw Fury, in that woodland.

Psyche saw red as she drew a Sai in each hand and she parried away the razor-sharp bō-staff blade.

..._...

Fury noticed the change in Psyche's demeanour and to be brutally honest, she was visualising exactly what she figured Psyche was. It had been years ago, but it all still felt very raw as the physical scars still existed, as did the mental scars. Fury had mental scars that revolved around Psyche setting her up to be raped and that experience was now associated with something that she could not remember but which had left mental scars which caused horrific nightmares as her mind visualised what some man had done to her body while she had been under the influence of some godawful drugs.

Fury hated Psyche like nothing else only, part of her liked the girl inside, Stephanie. The young girl was nothing like she had been when Fury had last known her and that gave Fury pause to reconsider her own feelings towards Stephanie and her alter-ego, Psyche. Nonetheless, Fury needed to fight her nemesis before she could put away her memories for good. Fury was skilled with the bō-staff and she wielded it against her adversary. Twice, she struck Psyche with the flat of a blade, causing a shout of pain and indignation

Fury was rewarded for her strikes by a Sai striking her new body armour – they hurt! Psyche had her own supporters but Fury had expected to have had her own but there was no sign of Jamie, nor was there any sign of Shannon. Fury had no time to dwell on unimportant thoughts as she found herself kicked hard and then her bō-staff was knocked out of her hand by a double roundhouse kick the second one of which sent the girl spinning onto the mat. Psyche ran at Fury, kicking her in the side just as the other girl rolled away, seizing Psyche's right ankle and yanking it.

Psyche struck the mat, hard, but she instantly regained her feet as Fury attacked again and they both went down together, viciously punching each other wherever they could reach. Their respective armour provided protection but only to a point. Both girls yelled out as the other punched them in the head, in the side, in the chest, in the stomach. It was a full-on brawl and the bruises were stacking up.

Then Hit Girl threw in her wildcard – actually two wildcards. The two young girls broke apart as Hit Girl yelled out a warning.

"Team up, Psyche and Fury – you are under attack! Comms are activated and isolated."

Psyche and Fury were forced to change from fighting one another to fighting as a team as two unknown armour-clad individuals appeared on the mat, advancing towards Psyche and Fury. One was tall and one was short – both girls had an inkling who they might be.

"I've got your back, Psyche," Fury called over the comms circuit.

Both girls swept up their discarded weapons and they turned to face the approaching threat.

"Copy that, Fury."

..._...

The taller vigilante was a girl – tall and well-formed; it had to be Stormtide.

Her combat suit was predominantly azure blue with basalt grey tiger stripes covering the armour. Her eyes glowed a luminous green which complimented her stormy colour-scheme. As with Fury, no skin was visible. Twin H&K P30 pistols adorned her hips along with the usual array of magazine pouches and communications equipment. Her right thigh bore a mount for four titanium throwing knives while an eight-inch combat knife was strapped to her left calf. In her left hand, she held a double-ended carbon-fibre bō-staff which was very similar to that held by Fury but a few inches longer in length to match the girl's extra height.

The bō-staff cut through the air and Fury had barely a second to react as the bigger girl attacked and reattacked. Fury was already tired after fighting Psyche but the new girl appeared very fresh and full of energy. But Fury had trained for such a situation and she did not back down easily but instead, she flew at Stormtide while Psyche faced off against the other new armoured vigilante who appeared more than a little familiar to the seasoned fighter.

The boy was covered from head to toe in a deep orange combat suit with certain sections of armour in flame red, trimmed with signal yellow. The eyes in his mask glowed a luminous red. Around the boy's waist was a utility belt carrying communications equipment, spare magazines, and a custom Heckler & Koch P30SK pistol. On his right calf, he carried a six-inch combat knife.

"You think you can take me, Rage?" Psyche growled as she spun the Sai in each hand.

"I can take you, anytime I choose, slapper!" Rage growled as he wielded his twenty-eight-inch Messer Sword.

"Big words from a little shit!" Psyche responded with a grin as she considered that it was barely a week since they had last fought one another.

"Less chatter, bitch – let's see some fightin'!" Rage responded.

..._...

Mindy smirked as she watched the four youngsters spar on the mat. The sparring attracted quite a few onlookers who stayed off the capacious mat due to the very sharp blades which were being employed. Despite her attempt at causing trouble, Fury and Psyche were holding their own against the opposing team. Stormtide had numerous advantages over Fury but the younger girl was doing well as the bō-staffs clashed. Lucius Fox had done well to provide the combat suits so fast but they would be needed, very soon, to protect every member of Fusion over the coming weeks. While Stormtide fought the ferocious and aptly names, Fury, Mindy turned her attentions to the two siblings who fought a few yards away.

Mindy was still coming to terms with having a new child in the family. Stephanie had taken some getting used to but Jamie was something else and he was still very unsure of himself and his new surroundings. The boy was capable – that was obvious by how long he had survived alone and then with Shannon. Dave and Mindy were still piecing together the events surrounding Jamie, Shannon, and Abigail. Rage was using his blade to good effect as he swung it towards his sister. Psyche was highly skilled and more experienced than her younger brother but Jamie had raw skills which Psyche was still quantifying. He managed to land a strike on Psyche which elicited a cry of rage and then Rage found himself in retreat as he was chased by a Sai-wielding maniac.

Rage was not looking where he was going and he cannoned into Stormtide, taking the older girl down with him as he fell. Fury took advantage of the unexpected turn of events and she kicked Stormtide in the left thigh, following up with a punch to the chest which elicited a scream from the infuriated teenager.

"You fucking little bitch!" Stormtide growled.

"Maybe Tempest will rub your boobs better," Fury teased.

"When you get some, I'll return the fucking favour!" Stormtide barked back.

"Will you two just get a bloody room!" Psyche growled as she flipped Stormtide over and down onto her back for the second time in as many minutes. "Stay the fuck down, Stormy!"

"You too, fuckwit!" Fury growled down at Rage who was trying in vain to regain his feet but with Fury's right foot on his throat.

..._...

"Well done!"

The four youngsters turned to face Hit Girl as she stepped onto the mat.

"That was a remarkable display and well executed. Rage, honey, you need to sort out your situational awareness – you took out your partner and laid yourselves open to attack. Fury, Psyche – very good, today. I commend you both for your abilities and for being quick to reassess the situation when I tried to fuck things up for you both."

"I know how you work," Psyche chuckled. "I expected something."

"I am pleased to see you both working together as a team," Hit Girl finished as she helped Stormtide back to her feet and the annoyed vigilante pulled off her mask, glaring at Jamie as he reappeared from under his own mask.

"Don't get stormy with me, Stormy," Jamie quipped – then he yelled out as Shannon kicked him in the side.

Jamie landed in a heap and he glowered as laughter rang out from the surrounding walkway.

"Where's Abigail?" Stephanie asked as she pulled off her mask and looked around the mat.

"I think I saw her heading towards the changing rooms," Tommy Morgan offered. "That was good fighting. You looked good."

Stephanie grinned as she headed towards the changing rooms beyond the enormous concrete edifice that occupied the area beside the mat.

..._...

There was no sign of Abigail as Stephanie headed into the changing rooms. The male section was empty as was the female area. However, Abigail's body armour was strewn on a bench. Stephanie removed her own body armour, collating it neatly on another section of bench ready to be returned to the armoury after her shower. After pulling off her sweaty T-shirt and boy shorts, Stephanie grabbed a towel and she headed for the female showers from where she could hear water running. As Stephanie entered the showers, she could hear something amidst the steam . . . crying.

"May I join you, Abigail?"

"Go away!"

"It's Steph – please?"

Abigail said nothing, so Stephanie took that as a 'yes' and she hung up her towel before heading into the shower area. Stephanie found Abigail huddled under one of the showers, hot water pelting her body. The girl looked miserable and very soggy. Stephanie turned on the next shower and she sat down under the water, enjoying the pounding hot water on her sore body.

"Talk to me, Abigail."

"I don't know what to do. We're not supposed to be enemies but I'm still struggling with our past and I want to push past it but I can't. I feel so alone. I feel like you are the only one that I can talk to – only you are my Nemesis, not my friend."

Stephanie felt really sorry for the girl but despite her own feelings towards Abigail, she had a responsibility towards the girl and they both needed to work at moving on from their shared past.

"You are not alone!"

"I've been alone for months – I've had nobody."

"You had Jamie and Shannon," Stephanie pointed out.

"Yes – that was good, for as long as it lasted."

"I know – you got take and . . ."

"You can say it – I was raped."

"Yes."

"My life is one ginormous fucking train wreck," Abigail growled as she looked over at Stephanie. "I even tried to bloody well kill myself!"

"Considering how much effort you put into everything, Abigail, if you really wanted to kill yourself, then you'd be pushing up the fucking daisies!" Stephanie pointed out and Abigail actually giggled.

"I had no other option open to me."

"Yes, you did!" Stephanie said angrily. "You think I never thought about killing myself and ending the suffering? Those bastards had a fucking hardon for me and they made my life worthless. You are just as strong as me, Abigail, you are a survivor. You are a survivor, just like me, just like Jamie, just like Shannon and all the others: Naomi, Kaitlin, Harper, Yvette, Craig, Saoirse, Aiden, Christina, Sky, Sarah, Marc, Electra, Hunter, Leo, Rebecca – they are all survivors who want to live.

"Mindy put me and Saoirse in charge of the welfare of all you Predators. Mindy figured out early on that what we all need is somebody who understands what we've all been through. I had Saoirse to help me through the worst shit – and she had me. We hated each other much worse than you and I do. Right now, I can't imagine life without that girl to talk to and laugh with. What you need, Abigail, is a friend."

Abigail stared at the tile floor for a minute before she looked over at Stephanie again, a smile showing amidst a look of desperation.

"Will you be my friend? Will you be there for me?"

"Till the end of time, Abigail," Stephanie replied as she stood up. "I owe you, Abigail – without you, I might never have found my little brother . . . alive. Now, stand up and get yourself cleaned up."

..._...

Abigail smiled as she began to wash, feeling happier than she had in many months. Stephanie was her nemesis, just as Saoirse had been Stephanie's. Abigail hated to admit it, but Stephanie was right. The girl whom she had hated for over two years was to be the one to help her get her life back together. Abigail laughed as she washed her hair.

"Something funny?" Stephanie asked.

"I'm being lectured by a girl, six months my junior! You know, it sucks – I'm six months older than you, but you have boobs and you're growing hair down below; I have absolutely nothing – not even bumps!"

"Sorry – I have no control over my body's physical development, but I'm sure you'll get the right bits in due course. Jamie will just have to wait."

Abigail blushed furiously at the last comment but then she smirked at Stephanie.

"Shouldn't you be wearing a bra?"

Stephanie rolled her eyes.

"Nope!" she growled.

"You look like you need one."

Stephanie shook her head and she chuckled.

"Did Mindy put you up to this?"

"Nope."

"For the love of God!" Stephanie breathed. "Okay, they aren't all that big and a bra will just swamp them for Heaven's sake!"

"Still think you need one."

"Can we talk about something else, please, Abigail?"

..._...

As the two girls finished showering and moved to leave the shower area, they heard voices from the changing rooms. The voices were getting louder as one voice got more and more agitated.

"I just wish that two of the most important people in my life weren't always at each other's throats!"

It was Jamie's voice followed by Shannon's.

"Give them time, Jamie – they'll come around."

"I wish they'd just kiss and makeup."

Stephanie and Abigail looked at each other.

"You want to fuck with Jamie?" Abigail said after a pause, her cheeks turning pink.

"Why the hell not?" Stephanie replied, rhetorically.

..._...

Jamie was surprised – very surprised.

His sister had just appeared from the showers . . . with Abigail. He began to smell a rat when he saw them both holding hands like they were friends. Shannon was a little confused too, knowing that the two girls were long-time foes.

"Hi, Jamie," Abigail said sweetly.

"We got a surprise for you," Stephanie added.

Then, to Jamie's surprise, both girls dropped their towels and they turned to each other and kissed one another, full on the lips, their naked bodies pressed together. Shannon produced a very loud wolf-whistle as she watched the two girls kissing. After about ten seconds, Stephanie and Abigail separated.

"Well, Jamie," Abigail commented. "We made up, earlier – now we've kissed. . ."

"You happy, Jamie?" Stephanie grinned.

The boy was totally speechless and his mouth hung open, his eyes popping out of his head as he tried to register the sight of his sister and best-friend kissing while stark naked. Chloe was standing beyond Shannon and her mouth hung open, too. Shannon wolf-whistled again as the two embarrassed girls grabbed up their towels and scampered off to find some clothing. They were followed by cat-calls and wolf-whistles as the boys present quickly got in on the act. The red-faced Stephanie hugged her towel to her body as she scampered past a wide-eyed Tommy who smiled approvingly as he watched her vanish behind some lockers.

"Wow. . .!" Tommy exclaimed.

Later that night

Glenview

"Can I trust you two to behave while sharing the same bed? You know, after that erotic display, earlier?"

Both girls blushed bright red as Mindy grinned. Stephanie growled and glared at her Mum who just chuckled and smiled proudly at her daughter.

"Good night, girls."

Once Mindy had gone, and the door was firmly closed, Abigail looked over at her new friend.

"Your Mum is really proud of you, Steph . . . will I ever have a family? I want somebody to be proud of me."

Stephanie grinned fiendishly.

"I may have some thoughts on that, Abigail. Now you be a good girl and go to sleep."

Abigail grinned, just as fiendishly.

"Fuck you!"

The following morning

Tuesday, September 20th

Glenview

"Steph?"

"In here, Jamie."

The boy followed the sound of his sister's voice but then he stopped dead as he found his sister in the bathroom – she was completely naked and she stood facing him. Jamie winced as he noticed the ragged scar on her chest, among other things, and his mouth dropped open in surprise.

"Steph – you're naked. . ."

"I've just stepped out of the shower – I usually shower naked."

Jamie felt his face getting really hot then Steph smiled and she laughed.

"You've seen me naked before – admittedly, it was quite a while ago but nothing much has changed, believe me."

"You have hair down there. . ." Jamie commented shyly.

"Not all that much, but yes, I have pubic hair – so what?"

"I'm sorry. . ." he spluttered as he ran out of the bathroom.

Stephanie rolled her eyes and she grabbed up a fluffy pink towel, wrapping it around her body.

"Jamie!" she yelled as she came out of the bathroom into her bedroom.

Stephanie found her brother sitting on her bed and he was looking down at the floor.

"I'm sorry if I embarrassed you, Jamie. I tend not to think about nudity much; I was naked a lot as a Predator. Mind you, from what I understand, you're not exactly a novice when it comes to seeing females naked."

"Shannon and Abigail weren't my sister. Is it true that you killed a girl while you were both naked?"

Stephanie grinned.

"Yes, Jamie – that's how I got my codename so early."

"Can you tell me the story some time?"

"Definitely – the others have heard it and SD has filled in some of the gaps for me."

"Will you tell me about that scar, too?"

"Of course – you're my brother – but I might need help as I don't really remember all that much about it. What were you wanting?"

"I wanted to thank you for what you're doing for Abigail. I know it must have been really hard for you both to see eye to eye."

"You care about her, don't you?"

"I do."

"It was time for us both to put the past in the past. We both care about you, Jamie, and neither of us wants to hurt you."

"I love you, Steph . . . I'm glad we're back together again."

"I love you, too, Jamie."

That evening

South Whipple

Abigail was silently crapping herself.

The ten-year-old had done many things in her life which had scared her half to death. The girl had taken lives. The girl had mutilated other kids, leaving them scarred for life. However, the prospect of meeting her new family was so nerve-wracking that she almost felt like weeing herself as she struggled to cope with her insides which were turning around like a washing machine on high-speed spin.

Mindy grinned at Abigail's expression as she and Stephanie escorted the young girl up the path to her new home. Waiting on the doorstep were three people: Paul Murphy, his wife, Rachel, and his son, Bradley. They smiled at their visitors and headed inside the house

"Murphy family," Stephanie announced. "Please meet Abigail Wilde. Abigail, this is Paul, Rachel, and Brad – Brad is thirteen and he likes to read porn mags."

"Stephanie!" Mindy growled as Abigail giggled and Brad blushed wildly while his father raised an eyebrow.

"Just trying to put her mind at ease, is all!" Stephanie hissed.

"Welcome to our home, Abigail," Rachel Murphy said. "I am Rachel and we want you to see this house as your home, too."

"Welcome, Abigail," Paul added.

"Hi, Abigail – you're now my kid sister," Brad said proudly and Abigail grinned.

"Watch out, Bradley," Stephanie cautioned. "She bites!"

"I told Jamie not to tell anybody about that," Abigail groaned.

"You bit Jamie?" Stephanie asked.

"Never mind," Abigail muttered.

"I think we'll be just fine," Brad commented as he smiled down at his new sister. "You wanna come see your room?"

Abigail's uneasiness returned with a vengeance.

"Can Steph come?"

"The more the merrier!"

Chapter 334*: A Hack Too Far

Wednesday, September 21st, 2016

The home of Chloe and Joshua

The first few days had been difficult and the adjustments required, hard.

However, the young Rebecca Wren, know to all as Becky, loved her new home. She loved the fact that she had a dog – not exactly a cute, fluffy one but Hercules loved the new girl who patted him and hugged him relentlessly. His usual owners tended to pet each other a lot more than they petted him. For Rebecca, the whole feeling of being wanted was from a lifetime ago. She struggled to sit down and just do nothing – for months she had been unable to get more than a few minutes alone. Some bastard would hit her, throw something at her, yell at her. The young girl had been unable to switch off and properly rest.

She was exhausted from everything and she amazed herself how quickly she had taken to her new life. She felt silly falling asleep at strange times of the day, usually cuddled up with Hercules. It usually took some gentle coaxing from Chloe or Joshua to wake her up for mealtimes and school. School; how normal. From fighting for her life one week, she had changed to a world where the only fighting she did was over who got the ball, her or Hercules. Her body was still bruised to hell, but for once, the bruises were healing without others replacing them.

She loved Chloe and she loved Joshua. At times, they sometimes went over the top watching over her . . . but she knew that she was cared for and that was enough for her to overlook the obsessive protection – yes, she had seen Joshua's attempt to intervene during her fight with Anne-Marie. Each night, she snuggled down into a soft bed in her own room – both a novelty to the young girl. For a few nights in a row, she had awoken from a nightmare and found herself squirming into bed with Chloe and Joshua. Sometimes, she just could not sleep. She had been so used to sleeping on a blanket on the floor like she was a dog.

Going to bed – actually being told to go to bed – was a different experience to the previous months. She was able to take her time using the toilet and then changing into clean pyjamas – Chloe had bought a set of pyjamas with My Little Pony characters all over them which Becky loved. Having the bed to sleep in was a welcome change and so soft. Her body still hurt where she had been punched and strapped but it felt better every day. Enjoying a hot shower and pulling on clean clothes each morning was an unbelievably good feeling. Seeing people smile at you because they cared about you each morning was different, rather than people who smiled at you because they just saw an easy target coming into view. Chloe and Joshua ate big – well Chloe was an American – and Becky sometimes felt bad about not being able to finish her meals. A tearful but calm conversation with Joshua had eased her worries and Chloe had promised to serve Becky smaller portions.

Then Becky had made a big mistake and she had found herself in big trouble.

..._...

It had just been a bit of fun – at the time.

Anne-Marie had first suggested that they have a bath together – then a water fight had begun. Then Sophia had wandered in and things had kind of got out of hand very quickly with water getting everywhere.

Upsetting Mindy had made Becky feel really bad. Knowing that Chloe would find out had made her feel even worse. She felt like she had betrayed the very people who had put everything on the line to rescue her and then find her a nice home with people that loved her. Becky's greatest fear was to be rejected and sent away – maybe put into an orphanage. She constantly worried that if she caused enough trouble, Chloe and Joshua may not want her anymore.

When she had returned home after school on Monday, Chloe had been very angry but she had calmly explained to Becky what she had done wrong and why it was unacceptable. Chloe was also calling her 'Rebecca', instead of 'Peanut' – that had hurt. For the past two days, she had been sent to bed the moment that she had finished her tea and completed her homework and Fusion activities – no TV, no playing with Hercules (Hercules was sulking).

Chloe had still appeared to give Becky a hug before turning the light off, though, despite the punishment.

That morning

Becky groaned and the little girl rubbed her eyes as the light came on and her curtains were pulled open.

"Morning, Peanut!"

Becky smiled as she heard Chloe's words and she sat up in the bed – her punishment was over!

"Hi, Chloe."

"Up you get, honey!"

Chloe began to throw clean clothes onto the bed as Becky scrambled out from under the duvet and she ran for the bathroom.

"Hi, Josh!" Becky called out as he flattened himself against the wall so he didn't get mown down by the speeding eight-year-old as she vanished into the bathroom. "Such a relief!"

Joshua laughed as he continued on towards the kitchen for his morning mug of tea.

Later that morning

Safehouse F

Mindy was brooding.

Their enemies were planning something, only Mindy had no idea what. Her snouts and informers had not produced much in the way of useful information and she was loathe to risk her one ace in the hole – her double agent. However, a meeting was due that evening with the young girl who was embedded in FEAR's organisation.

Mindy's thoughts caused her to miss the warning but she felt the kick as she suddenly became weightless for a second before gravity intervened and she crashed onto the mat.

"You are a pitiful sparring partner, today, honey," Dave pointed out with a chuckle.

"Fuck you, green asshole!" Mindy growled as she leapt to her feet and went on the offensive.

Dave grinned.

"You are weak, little girl!" he mocked as he kicked and spun around, landing some heavy punches on his annoyed wife before she was kicked to the mat.

"Fucking, cunt!" Mindy growled as she regained her feet and she scowled at her husband.

"Oh, take your tampon out, Mindy!"

It was like a red rag to a bull - literally!

..._...

Mindy hated it when anybody turned her own words against her and those words were from a distant time and they had been aimed squarely at a, then useless, Kick-Ass. She loved her husband very much but there were times when she had to remind him who was the world's number one vigilante and who was number two. It did not help that Dave was grinning, fully aware of what he was saying and what his words were doing to his wife's sanity.

Mindy focussed on Dave and she let him have it. The show was epic and attracted many watchers who rarely saw Dave and Mindy sparring together.

"This is rare – normally they only spar in the sack," Joshua commented.

"That's disgusting," Stephanie commented dryly.

"Get with it, little girl, join the sexual revolution!" Chloe chuckled as she watched her mentors spar.

Stephanie ignored Chloe and Joshua and she focussed on her parents who were going full tilt – Dave was good, surprisingly good. Everybody knew that he could hold his own in a fight but everybody also knew that Hit Girl was the best. Whereas Dave had strength, Mindy had speed and manoeuvrability on her side. She used it too as she darted in for a strike and then backed off to avoid Dave's large fists. Dave grinned as he made a surprisingly swift dive to the right and Mindy's punch missed his stomach by two inches. Mindy growled angrily as she adjusted and kicked Dave in the thigh eliciting a small grunt of pain.

Mindy was not worried about hurting her husband – he could take just about anything which she could dish out with her hands and feet.

..._...

Dave took advantage of his wife's manoeuvrability, catching her as she flipped past him – or tried to. With a hand on either hip, he twisted the struggling purple queen around and threw her to the mat where the catlike vigilante landed comfortably and sprang back at her aggressor. Dave was ready, but so was Mindy as she feinted to her right before diving to her left while Dave dodged right, straight into the angry young woman's fists. In turn, Dave reached out and he grabbed Mindy by her sports bra, throwing her behind him onto the mat – giving the world a fleeting glance of two very nice-looking breasts.

"Fuck you, Dave, fuck you!"

Mindy reattacked as soon as she had readjusted her clothing. Her face was contorted in anger and more than a little pink. Dave was smirking which only guaranteed his suffering as he was punched and kicked in very quick succession like he as a punchbag dangling from the ceiling. Dave took the abuse for almost a full minute before his reduced nerve function was exceeded and he began to feel some real pain. He waited for his wife to calm down, just slightly – he wanted her het up and angry.

With his strength, he seized Mindy's lower arms and gripped them tightly, forcing her to spot moving. She was angry – more than just play angry, too. He loved her when she was angry; her eyes positively sparkled. The sweat running down her subtle curves attracted Dave's attention and he struggled to contain the love which he felt for the eighteen-year-old young woman which he held in his iron grip.

"Dave. . ."

Mindy was unable to finish whatever crude insult was on her lips as Dave pushed his own lips to hers and pulled her body into his. He wrapped both arms around her, lifting Mindy off the mat. As the kiss continued, Mindy's body fell limp and she absorbed her husband's kiss, returning the pressure. Dave sank to the mat, laying Mindy down and they both wrapped their arms around one another and continued to kiss.

"Oh, wow!" Anne-Marie commented as she watched the sparring match degenerate into a sexually-charged kissing fest.

"I feel sick!" Stephanie exclaimed as she placed a hand over Anne-Marie's young eyes.

"More than you should be seeing, little one," Joshua said as he covered up Becky's slightly younger eyes.

"Hey!" the eight-year-old growled as she tried to pull his hands away, eager not to miss a thing.

"Somehow, I feel very inadequate," Joshua commented as he could not help but stare at his mentors as they rolled around the mat, kissing like there was no tomorrow.

It was another few minutes before they both broke apart and lay on the mat breathing heavily.

"You two enjoy yourselves?" Hailee asked with a grin as Mindy finally opened her eyes.

"Hell, yeah; I'm soaked!"

"Not from sweat, neither," Dave chuckled as he stood up.

"Dave!" Mindy exclaimed, her face getting redder.

"You two gonna do that again?" Curtis asked.

"It was hot!" Megan admitted.

"One show only," Dave replied while Mindy struggled to produce words.

That evening

Central Chicago

"We doing this again?" Kelly Wright moaned as Nightmare held out jogging pants and a sweatshirt.

"You know the drill, Fortune," Shadow growled from the shadows.

Kelly pulled off her clothing as quickly as she could, then she held out her arms and the seventeen-year-old girl turned a full three-sixty.

"You guys get off staring at my snatch, or what?"

"Just get dressed!" Nightmare suggested after performing a quick cavity search and an electronic scan of Kelly's body.

Once Kelly was dressed, Nightmare pointed to the backseat of the SUV and she handed the girl a black bag.

Kelly groaned but she climbed into the SUV and pulled the black bag over her head.

A few miles away

It had been an exhausting 1,100-mile ride and her backside was sore as she checked into a small hotel a short distance from McKinley Park.

They were trained to operate alone, but that did not stop her missing her partner. Where was he? Was he still alive? He had to be still alive – she was certain that she would have felt it if he had died. She felt a yearning for him, despite it only having been a couple of weeks. She had expected something on their birthday, but she had heard nothing, nor had she dared contact him, just in case she compromised his safety.

She was currently the hunted one, not Leo. Her mind was in turmoil – she had fucked up, allowed everything to go wrong. Her first two operations and gone down like clockwork, but the third had gone haywire. It had been really simple – her comms had gone down after one final comment from her handler.

"Urban Predator is gone – you're on your own, kid."

With that comment, she had aborted her mission. Only for the target to catch sight of her as she had made her escape. Leo had escaped clean, at least she hoped he had. They both had an escape plan, unknown to the other – for security reasons – but they also had an ultimate escape plan for when they both had the chance to escape Urban Predator.

The sixteen-year-old eased herself into a hot bath and she allowed her muscles to relax – she was exhausted.

Safehouse Alpha

"Hello, Fortune."

"Hello, Hit Girl."

"I'm sorry about the hoops that you've been made to jump through but it is essential as I am sure you can understand."

"I can. Having seen what, she is capable of and having seen first-hand how she operates – she makes my skin crawl; I am struggling."

"You can do this, Kelly. I am sure you're intelligent enough to have figured out what might happen to you, should you be found out."

"I watched her slit the throat of one of her own, just two nights ago – I threw up, minutes later."

"I assume that she will want you to kill at some stage, Fortune. You will have to do it, too, if you are to maintain your cover."

"She's planning an operation – well, her part of a larger one. I don't know the details but it is for Saturday night and she's putting ninety-two men forward for it. The Russian's are putting forward seventy-two while the Sicilian's have forty-eight. As for that pink bitch – God, I hate her – she's off doing something else; I don't know what."

"Stardust."

"What?"

"Stardust. You use that in any communication, or you say that to any member of Fusion, and we will pull you out. Nobody knows who you are, but Shadow, Nightmare, myself, and select others. Other members of Fusion will be made aware of that codeword and will have orders not to harm you but to get you to safety. There will be no going back after we extract you – do you understand?"

"Yes, Hit Girl, I do. Thank you."

"This will all be over, very soon, Fortune."

Very early, the following morning
Thursday, September 22nd

West Columbia

Marty growled as a sound brought him out of his deep and pleasant sleep.

He opened his eyes to find himself staring at a nipple, just inches away from his eyes. His wife who was attached to the very same nipple was sleeping soundly. Without waking Kim, Marty sat up and he looked over towards his laptop – it was the source of the sound. He groaned as he stood up and walked over to the laptop and sat down before it. Once he was logged on, he checked the logs and then he felt a cold chill shoot up his backbone.

Thirty seconds later, his secure cell was putting a call through to another secure cell phone.

"This had fucking better be good, cunt!" Mindy Lizewski growled.

"Sorry, your purpleness!" Marty said briefly before he went on with his explanation for waking up his leader at 04:47. "Vengeance have just declared a Code Alpha – you know what that means?"

"Yes, I do," a suddenly wide-awake Mindy replied, stiffly.

"Two minutes ago, Eric dumped his servers. Vengeance has gone dark. It can only be HMG."

"Activate Victor Yankee and Thetis . . . let me make a call and see if we can't get some friends out there to help."

"I'll do what I can from here without compromising them. I've blocked all their active comms devices in case anything falls into the wrong hands. If they make it to Thetis, they can collect virgin comms."

"Fucking, hell!" Mindy growled. "Keep me updated – thanks, Marty."

"I'm headed down to Foxtrot. I'm bringing Kim, Matty, and Hope – I'm worried that things are going to blow up here, too."

"We need hope," Mindy said as she dropped the call.

"What is it, Marty?" Kim demanded from the bed.

"Vengeance has gone dark."

"Chicago?"

"Going to hell and back."

Kim leapt out of the bed and she began to dress.

It had been spreading throughout the city like a cancer for weeks.

The cancer was initially small and for a while, it had gone unnoticed but then it had begun to rear its barbs and dig into anybody who would listen. Every store that was robbed. Every citizen who was mugged. Every person who had their car jacked from under them. Every person who was scared out of their home and out of their neighbourhood. Every person who was extorted for protection. They were all told the same. They were being persecuted because of Hit Girl. They were being persecuted because of Kick-Ass. They were being persecuted because of Fusion.

At first, the words were shrugged off by a city who felt safe under the protective umbrella which their vigilantes provided but as more people suffered and the suffering became harsher, human nature began to look for somebody to blame beyond those hurting them. Human nature turned the citizens of Chicago against those who had protected them for almost three years. Instead of shouts of welcome and yells of praise, Fusion began to receive angry comments and more than once, an armoured vigilante was pelted with rotten vegetables and eggs. However, Fusion took it all on the chin as the heroic vigilantes that they were, shrugging it off and continuing to protect the city.

Those barbs dug deep within those heroic vigilantes and the words hurt, even if the rotten eggs did not. The younger vigilantes were unhappy at the sudden twist in how Fusion was respected out on the streets of Chicago. For weeks, they had struggled to contain the anger within them, knowing that to react would go against what they represented. Against what Fusion represented.

Then the Mayor had tried to come up with an answer. The people wanted blood. The people wanted peace. The people wanted to live and work without fear. The Tripartite Threat, as it was referred to, was paralysing the city. The Mayor was honest, unlike his corrupt predecessor. The Mayor had reluctantly summoned Superintendent Jack Bay to his office. The response from the Superintendent had been colourful, to say the least, but he could see where the Mayor was coming from. He cautioned the Mayor that his order would not go down well with the rank and file of the Chicago Police Department. The Mayor backed down and a relieved Jack Bay went back to policing an increasingly dangerous city.

Before long, it was to be the Chicago Police Department who found themselves the hunted as they found themselves facing the Russian Solntsevskaya Brotherhood, the Sicilian Mafia, and the self-styled super-villain known as FEAR along with her cohort: Sunset Phoenix. On top of the unlikely display of united organised crime, the CPD found themselves needing protection from those they were sworn to protect. The Chicago Police Department was about to face a massive backlash after a devastating night.

It was a kidnap gone wrong that had ultimately ended with horrendous results and equally horrendous consequences for the city.

Later that morning

Lincolnwood

"I did it, Libby!"

"What, dweeb?" Elizabeth Dade asked her annoying brother.

"I hacked into her network and I managed to grab some files before I was kicked out," the excited boy explained.

"Whose network?"

"FEAR's!"

Elizabeth's face went pale.

"Are you stupid?"

"What?"

"Did you hack her from here?"

"Yeah . . . oh, shit!" the thirteen-year-old boy exclaimed as the penny dropped.

"You, dumb fuck," his newly fourteen-year-old sister groaned. "We gotta get the hell outta here . . . now!"

"I'm sorry, Libby – I'm so sorry. . ."

"Tell it to Mom and Dad, wanker!"

..._...

Mark and Sarah Dade were getting themselves ready for work and they were about to call their teenaged children downstairs when there was pounding on the stairs and their daughter appeared in a panic.

"We gotta go, Mom, Dad."

"Calm down, Libby – what's going on?" Sarah Dade asked.

"As usual, butt-breath has been thinking with his dick, again. . ."

"Libby . . . Language!" Mark Dade growled at his daughter.

"Sorry – he used his genius brain to hack into FEAR's network – but he previously used his dick to think and he did it from here."

"Libby!" Mark growled but his daughter stood her ground.

"What have we told you, Jesse?" Sarah demanded as her son appeared.

"I messed up, Mom."

"Yes, you did – get your kit, some clothes . . . but move!" Sarah ordered and both kids bolted for the stairs. "Libby? Did you call for help?"

"Err – doing it now, Mom!" Libby said as she pressed the pulsing orange button on her Fusion cell phone.

..._...

As soon as the voice answered, Libby exploded into life. However, all Battle Guy heard were a few key words:

". . . brother . . . hacked . . . network . . . FEAR . . . at home . . . scared . . ."

"Calm down, Flare – listen! Did your brother get any data?"

"Yes – on his laptop."

"Take the laptop with you – it'll be taken and placed into a Faraday bag once we get to you. Until then, get out of the house. Drive southeast down North Lincoln Avenue until you reach West Petersen Avenue. Get out, abandon your car and head into Legion Park. Keep your Fusion phones on you – destroy the rest. I can track you and a friend will meet you in Legion Park – remember your training and stay safe. Codeword is 'banner'."

"Thank you."

Eight minutes later, the Dade family drove away from their home at speed. It did not take them long to travel the mile or so to the junction with West Petersen Avenue where they abandoned their vehicle at the entrance to Legion Park. Each carried a small pack and the family ran into the park, their eyes scanning around for trouble. All four were very scared, knowing that they were up against a ruthless organisation who would think nothing of killing them. The park was long and thin with a river down the middle. The path meandered in and out of the trees with grass either side. The fast walk was actually quite pleasant in the early morning sunshine. But then Libby screamed as she saw movement up ahead and three Corsairs came running out of the trees and levelled automatic weapons at them.

The family froze, not moving.

..._...

Jesse's head came around as he heard the roar of an over-revving engine coming from West Ardmere Avenue which terminated at the park.

A Chevrolet SUV burst out of the trees and took all three Corsairs in the back, two being scooped up and thrust into the windshield, shattering it, before one of the, just as shattered bodies, was thrown off to one side to join his colleague who had been catapulted into a tree where his head had made a funny squelching sound on impact.

"Get in!" Sergeant Paul Murphy yelled. "Banner!"

Everybody clambered aboard with Libby riding up front with Murphy, who threw a large bag with embedded copper wiring at her brother.

"For the laptop!" he growled and Jesse shoved his laptop inside the Faraday bag, sealing it.

Gunfire erupted from deeper into the park as Murphy reversed at speed back out onto the road, shedding the third Corsair on the way as he spun the vehicle around and floored the accelerator, his blue light flashing and siren screaming.

..._...

An hour and two vehicles later, the Dade family had no idea where they were – not least because they found themselves in the back of a high-powered SUV with hoods over their heads.

Another twenty minutes and the vehicle slid to a stop and the engine shutoff and they were finally still for the first time in almost two hours since they had started running for their lives.

"You can remove your hoods now," a voice told them and they all did so. "Step out of the vehicle."

The Dade family found themselves in a garage beside an armoured SUV. Before them stood a young girl of maybe sixteen-years-old and she smiled before waving them all through a door and into what appeared to be a normal home.

"My name is Discord and you are safe here," the girl explained as she rested a hand on the holstered automatic pistol at her right hip. "You will not leave this building. You will not open a door or window. You will not do anything to attract attention to this building. You will follow any command I give you. Any deviation from these rules and I cannot keep you alive. Yes, that is my job, to keep you four people, alive. I am a member of Fusion, and I run this Safehouse. I know that this will be difficult for you but please look at this place as your home. I live here too, but I will allow you all some privacy as a family. Mr and Mrs Dade – bedroom, top of the back stairs on the right. Jesse Dade, next on the right. Libby Dade, last on the right. Do not go into any other rooms and stay out of the basement, otherwise the first floor is open to all."

"You're British!" Jesse pointed out.

"Sorry," Sarah grinned.

"No – it's fine."

"Go get yourselves settled in, sleep, do what you want, but I would advise you to spend some time together," Sarah advised.

Chapter 335*: Chicago into Darkness

Thursday, September 22nd

Synthesis Data Core

Marty looked up as Hit Girl entered the space.

"His laptop is clean – he can have it back. . ."

"But. . ." Hit Girl prompted.

"He downloaded about a hundred files before he lost the connection. We have a map of Chicago with positions marked upon it and a shitload of other crap which I'm trying to decode. I think FEAR is paranoid when it comes to her own security."

"Was the map encrypted?" Mindy asked.

"Yes – it was the first file to be decrypted – we're getting a file every hour or two."

"Let's see it."

Marty pulled a large A0 piece of paper from his wide-format printer and he threw it over the central desk. Mindy recognised it, immediately. It was indeed her city and, yes, there were a dozen locations marked. The markings were very spread out, however, her experienced mind told her that the locations were important.

"Find out everything that you can about those locations. Hopefully, we'll get some documentation from them out of the decryption process."

"I'm on it, my queen."

Mindy laughed.

"See you later, super-geek!"

Marty grinned at the compliment as he turned back to the computers. Mindy looked over at Kim who was sitting on the floor with little Matty – the boy was eleven-months-old and he was very close to his first birthday.

"We'll come with you, Mindy – leave the geek to his other women!" Kim suggested.

Marty gave his wife a long kiss before hugging his young son.

"Behave, honey – look after your mother, Matty."

Summit Drive

Kelly was worried.

So worried that she had taken the day off school and just stayed at home. She told her sister that she was having period pains – well, she was on her period – so it was a good enough excuse. Annoyingly, her sister had reappeared from her day job as a high-flying executive for some seedy-sounding import-export conglomerate. Kelly was finding it increasingly difficult to show a happy face to her big sister. Katrina, in turn, was putting off her moods to the recent changes in her life and the harshness of her new training routine.

"Kelly?"

"Sis?"

"It is time for you to assume your position in the organisation. I want to introduce you to your new team. You will command a small strikeforce which will rain hell down on this city. I also have your new body armour ready which will mark you out as my successor and as my sister."

Kelly was overjoyed at the news.

"Looking forward to it, sis," Kelly replied as she forced an excited smile to her face.

That afternoon

Synthesis Data Core

The other members of Synthesis were very worried about their leader and her brother.

Neither had been seen nor heard from since the day before. Each had received a cryptic message on their Fusion cell phones telling them not to worry, but that had just worried them even more. Directly after school, they each headed down to the Data Core. They were surprised to find Battle Guy working away at one of the consoles.

"Good afternoon," he offered. "I am sure you are very keen to learn what is happening with your colleagues but that will have to wait a few minutes. We have work to do. We have some files to decrypt and I need some assistance."

The three teenagers jumped onto their terminals and logged on, eagerly.

...—...

Fifteen minutes later, the hatch opened and two people stepped through into the space. The two boys, Laurence and Peter, plus the lone girl, Kate, looked around to see two girls standing beside the hatch as it closed behind them. Both girls wore Fusion uniforms, just like that worn by Battle Guy except that, unlike Battle Guy, neither girl wore a mask.

"Who are you?" Kate asked.

"I know you – you're Chloe Bennett," Peter exclaimed as he laid eyes on one of the hottest girls in his school.

"Abigail Hunt?" Kate ventured as she recognised the school's biggest geek.

"Please don't call me that – it's Abby or Hal."

Only then did the eyes of the kids fix onto the names displayed on the left chest of each uniform.

"Cool!" Laurence exclaimed.

That same time

Safehouse Q

The Dade family were feeling very low.

It had been a depressing day which they had spent keeping themselves to themselves. Their minder had vanished that morning – for school apparently. She had been replaced by the 'day shift' – a lady in her forties who smiled and kept herself to herself giving the Dade's their space as had been promised.

Jesse felt very low as he knew that he was to blame for almost getting him and his family killed. His big sister kept making snarky remarks which made him feel much worse but he endured them as he sulked. Libby, however, was annoyed that she was missing school – she was also very annoyed that she was not allowed to go down to the Data Core. It was Libby, who had been wandering from one end of the house to the other, who noticed that they had a visitor.

"Mrs Lizewski?"

"Hello, Libby, how are you doing?"

"Fine . . . I . . . what are you doing here?"

"I like to check out my Safehouses from time to time," Mindy explained as she walked into the living room. "I also like to check up on the people whom I am protecting."

"I don't understand," Libby said as she watched the woman she knew as Mrs Lizewski from D-JAK sit down in a chair and she faced her parents and brother.

"Hello, Jesse, I understand that you are the stupid little brat who put his own family at risk."

"Excuse me!" Sarah Dade exclaimed.

"Your son put everybody at risk, including my own people," Mindy replied with a little anger in her tone. "However, he is young and mistakes are made – some of us are only human."

"Motherfucker!" Libby exclaimed as it hit her like an eighteen-wheeler.

"Elizabeth Rachel Dade!" Mark Dade exclaimed but Libby ignored her father.

"You're her!"

Mindy chuckled.

"I am who I am."

"Honey – who?" Sarah Dade enquired.

"Mom, you can be so dense!" Libby exclaimed in a very exasperated fashion. "She's Hit Girl, Mom!"

"Motherfucker!" Sarah Dade exclaimed.

"No – I chopped his head off," Hit Girl chuckled.

That evening

South Whipple

"Abigail! Brad!"

Rachel Murphy yelled for the umpteenth time. It had only been two days but Rachel was very pleased with the new family member. It was nice to have a girl in the house, balancing out the genders. While Rachel was fully aware of who and what Abigail was, plus her medical history, she saw the ten-year-old as a lovely little girl who was very polite and who was happy to help around the house. Brad and Abigail had immediately bonded – the two were always together, talking and playing on the PlayStation together.

The two nights that Abigail had been with them and been a little fraught. Rachel had awoken to hear screaming on the first night and she had found Abigail in streams of tears, sitting up in her bed. It had taken most of an hour to calm the girl down enough that she could fall back to sleep. They had not spoken about the nightmares which had occurred the second night, too. Abigail had simply said, 'thank you' each morning.

"Abigail! Brad!"

From up the stairs, she could hear laughing and giggling – it sounded like Brad was play-fighting with Abigail who it turned out was very ticklish. Brad had been warned by his father and by Mindy that Abigail was a trained fighter and a killer. He had been warned to be very careful when he wound her up. Abigail, in turn, had been warned by Mindy to control her temper. Brad, at thirteen, was physically bigger than Abigail and he used that extra weight and muscle to his advantage against the slimmer, lighter, Abigail.

"If I have to call again, heads will roll!" Rachel called again.

The giggling stopped as did Brad's laughter. A thundering of feet moved towards the stairs and then thundered downwards.

"Yeah, Mom!" Brad exclaimed as he skidded to a halt in the kitchen doorway with Abigail slamming into the back of him as she came to a rapid stop.

Both kids were red-faced from all their exertions and panting heavily.

"Brad – lay the table. Abigail – help Brad."

"Yes, Mom!"

"Yes, ma'am!"

Rachel grinned as the two youngsters fought over who was getting the knives and forks out but she left them to it and went back into the kitchen.

..._...

Rachel had just finished cooking when her ears perked up.

She could not hear the two kids – that meant they were up to something. She did, however, hear a thud as something hit the doorframe between the kitchen and the dining room. Carefully, she peered round said doorframe and then looked down at the floor. A dinner knife was lying on the carpet and there was a small dent in the painted wooden doorframe. On the other side of the dining room, Brad stood with his right arm raised and another matching knife in his hand, held by the blade. Beside the boy, his female mentor was instructing him on throwing said knife.

"Bradley!"

Brad dropped the knife to the floor and Abigail jumped away looking very guilty.

"Who's idea was it?"

"Mine, Mom – I asked if Abigail could show me how to throw a knife."

"Sorry, Mrs Murphy," Abigail offered as she stared down at the dining room carpet.

"Abigail – while I know that you are highly skilled, would you please keep your skills to yourself. Ignore the idiot boy, beside you, when he asks to learn anything dangerous from you, please."

"Yes, ma'am."

"Both of you: go sit."

The two kids smirked at one another as they sat down on opposite sides of the table.

Wagner Road

Lauren was happier than she had been in many months.

Almost ten months previously, she had suffered something no thirteen-year-old should ever have to endure. Now, on the day of her fourteenth birthday, she could finally put it all behind her. Her life could not have been better. She had found herself a new life as Nightmare which was an outlet for her anger and frustration that she had felt at having her innocence ripped away from her. She had also gained a new home and her family was whole – fuck her father! The best bit of it all was her boyfriend.

Brad Murphy was the gentlest boy she knew. Brad always knew what to say, when to say it, and when to keep his trap shut. He knew all about what she had endured and he was always there when things got too much. That very morning, Brad had surprised her with a kiss which had almost made her collapse. Brad had wanted to be with her that evening but the boy had a new responsibility. He had gained a little sister who was keeping him very busy. Lauren liked Abigail – she was wild (just like her name) but she got on really well with Brad and the two were always laughing and, it seemed, always getting into trouble. Abigail had quickly picked up on the relationship and very astutely, she kept out of the way when Lauren and Brad were together.

"Happy Birthday, honey!" Emily Edwards smiled as she placed the enormous chocolate cake down on the kitchen table.

Lauren quickly counted the fourteen candles and she grinned.

"Blow them out, already," Lizzie Edwards suggested. "We'll have the Fire Department here before too long!"

Lauren closed her eyes and she blew out all the candles in one go.

"Did you wish?" her mother asked and Lauren nodded in response.

Emily was very happy for her daughter who had endured a miserable year. To see her smiling so happily meant an awful lot. Mindy had surprised her daughter, earlier that evening with a personal visit to deliver a birthday gift. Lauren had almost burst into tears at the sight of the two-foot long Jungle Sword with its sixteen-inch blade with a blood groove along the top of the right side. Emily smiled at Mindy's discomfort as Lauren had hugged her tightly.

All in all, it was a very happy birthday for her eldest daughter.

The following morning
Friday, September 23rd

District 21

The reputation of the Chicago PD was at an all-time low.

The massacre had destroyed within hours what the men and women of the police had striven hard over several years to rebuild. The police had been respected by the majority of the city – even the less law-abiding members of the community. That had all been undone in just a single night.

Fourteen people were dead at the hands of the Chicago Police Department. No, it had not been a frenzied attack by crazed police officers, it was a simple case of mistaken identity. The CPD had fallen into a carefully laid trap and they had reacted just as their training had dictated. The hostage rescue had been executed 'by the book' with tragic consequences. The twelve-strong SWAT team had assaulted the building with the best intentions but the criminals had been smart and it had been a foregone conclusion even before SWAT had rolled up that evening.

It was a classic switch: the hostages had been made up to look like the masked hostage takers and it wasn't until the attack was fully underway and unstoppable that the error was discovered but not before innocent hostages had been killed. The press had had a field day. Naturally, heads had to roll and the head of the SWAT team involved had been summarily suspended pending an Internal Affairs review. Sergeant Craig Matthews had no choice but to comply as he went home to brood over the unavoidable mistakes made under his command.

He had supporters, many of whom had rallied to his side – one supporter, in particular, was incensed by his treatment and she opted to visit her comrade in arms that night.

That night

The home of Craig Matthews

Sergeant Matthews heard the knocking on his back door.

He drew his service weapon, which he had been allowed to retain under the circumstances, and he moved towards the door. He peered outside through the kitchen window and he chuckled to himself as he holstered his pistol then unlocked the door.

"Wondered if you might make an appearance – please come in, young lady."

"Not the usual way that I'm greeted."

"Sorry if I don't scream and run away!" Matthews chuckled.

"Funny!"

A boy ran into the room, intrigued by the electronically synthesised voice of the visitor.

"Hit Girl!"

"Who is this?" Hit Girl asked as she looked down at the boy.

"I'm Max – I'm eight."

"Good to meet you, Max."

"Wow! I just shook hands with the amazing Hit Girl! Where's Kick-Ass?"

"He's busy, Max."

"I like, Kick-Ass – he's so awesome and indestructible."

"He is that," Hit Girl growled.

"I am what I am!" Kick-Ass chuckled over the comms.

"Yeah – I'll tell Kick-Ass that you were asking after him."

"Craig?"

A young woman in her thirties appeared in the room.

"Honey, this is Hit Girl. Hit Girl, this is my wife, Theresa."

"Hello, Hit Girl. Craig has told us a lot about you."

"Hello."

"Are you here to help my husband?"

"Yes, ma'am, I am. Your husband is a good man and I won't let him suffer because of some underhand act."

"Do you know who was behind it?" the woman asked.

"Yes, ma'am, I believe that I do and I will not rest until she pays for the lives that she has ruined."

"She?" Matthews asked.

"Sunset Phoenix. We are very sure that she was behind that abortive kidnapping – her intention was most likely to catch you, or even Fusion, in the act of killing innocents."

"Bitch!" Matthews breathed.

"We have your back, Sergeant – have no fear of that!"

..._...

Hit Girl was very angry as she left the house and she made her way to where Kick-Ass awaited with her Ducati.

"Things are going to hell and people that I care about are getting hurt – that bitch is going down!"

"Don't let me stop you," Kick-Ass chuckled as his partner swung a long and inviting leg over her motorcycle.

"I have a need. . ."

"A need for speed?"

". . . A need to kill . . ."

"Thought so – Battle Guy has some cunts lined up for us a few blocks over," Kick-Ass mentioned as he started the engine of his Ducati.

Hit Girl laughed out loud.

"You know me too well!"

"That I do, my sweet."

..._...

It did not take them long to find their way a little more than a few blocks, over to West Englewood. Hit Girl knew full well that she was in deep. The neighbourhood had not quite recovered from the Diplomatic Bag incident which had decimated the ruling gangs. However, while they still fought amongst themselves, they were united when it came to Fusion. The bullets which followed the smirking Hit Girl down South Ashland Avenue were anything but friendly. Kick-Ass followed his partner towards the location identified by Battle Guy and marked on the moving map which was visible in their visors.

At the junction of West Marquette Drive, they found their target. Two CPD cars were pinned down in a crossfire. Kick-Ass brought around his Heckler & Koch G36C and he began dropping anybody with a gun. After three bodies hit the ground, the rest dived for cover allowing Hit Girl to jump off her Ducati and move toward the four CPD officers who were using their vehicles as cover. With Kick-Ass using his own motorcycle as cover and looking out for any trouble, Hit Girl made it to the four officers.

"You guys a little stuck?"

"Thanks for coming, Hit Girl," one replied.

"I was looking for a bit of action," Hit Girl mentioned as casually as if she were discussing the weather.

"Well, you found it – now how do we get our collecting asses out of this?" a female officer asked.

"I have a cunning plan. . ." Hit Girl advised them.

"Why do I get the idea that this is going to hurt," another officer groaned.

"Suck it up, Rogers!" the female officer chuckled.

"Lead the way, Officer Ramsey," Rogers directed as he checked his pistol. "Six rounds left."

"Only seven," Ramsey commented.

The other two officers had six rounds each remaining in their weapons.

"Trust me!" Hit Girl growled in her electronically enhanced voice.

..._...

The Cortez Street Gang had a new leader who was keen to prove that he had the balls to run the outfit.

He was complemented by his opposite number, just across South Ashland Avenue. While Hector Raymond had not survived the last run in with Fusion, paving the way for Ramon Javier to take over, the leader of the Stones, was still the same Phillipe Estevar. At Javier's command, heavier automatic weapons were issued and three Ford pickup trucks were soon speeding for the area of conflict with seven men aboard each truck. Experience had taught Javier that he would need to use overwhelming force if he were to take down not just the City's finest but also Fusion's finest. A brief call to Estevar had warned the opposing gang-boss of the imminent threat to his domain and he, too, was mobilising significant forces in support, should Hit Girl or Kick-Ass set foot on his side of the street.

While the neighbourhood gangs were gearing up, Hit Girl and Kick-Ass decided to move the cops out of harm's way. With a few well-placed bursts of gunfire from Kick-Ass' G-36C, the four cops all piled into the one running police cruiser and they accelerated off down the street with bullets pinging off the bodywork and passing above the cowering officers in the rear seat as they went clean through the smashed windows. Two young men fell to bullet wounds and they were dragged off by their remaining colleagues. Rather than follow the escaping police officers who were rapidly surrounded by their colleagues, several miles down the road, Kick-Ass and Hit Girl remained at the junction of West Marquette Drive and South Ashland Avenue.

All gunfire had ceased allowing them both to walk over to the neighbouring KFC restaurant where they obtained a large bucket of chicken to while away the time as they awaited the inevitable attack from the street gangs.

..._...

When the attack came, it was every bit as wild as Hit Girl had hoped it would be.

The first pickup truck skidded to a halt thirty yards short of the intersection and disgorged six men before moving into a covering position from where the driver cut off any escape to the west. The second and third pickup trucks did the same covering the north and the south exists from the intersection.

"You get the impression they want us to head east?" Kick-Ass mused.

"They do kind of hint in that general direction," Hit Girl responded.

"Might I assume that down east is more trouble?"

"You could be right – to be honest, I hope it's a better quality of trouble as these dicks look a little lame!"

"Is that the best that you bitches can come up with!" Kick-Ass yelled out to the assembled masses – well, the twenty-odd well-armed gang members, at least.

"We outnumber you, Kick-Ass!" came the response.

"Not from where I'm standing," Kick-Ass countered half-heartedly.

"Can't you fucking count, you vigilante retard?"

"I can."

"There's twenty-one of us . . . and only fucking two of you, you stupid dumb fucks!"

One of the Cortez members fired off three shots from his AR-15 rifle – two of the rounds hit Kick-Ass' frontal chest armour. He staggered back a few steps but remained on his feet. Then, out of nowhere, there was a slashing, tearing sound as something cut through the air at near the speed of sound and the man who had fired was decapitated by the .50-calibre round hit dead centre, exploding the head.

"We are not alone, cunts!" Hit Girl growled

"Neither are we, Hit Girl!" came the unperturbed response as the remaining gang members surged forward, firing their weapons.

..._...

Hit Girl drew both of her Katana Swords and she ran at the advancing men coming from the north while Kick-Ass drew his Ko-Wakizashi swords and he advanced on those coming at them from the west. Bullets struck the advancing vigilantes hindering their advances but they did not prevent Hit Girl getting close enough to draw blood with her swords. Two men fell, closely followed by a third as blood gushed across the street and into the nearest drain. She whirled, taking out another man, then dodging a bullet as she rolled across the street, ramming a blade up through the groin of an unfortunate gangbanger. The man screamed as the blade was yanked back out of his abdomen, dumping his entrails across the street, before he collapsed into a blood-soaked heap.

A short distance away, Kick-Ass bulldozed his way through his own gang-bangers leaving carnage in his wake. Bullets would not penetrate his armour and they were no more annoying to him than if they were simply rounds from a BB-gun. His Ko-Wakizashi blades were no less sharp than those of his partner and they released more blood and entrails which were swept towards the drains by the rain which was beginning to fall, turning the dark streets into a swirling hell of blood for the gangbangers.

Their numbers rapidly dwindled, despite those guarding the south exit from the intersection running to support their colleagues. Very soon, there were just seven men left standing, facing off against Chicago's most famous vigilantes.

..._...

Phillipe Estevar decided it was time to make an appearance and maybe even save the lives of some of Havier's men which would mean that the gang leader would owe him a favour.

However, there was a problem – two in fact. One problem was purple, the other yellow and green. They both lived up to their respective reputations as being fearless and indestructible and that had encouraged fear to grow in every man present that night at the road intersection. The gang leader had decided to lead the attack himself to ensure that everything went right. He drove his new GMC Sierra truck at the head of the four-vehicle convoy. In total, he had twenty armed men at his disposal and he was determined to prevail over the vigilante threat. Beside him, in the truck, he had his lieutenant, Diego López. Diego was armed with a large automatic weapon, the AA-12, which Phillipe knew that Kick-Ass favoured and had used with devastating effect.

As he drove along West Marquette Road, towards the ongoing battle, he began to receive reports from the front. Not good ones, either. The Cortez Street Gang had been routed and Hit Girl was headed directly for them up West Marquette Road while Kick-Ass had headed a block north before turning east. There was also an unconfirmed report of a sniper operating in the area.

..._...

Leon was very pleased with her sniper perch.

She had killed one man one sheer impulse. It had not been needed but she had wanted to instil fear into the men; a hidden sniper scared the living daylights out of the bravest men. As Kick-Ass and Hit Girl mopped up the first attack and then made their way west, she spun around to track the oncoming convoy which consisted of four vehicles and was led by a very smart truck - pity.

The truck had two people in the front and three in the back. As directed, Leon chose to leave the truck and its occupants for Hit Girl and Kick-Ass while she turned her attention onto the second vehicle. It was an older truck loaded with five men. It was also about to encounter a very violent blowout. . .

Ah, the fine art of sniping!

..._...

Phillipe Estevar glanced in his rear-view mirror as he heard a loud bang and he saw the next truck in the convoy, immediately behind his own truck, spin out of control and slam into two parked cars coming to a stop very quickly.

'A blow out – or something more sinister?' he thought.

While he was considering that thought, there was another bang and the next truck in the convoy careered off the road narrowly avoiding the previous truck but nonetheless, stopped with its hood buried in the side of another vehicle.

The sniper!

Phillipe Estevar picked up a radio.

"Sniper is close by – highpoint along West Marquette Road."

"Copy, out!"

..._...

As would be expected of a vigilante with her reputation, Hit Girl stood her ground as the truck came towards her – she had seen, or rather heard, two large smashes as other vehicles had crashed further up the street.

"Nice truck!" Kick-Ass exclaimed as he aimed his G36C and blasted the front, hood, and windshield.

Kick-Ass was surprised to see the windshield remaining intact – ballistic glass; just what every assuming gang boss needed. The passenger door opened and Kick-Ass immediately recognised his own personal favourite, the AA-12 automatic shotgun. He grabbed Hit Girl, shielding her, as round after round was triggered off by the holder of the deadly weapon. The pellets from the cartridges pelted Kick-Ass' heavy back armour.

"Fuck this!" Hit Girl growled as she pushed Kick-Ass away and drew her .40-calibre, Glock 22 pistols before emptying both weapons at the shotgun wielding gangbanger. Her bullets shredded the man as he failed to take cover and he fell to the blacktop along with his weapon.

As Hit Girl swapped out her magazines, other men spilled out of the vehicle and began to fire in their direction. Bullets flew in every which direction as bodies fell and blood run into the gutter.

..._...

Leon monitored the scene from her vantage point.

The men from the crashed vehicles were sorting themselves out with the assistance of those from the fourth vehicle. Her job was to control the area around Hit Girl and Kick-Ass so as to prevent them from being overwhelmed. While she was watching through her scope, she felt the hairs on the back of her neck go up. Long ago, a man had taught her to respect her sixth-sense and to acknowledge that something was wrong.

Leon immediately rolled to her left, just as a large calibre bullet struck the rooftop where she had been lying just a second before. She rapidly rolled behind an air vent and after a quick check of the gouge left from the bullet, she engaged her night-vision scope and began to scan in the approximate direction of where the bullet had come from. Somewhere out there, there was a counter-sniper. Leon fervently hoped that it was the one who had shot Stephanie – that would be a very welcome kill indeed.

Leon searched, carefully.

..._...

By the time the men from the other trucks appeared on the scene, their leader was kneeling alone on the street, a pistol to his head.

The fifteen men skidded to a halt and brandished their own weapons, unsure of what to do as Kick-Ass was aiming the swiftly appropriated AA-12 automatic shotgun directly at them. He could take most of them down before they could squeeze their triggers. The men each had a family and they each wanted to live. They turned to their boss who was facing public humiliation at the hands of Hit Girl.

"I want you to live, Phillipe. Despite what you represent, you protect your neighbourhood and you look after your people. I would suggest that you leave the Chicago PD alone . . . or I might just choose to come back again for a personal visit."

"Kill me."

"I do that and then these men will open fire and Kick-Ass will be forced to kill them. We don't want that, now, do we?"

The man was incensed. His sniper should have been taking the bitch down but nothing was happening to prevent his public humiliation. He kept staring down at the ground but then after a full minute he looked up as he felt the pressure from the pistol ease. Hit Girl and Kick-Ass were walking down the street like they were out on a Sunday stroll.

"Bastards!"

..._...

By the time Hit Girl and Kick-Ass reached their motorcycles, Phillipe Estevar and his men had dissolved into the darkness.

"Good evening," Wildcat said in welcome as she waved to the two motorcycles. "Your mounts await."

"So, cheesy!" Trojan complained.

"Thanks guys," Hit Girl replied with a chuckle as all four of them mounted their machines. "Leon, stand down."

"Leon is busy, please call back later. . ."

..._...

There!

Movement atop a tower-block, some eight-hundred yards away. Leon adjusted her scope to get a better view and then she zoomed in. It was a sniper with a large-calibre rifle – possibly Russian. Leon grimaced as she saw the muzzle move slightly and she was able to see directly down the gaping chasm as it was aimed in her direction. It was a race for who shot first. Leon held her ground, not rushing the shot.

She took a deep breath and held it before gently squeezing the trigger . . . once . . . twice.

Chapter 336*: A New Home

Saturday, September 24th, 2016

Morton Grove

Chloe could hear laughing and giggling.

Both concerned her – in more ways than one, she feared. As she walked into the living room, she saw her mother sitting on the floor with Becky cross-legged beside her. They were both looking through a photo album.

". . . Chloe was about nine in that photo – she loved to wear not very much," Cathy explained.

"I've noticed – Chloe has a very nice body, but she's not as beautiful as you, Cathy."

Chloe tried to hide her giggles but she failed miserably as her mother and dependent looked up at her.

"You showing embarrassing photos, again, Mom?"

"You did tend to get yourself into strange situations," Cathy replied evenly.

"I suppose, I did."

"I liked the one of you lying at the bottom of the stairs, drunk!" Becky laughed.

"I did many stupid things as I was growing up."

"You haven't exactly stopped, honey," Chloe's mother pointed out with a grin.

"Growing up or doing stupid things?" Chloe queried, knowing the answer.

"Both, I would say."

Chloe left them to it and she headed off to get a drink.

..._...

It had barely been two weeks, but ever since she had introduced Becky to her mother, the two had been inseparable. Becky loved going to see Cathy who, in turn, was overjoyed whenever Becky was over. Chloe suspected that her mother missed having a little girl around. Becky was the proverbial breath of fresh air and Chloe could not wait for her to meet her father – he was due home in the next few weeks, an event that Chloe was overjoyed about.

One problem with her mother was that she was enjoying embarrassing her daughter – Becky loved to hear about Chloe when she was a little girl, a time which Chloe looked back on with embarrassment. To make things worse, Curtis would join in with his own memories of the younger Chloe, much to her chagrin. Curtis and Becky got on well like a house on fire and Becky was always laughing at his jokes which he kept clean, once he learned of Becky's hatred of blasphemy and dirty words.

Then, that same day, while Becky had been looking through more embarrassing photos, Mindy and Dave had appeared with Joshua. Chloe smelt a rat – she had seen Dave and Mindy spending a lot of time with her mother since their return from the UK. Chloe had called her mother out on it but she had been put down almost immediately and she had quickly given up. Joshua was a little confused as to why Dave and Mindy had followed him in – they were just dropping him off and rarely came in.

Joshua looked at his girlfriend and he read her expression – he began to smell a rat, too.

..._...

"Shall we put them out of their misery, Cathy?" Mindy asked with a sly grin.

"Nah – I'm enjoying seeing Chloe squirm," Cathy replied fiendishly.

"Mom!"

"It's fun to get my own back on my cousin – she used to like keeping secrets from me," Curtis admitted.

"Spill, brat!" Chloe growled at her cousin.

"Stick it, Chloe!" Curtis growled back with a big grin.

Chloe stamped her foot in frustration causing Mindy to laugh out loud.

"Please!" she begged as she dropped onto her knees and she gave her Mom the puppy-dog eyes treatment.

"This is so pathetic," Cathy laughed.

"Get in the car," Dave said as he picked Chloe up off the floor. "You're lowering the tone of the neighbourhood, Chloe."

Chloe, Joshua, and Becky – all three very confused – climbed into the back of Mindy's new Jaguar F-Pace while Curtis joined Cathy in her Jeep. Chloe's demands for information were ignored as they headed north Glenview but Chloe and Joshua were both confused as Mindy turned left onto Glenview Road instead of continuing north up Waukegan Road. A couple more miles and Mindy took a left and then a right onto Fielding Drive.

Finally, Mindy pulled up outside the second to last house on the left.

Fielding Drive

"What are we doing here?" Joshua asked as Dave and Mindy climbed out of the F-Pace.

Behind them, Cathy and Curtis were heading towards them from the Jeep.

"You moving, Mom?" Chloe asked.

Cathy did not answer as Mindy literally dragged Chloe up the paved path and two steps before inserting a key into the front door of the property. Becky pushed past Chloe and Mindy but she only made it two feet before she stopped dead and her jaw dropped open in surprise. Chloe stopped dead behind the young girl equally mesmerised by what she was seeing.

The floor was a light oak and from the foyer, you passed directly into the living room which was double height and a wooden staircase in the same light oak led upwards before turning back on its self to an open landing. Many windows allowed massive amounts of natural light into the room, making it feel large and airy, despite it only being big enough for a couch and two arm chairs. To the left of the foyer, Chloe could see into a dining room which held a wooden table for six people to sit comfortably. As with the living room, there were large windows to the front and side.

Chloe's curiosity was aroused and she walked through the dining room with Becky and Joshua in tow. They passed through into a kitchen.

"Bloody hell!" Joshua exclaimed as he looked around.

The kitchen had a light tiled floor with medium oak cabinets around two sides with a central island and a stunning bay window with a circular glass-topped table for four people. There was a large five-hob gas cooker, a microwave, and a giant fridge with ice-maker. Through a door was a laundry and utility room which led to a two-car garage at the rear of the property. Then they came full circle into a family room with a door which opened onto the back yard.

Chloe was speechless and her face showed confusion. It was beginning to dawn on Joshua who was just as speechless. Becky dragged Chloe up the stairs onto the open landing with Joshua following.

..._...

The penny finally dropped as Chloe stopped outside the master bedroom at the top of the stairs.

The double doors were closed and there was a small ceramic plaque on each door. The first read: 'Chloe' in sweeping letters. The other door had a plaque which read: 'Joshua'.

"Chloe!" Becky called out as she studied a similar plaque attached to the bedroom at the end of the landing.

The plaque read: 'Becky', and there was a peanut at the end of her name. Chloe could not take anymore and she just burst into tears as she collapsed to the carpeted landing. Joshua was stunned and he just held his girlfriend as she cried.

"Your Mom and me, we talked about you both having a place to call your own a while ago. We found this place, some months ago, and we were saving it for Christmas – but then Becky appeared and that apartment is just way too small for the three of you," Mindy explained. "This house is yours, Chloe and Joshua. You have both done so much for us all and you both deserve this."

Chloe just mumbled as she tried to speak. Instead, Joshua spoke for all of them as Becky appeared struck dumb, also.

"Thank you," the sixteen-year-old said, his voice wavering with emotion.

"You mean this is our house?" Becky asked tentatively.

"Yes, honey," Cathy said. "That's your bedroom."

Becky pushed open the door and she screamed with joy. The bedroom was light and airy with pink walls and a mauve carpet. The bed was just as pink. There was a large collection of stuffed toys against one wall – mostly ponies.

"You even have your own bathroom," Curtis said as he showed Becky into the bathroom which she would use (although it would be shared with the occupants of the next bedroom, should there ever be any).

The little girl squealed with happiness.

..._...

Chloe had finally regained her feet and she pushed open the double doors with Joshua to get a first look at their new bedroom.

The room was painted a pale blue with a white coved ceiling. The carpet was a pleasant beige and a large triple window looked out over the back yard. Chloe had her hand over her mouth as she took everything in. She squealed almost as loudly as Becky had as she took in the master bathroom. There was a large oval whirlpool bath set in the corner with a window to each side. There was also an enormous shower which could easily hold two people at once.

"Show them the basement. . ." Curtis said.

"Basement?" Chloe asked. "There's more?"

"Come on," Curtis said as he took his cousin's hand and lead her back downstairs.

Joshua and Becky followed with Becky holding Joshua's hand tightly. At the bottom of the stairs, they turned right and stopped at a small door which had been completely missed on the first trip around. Curtis opened the door with a flourish and he waved Chloe down the staircase into the basement.

"Woah!" Joshua exclaimed as he took in the large recreation room which was painted in light cream colours to accentuate the lighting and the few windows which let in natural light.

"I don't know what to say. . ." Chloe mumbled.

"That's a first!" Curtis chuckled.

"I love it!" Becky exclaimed as she smiled hugely.

..._...

Chloe, Joshua, and Becky spent the next hour examining every nook and cranny of their new home while Mindy, Dave, Cathy, and Curtis loitered around the kitchen talking and watching as the small family dashed about together at first, but then individually.

Joshua loved the kitchen, as did Chloe, and they both enthused about what they might cook in there. Becky loved her bedroom which was much bigger than that in the apartment and she also loved the back yard which was not large but adequate. The family room had a large wall-mounted 48-inch flat screen TV which was connected up to several hundred cable channels.

"Do you think we've done the right thing?" Cathy asked.

"Means that the current neighbours can live their lives without hearing bed springs above them, morning, noon, and night," Dave pointed out.

Curtis sniggered.

"They have a little girl to bring up and they all need their space," Mindy said. "They are young, but I trust them and they can behave in a mature fashion. . ."

Mindy paused as Chloe ran into the living room and pounced on Joshua, bringing him down onto the couch. She was giggling as she allowed Joshua to tickle her.

". . . sometimes – just not today, apparently!"

"The looks on their faces are well worth it," Cathy said happily. "Becky has been through a lot and she needs this just as much as Joshua and Chloe do."

"I'm glad that Chloe is happy," Curtis admitted. "We never got on well when we were younger but Chloe has been like a big sister to me ever since we began to support one another in Fusion. I love her more than ever and I think she deserves this."

"Well said, Curtis," Dave said approvingly as the boy blushed.

"I agree," Cathy admitted. "It's good to see you two getting along. Now – we need to be getting along. Chloe!"

The sixteen-year-old stopped her giggling and she walked into the kitchen. Mindy dangled a set of keys in front of the wide-eyed teenager. Chloe reached for the keys only for Joshua to stop her.

"Me man of house," he stated. "Me get keys."

Chloe giggled and she stepped back as Mindy handed Joshua the keys with a grin. However, Joshua held out his other hand.

"What?" Mindy asked.

"Where's the map to the minefield, the machineguns, and the razor wire?" he replied.

Everybody laughed as Mindy scowled.

..._...

Chloe was still struggling to understand what had turned her Saturday upside down. Only a few weeks before, she had gained her first car, as had Joshua. Now, they both had their first home. Chloe's emotions were struggling to cope with it – she was still struggling with the loss of her child – then there was Becky. For the three of them to have a place which they could call their own was amazing and Chloe was humbled that there were people who loved them enough to do something so special.

Joshua was just as moved and he had hugged both Mindy and Cathy very tightly and there had been tears in his eyes. The young man had been through a lot in his short life, at one stage he had been homeless and living on the streets. A home of his own had always been a dream, but for it to become a reality was almost unreal for him. He loved everybody who was part of his life and as far as he was concerned they were all his family. His old life was gone and his new life was the best that he could ever have wished. He was in love with the most beautiful girl he could imagine and she loved him back just as much.

Becky was loving every minute of her new life. Every morning, she was reminded of her past life as she saw her bruised face and body in the bathroom. But it meant less and less to her as the days went past and she enjoyed her new life of safety where people loved her. While she never really wanted to fight again, she was happy to undergo the training. The training was safe and while there was pain, it was controlled and people were looking out for her safety. A month back, a family and a home had been so far away as to be a fairy-tale. But thanks to Chloe, that fairy-tale was coming true.

..._...

Joshua suggested that they order a pizza or two for an early dinner so that they could christen the new house.

Mindy agreed and she nipped out to get the pizzas and some bottles of coke. Curtis went with her to help, leaving Cathy and Dave to watch over Chloe and Joshua. Becky was in her bedroom enjoying her new toys. Joshua had no idea that he had been nudged towards the suggestion – Curtis could be crafty when he wanted to be. Maybe Curtis was spending too much time with Megan!

Mindy and Curtis were planning something else with which to surprise Chloe – but not just Chloe.

..._...

Forty-five minutes later, Joshua and Chloe were getting annoyed.

"I'm hungry!" Becky complained.

"Should have been no more than twenty minutes," Cathy complained.

"Maybe Mindy got stopped for speeding," Dave offered quite reasonably as he struggled to keep his expression neutral.

Then, a minute later, there was a knock on the front door.

"About flipping time!" Chloe growled as she demonstrated her new-found fondness for the British language.

She jumped up off the couch and she yanked open the front door expecting to see her mentor and her cousin with pizzas and drink. She had the perfect sentiment too – instead, she froze and then her emotions overflowed for the second time that day and she burst into tears as her father stepped through the doorway. Chloe never saw the grinning Mindy and Curtis behind him – her attentions were fixed on her father as the lithe girl jumped into his arms and she wrapped her long legs around his waist.

"Daddy! What are you doing here?"

"I came to see my little girl and her new home," Ryan Bennett said as she hugged his daughter.

"Ryan!" Cathy exclaimed as she glared at Mindy and Curtis.

Chloe dropped back to the floor allowing her mother to hug her husband. Ryan and Cathy exchanged a long and sensual kiss together before they both remembered that they had company. Then the ever vigilante Cathy Bennett pulled away from her husband and she scowled. She had noticed something different about her husband's dress blue uniform – instead of three gold stripes on each arm beneath a gold line star, there was a fourth gold stripe.

"When did you make E-6?" Cathy demanded.

"I was frocked two weeks back, honey. Thought it might be a good surprise for you," Ryan replied with a grin.

Cathy smiled enormously.

"You made Captain!" she exclaimed before there was a forced coughing sound from over by the family room. "Oh, hell!"

Chloe quickly turned and she pulled Becky forwards.

"Peanut, this is my father, Ryan," Chloe said. "Daddy, this is Rebecca but she prefers Becky and I alone call her Peanut."

"Hi, sir," Becky said as she smiled up at the tall man who smiled down at her.

Captain Ryan Bennett, United States Navy knelt down and he looked into Becky's deep brown eyes.

"Hello, Becky, you call me Ryan, okay?"

"Yes, sir – err, Ryan."

Becky giggled as Ryan smiled at her.

"You're just as lovely as Cathy described you, Becky."

Ryan stood up, lifting the blushing Becky off her feet and he carried her through into the kitchen, dumping her onto the counter in the centre of the room where Mindy and Curtis had placed the pizzas.

"I'm hungry – let's eat!" Ryan declared.

..._...

"Thank you, Mindy," Cathy said as she forced the teenage vigilante into a reluctant hug. "You knew, Dave?"

"Of course."

"It's so good to have him back, you know."

"I noticed. Chloe's almost overflowing with emotion," Dave replied.

Chloe was talking non-stop as she chatted to her father while stuffing pizza into her mouth. Becky was chipping on with comments about her rescue as Chloe explained everything that had happened over the previous few weeks. Joshua took a moment to talk to Mindy out of earshot of the others.

"Mindy, you are the greatest, you know that, don't you?"

"Of course, I do!"

"I mean you are the best friend anybody could have. You are like a big sister to me and Chloe. You brought us back together and you have helped us through some turbulent times and helped us to be together. We owe you everything."

Mindy was feeling weird inside as Joshua spoke. She hated people thanking her – it made her uncomfortable. She loved to do things for people but they were always so damn thankful!

"You know I love you both. You are the family I never had. For reasons unknown to me, I let Chloe drive all over me but she keeps me sane in my darkest hours and I am thankful for having her around. You are both selfless and you look after everybody in Fusion. You care, both of you. Now you can both enjoy some time in your own home with your new daughter."

Joshua hugged Mindy tightly, ignoring her growls.

..._...

It was like a mini party.

Dave could only see happy faces – even Mindy despite all the hugs which she was tolerating. He was very pleased to have been able to help set Chloe and Joshua up with a home. They were a true family and they loved Becky just as much as she loved them. Dave knew that Joshua and Chloe would be just as happy with Becky as he and Mindy were with their own sons and daughters. Being a parent was hard but it was damn rewarding. Ignoring the temper tantrums and the sometimes-bad behaviour, you had wonderful young people who loved you and enjoyed having somebody that they could talk to and spend time with.

Joshua and Chloe would make brilliant parents.

..._...

"You deserve this, Chloe," Ryan said to his daughter as she showed him around the house. "I was horrified, frankly, to hear about your miscarriage and I wish I could have been here for you."

"Thank you, Daddy, I know. It was horrible, but with everybody helping me, I got through it. Becky is not a replacement and I don't see her that way. I see her as a new start to our lives, for all three of us."

"You've grown up so much in just three years, honey, and I am so very proud of you."

"Don't – you'll have me in tears again."

"I mean it, Chloe – you and Joshua make an amazing couple, both masked and out in the open. While I had reservations about the boy you were fucking. . ."

"Daddy!"

". . . I saw how much he loved you. Joshua seems to have curbed some of your more wayward tendencies which can only be good for the world in general and everybody's sanity."

Chloe felt her face turning very red as her father chuckled.

..._...

Becky had refused point blank.

Neither Chloe nor Joshua were surprised.

Eventually, Chloe went with Cathy, Ryan, and Curtis to go pack some clothing. Mindy and Dave left Joshua and Becky to their new home and they headed back to their own where they hoped to find their own wayward children and Hailee keeping them all from blowing up the house. It had not been a surprise that Becky wanted to sleep in her new bed, in her new bedroom, in her new home.

"You leave them a surprise beside the bed?" Dave asked his wife.

"Box of ten – should do them till the morning," Mindy replied with a laugh.

Fielding Drive

It was weird.

It was just Joshua and Becky, alone in the house for the first time.

"You okay, Becky?"

"Yes, thanks, Dad."

Joshua almost missed it.

"What did you call me?"

"Dad – is that okay?"

Joshua just nodded, unable to think of anything to say. It kind of made it official: he had a daughter and he was her father. What was Chloe going to say?

"Can I go for a bath? I really want to try it out."

Joshua found towels in a cupboard in the bathroom and he ran the bath, adding copious amounts of bubbles. Becky was quick off the mark and almost before the water was ready, she had vanished into her bedroom and dumped her clothing before returning to the bathroom where Joshua was just turning off the taps. Becky almost dived into the bath in her haste but Joshua caught her before she could have an accident – that would never do.

Soon she was splashing away while Joshua turned down her bed and closed the curtains. He switched on her bedside light and turned off the main overhead one. After fifteen minutes, he coaxed the happy girl out of the bath and then found a distinct lack of pyjamas so he just wrapped her in a dry towel and then encouraged her to get into bed. Leaving Becky to talk to her ponies, he headed down to the kitchen and he found the relevant supplies to make hot chocolate for them both.

..._...

By the time, Chloe returned on her own with several bags of clothing and other personal effects, she found the house quiet.

Chloe went upstairs to find her boyfriend and Becky watching a DVD on the TV in the little girl's bedroom.

"Hi, guys!"

"Shhh!" Joshua said. "Twilight and the others are about to foil Sunset Shimmer's plan for attacking Equestria!"

Chloe laughed as she sat down to watch the end of the movie. Becky grinned up at Chloe as the movie ended.

"You okay, Mum – I can call you that, right?"

Chloe just squealed and she nodded, unable to speak. Tears formed in her eyes as she looked at Joshua. He simply nodded.

"Dad let me take a bath – it was brilliant, although there might have been too many bubbles."

"Dad?"

"Yeah, Dad – him."

Becky felt a little confused and she could not understand why Chloe and Joshua hugged each other tightly. She was also surprised to see Chloe crying again – she had done a lot of that during the day,

"Night, Peanut," Chloe said as she pulled Joshua out of the room. "See you in the morning."

"Night, Mum. Night, Dad."

"Sleep tight," Joshua said happily as she pulled his daughter's bedroom door closed behind him.

Chapter 337*: Lucy

Wednesday, April 27th, 2016

00:30

Urban Predator Training Facility, Milan

It was a medium-sized facility, based on a large warehouse.

Entry had been a just a little too easy for a suspected CIA facility. She found out why, very quickly as she burst in, weapons raised. It was no longer a training facility. . .

It was no longer a training facility – it was a fucking tomb.

"How could they. . .?" she exclaimed.

She had never seen so much carnage; at least not of the kind that lay before her. She counted each body, from the smaller ones, up to the bigger ones . . . twenty-six in total. She was not the only one counting, either.

"They killed twenty-six kids. . ." Shadow said incredulously. "Some of them are younger than Stephanie, for fuck's sake!"

They had all been shot and Hit Girl's trained eye saw that many of the wounds had been inflicted as the kids had tried to run away from the danger. She knelt down and she closed the staring blue eyes of a young girl about the same age as Anne-Marie, her beauty marred by the single .40-calibre hole in her forehead.

But then everything changed and the girl changed into Anne-Marie. Hit Girl looked up aghast at Shadow – only, Shadow had a bullet in the centre of her own forehead, blood dribbled down her face and then she dropped to the floor, dead. Shadow's body fell beside another body – this one taller and more muscular.

"Joshua!" Mindy exclaimed as she stared down at the boy who had always brought fun and joy to her life; he had three bullet holes in his chest.

Mindy looked around her as faces suddenly became sharp and she saw all of her friends and companions. They were all dead – Megan, Curtis, Erika . . . it went on. Mindy was angry – who could have done such a thing. She had not felt so much anger since...

She had never felt so much anger...

The anger, however, had heightened the veteran vigilante's senses and she heard something above her; she recognised the sound of an AR-15 being brought to readiness.

It was an obvious ambush and she reacted, turning her pistol towards the sound and rippling off bullets. Her mind registered the rapid action of the AR-15 cycling and spraying death in her direction. She felt the first bullet as it tore into her side and then she fell to the floor as another bullet tore through her left thigh before finally, a bullet tore her heart in two.

Darkness fell. . .

Sunday, September 25th, 2016

Glenview

Mindy snapped awake in an instant.

But before she could begin to panic, she was suddenly reassured by the strong arms which wrapped themselves around her body.

"Another nightmare?"

"Third one since we went to bed."

"Same every year," Dave commented to nobody in particular.

"I hate this time of year."

Dave hugged his wife's naked body which was bathed in a sheen of sweat. It was another one of the annual events which plagued their lives. So many of which were bad, just like the one for that Sunday.

"Seven years . . . but it feels like it was only yesterday. Getting shot by dickwad, waking up all alone. I was so scared but the one thing that kept me going was the thought of finding not just my Daddy but also finding you – and putting a bullet into your stupid skull."

"I did kinda betray you. . ."

"Don't start – it was dickwad; he tricked you. I can still see my Daddy, burning. I can still remember his last words to me. I can still remember that night when I geared up. I can remember your expression when I showed you the jetpack. I can remember how happy I was when you flew into sight and you blasted the fuck out of that bastard with his bazooka."

"Why did Damon have a bazooka, anyway?"

Mindy laughed.

"I have no idea – he just acquired shit and hung it on the walls."

"I'm sorry you lost your Daddy."

"In some ways, I'm not. He did his best but he turned me into somebody who I struggle to control. If he had never died then I might never have revealed myself to you. You, Dave Lizewski, are the best thing that has ever happened to me. How the fuck, you put up with me, I have no idea. But, seven years later, and we're still talking to each other."

Mindy paused to turn her head and kiss her husband.

"It's been a wild ride, honey."

"That it has," Mindy mused as she cuddled into her husband, absorbing his warmth and strength.

Without Dave, she would be nothing, she would be dead. Dave kept her alive. Dave kept her human. Dave helped her cope with her ever changing life. Hit Girl really did owe her very life and existence to the dick in a green and yellow wetsuit who almost pissed himself at Rasul's.

..._...

"What's up with Mum?" Stephanie asked, over breakfast.

Dave waved Stephanie to sit down beside him.

"Seven years ago, Mindy's father died – you've seen the video. A lot happened that night. Mindy almost died and so did I. Mindy struggles with the memories every year."

"I understand."

"I know that last weekend was the third anniversary of you and Jamie being taken. I know you tried to hide it but while he did not know the date, I know that you did and I heard you crying into the night. I did not want to intrude."

Stephanie hugged Dave tightly.

"Thanks. I want to forget it, but I can't. The terror. The fear. The hopelessness. Jamie was only five and I don't think he remembers much of what happened."

"We all have bad memories, Steph. But it helps to talk or at least have somebody there to help you and just be with you. Mindy doesn't really talk about it – she just wants me to be there for her and to hug her."

"I'll remember that, next month – I'm scared of how I'll be. October 24th, 2013 – we were separated for the final time and I would not see him again for almost three years."

"Stephanie – we've warned you about reading your Predator file. There's nothing good in there, pal."

"I just needed to know what happened. I've forgotten so much. . ."

"Believe me, Steph, there are some things which should remain hidden," Dave said darkly.

Winnetka Road

Summer Frasier cringed as she peeled back the dressing from her right upper arm and shoulder.

The bullet had struck the breech of her rifle, shattering it, before the remains of the bullet had torn through her armour and gouged a furrow through her bicep and then through her right shoulder before stopping against the inside of her suit. Her arm was black and blue with bruising not to mention the blood. There was no permanent damage on the inside – she could move the arm, but she would have a vicious scar on her upper right arm.

That bastard sniper!

They were supposed to have died.

Glenview

The day was not going as badly as it could have, in hindsight.

After their return from Chloe's the previous evening, they had barely managed to get into bed before Mindy's cell had vibrated and Mindy was suddenly on edge as she saw who was calling.

"Chloe?"

"Mindy . . . sorry for calling so late. . ."

Mindy was worried.

"What's wrong?"

"What was it like – you know, the first time that Anne-Marie called you 'Mom'?"

Oh!

"It felt weird – but a good weird. I never knew that a single word could possibly mean so much to someone. I hate to admit it, but I cried."

"It started with Josh – Becky called him 'Dad' while I was out getting stuff from the apartment. Then when I got back, she called me 'Mum' and she asked if that was okay. I couldn't reply – but yeah, I cried."

"Feels good, doesn't it?" Mindy said. "It takes some getting used to but I love begin call Mom – or Mum as Steph puts it."

"Yeah – Becky uses 'Mum' just like Steph does."

"Can I go back to my husband now, Chloe? I want him to bone me," Mindy asked.

"Ewww!"

"I'm sure Joshua would be happy to bone you – did you get my little present?"

Chloe laughed.

"I did – thanks. One's been used already. . ."

"More information than I needed," Mindy growled before firing off a counter blow. "Guess what Mommy and Daddy are doing right now."

"Double ewww!" Chloe groaned at the thought of her parents having sex.

"Night, Chloe."

"Night, best friend, ever."

..._...

Mindy and Dave had found their kids awaiting their arrival home and all were unhurt and the house was suspiciously intact.

Hailee had volunteered (somewhat reluctantly) to look after the kids – although Stephanie 'I don't need looking after' Lizewski had complained bitterly about having a sitter. Normally, it would have been Paige but she was busy looking after little Matty on behalf of Marty and Kim. It was Marty's birthday on that Saturday, and they had wanted to go out for the day so Paige had stepped in and taken Matty for the day which Megan had thought was great.

Marty, it transpired, had had a good day, apparently!

Fielding Drive

Becky was happily forcing pancakes into her mouth, ignoring the maple syrup which dribbled down her chin and then down onto her t-shirt.

The eight-year-old had awoken that morning, full of energy and promptly woken her 'parents' up who were a little tired having been 'up and down' for most of the night. Chloe had finally given in with a barely concealed scream and rolled out of bed. Becky, in turn, pushed her in the direction of the bathroom and told her to 'get a move on, you stink'. Chloe had reappeared ten minutes later to find an annoyed Becky bouncing on the end of the bed with a tired Joshua groaning as he tried to ignore the little girl's bouncing.

Chloe finished drying off after her shower before she pulled on some clean clothes and then Becky dragged her off towards the stairs and then the kitchen.

..._...

Joshua appeared, just as the first round of pancakes were cooking and he slumped into a chair beside his wide-awake daughter.

"Morning, Daddy!"

"Morning, again, bouncy daughter."

Becky giggled as Joshua reached out for the mug of tea which Chloe pushed in his direction.

"Mum's making pancakes – you having some?"

"I could do with the food, yes."

"Were you two having sex all night?"

"New rule, Rebecca," Chloe stated. "No talking about sex."

"Understood!" Becky replied with a mock salute.

..._...

By the time, Chloe and Joshua were working their way through their own pancakes, Becky had finished and she was talking non-stop like usual.

"Chloe?"

"Yeah, Peanut?"

"What's 'morning wood'?" Becky asked.

Chloe's face went bright pink and she turned to a smirking Joshua who had struggled not to choke on a forkful of pancake.

"Would you like to take that question, Joshua?"

"Not really, my lovely Chloe," Joshua laughed.

"Where did you hear that . . . err, term?" Chloe asked the ever-curious little eight-year-old.

"I heard some boys talking about it at school."

"Well, I would suggest that you go look it up on the laptop – try Google," Chloe suggested – far too embarrassed to explain the term to a young girl of such a tender, innocent, age.

Becky scrambled off her chair and bolted for the laptop which sat on the kitchen side. A few minutes later, she found her answer.

"Found it – it says. . ."

"Becky!" Chloe called out, desperately as Joshua burst out laughing. "We don't need to hear it!"

"kay!" Becky shouted back.

Chloe dropped her head onto the table and moaned.

"Was I this bad as an eight-year-old?" she bleated.

"I'll ask your Mom next time I see her," Joshua replied.

"Talk about embarrassing!"

Morton Grove

Joshua was at the apartment with the terror, packing, while Chloe had stopped off to see her mother.

"Mom – did I ever ask embarrassing questions when I was little?"

Cathy laughed.

"Oh, yeah!" she replied. "What has the delightful Becky asked?"

"I'd rather not say. . ."

"About girls?"

"No."

"Boys?" Cathy guessed.

Chloe slumped down onto the couch and nodded. Cathy sat down in a chair facing her daughter.

"Some years back – you would have been about six or probably closer to seven. Curtis was about three and . . ."

"Did little me hear my name?" Curtis said as he came into the living room and jumped onto the couch, snuggling up to his cousin.

"We're about to hear another embarrassing story about your cousin," Cathy explained to her nephew.

Curtis grinned as he looked up at Chloe who scowled.

"You comfy?" Chloe enquired and Curtis nodded – he would never miss a chance to witness his cousin's humiliation.

"As I was saying – a seven-year-old Chloe and a three-year-old Curtis were in the bath together. Chloe was at a stage in her life where she was questioning everything. Well, she was ever the curious little girl and she had noticed that Curtis was differently equipped to her."

Chloe rolled her eyes as Curtis sniggered.

"Chloe pointed at her cousin and she asked, 'Why does Curtis have that thingy between his legs?' Well, I told her what boys have a penis. Chloe wanted to know why her cousin had a penis and what it was for. I decided that Chloe was too young for the birds and the bees, so I told her to wait a few more years."

Curtis laughed out loud as Chloe blushed furiously.

"Well," she said. "Curtis appears to have figured out what his penis is for – or at least Megan has!"

"We don't do that stuff, yet," Curtis muttered as his face exploded.

"That's okay, sweetie," Chloe teased as she hugged her cousin.

"Don't worry, Chloe – you have many more embarrassing years ahead of you," Cathy chuckled.

That evening

Sheridan Road

Shannon wormed into her father as they sat and watched tv.

"Hi, sweetheart," Patrick Millar said.

"I still haven't forgiven you, Dad."

"I'm just happy I have you back, Shannon."

Shannon was happy to be back – very happy. Twelve-year-old Annabelle and her ten-year-old brother, Iain, were also very happy to have their big sister back. They had both talked about Shannon's anger at finding out that her siblings were trained vigilantes. They also understood her anger. They hated seeing Shannon's anger at her parents and they did everything that they could to give Shannon access to their Mom and Dad. Shannon had missed out on so many years and she needed the quality time with her parents.

Thirteen-year-old Marc felt like a fifth wheel in the house. He had moved in the previous week to be with Shannon. Shannon's mother, Taylor, had decided it would be easier if he lived there as he was spending a lot of money on cabs! Nevertheless, the boy had his own bedroom on the second floor, below his thirteen-year-old girlfriend's bedroom on the third floor. That had been a diplomatic way to allow Marc to live with them, without it looking obviously sexual. There were also rules. There was to be no naked bodies outside of their bedrooms. No loud sexual activities keeping the household awake. No overtly sexual activity outside the house in public. No sexual activity until homework was completed. Any trouble at school, or any rules broken and they would be restricted to their own bedrooms.

While Shannon had believed herself to be beyond rules, her parents had put the proverbial foot down and warned her in no uncertain terms that Marc could always go back to live at the Safehouse. Shannon had given in – under protest – while secretly glad to be treated like a kid again. She enjoyed the discipline from her parents – she knew that they both loved her dearly.

She also did not want to lose Marc.

The following morning Monday, September 26th

Lake View High School

The city was in meltdown.

Despite that, it was to be her first day as a Senior at Lake View High School. Her trip on the bus that morning had been fraught with problems. Two windows of the bus had been smashed as they had been driving down the street but the driver had kept her foot down until she was safely in the clear before slowing down. She also witnessed a mugging and a police shootout along the way which had surprised her greatly. She knew that Chicago had the reputation for being a rough city but it was also a protected city – or so she thought.

After checking in with the school office, Lucy made her way to her first lessons. Despite expecting to see the girl, Lucy was more than a little surprised to recognise one of the Sophomores: Saoirse Doherty – it had been a couple of years since she had last laid eyes on the bitch (well, face to face, at least); the girl had been about thirteen back then. Lucy was surprised when out of the blue, another Sophomore had caught her eye: Sarah Hampton. Neither of the girls noticed Lucy, they seemed intent on their own discussions as they chatted with some other kids.

Lucy decided that she would have to be careful – both girls knew her . . . and they hated her – enough to kill her?

She wasn't sure.

..._...

Back to the city in meltdown.

Lucy was very attentive to everything that went on around her – a part of her intensive training since she was ten – and she had noticed much since her arrival. The weekend had been spent scouting the city. Russians? Sicilians? And what the fuck were those masked idiots? Her mind remembered something about a fight at some silos: A Corsair. What the bloody hell was going on in Chicago? It was like a goddamn war zone!

Lucy had recognised another face at lunchtime: Marc Ryan, and he was snuggling up to . . . oh, that was unexpected – Shannon? What was going on, it was like the school was Predator Central!

The faces brought back memories as she dug into her sandwich and kept her head down.

Thursday, March 31st, 2011

The Urban Predator Academy
Colorado Springs, Colorado

It was the second batch.

Lucy was now able to get an inkling of who might and who might not last as a Predator. As the eighteen kids – nine boys and nine girls, just as before – stripped off their clothing, Lucy looked from face to face. They were all very miserable; who would not be in the same situation? The group was different to the first; three of the girls and four of the boys looked to be a lot younger than the others. One of those, a thin, pale girl with medium-length dark-brown hair, was sobbing as she reluctantly slid her knickers down and off before she dropped them on the pile of her freshly discarded clothing. The girl gazed over at Lucy who showed no emotion as the younger girl stood there, completely naked and attempting to cover herself up as a couple of the boys glanced over at her body, despite them being just as naked as she was.

"Stop snivelling, brat," Lucy growled as she walked over to the girl only to cause more sobbing. "What's your name?"

"Saoirse."

"Irish?"

"I'm from Belfast."

"An Irish slut – you'll fit in well!" Lucy laughed as she back-handed the nine-year-old girl across her right buttock eliciting a yelp of pain.

The other two, very naked, younger girls cowered together.

"Names?"

"Ra . . . Rachel."

"Kara."

"Leave them alone!" came a voice.

"What?" Lucy demanded of another naked girl, taller than all the others.

"Leave them alone!" the girl repeated.

"You are. . .?"

"Sarah. . ."

Before Sarah could say any more, Lucy punched her in the face. That was followed up by a swift kick between the legs which put Sarah on the ground in agony.

"Fair warning . . . insolence will not be tolerated."

Lucy was not to know how much that comment was to come back and haunt her, just a few months into her future.

Monday, September 26th, 2016

Lake View High School
Chicago, Illinois

Juno Grant was still as much of a bitch as she always was.

While her credibility amongst the student body had crumbled – ever since her run in with Lauren Edwards, six months previously – she was still making waves by opening her mouth when she should have been keeping it firmly shut. The girl enjoyed causing and stirring shit, simple as that. The turmoil in the city had provided her with a pair of easy targets – the cops and Fusion.

She knew full well that there were children with parents in the Chicago Police Department, at the school. It was also no secret that most of the school supported Fusion – there were even outlandish and unconfirmed rumours that some of the kids who attended the school could even be Fusion members – as if! Juno and her cohorts happily voiced their thoughts over what they believed the CPD to have done the other evening. She also threw in some digs at how ineffective Fusion were in the city.

It took a lot of willpower for certain members of the student body to keep their tempers. A certain twelve-year-old girl sat with her boyfriend and she visualised ripping the sixteen-year-old's head off her neck. She hated the girl, and while Megan was not alone, she knew that she dared not do anything to risk exposure of her secret identity. There were other's in similar stages of anger: Chloe Bennett and her boyfriend, Joshua Williams, Brad Murphy and his girlfriend Lauren Edwards. Chloe and Lauren both had personal reasons to rip Juno's face off but they had had their fun months before and Juno gave them both a very wide birth indeed.

There was instant hate for the girl amongst the newer members of the school – all Predators. Over in a sheltered corner of the dining room, a sixteen-year-old girl thought that she had escaped drawing any attention to herself that day and that nobody had noticed her arrival at the school.

She was very, very wrong.

Two days later
Wednesday, September 28th

Lake View High School

"Happy Birthday, Lucy."

Lucy recognised the voice instantly – it was a voice which she had not heard in a long time but it was a voice which she would never forget. She turned to look toward the voice.

"Instructor?"

"It's Patrick now, Lucy. All that is gone."

Lucy saw two girls step out from behind the man she once knew as Instructor Millar. Both girls held pistols in their hands, pointed at the ground. Lucy smiled.

"Hi, Saoirse. Hi, Sarah."

"What are you doing here, Lucy?" Sarah demanded.

"I'm looking for help."

"The great Lucy Ford is looking for help?" Sarah responded derisively.

"I have to agree with Sarah – sorry, Lucy," Saoirse added.

Lucy took a deep breath before she continued.

"I know you two have no reason to like me. I broke your nose, Sarah, on your very first day and I treated you, Saoirse, like crap. I came to Chicago for help from you in particular; I knew that you were here, Saoirse. I also know that Hit Girl is here. I was made in her image and I know that she is not the woman those bastard instructors – sorry Mr Millar – say she is."

Patrick waved off the insinuation.

"Lucy – we don't trust you," Sarah said sharply. "We can't."

"I know – you have no reason to."

"No, we don't," Shannon growled as she came around the corner and shot Lucy with a Taser.

The look on Shannon's face was pure malice.

Chapter 338*: Prelude to War

Wednesday, September 28th, 2016

Safehouse K

When Lucy awoke, she felt cold and uncomfortable.

As her senses kicked into gear, she realised that she was naked and lying on a cold concrete floor. All around her was darkness but she sensed that somebody was watching her. There was also the sound of movement, somewhere in the darkness. Without warning a dazzlingly bright light came on, illuminating her and the immediate area around her.

"Get on your knees!" came an electronically enhanced voice.

Lucy did as commanded, rising to her knees slowly. She shivered with cold as she tried to focus on what was going on around her.

"What do you want in Chicago?" the voice demanded.

"I came seeking Hit Girl."

"Why would you want to do something like that?"

"I need help."

"Why would Hit Girl want to help somebody like you?"

Lucy saw movement ahead of her and a pair of boots came into the pool of bright light – they were lightweight and purple. Lucy knew that she was in the presence of Hit Girl and probably other members of Fusion, too.

"I know there is good in her – she is not the wicked, murderous bitch that my instructors made her out to be. I know that she can help me. I am alone. I have nothing. I was trained to be what she is. I want more out of my life now I am no longer under the spell of Urban Predator."

Another pair of boots came into the light.

"Why would we want to help you, Lucy – you represent the misery that we all endured and you caused a lot of it."

"Yes, I caused you all misery but I believed in what Urban Predator represented – at least in how it was applied to me and Leo. They gave us both a life. They taught us how to look after ourselves. They tainted the programme by what they did to you all. Yes, I helped to create you all. I created Foxtail. I created Stormtide. I created Discord. I created Tempest. I know you are all listening. I don't regret giving you training – I helped to keep you alive. You were all strong and you all survived. I taught you all values and as far as I can see, you've all put those values to good use by joining the one person that you were all trained to kill, despite being trained to emulate her."

There was no response from the assembled masked individuals who had all stepped into the spotlight.

"You think that being naked humiliates me, Hit Girl. I don't like it but I've endured worse – ask Foxy."

"Don't call me that!" one of the masked individuals called out.

"How did you know it was me?" Lucy asked.

"That was Discord," Foxtail replied. "She heard about a girl in P.E. who got in trouble for having a tattoo which showed below her shorts. By the description, it could only have been that damn fish of yours!"

"You can talk, Foxy!" Lucy threw back.

"I told you to stop calling me that!"

There was a snigger from one of three smaller armoured individuals who stood with Foxtail.

"How can we trust you?" Hit Girl growled as she got things back on track.

"You can't. I have hurt them all. They have no reason to trust me. I did bad things – many bad things."

"You were armed," Hit Girl stated as she waved her armoured gauntlet at a table which was covered with Lucy's clothing and weapons. There were several knives and two pistols amongst other items.

"A girl needs to defend herself in a city which you seem to have lost control of."

Lucy saw that she had hit home as Hit Girl braced up.

"If you are not going to help me . . . then I want you to kill me. You were my only hope. KILL ME!"

Lucy shouted the last two words at Hit Girl.

"Okay," Hit Girl replied as she drew her Tanto and strode directly at the unflinching seventeen-year-old.

Lucy stared directly up at Hit Girl's mask as Hit Girl placed the point of her Tanto on Lucy's throat drawing a little blood.

"Do it!" Lucy said as tears of failure ran down her face. "DO IT!"

Hit Girl stared down at the naked girl and she increased the pressure of the blade which allowed more blood to trickle down the girl's chest. It would take just another ounce of pressure to push the blade into Lucy's throat and sever her airway and then her backbone. It would be a merciful death.

"DO IT!"

August 8th, 2011

The Urban Predator Academy Colorado Springs, Colorado

It was the third batch.

Lucy and Leo were much more involved that time around as they had some wild cards in the batch who did not want to follow orders. While most of the intake stripped as ordered, one of the girls, an eight-year-old, resolutely refused to strip naked. One of the instructors tipped his head in Lucy's direction and she stepped forwards. The young girl saw Lucy moving towards her and she screamed.

"No, leave me alone!"

Admittedly, Lucy was a forbidding sight. The eleven-year-old wore black combat pants, a sleeveless black t-shirt over a black sports bra, black jungle boots, and her blonde hair was tied back in a ponytail, high on her head. Lucy stood no nonsense as she swept the young girl's feet out from under her and she crashed to the floor of the dining hall.

"Strip, now!" Lucy ordered.

"No!"

People only said, 'no' to Lucy once before the heaven's dropped on their head. The girl had said, 'no' twice . . . and she knew that she had gone too far as Lucy pulled out a Benchmade Model 67 Balisong with Tanto blade. She expertly flicked the blade open before she brought it down towards the screaming girl. With deft movements, Lucy cut off the girl's clothes, ripping off her sweatshirt and T-shirt before attacking her jeans and panties. Once the girl's plimsols and socks were ripped off she huddled herself into a ball on the floor, sobbing.

Lucy grabbed the girl by her jet-black hair and pulled her to her feet. Many saw Lucy as skinny, but there were strong muscles in her body and many had found that out to their cost. The girl screamed as she was yanked to her feet by her hair and she struggled against the iron grip to no avail. Lucy pulled the girl's right arm around and up her back, causing another scream of pain. The girl was frogmarched through the corridors to the changing rooms where Lucy pinned her while her hair was shaved off.

Lucy then threw the girl into the shower area where she skidded and fell to the tile floor in fits of sobbing.

..._...

An hour later, Lucy came face to face with the girl again. She was clothed and looking very scared. Lily O'Brien was her name.

"If you want to survive this, O'Brien, then I would advise you to follow all commands, instantly," Lucy said in a vague attempt at being helpful.

The girl just nodded as she stood with two other new girls in the stores awaiting their main draw of clothing. There were now over fifty Predators at the various stages of their training. The first intake had been there almost a year and some were on the verge of becoming serious Predators. Indeed, Lucy and Leo were not all that far away from becoming the very first Phase 2 Predators on their twelfth birthdays.

On the way, back to the dining hall, Lucy came across the Abbott twins. Their hair had grown back quite fast and the two eleven-year-olds were progressing well in their training.

"Well, if it isn't our 'queen'," Christina sneered.

"Chrissy!" Sky warned.

"You should listen to your freak sister, 'Chrissy'," Lucy cautioned as she pinned the younger girl against the corridor wall with her left hand.

"Fuck you!" Christina retorted.

Lucy smashed her right fist into Christina's left cheek, allowing the girl to fall to the floor where Lucy kicked her in the stomach.

"Learn respect, you fucking freak!" Lucy growled as she strode off down the corridor.

Wednesday, September 28th, 2016

Safehouse K

"Do it!" Lucy said as she stared at death without fear.

Hit Girl hesitated for a moment but then she decided that the girl was too dangerous – she was a version of herself and that could not be allowed. But before Hit Girl could exert any more pressure on the blade, she felt a hand on her arm. She looked up to see Stormtide shaking her head. Hit Girl looked over at her senior Predator. Foxtail shook her head too.

"Far from me to go against the masses – it's bad enough that my own daughter would like to slash my throat when I ground her but to anger a bunch of fanatical Predators. . ."

Hit Girl left the rest unsaid as she stowed her Tanto. Lucy sank down onto her heels and she stared at the concrete floor.

"I don't know why I stopped you," Shannon said as she removed her mask. "I hated her – only without her, I would not be alive. She trained me when nobody else would. I owe her for that."

"She was better than many at that place," Saoirse added as she removed her own mask. "She suffered just as much as many of us – probably worse."

"Get her downstairs and return her clothes," Hit Girl directed as she left the pool of light and vanished into the darkness.

"Lucy?"

Lucy looked up to see Shannon holding out her hand. Lucy looked back down to the concrete.

"Please, Lucy – let us help you."

"Why?"

"Just go with it," Sarah said as she too held out her hand.

"What's downstairs?" Lucy asked as she took both of the hands held out to her.

"Warmth," Shannon smiled.

..._...

"Well?"

Mindy looked up at her husband.

"She's fighting demons inside."

"You feel responsible for what she is."

"Yes, dammit! That girl was taken in response to what I was. She was taken in response to what I did when I rescued your fucked-up ass and my Daddy!"

"There was nothing you could do, honey."

"That's what's so fucking annoying!"

"What are you going to do with her?"

"I need to check her out – her former colleagues have vouched for her. I want to know what she's been up to for the past few months and what she did for Urban Predator."

"What about her file?"

"We only have a chunk of it, so far. Everything, after she turned thirteen, is missing."

"Remember, she sought you out."

"You know I have trust issues and . . . well, she's me and at times / don't trust me."

"At least she has friends," Dave pointed out as they watched Shannon and Saoirse help their former tormentor get dressed.

"Goddamn Predators!" Mindy growled.

..._...

Lucy was feeling a lot more comfortable now she was dressed and in a room with heating. It may have been subterranean but it was pleasant. Introductions were made of the younger Predators and Lucy was very surprised to see so many in one place. She was also surprised by one codename, in particular.

"Well, if it isn't the mighty Psyche," Lucy commented as she studied the younger girl. "You're a legend in your own time. You're more famous than even I am."

"You know – while I hated the Predator reunions where their first thoughts were to kill me; these lovey-dovey ones are just creepy!"

Lucy laughed.

"Just enjoy it, Stephanie. You were just like me – you wanted to tear down Urban Predator. But the difference between us? You went ahead and did it. You're an amazing girl, Stephanie – never let anybody tell you differently."

"You know, Lucy – I thought you'd be tougher than this. To be honest, you sound like a pussy," Stephanie commented and Saoirse groaned as Lucy laughed.

"Just trying to be nice. You want me rip your head off and piss in it, then I can do that."

"I'll pass, honey!" Stephanie offered with a smug smile.

Lucy turned to Saoirse who visibly wilted before the older girl.

"Hi, Saoirse. Have no fear; I hold no ill will against you – but I don't blame you for hating me. I made your life into a living hell and I apologise for that – I won't make excuses for my behaviour."

"Lucy, you always did talk shit," Saoirse replied. "We both suffered, and I don't blame you for any of it. We were all caught up in the moment and we did everything that we could to survive. I'm just glad that you're alive. Have you heard from Leo?"

"No – we were on a mission, together, back in May – it went to shit when you guys took down Urban Predator and we executed our own breakouts. I've not seen nor heard from him since."

Lucy looked very down at her comment.

It was three days late, but the news had finally filtered through that Vengeance had been attacked.

Mindy had spoken with Jasper and been reassured that while Cassie and Kaitlin had been hurt, there were no major injuries and both would be back in action very quickly. It had also been worrying due to the fact that a new faction was on the radar. Who had attacked Vengeance and how had they known Vengeance was to be there in the first place? Those were among many questions that passed through Mindy's mind as she considered everything which had been happening.

Her head was hurting as she tried to think about what was going on in England at the same time as what was going on in her own city. She had a new, and potentially deadly, Predator appearing out of nowhere. Jamie's ninth birthday was on Sunday and he was getting more than a little over excited by the prospect. Even Stephanie was excited about celebrating her brother's birthday as it was to be the first for many years. Then, on Tuesday, a select few were due to fly to that hellhole called Gotham.

Then came the worst of it – October 8th – the deadline!

Two days later
Friday, September 30th

Evening

1714 West Grace Street

"So, are you enjoying your new lodgings?"

Lucy almost shot through the ceiling at the words which seemingly came out of nowhere. In response, she spun, sweeping up a kitchen knife off the side and throwing it at the voice.

"Did I catch you at a bad time?" Hit Girl asked, the kitchen knife grasped in her right gauntlet.

"You fucking bitch!" Lucy exclaimed. "You scared the shit outta me!"

"My bad," Hit Girl said as she sat down in one of the comfortable chairs.

"You're obviously familiar with sneaking into this place," Lucy offered as she sat down opposite Hit Girl. "Coffee?"

"No, I'll pass, thanks. I once snuck in here to kill Foxtail."

"She's still alive," Lucy pointed out.

"I had a weak moment."

"Why are you here?"

"I want to get to know you."

"So, you can kill me in a more efficient manner?"

Hit Girl was impressed with the verbal sparring – Lucy was a natural.

"Lucy Ford, you are not my enemy and, as I understand it, I am not yours. You have no reason to fear me and believe me, if I wanted you dead. . ."

"Point taken – you still scare the hell outta me!"

"Good," Hit Girl responded, her lips curling into a smirk. "Tell me about your first mission for Urban Predator."

Lucy thought back over the years.

"That would have been August 2nd, 2013."

"Very good memory," Lucy's visitor commented.

"Thanks – I was sent to Seattle. There, I was picked up by some grumpy bastard and taken into the city. We stopped outside a big hotel."

Friday, August 2nd, 2013

The Sheraton Hotel, Seattle

"What do you want me to do?"

"Room 412 – you will find this man in there. . ."

An 11-inch by 14-inch glossy colour photo was passed over. Lucy ran her eyes over it a few times, memorising eyes, mouth, nose, shape of the face, hair style. She handed the photo back.

". . . kill him."

"How?"

"That is up to you – you have a gun, you have a knife, you have your skills. The bastard had a skin full, last night . . . so, he should be fast asleep. You have thirty-five minutes – we will wait until then and if you are not back down here . . . you are on your own, Lucy."

"I'd better not hang around then. . ."

..._...

Five minutes later, Lucy was on the fourth floor and walking past Room 412.

She needed a key card . . . her mind went into overdrive as she thought through the problem . . . there . . . a maid; female – no good. She smiled and headed to the floor below where she remembered seeing a male hotel employee. As she walked past the maid, she swiped a towel off the pile and made for the fire stairs.

After jumping down the stairs, she paused outside the door to the third floor, checked that the stairwell was clear, and then she stripped naked. She wrapped the towel around her body – it barely covered her, being only an overlarge hand towel. After taking a deep breath, she pulled open the door and she grinned as she saw the male employee, walking away from her. She dumped her clothing and weapons in the doorway to a room and then ran down the corridor.

"Hey!" she called. "You got a bigger towel, there?"

The young man turned around just as Lucy's towel 'kind of slipped'. His eyes went wide as he took in the tantalising sight before him.

"Err . . . of course," he stammered as he turned to grab a bigger towel, tearing his eyes away from Lucy's assets.

"Thank you," Lucy said as she wrapped the fresh, and much larger, towel around her body.

"No problem, ma'am."

Lucy ran off down the corridor, sweeping up her clothes and vanishing back into the stairwell. After dressing, quickly, she dumped the towel in a laundry chute and she casually flipped the stolen access card over in her hand.

..._...

Lucy returned to the fourth floor and after checking that the coast was clear, she inserted the access card into the horizontal slot near the door handle and the light flickered green and the lock released with a muted click. Lucy pulled the suppressed Glock 26 from the small of her back and then pushed open the door to the hotel room. She cleared the bathroom first and then entered the main room. The man was, indeed, asleep – stretched out on his bed. The man's facial features matched the photo, perfectly.

Lucy levelled the pistol at the man's forehead and without a moment's hesitation, she squeezed the trigger twice. The man would never wake up again. Quickly, Lucy left the room, hanging a 'Do Not Disturb' tag on the outer door handle as she went. She quickly headed back down to the lobby and outside to where her ride was awaiting her return.

"Well?" the man demanded.

"Mission accomplished," Lucy replied.

"Let's go – your flight departs in ninety minutes."

Friday, September 30th

1714 West Grace Street

"How did you feel?"

"Nothing – it was my fourth kill – I saw nothing wrong with killing. By the time, I was twelve, I had already killed an Apprentice Predator and two Yellows. You know what a Yellow is?"

"I do."

"They trained me well – maybe too well. It was my second sanctioned kill and my first adult kill. It went like clockwork and I was rewarded."

"Rewarded?"

"I received a steak dinner on my return and two days to myself."

"Not bad, I suppose."

"What else do you want to know about me?"

"Ultimately, everything."

"Until then, you cannot trust me, I understand. Thank you for this apartment – freshly decorated, very nice."

"The CIA burnt it down when they tried to terminate Foxtail – it's been refurbished."

"This was Foxtail's place?"

"It was."

"Great!"

The following day
Saturday, October 1st

Glenview

"What are you two up to?"

Jamie and Abigail looked up as Stephanie peered into the bedroom.

"Just getting changed," Jamie responded. "Brad and Lauren will be here in a few minutes."

Stephanie was already in her swimsuit and Abigail was just pulling on her own. Jamie kicked off his underwear and pulled on his swim shorts. Within another minute, all three kids were jumping down the stairs and racing into the kitchen.

"Wondered where you'd gone," Tommy grinned.

Tommy and Stephanie ran through and jumped into the pool, closely followed by Abigail, Jamie, Danny, and Anne-Marie. Soon, they were all laughing and giggling under the watchful eyes of Dave and Mindy. Minutes later, Lauren and Brad appeared and they both dove in to join the fun. Mindy could see that Abigail was not a big fan of water – for perfectly understandable reasons – but she still joined in the fun. Stephanie and Abigail chose to pick on Jamie and then picked the boy up and threw him a short distance across the water.

All Predators were strong swimmers, despite their fears, and those Predators present quickly demonstrated their superior performance in the pool. Stephanie was arguably the most powerful swimmer there – she could cut through the water at great speed – and she could hold her breath for a decent amount of time when she swam underwater. Abigail, despite her unease, was also a fast swimmer but Stephanie appeared to have the stronger leg and arm muscles which propelled her through the water with ease.

Lauren and Brad were not bad, when it came to swimming, although they just seemed to spend the time swimming together and chatting with the occasional kiss every few minutes! The twins happily joined in although they were easily the smallest there and often found themselves ducked by the more violent Predators. It was a fact of life that the Predators played like they fought – hard and without mercy. It wasn't their fault – they were trained to be ruthless and their training had taken over every aspect of their young lives. That came to a head when Abigail and Anne-Marie collided and they both came away with tears running down their cheeks and their heads held in their hands.

There were no lasting injuries and both girls were tougher than they looked. Before long they were back playing with big smiles on their faces.

..._...

For Dave and Mindy, it had been a good day.

The kids had enjoyed themselves while Dave and Mindy had been able to sit and chat – a rare event. After two hours of swimming, the exhausted kids had devoured several large pizzas with the help of Sophia, Razor, Kiara, and the ever-present Horatio. By the time parents arrived to collect Tommy, Lauren, Brad, and Abigail, the kids were still in their swimsuits, so they went home that way with their clothing in bags and a jacket over them for warmth.

Lizzie was appalled to see her sister kissing goodbye to Brad in a manner which she deemed disgusting. Not to be outdone, Tommy kissed Stephanie on the cheek which had her blushing profusely while Jamie and Danny wolf whistled. As was the plan, the kids went to bed early that evening and were soon fast asleep. Dave and Mindy were then able to spend the rest of the evening together, watching a movie and enjoying each other's company.

They also completed their plans for the following day.

The following morning
Sunday, October 2nd

The British Sector

Stephanie awoke soon after six that morning.

She was excited. She had not been able to celebrate her brother's birthday since he was five – now, he was nine-years-old. Stephanie thought for a moment about why she had been unable to celebrate his previous three birthdays and why they had been separated in the first place. Ever since Jamie had come back into her life, Stephanie had begun to remember things. She could remember that last day together before everything had gone so wrong.

She could not really remember much about her parents, but she could remember Jamie, and she could remember the events leading up to their kidnapping.

Wednesday, September 18th, 2013

Atlanta, USA

"Steph?"

"I'm here, Jamie."

"What are we doing today?"

"Mum and Dad are taking us to see some stuff in the city."

"Where?"

"I think the fish place – you know. . ."

"We're going to the Georgia Aquarium," Mum interrupted.

"Cool! I want pancakes for breakfast."

"You always want pancakes, Jamie!"

"I'm almost six; I'm a growing boy."

"You've still got two weeks to go, little brother!"

Sunday, October 2nd, 2016

The British Sector, Glenview
Chicago, Illinois

Stephanie smiled as she remembered how happy they had all been.

She remembered how much Jamie had been annoying her. She remembered sniping back at him and annoying him back. She remembered being really mean to her little brother in retaliation for annoying her. Then she remembered the horror and panic as their lives had changed.

Stephanie wiped away the tears from her face and she pulled on some clean clothes.

..._...

Ten minutes later, Stephanie snuck up the stairs which led to the third floor (or second floor as she saw it – damn Americans!) where she nipped across a large storeroom and she stopped by a closed door which was usually kept locked. Stephanie pulled out the key which she had swiped from the kitchen, the night before, and she unlocked the door. With practiced ease and patient, she pulled the door open until she could slip through the gap. There, before her was a bed. Sleeping soundly in the bed was her little brother who was now six-years-old. Stephanie had a plan – it wasn't cruel per se, but it would be fun.

The room was still in darkness which was not a problem to the veteran Predator who enjoyed darkness to cover her movements. Stephanie took her time crawling across the floor and around the double bed to the far side where her brother was sleeping. As was usual, the boy was sleeping on his back with the duvet somewhere around his ankles. His left hand was lying palm up on the bed beside his pillow. He was wearing a pair of pyjama shorts but nothing else. With extreme care, Stephanie pulled an object out of a small plastic tub and she gently lifted the waistband of his pyjama shorts and slid the object inside, letting the waistband fall back into place. Stephanie had noticed that ever since his rescue, her brother had been sleeping deeper and deeper in the almost three weeks he had been with them.

His Predator skills appeared to be waning – at least at home. Stephanie's next act was to produce a can of shaving foam and then to gently fill her brother's left hand with a good amount of the slimy substance. To finish off, Stephanie produced a feather and she began to tickle her brothers nose. It did not take long for Jamie's nose to twitch and for the boy to squirm. The right hand came up to his face and rubbed his nose before flopping back down to the bed. Stephanie giggled quietly as she continued working with the feather. Then the boy fulfilled Stephanie's mission as he brought his left hand up and . . .

"Ahhhh!" Jamie yelled as he snapped awake.

Stephanie struggled to keep quiet as her brother looked around in the darkness and he wiped his face off, looking very confused.

"Hey, Jamie, you weed yourself?" Stephanie called out, suddenly.

"No!" Jamie exclaimed as a hand checked his groin, only to burst the water balloon which Stephanie had painstakingly inserted into his pyjama shorts. "Fuck, that's cold!"

Stephanie could contain herself no longer as she burst out laughing. A light came on as Jamie fumbled for his bedside light. He glared down at his big sister who was rolling around on the floor, laughing hysterically, barely able to breathe.

"What's going on?" a tired Danny asked as he came up the spiral stairs from the bedroom below.

The boy looked at his new big brother and his big sister, trying to figure out what was so funny at that time on a Sunday morning. Stephanie managed to contain herself long enough to say four words.

"Happy birthday, little brother!"

Mindy's tired eyes flickered open as she heard a combination of excited chattering and giggling, plus the odd excited bark from one of the animals.

With a groan, she nudged her husband.

"The kids are up, Dave."

"I noticed – you go use your obnoxious talents on them," Dave suggested.

Mindy laughed as she sat up and reached for a top but not before Dave had reached out and tweaked her left nipple.

"Ow!"

"Just checking you were definitely awake."

After a pee, Mindy rapidly dressed while her husband dived into the bathroom for a pee of his own. The kids were in the living room chatting animatedly. Horatio and Razor were chasing each other while Kiara sat with her mother and watched the excitement. All four kids were still in their night things.

"Jamie, why do you shaving foam in your hair?" Mindy asked as her eyes travelled down her eldest son before focussing on his pyjama shorts. "Did you pee yourself?"

"No – my adorable big sister decided to play a prank on me."

Stephanie grinned innocently.

"Happy birthday, Jamie," Mindy said with a grin and a chuckle.

"Thanks. It's the best birthday ever – even more because I have Steph with me."

"It's good to have you with us, Jamie. This is your home and you are among people who care about you. Enjoy it."

"Thanks, Mindy."

"Who's for pancakes?" Dave asked as he appeared.

There was an explosion of shouts, barks, and meows as everybody answered in the positive.

..._...

Jamie had a reasonable pile of birthday cards to open which included a massive card from Dave and Mindy as well as a large one from his siblings.

Jamie swore when he counted the small pile of cash which had fallen out of the various cards – there was a little over two hundred dollars.

"Jamie. . ." Dave warned.

Jamie had had a rude introduction to the rules during his first few days at the Lizewski home.

...+...

"For fuck's sake..." Jamie exclaimed on his second morning.

"Jamie – dollar, jar!" Dave said sternly and Jamie looked over at his sister as Dave pointed at the jar.

"But I don't got no money."

"Jamie – you were brought up to talk better than that," Stephanie pointed out to her brother.

"Sorry, I have no fucking money!"

"Two dollars. . ." Dave intoned.

Jamie glared at Stephanie who just shrugged.

"Welcome to my world, little brother," Stephanie grinned.

"When you get your first allowance on Friday, we'll take what you owe from it first," Dave commented.

"But then I might get nothing?" Jamie objected.

"Been there," Stephanie groused with a dejected laugh.

"Several times, if I remember correctly," Mindy remembered.

"She owed thirty bucks, one month," Anne-Marie added with a cheeky grin.

Jamie raised an eyebrow at that comment.

"Yes, Jamie, your big sister has a foul mouth on her," Dave commented.

"It's strange – I've never heard her swear before; she was always Little Miss Perfect as I remember it."

"I believe, I was," Stephanie admitted wistfully.

...+...

"Sorry, Dave."

"Just because it's your birthday, does not mean you can get carried away, young man," Dave explained.

Jamie grinned as he ate some more of his pancakes.

"So, how does it feel being nine?" Danny asked his elder brother.

"To be honest, there were times when I never thought I'd reach my next birthday," Jamie replied.

"We're survivors, Jamie," Stephanie said. "We beat them and now we have our whole lives ahead of us."

"Well said, Steph," Mindy commented.

"I have my moments," Stephanie admitted with an embarrassed grin.

When Jamie had finished his pancakes, Dave asked him to go get some more washing-up liquid from the garage. The boy dutifully headed off but then, a minute later there was a yell of joy. Stephanie bolted off her seat and ran for the garage, followed by Danny and Anne-Marie. Dave and Mindy followed more discretely and they found Jamie staring at a new addition to the garage. Sitting beside the Jaguar F-Pace and the XJR was a small-wheel Honda CRF125F in British Racing Green. There was a large blue ribbon on the front with a small sign: 'HAPPY BIRTHDAY,

JAMIE!.

"Is that for me?" Jamie asked.

"Who else is called 'Jamie', doofus!" Stephanie exclaimed.

"I don't know what to say," Jamie muttered.

"Steph and the twins have motorcycles, so we thought that you should have one, too."

Jamie turned and he gave Mindy a big hug.

"Thanks, Mum."

It was the first time for Jamie, calling her that, and Mindy just ruffled the boy's hair in response. Stephanie could see the extreme happiness in Mindy's face – Dave's too.

Jamie was fitting in perfectly, she thought.

..._...

Over the next couple of hours, various visitors arrived to see Jamie.

First to arrive was Abigail with the Murphy family. Abigail gave Jamie a big hug and a kiss on the lips which had Brad wolf whistling, embarrassing the hell out of both youngsters.

"Happy birthday, Jamie," Abigail said.

"Thanks, Abigail – I'm glad to be alive to celebrate it."

Next through the door was Marcus with Paige, Megan, and little Damon.

"Happy birthday, little nephew!" Megan said as she gave Jamie a hug.

"Thanks, Auntie Megan," Jamie replied with a cheeky grin.

"She's only three years older than you, Jamie," Stephanie pointed out. "Can the 'auntie'."

"I hope you are enjoying your new family, Jamie," Marcus said as he handed over a small package and a card.

"Cool!" Jamie exclaimed as he produced a crisp new $100 bill from the card.

Mindy scowled – Marcus had a reputation for being 'tight' with his cash.

"I'm enjoying having grand-kids," he pointed out.

"Thanks, Grandpa!"

"Happy birthday, Jamie," Paige said as she gave the boy a hug and a kiss on the cheek.

"Thanks, Grandma."

"That makes me feel old – I'm nowhere near as old as Grandpa," Paige laughed.

Marcus growled as Mindy grinned. Jamie ripped open the package to find a professional grade collapsible billy club. Jamie expertly flicked it open and brought it down slowly to the ground. Stephanie and Megan nodded their approval – it was a very nice weapon.

Next to arrive, were the Bennett's. Jamie was forced to endure hugs from Cathy, Chloe, and finally Becky. Joshua just handed over a heavy package with a smile. Jamie grinned as he sat down to open the present. He ripped off the Star Wars wrapping paper with ease and then he stared at the wooden box in his hand. It was heavy and he had to place it down on the kitchen counter to open it. Stephanie and Abigail crowded round, curiously.

"Holy, shit!" Jamie breathed as he opened the lid.

..._...

"Bloody hell!" Abigail added.

"You lucky fuck!" Stephanie threw in.

Jamie pulled out the first weapon.

It was a custom Heckler & Koch SFP9 SD, single-action, nine-millimetre pistol with paddle magazine release, SF-Trigger (Special Forces), ambidextrous safety lever, and extended barrel for a suppressor. Below the muzzle, a combined laser sight and flashlight unit was clipped onto the picatinny rail. The pistol frame was the same flame red colour as Rage's combat suit with signal yellow highlights on the grip and slide which were predominantly black. Jamie placed the weapon on the counter and he dug back into the box, producing an identical pistol which he placed next to the first. He reached back into the box and he produced eight empty magazines, the bases of which were signal yellow. The final items out of the box were a pair of short suppressors that were black with red and yellow streaks down the length of the devices. Jamie looked up at Joshua and the boy almost burst into tears.

"Those are from Dave, Mindy, Chloe, and myself," Joshua advised.

"Thank you," Jamie said very quietly, in awe at what he had just received.

..._...

"Cool pistols!" came a voice and Jamie span around and he ran to hug his friend.

"Easy, boy!" Shannon laughed as they hugged. "Happy birthday, Jamie."

"Thanks, Stormy."

Shannon growled but she let it go.

"Happy birthday, Jamie," Iain and Annabelle offered as they handed over a card.

"Not bad!" Patrick commented as he looked at the pistols.

"We can't have our son out there without proper equipment," Mindy observed proudly.

"Daddy," Shannon said sweetly. "My birthday is coming up soon. . ."

Patrick laughed as she looked over at his wife. Taylor just rolled her eyes.

"You want a pair of fancy pistols, too?" Patrick asked rhetorically.

"I'll love you forever. . ."

"Be a good girl, Shannon, and you never know," Mindy grinned.

..._...

For the next hour, the kids generally ran riot around the house and pool. Jamie and Abigail were making Shannon's life hell as they chased the thirteen-year-old around the house and the pool. Shannon was giggling her head off as she tried to elude her pursuers. Brad was enjoying the view as Shannon had chosen to wear a revealing two-piece bikini, much to her mother's disapproval. Annabelle, Iain, and Megan were getting on really well – 'channelling their inner kitties', Joshua had joked to three, glaring, unamused youngsters.

Stephanie took great delight in regaling everybody with the details of Jamie's early morning wake up. Jamie took it on the chin and the boy laughed with everybody else. For him, it was the best day of his life and well worth a small amount of humiliation. Becky enjoyed being back with Anne-Marie but both were banned from going anywhere near a bath or a shower.

It took a little bit of shouting and coaxing from the adults, but eventually, all the youngsters were corralled and it was time for something to eat. Cathy was in charge of the food (Mindy had wanted to cook but Stephanie had politely suggested that Jamie might not want food poisoning for his birthday) and she had produced copious amounts of foods that were suitable for both the adults and the kids. Soon, the boys were wolfing down pizza, hotdogs, and other savoury snacks which were all washed down with various fizzy drinks. The girls tried a little finesse but they eventually joined the boys in their obnoxious behaviour.

Shannon through all attempts at behaving like a young lady to the wind and she began to demonstrate how to deep-throat a hotdog much to Becky's disgust. The boys began laughing so hard that Brad managed to get Coke flying out of his nose. Megan tried to copy Shannon but she only managed to choke herself and instead she began dipping the sausages into mayonnaise and then licking the substance off the tip with suspiciously practiced ease.

It did not help that the boys and the girls were cheering her on – even Becky.

..._...

The adults had kept well out of the way of the rabid youngsters, but once they were deemed to have had enough fun – or before somebody got hurt – it was time for the birthday cake.

Cathy had made the cake with the assistance of Chloe and Abigail, who had both insisted on helping. The cake was large and shaped like a number 9. It was a chocolate cake with flame red and signal yellow icing and there were, unsurprisingly, nine candles. Jamie smiled hugely as he was surrounded by his new family, with Stephanie on one side of him, Abigail on the other, and Shannon standing behind him. Mindy lit the candles – Dave tried but Mindy had actually growled at him – before stepping back and waiting for her new son to mark his birthday in the proper fashion.

Jamie grinned up at everybody, seeing all the smiles. All the horror and the uncertainty of the past few months fell away as he concentrated on looking forwards with his new family and all of his friends. He hesitated as he thought about what he could wish for. He felt a gentle, but impatient, nudge from Shannon and a squeeze of either hand from Abigail and Stephanie. Jamie took a deep breath and in one go, he blew out all nine candles, watching the wisps of smoke vanish upwards as everybody cheered.

"What did you wish for?" Abigail asked her friend.

"If I tell, it won't come true," Jamie replied cheekily.

..._...

Everybody grabbed a plate of chocolate cake and settled down.

Becky and Anne-Marie sat down in front of the TV and put on a My Little Pony DVD. They slowly ate their cake as they watched. Before long, Stephanie and Abigail joined the younger girls to watch the animated series.

"So much for hardened, professional assassins!" Brad commented dryly as he watched the four girls giggling at the ponies.

"Do you like having balls, Bradley?" Stephanie asked. "Abigail, would you like a sister, instead of a brother?"

"Could be nice," Abigail mused.

Brad laughed, unsure if the girls were just messing with him.

"We are, so evil!" Abigail said as she glanced over at Stephanie.

"We are, aren't we?" Stephanie replied and they both giggled.

"Jamie, why is it all your women are totally nuts?" Brad asked.

"That thought has crossed my mind, once or twice," Jamie replied. "I have no idea – I just seem to attract nutcases!"

"You saying that I am a nutcase?" Shannon asked.

"You're the worst of all of them!" Jamie replied.

"Cool!" Shannon grinned.

..._...

That night, Jamie Lizewski went to bed the happiest boy alive. All his dreams were coming true and his life could not be any better.

"Goodnight, Jamie. Happy birthday."

"Thanks, Mindy – you're the greatest."

"I know," Mindy grinned.

The boy smiled as he closed his eyes, reliving every minute of the most perfect day, ever.

Chapter 339*: Dark Days in Gotham

Tuesday, October 4th, 2016

Gotham City

The twins were very apprehensive, which was to be expected.

It had been exactly a year since either of them had last set foot in that godawful city and neither of them had smiled since they had set foot off the Gulfstream jet.

"I never wanted to come back here. . ." Danny commented and his sister nodded her agreement.

"You are both safe, okay?" Chloe insisted.

Stephanie had stayed behind with Jamie. She understood that it was a private trip for the twins who needed closure – she was also happy to spend some quality time with her brother, just the two of them. With Mindy, Dave, and the twins for the trip were Megan and Chloe. A small but potent force. There was not much chatter as they drove through the city from North to South; it was like a pall of gloom had passed over everybody. As they drove through Downtown, Chloe peered at a club to the right.

"I see they rebuilt The Velvet Beaver. . ."

Mindy grinned as Chloe looked wistfully at the 'ladies club'.

"That place is disgusting on so many levels," Megan growled as she remembered the DVD which she had shared with Curtis.

"What?" Anne-Marie asked.

"We did an operation there – well, Chloe did."

"First and only operation I ever did while naked," Chloe mused.

"What?" Danny exclaimed.

Megan chuckled.

"That club is a place where women have sex with other women. Chloe infiltrated them and to maintain her cover, she had to go naked while having sex with another woman," she explained.

"Ewww!" Anne-Marie muttered as her face went bright pink to match that of her brother.

"That's what I thought, too," Chloe said. "It was scary, but it was also exciting and it was something very different."

"You would never find me doing anything naked!" Megan declared.

"Except stripping in front of a couple dozen people, forty feet beneath Chicago," Chloe pointed out with a grin.

"That was different – you went naked in public!"

"Okay – enough talk about Chloe's eccentricities," Mindy ordered as they crossed over Sutter Bridge and reached their destination.

The twins looked at each other with foreboding etched on their young faces.

Gravesend Cemetery

The graves stretched for hundreds of yards, almost as far as the eye could see.

If Gotham was short of anything, it was not dead bodies. Many of the graves were two-hundred-years-old with some even older. The city was an old city dating back hundreds of years since its inception. The family wove their way in and out of the gravestones, some of which were a good six feet in height and massive. The grave when they found it, was headed by a large chunk of granite. It had been paid for and installed by Bruce Wayne, almost a year before.

Here Lies an Honourable Man

Edward Jamieson died October 4th, 2015
defending his family

And His Loving Wife

Emily Jamieson died January 11th, 2012
a victim of Gotham

Loving Father and Doting Mother to two very special children

Neither child could say anything for several minutes as they fought back the tears but both eventually succumbed and hugged their new parents, not wanting to take their eyes off the final resting place of their real mother and father.

"We miss you, Daddy. You too, Mommy."

Anne-Marie spoke for her brother as well. Danny was not taking it well and he was still sobbing even as Dave hugged him.

"We're in a better place, now. We have people who love us and they are doing everything they can to protect us. Our lives are really good, back in Chicago, and we've learnt to look after ourselves. Thank you, Daddy, for allowing Dave and Mindy to look after us – they're doing the most amazing job, despite the times when we misbehave."

Mindy looked down at the grave, remembering her pledge to the man before he had died.

...+...

The man hesitated and he looked over at his kids before responding.

"I was told that you would get me and my family out of Gotham."

"You have our word, Mr Jamieson," Mindy replied, looking over at the kids.

"I want you to promise me something . . ." Ed Jamieson began, following Mindy's gaze. "If anything should happen to me . . . they are only seven-years-old and they have nobody else. I can sense when people are good and I can see that you both respect each other. If anything happens to me, I want you to see that they are looked after. Please, promise me."

The man appeared desperate and he was certain that things were not going to end well. Mindy looked over at Dave, who nodded.

"You have our word, Ed. Anything happens to you, your kids will be looked after and taken far away from Gotham," Mindy confirmed.

Ed nodded and called his kids over.

"Dave, Mindy. These are my children, Anne-Marie and Daniel."

Ed turned to his children.

"If I'm late back one evening, Dave and Mindy will look after you, understand?"

They were only seven-years-old, so obviously they did not, however, they responded dutifully.

"Yes, Daddy."

"You do anything and everything that they ask of you and you will both obey them, without question, understand?"

The twins were now looking a little worried, but again they replied in the affirmative.

"Yes, Daddy."

...+...

Dave could remember the night like it was yesterday. The bullet-riddled house. The dying man. The distraught youngsters.

...+...

Blood gurgled from the man's mouth as he forced out his final words.

"Promise me that my kids will be looked after. Make sure that they know about me at the right time. Promise me that you will keep them safe."

"As if they were my own, Ed. As if they were my own," Dave promised.

It was a promise that he would keep, no matter what. He also vowed to avenge the man, maybe not that night, but he would be avenged.

"Thank you. . ."

...+...

Dave felt the anger surging up within him, just as it had a year before.

Mindy sensed the anger but she did not comment. They had talked about it and Dave had insisted on taking the lead. Mindy had agreed without further thought, leaving the task to her husband. She had not been there during Edward Jamieson's final moments but Dave had been and Mindy knew that the moment had affected her husband deeply.

Dave wanted to avenge Edward Jamieson and provide closure for his children.

Two hours later

Wayne Manor

"Welcome, all!"

"Thank you, Alfred," Mindy said as they were waved into the capacious entrance hall of the Gothic manor.

"Mindy!" Selina Kyle exclaimed as she ran to Mindy and hugged her.

Bruce Wayne laughed as he saw Mindy's expression.

"Hi, Dave, welcome back to Gotham," he said, offering his hand to Dave who shook it warmly.

"I can't say I'm glad to be back. . ." Dave breathed.

"It grows on you," Bruce replied sourly. "You remember, Aiden?"

"Hello, young man – you've grown since France," Dave commented.

"Hello, Mr Lizewski."

Dave laughed.

"Mr Lizewski is my father. Call me Dave."

"Hi, Dave," Aiden said with a grin.

After the remaining introductions, they all went through into the study for afternoon tea.

..._...

"Bruce?"

"Hello, Anne-Marie. How may I help you?" Bruce replied.

"My brother and I wanted to thank you . . . to thank you for what you did for our parents."

Bruce smiled down at the little girl and he went down on one knee, looking into her deep brown eyes.

"It was the least, that I could do. I just wish I could have done more."

"Gotham was our home but now our home is Chicago," Anne-Marie continued. "I know that what you, Selina, and now Aiden, do in this city would meet our Daddy's approval. He loved Gotham but he hated what the criminals did to it. We know that our Daddy worked for bad people and probably did bad things but he loved us and he cared for us."

"Not bad, Anne-Marie," Chloe said.

"Thank you, for that, Anne-Marie," Bruce said with a smile.

"We've seen the Hit Cave," Danny grinned. "Can we see the Bat Cave?"

Mindy scowled – she hated anybody using 'Hit' before anything expect for 'Girl', as in 'Hit Girl'. Joshua laughed, knowing Mindy's thoughts on the subject.

"Calm down, Mindy – you might blow a Hit Artery!"

Mindy closed her eyes and she took a deep breath before forcing a smile and not raising to Joshua's bait.

..._...

The twins looked on in awe as the fireplace vanished. Aiden grinned as he replaced the remote in the book and Selina placed it back on the bookshelf.

"You need something snazzier than that damn remote," Joshua commented.

"I considered a bust of William Shakespeare – tip the head back and flip a switch," Bruce commented. "Selina wasn't so sure."

"That's like something from a 1960's TV show," Selina explained. "I wanted something cool – not sure what at this point. . ."

"How many steps?" Anne-Marie asked as she gazed downwards.

"One-hundred-and-eighty-four!" Aiden announced with a flourish as he looked over at Mindy. "May I escort the famous Hit Girl, below?"

"Who told you?" Mindy asked, good-naturedly.

"You think I'm stupid?"

"No, we don't, Aiden – or should I say, Nightwing."

The boy grinned – he loved the recognition. Very few people knew that Aiden Hutton, a boy by day, was Nightwing, a vigilante, by night.

"You're beautiful," Aiden commented as he grabbed Mindy's hand and led her down the stone steps.

Mindy went along for the ride, ignoring Chloe and Joshua who were wolf-whistling and making crude remarks. The twins followed, counting each step as they went.

..._...

"...180, 181, 182, 183 . . . 184!"

Anne-Marie and Danny were both out of breath by the time they had made it to the bottom of the stone steps. They passed through a door which Aiden held open and into the Vehicle Park. Their eyes went wide at the sight of the motorcycles and the towering cave.

"Way better than the Hit Cave!" Danny exclaimed.

"Daniel!" Mindy growled.

"Suck it up, Mom – you can't have the best of everything!"

Mindy stalked off towards the Training Area, not trusting herself to speak.

"What are those?" Danny demanded as he caught sight of two very black objects.

"The Bat and The Cat?" Bruce replied with a wink at Selina. "Oooh, you wouldn't be interested in those."

That night

West Side Midtown

The evening's revellers were out on the town – as they were, every night.

It was the usual mix of couples, singles, prostitutes, and God only knew what came out of the Gotham gutter after dark. Many headed for restaurants, while others made for bars and nightclubs. One particular nightclub was located on the corner of Robinson Avenue and West 15th Street. The nightclub was pounding with sound.

It was borderline deafening and definitely an aural health hazard. Sai Maroni was in a happy mood as he sipped his drink. His empire was thriving ever since the death of Carmine Falcone and Fish Mooney. He and that freak, Penguin, had an understanding and they generally kept out of each other's way. He had not been troubled by the emerging vigilantes known as Batman and Catwoman – what a pair! Maroni was not scared of the badly named halfwits – they were making an impact on certain freelance operations but they had not dented any of his own – although Penguin had lost quite a bit of money to them.

Then, Maroni's eyes were drawn to a disturbance, over near the entrance. In the strobe lights, it was difficult to see what was going on. One of his bodyguards went down hard as something large pushed through the security. Above the music, screaming could be heard as people scrambled out of the way of the raging bull which was wiping out Maroni's security like they were nothing.

Whoever it was, they appeared angry, very angry.

..._...

As the raging bull came closer, Maroni chuckled and the mob boss shook his head – he had recognised the person advancing on him.

Another of his men was kicked to one side while another was physically picked up and thrown half way across the room. Maroni had to acknowledge the veteran vigilante's moves. The man appeared to be on his own – not that that appeared to be hindering him, in any way, as he made his way directly towards Maroni. Finally, the table before Maroni was thrown to one side, complete with its complement of glasses and bottles, to smash into the wall. Maroni took in the green and yellow markings on the combat suit. It was not hard to tell who it was that was standing just inches away from him.

Now, what could one of Chicago's most famous vigilantes be doing in Gotham? He knew that Hit Girl and her entourage had waged a bloody war, just about a year ago, in the city, and they had killed off most of his 'competitors'.

"Hello, Kick-Ass!" Maroni yelled over the pounding music. "How may I help you?"

..._...

Maroni flinched as the armoured mask came right up to his face.

Kick-Ass did not speak for almost a full minute. Maroni knew the tactic – intimidation – he had used it enough, himself. For someone more used to intimidating, it was not nice being the one on the intimidated side. Yes, Maroni felt intimidated – who would not be when they came face to face with such an accomplished vigilante!

"I want to find the man who ordered the Jamieson hit, last year. You have twelve hours to find the man and then to call this number."

"Or, what?"

"Or, I put the blame on you . . . and I . . . well, I will kill you."

With that proclamation, Kick-Ass turned away and walked towards the exit. Nobody stood in his way – everybody gave him a very wide berth indeed. Maroni followed – keeping a discrete distance between him and Kick-Ass.

Maroni made it to the entrance of his club, just in time to see Kick-Ass jump into the right-hand seat of a four-ton, eighteen-foot long, black monster that sat on a pair of tracks. The 600-horsepower diesel engine roared as the tracks spun on the tarmac before gripping and the black monster roared off, closely followed by a twin which emerged from a side street. Maroni could see markings below the gull-wing doors on each vehicle – or maybe tank might have been a better description. It was them, Batman and Catwoman with a pair of new toys. Very apt, Maroni had to admit. The menacing black vehicles would fit into Gotham very well, he thought as the tracked vehicles vanished around the end of the block.

Maroni returned to his club, shaking his head.

Beneath Wayne Manor

"We're clear!"

Mindy breathed a sigh of relief. She hated it when Dave was out on his own – she worried. It had been an easy mission – but they were in Gotham and Gotham was the very definition of unpredictability. Actually, Dave had not been alone – he had had Batman, Catwoman, and Nightwing with him. Actually, Mindy had been more than a little jealous that Dave had got to ride in one of the new Ripsaw mini-tanks.

Now, they just had to make it back through the raging city.

Gotham

To say that the city was in a worse state than on their previous visit was not far wrong.

Naturally, the two tracked vehicles attracted attention as they roared through the city, taking mostly backstreets to avoid too much attention. Nonetheless, the citizens and criminals of Gotham were 'connected'. As they roared past the Gotham City Police Headquarters on East 12th Street, they found themselves with a small entourage of vehicles which were not being driven by law-abiding careful drivers. Then, once they had turned up 5th Avenue towards Starr Bridge, they could see a problem, a few blocks ahead.

Their route was blocked at East Trident Street. Kick-Ass braced himself as Batman stomped his foot on the brakes and the four-ton vehicle slithered to a halt on the blacktop with Catwoman and Nightwing following suit beside them. Ahead of them, were well over a dozen of the Penguin's goons. Behind them, came their entourage of five vehicles which all skidded to a halt and unloaded sixteen more fighters – Maroni's men.

They each wanted a piece of Batman, Catwoman, and Nightwing – a chunk of Kick-Ass was just a bonus.

..._...

"We've faced worse," Batman commented.

"No, we haven't," Nightwing replied.

"There's . . . five, ten – err, carry the seven . . . thirty of the cunts!" Catwoman concluded. "Maybe a few more."

"There's four of us," Nightwing pointed out.

"Sounds like an unfair fight," Kick-Ass threw in as she drew his Ko-Wakizashi swords. "For them. . ."

There was the sound of rubber skidding on blacktop and a motorcycle slewed out of Trident Street and came to a rapid halt. Two shapes leapt off and brandished their own bladed weaponry.

"Thought we'd come to even the odds," Wildcat growled as Shadow took up position beside Catwoman.

..._...

A short distance up Trident Street, about a block from the looming fight, an unmarked car sat at the side of the street with two men in the front seats.

Detective Harvey Bullock lowered his burrito and glared at the impending criminal offence just a block away. He looked over at his partner, Detective Jim Gordon who sat in the driver's seat.

"Do you ever feel that you are always in the wrong place at the wrong time?" Bullock complained.

"All the time, Harv," Gordon replied as he started the engine and pulled away from the curb. "All the time."

"Shotguns or AR-15s?" Bullock continued. "Maybe both."

Gordon accelerated down the block before stopping in the middle of the street. He pushed open his door and jumped out.

"GCPD! Put the weapons down!"

He and Bullock dived for cover as bullets pelted their vehicle.

"What the hell, did you do that for?" Bullock yelled.

..._...

They were the opening shots in a war which was going to consume the city.

The fight was harsh as the vigilantes clashed with Penguin and Marconi's men. It was a general free for all as Penguin's men also attacked those of Marconi. Amongst the fighters was a bald man – Victor Zsasz – who blasted away with a pair of chrome pistols, targeting Marconi's men and what he saw as the annoying vigilantes who had caused nothing but trouble in the city he loved.

Kick-Ass was enjoying himself. Two bodies lay bleeding on the blacktop, dead, near his feet. Another quickly joined them as he smashed the back of his armoured fist into the eager face. Bullets struck his armour which the veteran vigilante ignored as he continued his rampage around the junction. Not all that many feet away, Batman was laying out a carpet of Penguin's goons – some got back up, only to be put back down again by the black-clad vigilante. Nightwing had partnered up with Wildcat and they both covered each other as they ensured that they remained in the very centre of the maelstrom of fighting humans. As for the women. Catwoman was lashing out, literally, with her whip and dragging unwilling men within range of Shadow's lethal bō-staff.

As the men dropped, the fight began to wane and those remaining were having second thoughts about their chosen career path.

..._...

As the final man fell to the blacktop to join his pals, the six vigilantes were all who remained standing.

Except of course for the GCPD's finest who had expertly mopped up all those who had tried to escape in their direction.

"Is that it?" Detective Bullock growled as he sauntered up with his pump-action shotgun resting on his right shoulder.

Detective Gordon gave his partner a withering look before he turned to Kick-Ass.

"Always good to have you guys in town," Gordon chuckled. "But you do leave a mess!"

"Sorry about that," Kick-Ass growled good-naturedly as Wildcat strode over, wiping the blood off her highly-polished Katana. "Can't take the girls anywhere!"

"Not my fault they leak blood," Wildcat commented.

"You miss biology in school?" Shadow queried. "Bodies are full of the shit."

"You're just as messy," Wildcat retorted.

Whilst the girls were bickering, Kick-Ass turned his attention to Trident Street where three black SUVs were heading in their direction.

..._...

The vehicles stopped and three men dismounted from two of the vehicles.

The men moved into positions which covered the third SUV. Each of the men was armed with a modern SIG Sauer MPX submachine gun and their demeanour showed them to be professional mercenaries. Finally, a door opened on the third SUV and a slim form appeared from the rear. It was a woman – a strikingly beautiful woman, even by the limited illumination from the street lighting.

"And who might you be?" Jim Gordon asked.

"My name?"

"It would be nice?"

"Sophie Falcone, James."

A short time later

Wayne Manor

The fighting in Gotham had taken a toll on Megan.

Not a physical toll, but a mental toll. She hated the city for many reasons. She hated the criminal levels in the city. She hated the darkness that enshrouded the city. Above all, she hated the memories that being back in the city brought to the fore. The girl had suffered at the hands of Falcone's men, Maroni's men. Gotham had changed Megan inside and it had forced her to grow up, fast. She had only been eleven at the time – a daunting series of events for such a young girl to endure.

Curtis had been injured – she herself had been in pain from injuries. Then had come the extreme torture of the man who had tried to kill Marcus.

"I need some fresh air," Megan stated as she returned from a shower and made her way past the living room.

"Don't get lost!" Chloe laughed.

"Funny!" Megan called back as she headed outside.

This chapter continues in the standalone Chapter 5: Wildcat Into Darkness of my other story, The Trials of Kick-Ass and Hit Girl. Due to the disturbing content of that chapter it was decided not to feature the content directly in Forsaken.

However, the events played out in that chapter are deemed critical to future events in Forsaken.

Chapter 340*: Gotham - Deeper and Darker

This chapter is the continuation from the standalone Chapter 5: Wildcat into Darkness of my other story, The Trials of Kick-Ass and Hit Girl. Due to the disturbing content of that chapter, it was decided not to feature the content directly in Forsaken.

However, the events played out in that chapter are critical to future events in Forsaken.

Wednesday, October 5th, 2016

Gotham City

The twins were very apprehensive, which was to be expected.

It had been a year and a day since either of them had last set foot in that godawful city. However, they were about to meet the person who ordered the death of their father, one year before. They were not allowed to go with Kick-Ass into the city – he refused point-blank. Their Auntie Wildcat had told them to wait with Catwoman until they returned with their prey. She also hinted that it would be well worth the wait.

Nonetheless, the two youngsters were uneasy as they watched Kick-Ass, Hit Girl, Shadow, and Wildcat climb into an armoured Range Rover before they took off into the city with Kick-Ass at the wheel.

..._...

Maroni was smiling as they pulled up outside his club.

"You not wanting us inside?" Kick-Ass chuckled as he climbed out of the Range Rover.

"They're still repairing the damage from your last visit," Maroni replied dryly. "Now, Kick-Ass, I am only helping you because I respect what you and those bitches represent."

"Or because your men failed to kill us!" Wildcat growled back.

"Kick-Ass – please keep your bitches on their leash," Maroni warned, ignoring Wildcat's body language. "It wasn't easy – nor cheap! But, I have her – she wasn't easy to find, but I got 'er."

"Her?"

Maroni chuckled.

"Oh, yes."

"What are you hiding, bastard?" Hit Girl demanded as she moved towards the mob boss.

"Kick-Ass . . . leash!" Maroni reminded the veteran vigilante as he glared down at Hit Girl whose own body language dictated her feelings. "I think you may find the revelation . . . poetic."

"What are you talking about?" Kick-Ass asked in a cautionary growl.

"I'd hate to miss the big family reunion but I see you didn't bring the brats with you. . ."

Wildcat flew forwards, only for Hit Girl to grab her sister by the shoulder and thus save Maroni's pathetic life from a violent and painful ending. Maroni turned towards one of his minions and he nodded. A minute passed before a figure emerged. It was a woman, just as Maroni had advised, only she wore a black hood while her wrists were bound behind her back. Her clothing was smart but a mess – presumably a result of struggling against her captors. Shadow stepped forwards and she opened the back of the Range Rover so the woman could be shoved into the load area before the hatches were slammed shut on her. There had been no sound indicating that the woman was gagged.

"She's a fighter – be careful should you release her," Maroni chuckled as he walked into his club.

..._...

They did not enter the Bat Cave proper – they stopped in one of the outlying buildings of the quarry.

There, the woman was hauled out of the Range Rover and her bindings were cut before she was secured to a prepared framework, her wrists level with her head and her elbows bent at right-angles. Her ankles were secured two feet apart to the same framework. Only then, did Kick-Ass remove the hood. There was something disturbingly familiar about the woman. She had long, light brown hair and blue eyes which matched the hair and eyes of a certain someone else. Shadow removed the gag and the woman took a deep breath, coughing slightly.

"A drink. . ."

Shadow passed up a bottle of water and held it for the woman to drink. After a few pulls, the woman nodded her thanks.

"Who the fuck are you?" Hit Girl demanded.

"My name is Emily. Emily Collins – from what Maroni was bitching about, you may know me better as Emily Jamieson."

The place suddenly turned very cold and there was total silence for over a minute as the assembled vigilantes took in that last piece of information and they processed it through their brains – or tried to.

"There has to be some kind of mistake," Wildcat blurted out.

"No mistake, honey – I married that deadbeat, Ed Jamieson in '07 and had those two brats a year later . . . never did get rid of those blasted stretchmarks. So . . . how are Anne-Marie and Daniel . . . still alive?"

The bitch did not seem to care about her family – not one bit.

"You died in 2012," Hit Girl pointed out and the woman laughed.

"Faked – good, wasn't it? That deadbeat never did find out."

"Why?" Hit Girl pushed on, astounded by the continued revelations.

"I only came to Gotham to hideout – Ed was a cover identity, nothing more – the brats were a mistake resulting from a night spent drinking and fucking. I never wanted kids . . . but then I got twins! Screaming. Shitting. Yelling. Crying. Never did get a moment's peace."

"Why did you do it?"

"What – use Ed?"

"No, why did you kill him?" Hit Girl pushed.

"He was about to rat on Maroni – I was worried that he might know something about me being alive, wrongly it turned out, but it was as good a time as any for him to die."

"The twins?" Hit Girl growled as she barely contained her anger.

"I couldn't have them growing up and seeking vengeance, now, could I?" Emily laughed.

"Leave her!" Hit Girl ordered as she reinstalled the gag before they all left the space and climbed back into the Range Rover.

The Bat Cave

"Where is he?" Danny demanded as Hit Girl climbed out of the Range Rover, in the Bat Cave.

"Err – we need to talk," Kick-Ass suggested.

Hit Girl sat down on the rough-hewn stone floor of the cave and she pulled off her mask. Kick-Ass followed suit and he waved Anne-Marie and Danny to join them. Both youngsters looked worried and apprehensive as they sat down. Wildcat sat down behind them but retained her mask. Shadow loitered, waving Bruce, Selina, and Aiden to stay back.

"What do you two remember about your mother?" Mindy began.

"Our mother?" Anne-Marie echoed.

The twins looked at each other before their faces scrunched up in thought and then Anne-Marie spoke for each of them.

"Not all that much, she died a long time ago. We loved her, but there were times when I don't think she liked us very much. Maybe we were just badly behaved."

"What did your father say happened to her?" Dave asked gently.

"We were four when he told us that Mommy had gone away and would not be coming back. When we were six and able to understand things better, he told us that she was dead," Danny explained.

Mindy hated what she had to do next and she reached over to grip Dave's hand while gripping onto her daughter's hand. Dave took hold of his son's hand who then held his sister's hand – that was rare; he didn't think a boy his age should be holding his sister's hand. Mindy struggled with what to say as she felt tears fill her eyes – she had no idea why her tears were there, but they were a mixture of anger and sorrow for what she was about to say.

"Your mother is alive."

..._...

The expressions were mixed.

Disbelief. Surprise. Shock. Happiness. Sadness. They were all there. Both eight-year-olds had tears running down their cheeks at the news. It was almost two minutes before Danny spoke.

"Our Mom is alive?" he asked cautiously.

"She is," Mindy confirmed in a guarded tone. "But . . . there's more."

"What do you mean?" Anne-Marie demanded – guessing that something was very wrong.

"Your father was killed on the orders of your mother."

Anne-Marie's mouth flapped open and closed for a moment.

"Would you care to repeat that?" she asked in a decidedly unfriendly tone.

"Your father was killed by your mother," Mindy rephrased. "Not directly, but she ordered it."

"NO!" Anne-Marie shouted. "I refuse to believe it . . . you . . . you're just making it up. You're scared that she'll take us back!"

The young vigilante's eyes were blazing with hate as she smoothly drew her butterfly swords and she pointed them at Mindy. However, Mindy never moved – she couldn't. Anne-Marie looked down at her brother.

"Get up, Daniel."

Danny did not move, he just shook his head.

"Anne-Marie, I love you more than anything, and you are my sister, but you can be so dense."

"What?"

"Look into Mindy's eyes – she's telling the truth, you idiot!"

Anne-Marie looked down at Mindy who looked back up at her daughter.

"I've never lied to either one of you," Mindy said calmly. "You both have the same deal as Stephanie, and now Jamie: no lies."

Anne-Marie looked horror-struck as the realisation of Mindy's claims burrowed into her mind. The tears began to fall unimpeded and Danny stood up to hug his sister. Mindy stood up, too, followed by Dave.

"Can you put those things away?" Mindy asked.

Anne-Marie stowed her swords and then she dived at Mindy, wrapping her arms around her and sobbing hard. Danny joined in and he was sobbing too. Dave wrapped his powerful arms around his family and he held them tightly.

..._...

It was quite a few minutes before the twins calmed down.

The revelations had been too much for them to handle. The expressions on the other faces – Bruce, Selina, and Aiden – were beginning to move from stunned to anger. How could anybody put out a contract on two then seven-year-olds? How could somebody put a contract out on their own children? It was unthinkable, but then Selina came up with the answer.

"Gotham fucking sucks!" she growled angrily.

Her voice helped to move things along as the tight family group moved apart. Anne-Marie looked at her brother and then up and Dave.

"Where is the fucking bitch?" she growled in a voice which nobody had ever heard before. "Sorry – I'll put a few bucks in the jar when we get home."

"No, honey," Dave said slowly. "Tonight, there's no swear jar."

"So?" Danny scowled. "Where's the fucking bitch?"

The Quarry

"Hello, mother!"

Emily Jamieson looked down at the boy for a moment before she said anything.

"You must be Daniel – you look well."

"No thanks to you!"

"A minor disagreement. . ."

"A MINOR disagreement!" Anne-Marie exploded. "You killed our father!"

"Hello, Anne-Marie – you're looking very beautiful."

"DON'T you talk to me, BITCH! You killed our Dad – he gave his life for us. . . He kept us going after you went – after you left Gotham!"

Anne-Marie was seething as she spat the words out at her mother.

"You made us think you were bloody dead!" Danny growled, tears running down his young face. "How could you?"

The woman's face showed a little compassion for the boy, but only for a fleeting second.

"Your father was a soft bastard and I needed him – then I didn't. I had no feelings for any of you."

"Don't you DARE call him that!" Anne-Marie yelled as she stepped forwards and she drove her armoured fist into her mother's stomach.

The woman tried to double over, but her bindings prevented it. Instead, she coughed violently as she struggled to regain her breath and refill her lungs. The arrogant smirk had gone – to be replaced by a slightly concerned expression as she regained her composure. She took a moment to look at her flesh and blood properly. They appeared healthy and well cared for – somebody had obviously taken good care of them during the year since their father had died. She frowned as she took in the armoured suits and the weapons. It appeared fairly obvious who their adoptive parents were as two masked individuals appeared behind Anne-Marie and Daniel.

"So, the mighty Hit Girl is going to avenge my husband and kill me, all so that my fucking offspring can sleep better at night."

Hit Girl stepped forwards and she chuckled.

"Oh, no," she growled.

"No," Kick-Ass hissed. "We're not going to kill you."

"We are!" the twins said together in a disturbingly flat tone.

..._...

"You would never hurt you own mother. . ."

Anne-Marie laughed in a disturbingly theatrical manner.

"We have a mother who loves us. We have a mother who cares for us. We have a mother who would do anything to keep us safe," she growled up at Emily.

"We have a father who loves us. We have a father who cares for us. We have a father who would do anything to keep us safe," Danny added in a cold, icy tone.

"You no longer have any right to call yourself our mother," Anne-Marie continued. "We respect and miss our Daddy, but he has gone on to a better place, as have we. We want for nothing and we don't need you."

"You haven't the ability to kill – you're just a pair of kiddies playing dress up!"

Anne-Marie smirked darkly.

"I've killed two men – with these," she stated as she drew her highly-polished, and very deadly, butterfly swords. "I am a vigilante just like my mother before me. I am Rogue."

"I only have the one notch in my belt," Danny stated as he drew his tactical wakizashi. "But I have no qualms about using this blade again. I am a vigilante like my Dad. I am Ravage."

"Qualms?" Anne-Marie queried.

"Read it somewhere," Danny replied with a grin.

Emily Jamieson laughed out loud.

"How adorable!"

Hit Girl could see the bravado beginning to wane but the woman still had plenty of fight left in her.

"Mask up, Rogue and Ravage – time to play," she growled.

Once the two miniature vigilantes were masked and ready, Hit Girl severed the bindings on Emily Jamieson.

"You have twenty seconds. . ."

Emily Jamieson ran for her life.

..._...

She bolted for what she hoped was the exit from the madhouse she had somehow found herself in.

However, as she dodged unidentifiable chunks of machinery, she found herself lost – she had no idea where she was. Was she still in Gotham? Then she saw a glimmer of something – moonlight? She ran for it and she skidded to a stop just before a doorway.

"Not this way, bitch!" Wildcat drawled as she nonchalantly blocked the doorway.

"Let me go – please."

Get running, bitch!" Wildcat ordered as she shoved the woman hard enough to make her fall over backwards onto the ground which was covered in bird crap and other undesirable substances which had built up in the decades since the decaying building had last seen active use. "Get up!"

Fear coursed through Emily Jamieson as she scrambled to her feet and she ran away from Wildcat.

..._...

Emily lost track of time as she dodged in and out of passageways looking for a way out.

She could not believe what was happening to her – she was being hunted by her own children. She was in two minds as to whether she really believed that either of them could kill, despite their claims.

"Hello, Mother!"

It was Daniel – he was standing before her, having appeared out of the darkness with a vicious looking blade in his hand. He ran at her and she dodged the blade which cut into her side enough to soak her blouse in blood but not enough to do any major damage.

The little bastard laughed as he vanished back into the darkness. The pain was sharp but bearable and she could still run. She never saw the pipes which ran a few inches above the concrete floor and she tripped over them, landing in God only knew what and she came to a halt. She froze, listening for any sound – there was none, except for some creaking from the structure and a few drips from leaking water. She slowly regained her feet and just as slowly she moved through the darkness trying desperately to find a way out. After a short distance, she stopped beneath a broken skylight. The moonlight was shining through and she could see a little of what was around her. She heard movement and she turned to see them standing just a few feet away from her.

"What are you going to do?" she demanded as she eyed the pistols on their belts. "I'm your mother – you would never shoot your own mother."

"You are not our mother, bitch!" Rogue growled. "No, we would not shoot you."

There was a moment of hope for Emily Jamieson which lasted mere seconds before it was quashed.

"But we would enjoy gutting you," Ravage added as he stepped forwards and he drove his tactical wakizashi deep into the woman's left side, tearing through internal organs before wrenching the sword out.

Rogue followed suit as she expertly drove her twin butterfly swords into the woman's stomach, twisting them savagely and encouraging copious amounts of blood to spill to the floor as the woman fell to her knees. Shock crossed her face which was then replaced with momentary anger before her face went blank as she fell to the floor, dead.

"She is dead, this time?" Rogue queried as shadows appeared around her and her brother.

"Yes – she is dead," Kick-Ass growled without any emotion.

"You guys, okay?" Hit Girl asked.

"Never better!" Ravage announced as Shadow and Wildcat appeared out of the gloom.

Thursday, October 6th

Chicago

The flight back had been quiet.

Megan had kept to herself, while the twins had slept most of the way. While Mindy was glad to be back home, she was concerned about what lay ahead. There were two days left to the deadline set by the tri-partite criminal organisation. As they drove to drop off Chloe and collect Stephanie and Jamie, Mindy decided that worrying about it would not alter the fact that Chicago was about to sink into the quagmire of war.

It was a relief to arrive at the home of Joshua and Chloe and not have to worry about any problems.

Fielding Drive

Mindy and Dave were almost mown down by Stephanie and Jamie when they appeared.

Stephanie's hugs were borderline painful. However, the hug which Chloe was forced to endure was of epic proportions and poor little Becky was almost squished as she and Joshua fought to hug Chloe first. Stephanie received enormous hugs from her younger siblings before they dived at Jamie who tried to run but was dragged into a hug – he was still getting used to having younger siblings, not to mention people who cared for him.

"You two been well behaved for Joshua?" Mindy asked as Stephanie appeared a little apprehensive. She welcomed her siblings as well as her parents, but she held back, just a bit.

"I was a perfect angel," Jamie reported with a shit-eating grin. "Can't say so much for my criminal sister and her partners in crime."

Mindy scowled at Stephanie who visibly flinched away.

"I have your package from Lucius – should I ask what it is?" Mindy asked her daughter.

"Not really . . . I, err . . . I have an admission to make."

"It wasn't entirely her fault," Joshua offered in Stephanie's defence.

"The blame kind of goes three ways. . ." Becky suggested with an uneasy grin.

Safehouse D

Mindy took one look at the Ford Fiesta ST and she growled.

She growled loudly enough that Stephanie took several steps back, away from her mother. The front end of the car was smashed in on the right-hand side, obliterating the headlight and everything back to the wheel arch.

"Were any of you hurt?" Mindy asked.

"No – well, just our pride . . . I'm sorry."

"Were you driving?"

"Yes – Abigail was in the front next to me and Becky was in the back . . . We all had our seatbelts on – the pillar kind of . . . appeared."

Mindy grimaced and just shook her head.

"I'm mad but I'm pleased that none of you were hurt. We can replace the car but we can never replace any of you – thankfully there is only one of each of you!"

Stephanie decided not to issue a snarky response.

"Abigail's crapping herself – she thinks that Hit Girl will kill her."

"You were the senior one there, so I hold you responsible, Stephanie."

"I know – that's why I told them both to leave it to me."

"Very mature of you."

"You going to make my life hell?"

"Oh, yeah!" Mindy replied with a smile as she wrapped an arm around her daughter's shoulders. "You're grounded until you're eighteen, for a start."

"Better than I expected. . ."

South Whipple

"Come to see the condemned?" Paul Murphy chuckled.

"Something like that," Mindy replied with a grin.

"She's feeling really bad about it."

"I know – Steph told me. Is she okay?"

"Other than feeling like the sky just fell in on her, yeah."

"Can I see her?"

"Go right on up."

Mindy headed up the stairs and she found Brad on the landing with Lauren.

"Oooh!" he muttered. "So much for having a little sister. . ."

Mindy glared at the boy who grinned sheepishly and then fled downstairs.

"She's suffering, Mindy," Lauren advised before she followed her boyfriend.

..._...

Mindy pushed open the bedroom door to find a very miserable ten-year-old.

Abigail refused to look up at Mindy as she entered the room. Mindy sat down on the bed beside the girl and she lifted Abigail's chin with her hand. Abigail tried not to make eye contact.

"Look, Abigail, I can't kill you just by looking at you," Mindy chuckled.

"I'm really sorry – we shouldn't have been in the car . . . it kind of got away from us."

"Have you learnt your lesson?" Mindy asked.

Abigail nodded slowly.

"You've been through a lot, Abigail, more than the other Predators. I would never hurt any of you – even though some of you may deserve it."

"Paul says I'm grounded."

"Yeah – so's Stephanie and Rebecca. Mistakes happen – I've made a lot, myself. As long as we all learn from our mistakes then we're getting somewhere. You're a young girl with your whole life ahead of you – don't let something like this weigh you down."

"Steph said that you'd make our lives a living hell."

"Oh, she's right about that," Mindy grinned.

"You're the best, Mindy."

"Of course, I am."

Glenview

"You're still alive, then?"

"I love you, too, little brother."

"You heard about what happened in Gotham?"

"No."

"Apparently, Danny and Anne-Marie found their mother – alive!"

"Bullshit!"

"No shit."

Stephanie sought out Anne-Marie who was lying on her bed, staring at the ceiling. Daniel was lying beside her.

"You guys okay?"

"Hi, Steph – we killed our mother, yesterday," Danny said.

"Can we join you?" Stephanie asked.

"If you want," Anne-Marie replied as she shifted over to make room on the queen-size bed for Jamie and Stephanie.

"I know what you're feeling – I put a bullet in my mother's head, my dad's too."

"I'd forgotten."

"Lucky you!" Stephanie replied darkly.

..._...

When Mindy searched out the kids, that evening for dinner, she found them all fast asleep on Anne-Marie's bed.

She knew why Stephanie was there and that made her feel angry – so angry. That woman had torn apart a family for her own ideals. At least the twins had closure for their father – in a decidedly unexpected manner. She felt Dave's hands around her waist and she reached down to hold them.

"Why do so many bad things happen to good people?"

"It's the world we live in, honey."

"Fuck the world!"

"I love your outlook – it's so straight forward."

"Makes everything easier."

"Only you don't like doing things the easy way," Dave reminded his wife.

"True."

"Never change," Dave whispered into his wife's ear and she giggled.

Chapter 341*: Chicago - Descent

Thursday, October 5th, 2016

West Grace Street

Mindy needed an outlet, so she had decided to go visiting.

"Evening, Lucy."

Lucy jumped a mile.

"For heaven's sake!" she growled. "Can't you bloody knock? Maybe, we should put a fucking bell on you!"

Hit Girl chuckled, pleased that she had surprised the prototype Predator.

"You're a bit jumpy, tonight," another voice said out of the shadows.

"What did you bring Foxy, for – she homesick?" Lucy fumed.

"Do I need to slap you both?" Hit Girl hissed.

"I'm good," Foxtail muttered.

"Me too," Lucy agreed.

"I'm not asking you both to become fuck buddies – just friends would be a good start," Hit Girl went on.

"Truce?" Foxtail asked, holding out her hand in its armoured gauntlet.

Lucy nodded as she took the hand.

"Sorry – I'm just worried about everything," Lucy admitted.

"You have friends, Lucy – we're here to listen," Foxtail said. "I'm available for you, anytime."

"Thanks. Why the sneaky visit?"

"It's funny," Hit Girl chuckled.

"Ha, fucking, ha!"

"Seriously, though. I need to bring you up to speed with the goings on in this city and the fact that everything goes nuclear on Saturday."

"She is fucking with me, right?" Lucy asked Foxtail.

"I wish she was," Foxtail responded as she pulled off her mask. "Fusion is in deep shit, Lucy. While we still don't trust you – not fully – we don't want you getting hurt. We also want to make use of your skills."

"Go on."

The following morning

Friday, October 7th

West Columbia

"Hi, Paige!"

"Morning, Chloe, how are you?"

"Fine, thanks – where's Megan?"

"Up in her room – still!"

"That's not like her."

"Tell me about it – she's been up for over two hours. She won't tell me what she's up to . . . but then it is Megan!"

"True . . . holy, shit!" Chloe exclaimed as she looked past Paige.

Paige turned to look behind her and her mouth dropped open as she saw her daughter coming down the stairs. Megan had obviously spent a lot of time getting herself ready for school. Her uniform was pristine, just as it usually was, but it was not the uniform which was the surprise – it was the hair. Megan had cut her long hair short into a bob which was decidedly neat and tidy. She had also dyed her hair black again – but as she turned, Chloe noticed that only a part of her hair was black, the majority was almost white. The twelve-year-old appeared very different than on the previous evening.

"We fucking going?" the girl growled.

"Megan!" Paige exclaimed.

Megan simply slapped a pair of dollar bills down onto the table before stalking from the room and out to the car leaving Chloe and Paige too stunned to move.

Lake View High School

"Fuck me!"

"Knew she was nuts, but. . ."

"Time of the month?"

"Slut!"

"Creepy!"

The comments which greeted the 'new' Megan Williams were varied, to say the least. Chloe just chose to steer well clear of Megan – sensing that something was wildly wrong. She knew that Megan could have a fiery temper and Chloe had too much on her plate, right at that moment, to deal with a petulant tween. Chloe figured that Megan had some bad Gotham-related memories to sort out and Megan was perfectly capable of asking for help if she needed it.

"What the hell have you done?" Curtis demanded.

"You like it, right?" Megan asked.

Curtis, wise to how females changed their moods like colours on a traffic light, wisely kept his mouth shut and he just nodded – "Wasn't her period over a week ago?" he thought to himself.

"Good choice."

Lunchtime

North Park Elementary School

"What's up with grumpy?" Katy asked, tipping her head at Stephanie who was poking at her lunch without much exuberance.

"She broke something at home and Mum isn't exactly over the moon with her," Jamie explained. "She's grounded until she's eighteen, or thereabouts."

"The new girl doesn't seem to happy, either," Ali mentioned, noticing the unhappy look on Abigail's face.

"Abigail was involved," Jamie offered.

"She's quiet, Abigail, isn't she?"

"She has a lot on her mind, I think."

"What are you doing on Saturday?" Jackson asked Jamie.

"I'm busy – I think," Jamie offered – he knew that he could be very busy, along with the rest of Fusion.

That evening

Safehouse F

"This sucks!" Abigail commented.

"Used to do this a lot when I was in The Cage," Stephanie said as she gathered up some more brass cartridges off the floor of the range and dumped them in a bucket."

"You did this for hours?" Becky asked.

"Yes, I spent four hours a day picking up brass – I was in a lot of pain by the end of it as I had two broken ribs at the time," Stephanie explained.

"How many more are there?" Becky asked.

"Well, Mindy decided to have P90 practice," Abigail replied unhappily. "Each magazine takes fifty rounds, and eight people fired off two magazines each – you do the maths."

"Eight hundred rounds!" Becky exclaimed as her shoulders slumped.

..._...

A little over an hour later, the three girls relaxed in the showers, washing off the dirt and muck which they had accumulated over two hours of hard graft.

"Why am I always getting into trouble?" Becky asked. "I've only been here a few weeks and I've been in big trouble, twice!"

"Tell me about it," Stephanie muttered as she smiled down at the diminutive girl.

"What's about to happen?" Becky asked. "Are we in for a war? Chloe and Josh are worried."

"I won't lie to you, Becky, it's going to get very bad and probably get worse, way before it gets better," Stephanie replied as honestly as she could. "People are going to die, and many are going to get hurt. As long as we stay together, we stand a chance. We are all friends and we will help each other."

"I stand with you, Steph – we might have been sworn enemies, but that is in the past. Where you go, I go," Abigail stated.

"Will I be allowed to fight – you know, if I want to. I don't like to fight, but I don't want to sit and watch while my friends fight and get hurt?" Beck asked Stephanie.

"That's up to your Mum and my Mum – but I would have you by my side, any day, Scamp."

Becky beamed with pride.

..._...

They were as prepared as they could be – Mindy hoped.

She had purchased enormous quantities of ammunition which would last most armies, months. Every vehicle was serviced and ready for action. Every member of Fusion had a combat suit and spare sections. The medical facilities were ready, but Mindy hoped to God that they would not be needed. The Safehouses, scattered throughout the city were all fully stocked with food, water, ammunition, and vehicles. There was nothing more that could be done, except just hope that they would prevail in short order.

She smiled as she saw Stephanie, Abigail, and Becky appear from the showers. All three still had wet hair, which in Becky's case, was still dripping water from her ponytail. The three girls were often seen together – which probably fitted in with why they had all been together when Stephanie had decided to try some car driving. Mindy was also happy to see them smiling – she figured that smiling would be very limited in the coming days. In the coming days, Chicago was descending into hell. Mindy figured that she could wave to Frank D'Amico as they went past. As long as Chicago rose out of hell, at the end of it all – or did she have a place booked for her, ready and waiting.

Oh, yes, Mindy knew that she would be going to hell, when her time came to pay the piper.

The following evening
Saturday, October 8th

Deadline Day

Western Chicago

Hit Girl was wary.

She was fully aware that the timer on the deadline had reached zero. It had been Vito Genovese via his goons back in early July, while Stephanie had still been in hospital.

"A message from Vito Genovese. Hit Girl and her vigilantes have ninety days to leave Chicago. Or hell on earth will descend on both Chicago and Fusion."

The message had been decidedly unequivocal, as far as Fusion had been concerned. Since then, there had been a few well-timed 'reminders' from good old Vito, as to the rapidly approaching deadline, too. Therefore, Hit Girl and Kick-Ass, along with Wildcat, Shadow, and Foxtail were waiting at the intersection of North Western Avenue and West Fulton Street.

"Well, well, well, little Miss Hit Girl doesn't listen!"

Hit Girl glared as FEAR appeared on the street before her. Behind her, three SUVs appeared, which proceeded to unload five Sicilian goons a piece. They were backed up by about a dozen, very welcome, Corsairs.

"Where are your Russian pals?" Kick-Ass growled.

"Late, as usual," FEAR growled, just as the sound of more vehicles came from behind the massed Fusion forces.

"I think they're here!" Wildcat growled unnecessarily as a round dozen men appeared behind them.

"You have one last chance to avoid bloodshed, Hit Girl – take your team and leave Chicago," FEAR directed. "The odds are not in your favour."

"They never are. . ." Hit Girl hissed. "That's why we brought our friends."

Hit Girl waved her gauntleted hands theatrically and the sound of steel shutters rising echoed from surrounding buildings. Stormtide appeared, leading Tempest, Trojan, Cut-Throat, and Nightmare. They appeared behind FEAR's Corsairs. Jackal appeared behind the Sicilians and he was backed up by Petra, Raven, Discord, Rage, and Fury. The Russians turned to meet Psyche and Splinter, who led Tigercat, Hellcat, Relentless, and Torment. FEAR appeared a little perturbed at seeing her eight to one superiority cut instantly to a fairly even two to one.

"You have one last chance to avoid bloodshed, you fucked up witch – the odds are not in your favour."

The twenty-two vigilantes faced off against the forty or so Axis of Evil fighters showing no fear.

..._...

Earlier that evening, Hit Girl and her senior staff had looked down at the gathered members of Fusion, from the experienced to the novice, who waited patiently on the mat beneath them, all ready to go into battle.

As Hit Girl scanned the faces below, she could see a few smiles, but mostly blank expressions and one or two showing the beginnings of fear. Would they all still be alive to see the dawn?

"This is it, Fusion, the war is about to begin. This is the first battle and I hope it ends the war, only that is rarely the case. People are going to die tonight, and I damn well hope it's the enemy. You have all trained for this and I know that you are all ready for what tonight is going to throw at us. Use your skills. Use your weapons. Stay alert. Above all, be a team. As a team, we shall prevail."

"Fusion!" Wildcat yelled from below and there was a resounding cheer as everybody masked up.

Mindy was unsure as she looked over at Dave.

"Dave. . ."

"Don't say it," he warned.

Mindy looked over at Chloe who was staring down at the mat and more particularly at her daughter who was pulling on her mask, ready for action.

"I know what you're thinking, Chloe," Joshua warned. "Cut it out! To quote somebody famous: 'If you think you're gonna die, then you're gonna die.'"

"I know," Chloe replied.

"Will you stop using my words!" Mindy growled, but she grinned nonetheless.

"Stop coming out with such good phrases, then," Joshua countered.

Mindy knew what he was doing, and she was glad of it. To all those below, they would see their commanders laughing and joking. Moral was already high within Fusion and it had just risen a couple of points – after all, if Hit Girl was laughing, what could go wrong.

..._...

"All teams, standby!" Battle Guy called over the comms.

"CPD is cordoning off the surrounding streets," Hal advised.

The two veterans were occupying the Command Bunker in Echo – Hit Girl had duly renamed it the Battle Bunker and it was the command nexus coordinating Fusion's defence of Chicago. A short distance away, in a separate bunker, Synthesis were monitoring the traffic cameras to ensure that nobody was trying to break through the police cordon to backup FEAR and her cohorts. High above Chicago, the drone, EAGLE-1 was sending back high-definition colour images of the road intersection in real time for Hal and Battle Guy to coordinate the fight from.

On the level below the Battle Bunker, Audacious, Lynx and Scamp were standing by for incoming casualties. Medic, Athena, Rogue, and Ravage were standing ready in Titan, not far from the intersection, ready to evacuate any wounded. Atop a six-storey building, an easy 170-yards to the north of the intersection, Leon and her spotter, Astute, were preparing to rain down a deadly storm of lead.

"Overwatch – you are cleared for action; execute!"

..._...

With that single command, Leon steadied her aim.

After she took a few shallow breaths and then held the last one, she squeezed the trigger and a .338-calibre Lapua Magnum bullet erupted from the suppressed muzzle of her AXMC sniper rifle. The bullet took less than a second to strike the lead Sicilian in the chest, knocking the man backwards as the bullet continued through him and embedding itself in the man behind – both were dead before they hit the blacktop. Pandemonium ensued as the fight rapidly got underway. Swords flashed in the illumination from the street lighting and bullets flew in all directions. Within minutes, the drains were filling with blood.

Every vigilante had a partner – that had been impressed, forced if you like, on them all. They would watch each other's back as they fought. Indeed, Nightmare and Cut-Throat were doing well as they fought alongside Stormtide and Trojan. Their opponents, the Corsairs, fought reasonably well but they were no match for the highly trained forces which attacked them. It was a first for Stormtide – fighting out on the street in such a free-for-all. It was the same for Cut-Throat. As such, they were partnered with experienced Fusion members. Nightmare was young and just out of training, but she had endured, and survived, some of the worst fighting Chicago had seen in many years. Nightmare had reason to hate the Corsairs and she relished killing them.

Cut-Throat was a relative novice to street-fighting, but he was a seasoned Predator who knew how to fight dirty and how to fight to win. The first Corsair he met, found out to his cost how skilled the twelve-year-old was when Cut-Throat's twin combat-machetes first severed an arm and then his head in a procession of swift, calculated movements. The boy was focussed as he supported his more-experienced colleague who was in her element as the fourteen-year-old girl slashed a Corsair to death with her jungle sword. Cut-Throat prevented a cowardly strike at Nightmare's exposed back, from another Corsair, before he killed the offending attacker. It had been months since the boy had last killed and the outlet felt amazing – all the apprehension and emotions since Urban Predator had fallen were gone and he felt reborn as he and Nightmare ran to support Stormtide and Trojan.

Stormtide whirled her bō-staff, stabbing into the mass of Corsairs and relishing the blood and screaming. She felt right at home on the street, slashing and killing. It was in her blood after five years of enforced training and she had no way of preventing the bloodlust she felt. There was but one outlet and that was the death of FEAR's cohorts. A short distance away from Stormtide, Trojan was bringing death of his own into the fray. The boy appeared to have some bottled up emotions which he was taking out on the unfortunate Corsairs with his trusty sword making short work of anybody who came within range.

The boy also received two bullets for his trouble, but he ignored their stings and he drove on, using the pain to drive his anger and his killing.

..._...

Jackal was having the time of his life as he fought the Sicilians, many of whom were physically large.

It was mostly an intensive fistfight with the occasional bit of blade work involved. He was working with Petra, who was enjoying the more physical form of contact fighting. She happily used her fists to break ribs and noses, following up with her armoured knees to snap a spine or fracture a sternum. Another female vigilante, Raven, was partnered with Fury. The pair of them were well-matched in their skill levels, with Fury using her amazing manoeuvrability to great effect as she exercised her agility and made use of her slim frame to dodge incoming strikes and deliver her own attacks with her bō-staff. The ten-year-old was fearless and the sixteen-year-old Raven was impressed by the youngster's energy and drive.

That just left Discord and Rage. While Rage demonstrated the same impressive drive and energy as his counterpart, Fury, he also struggled at times to maintain situational awareness – but that was what Discord was there for. Discord was highly skilled and very experienced thanks to her Predator training which had seen her complete Phase 3 and move on to active status. The fifteen-year-old apparently had a lot of bitterness inside and she dealt it out, snapping bones and generally hurting anything in her way while keeping an eye open for the nine-year-old who was driving his Messer sword into anything which came close – by anything, that apparently included Discord herself who dodged at the very last second, but she still received a sharp stab into her armour.

Rage yelled a brief, "Sorry!" before moving on.

..._...

As for Psyche and Splinter, they were having great fun with their Russians.

Unlike the other teams, who were in pairs, Psyche led her all-girl team of Hellcat and Torment while Splinter led the boys: Tigercat and Relentless. Each trio faced off against the dozen Solntsevskaya Brotherhood heavies who were all smirking at the limited stature of the vigilantes before them. Psyche was having none of it as she ran forwards with her team and the first pair of Russians were so startled at the spirited attack that they did nothing to defend themselves before it was far too late to do anything. Psyche cut the throat of the first while Hellcat and Torment almost ripped the head off their man before he fell to the ground, his neck viciously twisted and the eyes facing in a very unnatural direction.

The death of their two colleagues did not improve the temper of the remaining ten Russians who screamed the Russian version of bloody murder and attacked. Splinter took the first man while Tigercat and Relentless went to work on two more. Relentless yelled out as he was bodily thrown to the street, but he quickly sprang back up and launched himself at the man who had thrown him. The ten-year-old Predator was 'relentless' by character and not just by name. Tigercat ripped into the enemy with his claws, drawing blood from some nasty wounds. However, the Russians were able to take a lot of damage before they actually went down, and Hellcat was the next to be hurt as she was almost trampled by several of the Russians when she fell to the ground. She finally regained her knees by slashing out with her own claws until the legs moved out of her way. Psyche yanked the twelve-year-old up to her feet whilst driving one of her Sai into the heart of the nearest Russian.

Psyche was enjoying her return to action and she was making good use of her time – her right arm hurt but nowhere near as much as it did. The adrenalin helped a lot as she fought without a care in the world – except maybe for winning.

..._...

FEAR was facing off against Hit Girl, Kick-Ass, Shadow, Wildcat, and Foxtail. Wildcat and Foxtail peeled off to take out two of her bodyguards while Shadow went after the third.

Hit Girl and Kick-Ass went for FEAR who drew a pair of Katana swords instead of her usual war sword which she appeared to have misplaced some time ago. Hit Girl nodded approvingly as she drew her own twin blades. Kick-Ass drew his Ko-Wakizashi blades and he ensured that Hit Girl was not disturbed or stabbed in the back while she concentrated on FEAR.

Wildcat was well, a wild cat. She flew at her selected enemy and she had him backing down from her frenzied attack with her Katana and Wakizashi. The Corsair's Messer sword was heavyweight but that just meant it could not be wielded with as much finesse as the lighter fighting swords which Wildcat had trained for many hours to use as a pair. Naturally, FEAR's bodyguards were very experienced and totally fearless. They did not back down as they were attacked by the female vigilantes.

Foxtail's Corsair was very careful to avoid the expertly-wielded Butterfly swords which flashed through the air. Foxtail was a fast-moving enemy who did not stay still long enough for the Corsair to make a successful strike – all he found was disturbed air. It did not take long before Foxtail had the man spilling his guts down the street before collapsing into a bloody heap. Shadow's kill joined the blood flowing down the gutter enroute for the nearest drain. Shadow's bō-staff left nobody standing when it came into contact with a body. The Corsairs' needed better armour if they wanted to survive a melee fight against Fusion.

Shadow and Foxtail watched as Wildcat continued her attack. There was something not quite right about the fight – it should have been over. Foxtail caught on first. Wildcat was pushing her opponent to near defeat before allowing him to regain the advantage and then taking it away from him. Basically, she was playing with her food before she killed it. Shadow figured it out, too, and she was surprised at the behaviour. Fusion killed, they did not torture when out on the streets – that was not the Fusion way.

Finally, Foxtail had had enough, so she drew one of her Beretta Px4 Storm Compact Type G pistols. She put a bullet in the poor cunt's head, killing him instantly. Wildcat whirled around, and she actually made to drive her blades into Foxtail who quickly stepped back to avoid being stabbed and slashed.

"What the fuck, Wildcat?" Foxtail exclaimed.

"He was mine!" Wildcat hissed angrily.

"We'll talk later," Shadow promised.

..._...

As the fighting continued around FEAR and Hit Girl, the city watched with baited breath.

Much of the fight was being filmed from a distance by news crews and after a short delay was being fed live to the city. There were many who leaned into their televisions and watched barely breathing as the two masters fought. The cold steel clashed as both women twisted and turned to avoid each other's blades. Four swords flashed under the street lighting as the blades moved swiftly through the air. Strikes were made on both sets of armour, drawing unintended oohs and aaahs from those watching.

Every now and then, a Russian, or a Sicilian would break towards the fight and make an attempt on Hit Girl from behind. They were taken down by either Kick-Ass, or by Overwatch, before they came anywhere near.

345 North Western Avenue

Dread was not happy.

She had been put in charge of a very important mission – to keep her sister alive and rescue her if required. Shouldn't have been a difficult mission to complete, only the seventeen-year-old was in two minds about whether her sister should actually be allowed to live. Her life had taken a sharp turn to the left in recent days and it was all she could do to stick with the plan and not run to Hit Girl begging for refuge. Instead, she was stuck with six of her sister's fucked up minions. They were all teenagers and they were warped enough to freak the hell out of Dread as they climbed up several staircases towards the roof of a six-storey building a short distance from the fight which did not seem to be going her sister's way. The armour she wore was heavy and she hated that it covered her face. She hated the attention that she gained from being FEAR's sister. That first time when she had been paraded before an admittedly awe-inspiring array of armour-clad minions had been humiliating but also exciting – that had been two weeks previously and she had been allocated her own team of six individuals.

As FEAR's sister, she was offered a lot of respect from everybody present – maybe they assumed that Dread was some seasoned killer, rather than a scared young woman way out of her depth.

"You ready, Dread?" Tumor asked. "Or are you too busy in fucking dreamland?"

"Fuck you, you jumped up twat!" Dread growled as she pistol-whipped the fifteen-year-old across his armoured mask. "Now, go kill me that sniper!"

The young man bristled but he knew his place and Dread was 'untouchable', even if she disliked playing the tough bitch to cover herself.

..._...

"You hear a noise?" Astute asked as he rolled over and sat up from his prone position on the roof.

"I did," Leon commented as she brought her lethal sniper rifle around towards the access door to the roof.

The direct line of sight was blocked by the lift shaft, but neither were born yesterday. There was a loud bang and a bright flash as the explosive device rigged to the access door detonated. The bang was followed by several yells and some very bad language. Astute jumped up and he readied a P90, bringing it up to his shoulder and running the corner of the lift shaft. He dived flat at the corner, just in time as submachinegun fire struck the lift shaft, chipping off the stone cladding.

Astute replied with short bursts from the P90 as Leon came up behind him and she readied their escape apparatus. With her rifle across her back, she threw a pair of quarter-inch lines off the rooftop and she clipped the rope into a carabiner at her crotch. The ends of the lines were secured to an eyebolt embedded in the rooftop. Astute passed his P90 onto Leon while he clipped on his own line to the carabiner he wore. The enemy were coming closer, using rooftop fittings to cover their approach – there was something very familiar about the tactics being employed. Beyond them, he could see what he assumed to be their commander. As the person passed through a patch of moonlight, he got a good view of the armour which marked the person out as somebody special.

Astute disconnected the line from his carabiner and he took back his P90 much to Leon's disapproval. There was something he needed to find out about the attackers and the person in the special body armour.

..._...

Leon provided covering fire with her sniper rifle, sending the massive bullets streaking past the attackers.

Astute raced up the far side of the bridge, flanking the attackers. There appeared to be five or six of them . . . fuck! One less – a .338 Lapua Magnum bullet took a poor bastard's head off. The leader was clearly visible as she remained near to the doorway off the roof. She was yelling at her minions, exhorting them to move. The armour was reminiscent of that worn by the Corsairs – at least the combined mask and helmet was, only while the Corsairs generally used grey armour, the armour for that individual was black with vivid red markings. There was no skin visible, but the shape of the body indicated a female.

Panels of body armour covered the chest, shoulders, upper arms, thighs, lower legs, and back. She was much better armoured than her cohorts which indicated her importance. The armour appeared relatively light for its design, too – very advanced. She bore a pair of pistols on her hips – possible H&K pistols. On her right calf, there was a large combat knife and she carried a sword of unknown design on her back. As for her cohorts, they each sported the same armour as the Corsairs, although they all appeared to be . . . no? Astute was certain they were not adults which could only make them. . .

With the death of their colleague, the gunfire intensified and Astute saw the commander turn her head to stare at him

– she pulled a pistol and she fired off several rounds in his direction as she ran in his direction. Leon had her head down due to incoming fire so was unable to assist as Astute took several bullets in his chest armour before he was attacked at close range by the commander. She was a good fighter and they exchanged blows. Astute noticed somebody blindsiding him and he kicked out, putting the new attacker down hard before he found himself grabbed by the commander and thrown to the floor. She pulled her pistol and she was about to put a bullet in his head when the gun clicked on an empty chamber.

"Fuck!" came the electronic growl from the enraged commander who yelled out a warning as Leon dived off the side of the building and abseiled to the ground.

It was all the distraction that Astute needed as he ran for his own rope and rapidly connected on before diving over the parapet and rocketing to the ground, pulling up short at the last moment. Leon covered his descent by sending four large rounds towards the parapet high above them.

"That was engaging," Astute commented as they both ran towards the exfiltration point.

..._...

Further down the street, things were not looking too good for FEAR and her . . . well, there were none of her cohorts left.

There were a smattering of Russians and Sicilians still in the fight, only their confidence was waning, and they were beginning to seriously reconsider their career choice. The five remaining men were moving to protect their principal – FEAR – only they were unable to get anywhere near her, until there was a hail of gunfire from up the street and Fusion instantly moved onto the defensive as six people ran down the street towards them, firing off submachineguns. Before Fusion could do much more than turn towards the threat, smoke began to erupt all over the intersection as grenades landed and detonated all around.

Vehicles were heard to accelerate away and there was also the sound of high-powered motorcycles departing very quickly. As Battle Guy called for updates – his drone was momentarily struggling to see through the smoke as the hot grenades caused issues with the infra-red sensors. Not surprisingly, when the smoke cleared, Hit Girl glared at a street empty of living bodies, except for those belonging to Fusion.

"Let's go!" she growled.

Safehouse E

Hit Girl was fuming by the time she returned to the Safehouse.

Once she was happy that everybody had returned, she finally conceded to sort herself out and she pulled off her armour. After a brief shower, she pulled on panties, a sports bra, and some tight pants before pushing her feet into a pair of sandals. Mindy head for Level 1 and the Medical Centre. There she found Cathy, Taylor, and Paige looking after the wounded with Becky providing much-needed assistance. Mindy, of course, was unhappy to find that anybody required medical attention, but she was being realistic, and she knew that it was unavoidable.

The first to be treated was the young Leo Graves. The ten-year-old was grinning, despite the large bruise on his left shoulder-blade and another on his left thigh. The boy sat on a bed, in just his underwear as Cathy rubbed some gunk onto his bruises.

"He's fine," Cathy said. "He's a growing boy and the bruises will fade over time."

"I've had worse," Leo offered bravely as he winced with the pain.

"Thank you, Leo – you fought well."

Leo grinned at the praise as Mindy moved onto the next bed where Paige was checking out Tommy's chest.

"No big deal," he assured Mindy. "You know I've had worse."

"Not the point, Tommy."

Mindy was interrupted from saying any more as somebody bolted into the Medical Centre and Taylor was pushed to one side.

"Daddy!" Shannon exclaimed. "Are you okay?"

"She cares about me!" Patrick said, and he sounded surprised.

"Don't be an ass, Daddy – of course, I care about you – I forgave you weeks ago; I've just been playing on it."

Shannon was genuinely upset at seeing her father hurt – despite it only being angry red welts, much like Tommy had.

"I'm fine, Shannon – just a little sore."

"Good. . ."

There was a slapping sound and Shannon screamed. She turned and scowled.

"Hi, Stormy!"

"There are times when I dream about having abandoned you in Whitby," Shannon growled.

Jamie grinned hugely but then the grin faded.

"James," Sarah said from where she sat on the next bed. "We need to talk."

"Sorry, Sarah – it was an accident."

"Accident? Shannon, did Jamie ever stab you?"

"He hurt me once or twice, but stab? Not that I can recall," Shannon replied, and she winced at the sight of the large bruise on Sarah's right side.

"Luckily, Mindy's armour protected me."

"You in trouble again, Jamie-boy?" Stephanie asked as she breezed into the Medical Centre.

"Yeah, my women are causing me grief."

"We are not, your women!" Shannon and Sarah exclaimed together.

"See!" Jamie said, and Mindy couldn't help laughing.

She was quickly joined by Leo and Tommy and Jamie slunk out of the Medical Centre, his face very red.

..._...

Mindy grabbed her daughter and they followed Jamie.

"Since when was Sarah one of 'your' women, Jamie?" Stephanie asked her brother.

"Thought you dreamed about Abigail," Mindy chuckled.

"Mum!" Jamie growled as his face turned bright red. "Sarah isn't one of my women – she's just a girl that I accidentally stabbed."

Stephanie laughed.

"Jamie – can you go find out if the twins are back, please?" Mindy asked.

"Yes, Mum."

The boy vanished towards the elevator.

"Mindy?"

"Hi, Patrick. You okay?"

"A little sore but Taylor will soothe things in bed, tonight," Patrick grinned.

Stephanie feigned puking by shoving a finger down her throat. Mindy ignored her daughter's antics as Patrick began to speak.

"I met somebody new, today. She appeared to be quite high up in FEAR's organisation – at least by the look of her suit; she had red markings and her armour was of a higher quality than that of the Corsairs," Patrick explained. "She tried to kill me – that was the bullets. But she then went hand-to-hand and it was only when I undressed back here that I found this."

Patrick held out a small USB drive which Stephanie took and examined. She exchanged a look with her mother.

"Something going on?" Patrick asked.

"We need to go see Marty," Mindy said.

..._...

Just as Mindy, Stephanie, and Patrick walked into the Battle Bunker, Jamie came running up.

"The bitches from hell are back," he called out, almost breathlessly.

"Thank you, Jamie," Mindy said.

"What you doing?" the boy asked.

"Above your paygrade, runt!" Stephanie said as she closed the armoured door in his face.

"What is so special?" Patrick asked.

"We secure, guys?" Marty asked Abby and Marty.

"I'll pretend you never asked that," Marty growled as he feigned a hurt expression.

"I am so sorry, Marty," Mindy replied. "It looks like Fortune has sent us a message."

"Fortune?" Patrick asked.

"He cleared for this?" Marty asked.

"He is now," Mindy stated.

"Okay," Marty said as he pulled a rather tatty-looking laptop out of a cupboard. "I am just going to check this stick for anything nasty. This laptop is air gapped, so if it's a trap. . ."

"We only trust our source, so far," Mindy explained to Patrick.

"Who is she?"

"She is FEAR's sister – that's all I'm going to say, right now."

"I can live with that."

"Let me know what's on there, Marty."

"No problem, my purple queen!"

Mindy muttered good-natured obscenities under her breath as she left the Battle Bunker and sought out the Abbott twins.

..._...

"So, how did it go?"

"Hi, Mindy!" Sky exclaimed as she and her twin sister drank hot chocolate in the Dining Room.

They were both surrounded by various other Fusion members enjoying a drink of some sort with some getting something to eat.

"She did good," Chrissy said. "She did what she was supposed to, and then she headed home."

"She's still there as far as we know," Sky added.

"Did any of FEAR's goons see any of you?"

"Not as far as we could tell," Sky replied.

"Thank you, both of you. Go get some sleep."

"Night, Mindy!"

The two very different, but very similar girls, finished off their hot chocolate before heading off down to Level 2 and the accommodation. Mindy headed in the same direction, but she stopped at another table where Stephanie, Jamie, Abigail, Shannon, Marc, Annabelle, and Iain sat with their own mugs of hot chocolate. They were all laughing and talking animatedly.

"It is getting late – time for bed," Mindy warned.

Several yawns backed up Mindy's comments.

The kids headed for Elevator #2 which brought them out beside the accommodation area. There they split up, with most of the younger kids heading into Cabin #3. There, Mindy was a little concerned to find Stephanie, Jamie, Abigail, Annabelle, Iain, Anne-Marie, Danny, and Becky all sharing the same cabin.

"Sleep!" Mindy ordered as she closed the door to a host of giggles.

Despite Annabelle at twelve-years-old being the eldest, Stephanie took charge in a vain attempt to keep order. Nevertheless, it was well into the early hours before there was silence in the facility.

Two days later
Monday, October 10th

Safehouse F

Mindy stared at the report which Marty had just handed her.

...

Fusion

Status Report

Date: 10/10/16

Fusion Complement: 46

Fit for Combat: 41

Injured (Available): 3 – RAVEN/SPLINTER/TEMPEST

Injured (No Combat): 2 – PSYCHE/TROJAN

Prisoners in Holding: 1

Combat Vehicles: 5

Vehicles Offline: 1 - BEAST

...

Mindy grimaced at the stats – they were barely 72 hours into the fight and they were taking significant damage. It had been anticipated, but that was not the point. They had given much more punishment than they had taken, but that was not the point. The point was that people were getting hurt . . . because of her determination to remain in Chicago at all costs. People were getting hurt, because of her . . . at what point would 'at all costs' become too expensive? Mindy screwed up the piece of paper and she threw it across the briefing room.

Down below her, she could see Wildcat and Stormtide sparring. Both girls were angry as their partners were both hurt – Trojan more seriously than Tempest – and thus they trained to keep their minds focussed on the task ahead, just like the professionals that they were. Cathy had told Mindy about the civilian casualties – the hospitals were filling up with gunshot wounds, stabbings, and other bodily injuries. The morgues were fully employed, as were the morticians and medical examiners. Jack Bay had reported on the status of the CPD – they were unhappy, too, with injuries spreading as they attempted to maintain order in the troubled city. Fusion were there to assist, only they were small in number and they could not be everywhere.

Trojan and Splinter had been hurt when out on patrol with Shadow and Petra. The team had run into the Sointsevskaia Brotherhood – the fight had been short but epic and eight Russians were dead at the end of it, however, Trojan and Splinter had both taken significant hits – Trojan had taken several bullets into his left side. None of the bullets had penetrated his armour, but the concussive force had badly bruised his side and he would be laid up for several days as he recovered. Splinter only had some heavy bruising which would clear up quickly and he was ready, and eager, for combat when needed. The two girls had escaped anything major, but they had both been very concerned with the heavy firepower wielded by the Russians.

As for Raven, she had been out in Beast with Jackal, Discord, Rage, and Fury. All had gone well – they had prevented the outright murder of two police officers by Corsairs and assisted in keeping the peace despite the varied attempts by the Sicilians to encourage anarchy. Then, just as they had put down three of the Sicilians, encouraging the rest to flee, she had shown up! Sunset Phoenix and a handful of Corsairs had ambushed Beast just as they were about to leave the scene – the armour-plating prevented any major injuries from the bullets, except Raven got blasted against a wall by some form of explosive device; Foxtail's mysterious Irish bomber back for more? Raven's armour had taken the brunt of the impact, but she was bruised to hell and back and feeling a little stunned.

Mindy had taken it on herself to personally apologise to each of those who were injured. That had not gone down well – all of them, to a vigilante, had told Mindy where she could stick her apology. There were times when Mindy felt herself to be unworthy to lead such an illustrious team, but that was her task and she would lead Fusion to the very best of her ability. She knew that every member of Fusion would follow her into the deepest pits of hell, should that be needed, only Mindy hoped that she was not leading her team on a one-way trip to hell.

That just left Stephanie.

..._...

Mindy was mad at her daughter for being injured – it had been her own fault, only it had not been.

Jamie had broken the news to Dave that Stephanie was overdue and also why she had broken her own grounding to go out. Even worse, she had gone out into what amounted to a virtual combat zone, alone. Despite the incident, Stephanie had brought back a prisoner and some valuable intelligence which was always a bonus. However, what Stephanie had endured during the attack was keeping Mindy awake at nights. It was made even worse when Stephanie would yell out in pain due to her injuries.

From a certain point of view, it was not even a combat-related injury which had put Stephanie out of action – more her past catching up with her.

Again.

Chapter 342*: Raider

Four months previously
June 2016

City of Joliet, Illinois

It was the basic rule of survival in an organisation with little rules.

If you wanted to stop yourself getting picked on and abused, you made damn sure that you were the 'top dog', and that meant taking down the existing 'top dog' on your first day, if you could.

"Ladies and gentlemen, we have a newbie, another bitch – meet Raider!"

Raider followed the current leader, Rapine, into what appeared to be a recreational area. There were over forty youngsters in the room, varying in age from twelve up to about sixteen, boys and girls. From their stances, they all appeared to be seasoned fighters; indeed, many bore signs of obvious fighting – cuts, bruises, and the like. They all had one thing in common, however: their heads had been shaved, boys and girls alike. There were a few derogatory comments from those nearby, but otherwise, Raider was ignored.

"Raider – you are now the lowest of the low. You will need to prove yourself to succeed here and work your way up the pecking order – understand?"

Raider smirked at the boy who was about thirteen – Raider knew him, and he knew her; they were old compatriots from a time long past.

"Where do you fit in, Rapine?" Raider asked.

"I'm the leader, right now . . . so don't you forgot that. Maybe we can get some sack time. . ."

Raider moved like lightning.

Rapine was struck repeatedly in the face, chest, and stomach. He had no time to react as he was mercilessly beaten to the floor. Even when he was on the floor, Raider continued to kick and punch the boy as he screamed out in pain. Those close by could hear ribs snapping as the beating continued.

"STOP!"

Raider stopped, and she turned to see two men in body armour and masks standing in the doorway. Raider kicked the boy one more time in the side – he screamed out in agony. One of the men stared down at the bruised and bloody former-leader.

"So much for Rapine," the man chuckled. "Looks like the new girl is in charge."

"You and you," Raider ordered as she pointed at two of the larger boys. "Take this sack of shit to the medical wing."

There was no argument as the two boys grinned and nodded. Rapine was hauled up from the floor by the two boys and dragged out of sight.

"Anybody unhappy with the change in leadership?" Raider growled.

"Welcome, Raider – good to have you aboard, I'm Bandit."

..._...

For the first time in several weeks, Raider felt relatively safe.

The organisation she had joined was both worse than the one she had hated since she had been forced into its ranks, and better from a certain point of view. Either way, she had a comfortable bed, hot food, and some exciting distractions to keep her mind occupied. Over the next few weeks, Raider learned much about her new adoptive organisation. She learnt about Corsairs, and she learnt about FEAR and what she represented. She forgot about her previous life – her real name, her codename, they all vanished from her mind and replaced with her current title: Raider. She ruled the forty-odd youths with an iron fist, sending many to the hospital wing. It was not her – she hated the violence; she always had. Only, it was the only way to survive in a dog-eat-dog world where anything went. She knew that at any time, she could be deposed herself. Surprisingly, her biggest ally was the former leader, Rapine.

Rapine was her lieutenant – at least he took up the position when he emerged from almost two weeks in the hospital wing.

..._...

Urban Predator had had a much more defined hierarchy whereas, FEAR's army had a decidedly fluid pecking order.

The kids looked after themselves while the adults tended to ignore the kids completely, apart from some good-natured verbal abuse and the odd crack around the back of the head. The 'kids' were referred to as Marauders, despite the undeniable fact that they were all Predators. Raider had discussed this with Rapine and he had explained that the kids had wanted a distinction between what they were and what they were becoming – it had been FEAR's idea to call them Marauders in line with her adult Corsairs. The 'kids' had jumped at the idea, so FEAR had declared them all to be Marauders from that point on.

For Raider, it felt strange – she knew a few of the Marauders; Rapine was from her own Predator Intake despite him being about seven months her junior. To cement her ascension to leadership, she had taken Rapine to be her own – she had openly seduced the boy and then allowed him to go to town on her body in full public view of the other Marauders. Raider was also curious as to why the older Marauders, such as Bandit who was sixteen, were not in charge.

"Bandit!" Rapine had scoffed. "She's a lazy bitch – why give orders when you can just follow 'em!"

However, Raider also discovered another very good reason why nobody really wanted to be in charge of anything.

..._...

The girl had been around twelve-years-old when she was hauled onto the stage before one of FEAR's rallies.

The girl was shaking and trembling with fear and while there was silence from the masked Corsairs, the Marauders were baying for blood – and they got it. Without a word, FEAR drew a pistol and in unison with the girl peeing herself, FEAR put a bullet into the pre-teen's skull.

"Team Seven needs a new leader," FEAR growled as she stalked off the stage without another look at the dead girl.

..._...

Raider slept with a pistol and a knife beneath her pillow.

She was usually joined most evenings by Rapine who would spend several minutes massaging Raider's breasts and gently tickling her nipples with his tongue. Raider could also feel his dick, hard up against her and while she had a rule about how many times a week he was allowed to go 'all the way', he would often explode spontaneously all over her leg or stomach as he preferred to sleep naked, just as she herself often did. For protection, Raider had gathered a small posse who enjoyed her protection in return for their support . . . and their protection.

As for the days, they were spent training and training. If you weren't eating or sleeping, you were training. Training was something which a Predator knew all about and to a certain extent. Something which they enjoyed. Training focussed the mind and it detracted that same mind from the oppressive atmosphere in which they were forced to live. Despite being relatively free, the Marauders still preferred some form of regimen and training was a key part of that. Raider focussed her mind on keeping herself in top condition. While she did not believe in what FEAR was doing, it was a means to an end – a means to staying alive.

Being a Phase 3 graduate, Raider was highly skilled, and she would spend hours punching bags, kicking practice dummies, and beating the living crap out of random Marauders. As leader of the Marauders, it was Raider's responsibility to ensure that all of FEAR's minions were trained. Often, Raider would fight the adult Corsairs and during those sparring sessions, she would gain many a Corsair's respect from the application of her skills.

Out on the streets and doing FEAR's bidding, was something else again.

..._...

Initially, it was just petty thefts around the city of Joliet, about 40 miles southwest of Chicago.

That escalated after a few weeks to muggings, then armed assaults on stores, and finally onto attacks on armoured trucks for their cash. Naturally, FEAR found that her Marauders came 'pre-loaded' with all the required skills. As far as possible, the attacks were spread out and each used a different MO, as the police referred to it. Raider figure that it would probably be months before the police began to figure out a pattern of attack. Being a leader also made Raider privy to some of FEAR's plans for 'global domination' – well, maybe just 'Chicago domination'. That was another of Raiders' reasons for being in the top tier – she would be aware of what she was being used for and, if necessary, jump ship before it sank, or she was slaughtered like cannon-fodder.

It was in August when Raider began to get a bad feeling about her new home. It was the same feeling she had felt during May when Urban Predator had begun to tear itself apart. FEAR was talking about some deadline or such in Chicago. Raider had been part of FEAR's protective detail whilst she had been off meeting with some men whom she thought to be Italian – so wrong! They turned out to be Sicilians – like Raider could tell the difference. . . Soon after, FEAR had met with some Russians – Raider hated Russians; it was a personal thing. Naturally, Raider was fully familiar with Fusion – you had to be blind and deaf not to know about Hit Girl and her little gang of vigilantes. Raider had personal reasons for hating Hit Girl with a vengeance, however, while Hit Girl had indirectly ruined many kids' lives, Raider could see that Hit Girl was not the person portrayed by the Urban Predator teachings.

As she saw FEAR's plans unfolding, Raider decided that she wanted none of it. Hurting criminals and ripping them off – that was just sport – but hurting innocent people who were actually working hard for their earnings. . . The final straw was during September when certain younger Marauders began to shoot people out of hand: 'he was too slow with the money' or 'I had a bad night' and her personal favourite: 'I was on my period, bitch!'. Rachel had reluctantly accepted Urban Predator because she was being trained to help her fellow citizens and her country – something noble . . . but FEAR while providing Raider with somewhere to live, was perverting that training and using her Marauders for whatever nefarious scheme she and her sidekick, Sunset Phoenix, had in mind at the current moment.

Kids were dying indiscriminately – FEAR did not care. Then that stupid halfwit in her pink outfit had caused unbelievable tension in Chicago by causing SWAT to kill their own. Things were hotting up in that city and FEAR had chosen to deploy Marauders to that city and some were not coming back. Fusion had a fearsome reputation – there was even rumour that Hit Girl had had a part in Urban Predator's downfall. Either way, Raider had recognised some of the newer masked-faces in Chicago: Psyche and Foxtail – they were both Predator codenames. Then, towards the end of September, two more names which had stunned her: Fury and Rage – could they both be alive?

September was a worrying month for Raider and she decided to get out – anyway she could.

..._...

FEAR had a new playmate on display by October.

Ostensibly, FEAR was portraying the new masked individual as her sister – that kind of made her untouchable. Raider had met the young woman, who was known as Dread, and they had talked briefly. There was something about the girl that separated her from her elder sister – assuming they were actually sisters. Despite Dread's outwardly brisk behaviour, her body language dictated that she had no desire to be working alongside her 'sister'. Maybe she was coerced – FEAR did not exactly have a retirement plan for her minions, so leaving her organisation was not very practical – if indeed, it was actually possible to leave without a bullet to the skull.

Along with her 'sister', FEAR also began to reveal her 'master plan' for destroying Fusion and the sheer scale of the plan gave Raider pause for thought. Destroying Fusion meant destroying her friends and that was not acceptable.

She had to warn them . . . but how?

Sunday, October 9th, 2016

Central Chicago

It was a fairly normal Sunday morning, just like any other Sunday morning.

Raider had decided to tag along with Bandit and three other Marauders – the fresh air would do her good and she fancied a trip to Chicago for something other than killing. Raider had no liking for Bandit, but with Bandit as a supporter, it ensured that Raider's leadership would continue – many were apprehensive when around the skilled sixteen-year-old. It wasn't that she was violent – all the Marauders were – it was more that she had a vicious streak. Bandit took great personal joy in making people's lives miserable, be it with simple humiliation, or a crafty punch out of nowhere. More than one Marauder had suffered varying levels of injury at her hands 'just for a bit of fun'.

As far as Raider was concerned, the girl was wired wrong, but to be honest, that may not have been entirely Bandit's fault. As Raider understood it, the girl had taken too well to her Predator training and it had taken some severe motivation in the instructors' part to get her back on track, narrowly avoiding a bullet to the head instead of completing the end of Phase 1 training. Somewhere around the end of Phase 2 training, the girl had changed psychologically and become somebody very different. From that point, she had enjoyed anything that involved inflicting pain on others, including killing. It was rumoured that she was a lesbian – only, nobody dared ask – as she apparently took more interest in naked females than naked males. Needless to say, the girl had never been seen with a boy during a sexual encounter which did not necessarily mean that the rumours were true.

Bandit may have been a bully, in the worst possible way, but she was beautiful, and, at times, she was fun to talk to.

..._...

True to form, Bandit could not let bygones be bygones – she always had to escalate a situation.

"Holy, crap!" Bandit breathed. "Is that who I think it is?"

"Who?" Rustler asked as they walked down the street.

"Stephanie fucking Walker!"

"Psyche?" Wrecker asked dubiously.

"Fuck me! Yes, Stephanie, I'm a fucked-up bitch, Psyche Walker!"

"So?" Fence wanted to know.

"Give me strength. . ." Bandit breathed. "The bitch killed my friend – I cannot let that go unrewarded."

"Leave it alone, Bandit," Raider ordered.

"Fuck you, Raider!"

"Attacking that girl in broad daylight is not one of your better plans, Bandit – now stand down!"

"You're such a weak leader – maybe it's time you stepped aside," Bandit growled back.

"Have it your way – just don't come crawling me to me for sympathy when it all goes to hell," Raider told the older girl.

"Clever, Raider – what could go wrong?"

Chapter 343*: Ember

Sunday, October 9th, 2016

Central Chicago

It was a fairly normal Sunday morning, just like any other Sunday morning.

Only, Stephanie was not supposed to be there – she was grounded as the direct result of a slight misjudgement surrounding a car and the manoeuvring of said car. But, she could also argue that she was out of the house because of that slight misjudgement surrounding a car and the manoeuvring of said car. Stephanie had felt remorse like she had never felt before. Mindy was the one person she hated to upset – and not just because she was Hit Girl – Mindy was very special to Stephanie. There was nothing in the world that Stephanie loved more than her family.

Despite the goings-on in Chicago in the wake of the deadline passing, there was no reason to expect an attack; it was broad daylight and Stephanie was in a busy part of Chicago with hundreds of people around – and she was just one person. The plan had been to nip into the city, grab what she wanted and get back to D-JAK, preferably without anybody noticing that she had vanished. Only, there were five people out in the city that afternoon, who had not received Stephanie's schedule ahead of time, so they had no idea that their intervention would not be welcome. Actually, they knew full well that their intervention would not be welcome, but for very different reasons. Unluckily for Stephanie, if she had stepped out of D-JAK either two minutes earlier, or two minutes later, she would have missed them completely.

Stephanie never saw the five teenagers as she took her usual shortcut down a broad alleyway which would take her to the nearest shops. Nobody else was using the alleyway at that moment, so Stephanie was very much alone. Her senses perked up only when she sensed the presence of people closer than they needed to be, but by then, it was far too late as Stephanie found herself seized by ten strong hands. She kicked, and she bucked. She tried to scream, but her mouth was held firmly shut before it was then taped.

No matter what she tried, to fight off the attackers, Stephanie found herself dragged, kicking and punching, and attempting to scream obscenities through the tape, into another alley.

..._...

The attackers all appeared to be girls, only their hair had been taken right back to a length measurable only in millimetres.

Their expressions were the same for the most part. Three of the girls looked like all their Christmases for the next twenty years had just come all at once. Of the other two, one seemed undecided while the other was noticeably hanging back. Stephanie had a feeling that she knew a couple of the girls but for the life of her, she had no idea where from. Finally, Stephanie found herself being pushed to the concrete that formed the ground in the alley and she was pinned and no struggling on her part would alter her situation. The tape was roughly ripped off her mouth and Stephanie began to holler, at least until one of the girls slapped her roughly into silence.

"Well, well, well – if it isn't the not so mighty, Stephanie Walker! Or should we call you, Psyche?" one of the girls offered happily. "Some of us owe you one for being such a fucking bitch . . ."

"Not to mention that you killed our friend," another cut in.

"You'll have to be a little more specific – I've killed a few people," Stephanie tried before adding, "But she probably had it coming to her.

"Now," a third began, ignoring Stephanie's barbed comment. "We have something special lined up for our favourite Predator . . . you wanna be a bitch – we're gonna fuck you like a bitch!"

Stephanie had no real idea what the girl was going on about, however, she had correctly worked out that they were all ex-Predators.

"First, let us introduce ourselves before we get down to business. You might be thinking that we are Predators. Well, you'd be wrong there, Psyche; we are no longer Predators – we are much more, so much more; we are Marauders. We've taken things to the next level and beyond."

That did not bode well, Stephanie thought unhappily. Predators were already at a pretty worrying level to start with.

"I am Bandit – these are my counterparts: Raider, Fence, Rustler, and Wrecker. They are not my friends – no fucking way!"

The other girls all laughed.

"We may fight alongside one another but we are our own woman. Now, sweetheart, this is going to hurt you way more than it is gonna hurt me, big time. But before we begin, I want a souvenir. . ."

The girl stepped closer to Stephanie and with a wave of her hand, the ten-year-old was hauled briskly to her feet before they span her around, slamming her face into the wall of the alley. Stephanie recognised the sound of a knife being flipped open and then the cold steel against the back of her neck. With a swift flick of the sharp knife, her head suddenly felt lighter and her neck colder. Stephanie was thrown to the ground as the bitch held up Stephanie's light brown ponytail for all to see.

"I won't apologise; waste of breath – open her up!"

There was more laughter as Stephanie watched the hair she loved vanish from sight while hands reached out for her, one slapping another piece of tape over her mouth.

..._...

With that order, Stephanie's ankles were bound tightly before one girl rested her legs on Stephanie's ankles to hold her down.

Another girl bound her wrists and then yanked the arms above Stephanie's head where they were pinned down by the same girl. A third girl sat on Stephanie's abdomen, pinning her down completely. The remaining pair went to work on Stephanie's pants which were quickly undone before being pulled down to her ankles as far as they would go. They added to the existing restraints as they were then joined by Stephanie's panties. Stephanie screamed as she felt the cold concrete on her backside. She fought as her ankles were forced closer to her body so that she was then forced to bend her knees and spread her legs apart.

"Aww, isn't that sweet – little Stephanie has pubic hair; not very much, to be honest," Bandit sneered. "We can have some fun with that later. She has a tight little asshole, too – we're gonna ram something hard up there and it'll hurt so bad you won't be able to shit for a fucking month!"

Despite the humiliation, Stephanie was not prepared for what happened next as she felt alien fingers on her labia which were none too gently spread apart. Stephanie's eyes went wide as they focussed on a foot-long baton which Bandit produced and held before her eyes.

"One guess where that is going," one of the bitches laughed.

Then the baton vanished and within moments, she felt something very cold pushing into and then past her labia and onwards into places that had never before seen the light of day, let alone been touched by anything. Stephanie thrashed – or she tried to. She screamed – or she tried to.

She heard the laughter and the derisive comments as something cold and hard was pushed inexorably inside her.

..._...

Stephanie was not stupid; she knew what was happening to her.

Her brain was rapidly catching up with events and she was working out strategies to escape the torture. The increasing pain coming from her vagina did not help her brain to function. Stephanie had experienced many levels of pain – only the current pain, it seemed to surpass almost everything.

Bandit spoke again.

"Does that feel good, Stephanie? Bet this is your first fuck, huh? Well, honey, we're going to get to work on your front door, then we're gonna flip you over and continue with your back door. This baton is going to be shoved right up your tight British asshole. Once we're done with you here, you're coming somewhere where we can fuck you until you bleed – then we'll fuck you again."

Stephanie rarely felt fear.

Nothing much scared her on a day to day basis, despite her regular nocturnal activities. The Marauder known as Bandit had done what many could not; she had put the fear of God into Psyche. It was not the mere attack which scared Stephanie; it was the invasion of her body. Cuts and bruises, even bullets, she could handle – but the invasion of her most private parts cut deep into Psyche's psyche. As the baton was thrust inside of her, her brain struggled to both plan her escape and cope with the unknown sensations which she was feeling from inside her groin. She was astonished to find that part of her was enjoying what she was experiencing – what the fuck?!

"You enjoying it, Psycho?" Bandit laughed at the play on Stephanie's codename as she punched Stephanie in the face. "Oh, yeah – she's fucking loving it!"

There was more derisive laughter as blood trickled into Stephanie's mouth from her nose.

..._...

Then one of the girls made a mistake.

It was the girl who was supposed to have been pinning Stephanie's hands. She was laughing heartily and exchanging crude comments about Stephanie's pubescent physique with her friends and her attention was shifting. Stephanie felt the weight on her lower arms shift and she discovered with surprise that despite the bindings, her hands were free. Stephanie looked up at the girl's face and she could see the girl staring past the one sitting on her stomach and almost drooling at the sight of the baton being shoved relentlessly in and out. Her backside and back was raw from scraping on the bare concrete and the enforced position of her right arm was causing pains to shoot across her shoulder. Stephanie psyched herself for a moment, bracing herself against the movements and sensations in her pelvic region, and then she acted.

Her bound hands flew upwards and she grasped the girl's head, either side of her face as she then sunk a finger into each eye and pushed straight through, crushing the eyeball into a squishy pulp. The girl screamed out in agony, falling backwards. Before anybody could react, Stephanie had reached down to her stomach where she grabbed the pistol out of the waistband of the girl who sat there. Without any conscious thought, Stephanie squeezed the trigger three times, killing the girl with the first two bullets. Blood splashed across Stephanie's face and she struggled to see for a moment until she was able to wipe her face. She braced up as she heard three more pistol shots in rapid succession, but strangely, she did not feel any pain, and then the weight on her ankles vanished and a hand reached down with a knife to cut her wrists free.

It was the fifth girl, the one who had hung back, her pistol still smoking from the three shots which had killed the other three girls with single shots to each forehead – including the girl who Stephanie had blinded. The fifth girl quickly went to work on Stephanie's ankles. Stephanie felt relief for a moment as she felt her ankles freed, but then she screamed as the baton was very roughly pulled out of her.

"Sorry . . .!" the girl said, and she actually sounded sincere. "I'm Raider – but I prefer my old codename: Ember."

Stephanie was on the verge of passing out from the combination of the pain, what she figured may have been an 'almost' orgasm, and her other injuries.

"My phone – I need it to call help," Stephanie breathed.

"I'll call an ambulance . . ."

"No! Cannot go to hospital."

Ember passed Stephanie the cell which she had retrieved from the jeans around her ankles and Stephanie quickly activated the panic facility.

"Listen! If you stay with me, you must throw away your weapons and you must not resist when they come for me – if you resist, they will kill you."

"I need to go . . ."

"Stay . . . please . . . I sense good in you . . . please . . . stay . . ."

Stephanie passed out then and Ember did her best to pull Stephanie's panties and pants back into place, restoring some of her dignity. As instructed, she threw her knife and her pistol down the alley and then she leaned back against the alley wall as she cradled Stephanie's head in her lap. Ember did not know who Stephanie was, even though the others obviously did, but there was something about the younger girl's face which was somehow familiar to the Marauder, something in the eyes.

Within twenty minutes, a large dark grey vehicle pulled into the alleyway and Ember found herself hauled to her feet and then thrown bodily against the brick wall of the adjacent building. She felt blood on her face and then she was pulled around and the very last thing that the fourteen-year-old girl saw was a large gauntlet as it was rammed into her face.

Everything went black.

Safehouse K Subterranean Level 1

The girl awoke, and she screamed out in pain as she felt the cuts and bruises on her face.

Her eyes focussed and she found herself lying on a thin mattress over a concrete base. The space was small, about six-foot by four-foot, and the walls were bare poured concrete. A fluorescent light was embedded into the concrete ceiling and the harsh light dazzled the girl as she sat up. Three walls were concrete, but the fourth was made up of steel bars fitted vertically with a horizontal spacing of about three inches. To the left was a vertically barred door which was hinged to open outwards. She reached out and touched it – unsurprisingly, it was locked.

She felt a chill and quickly realised that her clothes were gone, and she was wearing just her sports bra and boy-shorts, nothing else. She looked beyond the bars and she saw a steel table which was bolted to the concrete floor. The place screamed interrogation. There was a steel door which presumably led out of the holding area. No windows were in evidence but her eyes focussed on a dome in one corner of the space, above the door. There was a twin dome in the adjacent corner.

The girl glared at both domes for a moment before lying back down on the bunk. Minutes later, the doors opened and a masked individual with purple markings yanked the girl up off the mattress before shoving her out of the door where she stumbled and fell to her knees, grazing both. Another masked individual grabbed hold of the girl by her left arm, yanking her to her feet, totally ignoring the blood which ran down the girl's pale-skinned legs.

The girl began to shake as she was marched up a ramp into a large open area; she recognised what could only be the place where she was going to die.

Safehouse K Subterranean Level 0

Waking up in a medical facility was really getting old.

Stephanie ached all over. Without thinking, she moved her legs and she almost screamed out as pain shot through her pelvic region.

"Don't try to move, Stephanie," Dr Bennett cautioned.

"Am I okay?"

"Yes – you're going to be a little bruised down below for a while but there's no permanent damage and you should have no problem having kids, later on in life."

Stephanie growled at that.

"You were very lucky; you also have some wicked scratches and bruises on your butt, plus some on your back. As for your hair – it'll grow back in time."

Stephanie had forgotten all about that. She reached her hand up to the back of her neck – it felt weird; she could not remember ever having had short hair before. They had stopped shaving heads by the time she had been drafted into Urban Predator.

"Mindy is going mad upstairs and I think she's preparing a lynching for that bitch who attacked you."

"Shit!" Stephanie breathed. "You've got it all wrong, Cathy. That girl saved my life and . . . I need to go see Mindy."

"I kept you sedated for a few hours while I checked you out; you need more rest but if you think you can walk . . . it'll be very painful."

Dr Bennett was not kidding about the pain. It took several attempts for Stephanie to get out of the bed and then another ten minutes for Dr Bennett to help her get dressed. Stephanie swore as she tried a few steps before gripping onto the wall for support as her hips gave way. She was on a lower level of the Safehouse and there were many stairs and a ramp to negotiate which was not easy.

"Mindy needs a bloody lift in here!"

Safehouse K Upper Level 1

The girl was a mess, having endured several sessions with Hit Girl and Wildcat.

While they had gone relatively easy to prolong the agony, they had also relented in their punishment to allow Fury and Rage to have their own session with the girl who had been responsible for hurting someone very dear to them both. Fury dived in with a punch to the face which elicited a scream and some blood while Rage drove a fist into the girl's left side, doubling her over before she sank to her knees.

"Let's get a better look at you!" Fury growled as she pulled her knife and slid the blade underneath the girl's sports bra and deftly cut it away.

Rage followed the example and slipped his own knife into the boy-shorts which fell to the ground beneath their owner. The girl remained on her knees, staring into nothing through her tears and the blood which ran over her eyes from cuts on her forehead. Fury drove her right fist into the girl's bared left breast and the girl screamed out in agony. Fury's left fist drove into the girl's right side and the girl fell forward into her own blood and urine. Rage seized her by the left ear and he yanked her back to her knees, ignoring the screaming.

Then Rage froze, just as he was about to strike the girl again. Her legs had opened as she had struggled to her knees and he had seen something which he had not seen in quite a while. In the cleft between the girl's left inner thigh and her vulva, there was a small birthmark which was partially obscured by her pubic hair. The boy recognised it instantly for what it was. Fury looked into the girl's left eye – the right one was bonded shut by dried blood – and she too froze as she saw the familiar hazel eye look back at her. Both youngsters called out the name as one as they both staggered back in surprise and horror.

"Rachel!"

..._...

At the same moment, Stephanie appeared in the space and she almost fell into Foxtail's arms as she stumbled.

Stephanie took in the scene before her. The space was wide open and all concrete. In the centre of the space was a thick piece of industrial plastic sheeting which covered about thirty square metres. Upon that blood-covered sheeting which reeked of urine, a teenaged girl knelt, completely naked, her underwear torn and scattered around her. The girl was covered in blood and her pale skin was puffy with bruises which varied from blue and black, to red. Her right eye was unable to open and the very short hair on her head was matted with sweat and blood. Standing before the naked girl stood Rage and Fury, with Hit Girl and Wildcat not too far away.

"Stop!" Stephanie called out. "That girl saved my life . . . she doesn't deserve to die. Saoirse, for the love of God, help me!"

Foxtail looked startled at the last few words which were barely audible. Stephanie very rarely called her by her full name; it was almost always 'SD' and never when in her combat suit. Saoirse helped her friend over towards the battered girl.

"You okay, Psyche?" Hit Girl asked as she looked down at her daughter.

"Yes, I am. That girl saved my life and I want her to be given a second chance."

"No fucking way!" Hit Girl growled angrily. "Not after what she did to you."

"So, she tried to hurt me – Foxtail did much worse and you gave her a second chance and a goddamn promotion!" Stephanie pointed out. "Not to mention Fury, over there."

"She does have a point," Foxtail commented but her bravery wavered, and she flinched as she saw Hit Girl's head come around in her direction.

Foxtail feared but one person and that was Hit Girl.

"I'm going to be okay, according to Medic."

..._...

Stephanie hobbled forwards and she all but fell to her own knees as she knelt beside the girl who now lay on the plastic; she had collapsed out of sheer exhaustion.

"Stay still, Ember; you're safe, I promise."

Stephanie looked up at her brother.

"Go get some water – NOW! Fury, go get Medic."

Fury looked up at Hit Girl who nodded and the young girl bolted for the ramp below.

"She's an enemy combatant, Psyche," Hit Girl cautioned her protégé. "She cannot be trusted."

"I know that!" Stephanie growled angrily as she held the girl's left hand. "I want her to live – you can keep her cuffed to the damn bed but she's going to live!"

Hit Girl stepped back as Medic ran over, her bag in her hand.

"What the fucking hell is going on?" Hit Girl demanded as she turned on Fury and Rage.

"That girl is Rachel Ascot; without her . . . well, I would be long dead for starters," Rage revealed.

Ember

The pain was extreme.

Her body hurt from head to toe and she was struggling to stay conscious. She could feel the liquid in which she lay, made up of her own bodily fluids, and she felt disgusted. There was an argument going on between those psychos. Somebody had stopped the beating; it sounded like the girl they had been raping. Before that, though, through the haze of her mind, she had heard a pair of electronic voices calling her by a name that she had not used in many months. She felt somebody holding her hand and saying something to her but her mind would not process the words.

Then she passed out.

Safehouse E Sub-Level 8 Room 22

The pain was still there as she regained consciousness.

Something felt different; she was no longer lying in her own bodily fluids, she was lying in a comfortable bed and she felt clean. Her right eye wouldn't open as if something was covering it. She opened her left eye, but she could not see much; wherever she was, it was dark. She listened, but she could hear nothing more than the whir of fans and the hum of air-conditioning. She tried to sit up, but the pain was too much, and she gave up almost immediately.

Then she passed out.

..._...

She heard a voice, familiar, yet distant.

It took a minute for her mind and then her eyes – she could open her right eye again which was a surprise – to focus properly. Then she heard her name – her real name; the girl had not heard it spoken allowed in many months.

"Rachel?"

There it was again. Something shifted in the girl's fogged brain and she saw the mental image of a boy, six-years-old, and wearing yellow joggers. Another image of the same boy taking down a girl, two years his senior.

"Jamie?"

"Hi, Rachel."

Rachel looked over to her left and she saw a face grinning at her. She recognised him easily enough, despite it having been many months since they had last seen one another.

"Thought somebody would have killed you by now."

"Oh, they tried!" Jamie growled.

Then Rachel's eyes focussed on another familiar face.

"Is that little Abigail?"

Abigail grinned enormously.

"I'm not so little now, Rach."

"Can Jamie still take you down?"

"That was a one off!" Abigail scowled.

"Just trying to make a joke."

Rachel's speech was laboured, and she was feeling very weak. The girl whom she knew as Stephanie Walker stepped forwards and she smiled.

"I owe you an apology, Rachel. Jamie's mentioned you – not in detail – but I believe I owe you for saving his life. I'm his big sister, by the way. You will not die today; you get a second chance, because of what you did for my brother – and it seems, Abigail."

"Where am I?"

"You are at a classified location beneath the streets of Chicago, Rachel," Jamie offered his friend. "We're both very sorry for what we did to you – we had no idea it was you."

Rachel looked into Jamie's eyes and then over at Abigail Wilde.

"Not your fault."

"We caused you unbelievable pain, before," Abigail said quietly. "Now, we've gone and done it again."

"Not . . . your . . . fault . . ."

The girl passed out again.

Two hours later

"How old are you?" Medic asked.

"Fourteen."

"What are you?"

"I'm a Marauder."

"A what?" Hit Girl asked as she entered the room.

"A super-Predator," Stephanie replied.

"Marauders are Predators who refused to go back to a normal life and who just wanted to fight and kill," Rachel explained. "Before you ask – I chose this life; I had nowhere to go and I thought that I could make something of my life. I was so wrong."

"Ember, isn't it?" Jamie asked.

"Yes, that was my Predator codename. They called me Raider as a Marauder but I hated it. Those girls who attacked Stephanie . . . believe me, I had no idea what they were going to do; I just followed orders. Stephanie . . . I am so very sorry for what happened to you. Jamie, I can't believe you found your sister . . . I thought she was dead."

"Later . . . just rest," Jamie suggested.

Tears spilled down Rachel's cheeks. The boy reached out and he took hold of her right hand.

"You're safe now, Rachel. We'll look after you – right, Hit Girl?"

Hit Girl looked down at her son. Then, with much reluctance, she nodded slowly.

"I would think so. Rachel, you are welcome here . . . only . . ."

"I know; I can't be trusted. I know; I'll need to earn that trust. I promise you that I can change. I used to be good – Jamie can confirm that," Rachel replied with a brief smile as she turned to Stephanie. "I've got some stories for you, Stephanie. I'm sure there's some things from his time as a Predator that he's not told you about."

Jamie felt his cheeks warming up and he groaned.

"Looking forward to it, Ember – now, you need rest," Stephanie advised.

Everybody left the girl alone and Hit Girl ensured that the door was locked.

"She will need to be guarded at all times. Two people in the Safehouse as a minimum. Once she's healed enough to be moved, she goes to Safehouse Q. She sees no more faces – you three are enough for now."

Stephanie, Abigail, and Jamie nodded.

..._...

Jamie hung back as the two girls went on ahead with Cathy and he turned to Mindy.

"Please don't be mad at her, Mindy."

"She's my daughter and I will discipline her as I see fit."

"She meant well. . ."

"James!"

Jamie shut up, but he glared at Mindy, nonetheless.

"You've been with us barely a month, Jamie. Stephanie has been here almost a year. I know her very well and I know that she knows my rules. She knows what I expect and what I will not tolerate. I will give you some leeway, as I gave her, but that only goes so far. Stephanie put her own life at risk and while she had a noble reason for going out, she should never have left D-JAK. She will be punished, Jamie – no buts and it will be severe, I promise you – I would advise you to take heed and learn from your sister's mistakes."

..._...

Later that evening, Mindy found Stephanie loitering in the galley.

She did not look happy and Mindy had an idea why – Stephanie knew that was in deep shit, but so far, Mindy had not actually spoken to her directly.

"Okay, I've spoken with Marcus. He's handed the investigation over to Voight and Intelligence. Voight has agreed to keep Rachel out of it – for the moment. She will need to be questioned. Voight is very worried. He's worried about three kids being killed. He's worried about a group of kids raping another, younger kid. He's worried about armed kids being on the streets. He's worried about what those kids are about."

Stephanie looked over at Mindy and she nodded but there was a question on her face at the mention of only 'three' dead kids.

"Marty and Abby are looking for Rachel's file and they will see what they can do to check her out. Come on, let's go home. You've had one hell of a day, Steph, and I want you to rest . . . I know; you hate that . . . please?"

Stephanie gave up the fight before it had even begun.

"Yes, Mum. Come on, Jamie."

Glennview
The British Sector

"Sis?"

"Come in, Jamie."

Jamie closed the door behind him and he sat down on the bed beside his sister. He grimaced at her pained expression. She had been sent to her room, the very moment they had got home.

"I have no idea about what you went through but I'm glad you're okay. It must have really hurt."

"It did. I've felt pain – but that was the very worst, I can tell you. Despite what some might think, that was the very first object to ever enter my vagina . . . oh, get a grip, Jamie! Nothing has ever passed my labia but some nurse's fingers when she inserted my catheter in hospital, back when I was shot. My vagina was as virgin as the driven snow!"

The nine-year-old boy cringed at the explicit terminology.

"You really are a pussy!" Stephanie laughed. "Tell me about her."

"She was in punishment when we met. I was a Yellow – you know . . ."

"I do; you were a nobody."

"Yes – I had to bring her food and escort her to empty her bucket. I was six at the time. We talked a lot and she taught me things. The Doc saw her teaching me. When she was out of punishment, I was dragged before the Doc and he told me I was to become a Phase 1 Predator – probationary, of course. Only there was a catch – Rachel was to train me . . . if I failed, she failed, if you get my drift."

Stephanie looked at her brother and she again felt sorry for him; sorry for everything that he had experienced and endured.

"I do – you would die . . . and so would she," Stephanie replied darkly.

"She trained me. She was my friend. She kept me going when I wanted to just give up. She was the only reason that I could stay alive. Come to think of it, she was the one who told me about you."

"Huh?"

"Rachel came to me one morning and she told me about this twelve-year-old girl. That girl had died; her head caved in. She had been killed by another Predator – an eight-year-old – in the shower while both were naked."

"Guilty as charged!" Stephanie admitted with a smile.

"I wish I had known, back then, that my own sister was the famous Psyche."

"Infamous, more like!"

"What can we do about Rachel? Will Mindy take her in? I know it'll be one hell of a risk, considering what Rachel is . . ."

. or was."

"That's up to us and I know that SD and Megan will help."

"Mindy and Megan really love you; they both went to town on Rachel – not their fault; they had no way of knowing."

..._...

Stephanie received a surprise visitor – apparently, the condemned was allowed visitors prior to her sentencing.

"Lauren?"

"Hi, Steph."

"I don't need you here, I . . ."

"Denial is normal – I've been there. It makes no difference whether it was a man's dick or some other object – the fact remains, Stephanie: you were raped."

"No . . . I wasn't . . . I . . ."

Lauren remained calm as she continued.

"Was an object shoved into your vagina repeatedly?"

Stephanie scowled at the vulgarity of the comment, but reluctantly, she nodded, as tears began to fall.

"Don't fight it, Steph. You're going to have nightmares tonight and for many more nights. I let my attack get to me – I want to help you with yours."

"Yours was way worse," Stephanie said.

"Maybe – but you are only ten. There's no good age to be raped, but ten is definitely not a good age. I am three years older than you, but I struggled to cope. Maybe your Predator training will help you, but . . . but you are not alone, Steph."

"Thank you, Lauren, you're a great friend."

Lauren held Stephanie as she sobbed.

..._...

Mindy appeared around ten that night.

Stephanie was feeling very depressed as she tried to use the mirror to look at the back of her head. Her hair was a mess and she felt the hot tears running down her face – how could she have been so stupid!? Mindy stood by the door for a few moments, seeing if Stephanie would get herself together – Mindy could not cope with people crying at the best of times. Finally, she pushed the door closed quietly and she walked over to where Stephanie was sitting on the edge of her bed.

"Mum!"

Stephanie stood up and she wrapped her arms around Mindy, tears spilling out of her eyes. The tears were very real and Mindy could feel the remorse that Stephanie felt for her actions as the ten-year-old sobbed and shook. Mindy pulled Stephanie over to the bed and they both sat down, but Stephanie refused to let go of Mindy who was finding it all very uncomfortable. Finally, Mindy pulled Stephanie's arms from around her and pushed her back. For a moment their eyes locked and Mindy kept a neutral expression on her face.

"You went out when you were grounded – I thought better of you, Stephanie. I don't care the reason behind you ignoring me – your brother has tried to plead your case, but there is nothing you can say that will be a valid excuse for going out against my express instructions. Now, as a direct result of your actions, you lost your hair," Stephanie began to sob again, "and you were attacked by people who wanted you dead. Then you suffered something awful and I am struggling to put that act into words."

"Did you ask Lauren to come over?"

"I did – did it help?"

Stephanie nodded.

"I just wanted to get you something nice . . . to say sorry for the car . . ."

Mindy had been beating herself up about it being her fault Stephanie had gone out – until Dave had told her to stop being 'so fucking stupid' and he had threatened to get Marcus on the phone to have a go at her.

"Considering what you endured, I will take your hair and the err, other things, into account when considering your sentence. I was thinking of demoting you until you can demonstrate better judgement . . . however, I am putting you on probation and we will see if you can follow my instructions."

Stephanie was crying again so Mindy decided it was time to leave her to get some rest. Without any further words, Mindy helped her daughter into bed before she turned out the light and closed the bedroom door behind her.

Chapter 344*: The First Wave

Monday, October 10th, 2016

Safehouse E

Sub-Level 8
Room 25

"This, we believe, is Bandit."

Venom grimaced.

"Willow."

"Come again?" Hit Girl asked.

"Willow Hartman – First Intake. Known as Rampart. She was a good person until she reached Phase 3 and then she changed – don't know why," Venom reeled off.

"She became bitchy – way more than most of us girls – kind of like you, Hit Girl," Bane added.

"Thanks, I think."

The girl in question was unconscious in the bed with various wires and tubes running under the sheet which covered the obviously naked body.

"How come she's alive?" Bane asked.

"Ember shot her, but maybe she moved at the last second; the bullet went through her shoulder – nicked an artery: why she didn't bleed out. . ." Hit Girl tried to explain.

"I heard somebody was brought in wounded – I just thought it was the other girl," Venom commented.

"I had to keep her presence quiet for Stephanie's sake."

"We can understand that," Venom conceded.

Training Facility Echo

Level 2

Dave, Danny, Anne-Marie, and an understandably shy Stephanie exited the elevator into the recreational and briefing space.

A lot of faces turned to look in their direction and others were nudged to turn in her direction. All the faces looked decidedly grim which annoyed Stephanie.

"If any one of you bastards tries to give me sympathy, I will fuck you up so bad!" she growled.

There were a few surprised faces, but then Joshua started to laugh.

"Way to go, Stephanie!" he chuckled.

Everybody started to laugh and there was a round of applause for Stephanie who cringed – it was not the centre of attention she preferred.

"What's with the bruise on Anne-Marie's cheek?" Chloe asked.

Anne-Marie tried to hide her face in embarrassment. Danny scowled at his twin for a moment before he replied.

"She made a joke about Steph's hair: said we should call her Stephen. I slapped her."

Chloe just rolled her eyes and she smiled down at Stephanie.

"You, young lady, are coming with me."

Stephanie had no idea what was going on, but Chloe took her by the hand and then led the girl back into the elevator.

..._...

There was a decidedly dark and sullen mood in the safehouse.

Despite Stephanie's bravado, everybody felt for her. Anne-Marie received a lot of stick for her actions and she was left sitting in a corner, alone, far away from everybody else. The mood had not been helped by those who had been injured the previous evening. Many were worried and as a direct consequence, the morale had begun to plunge. Two hours passed before Stephanie returned to the Safehouse looking very different and more than a little embarrassed by her transformation. Her hair had been professionally trimmed and styled to suit the new length and was now a very fitting pixie cut.

"Fucking, wow!" Joshua exclaimed. "Nice one, Steph!"

Stephanie found herself giggling, and her face began to burn bright red.

"So, hot!" Tommy said next as he ran up and gave Stephanie a kiss on the cheek.

The giggling just got worse as the compliments piled in from everybody present.

"Wow, that is so soft – I love it," Saoirse said with a friendly smile full of support as she ran a hand up the back of her friend's neck.

"Thank you, everybody. . ." Stephanie tried before she felt tears welling up in her eyes.

"You do look great, Steph . . . I'm really sorry," Anne-Marie said as she bravely faced her big sister, ignoring the angry stares from the others.

Stephanie could not hate the youngster – she looked miserable.

"Apology accepted," Stephanie said as she gave the girl a hug.

"Chloe?" Becky asked.

"Yes, Peanut."

"Can I get my hair done like that, please?"

"What? Get rid of your lovely long hair?" Chloe asked, dumbfounded – she knew that Becky loved her long hair.

"Becky – that's a big step," Joshua pointed out, appalled by the very idea.

"I like Steph's hair – it's great and well, long hair gets in the way and it takes ages to brush and to stuff into a mask," Becky pointed out.

"She has a point," Stephanie said.

"No, she doesn't!" Chloe corrected. "Not right now, Peanut."

"Okay," Becky said.

"She does look great, though, doesn't she, Tommy?" Saoirse asked suggestively in a very loaded question.

"Hell, yeah!" Tommy replied with a grin. "I've been hard ever since she walked in."

Stephanie's eyes almost popped out as her face went redder than ever.

That evening

Safehouse F

"Welcome, Lucy," Saoirse and Shannon said together as they pulled off the girl's black hood.

"Pleasure's all mine. . ." Lucy said as her eyes became accustomed to the bright lights and she took in the enormous cavern-like structure before her. "Another one of Hit Girl's Safehouses?"

"Welcome to Safehouse F, Lucy."

Lucy turned to see a young woman striding towards her. She wore a uniform with a single gold star on the collar and her name tag read: HIT GIRL. Lucy was a little perturbed to see no mask in evidence.

"So, we meet in the flesh, so to speak. I assume I have you to thank for the, very thorough," Lucy glared at Chrissy, "cavity search."

"Can't be too careful in the current climate," Mindy offered, nonchalantly. "I am taking a leap of faith with you, Lucy."

"I noticed. Thanks."

"We have another job for you."

Safehouse E

Sub-Level 8

Room 25

"We brought her in, last night," Mindy explained as she swiped her access card and pushed open the door.

Lucy walked into what was evidently a hospital room with two beds occupying most of the space. Mindy waved Lucy over towards the one occupied bed. Lucy studied the unconscious form in the bed for a moment before stiffening.

"Willow – the girl who went bad."

"That's what Chrissy and Skye told me."

"What do you want of me?"

"We want you to interrogate her – find out what she is and why she is in Chicago. I have a few more questions, too," Mindy said as she dumped a large folder onto a table.

"A few?" Lucy growled.

"You will be watched – every movement recorded on the cameras," Mindy cautioned.

"I can live with that. How did you come by her?"

"Seems they knew Psyche – who doesn't!" Mindy replied. "She and her team of four girls ambushed Stephanie and they raped her with a baton."

Lucy's face went dark, confirming to Mindy that she had made the right decision.

"The other girls?"

"Dead, but one – she's in the room across the corridor. She killed three of her colleagues and wounded this bitch."

"Second Intake," Skye prompted. "Rachel Ascot."

"Not one to go bad, if I remember right," Lucy stated.

"We believe she might have just fallen in with the wrong crowd," Mindy said. "We want you to interrogate her, too."

"I can do that – can I see Stephanie?" Lucy asked.

"I'll see what I can arrange," Mindy promised.

Training Facility Echo

Level 1

Lucy sat at a table in the dining room.

She had a mug of coffee in her left hand and a pile of paper spread out all over the table.

"You okay, Lucy?" a voice asked.

Lucy looked up into the smiling face of. . .

"Shannon!"

"You look busy – I'll leave you be."

"No – sit down, please."

"I see that Mindy has put you to work," Shannon commented as she ran her eyes across all the papers.

"I'm on interrogation duty," Lucy grouched.

"Something's up – don't lie now, Lucy."

Lucy chuckled.

"After all I put you through, I would have thought that you'd not want to talk to me so readily."

"Lucy!" Shannon exclaimed. "Without you, I would have received a bullet in my skull – I was a fucking screwup."

"Yes, you were," Lucy agreed.

"You want to talk – you come over, okay?"

"What about your dad?"

"What about him?"

"I don't think he'd want me around."

"He cares about you – I know that, Lucy. Besides, he'll do what I want – I have him all figured out!"

Level 4

Mindy was pounding around the 400-metre track on the inside lane – she was on her third circuit of the evening and she was brooding.

The previous evening had been hard on Stephanie and at about one in the morning, Mindy and Dave had been awoken by Stephanie climbing into the bed and forcing her way in between the two of them. Without a word, Stephanie had fallen straight to sleep, cuddling into Dave who had just chuckled and shrugged while Mindy had just scowled in his direction from across the sleeping ten-year-old. Mindy was worried about Stephanie and what she had endured, but Stephanie was strong, and she had been through a lot in her short life – she could handle almost anything. It was the very first time that Stephanie had ever wormed her way into the bed – Anne-Marie had done it once or twice.

They were a close family, all of them; a fact which often surprised Mindy, but then she had been very close to her own father.

..._...

Stephanie lazed around in the swimming pool and she watched Mindy running around the track, her legs striding out.

Mindy was being super-supportive, as was Dave and everybody else. Some were avoiding her to some extent, appalled by what she had gone through. For solace, Stephanie had retreated into the bowels of the facility to where she could be alone. Her thoughts were on Mindy, Dave, her family – and the girl who meant so much to her brother and Abigail. Rachel was a conundrum, but Jamie and Abigail loved her, so Stephanie was happy to give her the benefit of the doubt – for the moment.

"A penny for your thoughts."

Stephanie looked up to see Abigail slipping into the swimming pool. That was a surprise – Abigail was not a big fan of swimming, but she tolerated it on occasions.

"Sulking," Stephanie replied.

"I want to say that I had an idea of what you went through, but I can't remember any of it."

"It was horrible."

"I wouldn't wish that on my worst enemy," Abigail said as she swam slowly around the drifting Stephanie.

"I tried to get you raped, remember?"

"It never happened and if you really wanted me raped, you would have made it happen."

"I suppose. I hate that word."

"It's not supposed to be a nice word in any context," Abigail pointed out.

"True."

The two girls swam around for several minutes without talking.

"You two, okay?" Mindy asked as she dripped sweat.

"Yes, Mum."

"Yes, Mrs Lizewski," Abigail grinned.

"Oh, God!" Mindy exclaimed. "You make me sound old!"

"You are old," Abigail pointed out with a grin which faltered as Mindy glared down at her. "I'll go drown myself – save you the trouble."

Mindy laughed.

"Thank you for looking after my daughter, Abigail."

"Somebody has to," Abigail replied. "She can't keep out of trouble, or away from her past, it seems."

"Tell me about it!" Mindy grimaced as Stephanie just grinned sheepishly.

"Hey!" Mindy yelled into the steam filled showers where laughing and girly giggling could be heard.

"Coming!" came Stephanie's voice before she began giggling again.

Mindy had completed her own shower, just as the two girls had appeared. Mindy had no complaints about seeing her daughter grinning and hearing her laughing and giggling. However, Predators laughing and giggling, including former enemies, was worrying.

"What's up, Mum?" Stephanie asked as she appeared with her towel wrapped tightly around her body.

The short hair suited her very well and Chloe had been able to obtain a perfect styling. Abigail was right behind, wrapped up in her own towel. It was hard to see the two girls as mortal enemies as they stood there dripping.

"Get yourselves dried and dressed – Steph: you have a visitor up in the dining room."

Level 1

Stephanie followed Mindy into the dining room, unsure of what was awaiting her.

There, at a table, sat the first Predator, Lucy Ford. Mindy waved Stephanie over before manoeuvring Abigail elsewhere and leaving the two girls alone. Lucy waved Stephanie to a seat and Saoirse appeared with two mugs of hot tea which she placed down onto the table before vanishing.

"We are special, you and me," Lucy began as she looked at Stephanie.

"How so?"

"I started Urban Predator and you finished it. We are the beginning and the end of something inhuman but also of something that began as something noble only to be destroyed by the limited sight of one man."

"Noah Vossen."

"You met?"

"Yeah – Saoirse killed him in the end."

"Oh?"

"She chopped off his hand, liquidised it and had him drink it. . ."

"Cool!"

"She plucked out his eyes with a knife and then she finished him – blade to the heart."

"I'd have preferred him to have suffered – cushy way out," Lucy commented, and Stephanie grinned fiendishly.

"Hirsch suffered – I enjoyed making him suffer for what he did."

"That man, he made kids kill their families. That was one of the reasons Instructor Millar, err I mean, Patrick, began to revolt against the other instructors – he disagreed with it all."

"I know – he's a good man."

"That he is. He helped to keep me sane in my darkest hour."

"I wish I had had somebody – it was hard. I suppose I had friends, kind of. They called themselves my 'posse'. I was feared by many but that only drew me to the attention of those bastard instructors. Killing that girl in the shower may have stopped the bullying but it made me suffer even worse deprivations and experiences."

"You survived all that, Stephanie and you endured it all from such a young age. I was the age you are now when I was taken and flown to Colorado and I struggled. I suppose my time was easier as I had him, I had Leo. We helped each other and . . ."

"You miss him, right?"

"Yes, I do. I have no idea if he is still alive – we broke contact when the last mission went awry."

"There are times when I hate my life," Stephanie said, gloomily. "But I love my new family – even my brat sister. I have the most incredible stepparents and I love them very much. I have two brothers, one being the boy I thought that I had lost for so long. If I can find somebody dear to me, then I'm certain that you can, too, Lucy."

"I hope so, Stephanie, I really do."

Safehouse E

Sub-Level 8 Room 22

Rachel looked up from her bed as the door opened.

She grinned as she saw Jamie and then Abigail appear . . . but the grin faded as she saw who was next.

"Didn't think that I would ever see you again, Lucy," she growled.

"Yeah – I never thought I would see any of you. Before you start on me, please, let me say. . ."

"Sorry?" Rachel interrupted. "You can keep your fucking apologies!"

Lucy sat down on a chair beside the bed with Abigail and Jamie taking two more seats.

"How are you feeling?" Lucy asked.

"Like I got run over by a truck."

Abigail and Jamie both cringed at the comment.

"Sorry – I had to get that in," Rachel smiled darkly as she grinned down at the two youngsters.

"Bitch!" Jamie grimaced.

"What he said," Abigail muttered as she frowned.

"Can we get down to business, please, I have a lot of questions for you, err – what should I call you? Ember? Raider? Rachel?"

"Not Raider," Rachel replied. "I never want to hear that name again."

"Okay, Rachel. What are you?" Lucy began as she studied her notes.

"Like I said, yesterday, Marauders are Predators who refused to go back to a normal life. That woman, FEAR, she had her agents seeking us out. They found me beating up some bastard, somewhere in Virginia. They offered me money and a life, freedom from a normal life, the ability to kill, almost at will."

"You accepted."

"It sounded appealing and my life was shit at the time. I decided to use my skills – thought I could make them work for me, for a change. After Urban Predator fell apart, I had nothing – it folded with no warning."

"My Mum did that, along with my sister," Jamie said proudly.

"Oh?" Rachel said. "I heard rumours, but I had no idea."

..._...

The questions continued, moving on from the friendlier questions to the less friendly ones.

"Why did you allow yourself to be taken?" Lucy asked.

"Stephanie thought I might be able to get out of that life."

"What life?"

"As a Marauder."

"How do we know this isn't just some elaborate setup to infiltrate us?" Lucy continued.

"It isn't – I had no idea. . ."

"You're after Hit Girl, aren't you?"

"No . . . I . . ."

"You want to kill her?"

"No!"

"You're a fucking mole!" Lucy yelled.

"NO!"

"I know your training! I know what you are capable of! Tell me what you are doing here!"

"I don't want that life. I don't want to be part of that . . ."

"Okay," Lucy offered, softly. "Suppose we believe you . . . you got anything for us?"

"Yes."

"I never liked you – Rachel, isn't it?"

"You know. . ."

"You're here to infiltrate Fusion! You are here to kill Hit Girl – maybe make another attempt on Psyche?"

"No! You've got it all wrong, Lucy . . . I . . ."

"You're so full of shit, Ember, I'm surprised you can stand the fucking stench!"

"What!?"

"You're a fucking traitor and I'm going to recommend to Hit Girl that she kills you."

Lucy stood up to leave and Rachel appeared horror-stricken. Her eyes were red with worry and stress. She was breathing heavily and there were tears welling up in her eyes.

"I'm not lying – I know about FEAR's plans . . . PLEASE!"

Lucy walked out of the room, closely followed by a fuming Abigail and Jamie.

..._...

"She's telling the truth!" Jamie blurted out.

"I know," Lucy replied.

"But. . ." Abigail began before Lucy put a finger to Abigail's lips.

"I had to test her – I'm not sorry about doing that; we live in a dangerous world."

"I know," Jamie responded, sounding very relieved.

"Come on, both of you – we'll leave Rachel to rest and go check in with that crazed woman upstairs."

"You mean, Mom?" Jamie asked.

"Yeah, her."

..._...

"Hello, Rachel."

"Hi . . . Steph."

Rachel struggled to wipe away her tears as Stephanie sat down on a chair. Neither spoke for a few minutes until Rachel had composed herself. Then Stephanie stood up and she walked around the bed. She was sore and still getting used to things, so she was not in the best of moods.

"I have to thank you again for saving my life," Stephanie said. "Jamie and Abigail speak very highly of you. They were both very upset about hurting you."

"They got me strapped and sent to the cage, back when they were younger."

"I see. Me and that cage were well acquainted," Stephanie replied with a pained expression. "The strap, too."

"Lucy said. . ."

"Stop – she was just testing you. Tell me more about what FEAR is up to if you please."

Rachel looked very relieved as she settled back onto her pillows.

"Something big was planned for some weeks back, only that pink pansy fucked things up," Rachel explained.

Stephanie chuckled.

"You've met Sunset Phoenix, I assume?"

"Not in person, but our paths have crossed – she does seem to love pink!"

"Yeah – well, FEAR has what she is calling: The First Wave."

The Battle Bunker

"... FEAR is calling it: The First Wave," Marty explained as he continued flipping through the document which had been decrypted from the recovered USB drive. "Between FEAR, the Russians, and the Sicilians, there's gonna be around two-hundred enemy to be put down."

"Not good!" Mindy mused.

"Any good news, pal?" Dave asked.

"They ain't gonna be in one big group – it looks like they're gonna be scattered around the city and then some, in smaller groups causing mayhem and spreading us about in smaller groups," Marty explained.

"That's good," Abby offered.

"Yeah – great!" Mindy growled as she began to consider the ramifications of spitting Fusion up even further than it already was, not to mention those unavailable for combat.

"What else do we know?" Dave asked Abby.

"Things are not going well on the Fusion popularity front," Abby reported. "For now, the worst weapon used against us has been rotten eggs. We're working on getting the citizens of Chicago back on our side."

"So, when is this attack expected?" Mindy wanted to know.

"Try Saturday," Marty stated.

"This Saturday?" Dave queried.

"This Saturday."

..._...

Mindy was not happy with the state of affairs, but then nobody was.

"What else is there?" she asked, a little worried as to the potential response.

"We know where FEAR is based," Marty offered.

Mindy's sour mood brightened up considerably.

"Joliet City," Abby added.

"Do we have enough to assault the place?" Dave queried.

"We know the location, but we know very little about that location – it's an old jail and plans are scarce. It's a lot of area to cover with many buildings and levels – it would be very difficult, if not impossible, to mount an assault in just a few days," Marty said.

"We might be able to infiltrate and sabotage them," Abby suggested.

"Anything we can do to impede their attack at the weekend would help," Dave confirmed.

"Okay," Mindy decided. "Let's plan a recon for Wednesday morning and an infiltration for Thursday night."

"Who will you take?"

"I'll take Steph and Tommy on Wednesday. For Thursday, prepare Hailee and Saoirse on primary, with Shannon and Megan on secondary."

The following morning

Tuesday, October 11th

Glenview

Anne-Marie smiled supportively as she came down the stairs and she saw Stephanie appearing from Dave and Mindy's bedroom.

"Hi, Steph!"

"Oh, hi, Anne-Marie."

Stephanie looked embarrassed.

"I'm not judging you, Steph – hungry?"

"Yeah," Steph replied with a forced smile.

In the kitchen, Anne-Marie manoeuvred her big sister towards a chair at the table overlooking the back garden. Stephanie appeared a little confused as Anne-Marie proceeded to bring over a bowl for each of them, a spoon each, a carton of milk, and then Stephanie's favourite Cocoa Krispies, plus her own Cheerios. Stephanie was glad that Anne-Marie stopped there, allowing her to pour her own cereal – she was not an invalid.

"I'm sorry I was nasty to you, yesterday," Anne-Marie began."

"Don't worry about it – I know you're there for me, and that's enough," Stephanie offered in between spoonful's.

Anne-Marie felt her face heating up, so she buried her head into her cereal.

"How are my girls?" Dave asked as he strolled into the kitchen and made for the coffee machine.

"We're good, thanks, Dad," Stephanie replied for them both.

Four hours later

North Park Elementary School

Understandably, Mindy was fuming.

As she walked down the corridor, she could see two small boys sitting on two of five chairs which sat beside a door in a line, over to the left. Both boys stared at the floor, not daring to look up as Mindy approached – they could both sense her anger and they knew that their world was about to come crashing down around them. Mindy was welcomed at the door by the Principal who waved her into her office – both adults ignored the two miserable miscreants. Both boys jumped a minute later when a loud bellow was heard from the other side of the door.

"They did what!?"

A few minutes later, Mindy reappeared and without saying a word, she pointed down the corridor. Both boys stood up and they headed down the corridor, very aware of the very angry Mindy walking a few feet behind. For Jamie, it felt like the longest walk of his short life and the corridors appeared to go on forever.

It was with limited relief that they reached the car park.

..._...

Stephanie noticed the British Racing Green Jaguar XJ parked in the school carpark when she left her classroom for lunch.

Her unasked question was answered moments later as she saw her two brothers being 'escorted' by a ferocious looking Mindy across the carpark. She just shook her head and made her way towards the dining room.

"Where's Danny?" Anne-Marie asked a little later.

"I saw him, and Jamie, being escorted off the premises by Mum – she looked like was going to kill 'em," Stephanie replied.

"What have the idiots done, this time?" Anne-Marie asked, rhetorically.

"Not sure, to be honest."

"Boys!"

That evening

Training Facility Echo

Level 0

Neither Stephanie, nor Anne-Marie had seen the boys when they had returned home after school.

Dave had picked them up, instead of Mindy. They had asked about the boys, only for Dave to simply shrug in response. However, on passing through from Safehouse F, they found the two miscreants engaged in shuttle-runs, from one side of the primary training area to the other, and judging by their sweat-soaked hair and clothes, they had obviously been at it for quite a while. Standing a few feet away, herself drenched in sweat, stood Mindy and she sound very angry as she barked orders at the two boys. Mindy looked up and she saw her two daughters. Stephanie had expected a smile, but she just received a glare and a single barked word of welcome.

"Train!"

Anne-Marie opened her mouth to make a snappy retort, but Stephanie wisely hustled her off towards the changing rooms.

..._...

"What's up with Mum?" Stephanie asked Megan, who was herself, changing.

"The boys fucked up," Megan replied. "As I understand it, they got into a fight with Aimee Grant. Her big sister used to be the high school bully – until Lauren put her down. Aimee was a nice girl – very different to her big sister – only she's changed. Aimee started to spout off the same bullshit that her sister once did, only with anti-Fusion crap. Well, she got into an argument with another girl and Jamie went to support that girl. Aimee slugged both the girl and Jamie which unfortunately brought Daniel into the fight."

"Was anybody hurt?" Stephanie asked.

"Nothing worse than some bruising – shame; the bitch deserved worse," Megan finished. "See you guys, later – I've no time for idle chitchat."

"She seem any different to you, since her return from Gotham?" Stephanie asked Anne-Marie as Megan ran out of the changing room.

"Not all that much."

"Okay."

..._...

For next hour they trained under the watchful eyes of Mindy.

The veteran vigilante was in a foul mood and she was pushing everybody to their limits – even Megan. Nobody dared argue; they just pushed on through the pain barrier and continued training. The first to collapse were the two boys who had been pushed beyond normal endurance. Danny went first, with Jamie about forty minutes later. Stephanie, for all her Predator training was not far behind, her thighs still very sore. As she sank to the mats, she saw the disapproving look from Mindy, but Stephanie ignored it.

It was only in the dining room that Mindy tried to explain her feelings.

..._...

"Mindy?"

"Hi, Steph."

"I'll leave you be, if you want?"

"I'm sorry for being a bitch."

"You're just being you, Mum."

Mindy smiled for the first time that day.

"I'm just mad at your brothers for causing trouble. I know they were being valiant, but I have enough fucking shit on my plate without two immature little shits causing trouble!"

Stephanie chuckled.

"What?"

"I don't know why, but I find it funny when you're mad," Stephanie grinned.

"Oh, God!" Mindy growled. "You're so much like Dave!"

Stephanie grinned, enormously – that was a massive compliment as far as she was concerned. Before she could come out with some witty remark, Abby came running into the dining room.

"Bandit is awake."

Stephanie's face clouded over and went very dark.

"Bandit."

Chapter 345*: Battle Ready

Tuesday, October 11th, 2016

Safehouse E

Sub-Level 8
Room 25

Bandit was awake.

And to say that she was unhappy was putting it mildly. The teenager was strapped to her bed by her wrists, chest, waist, and ankles. The straps were very necessary as at the moment she had regained consciousness and she had realised where she was, she had begun to yell and scream, struggling against her restraints. The girl froze as three people entered the room. The first was masked – Hit Girl, the second was a face from her distant past – Lucy Ford, the final one – Psyche, a face from the more recent past.

"You're alive – shame!" Stephanie growled.

"The feeling's mutual," Bandit commented.

"Willow," Lucy said. "We just want to talk."

"That is not my name!"

"What went wrong with you, Willow?" Lucy persisted.

"Let me the fuck outta here, dammit!"

Willow struggled against her restraints, turning the air blue as she fought to escape. She also went for the typical 'brainwashed-propaganda' routine.

"You cannot keep me here! You are vermin! She will destroy you and my brethren will come for me!"

"Who are your 'brethren', Willow?" Lucy asked calmly. "Marauders or Predators?"

"Fuck the Predators – they mean nothing to me!"

"Is that so?" Lucy commented. "If Predators mean so little to you, why did you go after Psyche?"

"She destroyed everything that I held dear – she caused my friends to die."

"Friends? Predator friends?"

"Stop fucking twisting my words!" Willow exploded.

"What are you?" Lucy demanded.

"As I told that little bitch, I am beyond a mere Predator, I am a Marauder. I may have been formed in your image, Hit Girl, but I have surpassed you; I am better than you."

Stephanie cringed, and she looked up at Hit Girl.

"I thought your ego was bad," she commented before clamping up as Hit Girl growled dangerously.

"I am sorry for what you were put through, Willow. I see that you were only ten-years-old when you were taken – that's a hard six years for you. I know what it's like to lose your childhood and be coerced into something heinous," Hit Girl admitted. "We are here to help you – not to fight you. I know that you need an outlet – we can help you."

Willow appeared to be listening to Hit Girl but then she shook her head.

"NO!"

She began to rant again but then she seized up and the girl screamed out in pain. From her expression, it was in no way faked.

"Out!" Medic ordered as she swept in. "Out, or heads will roll!"

..._...

"Well, that went well!" Stephanie commented as Mindy reappeared from under her mask.

"You have a point, Steph – her ego is worse than mine."

"Not by much. . ." Stephanie muttered.

"Do you enjoy being in pain, honey?"

"I have somewhere to be, I'm sure of it," Stephanie stated as she headed down the corridor.

"Strange child!" Mindy growled and then she looked at Lucy. "You grinning?"

"No, ma'am!" Lucy replied.

"You think Stephanie's comment about my ego is funny?"

"A little. . ."

For a moment, Lucy thought that she might have just signed her own death warrant.

"You may be a girl, Lucy, but you have balls! Assuming I don't rip your head off, you might go far."

"Thanks – I think."

The following morning

Wednesday, October 12th

They left Chicago behind in the mid-morning, heading southwest.

Stephanie and Tommy were in the backseat of the Jaguar XJ, talking. Mindy was watching them both and smirking.

"Driver!" Tommy called out. "Eyes front, please."

Mindy opened her mouth to respond but she laughed and concentrated on her driving. They had a fifty-mile drive in total which was expected to take around an hour – or 'Twenty minutes as Mum drives,' Stephanie had quipped before Mindy had flicked her left ear and she had squealed in pain. The drive was otherwise peaceful apart from several bursts of giggling from Stephanie. As the hour drew to a close, they passed directly between the jail and the quarry from which the jail was originally built. They did not stop, but continued past into the city of Joliet for lunch – the plan was to look like innocent tourists – but they were hungry, too.

After Stephanie and Tommy had stuffed themselves stupid – Mindy had filled herself, too – they headed north towards the jail. The place covered a large area on multiple sites. It would be a nightmare to assault – if not impossible. The towering stone walls intended to keep inmates in, were equally good at keeping people out. The same applied to the heavy steel-bound wooden gates and the caged catchment areas.

"Will you two stop with the hand-holding and the snogging!?" Mindy growled and the two pink-faced youngsters sprang apart, grinning.

Mindy found it creepy that her daughter, who was barely eight years her junior, was consorting with a boy. Besides, there was a time and a place for everything and a reconnaissance mission was not the place for hand-holding and snogging.

"I've spotted four guards on patrol," Tommy commented, getting back to the task at hand.

"Yeah – I go with four," Stephanie agreed.

Mindy had noticed the four men dressed as workers in hard hats and high visibility vests. They appeared to be 'maintaining' the area around the jail walls, but for a trained eye, they were patrolling, and they were all armed. Not far from each pair there appeared to be a cache of some sort which probably held heavier weapons. They had also spotted three teenagers, all with their heads shaved. Everything that they saw was being recorded by the ultra-high definition cameras mounted on the Jaguar for later inspection. As they watched, they saw the Marauders vanish behind some bushes and through a concealed doorway, hidden by the undergrowth.

FEAR's bolthole had been confirmed. The only problem was, what the hell could they do about it? According to Rachel, there were hundreds in there and storming the place would be very costly and Fusion did not have the numbers required for such an endeavour.

"The situation sucks," Tommy voiced for them all.

"We could lose a dozen just assaulting the main gate, let alone the unknown within," Mindy commented darkly.

"I agree," Stephanie said. "If we could sabotage them – a few explosions – it would hit their morale by showing them that they aren't safe from us anywhere."

"My thoughts, exactly!" Mindy said in a tone which showed how proud she was of her daughter. "Tomorrow night, the infiltrators can leave a few gifts behind."

..._...

"You have a good trip?" Dave asked on their return.

"Not bad – we found out what we needed to know," Mindy replied. "Stephanie and Tommy enjoyed themselves – hope she isn't pregnant."

"MUM!"

"Did you, or did you not, have your hand on Tommy's crotch?" Mindy demanded of her very embarrassed daughter.

"Maybe . . . yes, okay, I rested my hand on his crotch."

"Did he like it?" Mindy teased.

"Never you mind!" a thoroughly mortified Stephanie growled before vanishing up the stairs.

"Steph sure did enjoy the kissing," Mindy said loudly.

"You are so evil," Dave chuckled.

"Yes, I am."

From up the stairs, Anne-Marie's American twang could be heard chanting.

"Stephanie and Tommy sitting in the tree, K – I – S – S – I – N – G."

"I'd better go and prevent a murder," Dave suggested as he leapt up the stairs, taking them three at a time.

..._...

Mindy and Dave spent a couple of hours going through the footage from the reconnaissance.

Marty and Abby had already done so and between the four of them, they concluded that FEAR had done very well when selecting her hideaway. Nonetheless, they would prepare Hailee and Saoirse for the operation with Shannon and Megan as their backup. Mindy knew that it would be very dangerous and there would be a very high risk to the infiltrator's wellbeing. All four girls had agreed to go – they would never back down; they knew what was at stake. Mindy hated having to split her forces, but it needed to be done. To cover the infiltration, they would have to put on a big show in the city to attract FEAR's attention and Mindy had some ideas for that.

If Mindy could chip away at FEAR's resources, along with those of the Russians and the Sicilians, then they might change Saturday night.

Safehouse Q

They had spent near enough four weeks in their temporary home.

Libby Dade missed her own home, her own room, and her own bed. Jesse was much the same. As for their parents; they were still a little wide-eyed by the new world in which they had found themselves. They had been introduced to the famous – or infamous – Hit Girl and they were being protected by the best that Chicago, and arguably the entire USA, could offer.

Libby and Jesse were working their way, providing their skills to Fusion via Synthesis. Jesse had been forgiven for causing the forced re-homing in the first place – not that Libby mentioned it very often. For Libby, descending into her world of the Internet and the Dark Web was a suitable distraction from her enforced living away from her home. The opportunity to work on the fastest computers with idols such as Battle Guy and Hal was also worth any degradation in other parts of their lives. Synthesis had an ongoing task of attempting to crack FEAR's communications and her own computer network. They scoured the Dark Web following traces of FEAR's activities – they also found the Russians in that dark world, too.

Libby and her Synthesis colleague, Kate Bradford, were delving into the lives of the Russians, searching for some way to interrupt their operations.

Sheridan Road

"You ready for tomorrow night?"

"Yes, Daddy – I'll be fine."

"So independent," Patrick Millar mused.

Shannon had been getting grumpy with her father's overbearing posture. Her shoulder slumped.

"Okay – thank you for caring."

"I love you very much, Shannon, despite what I did to your childhood."

"Daddy – we've talked about this; what's done is done and we cannot change the past, so let's just look forwards. I'm enjoying being back with my family and I know that you all love me just as much as I love each one of you."

"You double-check everything – I don't care how special a Predator you were."

"Lucy is helping me gear up; she won't let anything happen to me."

"She really helped you, didn't she?"

"Yes, Daddy, she did – I owe her everything and despite everything, I trust her."

"So, do I – you listen to that girl," her father cautioned, and Shannon nodded.

The next evening

Thursday, October 13th

Safehouse F

"You've checked your pistols?"

"Yes."

"Clean?"

"Of course!"

"Operative?"

"Please!"

"Shannon – what have I taught you, exhaustively."

Shannon struggled to control her mounting temper.

"Check, double-check, re-check, then start again," Shannon recited.

"Clever girl!" Lucy grinned as she circled the thirteen-year-old.

"Lucy!"

"Shannon, honey, you're going to be fourteen in five days. I want you to still be alive to celebrate that day."

"I know – you and Dad are really getting on my nerves. I know, you both care about me and he trusts you."

"Ever since a certain nine-year-old turned up stark naked on my doorstep, I've taken care of her – even before I found out who your father was. I protected you and I turned a screwup into an awesome young lady who could kill like she was born to it."

"Yes, you did, Lucy, and I love you for it."

"Now – are your pistols one-hundred-percent?"

"Yes, ma'am. Cleaned, oiled, tested, magazines loaded loosely by me. Knives sharpened, bō-staff sharpened and polished."

"Clean panties?"

"Fresh tampon, too," Shannon grinned.

Lucy laughed. Shannon was very special to her for many reasons and being able to help her out before a mission felt good. Lucy mentally thanked Mindy for allowing her to become part of the team – it was still early days, and Lucy knew that she was being watched, but she felt like she belonged.

"Don't I get the personal touch?" Saoirse asked with a hurt expression.

"You are old enough to sort yourself out, young lady," Lucy pointed out with a smile.

"I know – you ready, Stormy?" Foxtail grinned.

"I am going to slaughter that little brat!" Stormtide scowled.

Joliet

Dave had been out with Marty and they had acquired a pair of beaten-up old panel vans – driving in Fusion transport would just alert FEAR via the spies she most definitely had.

Tony Morgan had checked the vehicles over and pronounced them sound. He would be driving the first of the two vans while Emily Edwards would drive the second. Petra and Foxtail would ride with Ares while Stormtide and Wildcat would ride with Athena. Astute and Leon were to provide an extra layer of support as required – they would travel independently of the vans and take up Overwatch positions.

It was going to be a highly-dangerous operation, but it was an essential operation, nonetheless, and both girls knew it.

..._...

Later, that evening, the two vans pulled off the 171 Highway outside of Joliet, one to the left and one to the right.

The van being driven by Ares had turned left off the highway. Ares made several turns before he slowed for just two seconds on Englewood Avenue giving Petra and Foxtail the time they needed to jump from the van. They hit the ground, rolled, and came up onto their feet before they both dived into the undergrowth and made their way into the trees.

"Petra, clear!"

"Foxtail, clear!"

Both girls reported in before they pulled out their NVG gear. The displays came to life and the built-in HUD gave them their course and the display showed them a crystal-clear view of what was ahead of them with a hint of green.

"Heading of 208 degrees," Foxtail said as she took point.

Both girls held the same rank within Fusion but Petra, despite being older than Foxtail, deferred to the younger girl due to her more extensive training. The two girls moved off through the dark trees, heading towards the jail, a little over twelve-hundred yards away. The long approach was required to protect the two vigilantes from detection.

The two girls kept up a fast pace, moving quietly, checking their surroundings and covering each other as they went.

Thirty miles to the northwest

South Independence Boulevard

Chicago

The roadblock was made up of nine vehicles blocking both sides of the twin bridges over the 290 Expressway.

"Hey!" one of the men on watch called out. "Something's coming."

The throaty roar echoed down the empty street to the north. Most Chicagoans were safely ensconced in their homes, despite it barely being nine in the evening. As the men gazed down the dark street, a very large dark form moved from streetlight to streetlight.

"Fuck!" another exclaimed. "It's their big fucker!"

As Titan advanced toward the roadblock, two more vehicles revealed themselves.

"Shit! Two more armoured vehicles – hidden behind the big one."

Sentinel and Hound took up position on either side of Titan. A moment later, the men began to crap themselves as Hound to Titan's left, moved further over and Iron Hide appeared. In the load bed of the truck stood Kick-Ass, his hands on a mounted pair of M134 mini-guns. Two motorcycles finished off the masterful display of power.

"We've got Hit Girl and Mist, too!"

With a burst of flame, two-foot-long, the M134s opened fire with the sound of a dozen chainsaws. Three of the cars were chewed up and one exploded.

"Fuck this; I ain't paid enough for this shit!" the leader yelled as he ran to safety.

..._...

Titan made short work of the remaining vehicles on the southbound bridge, smashing them to one side so that the other vehicles and the motorcycles could tear through.

The men had been hired by the Solntsevskaya Brotherhood to cause mayhem and distract Fusion, however, they were slaughtered as the 7.62-millimetre bullets shredded steel and flesh alike. Hit Girl and Mist brought their motorcycles to a halt and they quickly joined the fight with blades and whip. The fight did not last long as the hired mercenaries began to rapidly dissipate under the weight of the intensive firepower which was being brought to bear. The leader of the mercenaries was on his cell phone, reporting to his boss.

"Err, Boss – they smashed straight through and we ain't got no cars left. . ."

"Do you think I give a fucking shit? Go get some more cars, you stupid dumb fuck!"

Three thousand yards to the southwest

"The mercs have just been attacked," Sunset Phoenix.

"Don't tell me," FEAR growled. "It was Hit Girl."

Sunset Phoenix just nodded.

"Get the Corsairs over there," FEAR ordered. "Let's move!"

FEAR jumped into a Humvee and her armour-clad Corsair driver put his foot down while Sunset Phoenix followed along, behind, on her motorcycle.

Joliet

The two armour-clad vigilantes had paused at the old firing range which belonged to the prison.

It was almost totally dark and that aided the two girls as they made their way around the small facility and they made for the railroad tracks. To their right, through the gloom, they could make out the long-abandoned quarry building which stuck up tall and proud with a slightly spooky look in the darkness. With a burst of speed, they crossed the twin railroad tracks and they then took the long route around the annex which was located to the east of the main jail, on their side of the 171 Highway.

They ran forwards, towards an old gas station turned store, taking cover in trees beside the forecourt. The guard towers were occupied, although it was only possible to make out there was somebody in there by using infra-red sensors. As the guard in the closest tower turned away, they both bolted across the highway and into the cover of the imposing jail annex building. With a quick check around the area, Petra fired a small rope cannon which sent a thin rope soaring into the air and down onto the roof of the two-storey annex. While Foxtail kept watch, Petra pulled back on the rope until the grappling hook at the end made secure purchase on the roof.

A minute later, both girls were on the roof and hauling up the line before dropping it down the inside of the annex and the inside of the jail boundary.

South Independence Boulevard

Chicago

"Oh, joy!" Kick-Ass growled.

"Break is over!" Hit Girl announced as everybody sprang to their feet.

Corsairs were spilling out of side-streets as they converged on the Fusion diversionary team.

"I hate the fucking waiting!" FRage called out as he jumped up.

"Time for the fuckin' killin'!" Fury confirmed as she too jumped to her feet.

"Leave some for the rest of us – greedy bitch!" Nightmare suggested.

"Bet I get one first, Fury," Cut-Throat challenged.

"Show some decorum, please!" Hit Girl chuckled. "I always get the first kill."

"Full of herself, ain't she?" Cut-Throat declared to Kick-Ass who just shrugged.

"Move it!" Shadow announced as she ran forwards with Nightmare close behind.

The fight started in earnest, with Hit Girl drawing first blood, closely followed by Fury.

"Try to keep up, Hit Girl!" she yelled as she attacked the next Corsair.

"God, I hate Predators!" Hit Girl growled as she artfully drove her blade into a man's heart, cutting through his armour, like a knife through butter.

Rage and Fury covered each other as they dived into the hoards of Corsairs as they came together and made for Fusion. Then Hit Girl smirked behind her mask as she saw FEAR arrive along with the pink abortion.

"Oh, how sweet!" Sunset Phoenix preened. "Hit Girl's brought the kiddies!"

Rage and Fury did not take kindly to being referred to as 'kiddies' and they both made for the pink princess.

"She is such a cock!" Fury growled as she parried away the incoming blade with her bō-staff, spinning so that Rage could lay his Messer sword on the bitch.

Sunset Phoenix screamed out in pain as the sword struck her armour and she caught Rage on his back with her double-bladed ninja sword staff sending the boy reeling. Shadow cut in, clashing blades with the pink-clad menace and driving her back, away from Rage and Fury. Shadow hated it when the younger members of Fusion were targeted – irrelevant of whether those younger members enjoyed being targeted or not.

Fury was annoyed at having her trophy removed from her grasp by Shadow but rather than let it get to her, she just hacked off a Corsair's leg instead.

Joliet

It was ominously quiet.

It was also obvious that they were not expecting an assault on the facility – FEAR probably assumed that her facility would never be discovered. Foxtail did not trust FEAR and she never took anything for granted. Both she and Petra moved slowly but purposefully towards the main building, located just inside the east wall of the jail. Just as they reached the wall, they froze as a door opened and two youngsters spilled out into the darkness. They were chatting animatedly as they left the dining hall and they headed directly towards what used to be the jail commissary.

Foxtail darted forwards and she caught the door before it clicked shut.

..._...

Inside, they found that FEAR had not wasted any money on redecorating – the place reeked of damp and the paint was mainly in flakes on the floor instead of on the walls and ceiling.

The same care had gone into the lighting which was spotty to say the least – not that the pair minded; it assisted them in their stealth as they made their way towards what used to be the three-storey hospital building. Infra-red had shown a concentration of bodies in the building, so it was probably where most of the Corsairs and Marauders lived. They followed a long corridor which led past a large dining hall – with several kids and adults stuffing their faces – and on a bit further before they paused. There was some form of a ruckus going on a few doors down. As the pair came closer, they were able to hear the words.

"I didn't do anything – get your fucking hands off me!"

As they approached, they stopped as soon as they could see through a partly opened doorway where there was a bad scene evolving before them. A young girl, of maybe seventeen, was being hounded by seven teenaged youths, all with shaven heads - Marauders. The girl did not appear to be a Marauder; she had long blonde hair which was tied up in a ponytail for a start. The girl was being forced up against a wall by six of the kids while a seventh stood off to one side.

"What's she supposed to have done?" the seventh demanded.

"Hey, Zealous – we caught her accessing a secure computer terminal," another voice replied.

"You know who she is, don't you, Defiant?"

"She was copying data onto a USB stick – she tried to hide it, but I got it."

"My sister will hear of this!" the first voice growled.

To Foxtail, the voice was somehow familiar.

"Oh, yes, she will hear of this – you betrayed FEAR and she will kill you," Defiant responded, his tone full of glee.

"You, Dread, you are fucking finished!"

..._...

"Dread!" Foxtail growled – now that was a target worth taking out. "Let's take 'em down, Petra!"

"On your six, Foxy!"

Foxy growled at the comment as she drew her twin Butterfly swords while Petra drew a pair of Tanto blades from her back. They both moved quickly, Petra kicking open the door and Foxtail diving into the room. The nearest Marauder, a girl, never knew what hit her as Foxtail drove the hilt of one of her swords into the side of her head – she dropped like a sack of potatoes. Her compatriots turned on the two attackers and a vicious fight ensued. To a Marauder, they each drew a blade from various places and they moved to attack. It was seven against two as the pony-tailed girl had also drawn a blade and moved into an attack position.

Foxtail and Petra had both been briefed by Hit Girl to keep any killing to the adult Corsairs, and where possible, to incapacitate the Marauders. Foxtail had agreed, as if things had turned out differently, she might very well have ended up as a Marauder – even Psyche had conceded that point for herself, too. However, the Marauder's had only brought knives to what was really a sword fight, so they were overreached in a big way. Petra flipped a young girl over and ensured that she smacked her head into the wooden floor – enough to knock her out but not enough to cause any permanent injury. Foxtail was taking them down two at a time as a boy and another girl received strikes to the heads simultaneously putting both out cold. Foxtail was then physically thrown across the room by a large boy who appeared more than a little angry.

"Foxtail!" he growled as he kicked Foxtail back down as she tried to regain her feet.

Foxtail's armour protected her, and she fought the boy who was remarkably strong which gave him an edge – only he was a boy and that fact was confirmed when an armoured gauntlet found something delicate, a pair actually, and the boy yelled out in agony before Foxtail put him out cold with a punch to his face. The final pair went down to Petra leaving Dread backing up against a wall. Foxtail drew one of her Beretta Px4 Storm Compact Type pistols and screwed on a suppressor – Dread had to die. The veteran Fusion vigilante raised the pistol up towards the supposed leader of the Marauders and she aimed directly at the bitch's cringing face.

She squeezed the trigger.

South Racine Avenue and South Blue Island Avenue

The bullet struck the police officer dead centre in his chest.

The nine-millimetre round was what cops colloquially referred to as a cop-killer; the bullet was designed to pierce body armour and therefore, the round was illegal, but that was no consolation to Sergeant Paul Murphy as the bullet tore through his high-end body armour, clothing, his body, and then the reverse as it powered out of his back and continued on its way into the brick structure of the 12th District headquarters, a dozen yards beyond.

His sternum was smashed and both lungs were punctured causing blood to erupt from his mouth as he fell to the road. The bastard, who had fired the deadly round, was falling to the ground a mere second later, his head mushrooming into a cloud of blood, bone, and brain matter as Sergeant Sam Fellowes fired off three rounds from his Glock. Once the man was down, and while keeping the suspect covered, he keyed his radio.

"Ten-One, squad! Officer down, South Racine and South Blue Island! Suspect, code nine!"

Joliet

The girl stared into the gaping muzzle and then past it into the dark brown and light orange mask which obscured the wearer's features – only one thing might save her life at that moment, and she hoped that the vigilante before her had been well briefed.

"Stardust! Stardust!"

The codewords registered on Foxtail's brain and her eyes went wide as she instinctively tipped up her pistol just as her finger squeezed the trigger, sending the bullet into the wall an inch above Kelly's head. Kelly breathed out in relief as she sagged to the ground amidst the fallen Marauders. Petra had frozen at the codewords and she was trying to figure out what the hell was going on and what to do next.

Foxtail holstered her pistol and she reached down to the girl whom she had almost shot dead.

South Independence Boulevard

Chicago

Hit Girl was feeling more than a little pleased with herself as FEAR and her cohorts retreated down a side street.

Amongst the fallen bodies, another body stood out, its body armour like a beacon amongst the dark greys of the Corsairs. Hit Girl strode over, and she rolled Sunset Phoenix over onto her back. Finally, one of their adversaries was no more. Then Hit Girl heard something, and the lips moved imperceptibly below the mask,

"Medic!" Hit Girl bellowed.

Then everything began to happen, all at once.

"Hit Girl!" Hal called over the communications.

"Go ahead."

"We have an officer down outside 12th District – it's Murphy."

"Fuck!" Hit Girl breathed at the revelation.

"We've also had a report from Joliet – Stardust."

"Fuck!"

"Foxtail and Petra are making their escape with Stardust."

"Send in Wildcat and Stormtide – ensure Stardust is kept safe; delouse and bring her to Foxtrot," Hit Girl ordered.

Beyond the increasingly distressed vigilante, Medic was hard at work with Mist and Hawk as they stabilised Sunset Phoenix for transport in Titan.

Joliet

Foxtail moved towards the door, leading Dread, but then Dread pulled away and she ran over towards a boy lying on the floor.

Petra moved to intercept Dread who raised her hands.

"He has something of mine – please."

"Slowly," Petra warned.

Dread knelt down beside the boy and she rapidly frisked him before grinning broadly as she held up a USB drive.

"My sister's plans for 'global domination!'"

"Let's move, Dread. . ." Petra announced.

"That is not my name – I am Fortune from this point on."

"Okay, Fortune – we need to move," Petra directed as Foxtail checked the corridor, outside.

"Clear!" Foxtail announced as she moved out into the corridor.

Fortune followed with Petra guarding their behind. The three girls ran down the corridor towards the exit. Before they could reach it, two Corsairs appeared out of the dining room without warning directly in between Foxtail and Fortune. Without hesitation, Fortune took out the closest man, snapping his neck with a loud snapping sound. The other man fell to Petra.

"I hate those bastards!" Fortune exclaimed as she glared down at the dead man.

"Let's move, girl!"

..._...

Wildcat and Stormtide broke cover and they made for the jail.

They were both a little confused to find that there would be an additional person to exfiltrate, but that was the name of the game and they could cope with undocumented changes. The two vigilantes paused under the cover of the last trees beside the castellated gatehouse of the jail. Two hundred yards to the south, Ares waited in his panel van, with Athena in the other van, two hundred yards to the north of the jail. They were all ready to assist in the extraction as soon as their colleagues requested help. Wildcat was itching for some action – there was a bloodlust building within her which needed attention, and soon.

Stormtide had her own bloodlust but for very different reasons – her past had given her a lust for killing which she had been able to fulfil while in London, however, the lust was being satisfied but only so far under her new regime as a Fusion vigilante.

"You ready, partner?" Wildcat asked as they waited.

"Always, Miss Wildcat."

Shannon and Megan got on well together. Neither knew why, but they enjoyed each other's company and they were comfortable when together as a team, fighting the enemy. At first, Shannon had felt considerably superior to the younger girl – Megan was not yet twelve and she had nowhere near the training that Shannon, a Predator, had under her belt – but events had taken care of that and Megan's skills, not to mention her courage, were obvious. Stephanie had assured Shannon that just because they had not been trained as Predators, did not mean that the younger members of Fusion were not fully capable.

"Any idea on our extra body?"

"Not a damn clue!" Stormtide replied.

"Where the fuck are they? Surprised they haven't been detected. . .?"

Wildcat was interrupted by the sound of shouting coming from within the compound.

"Never mind," Wildcat growled as she broke cover and made for the exterior annex wall.

..._...

Back within the jail walls, things had gone a little bit awry.

"I think we have company," Fortune pointed out as six Corsairs and three Marauders came running towards them from another building.

Pistols appeared, and the ground around the feet of the three girls began to react to the bullets striking it, sending puffs of dirt and grass into the air. Foxtail and Petra engaged with their own pistols, but the Corsairs and Marauders were finding good cover which neither Foxtail nor Petra could impinge from where they were. Neither could they escape without being shot and their accomplice wore no armour.

"Overwatch – a little help here!" Petra called over the comms.

"By your command, Petra," came the cryptic response.

..._...

A little over a thousand yards to the northeast, Leon was comfortably placed to assist on one of the very few stable high-points for miles.

Her optics allowed her to see directly into the compound and the nine warm bodies might as well have been floodlit for all the darkness mattered. She targeted the Corsairs, steadying her breathing, just as three moved forwards and they crossed over. With a smirk, she squeezed the trigger.

"Bet you never did that, Leon," she muttered to herself.

..._...

Foxtail was stunned to see three Corsairs suddenly fall forwards and drop to the ground before lying still. She had heard the muted rifle round, but only one – three with a single shot?

"Damn!" she growled.

A head exploded on the shoulders of another Corsair drenching a nearby Marauder with blood and a lot of other bodily crap. The Marauder fell back, disorientated but diving for cover, as were his compatriots. The chaotic environment allowed Foxtail and Petra to get Fortune up the rope and onto the of the annex. Petra followed behind while Foxtail covered. Then with Petra providing covering fire, Foxtail scaled the same wall before yanking up the rope and throwing it over the other side, towards safety.

"Fire in the hole!"

Petra yanked Fortune down to the roof just as the guard tower to their left exploded seconds after a loud whooshing sound came to an end. Stone, tiles, glass, and body parts rained down all around the girls. Petra covered Fortune with her own body and armour to protect her from the fiery shrapnel.

"Southeast tower disabled," came Astute's terse explanation.

Foxtail shoved Fortune to the roof edge and handed her the rope.

"Go – others will meet you on the ground."

Fortune vanished over the edge, rapidly roping down the side of the annex and glad to finally have solid ground back under her feet.

"This way," an electronically enhanced voice growled out of the darkness.

Fortune recognised Wildcat and one other, following them both towards the parking lot. With a squeal of tyres, a panel van appeared from beyond some trees and headed directly for them, coming to a halt, the side door open. Fortune was bundled inside, followed by Wildcat and Stormtide.

"Ares is loaded – we're outta here – three pax!"

Just as Ares exited the parking lot, another panel van appeared. Foxtail and Petra dived through the open side door and that van followed the first.

"Athena loaded and heading north – two pax."

An hour later

Safehouse M

The woman had been stripped enroute within the confines of Hound.

Her wounds were not serious, but her armour and weapons were all removed and encased in Faraday bags to protect from trackers. Nonetheless, she was being held in a secure steel facility which blocked all communication and electronic signals. The, as yet unidentified, woman was young, maybe nineteen-years-old. Apart from the large bruise on her forehead, she was very beautiful. Hit Girl's blade had pierced the woman's armour and driven into her left side, narrowly missing anything important.

For added security, she was strapped to the hospital bed while Medic treated her wounds. They had searched her armour and weapons, but they had found but one thing which pointed towards anything. Around her right wrist, there was a simple silver bracelet inscribed with a name: Kara. That got Hit Girl thinking – that name had cropped up some months before around the time that Stephanie had been attacked while in the hospital.

Her finger prints were being run at that very moment.

Northwestern Memorial Hospital

Stephanie and Mindy entered unsure of what they might find.

They found Rachel Murphy struggling to keep it together while Abigail and Brad sat on chairs, hugging each other for comfort. Stephanie made straight for her former nemesis and allowed her to sob on her shoulder for several minutes. Mindy did her best talking with Rachel, but Mindy was not the best when it came to major-league emotional scenes. Her husband was in surgery being operated on by the best the hospital had – his chances were slim, but they were going to do everything possible to ensure that two kids did not lose their father.

As far as Abigail was concerned, Paul Murphy was her Dad, and that was what she was calling him. Just as she was getting her life back together, the ten-year-old – she was to be eleven in just a few hours – now faced her life being torn apart. She was angry that despite her skills, she could not have prevented the attack on a man she respected and looked up to.

"I finally had what I wanted, Steph; I had a Dad, just like you."

"I know, Abigail, I know. He'll pull through, I know it," Stephanie replied.

Despite their past, Stephanie wanted only the best for her former enemy. Abigail was a great girl, now they had got to know each other as friends rather than as two damaged children determined to destroy one another.

"Whatever you need, Abigail, I'll be there for you."

Mindy was angry. The city needed to be brought back under control, and soon, to prevent such a disastrous event from reoccurring. Rachel needed to stay at the hospital, so Mindy had suggested she take the two kids back with them. On the way out of the hospital, Brad stopped Mindy and he glared up at her through his tears.

"I want in."

"Welcome, Rapier," Mindy replied.

Chapter 346*: Interlude

Author's Note: This chapter brings the total words for all my stories to 2,000,000!

Friday, October 14th, 2016

Glenview

The following morning was not all that much fun.

Being Abigail's eleventh birthday, the day should have been full of joy, only it was one of sadness and apprehension. Abigail had not slept well, and she looked a mess when she found her way down to the kitchen along with a tired looking Stephanie.

"Happy Birthday, Abigail," Mindy said with a supportive smile.

"Thank you, Mindy," Abigail replied as she sat down at the table in the kitchen and proceeded to stare out of the window.

Horatio jumped up onto her lap and he curled up with a muted meow. Abigail forced a smile and she stroked the feline who was now more cat than kitten. Dave placed a plate of pancakes down in front of each of the two girls who dived in with gusto. Brad arrived next, his eyes red. He went straight over to Abigail and he gave her a hug.

"Happy Birthday," he said.

"Thanks, Brad."

"Your Mom rang," Dave advised the two youngsters. "Your dad is out of surgery and in ICU."

"Will we be able to see him?" Brad asked.

"Maybe, later – we need to wait and see what the doctors say."

..._...

After breakfast, Mindy sought out Brad and Abigail, drawing them into her study.

"Abigail, I know you're looking forward to tomorrow, but if you want to withdraw. . ."

"No, Mindy, I need to be doing something. Besides, it looks like I have a useless runt to train," Abigail replied coldly with a smirk in the direction of her step-brother.

"Okay," Mindy said. "I had to ask."

"Thanks, I know," Abigail replied.

Safehouse F

Level 0

They had left the barred door to the cell open, but the outer door was locked.

After two stops on the way back to Chicago – during one stop, Kelly had suffered the indignity of a very thorough, but familiar, strip search performed by Foxtail, before she was handed a set of joggers and a black hood – they had stopped, and Kelly had been hauled out. The hood had been removed after she had been guided down a set of steel steps, which had been very cold under her bare feet, and then into her 'cell'.

"Welcome," an electronic voice offered. "There's some food and drink for you. Get a good night's rest."

Then the door had been pulled closed behind her. The food had actually been really good, and she had slept well.

..._...

On waking, she had sat on the bunk awaiting a visitor - it had not taken long.

"Good morning, Kelly, hope you slept well."

Kelly examined her visitor who had breezed in through the door with a big smile on her face.

"Come with me – I'll show you where you can clean up and I've got some clothes for you."

Kelly followed the girl with long, light brown hair who appeared to be full of energy. They emerged into a large cavern.

..

"Holy, shit!" Kelly breathed as she took in the towering rock roof above her.

"We'll get to that, later . . . oh, I'm Lauren, by the way."

"Hi."

Lauren led Kelly to a far corner and then into a bathroom.

"Go take a shower and get cleaned up – I'll get your clothes together."

..._...

"I hope we got your sizes right," Lauren called out while Kelly showered. "I picked out the colours, so I hope you like them."

"I'm sure they'll be fine," Kelly called back as she finished rinsing her hair.

To Kelly, it was all part of some dream. Just the previous evening, she had been rescued from certain death by people who she saw as friends – did they see her the same way? Kelly took her time, enjoying the hot shower. For a few moments, she stopped to consider immediate events, then she spared a thought for her sister – what was she feeling?

Did she even care?

Joliet

To say that FEAR was pissed would be the understatement of the century.

On her return to the facility, she had lost control completely, as evidenced by the four dead Corsairs and the two dead Marauders. Their explanations, concerning the infiltration and the taking of her sister, had not gone down well with FEAR. Her sister was her life and her sister was gone. The two dead Marauders had come forward with some story about Dread going rogue. Their admission had resulted in their deaths.

FEAR swore vengeance on Hit Girl, she swore to find her sister, to get her back.

Safehouse F

"You done?"

Kelly looked up to see Lauren peering into the shower and she instinctively tried to cover herself. Lauren laughed.

"I've seen it all before, Kelly – I'm Nightmare, by the way."

Kelly scowled as she dropped her hands.

"Yeah – you had a thing for my snatch," Kelly commented dryly as she grabbed a towel.

"Sorry," Lauren offered honestly.

"No harm done," Kelly grinned as she dried herself off.

The Battle Bunker

"I've found the link!"

Mindy chuckled at Marty's geeky expression of success.

"Okay – bear with me. The prints came back to one Summer Frasier – retrieved her Drivers Licence and guess where she lives?"

"Que us in," Dave said as the image of a young woman appeared on a large screen.

"2275 Winnetka Avenue, Glenview – almost exactly 80 yards from your front door.

"What!" Mindy exclaimed.

"You know you do you little 3.5 miles run a couple times each week? Well, you run straight past her front door."

"Fuck!" Mindy exclaimed.

"Okay – Summer Frasier. Born November 18th, 1998 – aged eighteen. Lives alone. parents are dead – they went missing March 2011 and they were found dead a few months later – a single bullet to each head. Miss Frasier was twelve when they went missing and she had been away with relatives in Canada at the time. Dug a little deeper and I found out Miss Frasier had a younger sister. That girl went missing at the same time as her parents – she was nine-years-old, and her name was Kara Frasier."

"Get on with it, Marty!" Mindy exclaimed, the suspense getting to her.

"Did some searching through the Urban Predator data and I found a Kara Frasier. Her name had been subsequently changed to Kara Newton which was why we had trouble finding her. She was also missing from current Urban Predator records as she died in 2014. According to those records, Kara Newton was murdered on October 12th of that year – she was murdered by a younger girl during a fight in a shower. Ring any bells?"

"Stephanie!" Mindy exclaimed.

"She's quick today!" Marty quipped.

Mindy growled dangerously, so Marty sped up his presentation.

"I sent Abby and Mathilda over to her address – her house keys were in her suit. Well, in the basement, they found a 'Stephanie Walker Must Die' wall. It appears that Sunset Phoenix AKA Summer Frasier had a thing about Stephanie and wanted her dead. There is a good case for her being the sniper who shot Stephanie, too."

Mindy was silent as the thoughts of Stephanie and the memories of the young girl's struggle for life flooded through her mind. She could see Stephanie bleeding in her arms. She could see Stephanie dying, again and again, in the hospital.

Had they finally caught the person behind Stephanie's suffering?

Training Facility Echo

Level 0

"This place is unbelievable!"

"You enjoying yourself, Kelly?"

Kelly turned to see a girl coming towards her.

"Hi, I'm Chloe – you knew me as Shadow."

"Another one who had a thing about my snatch!" Kelly growled.

"No comment," Chloe chuckled. "Let me show you around."

That afternoon

Level 3

After a lot of thought, Mindy decided it was time for Stephanie to be told about Summer Frasier.

Mindy found her daughter sitting with Saoirse in the capacious armoury, cleaning their pistols. They were both giggling about something which was fine with Mindy; anything which gave Stephanie a distraction from recent events was good. For Mindy, seeing the short hair was an instant reminder of those events, and after almost a year, seeing Stephanie without her ponytail just seemed weird and wrong.

"Hi, Mum."

"Steph – got a moment?"

"Yes."

"You want me to go?" Saoirse asked.

"No – I think you can help with this, Saoirse – why don't you come around and sit next to Steph," Mindy suggested.

Once Saoirse had moved, Mindy continued.

"Something has come up concerning Sunset Phoenix. We've identified her, and we believe we might have found out why she is fighting Fusion and why she may have had a hand in you getting shot, Steph."

"Okay," Stephanie replied as she subconsciously rubbed her right shoulder.

"Would the name, 'Kara Newton', mean anything to either of you?"

Stephanie's eyes closed, and her hands balled into fists. Saoirse scowled, and she looked up at Mindy with anger in her eyes. For Stephanie, it was the cue for a vicious flashback of a fight that she had never expected to survive, let alone win. She remembered the water, the spray, the hard tile walls and floor. She remembered the other Predators baying for blood. She remembered the anger she felt towards her adversary. She remembered the pain as she was punched and thrown to the tile floor. Between the water from the shower and the tears in her eyes, it had been difficult to see what was going on around her. She remembered punching out at the other girl, striking wherever she could, searching for the more sensitive areas of the other girl who was just as naked as Stephanie was.

Stephanie remembered the anger as she had forced the older, bigger girl down to the tiles and begun to punch her in the face, the chest, the face, the chest. Then as Kara Newton had begun to lose consciousness, Stephanie had seized her head and smashed it repeatedly into the tile floor . . . again . . . again . . . again . . . until bright red blood had begun to flow in huge amounts across the tiles, gurgling into the drain.

Kara Newton had never moved again.

"Yes, that name means a lot to me," Stephanie replied after almost two minutes. "That was the girl I killed in the shower. That was the kill which gained me my codename: Psyche. That was the single event which stopped the bullying, but which also thrust me into the spotlight."

"I had never seen so much blood in one place," Saoirse said slowly as she rested her hand on Stephanie's. "At the time, I had hoped that Stephanie was the one who had died, but she was just a victim of circumstance. Kids were bullied. Kids bullied. It was a fact of life as a Predator. Stephanie made a lot of enemies that day, only many of them were too scared to stand up to the little eight-year-old. Some saw her reward as giving Stephanie Walker carte blanche to kill again – so everybody left her alone; including me."

"So, why are you dredging all this shit up, Mindy?" Stephanie asked.

"Kara Newton was previously Kara Frasier. Sunset Phoenix is Summer Frasier. Kara was her younger sister. Somehow, she received her sister's Urban Predator file, including details on her death. Abby and Mathilda found it when they searched Frasier's house. There were autopsy photos of Kara after you killed her. I saw the photos and while I knew what you had done – seeing the results . . ."

"I did go to town on her," Stephanie admitted.

An hour later

Safehouse M

Stephanie paused at the door for a moment before pushing it open.

Summer Frasier was conscious and sitting up in the bed. Standing beside her was Medic. Stephanie was not wearing a mask, although Mindy and Saoirse were, as was Medic. Frasier's expression changed as she recognised Stephanie from the photos which she had studied and from the view through her sniper scope, some months before.

"You!"

"I used to be Stephanie Walker. I killed your sister."

"I know. That is why you had to die."

"I am sorry for what I did – I did not set out to kill her. To this day, I have no idea how I managed it. Right up until the moment that I killed your sister, I was bullied. I was bullied for being seven. I was bullied for being small. I was bullied for speaking with an English Accent. I was bullied for being British. I was bullied for crying myself to sleep at night. I was bullied for being a girl. I was bullied for being me. I was bullied just for existing. I did not choose to be there and neither did the girl I knew as Kara Newton."

Tears were spilling down Stephanie's cheeks.

"May I chip in?" Foxtail asked.

"Foxtail? What the hell has this got to do with you?" Frasier demanded.

"I was a Predator, just like Stephanie. I was there. I missed the fight, but I saw the aftermath. I saw Stephanie standing there, naked and covered in blood, with the girl we knew as Kara Newton dead at her feet. Kara bullied Stephanie a lot. So, did I, whenever I could. If I had gone to shower five minutes earlier, then it might have been me who pushed Stephanie over the edge. I would have liked nothing better than to torment the girl. In that case, I would have been dead ay her hands. We were all bullied – me, Kara, everyone there. It's no defence, but there is no guarantee that Kara would be alive today or survived her training. There were many nasty ways for a Predator to die. Believe it or not, Stephanie suffered for what she did. While we were all too scared to bait her, the instructors took over and they pushed her and pushed her. They didn't care if she died, nobody did, they just wanted a product that could do their bidding. Stephanie was just a victim, just as much as your sister. I was a victim too, plus hundreds more."

"If I could go back, I would probably kill her again. I had no choice. I look back and there were so many times that I wish I could have taken my own life, only I was too chicken," Stephanie offered when Foxtail had finished her speech.

Summer Frasier considered everything she had been told, looking at Stephanie, then Foxtail, and finally at Hit Girl.

"I don't want excuses. You killed my little sister. I don't care what she was or what she had done. I don't care that you 'had no choice'. The fact remains – you killed my Kara and for that you are going to pay, Stephanie Walker. I will pursue you. I will hunt you. I will destroy you and everything which you hold dear. I will never rest. NEVER! YOU – WILL – DIE! I WILL NOT STOP. I DON'T CARE IF IT TAKES ME THE REST OF MY LIFE . . . BUT YOU – WILL - DIE!"

"Foxtail!" Medic ordered. "Get her outta here!"

Foxtail grabbed the sobbing Stephanie and she hauled her out of the room.

..._...

It took several minutes for Stephanie to calm down.

Foxtail was furious with Hit Girl for putting her friend through that.

"Don't blame, Mum," Stephanie said. "She was hoping I might get closure. I hoped so, too. I was foolish enough to expect forgiveness."

"Despite everything you can do, Steph, you are still barely in double figures. There is so much which you cannot hope to grasp. Not your fault; you are young."

"Everybody wants to kill me. Newton. You. Her. Why does the world hate me so much?"

"As Saoirse said, you did not bring this upon yourself," Mindy said as she pulled off her mask once the door was firmly closed behind her. "Nobody that matters, hates you, Stephanie. Anybody that matters, loves you."

Stephanie grinned.

That evening

Safehouse E

Sub-Level 8 Room 22

Nobody was going out – they could not afford for anybody to get hurt.

It seemed that FEAR and her friends were staying home, too. Nobody was complaining as it gave everybody time to prepare for the fight of their lives. Mindy and Dave had talked long about adding to their ranks and both had come to the same decision.

"Ember?"

"Hit Girl."

Rachel turned to see Hit Girl standing at the door to the room where she had been recuperating. She had been allowed to get out of bed and she even had clothes to wear.

"Can I trust you?"

"Yes."

Rachel flinched as Hit Girl removed her mask. She knew that seeing Hit Girl's face was a route from which there was to be no return.

"You can call me, Mindy. We have a major battle ahead of us and I need boots on the ground. I would like to offer you a place on our team as an Operator."

"I'm not in any condition to fight," Rachel pointed out.

"I want you in the Battle Bunker with Battle Guy and Hal."

"You would trust me?"

"You put a foot wrong, you get a bullet in the head," Mindy offered with a nasty grin.

"That's fair."

"I'll send Abigail and Jamie to show you around."

Training Facility Echo

Level 0

"Hi, Lucy, what's up?" Shannon asked her friend.

"I'm looking for the evil one."

"That would be me," Mindy chuckled as she emerged from the Battle Bunker.

Shannon laughed.

"Glad you could make it, Lucy – come with me," Mindy suggested as she made her way towards the elevator.

"Nice knowing you, Luc!" Shannon called out.

"Is she kidding?" Lucy asked but Mindy just smirked as she pressed the button beside the steel doors. "I mean it – should I be worried?"

"Probably."

The doors closed, and Mindy pressed the 'LEVEL 3' button.

Level 3

"You can be so damn infuriating!"

Lucy was getting annoyed with Mindy. Being taken down into the bowels to God only knew where by Hit Girl worried the veteran Predator more than a little. They exited the elevator into the main equipment store.

"Nice!" Lucy commented as her eyes took in all the equipment piled on racks.

Mindy led her over to the armoury, to the left and beyond the shelving. With a swipe of her access card, Mindy shoved open the heavy steel door, waving Lucy inside. Lucy stepped forwards as directed and her eyes went wide as she saw every conceivable weapon system and then some. Mindy moved towards a table in the centre of the room where two sets of body armour were laid out on a table. Mindy pointed to the left-hand set.

"Piranha – your new armour; use it well."

"Mindy . . . I . . ."

"I am going to trust you – besides, I need somebody with your skills; I don't have any choice: don't let me down."

"You're really scraping the bottom of the barrel, huh?"

"Oh, yeah!" Hit Girl growled.

..._...

There was a buzzing sound and Mindy looked up at a screen before pressing a button to release the access door.

"Hey, Lucy!"

Lucy turned to see Jamie and Abigail heading towards her with Rachel.

"Hello, Lucy," Rachel offered, a little stiffly.

"You look a little better," Lucy offered.

"I'm coping."

The door opened again, and Chloe entered, followed by . . .

"What is she doing here?" Rachel demanded as she recognised Kelly. "You know who she is?"

"Yes," Mindy said quickly. "She reports to me. She was a mole in FEAR's organisation."

"Hello, Raider," Kelly said.

"I am Ember – not that name," Rachel pointed out nastily.

"Sorry," Kelly tried.

"So, you're a turncoat, are you?" Rachel asked.

"I offered myself to Mindy when I found out what my sister was – who she was."

"We pulled Kelly out, Thursday night," Chloe explained. "I know you two won't see eye to eye, but the past is the past and we cannot change that. Please, you must learn to trust one another and look forward instead of back."

"She has a point, I suppose," Rachel said. "I've accepted Lucy, why not you?"

"Kelly goes by Fortune, now," Mindy said. "Speaking of which – Fortune, your new combat suit."

"Cool!"

"Let's get you both changed," Chloe suggested as she grabbed Lucy and her new combat suit while Mindy assisted Kelly.

Jamie looked up at Rachel.

"We have body armour you can use, plus a mask – at least until your real combat suit is ready. You will, however, need a weapon – take your pick."

Rachel gazed around the armoury, then focussed on the racks of pistols. She pulled a few off and checked them over, feeling them in her hand. She was surprised to be trusted with a weapon – it had only been a week.

She finally selected a pistol she liked, and she began to field-strip it.

..._...

"Kelly – you feel up to fighting your sister's forces?" Mindy asked as Kelly tried on her new combat suit.

"I need to end this."

"It won't be easy, but we're all there for you."

"Thanks."

Kelly finished pulling on the combat suit and then turned to look in the full-length mirror. She was stunned. The suit appeared skin-tight but wasn't. It was black with dark blue markings on the arms and legs. The mask covered her entire face and the eyes glowed the same dark blue. Around her waist, a dark blue utility belt held a pair of SIG Sauer P229 Legion compact pistols along with the usual Fusion fittings. On each thigh, below the pair of pistols which sat on her hips, were a trio of titanium throwing knives. Her right calf held a scabbard in which a Fairburn-Sykes fighting knife sat. On her back, a twenty-inch Gladius sword sat in a scabbard angled over to her right shoulder. At the top her chest, a clip was mounted so she could clip on a P90 Personal Defence Weapon.

"I don't know what to say," Fortune commented as she turned and twisted.

"Go and try it out . . . just don't kill anybody," Mindy suggested.

Level 0

Everything stopped when Fortune set foot out of the elevator.

Megan, Annabelle, Anne-Marie, and Lizzie were training nearest the elevator and they stared at the sight of a new vigilante. Her armour was of a new design which none of them had seen before, but they were impressed. Fortune had barely set foot on the mat when the elevator doors opened again, and several people emerged. First Mindy stepped out, followed by Jamie and then Abigail. Rachel appeared, a pistol in a holster on her left hip. Behind them came another armour-clad individual with Chloe closing off the group.

The armour was very similar to that which Fortune wore, only, the markings were a vivid opal colour. The weapons were the same and although Piranha was taller, the two complimented one another well. Space was cleared on the mat to allow both vigilantes to test their new suits and get used to them prior to the following day's activities. For some, it was the first time seeing Lucy in action. Mindy knew that Lucy had been keeping fit in her apartment, so the impromptu sparring should not be an issue for the senior Predator. For Mindy, it was crucial that other members of Fusion were able to see Piranha and Fortune at work and to see what they were capable of when engaged in a fight.

First, the pair of them limbered up with some basic martial arts movements to test out the flexibility of the combat suits. The pair made a good team as they exchanged blows which appeared to increase in force and speed. Some knew Kelly from D-JAK and they knew that she was very skilled. Though few knew Lucy, they all assumed her to be highly skilled due to what she was and the training which she had endured. Those Fusion members who were not Predators were always cautious about sparring with those that were as they were unrelenting with their stamina and skills.

Once they were warmed up, the swords were drawn, and the pair worked up their movements, starting slow and working up to fast movements. The cold steel clashed and echoed around the concrete facility entralling everybody who was watching. Chloe and Joshua were impressed as they watched for mistakes of which there were very few. After twenty minutes, Mindy called a halt to the proceedings. Both girls pulled off their masks and allowed their sweat-soaked hair to get some air. There was a round of applause for their sparring to which both girls grinned.

"Lucy and Kelly will be fighting tomorrow," Mindy explained. "Piranha and Fortune will join the teams and I expect them to be treated properly, irrelevant of past actions."

Mindy glared at the Predators present and they all nodded.

"Lucy is one of us and we've all put our past behind us," Shannon pointed out. "She is very welcome."

Glenview

"I wish I could be there with you."

"I know, honey, I really do. You will be with us, but not on the streets – I have put you with Ryan, so you take part. I expect you to be masked and suited with your weapons. If you feel you can join in and the situation arises, then I will not object to you seeing some action. I know you are still in pain; I can see it in your eyes."

"It still hurts but I can fight through the pain."

"I know you can, but I don't want you to. Your siblings will be out on the streets and they will fight well, I know it."

"I'm going to be speaking with them, next."

..._...

Stephanie headed straight upstairs to where her younger siblings were getting ready for bed.

She made straight for Danny's room where she found the boy sitting on his bed, in his pyjamas, reading a book on gun maintenance. She looked upwards, at Jamie's room up above.

"Jamie!" she called out. "Down here, now!"

Jamie scrambled off his bed immediately and made his way down the spiral staircase to Danny's room. The boy recognised the tone of his sister's voice and it brooked no argument. In the weeks since he had been with Stephanie, he had learnt the hard way that when Stephanie gave orders in a certain tone of voice, disobedience resulted in pain. Jamie had also learnt that Stephanie could inflict pain without causing any physical injury. Therefore, he dutifully sat down beside his new brother.

"Anne-Marie!" Stephanie called out and less than a minute later, the final Lizewski child appeared from the shared bathroom – she also knew when not to test Stephanie's mood.

"Tomorrow will be the fight of your lives. I will miss fighting alongside you, therefore, I want to pass on some of my hard-won wisdom."

All three kids could see the anger in their sister's eyes and the tears which she was holding at bay.

"Jamie is a Predator and as such, I expect him to have the skills he needs to survive tomorrow – Shannon assures me that he can look after himself. As for you two, you both have kills under your belt, and you have faced limited combat. I trust you both to use your skills correctly. Whatever you all do, look out for yourself. Look out for each other. Watch out for some cunt sneaking around you to attack from the rear. Tomorrow, not one of you will leave that Safehouse until I have personally checked your armour, your weapons, everything. If at any stage you are worried, concerned, even scared – and you will be scared – you talk to your team and you can talk to me, too, by asking Marty for a discrete channel. Now, each of you, bed – no talking, no fucking about; you each have a big day ahead of you tomorrow and you need every minute of sleep you can get. Good night."

The two boys and one girl jumped up as one. They hugged Stephanie tightly before they each ran off towards their own bed.

"Night!" they all yelled as they went.

..._...

Stephanie stepped out of Danny's room, closing the door behind her.

"A very good pep-talk, Steph, I'm impressed," Mindy said honestly.

"I had to say something; I'm worried about them all."

"So am I. I couldn't bear anything to happen to either one of you. I never thought that I would take to motherhood so readily – it's surprised the hell out of me."

"You're good at it, Mum."

"It's so alien to me, seeing you with short hair. I miss your ponytail and . . ."

"I miss it too but that is in the past – don't worry about it; I'm getting used to it."

"I myself have a pep-talk to put together and I hope it's as good as yours – night, Steph."

"Night, Mom."

The following afternoon

Saturday, October 15th, 2016

Northwestern Memorial Hospital

"Maggie!"

"How you doing, Jen?"

"Fine. I need another trauma kit; can you find one for me. Damn, it feels like I'm back on patrol in Afghanistan."

Doctor Jennifer Staite was a rising star at the hospital. She specialised in emergency medicine. Her task for the day was to preposition herself in a fully-equipped SUV, out in the city and await the fighting to begin. She was strapping on a flak-jacket and there was a Kevlar helmet on the table beside her. Overall, she looked very warlike as she prepared for her excursion into the city.

"Here you are, Jen," Maggie said as he handed a pack to Jennifer. "Stay safe out there."

"I will. Fusion will take down those bastards and we will have our city back."

"While there are some aspects to Hit Girl which I dislike, she did keep this city in order and the criminals kept to a kind of code. With these new, whatever's, it's total anarchy out there," Maggie pointed out.

"See you later!"

16:00

Level 3

The collective Safehouses were heaving with activity.

All around, people were scattered, cleaning weapons, dressing, sharpening knives and swords, checking communications equipment, and mentally preparing themselves for the fight of their lives. Morale was as high as it ever was and there was plenty of joking from the boys. The girls, generally, just made crude comments about whatever came to mind. On Level 2, Mindy was surprised to hear quite a bit of giggling which somehow appeared out of place. On closer inspection, there was a group of girls, all wearing their combat suits, minus their masks, sitting on the floor outside the cabins. Saoirse, Stephanie, Shannon, Sarah, Lucy, and Abigail were busy cleaning their pistols and loading spare magazines from a large pile of nine-millimetre bullets piled on the floor.

"Do you remember when they made us pick up brass for almost an entire day?" Sarah asked Saoirse.

"That was bad," Saoirse grinned.

"An entire day. . ." Stephanie growled. "I did it for four days straight when I was in The Cage – that sucked on no breakfast and no lunch."

"As I understand it, you did sorta deserve it," Saoirse pointed out. "Pass me a cleaning patch, Sarah."

"Maybe I didn't deserve it!" Stephanie growled as she forced bullets into a magazine.

Saoirse laughed.

"Stephanie was starting La Révolution!" Lucy chuckled.

"See, SD, Lucy gets it," Stephanie grinned cheekily.

"Why, I put up with you, Stephanie, I have no idea," Saoirse complained.

"You tried to kill me, three times."

"I really should have put more effort in," Saoirse muttered darkly.

Mindy smirked as she left Stephanie and Saoirse bickering and she peered inside one of the cabins.

..._...

Sitting on a bunk, she found Lizzie and Lauren, each sharpening knives.

On the floor sat Annabelle, Anne-Marie, and Sophia. All three were in their combat suits, without masks. The two girls were sorting through a pile of bullets and loading various different sub-machinegun magazines. Sophia looked up at Mindy and she woofed.

"Hi, Mindy!" Lauren called out.

"You girls, okay?"

"Oh, yeah!" Annabelle called out with a broad grin.

"Keep doing what you're doing and don't mind me," Mindy directed as she left the cabin.

She made her way past the group of Predators – Saoirse was now bickering with Lucy who was grinning – and she headed for the recreational area at the opposite end of the level.

"Well, the man had no choice but to stick his dick . . . oh, hi, Mindy!"

"Joshua."

"Josh is telling us a really cool joke where a man gets his dick bitten off by a . . ."

"Thanks, Daniel, I don't wanna know," Mindy replied with a horrified look on her face.

Joshua just grinned foolishly as Mindy rolled her eyes at him. Mindy tried not to laugh – his jokes were crude, and they creeped her out, but Joshua had his own ways of keeping morale high amongst the younger members of Fusion and she was grateful for it. As Mindy looked around at the assembled boys she noticed that somebody was missing – where was Megan? She left the boys to their obnoxious behaviour and headed upwards to Level 0.

Raucous laughter followed her to the elevator as Joshua delivered his punchline.

Level 0

Mindy found Kelly with the twins, Chrissy and Sky.

"What are these two teaching you?" Mindy asked.

"Just a few pointers," Sky replied.

"We're not always up to something," Chrissy grumbled.

Mindy chuckled.

"Watch out for these two, Kelly."

"They can be a real nightmare," Cathy confirmed as she exited the elevator.

"Not fair!" Sky complained bitterly.

"I think they're okay," Kelly commented.

"So innocent," Cathy chuckled as she went on her way.

Mindy made her way to the changing rooms and she found Megan – with Becky.

"This is ominous," Mindy commented.

"Megan's helping me with my combat suit," Becky responded.

"Just helping," Megan commented.

Megan wore her full combat suit with swords and she exuded menace even without her mask. Her new, self-inflicted, hairstyle was taking longer to get used to than Mindy had expected it would. There was also something about her step-sister which worried Mindy. Ever since her return from Gotham she had been a very different girl. Needless to say, then was not the moment to discuss such things; Megan was one of Mindy's best fighters and she did not need any distractions. It was also strange seeing the diminutive Becky in her full combat suit with a Balisong on her belt, plus a Walther P22 Nickel pistol in a holster. The girl could shoot, there was no doubt on that – she was also wicked with a knife. Scamp had been allocated to Medical Team Alpha where she would be under the watchful eye of Medic along with Ravage, with all three very safe in the bulk of Titan.

"See you both later," Mindy said as she left the changing room.

..._...

Mindy swiped her access card in the slot beside the armoured door and it released with an audible click. On entering the Battle Bunker, Mindy found a hive of activity with Marty and Abigail working feverishly with the assistance of Rachel and Dave.

"Hi, Mindy," Marty said. "The two UAVs are up and patrolling the city. We have identified two units of Russians and three of Sicilians – nothing from FEAR as yet."

"Mixed news but better than nothing," Mindy commented.

"We're ready here, honey," Dave confirmed.

"Settled in, Rachel?" Mindy asked.

"Yes, Mindy – and thank you for trusting me."

"As long as my trust is not misplaced, Rachel," Mindy replied darkly as she took the spiral staircase down into the Server Facility on the level below.

..._...

Dave followed, and they took a few moments to talk together about their impending evening.

"You stay safe, Dave."

"You too, Mindy – we've been through a lot together and we're always going to be together. So many have tried to destroy us both – it's never worked."

"How much of that was due to good planning and how much was down to dumb luck?" Mindy queried.

"Good question," Dave allowed. "Everybody knows what they are doing, honey. We have almost fifty people working on this operation and nothing has been left to chance – you would never allow it."

Mindy grinned sheepishly as she hugged her husband. Everything was different. So many things could go wrong, with such a complex situation, with so many people involved. When it had just been her and Dave, or even just with Chloe, there had been much less to think about and worry about. Mindy felt safe when Dave was close – he had kept her safe for so long – and his warmth felt so reassuring in situations where things began to get on top of her.

"I have a speech to make – you stick with me, you hear," Mindy directed as she headed back up to the Battle Bunker.

"On your six, Hit Girl!" Dave chuckled.

17:25

Battle Guy handed Hit Girl a headset and he swiftly punched a few buttons before he nodded, and Hit Girl's voice echoed throughout each of the Fusion facilities.

"We have a momentous task ahead of us, tonight. The combined forces of FEAR, The Sicilians, and The Sointsevskaya Brotherhood are arrayed throughout Chicago. They are pitting everything that they have into a last-ditch effort to destroy Fusion and take Chicago for themselves. We will not let that happen – we shall meet them, and we shall destroy them on our terms. This time tomorrow, it will all be decided, one way or another. You will all survive, or by God, I will hunt you down in the afterlife.

"Protect each other. Protect the city. Protect the people who live in this city. Stay true to what makes Fusion special. The enemy do not care who they hurt and who they trample on as they make their way into this city. They will not take our city away from us. Whether we are fucked up superheroes. Whether we are corrupted children turned into Predators. Whether we are just people who believe that what we are doing is right. Whatever your motivation for being who you are, use that motivation to get through the night.

"This night will be the longest of our lives. Do not put yourselves at unnecessary risk. Remember, he who runs away, lives to fight another day. Pick your fights – ensure that you have the edge before you engage. We are few in number, and the enemy is large, but we have faced large numbers before and we have prevailed. As long as we stand together, united in our task, the enemy will not win, this night.

"The battle for Chicago begins right now, in the next few minutes. We will fight, and we will keep fighting. We will keep fighting until the battle is won and Chicago's enemies are destroyed, once and for all. WE – ARE – FUSION! We are a single entity formed from many. We are each joined by the very same nuclear fire in our hearts and we will fight from our hearts to protect this city from those who wish to do it harm.

"Go, take up your positions out in Chicago and listen for guidance from the Battle Bunker. We have two UAVs up, tonight, and we have activated every camera in this city to provide us with the intelligence we need to counter the Axis movements. Battle Guy, Hal, and Synthesis will be watching our backs, tonight. You all have a direct link to call for help – do not feel afraid to use that link; it could save your life."

Hit Girl's voice was replaced by that of Kick-Ass.

"Fusion! Roll Out!"

Chapter 347*: Battle Chicago - Part I

Today my world was quite literally blasted apart.

These chapters are the account of the action which led to me losing the most important person in my life. I am broken, and even now, I have no idea how I can continue.

Saturday, October 15th, 2016

The preparations that afternoon had started just like any other.

Although, there had seemed to be a higher purpose to the evening. That purpose had buried the underlying fear which everybody felt when they pulled on their combat suits and prepared their weapons. For the veterans, it was just another night and their brains automatically filed away the fear. Not so, for the newer members. For those who had only been a Fusion vigilante for a few months, gearing up was daunting enough without worrying about what might be going on beyond the safety of the Safehouses. People were actively out to get them, that night, and that thought was in everybody's minds – just pushed back in some.

Naturally, the nutcase Predators were looking forward to the night's action. To a small extent, the 'normal' youngsters enjoyed gently teasing the 'weird' youngsters who appeared to get off on all the action. Secretly, though, some of the youngsters were pleased to have the Predators with them as it made them feel safe. All the training. All the preparation. It had all come to a head and they would all sink or swim together.

Anne-Marie had cringed as her big sister had undressed. She saw the scars on Stephanie's right shoulder, not to mention the other scars on her body. The short hair was also weird. But Stephanie was smiling and joking with Saoirse as they both pulled on their dark grey undersuits. Everybody joked – it was their way of ignoring the imminent danger that they might be about to face. As far as Anne-Marie was concerned, if Stephanie wasn't worried, then there was no reason that she should be.

As Mindy looked around at all the smiling, laughing faces, that afternoon, the thought that by midnight – just five short hours away – one of the team would be fighting for their life, and that by dawn, another would be dead, with others injured, was non-existent.

Emerald Alpha Team: Kick-Ass, Splinter, Torment

Grant Park, beside Lake Michigan was surprisingly empty for thirty minutes past six in the evening.

The reason behind the emptiness soon became apparent as a group of fourteen Russians appeared out of the trees to the north of the fountain. They appeared to be enjoying themselves, like it was just a night out on the town. Each was armed with some form of melee weapon, but firearms were also in evidence and the heavily built men wore obvious body armour on their torsos.

They were most definitely out for a fight.

Less than a mile to the southwest

Emerald Bravo Team: Petra, Stormtide, Relentless

Ruby Alpha Team: Shadow, Hellcat, Fortune

Ruby Bravo Team: Mist, Piranha, Trojan

The intelligence information had been right on the money.

As Emerald Bravo emerged from beneath West Roosevelt Road, they saw a large group of Corsairs gathered beside some tall undergrowth. Beyond them, a group of Marauders were arguing amongst themselves. There were upwards of forty Corsairs with a round dozen Marauders, but Petra was not worried about the numbers; she had help coming from the south where Shadow and Mist were moving north with their teams.

The battle was about to be joined.

The Battle Bunker: Battle Guy, Hal, Ember

The calls were coming in back to back.

"Bunker, Emerald Alpha – contact, contact, contact – we have Russians!"

"Bunker, Emerald Bravo – contact, contact, contact – Corsairs and fucked up Predators!"

Ember and Hal moved to update the status displays to show where and what each team were doing.

"Bunker, Ruby Alpha – moving to support Emerald Bravo!"

"Bunker, Ruby Bravo – moving with Ruby Alpha!"

"And it begins!" Battle Guy mused.

Diamond Alpha Team: Hit Girl, Discord, Bane, Tigercat, Eisenhower

Intelligence information had placed FEAR near McKinley park, so that was where Hit Girl had placed herself, with a backup team located less than a mile away.

They moved slowly across the grass at the east side of the boating lake, checking out the trees which in the fading light were creating perfect ambush points. As they closed on the north end of the lake, Eisenhower began to growl, and Hit Girl halted the approach. Eisenhower moved forwards into the looming darkness, sniffing out the threat.

Beneath a small grouping of trees, the dog found a juicy threat.

..._...

Six men were hiding in amongst the trees.

They knew that Hit Girl and her team were out there, only they did not want to tip their hand until the trap was set. Their boss, Joseph Valachi, would not be very pleased if Hit Girl slipped away - again. The men never heard Eisenhower approach, but they heard the menacing, blood-curdling growl as the veteran hound loomed out of the darkness. The men were all of Sicilian ancestry and they all deemed themselves to be beyond manly. They had each killed, maimed, and tortured aplenty during their lives – and been rewarded well for it – but while men were easy to kill and none of them feared man, like all men, they had a deep-seated fear of being torn apart or eaten while still alive. To a man, the men raised their weapons and aimed at the menacing form before them. Eisenhower ignored the weapons, and she stood her ground, growling at the six men.

"It's just one wild mutt – who gives a fucking shit?"

"Err – you might wanna reconsider that, Jake."

From out of the darkness behind Eisenhower, came seven very similar dark shapes all clad in body armour and with protective masks over their faces. They were identical apart from the coloured markings on their armour. Four of the animals moved to Eisenhower's left, the remaining three formed up to her right. All of them were growling in a decidedly unnerving way and saliva dripped from the bared fangs.

"Holy fuck!" one man almost whimpered at the sight of eight sets of very sharp teeth.

Slowly the seven new dogs began to encircle the men. Eisenhower was in her usual navy-blue armour and mask while her kin wore an updated version of her armour. Each dog wore a custom-made combat vest, based on the Special Forces Aerial Insertion Vest. The vest provided Threat Level IIIA ballistics protection, as well as protection against single and double-edged blades. It protected each animal's chest, sides, and back. There was also a mask which protected their faces and heads from injury. The combat vest had a GPS tracker, so it would be possible to keep an eye on where each dog went should they be pursuing somebody. The only differences between each dog were the markings on the back and sides of each vest.

Sampson bore blue markings, Loki was purple, Kes had pink markings, Blade bore light brown, Ardent had grey markings, which left Siren with yellow markings, and Dart with orange.

..._...

One of the men drew his pistol and he sent a bullet towards Eisenhower.

That was a very bad move – despite the bullet missing completely. He never saw Siren, nor the look of feral anger in her eyes as she attacked the man. Her fangs sunk deep into his right arm and he dropped the pistol as he fought for his very existence. Siren dragged the unfortunate man to the ground and then she went for his throat.

"Siren!"

The dog instantly released the man and jumped back. However, she stared intently at the wounded man, eager to finish the job. Another shape emerged from the darkness. This armoured individual wore purple and the remaining five men made a decision – one which ended their lives. Before any man could bring their own weapons to bear on the vigilantes, they each received a single bullet in the head from Hit Girl, Discord, Bane, and Tigercat – Bane dropped two. The remaining man living glared up at Hit Girl with furtive glances at Siren who was drooling over sinking her teeth into a chunk of very rare Sicilian steak.

"Go tell your boss that you have failed," Hit Girl growled down at the man.

"No way; he'll fucking kill me."

"Siren!"

The man saw death approaching in the form of some very sharp teeth and his courage left him – being shot dead by Joseph Valachi suddenly seemed much more appealing to the man than having his throat ripped out by a dog.

..._...

Hit Girl spun around as she heard gunfire rip out across the darkening park.

"Leave him!" she growled as the team headed southwest around the southern tip of the boating lake.

"Diamond Alpha, Bunker, Large group of fighters, three hundred yards to the west of you – we believe FEAR is amongst them."

"Copy that – send in Diamond Bravo," Hit Girl ordered as she ran.

Diamond Bravo Team: Foxtail, Venom, Rage, Fury

"Diamond Bravo, Bunker – move to support Diamond Alpha."

"Moving now," Foxtail responded.

The four vigilantes had been hiding on some wasteland just to the south of the park. They each sprung up and then ran forwards, across West Pershing Road and into the park, attacking FEAR's group from a flanking position. There appeared to be some consternation amongst FEAR's fighters as they found themselves attacked from the right flank by four armour-clad vigilantes, then from the left flank by Hit Girl and three more armour-clad vigilantes. To make things even worse, eight armour-clad canines suddenly dove amongst them, attacking anything which moved.

It did not take long for the grass to start turning red.

Opal Alpha Team: Jackal, Tempest, Cut-Throat

Five and a half miles to the north of Hit Girl's attack, her trusted Lieutenant was not happy. He was miles away, literally, from all the action.

Humboldt Park was large and not what Jackal would see as much of a target, however, those were his orders, along with those of Opal Bravo Team, half a mile to the north at the opposite end of the park. Jackal knew that there were valid reasons for him being stuck so far away from his partner and the main teams. He also knew that Hit Girl trusted him out on a limb, so to speak. He was also very aware that his daughter was stationed much nearer the dangerous fighting than he was . . . and that scared him.

"You got your ears on, Jackal?" Raven called over the communications.

"I try not to take them off," Jackal responded dryly.

"We have nothing to report in the north – you got anything down there?"

"Not even a cockroach fucking."

"Jackal, Bunker – you have incoming west entrance to the park . . . break . . . Raven, Bunker – you have incoming from your north."

The voice was new – Jackal assumed it to be Ember. They were out of position, so they scrambled aboard Sentinel and Jackal flooded the accelerator.

Opal Bravo Team: Raven, Wildcat, Nightmare

They came across Luis Munoz Martin Drive like a flood.

"Stay together!" Raven ordered as the three vigilantes faced down better than twenty large Russians and a round-dozen Sicilians.

'Ten to one was fair,' Wildcat thought to herself but only for the first few minutes as she found herself being overwhelmed.

"Opal Bravo, Bunker – SWAT has been diverted to your location; they're less than a minute out," Hal called.

"They better fucking hurry!" Nightmare growled as she fought off men twice her size with her Jungle Sword.

Raven was in her element, as was Wildcat – both vigilantes enjoyed a big fight, only, their experience was beginning to tell them it was time to extract themselves from the fight and get to safety. The three girls had never moved further than a few feet from one another, so as to provide mutual support. Buried as they were, deep within the throng of Russians, they almost missed the roar of diesel engines as a pair of SWAT vehicles roared onto the grass and each vehicle mowed down several of the enemy before stopping and deploying the SWAT teams.

The fight was back on, Wildcat was very pleased to see.

18:53

Emerald Alpha Team: Kick-Ass, Splinter, Torment

Grant Park

It had only taken about twenty minutes to put down all fourteen Russians.

For Torment, it had been the biggest fight of her young life and she had been very worried at one point that she was going to struggle, but she followed her training and where necessary, she called for help from her fellow team members. Kick-ass had waded in with relish, assisting the younger members where necessary. However, Splinter had no problem laying waste to the Russians. The boy had a deep-seated hatred for Russians in general, and any opportunity for revenge in return for his kidnapping and conditioning was welcome.

Splinter fought dirty and he fought hard which surprised some of the hardened Russian fighters. Even Kick-Ass was a little surprised, but otherwise he was very impressed by the youngster's forceful attacks.

The Battle Bunker

Battle Guy was not happy.

"None of this makes any sense," he said. "FEAR's plan is running like clockwork – only she doesn't seem to be putting much into the fight – yes, people are going down but FEAR herself is not engaging . . . see?"

Ember followed Battle Guy's finger as he pointed to where FEAR was believed to be, behind a cordon of her best Corsairs.

"She's holding back her best fighters and allowing the skirmishes . . . no, she couldn't be."

"What?" Ember asked.

"FEAR isn't this stupid – she's up to something," Hal agreed.

"She's trying to wear Fusion down ready for something big?" Ember ventured.

"I hate to say it, Ember, but you've got it in one. We're spread way the hell out and everybody will be tired by now."

"What are you going to do?" Ember asked, aghast at the idea of Fusion failing.

"Hit Girl plans for everything," Battle Guy grinned. "Hal – execute Plan Charlie."

Chicago PD, District 21 Communications Room

Captain Marcus Williams had been awaiting the order but had hoped that it would not be needed.

"Chicago PD, Chicago PD, this is Fusion – execute Plan Charlie, repeat, execute Plan Charlie."

The captain nodded towards the senior watch officer who proceeded to pass orders to his radio operators. All over the city, Chicago PD units began to move from their hitherto concealed locations. Each unit was manned by four volunteer officers, all equipped with body armour, AR-15 rifles and automatic shotguns. Their role was to provide close battlefield support for Fusion and allow the Fusion fighters to withdraw and regroup. It had been expected that FEAR's plan was to wear Fusion down, so a contingency plan had been put into place and the CPD would take over the fight until FEAR could be manipulated into a final battle.

"I'm outta here – keep me informed of what's happening," Marcus ordered as headed out onto the streets with a very pissed off Sergeant Sam Fellowes.

The Sergeant was determined to get payback for his injured partner who was even then at death's door.

The Battle Bunker

"Fusion!" Battle Guy announced over the communications circuits. "Prepare to disengage. Break off all actions. CPD will intercede on your behalf. FEAR is trying to wear us out – break – Wildcat, that applies to you, too!"

The response from Wildcat would have had the FCC going to war, had it not been an encrypted channel. Nobody liked retreating, or breaking off an action, however, the reasoning was sound. Battle Guy, Hal, and Ember watched their screens as each of the twenty-plus engaged operators expertly disengaged and pulled back. There were many unhappy rumblings over the radio, but venting was allowed.

The CPD put themselves between Fusion and the enemy, pushing FEAR's people back, surprisingly easily, and confirming their hypothesis. FEAR had no desire to waste her forces on police officers.

Emerald Bravo Team: Petra, Stormtide, Relentless
Ruby Alpha Team: Shadow, Hellcat, Fortune
Ruby Bravo Team: Mist, Piranha, Trojan

Piranha and Stormtide exchanged looks – they were pissed.

"Fucking yellow bastards!" came the bellow from the Marauders they were turning their backs on.

"Come back when you've grown some balls, bitches!"

It went on and on until they were out of earshot. What rankled more was that both of them would have loved nothing more than to turn and put a bullet in their heads.

However, they had received specific orders from somebody that both were scared of.

Earlier that evening

Safehouse F

Every Predator was gathered on the mat: Saoirse, Stephanie, Sarah, Chrissy, Sky, Jamie, Abigail, Shannon, Leo, Lucy, Marc, Hunter, Rebecca, and Rachel.

Mindy and Dave faced the fourteen youngsters. They were both very serious and the expression unnerved the kids arranged before them.

"You were brought up as Predators. We have the very first, Lucy, and the very last, Rebecca. While some see you all as cracked up nutcases. . ."

There was proud laughter from those assembled.

"There are times that I disagree. Despite some of you being bitter enemies and despite the fact that some of you went out of your way to try and kill one another, you have all put your past behind you and become firm friends – some of you have even managed to share the same bed without killing one another!"

There was more laughter – and some uneasy looks from Stephanie, Saoirse, and Abigail.

"We have recently taken onboard somebody who I know has still to build up some trust amongst her former Predator companions. She took the wrong road, but when the opportunity presented herself, she did the right thing and she saved the life of somebody close to many of us. I think some of you can see where I am going with this. Out there, under the control of FEAR, there are many more youngsters, just like yourselves – I know some will be like Willow while others will be like Rachel. I want you to think about that when you face off against a Marauder, tonight. Before you run them through, or put a bullet through their skulls, think about who they are. You may know some of them – they may be salvageable like Abigail and Rachel – hell, we even turned Chrissy and Sky around. They may be whacked-out nutcases and unsalvageable like Stephanie and Saoirse. . ."

"Hey!"

"Bitch!"

". . . But, seriously, I am determined to help each and every Marauder out there and I will do everything that I can to help them see things the way you guys have. I want each and every one of you to give them that chance – however . . . that does not mean that you put yourselves at any unnecessary risk. Several months ago, Shadow had to put down Bane and Venom – she had no choice as it was them or her. I backed her up in her decision, but she beat herself up about it."

"Err, Mindy. . ." Chrissy interrupted.

"Go ahead, Chrissy."

"My sister and me, we fought almost to the death to protect Urban Predator – we were fanatical about it . . . and very, very wrong. Chloe beat herself up about it for weeks and it took both of us to stop her blaming herself for our wounds. We were both very thankful that Chloe used her skills to put us down without killing us. We both wish that we had surrendered before we were put down, but we would not allow ourselves to do it. Those Marauders out there will be just the same. It goes against everything we were trained to do, to surrender. Some will see sense, but I know some won't . . . just like Willow."

There was general agreement amongst the Predators and they began to converse amongst themselves about options open to them.

Dave and Mindy left them to it.

Later that night

20:20

All was not going well.

Everybody had been able to rest for anywhere from half an hour to almost an hour, but then the call to arms had gone out again – why?

FEAR!

She had turned her attention away from attacking Fusion, to attacking the city infrastructure. Buildings and powerlines were her targets – she was even ignoring the CPD. First, a substation went offline – coincidentally one which fed Safehouse F. Battle Guy was notified by the computer systems and he began to receive calls from the CPD that FEAR was attacking substations and power distribution nodes within the city. Entire blocks were being plunged into darkness. City workers had deployed immediately under police escort to repair or bypass the damage caused by explosive devices placed by FEAR's people. It did not help that the substations would have to be checked for more explosive devices before the city workers could start repairs. It was all a ploy to use up precious resources from within the CPD and the city. While city workers were being protected, the CPD could not assist Fusion – it was a very carefully laid plan on FEAR's part.

"The 48th Street substation is down," Battle Guy reported. "Secondary supply is still up; backup generators are on standby."

"We have reported Marauders on South McDowell Avenue at West 46th," Hal advised.

"Make that Corsairs, too," Ember added. "Just crossing West 49th on South Racine."

"Copy that," Hit Girl replied. "Show Diamond Alpha and Bravo in route."

"Acknowledged!" Battle Guy responded.

Diamond Alpha Team: Hit Girl, Discord, Bane, Tigercat, Eisenhower
Diamond Bravo Team: Foxtail, Venom, Rage, Fury

South Ashland Avenue and West 46th Street

Hound and Sentinel pulled up into the shadows of the street.

All the streetlights were out, providing a perfect cover for the black SUVs and their cargo of vigilantes.

"What are they doing?" Bane asked as she studied the assembled group of eight Marauders.

"Good question," Foxtail responded as she too studied the warped Predators.

"Shouldn't they be prancing around like dicks?" Tigercat asked.

"You saying we Predators are dicks?" Venom asked as Tigercat received glares from Discord, Bane, Rage, Fury, and Foxtail.

"They are Marauders – I thought they were different," Tigercat responded carefully.

"Only because Stormtide loves you, do you get to live," Fury advised the boy.

"Gee, thanks, Fury!"

"Focus!" Hit Girl growled dangerously.

The Marauders were standing in the middle of the cross-section where three streets crossed, talking animatedly. Their weapons were stowed, and they could have just been a group of normal teenagers, only they wore masks and body armour.

"It's a trap," Venom stated.

"I don't trust them," Bane added.

"Me, neither," Rage conceded.

"Let's lead them into a trap," Discord suggested.

"Not just a nice set of tits," Tigercat commented approvingly before he wisely hid behind Foxtail.

"Battle Guy – we have a plan," Hit Girl began.

..._...

The Marauder known as Hydra peered down West 46th Street and she frowned.

"You see what I'm seeing?" she asked the nearest Marauder.

"Hey, Hydra's found something," Savage called out to the others.

Less than forty or so yards away, a Fusion vigilante stood in the middle of the street alongside a pair of armour-clad animals. The vigilante looked surprised to have been caught out. Then one of the Marauders identified the vigilante.

"Foxtail!" Firebrand announced. "After her!"

All eight Marauders gave chase as Foxtail and her animals bolted down an alleyway which crossed over towards South McDowell Avenue. The Marauders were smart and four of them ran down McDowell while the rest remained in pursuit of their prey. Nobody considered for a moment that it might be a ruse – they all wanted blood and Foxtail was fair game in their book.

"Get the fuck back here, you fuckin' bitch!" Firebrand yelled.

..._...

Foxtail was not convinced that she had the easy part of the tasking.

The mutts were having the time of their young lives as they ran along on either side of Foxtail, crossing through a parking lot onto West 47th Street. But Foxtail did not have to run the full 750-yards to the ambush site. At South Ada Street, she took a right and dived behind some trees before she was relieved by Bane who bolted out and took her place with a pair of fresh canines.

"Fun?" Venom enquired.

"Not bad," the out of breath Foxtail growled.

Bane had longer legs and she relished the run along West 47th Street – as did her canine escorts. The pursuing Marauders did not appear to notice that their target had changed but that was their problem. At South Racine Avenue Bane slowed and she stopped in the centre of the street. Eighty yards south of her, about a dozen Corsairs loitered under the closest working streetlight.

"Hey!" one yelled and they all ran at Bane.

"Bet you can't catch me, you dumb fucks!" Bane yelled as she sent a half-dozen bullets in their direction just to piss them off.

"Predators, Marauders – God, I hate them all!" the leader of the Corsairs growled.

The man hated fighting alongside the obnoxious and often conceited teenaged little shits. He had joined FEAR when his prison transport aircraft had been brought down into Chicago. He and dozens of his kin had readily signed up to a new life as a mercenary – the pay was good. He ran up the avenue, chasing the young vigilante bitch who had dared to shoot at him and his men. It wasn't until they had crossed West 47th Street and turned off the avenue into a container yard that the man had hesitated. His team had been joined by the damn Marauders and they were baying for blood.

He had no choice but to go along with them – he wanted a cut of Fusion, too.

Chicago Harbor

VIGILANTE

It was very cold out on the water.

However, Psyche was in her element and she was enjoying the night as they raced across the waves at speed. While she was wearing her full armour with face mask, she imagined the cold air on her face along with the stinging spray. Her groin hurt each time the craft crashed down into the waves, but she tolerated the pain as vigilantes and Predators were conditioned to ignore pain. Mindy would give her hell for it, but it was worth a little just to be out with the rest of the teams.

At the helm, Neptune sat in the right seat with Athena as his navigator. Aft, Ares stood in the well-deck with his hands resting on the triggers of a mounted M6E4 general-purpose machine gun. The purple-hulled craft tore across the waves at twenty-five knots leaving a churning wake of white water behind. They had had a fairly peaceful evening – their main job to ensure that FEAR could not escape via the lake.

"Vigilante, Emerald Alpha, we have business for you, Chicago Harbor, over."

..._...

Kick-Ass, Splinter, and Torment were back near the Buckingham Fountain.

Splinter was struggling – he had been wounded before the night's action had even begun – but the boy did not know how to quit. They were faced with armour-clad Corsairs, and they were outnumbered. Normally that would not be an issue, but Kick-Ass knew that pushing his younger counterparts would not be a good idea. They had support from the CPD, but several CPD officers were pinned down behind their SUVs. With the roar of powerful marine diesel engines, a sleek-hulled watercraft emerged out of the darkness from the direction Lake Michigan. The roar of the engines was closely followed by the staccato chatter of the machine guns mounted fore and aft.

The Corsairs' body armour was no match for the 7.62-millimetre bullets which tore into them, shredding them. Gunfire was returned, bullets from the Corsairs' weapons ripping through the air and narrowly missing the wildly jinking watercraft. The distraction provided by Vigilante aided the CPD in extracting themselves from the death-trap in which they had found themselves. Kick-Ass and Torment escorted the officers out of harm's way while Splinter added to the Vigilante's gunfire. For a few, very brief, moments, Splinter thought it was over and he could rest, but then the youngster's eyes were drawn to a bright flash in the darkness, six hundred yards to the northwest, then a flaming streak as a missile zoomed the very short distance towards Vigilante.

Splinter had no time to say anything as two more streaks appeared in the darkness, heading for the jinking vessel.

Six miles to the southwest

South Normal Boulevard

Ruby Alpha: Shadow, Hellcat, Fortune

Ruby Bravo: Mist, Piranha, Trojan

Opal Alpha: Jackal, Tempest, Cut-Throat

Opal Bravo: Raven, Wildcat, Nightmare

"It's a fucking trap!" Wildcat repeated for the sixth time in as many minutes.

"Yeah, I think we've got that, thanks," Shadow growled as she led the combined teams deep into the abandoned neighbourhood immediately to the south of the giant Norfolk Southern intermodal container terminal on 47th Street.

The forty-five-acre neighbourhood within the railroad tracks consisted of only a dozen or so dwellings, with the rest of the space left to grass. Most of the streets were in semi-darkness, with limited street lighting. As for innocents and collateral damage, it was the perfect place for an ambush.

"Why are we even here?" Wildcat persisted.

"There are times that I wish I'd just ignored that little nine-year-old girl," Jackal muttered.

"No one can resist me," Wildcat responded as she looked up at her pal.

"Creepy," Jackal commented as he returned the twelve-year-old's look. "While Wildcat is generally as nutty as squirrel poo, I think she might have a point."

"Of course, I do!"

"Christ, talk about an ego!" Piranha commented.

"Get to fuck, fish girl!" Wildcat growled.

"Gobby, bitch."

"Cats eat fish," Wildcat pointed out.

"Lesbian, huh?" Piranha chuckled. "Not been eaten out by a cat before."

"You fucking. . ."

"Another word and I slap the fuck outta both of you!" Mist growled as she glared at both vigilantes. "We keep moving. Intel shows something here and we're going to find it."

Hellcat and Fortune moved forwards, side by side, their blades held out before them, ready for anything appearing out of the darkness. After another minute, there was a sound – Hellcat barely heard it, but it was definitely something that wasn't just background noise. Then her sixth sense told the young girl that something was wrong – very wrong. Instinctively, she brought up her Wakizashi to her right in readiness . . .

"I think I've found something," Hellcat whispered into her communications as her senses went wild.

The girl turned to where she believed there was danger just as a Katana emerged silently out of the darkness, aimed at her head.

..._...

Fortune had noticed Hellcat stiffening up she had braced her own blade ready for an attack.

Adrenalin surged through her body, heightening her senses and blocking out the fear which had come to the fore as they had entered the dark and foreboding area. The two girls were reasonably well matched in skill-level, but Hellcat had more combat experience than Fortune, so the older girl deferred to the younger. Fortune's senses were going wild, just as they were for Hellcat; she could feel something close by – she could feel the danger. Then she heard the blade sweeping through the air and she intercepted it, just as Hellcat's blade came into contact with a very similar blade.

Whomsoever was in control of the blade – they were good.

..._...

Mist caught the same vibe in the air.

Her four-foot long, seven-section chain whip coursed through the air, catching the neck of some unfortunate, causing the unseen person to yell out in pain as his neck was torn apart by the viciously sharp tip of the whip. His scream, which faded very quickly, woke everybody up to the threat which rapidly emerged out of the darkness.

It was something new – very new!

Emerald Bravo: Petra, Stormtide, Relentless

The night sky was lit up for a few seconds as the rumble of a loud explosion spread across the city.

The three vigilantes were about a mile from the explosion, but each turned to see what had exploded. They could not see the source of the explosion, of course, but they all felt that something was very badly wrong. For a moment, they faltered and the Sicilians whom they were fighting momentarily gained the upper hand, but the three vigilantes soon rallied, and they pushed back against the Mafiosos.

Then it came, the announcement that none had ever wanted to hear.

The Battle Bunker

Ember was hard at work maintaining the status boards when suddenly one of the ginormous wall-mounted screens began to flash in the bottom right corner.

Simultaneously, a klaxon sounded within the bunker. Hal raced over to the console and her face drained of all colour as she identified the source of the alert. Neither she, nor Battle Guy wanted to voice the beginning of a nightmare. But announced it had to be.

"Fusion, Vigilante is down hard . . . repeat, Vigilante is down hard!"

South Racine and West 47th Street

Diamond Alpha Team: Hit Girl, Discord, Bane, Tigercat, Eisenhower
Diamond Bravo Team: Foxtail, Venom, Rage, Fury

As the team fought amongst the containers, pursuing the marauding Marauders and fighting off the Corsairs, the announcement was a rude awakening to the seriousness of the night's activities.

Hit Girl and Foxtail exchange glances across the action, as did Rage and Fury. It was an unwelcome distraction in the middle of a difficult fight. All four of them now had the mental image of at least one person close to them in danger . . . or worse. However, they were all professionals, and they pushed their worries to the backs of their minds. The fight was difficult enough as Corsairs had to be put down while the Marauders had to be put down – but kept alive. Neither task was proving easy but there were already two unconscious Marauders littering the container storage site, with more to come.

From an outsider's point of view, the container site appeared to be out of control – armour-clad dogs dashed everywhere, along with armour-clad vigilantes, armour-clad Corsairs, and semi-armour-clad youths, otherwise known as Marauders. However, it was a major battle with many trying to kill the Fusion vigilantes from all sides. Yes, it was a Fusion trap, but it was also a perfect free for all.

Fusion, though, was winning.

Chicago Harbor

The decidedly soggy vigilante drifted in the water for a moment, her special-forces lifejacket fully inflated and keeping her afloat.

Then her mind snapped back to life and the noise, the cold, it came back to her. She could hear gunfire coming from her left, onshore. Ahead of her, the high-rise towers of Chicago towered above her. The waves lapped at her body as she floated, and she felt herself being pushed towards the shore. To her right, the fiercely burning hulk of what had once been a luxuriously appointed watercraft-turned-assault-vessel crackled and spat as the flames touched the cold waters of Lake Michigan. Psyche span around in the water as she felt a hand on her shoulder. She levelled her pistol at the man looming out of the darkness, but she quickly calmed down as she recognised Neptune. The naval officer was floating in his own lifejacket, with Ares and Athena beside him.

"You, okay, Psyche?"

"I'm fine – you?"

"We're all good. Let's get to shore."

..._...

A Corsair saw movement at the water's edge and he grinned at the sight of four people climbing out of the water.

Easy targets. . .

"Fucking bastard!" Psyche growled as she double-tapped the man in the head with her pistol.

She released her inflated lifejacket and abandoned it to fall to the ground, as did the rest of her team. On water, Neptune took charge, but on land, Psyche was the ranking vigilante. All three drew pistols and they followed Psyche up towards Highway 41. Four Corsairs saw them and they changed course to intercept. But before they could get off a round, one grew a blade out of his chest while another grew a blade through the front of his neck. The final pair? They both rose into the air before being smashed together and then thrown bodily to the stonework which covered the sidewalk. Each then had their skulls almost smashed in by a pair of green/yellow armoured gauntlets.

"Good to see you alive, pal," Kick-Ass called out as he ran his glowing yellow eyes over his daughter, looking for injuries.

"I'm fine – no injuries," Psyche offered quickly, assuaging her father's fears.

"Good to hear it – Neptune?"

"We're all fine, Kick-Ass," Neptune replied.

"Nothing like an invigorating swim," Ares commented.

"Shame about the boat – Hit Girl'll be pissed, I'll bet," Athena added.

"She'll get over it," Kick-Ass chuckled as he nonchalantly waved his gauntlet before turning to Psyche. "You'd better announce to everyone that you are alive," he suggested.

Psyche nodded, and she keyed her radio.

"Reports of my demise are very much exaggerated," Psyche announced over the Fusion communications channel.

"Damn!" Rage commented after a few seconds. "I thought I was going to get her room, too."

"Little shit!" Psyche responded tartly.

South Racine and West 47th Street

Diamond Alpha Team: Hit Girl, Discord, Bane, Tigercat, Eisenhower
Diamond Bravo Team: Foxtail, Venom, Rage, Fury

The fight was winding down.

The dogs were each paired off with a vigilante and the pairs searched the containers for any hidden stragglers. Three Marauders were unaccounted for, as were two Corsairs. Foxtail followed Blade as he followed a scent towards a small group of large containers stacked three high but with a narrow alleyway between two stacks. It was pitch dark, but Blade indicated that something, or somebody, was down there. Foxtail raised her P90 and pressed the button for the LED flashlight attached beside the muzzle. The dark alleyway was illuminated for twenty feet and Foxtail moved forwards, cautiously. After forty or so feet, Blade began to growl, and he slowed down, sniffing. Then a voice called out.

"I don't want to fight anymore . . . please, I give up."

It was the voice of a young girl and Foxtail turned to the right slightly and she illuminated a Marauder. The girl, who appeared to be very young, pulled off her mask and weapons, dropping them to the ground. Blade sniffed and growled as the weapons fell. Foxtail could see the fear in the young girl's eyes.

"I am Foxtail – get down on your knees."

The girl followed instructions and she allowed Foxtail to pat her down, looking for any hidden weapons.

"I am not a Marauder, I am, or was, a Predator like you, Foxtail. They forced me to fight and I hated it."

"We shall see. I will not kill you. Should your story be true, then you will survive this."

By the time Foxtail emerged from the alleyway between the container stacks with her prisoner and Blade, there was a row of kneeling Marauders, their hands on their heads, masks and weapons on the ground before them. Most looked pissed, but some appeared relieved. Their eighth compatriot was pushed down to her knees at the end of the line.

"You will all be restrained and taken somewhere safe – your status will be evaluated at a later time," Hit Girl announced as she paced before the Marauders. "You resist, then you will suffer. You do as you are told – and you have my word – you will live."

Tigercat, Bane, and Discord finished securing each Marauder's hands behind their backs with flexicuffs and Duct tape. Each was given a thorough pat down before being hauled to their feet and pushed into a pair of waiting CPD vans – four to a van. Hit Girl watched until the last of them were secured and placed in a van. The vans would go to a special location so that the kids could be screened and logged – Marcus would take care of that with Vicky. Hit Girl was feeling a little happier about events – her daughter was alive, as was the entire team, despite her having lost a valuable asset. But assets could be replaced, people could not. She was also very pleased that despite some injuries, the Marauders were all alive. The next problem was the new threat a couple of miles away.

Ninjas?

A little over a mile to the southeast

Ruby Alpha: Shadow, Hellcat, Fortune

Ruby Bravo: Mist, Piranha, Trojan

Opal Alpha: Jackal, Tempest, Cut-Throat

Opal Bravo: Raven, Wildcat, Nightmare

"They aren't ninjas," Shadow commented over her communications to Hit Girl as she fought.

"Why do you say that?" Hit Girl replied.

"They don't fight like the ninjas we've fought – they're just different; I can't explain it any better."

"Hit Girl?" Mist cut in. "You heard of Shinobi?"

"No – we have enough problems," Hit Girl growled in response.

"Suit yourself!" Mist replied as she battled against a sword-wielding man who wore conformal body armour.

"We need help, here!" Wildcat growled. "The fuckers are multiplying."

Indeed, they were. What had started as a mere dozen attackers had quickly doubled and then trebled in number. The dozen vigilantes were surrounded and despite their skills, they were becoming overwhelmed by the unknown attackers. Mist was worried, as was Shadow. They were seasoned fighters and very disciplined – nothing like FEAR's rabble of Corsairs and crazed Predators. They weren't anything like the Sicilian Mafia, nor the Russian heavies, they exuded skill and purpose, rather than just muscle.

"Reinforcements are less than two minutes out!" came the radio call.

South Wentworth Avenue

Diamond Alpha Team: Hit Girl, Discord, Bane, Tigercat, Eisenhower

Diamond Bravo Team: Foxtail, Venom, Rage, Fury

The avenue ran north-south above and along the edge of the Dan Ryan Expressway.

Hound and Sentinel flew down the avenue at speed. Fury looked behind her from the backseat in Sentinel. She could see Titan several yards behind, and beside the giant vehicle, as escort, came Foxtail on her motorcycle. Then, just as the gigantic vehicle and the diminutive motorcycle passed a large building to their left, there was a rumbling sound and as Fury stared transfixed, the building beside Titan began to disintegrate. Foxtail noticed, and she accelerated hard just as the façade of the building collapsed across the street.

Titan was buried under tons of masonry and the last the astounded and horrified girl saw of Foxtail was her motorcycle as it spun across the blacktop and smashed into a parked car. The sound of the collapsing building was deafening, and the convoy skidded to a halt as bricks and chunks of concrete bounced down the street and down onto the Dan Ryan Expressway.

"Titan, Hit Girl, over. . ."

"Titan, Hit Girl, over. . ."

"Titan, Hit Girl, over. . ."

There was no response from anybody in the fourteen-ton armoured vehicle that had completely vanished under the onslaught of collapsed building.

Chapter 348*: Battle Chicago - Part II

This night, my world was quite literally blasted apart.

These chapters are the account of the action which led to me losing the most important person in my life. I am broken and even now, I have no idea how I can continue.

Saturday, October 15th, 2016

22:28

South Wentworth Avenue

Diamond Alpha Team: Hit Girl, Discord, Bane, Tigercat, Eisenhower
Diamond Bravo Team: Foxtail, Venom, Rage, Fury

"Titan, Hit Girl, over. . ."

"Titan, Hit Girl, over. . ."

"Titan, Hit Girl, over. . ."

The silence over the radio was deafening, almost as bad as the collapsing rubble a few yards away, not to mention the screeching of brakes and grinding of metalwork as vehicles collided on the Dan Ryan while they tried to avoid the rubble which had crashed down amongst the traffic – thankfully thin for the time of night. Hit Girl was in a quandary. Buried under tons of rubble was a vehicle belonging to her and deep within that armoured beast, her mentor, her son, and her best-friend's daughter. Also, a few hundred yards away, her sister, best-friend, and others were in mortal danger fighting some new foe.

Not to mention that a valuable member of her team was badly hurt, if not killed by the collapse.

TITAN

The explosion had been dulled by the heavy armour, but the crashing of masonry onto the hull had been deafening and for the two youngsters onboard, terrifying.

Ravage had hugged Scamp tightly as she had shaken with fear. Medic had dived out of the driver's seat, the moment that the route became blocked and the vehicle buried. She had grabbed both kids and covered them with her own body. All three wore body armour, but hers was the heaviest. The crashing and banging went on and on. The massive vehicle shook on its suspension as the hull was knocked from side to side and from above. When the noise finally ceased, Medic was astounded to find that they were each still alive and totally unhurt. The vehicle was intact, even the armoured windscreen showed little more than scratches from the crashing brickwork.

"You guys okay?" she asked.

"I'm good," Scamp replied. "Ravage – let me go."

"Sorry – just looking after my friend," the boy responded as he released the girl and allowed her to get back to her feet. "Are we buried?"

"Seems so," Medic replied as she went from viewport to viewport and she found every viewport blocked by masonry. "Let's . . ."

Medic paused as she heard a metallic clanking sound from near the base of the rear hatch.

"Somebody's come to get us!" Scamp announced happily.

"I don't think so," Ravage replied. "Nobody's moved the rubble yet."

South Wentworth Avenue

An SUV sped on South Wentworth Avenue from West Garfield Boulevard, siren screaming and a blue light flashing on the dashboard.

The SUV stopped beside Sentinel and a woman appeared – she bore a large red cross on a white background worn prominently on her flask vest.

"Doctor Staite – you got wounded?"

Hit Girl studied the new arrival.

"We don't know," she replied simply.

Fusion members were feverously digging through the immense pile of rubble and they had been at it for nearly ten minutes since the explosion. Then the rubble began to shift on its own as a deep-throated roar could be heard from beneath the shaking pile. More masonry shifted and something big, black, and very ugly began to emerge. With a monstrous roar from the titanic 6.7-litre V8 turbo diesel, the monstrous truck heaved itself out of the masonry, crunching over broken glass and brickwork before it came to a stop on a clear stretch of road. The paintwork was scratched and gouged, but the bodywork was otherwise intact.

Not so, for Foxtail – she was in a very bad way.

..._...

When Hit Girl hauled open the rear hatch, she was aghast at the sight before her.

Foxtail was lying on her back with most of her armour removed. To say she was bruised would have been a major understatement. Almost every inch of the teen's body was bruised. Beside her, Scamp and Ravage were keeping an eye on the unconscious vigilante. Medic climbed out from behind the wheel and she made her way towards Hit Girl.

"Heavy bruising across front, back, and sides of her body. Her helmet protected her head, but she has a considerable concussion. I think her left thigh has been injured in some way, not to mention what might be a broken tibia – there may be more."

"Can I help?"

Hit Girl growled at the doctor who had appeared behind her. Medic nodded, and Hit Girl waved Doctor Staite forwards.

"The mask stays on," Hit Girl growled. "We have somewhere to be."

With that remark, Hit Girl nodded to Ravage and Scamp before she dived out of the vehicle.

South Normal Boulevard

Ruby Alpha: Shadow, Hellcat, Fortune

Ruby Bravo: Mist, Piranha, Trojan

Opal Alpha: Jackal, Tempest, Cut-Throat

Opal Bravo: Raven, Wildcat, Nightmare

Diamond Alpha Team: Hit Girl, Discord, Bane, Tigercat, Eisenhower

Diamond Bravo Team: Foxtail, Venom, Rage, Fury

The situation sucked!

Hit Girl could see exhausted vigilantes fighting fresh . . . Shinobi. Damn! Shinobi were bad news – a variation on the ninja theme, only much deadlier. The new enemy were oriental, too; another bad sign. No way could FEAR have them teamed up with her. Venom took over command of Diamond Bravo and the seven fresher vigilantes tore into the enemy, relieving the beleaguered Ruby and Opal teams. The enemy did not openly show any concern with the numbers of their opposition rising to twenty, not including the rabid mutts. The odds had evened in Fusion's favour and their new enemy were dropping, just much more slowly than in a normal fight against brawn and muscle, rather than brains.

Hit Girl found herself fighting one of the men. He wore a dark-coloured set of loose-fitting overalls – they might have been dark blue or even black; it was difficult to tell in the semi-darkness. His swordsmanship was dignified and disciplined – a ninja trait. He showed no outward emotion – another ninja trait. He used smooth, planned movements – the ninja way, too. Then, Hit Girl identified the sign of the man's 'office', so to speak. The highly-polished wooden riveted hilt of what could only be a meat cleaver sat in a custom leather holster on his left hip beside what appeared to be the butt of a Beretta pistol.

For a moment, her mind drifted.

February 9th, 2008

Safehouse A, New York

The ten-year-old girl was getting bored . . . the lesson had been going on for nearly two hours.

"Daddy. . ."

"Yes, child."

"We finished, yet?"

"Now, look here, Mindy – you need to know what you might come up against. This is real important, child."

"Okay – we have Japanese ninjas and they can be bad – so, I just kill 'em."

"As God is my witness, you push things, child. Yes, the Japanese ninja is very disciplined and very good at what they do – you have to be better, Mindy. But there is a worse ninja – those from China. They are ruthless, and they are incredibly disciplined."

"I'm disciplined," Mindy pointed out.

"Not always, child – you have been known to slip up."

Mindy rolled her eyes, then her shoulders slumped.

"I didn't see the cunt in the darkness – I bumped into him."

"While a Japanese ninja might allow you to bump into him before killing you, the Chinese version, the Shinobi – well, they would have killed you long before you were close enough to 'bump' into them."

"They that bad?" Mindy asked as she cringed at the news.

"I would never want to face one – they are stealthier than the most silent cat stalking its prey. They are rare, though, and that is good."

"How so?" the ever-inquisitive pig-tailed Mindy asked.

"Only one organisation uses them today – can you guess what that might be?"

Mindy thought for a moment.

"Mafia?"

"Worse."

"The Sicilian Mafia?"

"Damned Italian ponces!" Damon chuckled as Mindy screwed up her face in concentration for a few moments before giving up.

"No idea."

"The Chinese Triads."

Mindy paled at their mention.

"The Hong Kong Triad known as the 14K is believed to use Shinobi – that is unconfirmed as nobody who has met the Shinobi has actually survived to talk about it. While it is bad to have any Chinese Triad on your tail – the 14K are by far the worst, and the largest. If you ever find yourself fighting a Shinobi, child, you be damn careful, and you better have eyes in the back of your skull – they are devious, and they often work in pairs."

"I'll remember, Daddy, have no fear."

Saturday, October 15th, 2016

23:14

South Normal Boulevard, Chicago

Ruby Alpha: Shadow, Hellcat, Fortune

Ruby Bravo: Mist, Piranha, Trojan

Opal Alpha: Jackal, Tempest, Cut-Throat

Opal Bravo: Raven, Wildcat, Nightmare

Diamond Alpha Team: Hit Girl, Discord, Bane, Tigercat, Eisenhower

Diamond Bravo Team: Foxtail, Venom, Rage, Fury

As the Safehouse dissolved in her mind and the dark street materialised around her, full of people fighting, her Daddy's comments came to the fore and they saved her life as she instinctively drew her second blade and checked her six.

She was being stalked. While her attention had been on her single attacker, his partner was closing in for the kill, a razor-sharp meat-cleaver poised to hack off her head at the neck. The man showed a moment's irritation at being found out but that did not prevent him from attacking, along with his partner. Hit Girl put everything she had into defending herself from the two attackers. She had to put them down as other members of her team needed help. She could see three armoured shapes on the ground – were they . . . she couldn't even bring herself to think the fateful word.

What the hell, was happening in their city?

..._...

Nightmare was lying on the ground.

She was exhausted and the man whom she had been fighting had fairly easily put her down – he was highly skilled, and she was not. Only, he had not killed her as she had expected but simply stepped over her and moved onto the next vigilante. A few feet away, she could see Trojan and Tempest on the ground too – injured, but alive, just like her. Nightmare had felt the Katana blade strike her left shoulder, and while the armour had held, the pain of the strike had been like nothing she had ever endured before. As far as she could tell, Trojan and Tempest were similarly struggling with painful injuries.

Hit Girl's arrival had been both fortuitous and very welcome.

Safehouse K

"Christ!" Stephanie exclaimed as she ran into the medical bay.

Her friend was lying on a table, stripped of her combat suit and underwear. Cathy was busy tending to the visible injuries which seemed to be mostly heavy bruising.

"Is she going to be okay?" Stephanie asked.

"I had help from another doctor, on the scene. We managed to stabilise her, but she has a serious concussion and we have internal bleeding which has been contained. She will be a very sick girl for quite a while and I am sure you understand what that means," Cathy replied.

"I do," Stephanie replied as she remembered her own recovery. "She's got hell ahead of her. Is she going to hospital?"

"Yes, in the next few minutes."

..._...

Once Saoirse had been taken off to hospital by Emily, Ryan appeared, and he hugged his wife briefly.

"Fusion is taking a hammering," he said.

"The night is not over," Cathy cautioned. "Plenty of time for everything to turn about."

"I hate not being involved," Stephanie complained.

"I know, you do," Ryan offered calmly. "You still played your part, Steph."

"I know, I know."

"I need to get back out there," Medic said as she pulled her mask into place. "Ravage and Scamp are waiting in Titan."

South Normal Boulevard, Chicago

Ruby Alpha: Shadow, Hellcat, Fortune

Ruby Bravo: Mist, Piranha, Trojan

Opal Alpha: Jackal, Tempest, Cut-Throat

Opal Bravo: Raven, Wildcat, Nightmare

Diamond Alpha Team: Hit Girl, Discord, Bane, Tigercat, Eisenhower

Diamond Bravo Team: Foxtail, Venom, Rage, Fury

Wildcat could not understand it.

They were beaten, only they were still alive – why? The thirty attackers had withered – eight were dead – the attack faltering once Hit Girl had arrived with fresh blood, but even so, the attackers could have caused much more damage than they had. Wildcat was struggling with the pain of two nasty slashes which had not penetrated her suit, but were painful, nonetheless. Then, as if by a single command, they vanished into the darkness, just as stealthily as they had arrived.

"What the fuck!?" the girl exclaimed.

Bane stared at Wildcat, unnerved by the vanishing act. Hit Girl strode over.

"Where did they go?" she demanded.

"Fuck knows!" Bane responded angrily.

"They took their dead," Venom pointed out.

"Who the bloody hell does that?" Fury wanted to know.

"A fucking mystery," Shadow finished.

"I want everybody back to Safehouse K – now!" Hit Girl growled.

An undisclosed location in Chicago

Lieutenant Vicky Richards glared down at the eleven miscreants kneeling before her.

They were all kids. Their ages varied from eight to sixteen. Six were girls, the remaining five, boys. While most appeared relieved at their change in circumstances, at least four still showed vehement anger at their capture. None were to be trusted, and as such, they were still secured with various physical restraints.

"You will each be taken, one by one, onto the next room. There you will be stripped, searched, and you will receive a brief interview. You are no longer Marauders. You are no longer Predators. You are just kids in the wrong place at the wrong time. None of you are in any great trouble and should you cooperate, you will all get new lives. If you do not cooperate, then you will not enjoy your new home," Vicky announced. "We are not here to hurt you – we want to help you."

"Go fuck yourself, lady!" a fourteen-year-old girl shouted out.

Vicky turned and faced the delinquent teenager.

"You must be Firebrand," Vicky began and there was a hint of surprise in the teenager's eyes. "You will follow instructions, young lady."

"No – I won't!"

"Take her," Vicky ordered, and a pair of female police officers seized the girl.

Firebrand resisted, fighting the two officers, however, both were bigger than the fourteen-year-old and they easily dragged her through into the next room where the door was shut, and the girl was held down on the floor.

..._...

Eight minutes, and a lot of screaming and yelling later, Firebrand emerged.

The girl was more subdued, and she was wearing a set of matching grey jogging top and bottoms with white running shoes on her feet. Her long hair was a mess and she was struggling to put it back up in a ponytail.

"You done?" Vicky asked the girl who nodded more meekly than before.

Once the girl was ready, the restraints were secured, and the girl was allowed to sit against the far wall of the warehouse. Vicky then pointed at one of the boys.

"Inciter – you're next."

The boy who had been kneeling beside Firebrand was seized and taken through into the next room. His shouts ceased very quickly. On the boy's return, wearing the same set of joggers as Firebrand, he was restrained as before and with a rather dejected look, he was sent to sit beside Firebrand. Vicky waved at her colleague, Sergeant Trudy Platt.

"How did you subdue them?" she asked with genuine curiosity.

"Simple," Trudy replied. "I explained the facts of their situations to them in plain language and I then told them in explicit detail what I would do to them if they did not obey."

"Ouch!"

Safehouse K

While Mindy was pleased to see everybody alive, there were injuries.

Titan sat in the middle of the first-floor level of the Safehouse with injured vigilantes receiving medical attention, sitting on the ground around the mammoth vehicle. The wounds were superficial but very painful. Lauren, Curtis, and Marc all bore nasty elongated bruises on their upper bodies – the bruising would hurt for many days, Mindy knew.

"Mum!"

Mindy turned to see Stephanie running towards her. They both hugged.

"Are you. . ." Mindy began.

"I'm uninjured – just some bruising."

"When I heard about. . ."

"I know."

"I cannot lose you," Mindy said as she knelt down to look into her eldest daughter's eyes.

"She has nine lives," Jamie commented as he came over to give his sister a hug.

"She must be overdrawn by now," Shannon commented as she walked past with her arm wrapped around her father.

Stephanie grimaced.

Razor came bounding over and he almost knocked his owner over. Stephanie giggled as she was licked by the overexcited animal. Anne-Marie and Danny were sitting with Dave and they watched the antics from a few yards away. Next, to that group, Chloe, Joshua, and Becky were sitting together, glad to be alive. Becky was giving an animated presentation on her brush with death in Titan, just an hour previously. Chloe was trying to put a brave face on, but she failed miserably, and she was exchanging dark looks with Joshua. The attack had scared Becky, at the time, however, the little girl was very brave and considering she was unhurt, she had brushed off the attack and now thought of the event as just a bit of fun. Mind you, she looked very unhappy when she began to describe how Foftail had climbed aboard Titan and then collapsed.

"You appear to have enjoyed yourself," Chloe conceded with a look of concern.

"Between you and me, Mum, a little wee did escape," Becky whispered into Chloe's ear.

Chloe chuckled as the eight-year-old blushed furiously.

..._...

Forty minutes later, Mindy looked around at the despondent vigilantes.

Morale had quite literally plummeted, and their fighting spirit was ebbing.

"We can do this. . ." Mindy began but her words appeared to be having very little effect.

Mindy herself was feeling just as despondent which meant that she was unable to produce a rousing speech, encouraging her people into battle. Joshua rested his hand on Mindy's shoulder and Mindy pressed her own hand on top of his, glad of the human contact. Then Joshua began to make sounds, sounds which turned into words. The tune was familiar, Mindy thought.

*I've paid my dues
Time after time
I've done my sentence
But committed no crime*

A few ears perked up and then Stephanie grinned, as did Abigail. Both girls began to mutter the words with encouragement from Joshua before all three began singing.

*And bad mistakes
I've made a few
I've had my share of sand
Kicked in my face
But I've come through
And we mean to go on and on and on and on
We are the champions, my friends
And we'll keep on fighting till the end*

Others joined in with the singing, emboldened by the music.

*We are the champions
We are the champions
No time for losers
'Cause we are the champions of the world*

*I've taken my bows
And my curtain calls
You brought me fame and fortune
And everything that goes with it
I thank you all
But it's been no bed of roses*

*No pleasure cruise
I consider it a challenge before
The whole human race
And I ain't gonna lose
And we mean to go on and on and on and on*

"Come on!" Joshua shouted as tired vigilantes began to get to their feet, smiles spreading – the despondent, dazed looks vanishing, the singing was filling the Safehouse and Mindy was loving it.

*We are the champions, my friends
And we'll keep on fighting till the end
We are the champions
We are the champions
No time for losers
'Cause we are the champions of the world*

"Come on!" Joshua yelled. "Cheer up, you old buggers!"

*We are the champions, my friends
And we'll keep on fighting till the end
We are the champions
We are the champions
No time for losers
'Cause we are the champions*

"Worse things happen at sea, you know," Joshua commented as he looked over at Stephanie and winked.

Ryan just shook his head while Stephanie rolled her eyes. Everybody finished off their food and drink, singing and laughing as they did so. Masks were pulled back on and weapons were checked. The Fusion fighting force was back and ready for action. Hit Girl gave Jackal a big hug, followed by a hard punch before she began directing her forces.

"You lot are fucking crazy!" Lucy growled as she pulled on her mask.

01:05

They had barely left the Safehouse when the alert came through.

"Fusion – we have a major situation alert," Hal announced to all. "Synthesis has detected the enemy massing at South Wacker Drive, Lower Wacker Drive, West Harrison Street, South Wells Street, and West Jackson Boulevard."

That was a first – normally, all the disturbances took place well away from the centre of the city, but FEAR had escalated things somewhat. Hit Girl could sense the endgame approaching. It was just after one in the morning and she knew that by dawn, it would be all but over – but who would be the victor?

Assignments were issued, and the massed forces of Fusion altered course towards the centre of the windy city . . . and towards potential oblivion. Battle Guy had already adjusted the courses of his airborne drones, redirecting them over the designated battle zone. He was not happy with what he found, and it matched up with what Synthesis had discovered. There were thermal blooms in the darkness at all locations – except for Lower Wacker Drive, of course – which matched up with the images being received from traffic cameras.

FEAR's forces were out in force – Corsairs, Marauders, Russians, and Sicilians.

02:04

The battle was raging.

The CPD had initially been overwhelmed by the opening attacks – they had not expected such a gathering of force in the normally quieter part of Chicago. To add to the problems, there were still many civilians around as they poured out of bars and clubs, looking to make their way home to bed. Bullets flew in all directions, striking buildings and shattering glass. Fusion had arrived on the scene within twenty minutes, just minutes after the first shots had been fired. Their first task was to protect the CPD and get the injured officers to safety along with a few civilians who had strayed into the line of fire. While protecting the innocent, Fusion had one hand tied behind their proverbial backs. It was another tactic of FEAR's to hobble Fusion in their attacks on her people.

There was still no sign of the bitch and Hit Girl was very keen to put an end to the woman – to put an end to the entire sordid affair which had ultimately culminated in the current night of action. Hit Girl was angry; she had missed seeing Saoirse before she was taken to hospital. The girl was one of her senior operators and she had been badly hurt – Medic had not been gentle in her appraisal of Saoirse's chances when she had suggested that Saoirse may not survive her internal injuries.

Fighting in amongst the skyscrapers posed a problem for both the drones and the sharpshooters. CPD snipers and Leon were having issues finding good perches from where to cover the fighting. Hit Girl was certain that FEAR had chosen the site for this battle with care and planning. It did not help that FEAR appeared to have fighters pre-sited with high-powered rifles at strategic points along Wacker Drive. Armoured shields were much in evidence as police officers, medics, and civilians were protected by Fusion operators. The area echoed with the sounds of gunfire, small explosions, and the screaming of the terrified and the wounded – of which there were many. Ambulances were deploying to the scene, only to be targeted before they got close to the wounded. CPD armoured SWAT vehicles and Fusion vehicles were being used as makeshift ambulances, ferrying the wounded to safe zones where paramedics could take over and take the wounded to hospital. However, for many, the options for escape were limited as they were pinned down within the 'red zone' as it was being called.

For the immediate moment, FEAR was in control of the borders surrounding the 'red zone'.

At the east end of the West Harrison Street Bridge, a man lay dying.

Medic ignored the gunfire that flew all around her and she pushed the ever-present danger out of her mind as she concentrated on the tasks before her. To her left, a female CFD paramedic had her hands pressing deep into the gunshot wound of a uniformed CPD officer. Medic was busy suturing ruptured organs and fighting to stop the internal bleeding so that the man could be moved. The CFD ambulance had been immobilised by the gunfire and it had been abandoned. The paramedic and the vigilante were working side-by-side in the lee of the wrecked ambulance, using it as a shield. Ten feet away, the other paramedic from the same wrecked ambulance was working alongside another uniformed CPD officer who was seeing to a fallen civilian.

A few yards away, Raven and Hellcat were firing on gunmen, across the far side of the Harrison/Wacker intersection. They were well-stocked with spare magazines but even so, they husbanded their rounds as the morning was still very young. For both vigilantes, it was a new style of fighting. Street fighting was their thing, not combat that was fresh out of a computer game. Both of them were also very tired – they had already been 'on shift' for almost eight hours. Adrenalin was keeping them going and neither wanted to let down the rest of the team. A little over 170 yards to the east, at the next intersection, Petra, Stormtide, and Tigercat were engaged in their own gun fight. Eight Russians were using a parking lot as cover while they engaged the three vigilantes. Beyond them, at least three sharpshooting Corsairs were atop the La Salle Street Station.

They sent lead down towards the three vigilantes, adding to the danger at the intersection.

La Salle Street Station

Hit Girl and Shadow ran along the three-hundred-yard roof towards the sharpshooters.

"Two to one – I think we have things in our favour for once," Shadow commented as they ran.

A hatch opened, fifty yards or so ahead of them – six . . . no, seven . . . eight – men climbed out of said hatch and they moved to protect their sharpshooters.

"Why do you have to open your big mouth?" Hit Girl groaned.

"So, what – two to one, six to one; what's the difference?" Shadow retorted.

"Just remember, Shadow, you're taking down your own fair share."

"Bet I get more than you do, Hit Girl – you're getting old!"

"Fuck you, half-pint!"

"I'm almost the same height as you."

"You saying that I'm short?"

"Yeah!"

Shadow bolted ahead and kicked an assault rifle out of the hands of the nearest Sicilian. She followed up the kick with a punch to his face, breaking his nose.

"I got first blood!" Shadow yelled.

Hit Girl ignored her annoying Lieutenant as she proceeded to put a bullet in one man and then kicked another off the roof.

"Two down. . ." Hit Girl growled.

"Hey!" a voice called out over the radio. "What fucker dropped a body almost on top of me?"

"Quit your fucking moaning, Jackal, women working here!" Shadow chuckled as she broke the arm of a large Sicilian before breaking his trachea with the heel of her boot.

"What, you and Hit Girl?" Jackal called back derisively. "Don't make me laugh!"

"That's not what you were muttering as you licked me out, the other night."

"So disgusting!" Hit Girl commented as she slashed open a man's throat with her Tanto before kicking him off the station roof.

"Like Kick-Ass never licked you out," Shadow retorted.

"Time and a place for labia licking, girls," Mist commented from down below.

"True," Shadow replied as she fought off a pair of mafia scum.

"Let's get them!" Hit Girl called out and the last pair of men moved back, towards the sharpshooters.

One turned, and he fired a high-powered bullet directly at Hit Girl. Shadow was horrified to see her mentor stagger backwards before she tumbled backwards over the edge of the roof and plunged forty feet to the roadway below.

Lower Wacker Drive

Kick-Ass charged forwards, his Ko-Wakizashi glinting in the lighting.

Behind him, came Eisenhower leading Loki, Dart, Kes, Ardent, Siren, Sampson, and Blade. They were followed by Discord, Bane, Rage, and Fury. Ahead of them, sprinting full tilt towards them, were two dozen Corsairs and maybe eight Marauders. On the far side of the subterranean drive, Fortune, Relentless, Torment, and Venom moved to flank the attacking Corsairs and Marauders. When the opposing forces came together, there was an almighty explosion of yelling, the clashing of metal against metal, and the snarling of rabid canines.

Most of the Corsairs were unnerved by the presence of the armour-clad dogs – many of them were ex-military, and they knew only too well what attack dogs were capable of accomplishing with their pearly-whites. The dogs moved fast and in pairs, attacking Corsairs as they went. Bane and Venom went for the Marauders with the single aim of putting them out cold with as little injury to their persons as possible. It was not easy for them to fight without maiming, or killing, but they had no choice; they wanted those kids to have a chance at a new life, just as they both had.

Kick-Ass in comparison was out for blood. Those Corsairs were accepting money to hurt people in Chicago and they had been part of hurting Foxtail – that was unforgiveable. The veteran vigilante cut through the armour-clad mercenaries taking blows on his armour and fending off blows from batons and swords with his own blades. He was angry and every blow against one of the bastards chipped away at his anger, bit by bit.

As far as Kick-Ass was concerned, no Corsair was going survive the fight.

La Salle Street Station

Jackal heard the yell from Hit Girl as she fell.

He looked up and he tried not to laugh. Hit Girl hung by her legs from the horizontal section of a lamppost.

"Just hang around, don't mind me," Jackal chuckled as he, Cut-Throat, and Fortune covered the other team's back.

The verbal response from Hit Girl was very unladylike as she built up momentum and swung around the horizontal pole, swinging herself upwards until she was able to stand on the pole. From there, she threw herself forwards, landing on the station roof and jumping over Shadow who appeared to be fighting two of the sharpshooters, hand to hand. The other two sharpshooters were aiming their weapons at Shadow, ready to take her down, only they each received two bullets in the forehead, courtesy of Hit Girl.

"Always having to clear up after you, Shadow!"

"I was doing fine!" Shadow growled as she punched out the last man, and shoving him out of her way.

"Pull the other sword, it's got bells on," Hit Girl growled as she ran and dived off the rooftop, swinging on the same light pole and somersaulting to a casual touchdown on the street below.

"Very pretty," Jackal conceded.

Hit Girl chuckled. Very few could openly tease Hit Girl, but Jackal was one of those – besides, she'd get the Brit back later. . .

Off West Jackson Boulevard

The tripartite agreement and the ensuing battles, along with the violence and destruction, the disinformation, the propaganda; it had all gone a long way to discredit Fusion. As a direct result, many of the 2.7 million citizens openly admitted to Fusion being bad for the city and questioned their future existence.

Wildcat was having the time of her young life. Maybe not so much on the part of Nightmare and Piranha. Nightmare was still very sore from her earlier injuries while Piranha was very tired and a little unsure of herself as a result, much to her surprise. The fighting was fun, but very tiring, and she was not conditioned for the type of fighting that Fusion went in for. Wildcat, well, she was not easy to keep up with as she appeared to have unlimited energy, as did Nightmare. Nevertheless, Wildcat was in charge, and Piranha deferred to the younger girl in action.

Wildcat made short work of anybody who challenged her, either with her Katana, or the companion Wakizashi. One thing Piranha had noticed about the youngster was that Wildcat was fanatical about being a vigilante and in many respects, Wildcat was a mirror image of Hit Girl, herself. However, Piranha recognised a troubled girl when she saw one, and the very first time Piranha had seen Megan as herself, she had recognised something dark within the twelve-year-old's eyes . . . not to mention the bizarre haircut – but it was something which the seasoned Predator could not broach with the much younger girl who she barely knew.

As Piranha took on her own Russian Brotherhood soldier, Wildcat was performing some amazing somersaults as she used her speed and manoeuvrability to outfox the much stronger Russians who would be able to snap the girl's frame in two, should they get their muscular hands on her body. Wildcat was like an angry bird as she bounced from shoulder to shoulder, driving one of her blades down into the same shoulder and killing the man before diving towards the next target. As for Nightmare, that girl was disturbed in a seemingly different way to Wildcat, although Nightmare also had a darkness to her eyes.

Nightmare fought well for such a slightly built young girl with a barely concealed bloodlust and a small amount of recklessness which would never have been tolerated within Urban Predator. Piranha moved to protect Nightmare's back as the girl appeared very preoccupied with drawing blood with her jungle sword. Then Piranha jumped a mile when the head of a man exploded a few feet away, the pistol aimed at her head dropping to the ground.

"Overwatch has your back, Piranha!" Leon called over the communications as she selected a new target.

Lower Wacker Drive

Carnage.

That was the only word for it. Bodies, the remains of bodies, blood – it was all there. Standing in amongst it all, the dogs sniffed at anything which moved – they growled – and someone, usually Bane or Venom, would put a bullet into the head, speeding them along on the dark road to hell. There appeared to be but one serious injury on the part of Fusion, beyond the myriad of bruises. Fury sat on a concrete partition, cradling her left arm.

"You get yourself off with your right hand, right?" Venom teased.

"Fuck you!" Fury replied, raising the middle finger of her right hand.

"I use that finger, too," Venom persisted.

"I can help," Rage suggested.

Fury glared at the boy deciding whether or not to stab him with her bō-staff. Kick-Ass chuckled, pleased to see morale soaring. He was certain that the writing was on the wall for FEAR and her fucked up Axis of Evil. It had to end, and soon, before Fusion, the CPD, and everybody else was too tired, or injured, to fight.

"Let's move!" Kick-Ass yelled, and he waved at the animals who quickly bolted up the roadway, towards the open air.

02:38

Off West Jackson Boulevard

Wildcat was appalled to see a man with his young family emerging from between two buildings.

What the hell, were they doing out at almost three in the morning!? She moved towards them at almost the same moment that a pair of Corsairs saw the same family. Nightmare and Piranha were over the far side of the block and out of position to help Wildcat who ran forwards only to find herself flipped into the air by a baton. She crashed onto her back, yelling out in pain, but quickly regaining her feet. She found herself facing another pair of Corsairs armed with machete-style swords. Wildcat threw down her shield and she unsheathed both of her swords, showing her teeth. The Corsairs moved apart, making their job easier, but the young vigilante's job much harder.

There was a small crowd gathering, watching the fighting. A few of them were actually cheering on the Corsairs, instead of cheering on the Fusion vigilante. It did not help that a group of firefighters were there putting out a small fire caused by the fighting. The civilians were fed up with the fighting, the damage, the injuries. Many had come to the conclusion that Fusion were no longer in control and nobody wanted a vigilante civil war, demolishing the city and taking down innocent citizens as collateral damage. It was deemed better to throw in with the more powerful, even if it was organised crime. Wildcat hated being jeered – she was there to protect the city from people like the Russians, FEAR, and the Sicilians.

There was actually a loud groan from the assembled watchers when Wildcat skewered a Corsair, killing him. A firefighter's glare said it all – contempt . . . for her. That just made Wildcat angrier and she attacked the second Corsair even harder, then, as Wildcat put down the second Corsair with a blade to his heart, she saw something that made her blood run cold. The other pair of Corsairs were looking to raise the stakes and one of them pulled out a small cylindrical device. He proceeded to pull out the cotter pin before chucking the grenade towards Wildcat. The grenade was aimed at Wildcat, but it would also take out the civilians including the young family when it exploded. The grenade rolled across the sidewalk towards the crowd of civilians, none of whom had properly understood the danger which was just seconds away.

Without a moment's hesitation, the twelve-year-old female vigilante leapt forward, swept up her shield and she covered the grenade with the armoured shield. Barely a second later, the high-explosive grenade exploded, the explosive force striking the shield and forcing the lightweight vigilante into the air. The shield took the full force of the blast, protecting the man and his young family. The vigilante flew through the air before she collided with the unyielding concrete wall of the nearest building. A second later, she hit the ground hard and lay still.

The two masked Corsairs approached the fallen vigilante.

Chapter 349*: Heroes

This night, my world was quite literally blasted apart.

These chapters are the account of the action which led to me losing the most important person in my life. I am broken and even now, I have no idea how I can continue.

Sunday, October 15th, 2016

02:49

Off West Jackson Boulevard

The two masked Corsairs approached the fallen vigilante.

However, before they could come too close, the man, whose family had almost died, pulled the SIG Sauer P250 Compact from the young vigilante's holster and he pointed it at the two attackers.

"Don't come any closer. . ."

"Or what?" the nearest Corsair growled back.

"I'll . . . I'll shoot you both – this young girl saved the lives of my family and I ain't about to let her be killed by you fuckers!"

"Yeah!" a burly firefighter announced in agreement as he stepped forwards.

"These vigilantes do so much for us, and thanks to you bastards, we forgot that for a moment. They are what keeps Chicago ticking and they protect us all."

An immediate swell of support echoed from the assembled crowd as many swept up improvised melee weapons. The burly firefighter seized a large metal device from his fire truck and along with a colleague, similarly armed, stepped forward to stand beside the man.

"Fuck!" Wildcat growled as she sat up with a hand to her head.

"Let me help you, young lady," the burly firefighter – the one who had previously shown her contempt – suggested as he offered his left hand to Wildcat.

"Thanks," Wildcat replied as she hauled herself to her feet.

"Ma'am?" the family man said as he offered Wildcat her pistol, butt first.

The two Corsairs now felt a little unsure of their status and continued safety.

"Let's fuck 'em over!" a voice called.

"My sentiments exactly," Wildcat growled as she deployed her claws with a flick of her wrists.

The two Corsairs began to move backwards, towards their own lines, when Wildcat attacked and went for the nearest one. The other Corsair thought that he might have been in the clear . . . until he saw something moving towards his head, but he had no time to dodge the business end of the three-foot, aluminium stand-pipe as it collided with his head.

"Fuck!" Battle Guy announced over the communications. "Wildcat's incited a damn riot!"

"I do what I can!" the young vigilante responded.

The Russians, the Sicilians, and the Corsairs, all found themselves facing further adversaries in the form of civilians, firefighters, and anybody else who fancied chipping in.

Wildcat was re-joined by Nightmare and Piranha. Together, they led the charge, pushing the evil forces back towards their own lines. A group of Corsairs were chased down West Jackson Boulevard and onto the bridge where they were caught between two Fusion teams. The Corsairs took refuge behind cars and buses as Wildcat, Nightmare, and Piranha caught up and pinned them down from the east end of the bridge. The west end of the bridge saw Raven, Tempest, Hellcat, and Fortune entering the fight.

Gunfire erupted around the bridge as the Corsairs attempted to fight their way out of a very bad situation.

03:14

West Congress Parkway

The enemy were constantly shifting their positions and making it almost impossible to maintain the safe haven for the injured cops and for the civilians who were being forced out of their places of refuge.

Dr Jennifer Staite was deep in the centre of the action, patching up wounded CPD officers. Beside her, Lynx was covering the doctor with a large armoured shield. Bullets struck the shield repeatedly as Lynx braced the carbon-fibre composite device while her back was covered by Ravage. A few feet away, Medic was seeing to a wounded firefighter, Hawk covering Medic with another shield while their backs were protected by Ravage. A few feet away, TITAN sat with the hatches guarded by Scamp toting a G36K and remaining well within the protective citadel of the vehicle.

The young girl had dug very deep for courage and bravery, but still she jumped each time a bullet slammed into TITAN's armour. While she was determined to prove her worth to Fusion, and despite her limited Predator training, all the noise and fighting had scared the little girl to her core. Each bullet, each bang and crash, it made the little girl jump and squeeze the grips of her weapon ever tighter. She was no stranger to killing and death, but that had been in self-defence only and not amidst a raging battle. She was scared for herself, she was scared for her friends, and she was scared for her new family, all of whom were fighting to the death within a very short distance of where she herself sat in relative safety.

The eight-lane parkway, usually bustling with traffic in the daytime, was devoid of moving traffic, but full of wrecked vehicles and dead bodies, with a handful of wounded screaming for help. The air wreaked of gunpowder and explosives. The coppery smell of blood was everywhere along with the stench of death.

Then, amidst all that chaos, she appeared.

FEAR in her full battle armour, resplendent with her battle sword.

Around her, a phalanx of battle-hardened Corsairs in red battle armour escorted their queen. She had climbed out of an armoured Humvee at the intersection of South Wacker Drive and West Van Buren Street. She had not been alone, either. Five more Humvees had pulled up around her, disgorging her personal guard of twenty Corsairs.

She did not immediately dive into the fight, however, but instead, she waited, and she appeared refreshed and eager to fight.

..._...

The Sicilians arrived at about the same time.

Six large SUVs appeared from the east, blasting their way through the CPD roadblocks which had cordoned off the battle zone. Each vehicle carried five or six heavies, amounting to thirty-two men spilling out onto the road at the east end of the West Harrison Street Bridge. For the first time, their leaders were out with their men. Anthony Geno, son of Carlo Genovese, son of Vito Genovese, was in command. He was not alone; his wife, Helen Geno, was also providing support. Both wore masks, but it was undeniably them as they had brought along their kids, too. Lawrence and Teri, both masked, were seen running west, across the West Harrison Street Bridge towards a low-rise building.

Lawrence was carrying a sniper rifle while his sister carried ammunition and a sighting scope.

..._...

The final team to arrive at the party, arrived at about the same time as the Sicilians.

The Solntsevskaya Brotherhood had found some fresh soldiers for their fight and three large trucks had dutifully appeared. Forty men jumped down from the rear of the vehicles, some armed with heavy weapons. They quickly made for the West Congress Parkway intersection of South Wells Street and arranged their defences.

The final Battle for Chicago was about to begin.

The Battle Bunker

Battle Guy, Hal, and Ember were struggling with all the information coming in, but Synthesis was cutting out the crap, lessening the amount which made it through to the decision makers, but it was still a lot.

"Diamond Alpha – make for FEAR at the West Van Buren Street Bridge. Diamond Bravo – cover Alpha and guard Hit Girl's back," Battle Guy directed.

"Emerald Alpha and Bravo," Ember directed. "You've got the Sicilian bastards at West Harrison. Ruby Bravo, provide backup for Emerald. Ruby Alpha, move to intercept the Russians at South Wells Street. Opal Alpha and Bravo – you have the Russians, too."

Ember kept the status board updated, showing where each and every member of Fusion was at every moment – it was vital to keep track and not lose situational awareness. The three of them were all there were to provide critical assistance to the teams on the ground should they get disorientated during the heavy urban fighting. Ember was amazed by the state-of-the-art equipment and systems used by Fusion – she was still struggling to take it all in. For the young teenager, her life had been a train-wreck and headed directly for oblivion. Somehow, she had been in the right place at the right time, to do the right thing, much like she had been with Jamie. Now, she had saved the life of his big sister after having kept the young boy alive. She was very pleased to see that Jamie was alive and well. She had been very surprised to see Abigail, too. It seemed that Stephanie had been gathering Predators from around the globe. There was a strange atmosphere where she saw these ex-Predators who were now friends despite having been trained to view their fellow Predators as competitors to be beaten at all cost – both figuratively and literally. To see all those kids smiling and laughing while they went about their lethal business of killing and maiming was weird but satisfying.

Hit Girl had successfully harnessed the skill and energy of those Predators and turned their deadly skills into something which could be used for good, just as they were doing at that moment across Chicago, putting their lives on the line to protect the city. Hit Girl had given Ember a choice – she could keep out of the way, or she could help fight in any way that she could, considering her injured state. Ember had shrewdly opted to assist – she had to; she wanted to prove that she was no longer Raider, that mercenary who would go out and main innocent civilians. As Raider, she had done a lot of that. She had terrorised adults, children, old people. She had extorted money from shop owners. She had stolen. She had destroyed property. She had murdered. She had hurt the innocent. Why had she done those things? She felt that she had to channel her bloodlust, just like her compatriots and FEAR had seemed to be that channel – only she had made a very bad choice, but until Stephanie had blundered across their path, she had had no way out. No way out of the life she had chosen, but no longer wanted.

She had been trapped, but now she was free, and she was going to do everything that she could to seek repentance for her actions.

Her eyes focussed on two of the dots on the giant screen before her – Rage and Fury.

West Van Buren Street Bridge

The two friends were in the thick of it.

They were back to back as they provided support for Diamond Alpha and principally Hit Girl who was focussing on her adversary: FEAR. Neither FEAR, nor Hit Girl, had said a word since they had laid eyes on one another. The hate and the desire to rip out the heart of the other was strong, and the extreme emotions could be literally felt by all those close by. Discord, Bane, Venom, and Tigercat were facing off against a round dozen of FEAR's personal guard. The remaining eight were ensuring the safety of their principal and watching her back as she fought Hit Girl.

For Discord, it was strange fighting alongside Venom and Bane. The twins had never had a very good reputation for playing with others and most avoided the two girls who could be vicious and spiteful without provocation or reason. Somehow, the twins attitude to others had changed dramatically and Discord enjoyed spending time with the girls – they had a vicious sense of humour which she had not previously been aware of. Discord also trusted Venom and Bane with her life and they her. The three girls fought alongside the much younger Tigercat who was very skilled and Stormtide had ensured that everybody knew who her siblings were and what might happen if anybody fucked with them. Despite Stormtide's difficult beginnings in Urban Predator, she had excelled against adversity. Even Venom and Bane respected the younger girl's skills and were very wary of her – the girl had a stormy temper which once unleashed was very difficult to quench.

Tigercat was young but he had courage, lots of it. The fighting scared him – what normal person would not be scared by such fighting – but he had been taught by his father to bury that fear deep and only unleash it if the fear was to be an asset. The boy was learning fast. His big sister was imparting her own knowledge and both he and his sister were taking her instructions, just as they had been taught. Despite having been apart for so long, they explicitly trusted their elder sibling and would obey any instruction without question. They had great respect for Shannon and for what she had accomplished in the face of so much horror. He was pleased to be fighting alongside such accomplished Predators as Discord, Venom, and Bane. He was paying attention to their movements as they moved without wasting energy or advantage. He missed fighting alongside his sister, but she was with another team, fighting another foe. He knew that she would be safe; she was older than he was and her skill level was beyond his own.

Around the entire group of Fusion, Corsairs, and FEAR, Eisenhower and her children prowled, ensuring total security, watching for interlopers hoping to cut in on the fight.

..._...

For Fury, the fight fed her need for danger and that underlying bloodlust.

The girl, only just eleven-years-old, enjoyed the fear that danger brought to her. The emotion was like a drug to her and nothing felt better than being in harm's way. She had first felt it in the forest, years before. That feeling of being hunted generated a special type of fear in human beings and somehow Fury enjoyed that feeling of being hunted. Later, knowing that the person who was most likely to corner her was just as skilled as she was, only made the emotion more enjoyable. Okay, the girl was deeply psychotic, a trait which her handlers within Urban Predator had seized upon and fed to produce the ultimate assassin that the program was designed for. The girl had been groomed to become something special, as was her counterpart, Stephanie Walker. While Stephanie was also psychotic, her psychosis was not as developed as that of Abigail Wilde. Not that they had not tried to deepen Stephanie's level of psychosis – hence the improvisation in that same forest which had led an even younger girl to be hunted by Fury, producing yet another psychotic youngster now known as Rigour.

For Fury, she had only one care in the world; looking after number one: Abigail Wilde. However, that instinct was changing. She cared for somebody more than she ever thought possible. The boy, who even at that moment had his back to hers. A boy who was the brother of her most hated adversary. A boy who she loved more than anything or anyone on the planet. A boy who she would die for – and almost had. She also had a family. She had a big brother who she cared about and who cared about her. She had a mother. She had a father – at least for the moment. Her new father was in hospital and loitering at death's door. Deep inside her, she felt anger. Enormous anger. That anger fed her need for bloodlust and danger and it focussed her mind acutely, allowing her to respond to threats with a lightning response that often shocked her adversary.

Indeed, a Corsair came too close, seeing the diminutive youngsters as easy prey: he received two rapid slashes to his stomach from Fury's bō-staff, for his trouble, and the last thing he saw was his own entrails spilling out of his abdomen. He had dropped his own weapon and tried to gather up the masses of sausage-like intestine which steamed as it came in contact with the very cold air of the dark night. The coppery smell of the blood was another drug which all Predators recognised and one which all but a very few enjoyed. The smell often drove the youngsters into a rabid frenzy of fighting as they quickly became intoxicated on the metallic scent.

Fury took a brief glance at the bloody entrails and the dying man, smirked behind her mask and then quickly put the man out of her mind as she guarded Rage's back while he fought his own Corsair.

..._...

Despite his tender age, Rage was an accomplished fighter who was constantly striving to prove himself a better fighter.

The boy always felt that he had to do better. He always felt that he had to justify his position and within Urban Predator, considering his lowly beginnings, he had not wanted to provide any excuse for himself to be demoted back to being a Yellow, or worse. Thus, he had always pushed himself – with the help of his two very unlikely friends; Abigail and Rachel. Without them both, he would never have survived, let alone acquired the skills which had kept him alive when he was very much alone. The same skills had helped to keep him and Shannon alive once they had found each other and they had generated a bond between themselves which was ultimately unbreakable. Shannon was always welcome around the Lizewski home, as was Jamie at the Millar household. They regularly sparred, much to the entertainment of their friends.

The one thing he had craved for years had happened; he had his sister back. That one event had made him whole again and it had given him an edge that he had never known before. That edge was keen and very lethal. He may only have been nine-years-old, but the youngster was an accomplished fighter, something which the Corsairs were discovering to their cost. Rage whirled around, fighting a man more than twice his size, but Rage was quicker, and he darted left and right, avoiding the heavy sword with which the Corsair was armed. Rage would dart in with his own sword, striking the red armour and attempting a strike into unarmoured sections of the man's body. Naturally, the Corsair, being part of FEAR's personal guard, was highly skilled and he did not take kindly to being struck by a little shit in a combat suit.

In fact, the Corsair took it personally, and he went to town on the youngster.

West Harrison Street Bridge

The bullets pounded into the abandoned vehicles.

Glass shattered, and metalwork pinged with the sound of high-powered rounds which flew in all directions. Three SWAT members returned fire with their AR-15 rifles while taking cover behind a panel van which was loaded with furniture – the furniture proved to be good at stopping bullets. Taking refuge behind a large Jeep SUV, four CPD officers added to the gunfire being thrown back at the Sicilian fighters. On the bridge itself, Kick-Ass, Splinter, Torment, and Petra were taking cover behind the steel barrier which ran alongside the roadway. The Sicilians themselves were occupying the corner opposite the bridge using concrete barriers for cover. Directly across the street from the Sicilians, Stormtide and Mist lay on a grassy knoll, sending accurate gunfire into the enemy from a flanking position. They were supported by Relentless, Trojan, and Piranha.

Piranha was not regretting her decision to come to Chicago and seek out Hit Girl. Okay, the first contact had not quite gone according to plan, but despite the pain and humiliation, she had been accepted by the Predators whom she had helped train and by extension, the Predators whom she had caused to have a miserable childhood. She knew that very few would have any reason not to hate her, both for what she represented, and for how she had treated them. They had worked her over, and Hit Girl had rightly seen her as a threat, however, Lucy had had an ally – two really – in Saoirse and Shannon. Why Lucy had taken to Shannon, guiding her, keeping her alive, Lucy was not certain, apart from her link to Shannon's father. As for Saoirse, they had fought many times, but Saoirse was one of the few people who had been kind to Lucy when she had really needed a friend.

Either side of her, the two boys were taking aimed shots at the Sicilians, saving ammunition and dropping the targets slowly, but steadily.

..._...

The Sicilians were no match for the deadly fire coming in from the well-trained vigilantes.

Men were struck by the incoming bullets, some by more than one, falling to the ground in a pool of blood, the blood congealing in the cold as it intermingled with the blood of the other dead. The wounded screamed out in agony as their wounds were tended to by their comrades. Many of the Sicilians were aware that the end was getting close, but some still held out for a rapid turn of events to bring the fight back around with Fusion on the losing side. Ultimately, the turning of the tide had come from the civilians aligning themselves with Fusion and the CPD. That single act was to bring about their downfall and many of them knew it, despite not wanting to accept it. They were very exposed, and they had civilians taking pot-shots at them from overlooking buildings. While the gunfire was not all that accurate, it was plentiful and taking its toll.

Snipers and counter-snipers were busy sending high-powered bullets at their counterparts while trying to assist their forces on the ground. Leon as Overwatch was keeping an eye on her friends as they fought. She knew that there was at least on sniper team operating out there but they were not making her task easy as she attempted to find them. However, her current targets were Anthony and Helen Geno. They would appear and disappear as they kept their troops in order and guided their gunfire. Leon knew that she would only get one good shot before they kept themselves out of sight. Leon was also aware of the Sicilian's own sniper team who had vanished into buildings at the start of the fight. They would be looking for her and the moment she took her shot, they would track her down.

Leon lined up her shot a few minutes later, just as Anthony Geno came into view, a set of binoculars to his eyes. He was scanning the area for any weaknesses in the Fusion lines which he could exploit. The man was highly-skilled when it came to strategic planning, hence he had appeared to lead for the front.

'Well,' Leon thought. 'He would die from the front, too.'

As she adjusted for the breeze and for the difference in relative altitude, Leon steadied her breathing and she held the final breath before squeezing the trigger.

Northwestern Memorial Hospital

"We need to work fast if we're going to save the lower leg – the damage to the muscles and ligaments is bad; I'm surprised the damage wasn't much worse."

"The arm is salvageable to. . ."

The voices faded in and out as Saoirse's medication flowed through her body. She had moments of lucidity where she heard words and sentences – some complete, most partial – but where she also felt pain; intense pain.

Her mind was playing tricks on her and she kept regressing to her past.

..._...

March 2011

She could remember walking the streets of Belfast one night, and then a moment's distraction while she had burrowed inside her handbag.

Her friends had moved off ahead of her and then she had felt a hand over her mouth followed by a whirlwind of activity which had resulted in her reluctantly sliding her knickers down and off before she dropped them on the pile of her freshly discarded clothing, leaving herself completely naked and sobbing while several boys examined her nine-year-old body.

"Stop snivelling, brat," a girl in black fatigues growled causing her to sob even harder. "What's your name?"

"Saoirse."

"Irish?"

"I'm from Belfast."

"An Irish slut – you'll fit in well!"

Saoirse yelped as she was back-handed across her right buttock. Next, came the indignities of a shower with boys, watched by adult males. Saoirse thought that that might be the end of it, but then she was seized, and her hair was shaved off.

She could not believe what was happening to her and she was in a state of borderline hysterics by the time she was finally left alone, and she sank onto her bed where she cried and cried.

..._...

June 2013

"Hey, look – Doherty's got pubes!"

"Nice!"

For Saoirse, it was the start of another shitty day in hell. It was getting too much for the eleven-year-old Phase 2 Predator. She hated the humiliation of showering with boys. She hated the humiliation of being pushed around. She wanted control of her life back. So, after breakfast, she made her way to the vehicle garage and she found herself standing by the controls for the main door.

"This is not the way, Saoirse."

"Fuck off, Lucy."

"Saoirse – you don't want to do this. I don't want to have to come after you and kill you."

"I hate it. I hate it all."

"You've survived more than two years of shit, Saoirse. It can only get easier and I know that you're made of sterner shit than you let on."

"Why do you care, Lucy?"

"I don't know – maybe there are some of you that are worth it."

..._...

October 2017

The building was coming down.

She twisted the throttle, her motorcycle responding instantly but not instantly enough as the collapsing wall outpaced her machine and she found her world turning upside down and her body being struck by large objects which pummelled her into the roadway.

Then darkness as something struck her helmet and she felt nothing more.

..._...

Consciousness returned, and the vigilante found herself staring at the underside of . . . Titan?

Foxtail pulled herself along the hull, towards the rear. The pain was extreme, but she fought through the pain, just as she had been taught, all those years ago. She banged on the rear hatch until it opened.

Then she passed out.

West Harrison Street Bridge

The bullet flew straight and true.

The breeze nudged it slightly to the right, but Leon had accounted for that and every other possible factor affecting the bullet's trajectory through the Chicago night.

Anthony Geno's hearing caught the sound of the bullet as it cut through the air, but by the time his brain had processed the information, the bullet was just carving its way into his right temporal bone before burrowing into the man's brain, turning the meaty substance into mush as it continued through and out the opposite temporal bone and on into the forehead of his lieutenant, killing both men instantly.

"A twofer!" Leon grinned excitedly as she chambered her next round.

..._...

Helen Geno froze as her husband's blood and brains splattered across her face.

The gooey substance was hot against her skin in the early morning chill. She turned to see her husband of fourteen years slumping on the ground, his head all but destroyed by the large-calibre bullet. She screamed out in anger and loss as she surveyed his rapidly cooling corpse.

Her anger was quickly translated into action as she martialled her troops and she planned a counterstrike.

..._...

Lawrence and Teri froze in shock as they heard the bullet and they saw it strike their father.

"Find that damn sniper, Teri!" Lawrence growled as the young teenager fought back the tears and he focussed on the task of taking down the sniper who had deprived them of their father.

Teri used her spotting scope to scan the nearby buildings and further afield for suitable sniper perches. There were a lot of windows and dark areas to be searched by her scope which had night capabilities.

West Congress Parkway and South Wells Street

The Russians held a good position, overlooking the battles from the elevated, multi-lane roadway.

They were disciplined and skilled. Their gunfire was very accurate as it plunged bullet after bullet into the vehicles behind which Shadow, Hellcat, and Fortune took cover. Beyond the three girls, Jackal, Tempest, and Cut-Throat were providing covering fire in an attempt to allow the girls to move forward in a flanking manoeuvre. So far, the manoeuvre was going nowhere. Whilst two large groups of Russian fighters took on Fusion, others were busy raining down hell on anybody close by and to hell with collateral damage. The bastards were targeting the paramedics directly as they worked, and one was already dead and two more were wounded on the streets below the parkway. Despite the direct attack, the paramedics bravely continued to work, despite their own wounds.

Wildcat, Nightmare, and Raven were tasked with paramedic protection and they had dropped down from the parkway and were using their armour and shields to protect the paramedics and their patients as they worked.

..._...

For Hellcat, it was a dream come true.

She was fighting alongside her heroine: Shadow. The twelve-year-old ignored the bullets, planning ways out of their predicament. Despite her tender age, she was a seasoned vigilante, although all out battle was something new and very scary to the youngster. She knew that her brother was fighting not too far away, along with her sister. They were both at the back of her mind where she was dreading something happening to either one of them.

She felt Fortune's hand on her shoulder and she nodded to say that she was okay.

..._...

Fortune was scared out of her wits.

Nothing that her sister had taught her could have prepared her for such chaos. She knew that her sister was a few streets over, fighting Hit Girl. She wanted to confront her sister and try to put a stop to the fighting before things went too far. In fact, she had discussed that with Hit Girl but things had taken a different turn and a carefully planned confrontation was no longer a possibility. They had all been awake for many hours and Fortune was struggling to keep her awareness in check. She knew full well that any lapse could mean certain death for her and her colleagues who were depending on her.

"Stand by," Shadow shouted out as she gripped her P90 tightly.

..._...

Shadow moved out from behind the wrecked truck with her team behind her.

All three sent automatic gunfire into the Russian barricades as they ran forwards. Fortune and Hellcat dived down behind a badly damaged Ford, but Shadow was caught out as two bullets struck her chest armour in rapid succession and the vigilante was shoved over backwards, crashing down onto her upper back before rolling off to one side and into cover underneath a bullet-ridden police car.

Shadow struggled with her breathing and the pain of the bullet strikes as she lay on her front.

..._...

Jackal saw his girl flipped over by the bullets and he feared the worst, but he saw her moving and breathed a sigh of relief.

Nonetheless, he poured accurate fire from his P90 into the Russian barricades seeing at least one cloud of red bloom into the air. Tempest and Cut-Throat followed suit, angry at seeing one of their colleagues struck down. Without warning, something blazed past Jackal and exploded behind them, shoving him into the back of a panel van with enough force to make him yell out in pain. The RPG had powered in and struck a long-abandoned patrol car. The car had, in turn, exploded, sending red-hot shrapnel in all directions. The shrapnel tore through anything which got in its way as physics guided the ragged projectiles on a parabolic arc. Then there was a scream and Jackal turned to find Tempest writhing on the ground behind them, his left side was smoking where there was a large gash in his armour. The shrapnel had dug into his armoured back and burnt through the armour.

"Medic!" Jackal radioed.

It was a war zone; there was no better description.

BRUTE drove fast down West Harrison Street.

Audacious was keen to get to the where her skills were required. Beside her, Rogue was wide-eyed at the bright explosions and gun fire. Silently, the eight-year-old was very scared about entering the battle zone, but she knew that it was her duty. Her sister was there, as was her elder brother. She had spent most of the night assisting Audacious with walking wounded left over from the earlier attacks. Audacious took a right at South Financial Place to avoid the Sicilians before turning left on the parkway and making for where she could see black smoke pouring from a destroyed vehicle.

Rogue's keen eyesight was drawn to a bright light to her right and she turned to see something very bright heading in their direction.

..._...

Fifty yards to the east, TITAN was approaching the battle with Lynx at the wheel.

Behind her, Hawk, Ravage and Scamp were preparing to provide protection for Medic when they arrived onsite. Then, they were stunned to see a bright light streak from the right and terminate very close to BRUTE which was thrown forwards. The rear end of the armoured Range Rover Sentinel left the roadway as the vehicle was flipped over onto its roof, crashing down in a shower of sparks before cannoning sideways into the onramp from Lower Wacker Drive, just yards from where Jackal was tending to the screaming Tempest while Cut-Throat provided covering fire. Lynx brought TITAN to a halt close by Tempest with the rear hatch away from the Russians as much as was possible. Astute was pouring accurate gunfire from his sniper rifle into the location of the RPG launches from his position on a building across the river. Hawk and Medic dived out, Medic making for Tempest, while Hawk made for the crashed BRUTE closely followed by Lynx and Scamp.

Ravage went after Medic with a shield on one arm.

..._...

Rogue had found her world turning over and then upside down as the vehicle had crashed onto its roof before crashing into something with a resounding crash.

"You okay, Rogue?" Audacious demanded as she hung upside down from her harness.

Rogue hung from her own harness as she replied.

"That was fun for a moment," she commented as she willed back the tears. She also felt comforting warmth in her groin where her bladder had let go at the moment of becoming airborne.

Audacious released her harness, falling down onto the roof of the SUV. The armour had prevented the roof from collapsing, although the roof was not designed to support the entire vehicle, so Audacious knew a quick exit was required. Rogue followed the example and she released her harness, landing like a cat on the roof. They both heard banging from the left side of the vehicle and a door was heaved open just enough for Hawk to stick her head in.

"You guys okay?"

"Never better, Hawk!" Rogue reported.

"Like she said," Audacious added as she pushed Rogue out, through the opening. "Let's move."

Hawk yanked Rogue out and passed her towards Lynx who pulled her down behind another abandoned vehicle where Scamp provided cover with her G36K. Audacious squeezed out, reaching back in for her own G36C and also Rogue's G36K.

..._...

With the injured having been ferried out of harm's way, Wildcat, Nightmare, and Raven had returned to the Parkway, providing covering fire for the medical teams as they worked.

Rogue and Audacious were both checked out with no major problems found, releasing them both to assist. Tempest was the major problem. With the help of Lynx and Wildcat, Medic was able to force the writhing Tempest flat onto the ground and pin him face down. After deactivating his mask's safety measures, Medic injected the boy with morphine sulphate to calm him down and to dull the pain as she pulled up the top of his combat suit to expose the wound. The area sizzling with the piece of hot shrapnel partially embedded in the small of his back, just a few inches to the left of his backbone. The boy's movements eased as the morphine took hold and very carefully, Medic eased the jagged piece of metal out of the boy's back, dumping it on the blacktop before spraying a sterilised water solution into the wound. The water sizzled and steamed for a moment before the last of the shrapnel was washed out of the wound and the burning ceased.

Bullets clanged against the nearest vehicle while more dug into the blacktop, but Medic was more concerned with her patient who was in a bad way. Beside her, Scamp assisted with supplies while supporting a heavy armoured shield. Ravage stood over Scamp, firing off individual rounds at the Russians while Jackal and Cut-Throat tried to move closer to Shadow who was still lying beneath the police car. She had reported in that she was okay, but Jackal was worried as she had not emerged.

Scamp too was fully aware that Shadow was lying hurt, only a short distance away from where she knelt beside Medic as they tended to Tempest.

..._...

Four hundred metres to the southwest, Astute focussed his sniper scope on two men reloading an RPG.

He fired off a succession of rounds, all striking the sheltered position, the heavy bullets bringing down masonry onto the man with the rocket launcher. The loader fell as a bullet struck him full in the chest. Then Astute lined up on the remaining man, firing his bullet, just a second before the man squeezed his own trigger.

The man died as his head exploded, just half a second after the rocket projectile had left the launcher.

..._...

"RPG inbound!"

The radio call had everybody diving for cover as the projectile roared in, striking the overhead gantry, bringing the structure crashing down onto the police car beneath which Shadow had taken shelter. There were screams from some of the Russians who had been struck by debris and shrapnel, the RPG warhead having sent its devastating load, out ahead of it, carving through the gantry and sending pieces of aluminium scything through the air. The crash of the gantry had suspended the firefight for a few precious minutes, allowing Jackal to run forwards in search of Shadow. Raven went after Nightmare who had screamed out and fallen to the roadway. Nightmare gritted her teeth against the pain of the jagged piece of metal that jutted out of her left thigh. The pain was extreme, and it was all she could do not to pass out.

Audacious ran forwards, escorted by Rogue. They stopped at Nightmare, Audacious administering morphine sulphate to the girl to ease the pain while she lay on her right side, tears flooding the inside of her mask. Rogue was horrified by the sight of the blood and the trauma that she was witnessing. Her friends were hurting. She thought that while they might get banged up, she never thought that they could be hurt so badly in their seemingly impregnable body armour. The shouting, the screaming, Rogue was struggling to cope with it all. The eight-year-old beneath the armour was frightened, very frightened.

Minutes later, the bleeding was under control and the teenage vigilante had passed out from the pain and the shot of morphine sulphate.

..._...

The police car with Shadow beneath it was squished under a large amount of structural steel and aluminium.

Shadow was stuck – she had not been crushed, but she could not move and no matter what she tried, she could not get out of her predicament. She could hear the sounds of explosions, gunfire, yells, and screams. Then she heard scrabbling and she could hear the sounds of somebody moving towards her. She turned her head to find someone family squirming beneath the car.

"Hi, Mum, err Shadow."

Shadow chuckled.

"Hello, Scamp, fancy meeting you here."

"Are you alright?"

"Yes – I'm just a little bit stuck."

"Jackal is working on that – with Wildcat."

"Oh," Shadow growled. "I bet Wildcat is just loving this."

"Huh?"

"Wildcat and I have a history."

"I see," Scamp responded, not really seeing anything.

"Shadow, Wildcat, you receiving me, over?"

"Hello, my little kitty?"

"We're about to lift the cop car – then you can slide your big old ass out of there, 'cause it ain't your tits keeping you under there!"

"So fucking funny, bitch!" Shadow chuckled.

"She's being nasty," Scamp pointed out.

"Nah – she's just trying to keep my spirits up."

"You feeling unhappy?"

"Honey, I'm jammed under a cop car after taking two bullets in the chest at close range – what the fuck do you think?"

"Cranky!"

Shadow chuckled again.

"I'm sorry, honey – I'm just not feeling myself, okay?"

"Scamp! Stand clear!"

Scamp scrambled out of the small space and Shadow could hear metalwork groaning and then she could feel the police car moving slightly. Then she felt herself being moved and she realised that Scamp had attached a line to the carabiner in her combat suit. And as the police car lifted up further, she was yanked out and she found herself looking up into the mask of Jackal.

"Enjoyed your little siesta, Shadow?" he asked.

"Just what I needed!" Shadow growled as she held up the thumb of her right hand before Jackal hauled his woman to her feet.

Scamp ran up and disconnected the line for Shadow's carabiner before throwing the line into TITAN. Shadow took in the enormous vehicle with a triangular frame attached to the front bumper and the winch cable which was gently lowering the police car back to the ground. All around, bullets flew from Fusion weapons into the Russian barricade which was steadily weakening, not least when Raven fired off several 40-millimetre grenades in the Russians' direction. Wildcat held up Shadow's P90.

"Locked and loaded, Shadow!" the youngster growled.

"You just going to stand there looking like a chump?" Shadow retorted as she grabbed the weapon from her friend.

"Lead on, my master," Wildcat responded with a wave.

"Ruby Alpha . . . let's move!" Shadow called out as Hellcat and Fortune formed up on her.

..._...

Ruby Alpha moved to the left while the remnants of Opal Alpha and Bravo moved to the right.

The flanking movements overpowered the Russian defences which were recovering from the grenade bombardment. The remaining men chose to die rather than surrender as they entered into hand-to-hand combat with the Fusion vigilantes. Shadow had a personal score to settle as she expertly punched the living daylights out of a man twice her size while kicking out at anybody who came to his aid. A few feet away, Wildcat was allowing another Russian to experience her claws at close range as she plunged them into his neck, severing arteries and various other important features before she ripped the blades clean out of the man's neck. The blood had barely splattered across the Parkway before the wild Wildcat had buried her other set of blades into the chest of a large Russian, chopping his heart into three pieces, killing the man instantly. Raven dived after the marauding Wildcat, covering her back and dealing out her own form of justice to the Russians. Her razor-sharp bō-staff cut through limbs and torsos as she whirled around, avoiding knives and bullets alike.

The final Russian fell to Fortune as she thrust a blade into his throat, leaving the man to gurgle out the rest of his life as he sank to the ground.

West Van Buren Street Bridge

With the Russians gone, Ruby Alpha moved to assist Diamond while Opal formed into one team and they headed to support Emerald and Ruby Bravo with the Sicilians.

Fortune found herself moving closer to the fight between Hit Girl and FEAR. It was a big fight, too. While Diamond kept the Corsairs at bay, Hit Girl and FEAR whirled around clashing blades, neither backing down. No quarter was being given in the winner-takes-all fight for the city of Chicago. For Hit Girl it was the fight of her life. She had everything to lose and so much to gain. The weight of an entire city sat squarely on her shoulders along with the lives of almost fifty vigilantes who fought under her command. The veteran vigilante had no choice but to allow the weight of Fusion to rest on other shoulders so that she could put everything into fighting FEAR. She trusted her team explicitly and she knew that they would guard her back.

Fortune passed easily through the canine lines, watching with interest as Razor hauled an errant Corsair to the ground, but she ignored his pleading as the dog attacked the man's armour with gusto.

West Harrison Street Bridge

The Sicilians were beyond angry.

Their leader was dead, and they wanted blood. Helen Geno had them riled up with her rallying call and they were ready to move out of their defensive positions. They had a target in mind, too. They caught Fusion on the hop as they fired off a dozen smoke grenades towards both groups of vigilantes, totally obscuring the already dark street. A dozen men erupted out of the concrete protection and they took advantage of the swirling smoke as they took off towards the east and South Wells Street where fate had placed a most unwelcome target directly in the path of the armed men who were hellbent on gaining revenge for their fallen boss.

The outflanked Fusion had no idea where the enemy were headed as they lost sight of their quarry in the swirling mists.

..._...

TITAN was parked immediately to the north of the intersection and Medic was treating a firefighter who had received a bullet to his left leg.

Beside TITAN, an ambulance sat, ready to whisk the firefighter to hospital. Her own paramedics were occupied with two other firefighters who were injured. It was Ravage who sounded the alarm as the smoke drifted towards them and seconds later, armed men burst out of the smoke and began shooting at anything and everything. Medic literally shoved the injured firefighter into the ambulance and she slammed the rear doors while one of the paramedics scrambled into the driver's seat and she accelerated away as bullets struck the escaping vehicle.

With the ambulance gone, the Sicilians turned their attentions to TITAN. Ravage took out a pissed off fighter with his Walther P22 pistol while Medic drew her own Beretta firearm and she fired into the mass of anger which ran towards them. Scamp, guarding the rear hatch drew her own Walther P22 and she levelled it at a giant who ran at her. A brief squeeze of the trigger and her bullet struck the target, centre mass – only the man continued coming. Scamp continued firing off rounds at the man until the ten-round magazine was exhausted, by which time, the bull of a man had crashed to the ground at her feet, very dead.

Scamp ejected the empty magazine and she inserted the full replacement, only not fast enough as another man came at her. With a scream, Scamp was struck across the chest and thrown bodily against the side of TITAN. The young girl slid to the ground as the Sicilian strode towards her, a large machete raised to strike. No vigilante was close enough to defend the fallen girl. A dozen yards away, Jackal roared with anger as he bolted for his daughter.

Only, the machete was a lot closer to his daughter than he was.

Chapter 350*: Dawn

My name is Chloe Bennett and my world has quite literally been blasted apart.

I have lost the most important person in my life. I am broken and even now I have no idea how I can continue.

Sunday, October 16th, 2016

04:50

Training Facility Echo

Level 1

The injured were just arriving back at the facility.

Brad had been awaiting the arrival of Lauren who was in a lot of pain. He was instructed to remove what he could of her combat suit and they would cut off the rest. Taylor prepared for the surgery with the assistance of Emily. Ares was on hand to take away Lauren's weapons and equipment. By the time Taylor came for her, the girl's boots, socks, and upper combat suit was gone, leaving just a sports bra covering her upper body. Tears streamed down her face as Brad helped her to her feet and Taylor assisted the girl onto a bed where she lay on her back while the lower half of her combat suit was cut off. All the time, Lauren squeezed tight on Brad's hand refusing to let him go. Lauren had glared at her mother when Emily had suggested that Brad should leave until the surgery was over.

Once the combat suit was removed, along with Lauren's underwear, the girl was rolled onto her right side, so that Taylor could clean around the wound in the girl's left thigh. It was not the first time that Brad had seen Lauren naked, but he did his best not to look anywhere his eyes did not belong which had Emily grinning and the boy blushing. Once the wound had been cleaned, a surgical cover was placed over the girl's thigh exposing just the jagged piece of aluminium. A mobile X-ray machine was pulled over and Taylor took her time taking careful images of the area prior to any removal – she was concerned about an artery having been nicked.

Lauren received a large dose of local anaesthetic while Brad continued to hold her hand and she stared up into his eyes for comfort while Taylor probed the wound.

05:15

West Harrison Street Bridge

Jackal was nowhere near his daughter when Scamp made her move.

She drew her Benchmade Model 62 Balisong, flicking it open, and slashing the bastard's stomach open as he brought the machete down towards the little girl. The men bellowed in pain, but the slash was nothing as far as the raging killer was concerned, only Scamp reached up and she rammed a small object into the gash before she dived underneath TITAN while shouting four words over the radio.

"Fire in the hole!"

Jackal dived to the ground, pulling Cut-Throat with him as he caught onto what Scamp had done. With a loud bang, the V40 mini-frag grenade detonated inside the over-sized Sicilian's stomach, blasting the asshole to kingdom come in a cloud of blood, guts, and body parts. A good-sized chunk of large intestine slapped down onto TITAN's windshield while a section of what could have been a lung slapped Jackal around the face. He glared down at his daughter as she emerged from under the giant armoured vehicle.

"Really!?" Jackal growled as he flipped the chunk of flesh onto the roadway.

Scamp just shrugged innocently.

05:30

Training Facility Echo

Level 1

While Lauren was undergoing surgery, Marc lay two beds over, unconscious.

The boy lay on his front and apart from the sheet covering his body, he was naked, a large dressing on his lower back. Paige had undressed the boy with the assistance of Anne-Marie and Stephanie. For the moment, the boy was stable, but he would have a painful recovery ahead of him. It was with great satisfaction that they had heard about the end of the Russians. It was even better news to hear that the Sicilians had finally ceased to be a viable threat.

"Stephanie, Anne-Marie; go get yourselves cleaned up – especially you, Stephanie; you stink of Lake Michigan," Paige directed.

"I did kind of get dumped into said lake," Stephanie pointed out as she and Anne-Marie headed off to tow their weapons, remove their combat suits, and shower.

It was not yet over – the city still had pockets of resistance remaining to be mopped up, not to mention FEAR.

05:35

West Van Buren Street Bridge

Hit Girl was blind-sided by FEAR as the larger and stronger fighter smashed Hit Girl's Katana from her left hand.

There was no time to sweep up the fallen blade as FEAR pushed forwards, forcing Hit Girl to rely on a single blade. FEAR's sword was heavier, and it struck with a large amount of force. With a single blade, Hit Girl would struggle to fight back without damaging or snapping, her remaining blade. FEAR decided to fight dirty as she kicked out and her foot caught Hit Girl in the left thigh. Hit Girl maintained her balance, but the strike had been a hard one, hurting Hit Girl. She filed away the pain until a later time and she continued to fight. The fight had been ongoing for over an hour and the pair had moved a distance from the bridge. FEAR had to be struggling as Hit Girl was digging deep to find the very last of her energy reserves. The actual sword-to-sword fighting had been measured in minutes as they had spent time taunting each other, an important time where both could rest their arms and other muscles.

The fight moved towards the Lower Wacker Drive underpass entry at its southern point. There the fighting intensified, and Hit Girl was able to shove FEAR backwards against the guardrail. FEAR became unbalanced and another kick sent her over the edge. Hit Girl dived after her, closely followed by Fortune, Rage, and Fury. By the time Rage and Fury had dropped themselves down, Hit Girl and FEAR were re-engaged with Fortune guarding Hit Girl's rear. The clash of the blades resounded around the concrete roadway echoing from end to end. A Corsair appeared out of nowhere and he levelled a weapon at Hit Girl – Rage dropped him with a perfect pistol shot between the eyes.

Another interloper appeared, and Fury moved to intercept the Marauder.

..._...

It was a female Marauder, that was certain.

Fury fired off three rounds from her Heckler & Koch P30SK pistol narrowly missing the girl who appeared to be a year or so older than Fury. Several bullets missed the diminutive Fury by a whisker as the youngster dove over the concrete barrier which separated the two roadways.

"Who are you, bitch?" Fury shouted, her yell echoing around the concrete structure.

"They call me Intrepid and you must be Fury," came the reply. "You look a little stunted, but I can handle that."

"Go fuck yourself, you mother-fucking lesbian!" Fury retorted as she brought her bō-staff around and she entered into Battle.

Intrepid produced a wicked looking pair of combat machetes and she stood her ground. She wore dark grey body armour very similar to that of a Corsair with an armoured mask over her face and protecting her head. The cold steel clashed, adding to the echo of steel clashing from fifty yards away where Hit Girl and FEAR were engaged. Fury could tell that the older girl was tired, but then so was Fury. Intrepid was no more than Phase 2 by her age and skill set, but Fury was better, and she had better armour allowing her to take some added risks.

"Give it up!" Fury instructed.

"I can't – she'll kill me."

"She's all but dead, Intrepid – join us."

Intrepid did not respond, instead she dove at Fury, driving both machetes towards the younger girl's neck. Fury responded and blocked the heavy attack, falling backwards under the weight of the strike. Intrepid took advantage of that and she struck again, and again. Fury yelled out in pain as a blade struck her left arm, causing some painful bruising but no damage to her suit. Fury was angry, she hated to be on the defensive, so she lived up to her name and she rolled away from Intrepid before flipping back to her feet and surprising the older girl.

Intrepid went on the defensive as the double-ended bō-staff with the razor-sharp blades and pointed tips came dangerously close as it was expertly wielded by Fury. Then the girl was struck on the right shoulder, the blade digging into what she had believed to be heavy armour. The strike had shaken Intrepid and she momentarily considered Fury's offer, only she was uncertain as to whether she might still die in the hands of Fusion – or get sent to prison for the rest of her natural life – so she opted to continue the fight. It was not the best decision that the young British girl had made that day as Fury struck her armour for a second time. Only, the blade went clean through the armour and Intrepid screamed out in pain as she felt the blade cut into the soft flesh of her left shoulder before the blade was yanked back out and Fury spun around cracking the older girl around the head with the handle of the bō-staff knocking the girl to the ground.

Fury pushed the attack as Intrepid brought up her pistol which Fury kicked out of her gloved hands and she brought the tip of a bō-staff blade down in an attempt to scare Intrepid into submission, only the older girl shifted, and the keen blade cut through the weaker abdomen armour and neatly sliced open the twelve-year-old's belly. Intrepid screamed an unearthly scream which echoed around the underpass. The combat machetes clattered to the roadway and the girl's gloved hands grasped at her armour in an attempt to get to the wound. Fury dropped her bō-staff and she tried to calm the wounded girl down.

"This is Fury, I need medical support Lower Wacker Drive!" she radioed.

Fury found the clips for the body armour and she flipped off the front section, revealing a combat shirt soaked in blood. Fury drew her combat knife and she slit the shirt away to reveal the girl's belly, fresh blood oozing out of the precision wound. Intrepid attempted to reach her wound so Fury cuffed her with flexicuffs and secured her wrists to a suitable piece of equipment nearby. The girl screamed in agony and she begged for help.

"I'm trying to help you – what's your name?"

The girl continued to scream.

"What's your name?" Fury repeated as she pulled out a field dressing and then realised that it wouldn't be big enough.

"Charlie. . ."

"Okay, Charlie, you're going to be fine – time to take a page out of the Psyche book of First Aid."

Fury jumped up and she ran over to an abandoned police car and she opened the trunk (she called it the boot) and she rummaged around before finding what she was looking for. Fury rushed back to the screaming, struggling girl and she knelt down beside her. Fury cleaned off the wound with the field dressing and then she grabbed up the item which she had appropriated from the police car.

"This was good enough for Psyche and Rigour, so. . ."

Fury ripped off a long length of black Duct Tape before gently applying it the length of the wound on the girl's belly. A few more pieces of tape were added before Fury was satisfied and she stayed with the girl to await medical assistance.

..._...

A couple dozen yards back down the roadway, Hit Girl stumbled over a road fitting and she fell back.

FEAR attempted to take advantage of the fall, but Fortune moved into the fight, parrying her sister's strike before it came near to Hit Girl. The pair of them fought, FEAR seeing just another young vigilante for her to put down – she knew that none could defeat her. Hit Girl had done well, but it was only a matter of time. The operation had gone badly but she was still alive and on the verge of defeating the obnoxious purple vigilante known as Hit Girl. However, her latest adversary was not a bad fighter with good skills when it came to sword fighting. FEAR decided to enjoy the fight as Hit Girl appeared to have stepped to one side for a few moments.

"A fresh one, eh – who might you be?" FEAR growled

The swords clashed, echoing around the lower level. FEAR was impressed by the power behind the blows – was there something driving the vigilante? Maybe she had lost somebody close to her?

"Me?" Fortune growled back as she parried another strike. "I'm Fortune."

FEAR actually laughed at the name – to her it appeared so perfect.

"Well, Fortune, you've met your end – very un-fortune-ate."

FEAR brought her sword down towards the interloper whom she knew as Fortune, but the young vigilante did not hesitate as she brought up her own blade. FEAR frowned as she realised that she would need to up her game – she had underestimated the youngster. The youngster had jumped up onto the concrete structure which separated the two sections of roadway, gaining a height advantage on FEAR. But FEAR responded with a dive forwards, striking hard at Fortune and forcing the girl backwards while FEAR continued over the barrier hitting the roadway and coming up onto her feet and striking at Fortune from the rear. Hit Girl made a move forwards, but she stopped at a single order from Fortune: "No!"

"You want to know what I was called before I was Fortune?" the girl inquired as she came close to FEAR, forcing the seasoned fighter backwards with her sword.

"Don't see why?" FEAR responded offhandedly as she pushed back and brought her sword around and down towards the girl.

Fortune dived to one side, rolling on the ground before returning to her feet, and turning off the speech synthesiser before she responded. Fortune picked the moment to speak again, just as FEAR was closing on her.

"I was known as Dread, dear sister."

It was like FEAR had just been slapped across the face by a wet kipper. It was the very last sentence she could ever have imagined, not to mention the very last voice she had expected to hear. She was certain that her younger sister had sided with Hit Girl, but for her to be fighting alongside Hit Girl!? FEAR hesitated for a moment as the name sunk in and her sword missed Fortune by a wide margin, however, the hesitation had cost FEAR gravely and Hit Girl quickly took advantage. Hit Girl's blade drove hard into FEAR's left side, cutting through the armour. The blade pierced flesh and internal organs, sealing FEAR's fate. FEAR tensed up and she screamed out in agony as Hit Girl twisted the blade viciously causing massive internal bleeding. Hit Girl looked over to Fortune and the veteran vigilante took a step back, away from FEAR.

Fortune stepped in and without hesitation, she drove her own blade into her sister's stomach. FEAR dropped to her knees and her war sword clattered to the road surface as her hands went to her stomach, gripping Fortune's blade which had impaled her. FEAR looked up at her sister.

"Why? How could you side with her? She killed our father and she caused the death of our mother. She is the enemy – not me. I am your sister!"

Fortune yanked at her sword, dragging it out of her sister's stomach.

"You betrayed our parents' memory with what you have done to this city, Katrina. I am too ashamed to see you as my sister. You have to die; it is the only way that I can save you," Fortune said as she drove the blade accurately and savagely into her sister's heart, severing the organ in two.

"Kelly. . . I . . .," FEAR tried as she fell onto her back.

"From this moment on, I have no sister," Fortune growled as she again yanked her sword from her sister's body.

FEAR never made another sound as she lay perfectly still but Fortune wanted to make absolutely sure that her sister would never hurt another soul. Fortune picked up her sister's heavy war sword and raised it upwards before bringing it down and severing the head of Katrina Wright, finally ending FEAR's five-month reign of tyranny. Hit Girl knelt down and she moved FEAR's head a few inches from the body. She then looked up at Fortune.

"I think she might be dead," Hit Girl said.

"Good," Fortune said without emotion.

"We have one more task," Hit Girl explained as HOUND arrived with Hawk to attend to Fury and her captured Marauder.

Together, Hit Girl, Fortune, and Rage hauled the parts of FEAR up to ground level so that all could see that FEAR was no more.

06:36

The dawn was breaking on a new day.

As the light began to force its way between the skyscrapers of the windy city, the palls of smoke curled their way skyward. The fighting appeared over. The survivors, be they Fusion, CPD, CFD, or just average Chicago citizens, they were exhausted and more than happy to see the dawn. It took several moments for those standing in the dawn's early light to notice that the guns had fallen silent and the sounds of steel clashing on steel were no more.

When FEAR had died, the fight had gone out of her Corsairs, not to mention the remaining Russians and the surviving Sicilians who all chose to flee for their lives. An unexpected bonus was the capture of one Helen Geno. Kick-Ass appeared very happy with himself as he stood guard over his prey who lay hogtied on the blacktop. He would be insufferable, Hit Girl thought as she savoured the feeling of supremacy. She had dominated FEAR and she had won back the city of Chicago which had returned to the protection of Fusion – and Fusion alone.

Twelve hours of fighting was over.

..._...

The victorious city was jubilant.

Fusion was being fêted by all, as were the CPD and the CFD. The Chicago Police Department had things under control, so Fusion demobilised and returned to the Safehouse. Hit Girl, Medic, and Jackal remained out on the streets to maintain a presence of order and for Medic to treat the wounded. Kick-Ass was eager to incarcerate his prisoner in a holding cell at the nearest police station so that Voight could begin interrogating the woman.

The enormous task of clearing up the city was able to get under way.

07:15

Training Facility Echo

Level 1

Lauren was asleep, following her operation, and Brad was busy assisting the returning vigilantes.

Food was available in the dining room, under the watchful eyes of Stephanie and Anne-Marie. The food was being prepared by Rachel Murphy and Sharon Fellowes. Kyle and Tony were on hand to collect weapons and equipment from each returning vigilante. Most just dumped their combat suits and went for food in their underwear prior to taking a shower and then finding a bed. Some fell asleep part way through their food, their heads resting on the table tops. Due to the backlog at the hospitals and the security implications, Fury's Marauder was brought back to the Safehouse. To complicate matters, a second Marauder had surrendered to Fury. The boy had been beside himself with worry about the girl whom Fury had almost killed, and he had thrown down his weapons in an instant, hoping for the chance to go with his friend. Fury had forced him to strip down to his underwear before taking him aboard HOUND in cuffs. The boy was kept in the holding cell in Safehouse F while his friend – apparently, she was called Charlotte Grey – was stripped of her armour and clothing before being laid on the operating table.

Taylor had had a few choice comments to make about the Duct Tape, but nonetheless, the girl received a general anaesthetic and Taylor got to work repairing the damage caused by Fury's bō-staff.

..._...

Fury had headed for the armoury and equipment storage area to dump her kit.

The eleven-year-old girl was thoroughly exhausted, and she felt like collapsing but just as she was stumbling up the steps towards the elevator, she felt strong hands under her arms and she looked up to see her friend.

"Where you headed?" Stephanie asked. "Food? Shower? Bed?"

"I don't know," Abigail breathed, unable to make the simple decision.

Stephanie helped Abigail over to the elevator at the opposite end and they went up one level to the cabins. Stephanie laid Abigail down on a bunk and covered her with a duvet. Abigail was asleep within a second. Jamie and Danny appeared next, both very tired. Stephanie put each one to bed before they fell down. They could shower and eat later.

"Sleep tight," Stephanie whispered as she turned out the lights to their cabin.

08:05

The John Hancock Center

Hit Girl stood 343.69 metres above the city of Chicago.

In the early morning sun, she surveyed the city which stretched off into the distance. The city belonged to her, once again. It was a hard-won victory, but won it had been. Beside her, Kick-Ass stood as if on guard. His presence always made her feel safe – not that Hit Girl was ever worried about her personal safety! A few feet away, Jackal stood with his arms wrapped around Shadow who stood in front of him. The four senior Fusion members savoured the sight of a peaceful city.

"Got a nice view up there?" Battle Guy asked.

Hit Girl chuckled as she waved at the UAV which was cruising past at the same level as they stood.

"Hi, Battle Guy – it's just perfect," Hit Girl responded.

"Enjoy the time, guys," Hal cut in.

"Oh, we will," Jackal announced.

"It's a perfect day," Shadow said as she leaned into her man and watched the UAV circle.

Shadow could not have been happier. Despite some close calls, her little family was intact. Jackal was with her and she knew that Scamp was at the Safehouse enjoying breakfast.

08:13

Out of the blue, the 12.7x55-mm STs-130VPS 76-gram bullet cut its way through the air at over three-hundred metres-per-second.

One minute, Medic was finishing off wound dressings on the corner of West Van Buren Street and South Franklin Street, the next she was lying on her back, a gaping wound in her chest. The last thing she saw was the blue sky above the city which was her home. Her last thoughts were for her family.

Then nothing.

09:05

USS CHURCHILL

New York

Captain Ryan Bennett was on the bridge of his command, having just returned from Chicago on the 6am flight that morning.

He hated having to leave his family on a pivotal night, but he had his own responsibilities. He was enjoying his new rank – he imagined that he could feel the additional weight of the silver eagles on his collar. His crew had been extremely proud to have their commanding officer promoted. He had also been assigned an additional lieutenant for his wardroom – a privilege accorded his rank.

"Captain – phone call, sir."

"Thanks, yeoman . . . Captain Bennett."

"Ryan?"

"Mindy?"

"I have bad news for you, Ryan."

The also freshly promoted Executive Officer, Commander Wes Edwards, saw his commanding officer go very pale as all the blood rapidly drained from his face.

"XO, you have the bridge. I will be in my cabin and I do not wish to be disturbed for the next two hours."

"Aye, aye, sir! XO has the bridge!"

..._...

Ryan Bennett barely made it to his cabin.

He almost slammed the cabin door in his haste as he entered before he collapsed to the deck, just as his personal cell phone rang. He pressed the button to accept the call and he raised the device to his ear.

"Daddy?"

"I'm here, honey."

"Daddy . . . Mommy's dead. . ."

"I know. . ."

Father and daughter both sobbed, despite being almost a thousand miles apart, and they mourned the loss of their loved one together.

Chapter 351*: Last Will and Testament

Sunday, October 16th, 2016

Chicago

Everything was in turmoil.

The happiness from the victory had faded almost instantly. For many, the news of the death had only reached them when they had awoken that Sunday afternoon. Jamie, Abigail, and Danny had appeared in the dining room after a luxurious shower, only to find the place full of moping individuals. They had then learned of the death of someone very important to all. Abigail had not known Cathy very long, but she had still evaporated into tears. Many of the girls bore signs of having been crying.

Chloe and Becky had been in a corner of the recreational space most of the day. Joshua appeared and disappeared as he focussed his mind on his duties. Becky was in a state, almost as bad a state as Chloe. Megan had spent a long time sitting with Chloe and Becky, even though neither were talking very much. While the tasks of cleaning weapons and combat suits would have normally been accomplished with chatter, joking, crude comments, and some decidedly immature behaviour, instead, there was professionalism – especially from the Predators – but also an underlying sadness.

There was no single person unaffected.

The following morning

Monday, October 17th

Northwestern Memorial Hospital

Room 32

Stephanie had visited the previous evening, but she had not been allowed to stay long.

Saoirse was not ready for visitors, but Dr Manning knew Stephanie, and her relationship to Saoirse, so Stephanie was allowed in as 'family'. Saoirse had not regained consciousness since her accident on the Saturday. Stephanie sat beside the bed and she held onto Saoirse's intact right arm. The girl was a state. Her lower left leg was immobilised and in plaster, as was her lower left arm to the wrist. Her face was bruised, but intact – her mask and helmet had prevented anything worse. It was the crush injuries that had caused the most damage as her combat suit had prevented anything from piercing her skin.

"Please, SD, I need you."

Stephanie had tears running down her cheeks. Saoirse was her best friend and without her, Stephanie did not think that she could survive.

"Hi, Steph," a voice called from the door.

Stephanie turned to see Morgan along with her aunt and uncle – Saoirse's legal guardians. They all smiled at Stephanie, knowing how much Saoirse meant to the ten-year-old. Morgan stepped forwards and she hugged the younger girl.

"It's Saoirse; she'll pull through," Morgan whispered.

"I know – just, why Saoirse?"

"Life sucks, Steph."

"Don't I bloody know it."

Glenview

Mindy had forgotten all about it, but Dave had not.

"Happy Anniversary, honey."

"Today?" Mindy asked.

"Yes, we were married one year ago, today."

"Oh, hell; I forgot – sorry, Dave."

"We've had a lot on our minds – how about we postpone it until after the weekend, huh?"

"You sure?"

Dave grinned as his wife looked up at him with her beautiful green eyes full of worry and just begging for him to say yes. She was so adorable and totally irresistible.

"Already done. Marcus and Paige will take the kids, next week for the night."

Mindy scowled.

"I love you, so much, Dave Lizewski."

"I love me, too!"

"Ass!"

The following morning

Tuesday, October 18th

Training Facility Echo

Level 1

Lauren was dressing after having been released from the medical facility by Taylor.

Brad was 'on hand' to 'assist'.

"Brad, I can pull up my own pants, thank you," Lauren groaned.

"Just want to help."

"You didn't get enough when I was naked on Sunday?"

Brad blushed furiously.

..._...

Next door, Shannon was the proverbial mother-hen for Marc.

The girl had been horrified when she had found out that Marc had been hurt. She had rushed up to the medical centre within minutes of her return.

"Have no fear, Shannon," Taylor had chuckled. "He's still fully functional – he just has a hole in his back."

Taylor had smiled as her daughter had blushed at the implied suggestion.

"Shannon, I'm not immobilised," Marc complained that morning.

"I don't mind helping you with certain activities," Shannon grinned.

"Playing with my dick is not a requirement, although it has its moments."

"I miss having you . . . well, you know."

"Inside you?"

"Stop it!"

"Does that turn you on – me talking about being inside of you?"

"Yes. . ."

..._...

"Gross!" Fury commented on hearing the conversation between Marc and Shannon.

The curtains were drawn in the next cubicle and the patient had not seen anybody without a mask.

"You don't have to be here, you know," Charlotte 'Charlie' Grey commented.

"Yes, I do. I feel guilty for almost killing you."

"So much for a ruthless Predator!"

"I only kill when I need to, and I had no need to kill you."

"Thanks for not killing me, and thanks for allowing Jake to visit."

"He your boyfriend?"

The redness on Charlie's face was enough to answer Fury's question.

"When do I get released?" Charlie asked as she rattled her left wrist which was secured to the bed by steel handcuffs.

"When we are happy that you are healing and are not about to cause any trouble."

..._...

Marc was actually very annoyed – it was Shannon's fourteenth birthday and he had wanted to show her how much he loved her.

Instead, he was stuck in a hospital bed for a few more days. Shannon had conceded to a minor fumble where she had closed the curtains and pulled off all of her clothes before sliding into the bed with him completely naked. He might only have been able to lie leaning over to his right, but the reaction of his dick to Shannon's striptease had reassured the girl that Marc was still functional. She happily allowed herself to be fondled all over by Marc before – despite it being her birthday – she gave the boy a blowjob right there in the hospital.

"Honestly, the dirty bastards!" Fury had been heard to growl while Charlotte had entered into fits of giggles which had the girl crying from the pain of her wounds which were still very tender.

The yell of ecstasy from Marc on his climax also had Taylor ordering her very embarrassed daughter out of the medical centre.

"Err, Shannon – what's that stuff in your hair?" Annabelle asked her big sister a few minutes later.

Her very red-faced sister shrugged as she ran her hand through her fringe and she cringed as the hand picked up something gooey.

"Is that Marc's cum?" Megan asked as she walked past with a smirk.

"Ewww!" Annabelle growled as she ran off. "Disgusting, bitch!"

"I'd wash it out while it's fresh – much easier," Megan commented.

"Thanks," the slightly humiliated fourteen-year-old muttered.

Shannon had had a very busy morning.

Her siblings had woken her up at the crack of dawn, pleased to be able to celebrate her birthday for the first time in five years. They had each produced a gift, but Shannon's favourite was her father's present. He had remembered her comment during Jamie's birthday and he had bought her a matching pair of SIG Sauer P320 TACOPS Carry pistols with azure-blue highlights to match her combat suit. He had also thrown in a matching SIG Sauer MPX SBR rifle in the same colour scheme. All three weapons came with suppressors, spare magazines, flashlights, and laser sights.

She had almost crushed Patrick in her attempt to say thank you.

Wednesday, October 19th

Memorial Park Cemetery

As far as Mindy was concerned, it ranked among the very worst days of her life – and that was saying something.

Chloe was standing over with her father, Curtis, and Rebecca. Ryan had dashed back to Chicago the moment he had been relieved. Curtis was just numb with shock – the boy had already lost his own parents, now he had lost his aunt. As for Chloe, the sixteen-year-old girl had not smiled once since she had broken the news to her. Joshua was struggling to put a brave face on everything – at least in public. Becky was resilient, but she was simply stunned by the dramatic turn of events. Mindy stood with Dave and the kids as the family members, of which Mindy and Dave were counted as being part, gathered around the grave. There had been a large turnout to the funeral, many of those present had no idea that Doctor Catherine Bennett had died serving the city of Chicago as Medic. She was just seen as yet another victim of the battle.

Mindy hated funerals – the most recent one which she had attended had not exactly ended well – and so did Dave for the very same reason.

Glenview

The wake was at Glenview as there was the space for all.

There was food and drink for the mourners. Everybody had good things to say about Cathy. There were former colleagues from her time in the US Navy, doctors and nurses from the hospitals where she had served, and many friends. Chloe had not spoken all day and she was getting visibly annoyed by everybody's platitudes – no matter how well-meaning. Ryan chose to accept the same platitudes, steering people away from his distraught daughter. Joshua was remaining strong for Chloe and Becky. Curtis was with Megan and she growled at anybody who came close. It was during the funeral that a tall man strode up to Mindy.

"Melinda Lizewski?"

Mindy scowled – she hated any reference to what she called her 'legal' name.

"Yes."

"I am Xavier Heart. I am Catherine's lawyer, and I have a letter here which I am directed to pass to your hand should Catherine die."

The man held out a thick manila envelope which was sealed with wax. Mindy took the envelope and she was surprised to find her hands trembling.

"My condolences, Mrs Lizewski."

The man took his leave and headed over to speak with Chloe, to whom he handed a similar envelope before he moved to Joshua, then Curtis, and onto Becky. Mindy stepped outside, and she broke the seal on the envelope. Inside, she found a thick piece of paper covered with Cathy's handwriting.

Mindy began to read.

...+...

My dearest Mindy,

If you are reading this letter, then I am dead.

I hope I died valiantly and not in some seemingly mundane way. Ever since I joined the military, I have written letters to my loved ones and then updated them over time. I stopped when I left the Navy, but I restarted again after I joined up with you other nutcases. I knew that one day, my time would be up.

I have written similar letters to Ryan, Chloe, and Curtis – also to Joshua and Rebecca. Even though you are not my own, I have always seen you as a daughter, Mindy, so you also deserve a letter.

First, business. With me gone, you are now short of somebody to provide medical support within Fusion. As such, I have a recommendation for you. Her name is Doctor Jennifer Staite, and she works at the same hospital that I did. She is young, but she is a fully qualified doctor and she has had combat experience in Afghanistan as an Air Force medic. Though she is not aware of what I used to do, she is a firm believer in what you and Fusion represent. I know that you will do your usual background checks, but I am certain that she would be very useful to you.

Enough, about that. Please take care of Chloe. She listens to you if nobody else – she has never listened to me, nor her father. You are the big sister that she never had, and you are more than a best friend to her. I know that you will also help Curtis, as you often have in the past – he sees you as the big sister he never had. I am very sorry that I will never get to see my daughter or nephew get married, nor have kids of their own – although Rebecca is very special to them both. Ryan is strong, and I know that he will get through this trying time with the support of you all.

Please stay safe, all of you. While I will miss you all, I have no desire for any of you to join me for many more years, yet.

All my love.

Cathy

October 2nd, 2016

...+...

Mindy was sobbing long before she had made it past the first paragraph.

Later that afternoon

Northwestern Memorial Hospital

Room 32

They had come straight from the funeral.

Stephanie was in a very emotional state and tears streamed down her face. Not that Morgan was much better.

"She was there for me, and I'm damn well going to be there for her."

"You've been there, Steph."

"I know. It was dark. Your mind plays tricks on you as you lay there. Being a Predator gives your mind so much more shit to dig up and mutilate. You feel so hopeless and you just want it to end, any which way. I want to be there to help her when she awakes."

"I know you do, Steph."

The two girls hugged as they shared their grief of losing somebody and of having someone else close to death's door.

..._...

"What the fuck are you two blubbering about, then?"

Stephanie almost snapped her neck as she twisted around to see who had spoken. She grinned enormously as she saw Saoirse with her eyes open.

"SD!" Stephanie exploded.

"Saoirse!" Morgan threw in.

"Who died?" Saoirse asked as she saw the black dresses. "I'm not dead yet – far from it."

"Fuck!" Morgan exclaimed. "She has no idea."

Saoirse scowled.

"Who?"

Stephanie looked directly at her friend as she spoke.

"Cathy."

Saoirse struggled to find words. She just stared at the two girls, tears falling down her cheeks just as they were for Stephanie and Morgan.

"Sorry, SD – not what you were wanting to find out when you awoke."

"At least tell me some good news."

"FEAR is dead – Fortune chopped her head off. Fusion won the battle."

"Thank God for small mercies," Saoirse commented. "Anybody else hurt?"

"Yeah – a few; nothing bad. Marc was hurt, but Shannon was pleased to see his dick was still functional," Morgan replied with a grin. "Fury managed to save a Marauder's life by closing up her belly with Duct Tape."

Saoirse grinned at Stephanie who just shrugged her shoulders.

"How are you feeling, SD?" Stephanie asked.

"I'm in a lot of pain," Saoirse admitted, and Stephanie could see that her friend was holding back the tears.

Stephanie reached out and took her friend's right hand.

"Don't hold it in, SD – let it out; it helps, believe me."

Saoirse did, and Morgan felt wretched as she watched her sister suffer. She so wanted to help, but she knew that Stephanie and Saoirse had a bond which she could never have with her sister.

Summit Drive

Kelly stood at the doorway to her sisters' bedroom.

She felt alone, haunted by her actions. Her mind was in torment as it tried to come to terms with what she had done.

'It had to be done.'

'But it was your sister.'

'Katrina was beyond the point of no return.'

'You never even tried.'

'Nothing could bring her back – she was hellbent on her own destruction.'

'She did it for Mom and Dad.'

'No! That was her warped excuse. She used our parents to justify her criminal activities.'

'She loved you.'

'Maybe she did.'

'You miss her.'

"I miss her."

"You will, Kelly," Mindy offered.

The seventeen-year-old girl – she would be eighteen in two weeks – had walked around the house in silence for almost an hour. Mindy had given Kelly her space, knowing that she was struggling with all the emotions which Mindy could see passing across the girl's face. They had just returned from Joliet where Hit Girl and Fortune had assisted the local authorities with clearing the jail. Nobody was found – everybody had fled, or they had already been captured . . . or they were dead.

"The house is mine, but should I stay here?"

"That is up to you, Kelly."

"I'd be alone."

"Get somebody to move in with you – maybe Lucy, or one of the other girls. You got a boyfriend?"

Kelly's cheeks turned pink for a moment as she shook her head.

"Take your time and don't rush into any decisions, okay? Go stay at the Safehouse, or with somebody else for a few days. You're welcome at Glenview, anytime – besides, Dave might need a hand while I'm out of town."

"Thanks, Mindy."

The following afternoon

Thursday, October 20th

Blue Star Memorial Woods

Doctor Jennifer Staite was unsure of why she had agreed to the meeting.

But there she was, standing beside her car, on a chilly October afternoon. At dead on 3 P.M., a dark grey Jaguar F-Pace pulled up and parked beside her. Two people climbed out. One was a young blond-haired woman, her hair tied up in a ponytail. The man was tall and muscular with dark curly hair.

"Good afternoon, Doctor," the woman offered. "I'm Mindy Lizewski."

"Jennifer Staite."

"I'm Mindy's husband, Dave," Dave added. "You like dogs?"

"I've no problem with them."

Dave opened the rear of the luxury SUV and two large dogs jumped down.

"The larger one is Sophia – the other is Razor, Sophia is his mother."

After leashes were fitted to the two dogs, Mindy turned to the Doctor.

"Let's walk while we talk."

"I'm sorry about Cathy – she was a very dynamic woman and a good friend," Jennifer said.

"Thanks," Mindy replied. "Cathy suggested to us that you might be a suitable replacement for her."

"Replacement?"

"We need a doctor for our team. Somebody who has seen combat. Somebody who can keep their mind when all around is going to hell."

"Who are you?"

Mindy handed over a card – Dave rolled his eyes and muttered something that Mindy did not catch. Jennifer looked at the card which was purple on one side and embossed with 'HG'.

"You, are her?"

"And I, am he," Dave chuckled.

"We thank you for your assistance during the battle," Mindy said. "You saved a lot of lives, including that of Saoirse.

"I thought that girl's injuries looked familiar, but I didn't say anything."

"That is why we believe that we can trust you."

They chatted for a while longer before finding themselves back at the cars. The dogs were reluctantly loaded into the SUV and Mindy turned to Jennifer while Dave climbed into the passenger seat of the SUV.

"Do I get time to think about it?"

"Yes, Surgeon, you do."

Training Facility Echo

Level 4

The two girls were racing to the top of the climbing wall.

It was their second ascent – Abigail had won the first go.

"I still can't believe that you used my trick on that Marauder," Stephanie growled as she overhauled her friend.

"It worked on Electra after I slashed her, right?" Abigail responded.

"Yes, it did," Stephanie admitted. "You've spent a lot of time with that girl."

"It's my fault she was hurt so badly."

"You admitted that you had no choice."

"I know – but I've changed, Steph – I don't just hurt people for no reason."

"Me, too, but sometimes it has to be done. Considering the choice – I'm just glad it wasn't you. . ." Stephanie almost choked. "Did I just say that out loud?"

Abigail laughed, "Yes, you did – thank you, best-friend."

"It was a slip of the tongue," Stephanie growled, horrified by her admission.

"They'll be making out, next," Shannon grinned as she raced past the two youngsters.

"That would be worth watching," Marc commented from the mat below, his eyes never moving from Shannon's backside as she swung from grip to grip.

"Let's get the bitch!" Abigail growled.

Shannon screamed as she moved faster with the younger girls closing fast.

..._...

Hailee, Morgan, and Megan stood with Marc, holding the ropes which would prevent serious injury should somebody slip.

Megan was struggling with her own emotions which were beginning to get the better of her. The events of Gotham were not easy to bury and now Megan had a major hole in her life which just added to her increasing mental instability. She knew that those she lived and worked with suspected something, but she refused to let anybody get close to her – even Curtis was kept at arm's reach. They had 'played', but not like they had before Gotham. Curtis tended to complain when Megan got too rough or she insisted on using her teeth where they did not belong.

For the first time, Megan had consented to a sixty-nine position with Curtis – something which she had wanted to try but had always felt too disgusting. To that point, only Curtis' fingers had ever explored her lower regions. Curtis had been a little surprised at the suggestion, knowing Megan's feelings concerning her 'kitty', but he had consented to Megan lying on top of him with her crotch at his mouth while she took him into hers. One benefit was that he would slap her bottom hard should she use her teeth on him – although he got the feeling that she actually enjoyed the often-painful slap.

Curtis, currently over by the pool, watched his girlfriend as she chatted with Hailee and Morgan. He was concerned with her more recent antics both when out as Wildcat and when inside with him and naked. He knew that something had occurred in Gotham, but he had no idea exactly what, and he had no idea how to approach the subject with Megan who was getting increasingly violent at the least little thing. Megan apparently had a reserved seat outside the school principal's office and Paige was getting very annoyed with the increasingly regular post which arrived with school's postmark on it.

Curtis' time with Megan distracted him from the obvious hole left by Cathy's death. His uncle had returned from New York the very same day and he had spent time with Chloe while Curtis had felt a little left out. That was made up for when Ryan had spent the following day with the boy.

..._...

For Shannon, the battle had been hard, but all had survived.

While she had worried about Marc, she had also worried about the rest of her family, all fighting in harm's way. Her siblings were hurt, but mainly bruises and nothing major. She had laughed when she had found the youngsters comparing bruises and counting each other's injuries to see who had the most. It was a typically Predator thing to do and Shannon had laughed when she had found her two siblings standing stark naked in Annabelle's bedroom counting each and every bruise which they could find on their bodies. Annabelle seemed to have none of the modesty which you might expect of a developing twelve-year-old when her ten-year-old brother was counting bruises on her body while she stood naked for all the world to see.

"Can we count yours?" they had asked, but Shannon had declined the offer.

"She's saving her body for Marc," Iain had commented slyly.

Annabelle had giggled at the suggestion as Shannon had fled. Later that evening, Annabelle had proudly declared herself as the winner with the most bruises.

"Honey," her father pointed out. "The winner would be the one with the least bruises."

Annabelle thought that one through for a minute before her face turned pink and she grinned sheepishly.

"Yeah – that sounds right," she muttered as Shannon burst out laughing.

"I win!" Iain declared as he smirked at his sister. "Loser!"

..._...

For Lauren and Lizzie, things had calmed down.

Lizzie was getting annoyed with Brad fawning over her big sister, despite Lauren's injury.

"It is disgusting how much you are naked, Lauren."

"My body is my body and I will expose it to whomever I so wish."

"What?"

"If Brad wants to see my body, then he can," fourteen-year-old Lauren reiterated for her younger sister. "You have boobs too – nobody is stopping you from showing them off."

"I am not a slut!" Lizzie retorted, horrified at the very thought.

Brad stepped in between the two girls.

"Lizzie, that was uncalled for – please apologise."

"Sorry, Lauren."

"Lauren – stop being bitchy; you on your period?"

Lizzie grinned.

"Yeah – plugged herself up just this morning," Lizzie declared with a broad grin.

While Lizzie had not endured her first period, Lauren hated any reference to that hellish time of each month. Lauren blushed furiously, and she suggested that she and Brad should go for a walk.

Two days later

Saturday, October 22nd

"This really sucks!"

"We're off to sunnier shores," Sky said as she hugged Stephanie.

"You won't even notice we're gone," Chrissy pointed out as she wiped away a tear.

"True," Marc commented. "Less bitches will be better . . . ow!"

Shannon scowled as she lowered her left hand from the back of Marc's head. Sky laughed as she hugged Shannon.

"You both take care, now," Megan said.

"We'll be fine."

The hugs and goodbyes continued until it really was time for the twins and Erika to leave the city. For Marty, saying goodbye to Erika was difficult, considering their past relationship, but he had Kim to give him support.

"God, I hate all this sappy shit!" Mindy growled as she waited by the car.

"Heartless, bitch!" Dave chuckled.

He alone knew that Mindy was very sad to be splitting up the team but there were some very good reasons behind it. He would also miss Mindy as she went with the twins and Erika.

She would be needed for other reasons too.

AUTHOR'S NOTE: This storyline continues in CHAPTER 1: THE PALISADES of my new story: FUSION: LOS ANGELES.

Chapter 352*: Upcoming 2018

Coming soon in 2018 for the Forsaken universe.

Please be advised that some of what you see below may not actually appear in the story, or may be changed considerably. Most of the below will be out of context (usually, on purpose) and not necessarily in the right order.

Also, the below spans many chapters, so you may not see certain sections for quite a while, if at all.

VENGEANCE

*Deep inside, Keira wanted to kill the girl who had betrayed them all.
More importantly, she wanted to kill the girl who had cost her Harper.*

...+...

*"Jason, Nicky, please meet my sister, Sarah, and our friend, Keira Sharp.
Sarah, Keira, please meet Jason and Nicky Bourne."*

...+...

*"I think she's telling the truth."
"She's either a very good liar or she's scared to death."*

...+...

*The yell was full of fear and distress.
Then came the sound of cracking and screaming as two of the four fingers on the girl's left hand were broken at the second knuckles.*

...+...

*They were at 70 hours and 24 minutes;
Harper's life expectancy was quite literally ticking down to oblivion.*

...+...

"She needs to suffer," Kaitlin growled. "I am going to make her suffer, just like Harper has suffered. First, we're going to break her fingers."

...+...

There was no challenge, just machinegun fire which came as a rude awakening to the watch on the bridge.

...+...

Sarah checked the starboard beam to find a larger yacht, flying the French Tricolour closing fast, tracer rounds striving to strike the pristine hull of CALEDONIA.

...+...

Five thousand tons of submarine heaved itself to the surface, shedding the tons of water from its hull as men appeared atop the conning tower.

...+...

Keira stepped out of the shadows from forward, a pistol in her hands. Debbie looked directly at her.

"We know where your sister is."

...+...

*The smack was both loud and very, very painful.
Harper fell to the floor, her head reeling from the impact,
her vision blurred for an instant but before she could regain her feet, another blow came down, then another.*

...+...

Despite her bravery and courage, she could not prevent the tears which welled up in her eyes and overflowed down her frozen cheeks onto her mattress.

...+...

*Her mind was losing focus and she could not think.
She just lay there in the mud and she thought of her sister and how much she wanted to be with her.*

...+...

The door opened, and a tray was brought in and placed before her. The man stood up.

"I'll take my leave and come back in a little while – enjoy the food."

The man returned as promised, just as Harper had finished eating – he was smiling no longer.

...+...

For a moment, Harper forced a grin, but fear soon overtook her. The woman was a face from her past; one which she hated – one which scared her to her core.

...+...

They came for her soon after ten o'clock.

Harper screamed as her badly-damaged left hand came in contact with something hard.

...+...

She screamed, and she screamed as she writhed but the man had her neck in a vice-like grip from which she could not escape. The pain was enormous, and Harper was being pushed very close to her pain threshold which was much higher than that of the average nine-year-old child.

...+...

"Welcome, William – you're looking a lot better."

"The wonders of modern medicine."

...+...

*My team are under intense suspicion at the moment.
You are all not exactly welcome on the mainland, either."*

"Screw that – we can sneak ashore and do what we need," Cassie commented.

...+...

Harper was beside herself with fear and desperation.

"Keira! Keira! Don't leave me! Please . . . KEIRA!"

...+...

"As you can see," the familiar voice sneered,
"Little Harper has served her purpose. Have a good day."

...+...

The Police BMW overtook and for a moment, the young vigilante thought that it was all over, but instead, the BMW raced ahead and stopped the traffic at the next junction, allowing their vehicle to blast through the red light at speed while another police officer waved them through the junction with a broad grin on his face before the BMW moved to block the pursuing vehicles.

...+...

"We thought that you might be needing these."

It was a simple statement from the Army officer as the covers were hauled off the vehicles being hauled by the Royal Logistic Corps low-loaders. The first trailer was carrying Sabre and Scimitar. The second trailer bore two humps at each end, but the shapes soon became familiar once the covers were removed. Twilight and Scourge were present and correct, rotors folded.

...+...

"Time to die..." the man growled with a look of supreme pleasure as he squeezed the trigger.

"Just what I was going to say!" an electronically enhanced voice countered as a dark blue shape dove out of the darkness and put himself between the woman and the pistol.

Both hit the ground as another form, this one crimson, followed the other and put several bullets into the gunman who fell into a pool of his own blood. The man in dark blue armour stood up and helped the woman to her feet.

"Are you injured, Prime Minister?"

...+...

The gated entrance to Downing Street was cordoned off by four red BMW X5 police 4x4s but two of them moved smartly to allow Sabre to sweep through with just the DPG Range Rover following.

...+...

The Corporal pulled back a dusty, dirty blanket, and he indicated for the Marine with the torch to bring it closer. Then he looked more closely at the shape.

"Medic!" he bellowed.

...+...

The Mondeo's left front corner lifted, rolling the car over and thrusting it upwards. The front end of the car crashed down, bending the entire engine compartment backwards towards the windscreen.

...+...

"Hello."

"Hello."

"I'm Diana."

...+...

She looked downwards, and her eyes went wide as she noticed that the girl who rested on crutches was missing something – quite a bit, really.

...+...

Stephanie sank to her knees at the graveside.

She held her head in her hands and she sobbed loudly for over a minute as Jamie hugged her, tears running down his own face.

...+...

Stephanie turned on Electra and the eyes burned into Electra's, causing the girl to shake with fear.

...+...

Vengeance faced off against the close on sixty enemy and the eight armoured vehicles.

...+...

A pair of giant Challenger 2 main battle tanks roared up the beach, escorted by four Warrior armoured fighting vehicles.

...+...

Prowl did not answer.

The girl looked up at Nemesis for a moment but then she fell to her knees, hesitated, and fell the rest of the way to the ground.

...+...

"Is something wrong, Lucius?" Bruce enquired.

"That is the armour of a Vengeance vigilante. The girl wearing it almost died. My armour failed."

...+...

Without warning, there was a chain of ear-splitting explosions and Scimitar appeared to fly through the air. The heavily armoured vehicle was pushed upwards and outwards by the explosive force before it came crashing down onto its roof, the support pillars of which telescoped under the weight of the large vehicle.

FORSAKEN

It had been almost a week.

They had won a great battle, but they had suffered a great loss.

...+...

"Why would Tommy have a pair of your panties?" Mindy asked with a raised eyebrow.

...+...

"Well, well, I never thought it might come to this . . . goodbye, you Irish slut."

...+...

"This level hasn't been used for decades."

"But it is the only place where we can house sixteen troubled kids."

...+...

There was an equal split, seven girls and nine boys. The boys were all in the large space, together, while the girls were split into two groups, of four and three.

...+...

Jake sidled up to Stephanie.

"Hi, hot stuff – how about you and me. . ."

"Do you want to lose this pathetic excuse for a dick?" she growled.

...+...

"You are all here under punishment, so expect a lot of crap over the next few weeks."

...+...

Shannon was just ten-years-old. Willow was just twelve-years-old. For Leo, who was thirteen-years-old, it was a struggle. Christina and Sky were ordered to strip each offender – a task the twins from hell relished.

...+...

Joshua came back into the room and he shook his head angrily.

Summer Frasier aka Sunset Phoenix was gone.

...+...

Her Predator sense told her that something was wrong. She checked the bathroom – it was empty. The bedroom door was open, so Stephanie headed out onto the landing and then down the stairs. She found Rachel in the living room. She sat on the couch, a pistol in her right hand.

...+...

Stephanie couldn't think of anything to say, so instead, she just ran forwards and gave Mindy a big hug.

...+...

"Her stature speaks volumes and that man behind her? He's CIA, a minder . . . much like Miranda was for me . . . he's worried . . . if I didn't know any better . . . yes – I'm sure."

...+...

"Is this wise?"

"I . . . well, I think so."

"You have concerns, though."

"What makes you think that?" Mindy asked.

"Every adult is carrying at least one Taser – you are carrying a pair."

...+...

Mindy had cringed at the amount spent but she saw it as well worth it and after Christmas, they could replenish the money spent in a couple of evenings when some drug dealers donated their income to Fusion.

...+...

Willow's dress was off the shoulder and above the knee, showing off the sixteen-year-old's ample breasts and thighs. As with the other ex-Marauders, the hair was growing back slowly.

...+...

"I last saw you with Electra, in the woods . . . you . . . you cared about us Yellows. You used Duct Tape on Electra's wound."

"That's good enough, Billy – it's him. You want to get out of this place?"

...+...

*Stephanie seized Billy's right hand with her left and she bounded forwards out of cover sprinting directly at the exit with Chloe and Mindy providing covering fire as they followed.
The boy was all but dragged forwards, keeping up with his rescuer.*

...+...

"Move it!" Mindy yelled at the pilots who immediately firewalled the engines sending the jet accelerating down the runway and into the air.

...+...

"Rachel – what did you say your greatest Christmas wish was?"

...+...

*Rachel simply froze as a young boy appeared from behind Stephanie.
Jamie looked up at his sister in surprise; Stephanie just grinned.
The fourteen-year-old girl was struggling to speak, to move, to do anything.*

FUSION:LA

"Who are you?" Maddie asked.

"You hacked a file which got you pinched. You want to know what is in that file?"

"How would you know what is in that file?"

"Me, is in that file."

...+...

"I want you two girls to meet me at the location which Marty has uploaded to the satnav in the Yukon – have fun!"

...+...

Just days before, she had been in FBI custody on a serious charge of Cyber Hacking, then, she had been awoken at 5am from a troubled sleep in the detention facility.

...+...

"I am trusting you to do everything in your power to help my team and to never reveal anything that you see, that you hear, that you think, or even what comes to you during that moment of euphoria as you work your clit to orgasm."

...+...

"You having a midlife crisis or something, Erika?"

"Or something. . ." Erika replied coolly.

...+...

*"Hello, Mrs Tyler. Your daughter is working off her misdeeds for me. She makes a mistake; she goes back to the FBI.
So far, she has been true to her word and I trust her."*

...+...

It looked like any other entrance to any number of businesses where the boss had no interest in spending money on non-essential parts of the building – like the reception.

...+...

"You guys do not fuck around when it comes to Safehouses, do ya?"

"Hit Girl has a thing for being prepared – she must have been a boy scout in a previous life!"

...+...

She sat at her computer station and her eyes flew around the various windows that she had open across the giant display screens. The most important of which was a display showing three flashing dots on a zoomed in section of Los Angeles. The dots were blue, red, and yellow. They represented, Mist, Venom, and Bane, respectively. Their lives were in the thirteen-year-old's hands and she was petrified of what they might do to her should she screw up.

. . . and something else

What, you may ask, was she doing wading through a leech-infested swamp in Asia with the rancid water lapping at her snatch?

For the past six hours, Mindy had been asking herself the same goddamn thing.

...+...

"Apparently, the powers that be have other plans for the British arm of Fusion. In fact, they have been forbidden from taking part – a direct order, if you will."

...+...

Each and every punch sent pain shooting throughout her body. The man obviously knew his stuff as he pounded into her. All thoughts of being concerned about her dignity as she hung there, naked as the day she was born, were replaced by the thoughts required to keep her mind running so that she could resist and keep resisting

...+...

Mindy glared up at Chloe.

"We're in deep shit."

"Tell me about it!" Chloe growled.

"Could be worse," Stephanie added.

"How the fuck could it be any worse!" Joshua questioned.

"We could be dead," Stephanie pointed out darkly.

"Ah, Steph," Mindy chuckled as she gave Stephanie a hug.

"You're a dark horse, but we all love you."

...+...

The temperature was approaching minus twenty-five, and the eleven-year-old girl was almost buried in Artic clothing, with not a single piece of flesh visible. Suddenly, she dived down into the soft snow and raised her binoculars.

...+...

"You don't have a Safehouse in the Dakotas, do you?" Joshua enquired.

"No, I don't," Mindy replied. "Not yet, anyway. Besides nothing ever happens in what has to be two of the most boring states in the entire Union. Both could drop off the face of the earth and I doubt if anybody would actually notice for six to eight months that they had gone. Even those living there probably wouldn't notice if they suddenly ceased to exist for a week or two."

"Ooh, scathing!" Dave laughed.

...+...

Mindy threw down her pistol and she glowered at the Russians.

She was so angry. She felt tears in her eyes with the utter frustration of what was happening. She felt anger at the knowledge that she had failed. She felt sadness as she realised that she might never see her kids or family again.

...+...

The pair of General Electric GE90-115B turbofan jet engines increased power to produce over 500kN of thrust, driving the Boeing 777-300ER down the runway at ever-increasing speed. The countermeasures systems scanned the area around the aircraft, searching for signs of incoming missiles, gunfire, or tracking lasers. With a bump, the giant aircraft leapt into the air and climbed steeply, clawing for safety in the skies, well away from the ground threats.

... and maybe something else again

The other vessel began to emerge from the early morning mists.

The vessel was a deep blue from bow to stern with a light-grey superstructure. A bulbous bow was visible each time the vessel rose on a wave and a large anchor was housed on each bow. The superstructure rose four decks, the top three able to clear the containers on the foredeck. A mass of small masts and antennae mounted on the bridge roof were overshadowed by a mini pyramid mast rising about fourteen or so feet above the bridge roof before being terminated in a flat top on which was mounted a rotating egg-shaped structure with four spikes emanating from the top of the egg. Immediately below the spinning egg were several spiked protrusions which encircled the eight-sided main mast. A light flickered from the port bridge wing.

The captain read the Morse Code signal in his mind, letter by letter.

V ... A ... L ... I ... A ... N ... T

...+...

"Damn, it's cold out there!" Captain Ryan Bennett announced as he pulled off his mittens and was handed a steaming mug of coffee by the duty bosun's mate. "Any news from our friends in their icebox?"

"No, sir," Lieutenant Mayhew, the duty officer, replied.

"Damn crazy to be out on that bloody ice – it's approaching thirty below! I want them back aboard by 1600."

...+...

"What's out there, Wes?"

"I have no idea, skipper."

...+...

"Air contact! Approaching at speed, attack profile . . .
second contact! Same speed, same profile!"

...+...

"First contact, coming down the starboard side, zero feet!"

Captain Bennett ran out onto the starboard bridge wing and with the engine's off, he could make out the sound of gas turbines and rotor blades and a helicopter blazed past at 150-knots, barely a dozen feet above the waves. Captain Bennett found himself looking down on the Royal Navy attack helicopter as it blazed past.

"Port side!"

Captain Bennett appeared outside just in time to see an identical helicopter streak past the starboard side of his ship. The weapon pylons were heavy with ordnance.

...+...

The vessel was large. The masthead was visible long before the rest of the ship which began to come into visual sight despite the large waves. The masthead was reminiscent of the older Type 23 frigates, but the radar was of the Type 26 frigate. After the radar became visible, the white top of a Phalanx gun system appeared mounted above the superstructure. The bridge atop the forward superstructure was massive with obvious gun platforms at each bridge wing.

...+...

Life-giving fuel flooded into the dry tanks of the destroyer and she sank lower in the water as 140,000 gallons of fuel filled the tanks. Only twenty minutes into the refuelling, the GTGS units were cranked and they began to provide electrical power to the ship, relieving the emergency generators and the all but exhausted battery backup systems.

...+...

"What's that flag flying on the British vessel?" Jamie asked.

"I don't know," Abigail responded. "The flag keeps bunching up in the wind – hold on. . ."

The wind had changed, and the flag suddenly went taut.

"You seeing this?" Abigail asked incredulously.

"What're you two up to?" Mindy asked.

"Look at that flag, Mum," Jamie insisted, passing the binoculars to Mindy.

Mindy focussed the binoculars on the blue flag, assuming it to be an ensign, only it wasn't the naval ensign that she had been expecting. It was dark blue with a pair of sabres forming a 'V' in the centre.

"Vengeance!" Mindy exclaimed.

Chapter 353: After The Battle

AUTHOR'S NOTE: This chapter follows on from CHAPTER 1: THE PALISADES of my new story: FUSION: LOS ANGELES.

"My name is Dave, Dave Lizewski. . ."

"They know that, dumbass!"

"I was just trying to be conversational, is all."

"Look, Dave: if they've been reading this Forsaken shit for what . . . err, three-hundred-and-fifty odd chapters, you would think they'd've figured out your name by now."

"What are you two going on about – this is supposed to be a narrative for fuck's sake!"

"Stephanie – you butted into my last narrative, back in Chapter 302, so be a good little brat and stay the fuck outta this one."

"Talk about an intergalactic ego!"

"Stephanie! Show Mindy some respect, please."

"Hah!" Mindy declared.

"Mindy," Dave cautioned.

"Okay, dumbass, do your fucking narrative . . . jeez!"

"It has been a week since FEAR died on the streets of Chicago. Sunset Phoenix is gone, too. So are friends – one permanently. Mindy has since returned from fucking around in L.A., setting up a new team. . ."

"I was not 'fucking around', asshole!"

"Prancing around the beach in next to nothing, from what I hear. . ."

"Stephanie!"

"Hey, guys! What's going on?"

"Tommy, sssh – we're doing a narrative."

"Cool! Just wanted to bring these over."

Stephanie quickly snatched something out of Tommy's hands – just not fast enough for Hit Girl's eagle eyes.

"Why would Tommy have a pair of your panties?" Mindy asked with a raised eyebrow.

"It is not what your sordid mind is dredging up from the gutter which flows through that fucked-up brain of yours," Stephanie growled.

"I think it's time for you, me, and Chloe to have a chat," Mindy grinned.

"Like fuck, we do!"

"If you two are getting down to the panty level. . ."

"Dad!"

"You're on your own, pal!"

Mindy and Stephanie began to bicker while Tommy looked on, enjoying the verbal sparring match.

"Anyway!" Dave continued, ignoring his wife and daughter. "Chicago has calmed down and people have gone back to enjoying their lives in peace. In some respects, people were happier to be mugged by real thieves rather than the mafia, or worse."

ABC7 Eyewitness News

Chicago appears to have returned to normal with their very own true vigilantes – eat your heart out, New York! Normal service has returned with the death of FEAR and the total disappearance of the Russians and the Sicilians. A more streamlined force of vigilantes has been seen out on the streets immediately following what has become known as The Battle of Chicago. Hit Girl was conspicuous by her absence, but her partner, Kick-Ass, was readily visible as he patrolled with Wildcat by his side. Even the Chicago Police Department have left their armoured vehicles at home as officers patrolled wearing their usual stab-vests with only pistols to hand. There have been many who openly condemned the city-wide battles which took many lives, on both sides, including that of the vigilante known only as Medic. Some have called for the vigilantes to be stood down while others have openly thanked the armour-clad individuals who have selflessly risked their very lives to keep the city which we all love, safe from tyranny and oppression. Tributes have been laid at the spot where Medic was callously gunned down while treating a wounded Chicago police officer. The corner of West Van Buren Street and South Franklin Street has seen flowers, gifts, and accolades appear steadily over the past few days. The City will mourn those who died for a long time and they did not die in vain. The work to rebuild the damaged parts of the city and the destroyed infrastructure will go on for many months. The ripple effect of the battles will remain but the brave Chicagoans who occupy this fair city will rise to the occasion and continue on with their day to day lives. As for this mild-mannered reporter, I have but one thing remaining to say:

'Thank you, Fusion. Thank you for remaining by our side. Thank you, also, to the forces of Law and Order which continue to protect the great city of Chicago against those who wish to do its citizens harm.'

Friday, October 28th, 2016

It had been almost two weeks.

They had won a great battle, but they had suffered a great loss. In general, the moral was suffering and there was a lot of focus on anything but past events. There was a lot to prepare for and a lot of clearing up to do. A lot of Fusion equipment had been lost or damaged and there was a major inventory underway to find out what needed to be replaced. There was everything from bullets and weapons, through combat suits, and onto motorcycles and SUVs to be replaced or repaired. The damage to physical bodies and to minds was ongoing and would take time. Most schools around the city had been closed for over a week which made things easier and it allowed a lot of tell-tale bruises to heal.

For some, the end of the battle and the deaths of certain villains had allowed them to return to their homes in the certain knowledge that they would be safe from harm. First among those was the Dade family who were released from their enforced protection. Mindy had thanked them all personally, including all the members of Synthesis. They had not been in harm's way, but their value had been invaluable. One positive was an upsurge in memberships at D-JAK which occupied certain members of Fusion and gave them something else to focus on. Chloe, in particular, was focussing her energies there along with Curtis. Ryan had returned to his ship and relative normality. It would be a difficult time and Mindy knew that handling death was difficult for all and she wished it upon nobody – except, of course, for certain people who did deserve to die.

Dave was a constant comfort for Mindy who shouldered much. She was only eighteen-years-old, and her slim shoulders had to bear everything. From time to time, Dave insisted on his own shoulders taking some of the weight off his wife's own shoulders. The one thing that Mindy was perhaps selfish about was her own family who had come out of the battle almost unscathed. Stephanie's dunking in the lake had caused no negative after effects. Although, Mindy was a little sour about losing her attack craft. However, she was pleased to be able to go shopping. Mindy was spending a lot of time down at Safehouse Zulu where she had taken over the operations area as her office with paper strewn all over the place. Indeed, she was not alone as she was often joined by various canines and a few vigilantes while she worked.

As for Stephanie, she was not enjoying her Saturday morning.

Training Facility Echo

Stephanie was feeling distinctly uncomfortable as she lay on a hospital bed, naked but for a bed sheet with her legs spread apart and a pair of hands prodding at her lower parts.

Dr Jennifer Staite was chatting away like it was perfectly normal to be giving a ten-year-old girl a pelvic exam. Stephanie just felt weird and she kept shifting her bottom around on the table.

"Stephanie, please keep still, or I cannot finish. Pelvic exams are not fun for any girl, let alone one of your age. I understand this is not your first."

"I was unconscious the last time," Stephanie pointed out.

"A desirable state, I will admit, Stephanie. Dr Bennett was very colourful in the description of your attack in her notes. Are you sexually active?"

"Do you want to be shot on your first week?" Stephanie growled, and Jennifer laughed.

"I had to ask – it's part of the check-up and well . . . your mom dropped a hint."

"Okay – I was at my boy – err, my friend's place and I accidentally dropped a pair of knickers. The idiot was bad with his timing when he returned them. They were clean and unworn. Megan suggested that I carry a pair just in case my first period crept up on me."

"A very prudent suggestion, Stephanie. Okay, first periods are almost impossible to predict, so it's a good idea to be prepared. However, you are only ten, so you could wait another two years, or it could happen tomorrow. Okay – all appears present and correct. These exams are important, young lady, and you will have many more should you wish to remain healthy. Your body is changing. . ."

"So, I've noticed."

"My job is to keep you healthy, Stephanie, and I intend to do my job to the very best of my ability. You can close your legs now and get dressed."

"Thanks, Doc."

"This place is truly amazing, and I have some large shoes to fill," Jennifer said as Stephanie pulled on her clothing.

"My Mum is a born leader, and everybody would follow her to hell and back. Some of us have suffered bad things as we grew up and we have become child assassins. I lost most of my childhood, but Mum has given me a new childhood and we respect each other. We have freed many others and now we have more that have been freed but who must be punished for what they have done."

"This life is going to take a lot of getting used to but I'm all for it. I still have a lot of you to meet but I like what I've met so far."

"Oh . . . you ain't seen nothing yet . . . Surgeon!"

..._...

As Jennifer watched the youngster finish her dressing, she saw the vicious-looking scar on her upper right chest and she was amazed that the girl had survived so much.

It was only her third visit to the subterranean facility and she was struggling to comprehend the sheer magnitude of what was existing beneath the streets of Chicago. Mindy had mentioned many things, including something called Urban Predator which had featured prominently in Stephanie's files. Her full induction was still awaiting her and she was dreading what she might find out. For the moment, her primary task was treating those who had been injured during the battle. Learning how Fusion worked could wait for another day, Mindy had suggested – the medical support came first.

"Thanks, Doc – see you soon, no doubt," Stephanie offered cheerfully as she left the room.

There was a muted knock on the door and the next patient entered.

"Hi, Doc!"

"Lauren Edwards?"

"That's me!"

Jennifer chuckled at the happy, smiling, bubbly teenager.

"Please take a seat, Lauren."

That afternoon

"Have you no shame?"

Abigail looked up from where she was lying on the tiles, surrounded by rushing water. She grinned up at the equally naked Stephanie.

"I'm showering," Abigail pointed out to her friend.

"With your legs wide open like a . . . whatever," Stephanie pointed out to her friend.

Abigail laughed at the suggestion.

"I'm a girl – that's what a girl looks like down there."

"It's unseemly," Stephanie persisted as she pushed Abigail's legs together.

Stephanie found it a little strange, but she was wanting to regain control over her own body. For years, she had been forced to show her body off to all and sundry during punishments and worse. Maybe it was just her growing up, but she wanted privacy and she wanted to control who saw her naked body. Other female Predators, like Saoirse, had been forced to endure puberty and the inevitable changes to their bodies on public show – but Stephanie had had enough.

Her life was her life and her body was her body; she was in full control of it.

..._...

Abigail had visited Charlotte every day.

Was it guilt? A little, but Abigail knew how lonely it could be as an ex-Predator, so she chatted with Charlotte or she just sat there providing some sort of comfort for the girl. Charlotte appeared to appreciate the company considering the alternative. She was young, twelve-years-old, and if it were not for the slight bumps on her chest, and with the shaved head, you could have been forgiven for seeing her as a young boy. Twice, Fury had escorted the boy, Jake, from his holding cell to see Charlotte, and the girl had significantly brightened up during each visit. While Urban Predator had strongly discouraged relationships, those relationships still occurred. It also surprised Abigail how the survivors of Urban Predator sometimes bonded with each other, creating surprising relationships – take her and Stephanie as an example. Charlotte seemed to look on Fury as a friend, so after nagging Mindy to pieces, Abigail was allowed to forgo the mask.

"Who are you?" Charlotte had asked guardedly as she saw the young girl slip through the curtains.

"My name is Abigail, Abigail Wilde."

The girl appeared relieved to hear a British accent for a change.

"Fury, right?"

Abigail nodded.

"I'm in a real bind, aren't I?"

"Yes, Charlotte, you are."

Charlotte was very depressed. She regretted everything, all the way back to her decision to sign on with FEAR as a Marauder. Abigail saw the tears forming – the girl often cried during the night, she had been told.

"What's going to happen to us?"

"Honestly, Charlotte, I have no idea."

That evening

South Whipple

Abigail returned home that evening to find a very morose looking Brad sitting with Lauren on the couch.

It was fairly obvious that Brad had just returned from the hospital and his Dad. Abigail looked directly at Lauren who grimaced. Then Lauren jumped up and she pulled her morose boyfriend to his feet.

"Brad, come with me. Abigail, please see to it that we are not disturbed."

"What are you going to do?" Abigail asked.

"Do you really want details, little Abigail?" Lauren smirked, and Abigail cringed as her sharp mind grasped what Lauren meant.

..._...

Brad was on autopilot as he allowed himself to be led upstairs and thence into his own bedroom.

Lauren shut the door and she turned the key in the lock. She pulled Brad down onto the bed and she looked into his eyes.

"Brad, you need a distraction. How about that distraction being me?" Lauren suggested as she undid the buttons on her blouse.

Brad noticed, and his eyes came to life but otherwise, the boy did not react.

"Do you want me, Brad?"

"I love you, Lauren; you know that."

Lauren lifted Brad's T-shirt up and off. She liked the boy's developing muscles. He had always been strong, but since he had been properly working out, his body had developed nicely. However, other parts of his thirteen-year-old body had been developing too, and Lauren enjoyed those parts – not that she had done more than stick her hands down his shorts and then get her hands all sticky a minute later. The boy had been there when she was in pain – she still was in pain but that was not the point – so she was going to be there for him. Lauren kicked off her shoes and she popped the button on her jeans. Brad shook his head.

"It's way too soon, Lauren," he said.

"Bradley, I decide when is too soon," Lauren retorted with a little anger. "It's been nine months and I want to lose my real virginity to the boy I love."

"Lauren, I . . ."

"I'm not forcing you, Brad, but I want you to be my first."

Brad grinned as he blushed slightly, and he stood up. Lauren kicked off her jeans and she stood there in just bra and panties. She knelt down and she pulled open Brad's belt and then his jeans. As she slid the jeans down, she noticed that one part of the boy was up for it. It was the first time that the fourteen-year-old had been 'up close and personal' with her boyfriend's 'equipment'. Lauren eased down his shorts – not an easy task with something sticking out, but with some gentle manipulation, Brad was naked. Lauren stood before Brad and she turned around, so the boy could release her bra. The bra slid down Lauren's body and off her arms, all the way to the floor. She could feel Brad's warmth as his body touched up against her own.

Lauren shuddered as she felt fingers moving carefully across her bare shoulders and then down across her chest. Then those fingers began to gently massage her breasts before one finger touched Lauren's right nipple and she squealed. She giggled as Brad kissed her on the neck before he pulled her down onto the bed where he lay beside her, kissing the girl on the lips. Lauren loved kisses on the lips – they tingled. When Brad kissed her, she felt warmth inside her and the kiss had other parts of her body tingling too. They were feelings which she had never felt before she had met Brad. He was gentle, and he exhibited caring in his touching and his kissing. He would always treat Lauren with the greatest of respect and she loved him for it. She giggled as she watched his dick throbbing slightly where it rested on her left thigh. She loved it when she could tease him, and she enjoyed how her body could cause his body to react.

Brad was messed up with his Dad being in hospital at death's door. Everything had been going so well for his family. His Dad was doing well at his job. His Mom was happier than she had been in years. Then Abigail had come along, and he had gained a little sister whom he loved to bits – she was damn weird, and she was British, but she was awesome. He had been very upset when Lauren had been injured and he could still see the medical dressing below her panties. The boy stared down at the panties. Beneath them was the forbidden fruit as far as he was concerned. He had seen it, of course, only he had never touched it. His eyes flicked up to Lauren who nodded. Brad's eyes flicked back to Lauren's white panties and he sat up, so he could reach them properly. Both hands shook as he reached for Lauren's silky-soft skin which was hot to the touch.

Lauren giggled as Brad's fingers touched her skin and then the waistband of her panties. Without conscious thought, Lauren lifted her butt off the bed to allow Brad to pull down her panties. Brad swept the panties down Lauren's long legs and over her feet with the pink-painted toenails. Brad stared down at the small inverted triangle of dirty blonde pubic hair.

"What do I do with it?" he asked stupidly.

"Oh, Brad!" Lauren exclaimed, and she giggled uncontrollably.

Brad grinned sheepishly as he gently moved his fingers through the until that moment, forbidden pubic region.

..._...

The two youngsters emerged forty minutes later, and they headed down the stairs.

"You two enjoy yourselves?" Rachel Murphy asked gently, a smirk on her lips.

"We never did nothing," Lauren tried, her face very pink.

Brad just stood there an enormous grin on his face.

"Honey, Brad's standing there grinning like a Cheshire cat. Abigail looks appalled to the brink of a breakdown . . . and as for that scream."

"You heard that?" Lauren winced.

"Yeah!" Abigail growled as she looked up at Brad.

Abigail held up her left hand, the thumb and forefinger forming a circle and she stuck her right index finger into the circle. Brad nodded happily.

"You two are so disgusting!" Abigail almost shouted as she bolted up the stairs and Rachel shook her head as Abigail slammed her bedroom door.

"Never a dull moment around here!" Rachel commented. "You take it gently now, Lauren – but thanks."

Wagner Road

Lauren left Brad arguing with Abigail about something incredibly trivial – which was still an improvement over his previous state.

"Well, well, well," Emily chuckled as her daughter set foot into the living room. "The frisky filly returns."

Lauren froze, and her face turned a deep red.

"Mrs Murphy called you, huh?"

"Oh, yeah. Standard for when two youngsters have sex for the first time."

"Ewww!" Lizzie exclaimed as she followed her sister into the room and overheard her mother. "You've just fucked?"

"Lizzie!"

"Sorry, Mom."

"Brad was so low, and I wanted to help. I only had one thing to give him and that was me."

"It's okay, honey, just take it slow and be careful."

"We used a condom – that bit was kinda fun; putting in on him."

"I'm outta here!" Lizzie squealed as she began to feel nauseous.

"Rachel Murphy was very thankful for what you did – he's like a different boy. Although he and Abigail are still arguing as far as I can tell, things have lightened up over there," Emily went on.

"I wanted to lose my virginity the right way at a moment of my choosing."

"I understand, Lauren; I really do."

Glenview

Stephanie was relieved when her friend finally called.

When Mindy had told her that her friend had been shot, Stephanie's response had been one of outrage and worry. She had wanted to get on a plane directly and fly to London. Only Mindy had made Stephanie see sense. By the time Mindy had found out about Electra's injury, three days had passed, and Electra was healing. For Stephanie, she hated hearing anything happen to her little friend, but Vengeance's ordeal had been awful. However, Electra appeared to have been in the thick of it and she had survived – even saving the life of a Royal Princess! Stephanie knew that Electra was very brave and very skilled. She also knew that Electra would have been annoyed to know that Stephanie was worried about her when Stephanie knew exactly how capable Electra was.

Still, seeing Vengeance appearing on television, escorting the British Prime Minister had filled Mindy with pride at how the organisation which she had sowed the seeds for, had risen to the call and stuck to their principals. They had pulled off the most amazing resurrection, pretty much saving an entire government and maybe a country. Needless to say, Stephanie was itching to see her friend, come what may. Mindy said that it would have to wait a few weeks until sometime in November when she was planning some event or other – Mindy refused to let Stephanie into what was apparently a big secret. Stephanie had threatened all sorts of sanctions on Mindy, from violent torture, up to and including death, should she not divulge the secret to her eldest daughter.

Naturally, Mindy took great delight in allowing her daughter to suffer.

The following morning

Saturday, October 29th

Glenview

"Dad?"

"Yes, my little puff adder."

Stephanie grinned before responding.

"Dad – can you give me a lift into town – I need to go buy stuff?".

"Clothes maybe?" Dave suggested as he noticed his daughter's jeans looking a little tight.

"She had to suck her tummy in real tight to get the button done up, this morning," Anne-Marie commented as she kept well out of arm's reach while she rounded her big sister.

"You do seem to be filling out in places, Steph," Dave conceded.

"Yeah!" Anne-Marie exclaimed, bravely prodding Stephanie's left bump with her forefinger.

Stephanie growled but before she could attack her younger sister, Dave stepped in between them.

"Okay, you two – Stephanie, go get ready."

..._...

About four hours later, Mindy heard the front door opening and closing.

"Hi, Dave – where's Steph?"

Dave turned and Mindy grinned at Stephanie's attempt to stride across the hallway and then up the stairs. Stephanie paused as the two sets of eyes caught her mid-stride.

"In here, young lady," Mindy directed.

Stephanie knew there was no avoiding it, so she reluctantly altered course for the kitchen. Mindy could see immediately what Stephanie was trying to avoid people seeing, but she put that to one side as she took in the new clothes. Stephanie had new jeans which had space for growing and were turned up at the end of the legs. She wore a new blouse and a new winter jacket, as well as a new pair of lightweight boots. Mindy was very impressed by the girl's new look.

"I am very impressed, Steph – you look good."

Stephanie grinned but then she faltered as the conversation turned to the elephant in the room. Stephanie's chest appeared fuller than before and more rounded.

"How does it feel?" Mindy asked gently.

"Like something alien."

"I'm a little surprised you came back with it," Mindy stated.

"Well," Stephanie explained. "Dear old Dad gave me three choices. Go get a bra myself, let him take me to get a bra, or let you take me. As if I would go bra shopping with Hit Girl!"

"Hey!"

"I wasn't about to go on my own, either, but Dad made me go. So, I'm now fitted with a size 30-AA bra. Got a whole load of spare's too."

"Well done, Stephanie. It gives you a fuller figure. I know you hate it – most girls do. Megan refused point-blank for ages. Anyway, I'm proud of you for proving how grown up you are – and you are growing up, honey."

Stephanie grabbed Dave and Mindy in turn and hugged each of them.

"You two make the best parents," Stephanie informed them happily.

"Go – before you make me cry," Mindy said and Stephanie grinned enormously. "No – I mean it; go before I cry."

Stephanie vanished speedily as Dave hugged his wife.

"Did she really mean that?" Mindy asked. "Are we good parents?"

"Well, she would know," Dave replied.

That evening

"Mommy?"

"Yes, honey."

"Stephanie's wearing a bra!" Anne-Marie exclaimed and she giggled along with her brothers.

"Yes, Stephanie is wearing a bra – I'm wearing one too; is there something funny about that, Anne-Marie?"

The eight-year-old scowled as her plan to humiliate her big sister exploded and fell totally flat. Stephanie's scowl changed to a grin and only Dave noticed her sitting up straighter and exuding an air of maturity. The two boys were still muttering between themselves and giggling but they were ignored as usual. Anne-Marie was annoyed but she let it slide – the devious little girl had other ways to embarrass Stephanie.

However, Stephanie had a plan for that.

The following afternoon

Sunday, October 30th

Training Facility Echo

"Anne-Marie! Danny! Jamie!"

The three kids lined up behind their sister, a little unsure about unfolding events. With Dave's assistance, Stephanie had assembled most of Fusion around the giant mat on Level 0. Naturally, there had been some good-natured goading once Stephanie's new undergarment had become general knowledge with Anne-Marie's assistance. However, Anne-Marie's assessment of who might enjoy winding up Stephanie had fallen flat, yet again, as many of the females present wore bras and knew how unsettling the first bra was from first-hand experience – especially the Predators. Stephanie glared at everyone present – especially the male variety.

"Now – as my sweet sister has informed the entire world, I am now wearing a bra, so all the hints and snide comments can STOP! For the perverts amongst you, I am wearing a 30-AA bra – however, I will NOT be providing size updates. But let me be very clear: any bastard who talks about my bras . . ."

Without warning, Stephanie turned, and Anne-Marie was seized and thrown across the mat where she landed with a scream in a small heap.

". . . my boobs . . ."

Danny received a severe punch to his chest and a kick to his left thigh which sent him reeling across the mat in a different direction to his twin.

". . . or any other part of my body . . ."

The very apprehensive Jamie received a spinning hook kick to his side which sent him flying after Danny where he landed in a messy heap on the mat.

". . . and I may just lose my temper. AM I CLEAR?"

Stephanie ignored her whimpering siblings as she headed for the elevator. Megan was impressed, and she wished that she had been more forceful about her own first bra. Many grinned at Stephanie's demonstration but most gave her a wide berth, knowing what she was capable of when angry.

Mindy and Chloe simply applauded enthusiastically.

..._...

"Little sis?" Brad asked Abigail a short while later.

"Yes, Brad."

"You're older than Steph, right?"

"About six months, why?"

"Shouldn't you be wearing a bra too?"

Abigail laughed.

"You've seen me in a swimsuit, Brad – me and pancakes have a lot in common if you hadn't noticed and I'm about as hairy down below as the average pancake too."

"Please, don't hold anything back on my account, sis!" Brad growled.

"See!" Abigail grinned as she lifted her top for Brad to see.

"Thanks for that," Brad grimaced, then he grinned. "They are flat, I'll grant you that!"

"Told you!"

"Give it three months and I'm sure you'll have something," Brad challenged.

"I dunno – they've still got a long way to go; maybe more like six months."

"Care to place a bet on that?"

"You're on, big brother."

..._...

Chloe was in the equipment storage area on Level 3 when she was tracked down by Becky.

"Hi, Peanut!"

"Hi."

"Something wrong?" Chloe asked as she sat down on the steps which led up towards the main armoury.

Becky sat down next to Chloe before looking up at her.

"Mum . . . can I ask you a personal question, please?"

"Of course, honey," Chloe replied.

"You . . . well, Anne-Marie said that shortly before you found me, you were pregnant."

"Oh."

"Am I the alternative?" Becky asked. "Did you take me home as a replacement for losing your baby?"

"No, honey. I genuinely love you. A lot went through my mind that week – losing my baby was still very raw. Okay. Would I have taken you home if I was still pregnant? Yes, I would. You are my child for as long as you want to be my child, Rebecca."

"That makes sense. I do want to stay with you and Dad – I love you both. I just wanted to be sure that you really wanted me."

"You will always be my little Peanut."

"Will I get a little brother or sister, one day?"

"You never know – but not until I'm older."

"I can live with that," the eight-year-old commented as she gave Chloe a hug.

"Love you, Mum."

The following morning

Monday, October 31st

South Woodlawn

"Sabrina!"

"Yeah, Mom!"

"Give your brothers a nudge, please!"

"Ewww, their room stinks – do I have to?"

"Yes, please, honey."

Eight-year-old Sabrina gingerly pushed open the door to the bedroom that her two eight-year-old brothers shared. As she had prophesied, it stank . . . she reached an arm in and flicked the light switch.

"Turn the light off . . ."

"It's too early . . ."

"Time to get up, boys!" Sabrina yelled at the top of her voice then she let out a little scream as a couple of pillows struck her in the face. "Honestly!"

..._...

Slightly less apprehensively, the eight-year-old headed for the bedrooms of her cousins, Leo and Hunter.

They were both awake and Sabrina gave each of them a morning hug. She had been very concerned at seeing the bruises sported by both boys, not to mention the signs of injuries from two weeks previously. There were many things which she and her brat brothers were not allowed to know about concerning Leo and Hunter. They were cousins which meant they were family, so she felt safe around them, but there was something she could not quite fathom about the two boys. Neither had ever hurt Sabrina, but they had accidentally hurt her brothers, Samuel and Simon a couple of times. But that had been before their move to Chicago. Sabrina may have been young, but she was not stupid, and she had one or two ideas as to what the boys were and how they might have gained their bruises and injuries.

Unbeknownst to the young girl, she was about to find out so much more than she would ever have thought possible.

Chapter 354*: London Anniversary

Author's Note: This chapter follows on from Chapter 46: Alive of my other story: Vengeance.

Dave and Mindy have travelled to the United Kingdom, along with Stephanie and Abby. After visiting young Harper Sharp in hospital, Dave and Mindy are heading off to belatedly celebrate their first wedding anniversary as well as Mindy's nineteenth birthday.

Please be warned that this chapter will include dubious, salacious, and downright crude activity.

Tuesday, November 2nd, 2016

London, England

After leaving Stephanie in the willing hands of Keira, Dave and Mindy headed a short distance across the city to their hotel for the night.

After a very brief check-in, they were led up thirty-eight floors to their suite for the night. The London Suite, on the thirty-eighth-floor of The Shard, cost over £3,000 a night and was exquisitely appointed. The view alone was worth every penny. Not that either of them was interested in the view outside as they both took a little longer than usual together in the shower. Once they were thoroughly clean, they dressed for dinner. Mindy eased her tender nipples into a crimson bra which matched the very limited crimson panties which could almost have been described as a thong. Over those sexily revealing items of lingerie, Mindy slipped into a below the knee evening dress in a dazzling purple. On her left hand, she wore her diamond wedding ring plus a stunning solitaire diamond bracelet on her left wrist which Dave had bought for her that very afternoon. That was joined by a matching set of diamond sleeper earrings and an eye-catching diamond pendant which nestled close to Mindy's cleavage.

The entire ensemble had checked in at £14,500 – but worth every pound as far as Dave was concerned. He assisted his wife with the necklace, fastening the device around her slender neck. His fingers gently caressed her silky-soft skin and he felt Mindy shudder beneath his gentle touch. He bent down and kissed her on the neck causing another shudder and a groan as Mindy fought back certain sensations which began to grow deep within her. As Hit Girl, she could fight men twice her size or even an army of men – and win - but her husband could reduce her to a giggling amoeba with just a simple touch or a kiss. Once her jewellery was in place, Mindy sat down on the edge of the bed and she pulled on a pair of purple open shoes with low heels – Mindy had never really mastered walking on high-heels.

Dave was dressed in a black tuxedo with a white shirt and a fetching black bow-tie which Mindy had assisted Dave in tying. He looked perfect, all the way from his dorky grin, down to his polished black shoes. Mindy reached up and she gave him a deep kiss on the lips. The man she loved looked down at her with his deep eyes and she felt her legs weakening beneath her.

"Let's go before I orgasm everywhere," Mindy suggested as she broke the kiss.

..._...

Their transport for the evening had been provided by none other than Commander Haig.

At exactly 7:45 P.M. the jet-black Rolls Royce Phantom swept into the access road which led to The Shard and it pulled up smartly at the top beside the curb. Four metres away, a similarly jet-black Range Rover Sentinel pulled up without fanfare and disgorged two large men in baggy suits. As the doorman pulled open the door to the Phantom, the two men nodded at Dave and Mindy – they were to be the vigilantes' armed escorts for the evening. Mindy grinned, allowing her right hand to confirm that her hidden Glock 43 and the small knife were secure. Dave was not exactly unarmed either – only he could hide something a lot bigger than a Glock 43. In his pants, he had an awesome loaded weapon. NO! Not that – it was loaded alright and it was awesome, but it was reserved for Mindy and only Mindy. Blushing at the thought of what Dave had in his pants, Mindy climbed into the back of the Phantom and moved over to the far side. Dave followed, and he took her hand as she rested it on the armrest between them.

Mindy grinned as she firmly squeezed her partner's hand – Mindy scowled; it had been a hard squeeze, only Dave did not even flinch – he just grinned.

..._...

The Rolls Royce swept into the access road for their restaurant and took a wide berth around the tight roundabout at the top where the doorman opened the rear door within a split-second of the enormous vehicle stopping.

"Welcome to The Savoy, sir, ma'am."

"Thank you, my good man," Dave replied in the most perfect English accent.

Mindy scowled, but she was enjoying the attention and as they were escorted inside by the Maître d' and then directly into the Savoy Grill and through to their reserved table. They sat at a table cum booth where they had a comfortable bench seat at right-angles to each other. Mindy was grinning fit to burst and her cheeks were very warm. Just about every male – and some females – in the restaurant were gazing at Mindy. Dave could understand why. She was showing a lot more of her perfect skin than was usual while the dress with the sparkling jewellery just set everything off perfectly. After they were seated, they were brought the extensive menu and Dave was passed the wine list. While Mindy and Dave did not drink as a rule – they were determined to enjoy the evening. Dave selected a £52 bottle of Prieure de Montezargue Rosé wine while they flicked through the menu. Mindy ordered a Cornish crab salad with brown crab mayonnaise and toast for her starter followed by a 10.5-oz Hereford beef sirloin steak with béarnaise sauce for her main course. Dave countered with Severn and Wye smoked salmon with soda bread for his starter and a slightly larger 14.1-oz Shorthorn rib-eye steak with a peppercorn sauce for his main course.

"This is awesome, Dave."

"Just the two of his – first time in a long time."

"It's been hell on earth these past few months. Between Stephanie being shot, FEAR, the pink bitch, then Vengeance – it's really pushing my sanity."

"You have sanity to push?" Dave quipped, receiving a nasty glare in return before Mindy giggled.

"Funny!"

"It's been hard, but we've got through it as a team; just like always, honey."

"Yeah," Mindy mused. "You've always had my back, Dave – ever since I was eleven. Here we are, eight years later, and I've been married for a year. When we married, we had just acquired a pair of little kids – now, we have four little monsters."

"You got that right!" Dave replied with a chuckle.

"What might Daddy think of me?"

"Poor old Damon – I think he'd be very pleased with how his only daughter has turned out . . . despite him turning her into a psychotic nutcase."

In a place between Heaven and Hell

"Psychotic nutcase!"

"Yes, Damon – you turned our daughter into a psychotic nutcase."

"I helped her learn to look after herself."

"She was five-years-old, Damon!"

"She has a point, Damon, old pal."

"Stay out of it, James."

"Hey, Damon, my boy is there too, remember?"

"One little mistake and I'm never allowed to forget it – maybe I should have taken the damn blue pill and gone straight to hell."

"Despite your 'mistake', Damon, Mindy has grown into a beautiful and amazing young woman," Kathleen Macready commented.

"So, what's the big deal?"

"What did I ever see in you, Damon!"

The Savoy

London, England

The starters were perfect, and Mindy was savouring every mouthful along with the precious time alone with her man.

Alone wasn't quite the term, considering that they were surrounded by dozens of other diners, however, everybody was busy at their own tables, paying attention to their fellow diners. Nobody paid any attention as Dave rang his fingers gently up Mindy's right arm causing her to giggle and drop a chunk of Cornish crab off her fork. For Dave, seeing Mindy smiling and carefree was a rarity. Mindy carried so much on her young shoulders that she rarely had time to herself. When she was not planning the downfall of an enemy such as FEAR, she was chasing around after four wild kids, three mad dogs, and a crazy cat. There was a lot going on in Chicago, but just as much in Europe. Just taking one night off was worth its weight in gold. From a more serious point of view, Dave was worried for what remained of his wife's sanity and he was concerned that she was taking on far too much. The stress of the previous months had taken its toll on Mindy, and Dave knew that at some stage, she might collapse under the burden placed upon her.

The lovely young woman who sat to his left was the most perfect female he had ever laid eyes on. She had the most gorgeous green eyes he had ever seen, and they entranced him – they always had. He could remember those same green eyes glaring up at him in Safehouse A when they were preparing to assault the D'Amico penthouse. Though he had been scared out of his wits back then, those eyes had been mesmerising. It had been them that had given him the strength to overcome his abject fear at what lay ahead that night. As the years had passed and Mindy had grown, the eyes had remained the same – mesmerizing. Even when there had been a period of time where they had rarely seen one another, those eyes had still filled him with warmth each time Mindy had passed him in the school corridor – on the few times she actually attended while she was upgrading young Hit Girl to the teenaged Hit Girl at Safehouse C.

Dave had always been a geek – one of those kids who only had other geeks as a friend – and as such he had rarely come into contact with the opposite sex. Somehow, he had managed to land the most outrageous female possible. Okay, she was a geek too, but she was so much more. Beyond Mindy being Hit Girl, she was also so very unlike any other girl Dave had ever met. Whereas every other girl Dave had met was normal, Mindy was . . . well, she was different – but in a very good way. Dave loved her more than anything and he would protect her with his life. Everything which she did was perfect and executed with precision – Mindy did nothing without a plan which considered every conceivable outcome. He could see her mind working as she ate, enjoying each morsel. He could see her eyes darting about the restaurant and he knew that she was gauging the other diners, looking out for every conceivable problem. He knew that Mindy had scoped out all routes of escape should things go wrong. He also knew that most of the time, Mindy had no idea she was even doing it – it had been ingrained into her psyche so perfectly by her father during her training which had begun fourteen years before.

Mindy grinned up at Dave as she finished the very last of her Cornish Crab.

..._...

Dave was no longer the young man she had met, all those years ago, frightened to death as she had happily sliced and diced at Rasul's.

He may not have taken the leap of faith on the roof of that apartment, but he had taken a ginormous leap of faith that night after her father had died. Without him, she would no longer exist. From the very moment she had first laid eyes on Kick-Ass, she had been mesmerised by him – not that she had been able to figure out why, back then. Of course, she had been too young to understand crushes and such like. She was trained to maim and kill, not to understand emotions - she was trained to bury emotions or, where necessary, to use those emotions against her foes. She knew nothing of the outside world or how to live. Her Daddy had fed her, and he had always taken care of anything and everything outside their safehouse. Then it had all crumbled and she had been thrust into the real world where she had discovered that while she was highly skilled and could kill a man in any one of a hundred different and creative ways, she could not care for herself. Her time with Marcus had shown her that she could not even cook. Making hot chocolate had been her limit. She had even struggled with the damn microwave – that had taken some getting used to – and she had quickly learnt never to put anything metallic into the microwave.

Dave's hand touched hers and it was like she had been electrocuted. She could not understand how his simply touching her could have such an effect as almost rendering her unable to move. However, she enjoyed the touch more than she could ever know. Dave gave balance to her life, a balance that prevented her from regressing into something horrible. That had been allowed to happen, just the once – never again. His scintillating blue eyes flickered around the room and back to her – always back to her. She loved having Dave look at her. She loved having him focus on her. Her skin tingled, and she felt pangs of longing for him. He was everything that was good about her life. He kept her sane and he prevented her from taking on too much. She could not help it – she had to act, and she had to see things through to the very end, that was her nature. With Dave by her side, she had risen from the orphaned child of a man who had allowed the death of his wife to take over his life, to a powerful young woman who commanded a decisive force of vigilantes and protected not just a single city but also stretched her influence across the Atlantic Ocean. Mindy Lizewski née Macready was a young woman with the world at her feet. She had everything which a woman might want. She had an awesome home, a gorgeously handsome husband, four perfect(-ish) kids, a hoard of wild animals as pets, and many friends – not to mention gaining a mother who came with a little sister who was nuttier than a fruit cake with extra nuts.

The starter had been consumed with little in the way of speech – they had mastered the ability to communicate with each other silently, a long time ago.

..._...

The steaks came out exactly two minutes after they had finished their starter.

"Oh, wow!" Mindy exclaimed as she saw her meal arrive. "Damn, that smells good!"

"Yes, it does," Dave agreed emphatically as he examined his own steak.

Mindy dived in like she had not eaten in a month – the girl had a large appetite and she could pile away enormous meals without putting on a pound. As they ate, they chatted, until about mid-way through their steaks when Mindy put down her knife and fork. She took a large sip of wine before looking across at her husband. Dave instinctively put down his own eating irons and he took the opportunity to gaze into the gorgeous green eyes of his wife knowing that she had something to say.

"Dave."

"Mindy."

"I love you with all my heart and you have made me the happiest woman alive. I just want to thank you for taking me as your wife. I want to thank you for putting up with me all these years – I know it cannot have been easy . . . I don't give a crap about what my Daddy thinks about you – I love you and that is all that is important. The day our lives first crossed was the best moment of my life and don't regret a moment – well, maybe a few moments when you weren't there to protect me. No matter what you do, you make me the happiest I can be. Whenever I am blue – you are there to talk to, or just for me to cry on. Whenever things get too much, you are there to ease the burden on my shoulders. You make me so proud to be your wife and I know that no matter what, you will be there to protect not just me, but our entire family. More than once you have put yourself bodily between me and danger – at the time, I may sound ungrateful, but right now, I want to say I thank you for each and every time you have saved my life. I love you Dave Lizewski. The day you pushed this ring onto my finger was the best day of my life. Happy Anniversary, Dave."

Mindy held up her left hand and the diamond ring on her third finger twinkled in the lights. Mindy's smile was enough to make Dave wish for the meal to be over so that they could return to their hotel room. He reached out and clasped Mindy's hands. His own wedding ring, a simple gold band, evident on the same finger of his left hand.

"Mindy, you are the catch of a lifetime and I have never regretted my time with you – even the parts where you almost broke my ribs! You've taught me so much and I am still learning things from you. You are the strongest person I know, and you are beautiful. I would always put myself between you and danger – most of the time it winds you up and I love that. I can never get enough of you, Mindy, and I will never get tired of you. Every month we face a different challenge and you rise to that challenge without complaint. I married a woman powerful in her own right. I married a woman who is never afraid to speak her mind – even if what she has to say is often crude and unbecoming. I love you for your little tantrums – whether that is over a Chicago pizza or because you find yourself doing something you are not very good at. If simply being obnoxious featured in the Olympic games, you would always get the gold medal. There is nobody I would rather have by my side, no matter what the occasion. Mindy Lizewski, I love you more than anything else and I would not trade you for anything. Happy Anniversary, Mindy."

Surprisingly for Mindy, she was lost for words and her face had gone very pink.

In a place between Heaven and Hell

Damon and James were playing cards while their wives, Kathleen and Alice, were chatting.

There was a tentative knock on the door of their shared apartment. Neither man moved. Alice just shook her head as she got up to answer the door.

"Welcome, we've been expecting you," Alice said as she waved in the newcomers.

"It's getting damn crowded around here, Damon!" James observed as three people entered the living room.

"We're gonna need a goddamn hotel at this rate, James," Damon chuckled in reply.

"For goodness sake, James!" Alice growled. "They never asked to be part of our little club – let them be."

"Behave, Damon – if you know what's good for you!" Kathleen added.

"What you gonna do, honey?" Damon laughed before continuing in a sarcastic tone. "Kill me?"

"If only I could," Kathleen muttered as she turned to the first two newcomers. "Welcome! You must be the parents of Stephanie and Jamie – the eyes match perfectly."

"And you must be the father of Anne-Marie and Daniel," Alice said to the other newcomers.

The newcomers appeared a little unsure of themselves.

"Where exactly are we?" Jocelyn Reeman asked.

"You are the latest members of the 'my kid is a fucking nutcase club'," Damon offered with a chuckle.

"Damon!" Kathleen growled.

"To be honest, I have no idea where we are," Alice replied. "I believe that we are here to oversee our children and ensure that no harm comes to them."

"Yeah – I stopped them getting blown up a few months back," Damon threw in, ignoring the unamused expression of his wife.

"Any space for me?" a voice called from the door and a tall woman entered.

"You got a nutcase for a kid?"

"DAMON!"

"I have actually. She sees your daughter as her best friend, Mr Macready."

"You know who I am?" Damon asked.

"You and Mindy share many features and traits. However, she makes a much better parent."

Damon scowled while Kathleen just chuckled at the cruel put down which had shut her husband up – no mean feat in itself.

"Oooh!" James chuckled. "Right in the kisser!"

"Sorry about my dick of a husband," Kathleen said bluntly. "I'm Kathleen, Mindy's mother."

"The resemblance is uncanny. Catherine Bennett – please call me Cathy."

"Could somebody please tell me what is going on?" Ed Jamieson demanded.

"It seems that there is a special place, between Heaven and Hell, that is reserved for the likes of us – we are ghosts, I suppose," Kathleen replied. "We watch over our earthly kin and protect them where we can. We cannot intervene – at least not directly, only Damon has managed on at least one occasion."

"I do what I can to protect my psychologically damaged daughter."

"You want to check on your children?" Kathleen asked the newcomers, ignoring Damon completely. "Ed – you first."

...++...

The apartment faded, and a young girl became visible.

"Anne-Marie!" Ed exclaimed.

The youngster was in a bedroom and she was evidently searching for something. The bedroom did not appear to be that of a little girl – more it appeared to be a boy's bedroom.

"That is not her bedroom," James observed.

"What are you doing in here?" a voice called out.

"Daniel!" Ed exclaimed.

"You have two super kids there, Ed," James commented.

"They've really grown," Ed replied – he had not seen them in over a year.

"They are doing really well, and they love their new family," Cathy commented.

"Jamie is going to kill you," Danny commented as she watched his sister ferreting around for something. "What are you looking for?"

"He took my headphones – I want them back."

"You certain he took 'em?"

"Who else?"

"You looked down in the living room where you usually leave all your junk?" Danny asked.

"I don't leave everything down there," Anne-Marie replied indignantly.

"I would suggest you go check first, before invading somebody's privacy," Danny suggested.

"He'll never know. . ."

"That's what you think," Jamie commented as he appeared behind the smirking Danny.

"Oops," Anne-Marie commented as the eight-year-old fled down the spiral stairs into her brother's bedroom and then out the door.

"That was Jamie!" Mark Reeman exclaimed.

"Where's Stephanie?" Jocelyn Reeman asked.

...++...

The view faded again and reformed into that of a hotel room.

Stephanie was seated on a couch beside a young woman and both were laughing hysterically. They were watching a movie on the television and there was popcorn scattered around what appeared to be the remnants of a Chinese takeaway.

"Oh, my God!" Jocelyn exclaimed. "What happened to her hair?"

"Long story," Cathy commented.

"She appears to be having fun," Mark observed. "Who's she with?"

"That's a young Royal Navy pilot, Keira Sharp," Cathy explained. "She is a part of Vengeance, the British arm of Fusion."

"You've lost us," Mark commented.

"That would be what my old partner would call 'the fucked-up superhero club!'" Damon chuckled dryly.

"What about my daughter?" Cathy asked.

...++...

Again, things faded, and they found themselves in a kitchen.

A small girl of maybe eight-years-old was seated at a table and awaiting her lunch – a knife and fork held vertically in eager anticipation. She was not to be disappointed as a steaming plate of food was put before the youngster.

"Dig in, Becky," Joshua directed.

"What is it?" Becky asked as she prodded the tall item on her plate.

"Steak and kidney pudding – try it," Joshua replied.

"I am not eating kidneys!"

"No kidneys – no ice-cream," Chloe directed.

Becky groaned, and she pouted.

"It's chocolate ice-cream," Joshua offered as he sat down and dug into his own plate.

Becky prodded the pudding until the sides split and dark gravy spilled out over Becky's chips and peas. The youngster grimaced as she spied a kidney.

"They call these 'babies heads' in the Royal Navy," Joshua commented. "My Dad called them that too."

"That's disgusting!" Becky commented as she took a tentative nibble at a piece of kidney before eating the whole thing.

"Was that okay?" Chloe asked.

Becky grinned.

"It was good," the girl commented as she dug around for another piece of kidney. "Do I still get ice-cream, Mum?"

"Yes, Peanut."

Cathy wiped away a few tears from her eyes as she watched her daughter with her family.

"A perfect little family, Cathy," Damon commented. "I've seen your daughter in action and I've watched her keeping Mindy in line. I apologise for my comment earlier. Chloe's alright in my book."

Cathy appeared surprised, as did Kathleen, and the two women exchanged an approving glance.

Author's Note: If you get squeamish where graphic sexual references are concerned then please read no further and I would suggest that you go read the My Little Pony fan fiction instead.

The Shard

London, England

Mindy giggled as Dave swept her off her feet and through the door to their suite.

Dave dropped her – yes, he dropped her – onto the thick rug on the floor in the living room. Mindy let out a little scream as she fell the two feet, but she had no problems with rough handling and she just lay there as Dave took off his jacket and threw it onto the sofa along with his bow-tie. Mindy groaned as she stared up at her man – was that his pistol or was he just pleased to see her, Mindy thought? Mindy kicked off her shoes as Dave knelt down, a knee either side of her legs. She felt her heartbeat quickening and her breathing increased – she moaned, audibly, and Dave grinned. Dave knew exactly what he was doing, and Mindy knew it. She knew what was ahead of her and the mere thought of what Dave was going to do to her both scared her and enthralled her. She jumped as his fingers touched her legs, just below her knees. The mischievous look on his face filled Mindy with foreboding and unbidden she squeezed her thighs together, trying to control the irresistible feeling which was growing between them.

Dave's fingers moved over her knees and she trembled. God! What was he doing to her? Mindy just lay back and she focussed everything on controlling her arousal and making it last as long as possible before that crippling orgasm engulfed her. The excitement was building – that was an emotion she had never been able to control and right at that moment it was taking control of her body and her thoughts. Mindy moaned as she felt her body changing in response to Dave's foreplay. Her bra was feeling a little tight as her breasts began to enlarge and she was sure her rock-hard nipples were going to drill through the soft cotton of the bra. She squeezed her thighs even tighter together as she felt the blood pounding into her clit, erecting the organ and increasing its sensitivity ten-fold. Her body was on automatic and Mindy had no control over what was happening on her chest, nor what was happening between her legs where she could feel her labia tingling as they adjusted, and the wetness began. Her breathing was quickening, and her heart was threatening to pound its way out of her chest. Her hands dug into the thick rug beneath her while her toes flexed and twisted as she fought through the sensations which her husband was causing.

Mindy yelped as she felt fingers moving under her dress and up her thighs. However, Dave did not stop at her groin, he continued upwards and her tummy trembled at the touch of his hands. Mindy had not noticed it, but Dave had been gathering up the dress and he was gently sliding it up her body, exposing his wife's long and shapely legs, then her thighs, her groin, and her stomach. She closed her eyes as she suddenly became aware of the dress' movement and she gulped as she realised how much she was exposed. She could feel goose bumps on each section of freshly exposed skin as the fresh air touched it. Then she felt the dress pass over her head and she allowed Dave to pull the dress off her arms and he threw it onto the sofa, on top of his jacket and bow-tie. Mindy trembled at the thought that she wore nothing but skimpy panties and a bra. Her nipples actually grew harder – if that were actually possible – and her arousal was like nothing she had ever experienced before.

With her eyes closed, she had to rely on her senses. She could feel Dave close to her. She could feel his clothing on her skin. She could smell him – his scent was a major turn-on for her. Then she felt his lips on her own and she pushed her tongue into a conflict with his own and they kissed for several minutes like they were one. As they broke apart, Hit Girl turned up and Dave found himself lying on his back with his scantily-clad wife beaming down at him. Mindy gripped him tightly between her thighs, her aroused vulva just inches from the large bulge in his pants. She licked her lips as she carefully unbuttoned his white shirt, exposing his chest to her fingers. She ruffled the hair on his manly chest, gently caressing his own nipples. Dave, in turn, reached up and he gently massaged Mindy's breasts through the bra including the nipples which were readily visible despite being covered. Dave expertly reached behind his wife and with a singularly deft movement, he released the catch and the bra fell off, joining the dress and other discarded garments.

Dave grinned as his wife's uppermost assets became visible above him – damn, she really was aroused, he thought as he tentatively touched a bare nipple. Mindy yelped and groaned. She threw back her head as Dave grasped both breasts and he ran his thumbs over the deeply-red nipples. Dave could see her chest moving quickly with each breath and the breathing increased in rhythm as he tweaked the nipples and massaged the breasts. The breasts were very warm and despite their compact size, Dave loved them, and he caressed their silky softness beneath his hands. Mindy was fighting through the ecstasy of Dave's movements, so she was unable to prevent him from twisting her and pushing her down into the rug. He quickly pulled off his shirt, throwing it away and kicking off his shoes. He returned to the breasts with their pert nipples and he began to kiss them and gently nuzzle each nipple with his lips before taking in Mindy's left nipple into his mouth and gently licking the tip with his tongue.

Mindy strained as she struggled with her increasing arousal. Then she felt a moments relief as Dave moved from one nipple to the other and it began again. Mindy loved the moistness of her nipples as the cool air in the room swept across them, stiffening them enough that Mindy thought they might explode. Dave released the nipple, much to Mindy's annoyance and relief. The conflicting emotions were suddenly replaced by intrigue as Dave moved down to her stomach, kissing as he went. Mindy knew where he was headed and that thought appeared to increase the wetness between her legs and she knew that her panties had to be soaked through. Dave himself was intoxicated by Mindy's scent. Her body smelt and tasted so good. The aroma of Mindy's nether regions lured him ever closer. He could smell her wetness and he knew that she was lubricated as hell and ready for the next phase of the operation – only, Dave was not giving her that . . . not straight away.

Dave laid a hand on Mindy's groin – damn! She was hotter than the fires of Hell. She was also as wet as a pussy that had just fallen in a river. Dave dug his fingers into the waistband of her panties and he peeled the sodden garment from her skin. Mindy lifted her bottom off the rug for Dave to remove the panties completely. They swept down her long, long legs, over the pistol which still sat in its slim holster strapped to her left thigh, and then flew across the suite to strike the capacious floor to ceiling windows where, for a brief moment, they stuck before slowly sliding down the glass before they landed on the writing desk. However, nobody was watching the soaked panties, Mindy was staring straight up at the discretely lit ceiling as Dave stared straight at Mindy's exposed vulva with its covering of dark blonde pubic hair. He grinned as he ran his fingers through the pubic hair, coming very close to Mindy's labia but not quite touching them. The teasing caused Mindy's midriff to buck in Dave's direction, desperate for more. Dave relented, and his finger ran down Mindy's labia causing an explosion of movement and moaning.

Dave's fingers traced circles on the soft skin of Mindy's muscular but understated thighs, moving upwards and instinctively, she spread her legs to allow Dave better access. Dave's finger pushed through the moist folds of Mindy's labia and onwards. He could see her thighs tensing and trembling as he gently ran his finger upwards and Mindy screamed as he touched her clit.

"Please!" she begged.

Dave leaned down and he kissed Mindy just above her clit causing her to shudder as he gently moved lower and he began to tease her clit with his tongue – God! She tasted so good, he thought. Each thrust of his tongue had Mindy moaning and her thighs bucking, and after a full minute, Mindy screamed as the orgasm built and built, deep within her loins. Dave leapt backwards as Mindy's powerful thighs snapped together and the naked young woman curled up into a ball as the orgasm struck her full force. Dave gently ran his fingers down his wife's bare spine as she shook, his hands moving down her body and then across her firm but soft buttocks and onto her thighs.

It was another few minutes before Mindy carefully unfolded herself and she looked up at her husband.

..._...

"I thought . . . I was going to fucking . . . snap in two, Dave."

"I think they heard your scream in Edinburgh!"

Mindy giggled, out of breath from all her exertions. She sat up and Dave chuckled. Mindy's thighs were still shuddering from the muscle spasms and her discrete breasts jiggled slightly as the rest of her body tried to contain its shuddering. Yet again, she knew that she had selected the right man to be her lifelong partner. Her love for him grew every day and right at that moment, her love for Dave was at its highest ever. She also knew that she had to return the favour as the bulge in Dave's trousers had to very uncomfortable. So, with a few deep breaths to compose herself, she forced herself onto her knees and despite the shaking of her legs, she began to attack Dave's trousers as he too knelt before her. Her tingling fingers fought to remove his belt and then undo the button of his trousers.

For Dave, Mindy looked awesome. There she was, naked, but for her wedding ring, engagement ring, jewellery, a pistol in a holster on her left thigh, and a small knife attached to the same holster. She was the epitome of Hit Girl – armed and lethal, despite being completely naked. She was beautiful as she knelt there, sweat glistening on her perfect skin. Dave could see the various scars which littered her otherwise unblemished body. She was an example of the perfect woman. Her body was lean with very little fat and large amounts of muscle. Just the mere sight of her as she was, naked and beautiful, was having a major effect on him and he was glad that Mindy was about to release that which was threatening to thrust out of his trousers. It was with great relief that his trousers sank to gather around his knees. He saw the corners of Mindy's mouth twitch and her hands tremble with anticipation as she gently eased Dave's boxers over the organ which threatened to poke out on of Mindy's eyes.

The twitching of Mindy's mouth turned into a full-blown grin as her husband's genitalia were laid open for her inspection. There were times when she struggled to understand how something so large could fit inside her. Indeed, Dave did fill her, each and every time. His dick glistened at the tip as a thin liquid seeped out. Mindy did not hesitate as she took him in deep, stopping before she choked herself. She could feel his fingers teasing her hard nipples as his breathing increased and she could almost hear his heart beating harder, pumping blood into his penis as she sucked and licked it into submission. Mindy loved being in control and she knew that Dave had significant concerns about Hit Girl's teeth being so close to something so very important to him. However, Mindy would never hurt something so very important to herself – she not only loved her husband, she also loved his penis and what it was able to do to her. She had been penetrated by knives and bullets, but only Dave's penis caused her to almost die out of erotic pleasure.

Within her mouth, she could taste the salt of Dave's sweat, and the sweet taste of the seminal fluid which was leaking out. She felt her man trembling as her ministrations brought him closer and closer to his explosive climax. To Mindy, it was like disarming a bomb and not knowing when it might explode in your face without any warning. Dave's penis was just the same. No matter how she tried to predict the moment of orgasm, she had never managed it and was almost always caught unawares as either her throat was filled, or her face was covered. Mindy enjoyed the feel and taste of semen – it was icky and sometimes gross, but she loved it. The only substance she enjoyed better than semen was the feel and smell of blood. She almost missed it as Dave groaned loudly and then suddenly, her throat was burning from the hot fluid which erupted from Dave's penis. She pulled backwards in shock and received a second burst directly into her face. Quickly, she swallowed what was already in her mouth, so that she could breathe and then she took his penis back into her mouth and she sucked it clean before releasing the almost limp penis as Dave fell onto his backside on the rug.

Mindy cuddled into Dave and before they knew it, both fell asleep, right there on the rug in the living room.

The following morning

Thursday, November 3rd

Dave stirred first, feeling the slight chill on his naked body.

Beside him, his equally naked wife lay fast asleep, her face covered in dried semen. He needed to pee, so he got to his feet and shrugged off the last leg of his discarded trousers. He pulled off his socks and emptied his bladder into the toilet. He figured that he needed a shower, so he dived under the hot water in the enormous shower. He had barely rinsed off his sweaty body before he felt hands on his chest and Mindy hugged him from behind.

"Hi, hunk!" she said as she quickly washed her face under the stream of hot water before kissing her man full on the lips.

Dave could still taste the saltiness of his semen on her tongue – not that he cared any. They kissed and kissed, and Dave could feel his penis getting into the act as blood was diverted south. Mindy grinned and giggled as she gently rubbed her hand up and down his vertical member. After several minutes of foreplay, Dave picked Mindy up and allowed her to slide onto him, his penis slipping easily into her already aroused vagina. Mindy's long legs wrapped around his waist tightly, her arms around his neck. Dave carried Mindy out of the shower and slammed her against the floor to ceiling window which overlooked the River Thames. His pelvis flexed as he pushed his penis in and out of his wife's vagina, increasing the pace as Mindy moaned. Dave followed suit, still tender from just a few hours previously. Then they were on the heated marble floor of the bathroom, Dave pounding into Mindy like there was to be no tomorrow. Mindy's fingernails dug deep into Dave's back, adding to the myriad of similar markings from the night before.

Mindy screamed and screamed as an orgasm hit her like a freight train into a truck on a railroad crossing. As she orgasmed, her vagina contracted onto Dave's penis and the extra force caused him to ejaculate his load into Mindy. Dave groaned with the force of the ejaculation and he kissed his wife on the lips.

"Happy Birthday, Mindy."

"I love you . . . so very much," Mindy panted.

*This storyline continues in Chapter 47: Moving On of Vengeance.

Chapter 355*: Redemption

Author's Note: This chapter follows on from Chapter 47: Moving On of my other story: Vengeance.

Saturday, November 5th, 2016

Chicago, USA

Northwestern Memorial Hospital
Room 32

Stephanie had ventured into the city with Shannon before eight that morning.

There was a lot to get done during the day, but Stephanie did not want to miss visiting her best friend in the entire world. Shannon also saw Saoirse as a best friend but for different reasons. Stephane and Shannon got on well, despite the age gap. They both had something, or rather someone, in common.

"I spent months with Jamie and now I'm spending time with his big sister," Shannon commented.

"You can't stay away from us, can you?" Stephanie replied.

"At least you're not as annoying as he is," Shannon pointed out.

"I can be . . . Stormy."

"Steph!"

"Sorry – I'm in a weird mood."

"She's going to be okay – she always survives."

The girl in question opened her eyes and she smiled as she recognised her friends.

"Hi," she said simply.

She was obviously tired and strained. Stephanie knew what it felt like to wake up in the same dreary hospital room and then having to face another day of pain, drugs, people smiling, pain, drugs, people being nice to you, pain, drugs, and a bit more pain followed by some more drugs. Stephanie took a moment to peer under the duvet.

"How do I look, down there," Saoirse asked.

Stephanie's cheeks went a dark shade of pink.

"Just seeing if you were still plugged in," she said quickly. "I was just curious as I never saw what they did to me, but I did see Harper and wanted to compare. Looks the same really apart from Harper doesn't have any hair."

"Yes, I am still plugged in. I've not left the bed since I woke up here a few weeks back."

"How are your legs?" Shannon asked.

"Right one is painful – that's got the broken tibia, four inches below the knee. That's in plaster and is heavy. My left thigh is sore when I move but the bruising has subsided quite a bit. They say that I can try walking later this week."

"Great!" Stephanie announced.

"Yeah – really great news," Shannon added.

"Would you both be here when I try . . . please?"

Stephanie and Shannon both nodded. They could see the pain in Saoirse's eyes and they knew that their presence would give her the boost which she needed to push through any pain.

"Whatever it takes, SD," Stephanie replied with a cheeky grin.

"What she said," Shannon added. "You were there for the both of us, when we really needed you, so we want to return the favour."

"Thanks . . . I hate it in here. I miss you both. I miss my friends."

Shannon winced as Saoirse began to cry.

Later that morning

Training Centre Echo Level 0 – Primary Training Area

The massed forces of Fusion stood around the raised walkway which surrounded the capacious mat.

Everyone was in their duty uniform with all carrying a sidearm. Even the animals were present – Wildcat included. Hit Girl stepped forwards with Kick-Ass. Behind them, Shadow and Jackal stood as their lieutenants, representing the authority within Fusion. Also, present, were Battle Guy and Hal. To the left, was Leopard Squad, currently led by Wildcat in lieu of the injured Foxtail. To the right, was Jaguar Squad, led by Petra. On the mat, facing the two squads, and their leaders, Panther Squad, led by Torment stood with the dogs, led by Eisenhower.

"Some of the more astute amongst you will have noticed the promotions. We welcome Shadow and Jackal to the rank of Commander where they will provide tactical support to the squads. That leaves gaps in the lower ranks, therefore, Petra and Foxtail are promoted to Sub-Commanders and in command of Jaguar and Leopard respectively. Then, I suffered a major lapse in judgement and promoted Wildcat to Senior Operator . . . along with Raven – who actually deserved it."

Laughter greeted Hit Girl's announcement and Wildcat scowled as everybody looked in her general direction. Once the merriment had calmed down, Kick-Ass stepped forwards.

"You may also have noticed a successor for Medic. We welcome aboard, Jennifer as SURGEON. She will head the Medical Support Department here. Please make her feel welcome as the newest member of Fusion. "We have also brought aboard three others who all participated in the battle with distinction. The Predators amongst you will know of Piranha. She will be a senior operator and she will head the new Cougar Squad. Her direct subordinate will be Stormtide. Stormtide will be replaced in Leopard by Fortune, another of our new members. The third new member of Cougar will be Ember. Over time, we will add more members to Cougar as they are promoted."

Kick-Ass stepped forwards.

"As many of will know, we fought a group of former Predators who we knew as Marauders," he began.

There was some very unpleasant murmurings and crude comments from most present, not just the former Predators.

"This afternoon, we will be taking custody of sixteen Marauders," Dave continued. "We have been asked to rehabilitate them. After a lot of thought, and discussions with senior Predators, we have decided to see to their punishment and rehabilitation. It will be hard on them, very hard, and we ask for all of you to assist. For most of you, masks will be worn whenever a Marauder is on deck. Certain of you are known to them, for varying reasons, and you will interact with the Marauders, unmasked. Now, we come to the unpleasant part. Any Marauder who attempts to escape will be dealt with most severely and lethal force is authorised to prevent their escape. Some of them will be happy to be rehabilitated but we are certain that some will not. This will be a long road but if it means that these sixteen youngsters can regain what is left of their childhoods and live to a good old age, we have to try."

"Psyche and Piranha will be leading the rehabilitation," Hit Girl went on. "If there are any volunteers who would like to help, please see either one of them. Now, we have a city to protect and we have a job to do. Jaguar will be deploying at eight tonight."

With that, Hit Girl strode towards the Command Bunker.

That afternoon

Safehouse E

Level 8 – Detention Level

"This level hasn't been used in decades," Mindy explained. "But it's the only place I could find that was both secure and where we could house sixteen troubled kids."

"Troubled?" Stephanie queried.

"Predators are troubled, right?" Mindy responded.

"I suppose we are, yes?" Stephanie replied, looking up at Lucy.

"I'd go along with that," Lucy confirmed.

The elevator 'dinged' as it stopped.

"Predator Level," Stephanie quipped as Mindy scowled.

"I'll be watching – you two behave and play nice with the other kids," Mindy chuckled as she pushed open the door to a monitoring suite.

"Ignore her," Stephanie said to Lucy. "She likes to be a funny bitch from time to time."

"You're fucking nuts, Steph!" Lucy laughed.

..._...

There were three spaces which were suitable for a very rapid conversion into secure accommodation and within that accommodation, sixteen youngsters awaited their fate.

There was a fairly equal split, seven girls and nine boys. The boys were all in the larger space, together, while the girls were split into two groups of four and three. The group of three girls included the still mildly simmering Willow who was still recovering from her injury, and the two other sixteen-year-old girls, Carrie Milligan and Kate Fincham. All three had been pressed into the First Intake, back in September of 2010, at the tender age of ten. The remaining girls varied between the youngest of all the recovered Marauders, eight-year-old Xiāngxìn Lau, through her eleven-year-old sister, Lin Lau, and onto the wounded Charlotte Grey who was twelve-years-old and Dakota Warlow-Davies who was fourteen-years-old. The boys varied in ages from twelve-year-old Jake Wistrum to sixteen-year-olds, Joel Burnell and Jay Hilton. In between, there was a pair of thirteen-year-olds: James Todd and Jesse Dolan, and four fourteen-year-olds: Kieran Brennan, Dylan Page, Ewan Campbell, and Lucas Charlton.

Lucy and Stephanie both ignored the mixed expressions that greeted them as they entered the communal space which connected the three accommodation spaces.

..._...

Throughout the early afternoon, the kids had been collected from their various prison accommodations, throughout Chicago, and brought to Safehouse K, blindfolded and via dubious routes.

At Safehouse K, they had each received an independent and very invasive strip search at the hands of Nightmare and Shadow. Each youth had then been transported to Safehouse E and their new accommodations – blindfolded, of course. None of them had taken to their new accommodations which were basic, to say the least, but they had limited privacy, hot showers, clean toilets, and no obvious guards.

All in all, it was much better accommodations than any of them actually deserved.

..._...

Jake Wistrum sidled up to Stephanie.

"Hi, hot stuff – how about you and me. . ."

The boy stopped talking as Stephanie seized him between the legs – he squeaked.

"Do you want to lose this pathetic excuse for a dick?" she growled.

"No," the boy squeaked as Stephanie's face went pink.

"Are you getting hard?" Stephanie hissed before she punched the twelve-year-old in the stomach and she took his legs out from under him. "Dirty fuck!"

"Is there. . ." Jake coughed. "Any other kind. . .?"

"That is a prime example of behaviour which will not be tolerated!" Stephanie shouted. She was angry, and she recognised minor embarrassment in some of the faces before her. "Most of you will know who Lucy Ford is, and some of you will know who I am."

Stephanie ignored the very unfriendly glare from Willow as she continued in an angry tone.

"Over the years, you have all been hurt and you have all been forced to do bad things. All of you have killed and I know that some of you regret your actions – deep down. Now, I don't give a flying fuck if you detest Lucy, here . . . or if you want to kill me – everybody wants to kill me; I'm used to it. Anybody wants to damn well try; I'll take the bastard on and I will fucking tear them limb from FUCKING LIMB!"

Stephanie took a deep breath as she forced herself to calm down.

"I won't demand respect from any of you, however, I am one of those who will be watching your progress and I will be part of the team who will decide if any of your dumb fucks should be allowed out of here, this side of forty. Another thing; you will each be tagged."

That generated muttering.

"That is not negotiable. Don't try to remove them, either. Hit Girl designed them, herself. However, should you feel you won't miss your left foot then, please, go ahead and remove it. Now, Lucy will hand each one of you a bag. Inside that bag you will find three T-shirts, three pairs of shorts, six sets of underwear – boxers for the boys and boy-shorts/sports-bras for the girls – six pairs of socks, two pairs of trainers – running shoes for you Yanks – two swimsuits: one piece, no bikinis, two pairs of joggers, and two sweatshirts. Now, you all have twenty minutes to go get your sorry arses changed and to report back here. You are here under punishment, so expect a lot of crap over the next few weeks. You fuck up, we hand you over to the Federal Government – they want to try you idiots as adults and then incarcerate you in an adult jail. We are here to give you all a chance at enjoying what's left of your childhood and the rest of your godforsaken lives. Have I got your full attention, now?"

There were muttered 'yes' comments.

"Well?" Stephanie yelled. "FUCKING MOVE!"

Even the sixteen-year-olds bolted for their bags and ran back to their accommodation.

Training Centre Echo Level 4 – Exercise Area

The location had been carefully selected due to its proximity to the Training Facility, more specifically Level Four.

The route for the kids was short and would be of no use to them should they wish to escape their enforced captivity. The sixteen Marauders were lined up bedside the climbing wall. There was a mixture of awe and concern as they looked around the enormous space. Over to one side, beside the #1 vehicle elevator, a small portacabin rested. One at a time, each Marauder was taken into the portacabin by a male or female vigilante where they met Surgeon and were then fitted with their ankle monitor during a brief medical check-up.

Carrie Milligan was sixteen-years-old and one of those taken in the First Intake. She knew Lucy from first-hand experience. She could remember the girl who had controlled them. Now she was much older, but obviously still a bitch. The girl pulled her sports-bra back on after the humiliating medical – she was used to them; she was a Predator. She laughed at herself – she was no longer a Predator; she was a Marauder and she was not about to let her life be decided by Lucy, nor that jumped up ten-year-old bitch. After pulling on her trainers, the American teenager placed her left foot on a chair as indicated and a masked girl secured a black ankle monitor to Carrie's ankle.

"Don't try to remove it," the masked girl advised in an electronically enhanced voice.

"I won't!"

"Thank you, Carrie," Surgeon said as she looked over towards Hal who ignored the other girl's attitude.

Hal was armed and there to protect Surgeon should anything get out of hand. As far as the sixteen-year-old veteran vigilante was concerned, the Marauders could all rot in cells for the rest of their miserable lives. She had several of them marked as trouble-makers already and as such, Battle Guy and Ember were watching the sixteen kids, like a pair of hawks observing their potential prey, from the Battle Bunker three stories above them.

..._...

Carrie was jeered by her fellow Marauders when they saw her appear with her new ankle accessory.

However, the jeering was short-lived as Dakota Warlow-Davies was ordered in the direction of the portacabin. The fourteen-year-old was watched from a few yards away by the masked form of Wildcat. The body language of the young vigilante was enough for the Marauder known as Firebrand to behave herself. Dakota was one of those who had decided to get her life back on track – whatever it took. None of the remaining Second Intake girls had survived – that she knew about, anyway. Three of the original nine girls were dead – one at the hands of that jumped up ten-year-old out there. One of the original nine boys was also dead, while another was a Marauder awaiting his fate just like she was. Four out of eighteen kids dead. However, Dakota had no idea that four more girls were accounted for, three in Chicago and one in San Diego along with another boy from the same intake.

There had been a lot of talk amongst the Marauders, once they had been allowed to mingle. There were some outspoken ones that wanted to escape, and Dakota had identified six trouble-makers. She had no idea what to do about them – she could not turn on them and tell, however, they could fuck it all up for everybody who wanted their lives back. Dakota, for one, never wanted to handle a weapon again, much less take another life. She was not alone in that sentiment, either. The Police had treated her like scum – but they were right; she was scum.

"You must be Dakota," Surgeon announced as the girl entered and closed the door behind her. "Strip to the skin, please."

Without a word, Dakota pulled off her clothing.

..._...

As the Marauders emerged from their medicals with their ankle monitors fitted, Psyche directed them onto the track for six laps each.

Part of the security was to keep them tired and exhausted – a Predator had a lot to give, even when exhausted, but not when incarcerated with nowhere to go. The youngster knew that some of those present would try to escape – it was in their blood and totally expected. The only question was when. Psyche knew that with her own training, things could have turned out differently and she could be one of those running around the track wearing a tracking monitor around their ankle, not knowing what lay ahead or if they might ever be free again. Part of her had sympathy for them – after all, they had had no choice when they had been pressed into service as preteen assassins. Only, they had had a choice when it came to becoming a Marauder. Only, their bloodlust would have controlled them. FEAR had offered them unlimited killing – something a Predator lived for. The temptation to join FEAR had been impossible for most to ignore.

Goddamn Urban Predator! Goddamn FEAR!

..._...

The two Seventh Intake girls had gone together - they were sisters, after all.

"Hello," Surgeon said.

The youngest Marauder was Xiāngxìn and she was only eight-years-old. Her sister, Lin, was just eleven-years-old. Neither girl fitted the image of a Marauder. Surgeon was certain that both girls had just been caught up in the situation. Indeed, both girls had surrendered rather than fight which was a positive mark for them both.

"If you would rather be seen individually, please say so," Surgeon advised the two youngsters.

"It is fine," Lin replied for both of them and her younger sister nodded.

"Okay, strip to the skin, please."

..._...

As they completed the six laps – 2,400-metres – they were each given a bottle of water and allowed to sit down to rest for a few minutes as their colleagues joined them.

The final Marauder to be seen was Jake, the youngest boy. Psyche knew that the boy was going to be trouble – the permanent shit-eating grin on his face said it all.

"Wistrum!" Psyche called out.

"Yes, ma'am!" the boy called out as he jumped to his feet.

Psyche just chuckled as she led the boy over to the main elevator.

"All of you, here!" she ordered and the remaining fifteen headed over.

Psyche took the bottle off the boy and threw it into the crowd of Marauders where a boy caught it.

"Wistrum, press the call button for the lift."

"Okay," the boy replied as he pressed the button and he immediately yelped.

"What happened, shit for brains?"

"I was shocked by my ankle monitor," he explained with a frown.

"Press the button again."

Wistrum winced as he followed instructions.

"Yaaah!"

"That shock was stronger, yes?" Psyche laughed.

"Yes."

"Press the button again."

Wistrum shook his head.

"The boy is a quick learner!" Psyche pointed out. "Press the button or we fit the monitor to that tiny dick of yours."

The boy's hand trembled as he reached out for the button and he pressed it.

With barely a sound, the boy crumpled to the ground as his legs folded beneath him. He glared up at Psyche, tears in his eyes.

"That was the first three levels – the monitor goes up to level eight. Jake, would you like to see level four?"

"No, ma'am," the boy replied in almost a mumble as he struggled to his feet, his left leg partially asleep.

"All of you, another lap," Psyche ordered as the Marauders laughed at Jake, although their expressions showed concern.

A few hours later

Safehouse E Level 8 – Detention Level

The sixteen kids were all but dead on their feet as they were finally released back to their accommodation.

It was easy to tell those kids who were not quite as fit as the others. Stephanie and Lucy followed them back.

"All of you – shower and get yourselves ready for bed. Food will be delivered in forty minutes. You will eat and then you will hit the sack," Lucy directed.

"No late-night TV?" Willow asked sarcastically.

Lucy walked up to Willow and just shook her head. Willow wisely backed down and stalked off for her shower. Forty minutes later, sixteen ravenous kids were seated at a long table with eight chairs on each side. Stephanie was standing in a corner, watching and ensuring that everybody was behaving. They each wore T-shirts and shorts, and most were barefoot. They all looked tired and Stephanie was pleased to see that some of them showed signs of having been crying. Lucy appeared just then, with Shannon and Sarah in tow. Neither were masked, and both received some nasty looks from several of the Marauders present; especially from Dylan Page and Kate Fincham, both of whom had enjoyed bating Shannon during her early weeks as a Predator.

"I don't give a flying fuck what you bastards think of me – however, if you want to eat then you'd better be nice!" Shannon growled as she passed out double-cheeseburgers and chips to all those present.

..._...

After ensuring that they had eaten, Shannon and Lucy ensured that each one of them made it to their bed.

Not surprisingly, all sixteen fell asleep within minutes of their heads hitting the pillows. After a brief check to ensure that they were all safe, the accommodation was secured. And the two girls headed up to their own accommodation for the night.

Elsewhere that same evening

Goose Island

Almost the moment that the Marauders had begun to eat, Stephanie had bolted over to Safehouse F and she had finished off preparing for her first night out on the town in a while.

It was suitably dark as she hit the streets alongside her partner for the evening. Psyche was an old hand with her red over blue Honda CRF250L motorcycle. On a scarlet but otherwise identical machine, her fiery friend, Fury, rode beside her. The pair had been trusted to go out alone – well, with backup about two minutes behind. Backup for the night was Hit Girl on her Ducati Superbike 1199 Panigale R and Shadow on her Ducati Superbike 899 Panigale.

The two girls rode side-by-side down North North Branch Street. Most of Goose Island was given over to commercial and industrial activity – the manmade island was also somewhere which produced a different product after dark. They took a right up North Cherry Avenue and proceeded past the factory and commercial units.

"This is fun, right?" Fury commented.

"It's great to be out," Psyche agreed.

For Fury, it was good to be out with her new friend. Not that long ago, she would never in her wildest dreams have ever expected to be out on patrol as a Fusion vigilante, let alone with her single most hated person on the planet, Psyche. Somehow, Psyche had gone from most hated person to most revered friend.

"Look!" Psyche called out as they approached West Division Street.

Fury followed her friend's pointing finger and she grinned as she saw activity in the darkness over to their left. She pulled up beside her friend and they both dismounted, removing their helmets as they did so.

"Battle Bunker, Psyche – Fury and I are checking something out."

"Copy that," Hal replied. "Stay safe, kiddies!"

Psyche scowled behind her mask, but she ignored the jibe. She waved Fury forwards and they both climbed then threw themselves over an aluminium mesh gate.

..._...

There were four men becoming visible as they moved slowly through the shadows.

Each carried their melee weapons ready to engage the enemy. Fury held up her double-ended bō-staff while Psyche had her twin Sais to hand. The four men were large and well-armed. One of them appeared to be talking to a fifth man who had not been visible until they had come closer. Psyche recognised the man from somewhere, but it took a moment for his identity to click in her mind: Worm. The man was Hit Girl's number one snout. That fact was known by many, but it was also well known that Hit Girl protected her snouts. You took on one of Hit Girl's snouts, you took on Hit Girl and basically signed your own death warrant.

Psyche moved closer while Fury kept her eyes open and covering her friend's back for any other men they had not seen. Psyche's eyes narrowed as she saw the obvious signs of distress on the man's face including blood on his clothing which appeared to have originated from his nose. The man was being interrogated. Psyche's measure of the situation was accurate as she watched Worm being punched in the stomach and then slapped around the face. The man was tough, Psyche thought; no wonder her Mum spoke highly of him. Psyche also knew that without Worm, some very unsavoury people might still be alive in Chicago.

"Hit Girl, Psyche."

"Go ahead, Psyche," Hit Girl replied.

"Worm is in trouble. Permission to engage."

"Go – stay safe . . . both of you."

..._...

The men were intent on their target and nobody was watching their flanks.

Fury swiftly jumped onto a small container and then onto the roof of the building. She deftly ran towards the edge above the men while Psyche remained on the ground, circling into the darkest part of the facility. Both vigilantes awaited their moment to strike.

"Do you know who I work for?" Worm hissed as he spat a glob of blood onto the ground.

"Oh, yeah," a man growled. "We know – only, the purple bitch ain't here."

"There is nothing that can save you, Worm," another man chuckled.

"We need information, and only. . ." the first man began, but then he paused.

"What's up, Benny?" the first man asked his mate as Benny swayed slightly, his eyes glazing over.

Benny tried to speak, but a look of incredible pain crossed his face and he faltered, sagging to his knees. There was a shocked intake of breath from the three other men as a masked vigilante appeared from behind Benny, a pair of bloody swords in her gauntleted hands. Psyche kicked Benny to the ground.

"Howya doing, cunts!"

There was a mad scramble for weapons with one man deciding that the better part of valour was making a clean escape while you were still alive. Only, his escape was blocked by another masked vigilante who seemed to drop out of the darkness before slashing him across the chest with her bō-staff. The man screamed as his blood splashed across the ground and he fell into that same blood. A quick stab from the opposite end of the bō-staff and the bastard never moved again. Fury ran forward to assist her friend who was comfortably driving a Sai into the heart of another man with seemingly little effort. Fury drove her bō-staff into the remaining man who fell to the ground, her blade still embedded in his chest cavity.

"Problem?" Psyche asked.

"It's stuck!"

"Twist it, slightly," Worm suggested as he rose up from his knees.

Fury did so, and her blade came more easily out of the corpse.

"Thanks – I think," she muttered.

"You, okay?" Psyche growled in her electronically enhanced voice.

"I am now," Worm chuckled. "Thank you – both of you."

"How did you get yourself wound up with these dicks?" Fury asked in her own electronic voice.

"There is trouble afoot, my young vigilantes," Worm warned. "FEAR may be gone, but nature abhors a vacuum, and someone will always fill the void."

"Cryptic," Psyche commented.

"I've spent too long talking with Hit Girl," Worm mused. "She's cryptic as hell."

"That she is," a voice growled out of the darkness.

Worm chuckled.

"My Queen," he said in welcome as Hit Girl emerged from the darkness.

"What's with all the bodies?" she enquired. "Can't I let you two girls out into the city without you making a mess?"

"They were in our way," Psyche replied with a shrug of her shoulders.

"Be off with you, while I have a word with Worm," Hit Girl growled.

..._...

Shadow was waiting for them beside their motorcycles as Fury and Psyche arrived.

"Having fun, girls?" she asked.

"Bit slow," Fury commented as she mounted her motorcycle and pulled on her helmet.

"Yeah," Psyche acknowledged as she did the same.

"Stay safe," Shadow warned as they both sped off into the darkness.

Safehouse F

"That was brilliant fun!" Abigail announced as she pulled off her helmet and mask.

"Had fun, huh?" Megan asked as she took the two helmets from the younger girls.

Returning vigilantes always got looked after and Megan enjoyed looking after her niece.

"Thanks, Megan," Stephanie said as she and Abigail passed through the armoured glass shield and through to the training centre next door in Safehouse E.

After they each showered, they dressed ready to go home – both were very tired, however, they had to wait for Mindy to return before they could leave – they would drop Abigail home on the way. While they were waiting, they both headed up the Battle Bunker.

"Hi, Abby!" Stephanie called out.

"Hi, Steph," Abby replied.

"Where's Rachel?" Stephanie asked as she looked around.

"She took off about an hour or so ago – she's been a bit maudlin since her former friends appeared," Abigail explained. "Oh – Mindy's back."

Stephanie watched as Hit Girl and Shadow rode into Safehouse F and stopped.

..._...

They found Rachel down a corridor on Level 1.

"Rachel – you're spending the night in this place," Stephanie announced as she pulled the older girl to her feet. "You're coming home with me."

Rachel made to argue but Abigail just shook her head. Stephanie dragged Rachel off to find Mindy who was just leaving the changing rooms with Chloe.

"Mum, can Rachel stay with us, tonight?"

Mindy chuckled at the big, ingratiating smile on her daughter's face and she nodded.

"Of course."

Glenview

Stephanie pulled Rachel bodily into the house where they found Jamie in the living room.

"Hi, Rachel!" the boy called out, sounding a little surprised to see her.

"You can sleep in my bed – you're not sleeping with my brother!" Stephanie quipped.

"Done that!" Rachel laughed but then she rapidly rephrased as she saw Stephanie's eyes narrow. "We've slept in the same bed – and while we have been naked together, we have never . . . you know. . ."

"I should think not!" Stephanie growled as Jamie's face went very pink.

..._...

Stephanie awoke some time later to find herself alone in the bed.

Her Predator sense told her that something was wrong. She checked the bathroom – it was empty. The bedroom door was open, so Stephanie headed out onto the landing where she peered down into the living room from the library.

"Oh, shit!" she muttered as she ran down the stairs. She found Rachel in the living room. The girl sat on the couch, a pistol in her right hand.

"Rachel," Stephanie began. "Don't . . . please."

Rachel looked up at Stephanie and she forced a weak smile.

"I hate my life – I hate what I was – I hate what I've become – I can't be like this."

"You don't want to do this, Rachel. Jamie has told me a lot about you, and as far as I can tell, this isn't you. Jamie says you never take the easy route. He says you are passionate and brave. What you are about to do is cowardly."

"Why do you care?"

"I care because of what you did for Jamie. Up until a few weeks ago, I battled with the demons of killing my own parents and my little brother. Then I discovered that he was alive and back in my life. Without you, that would never have happened, and I would never have known that I did not actually kill my own brother. I owe you more than anything – not just because you saved my brother's life, but you also save my life."

Rachel did not respond as she stared down at the pistol and gripped it even tighter.

"Please, Rachel – don't put me in the position where I have to tell my little brother that you have taken the cowardly way out . . . with my own pistol. You are as much a part of my life as Jamie is."

"I hurt you. I was one of. . ."

Stephanie cut her off.

"I don't care that you were part of that group of girls who raped me with that baton. You've met SD – she was my Nemesis. She was sent by the CIA to kill me. For a while, we went back and forth trying to kill each other . . . but she's now my best friend and I cannot even consider life without her. She's been there for me whenever I've needed her, and in return, I have been there for her. If I can forgive her; then I can forgive you."

"I don't want to go back to being a Predator – I don't want that life."

"Then don't. That is what is so special about my life; I can choose what I do – I can choose when I kill. If I wanted to hang up my guns and live my life as a normal little girl, then I know that I would have the full support of my family and friends. I see no reason why you can't just choose that same option."

"What would Mindy say? Won't she expect me to become a vigilante like the rest of you? To pay my way. I saw what was happening to my fellow Marauders. I felt so guilty when I saw their harsh treatment at your hands – but then I felt even worse when I considered that I should have been down there with them, suffering, just like them. I made that choice. I made that conscious choice to become a Marauder. That makes me a bad person."

Stephanie shook her head – she had her work cut out.

"No – she respects choice. Have no fear, Rachel, Mindy is very special to me, and I love her more than anything. I also know that she loves me, just as much, and she has proved that, time and time again. You want her support – just ask. Since I left Urban Predator, I have learnt the importance of communication; you talk things through – it means a lot, I promise you. I even talk to my dog and the damn cat – must drive them nuts listening to me . . . come to think of it, maybe that's why they do such nutty things together. Anyway – just talk. If not to me, or to Jamie, then there are a lot of people who will sit down with you and just listen. Nobody will judge you for your past, or current, misdeeds."

Rachel thought that over for several minutes before she then she passed Stephanie the pistol, butt first. Stephanie swiftly removed the magazine and ejected the chambered round.

"You know – I would have been dead meat if you had blown your head apart. This thing was loaded with hollow-points and that wall would have turned red and grey with blood and bits of brain, not to mention a spattering of bone fragments," Stephanie pointed out. "I would have been scrubbing that damn wall for weeks!"

Rachel laughed – she could not help it – and she gave Stephanie a hug.

"Thanks, kid – you are so much like your brother; you both annoy the fuck out of me!"

"We do, don't we," Stephanie grinned, then she frowned. "How'd you find my pistol, anyways?"

"Stephanie, you're a Predator and I'm a Predator – we kind of attended the same schools."

Stephanie laughed as they both headed for the stairs. However, she hesitated as she caught sight of a slim shadow in the darkened kitchen. "I'll be up in a moment, Rachel."

"Okay."

..._...

Mindy loomed out of the darkness and Stephanie expected the sky to fall in on her.

"Well done, Steph. You never cease to amaze me with your talents. The way you talked that girl down . . . I'm really impressed and that's coming from Hit Girl!"

Stephanie beamed happily.

"I am never going to regret the day that Dave found you. I will never regret the day that we invited you into our little family. You grow in stature every day, Steph. Each day you mature and grow, you turn into a better person. Dave and I are really proud of you."

Stephanie couldn't think of anything to say, so instead, she just ran forwards and gave Mindy a big hug.

"Oh, yeah – I would have made you scrub each and every damn drop of blood off that wall," Mindy deadpanned.

Chapter 356*: Naked

Author's Note: This chapter brings the story of FORSAKEN to ONE MILLION words!

The next morning
Sunday, November 6th, 2016

Safehouse E
Level 8 – Detention Level

It was an easy start – for those not under punishment, at any rate.

Shadow and Jackal went through the sleeping accommodation like a tornado, yanking duvets off beds.

"Get up! You have five minutes to make use of the bathrooms before you begin your day," Shadow shouted.

"Get up!" Jackal bellowed, his electronically enhanced voice striking fear into some of the younger Marauders.

Some of them had heard that very same voice in battle and they feared it. All sixteen kids scrambled for the beds and they made for the bathrooms. They were all very tired and it was Joel Burnell who noticed the time as he looked up at the large digital clock mounted high up above the communal area.

"It's five past six!" he groaned.

"Are we regretting our actions, yet?" Jackal growled and the sixteen-year-old nodded forlornly. "Let's go, people!"

Shadow led the sixteen tired youngsters back to the Training Facility.

Training Centre Echo
Level 4 – Exercise Area

While Shadow and Jackal were masked and wearing their duty uniforms, the Marauders were wearing just shorts, T-shirts, and running shoes. The cavernous room was cold, and the kids shivered. Their mood was sullen, and the next command did not amuse them one bit.

"They seem tired, Jackal," Shadow commented.

"Yes, Shadow, they do – maybe a wake-up swim. All of you, one width of the pool – jump in, cross, climb out – MOVE!"

The glares which the pair of senior vigilantes were very unfriendly, but neither were worried about their safety. The Marauders all jumped in and there were many screams as the water was cool, to say the least. Shadow and Jackal watched carefully to ensure that all sixteen crossed without difficulty, especially the youngest, Xiāngxīn. After two minutes, sixteen shivering youngsters stood soaking wet on the side of the pool.

"Two laps – MOVE!" Jackal yelled.

The kids were eager to run as the movement would warm them up very quickly. Running in wet shoes was not comfortable but the Predators/Marauders had endured far worse.

..._...

Eight-hundred metres later, the panting youngsters came to a halt.

The distance was easy for them; they had been trained to run much further. They all turned as Shadow and Jackal approached them. Without a word, the kids were pushed into two groups of eight by Shadow, then she spoke.

"There are three support pillars on each side of the pool. One at a time, you will run to the first pillar and back, then the second pillar and back, then the third pillar, and back. Understand?"

There were nods all around.

"Go!" Shadow called out.

The Marauders sprinted the distance well – their fitness was exemplary, Shadow thought. However, the shuttle runs absorbed the last of their energy and they were all exhausted by the end. They were also very hungry.

"You've done well," Shadow said. "Now, if you all hurry and get yourselves showered and changed, you'll get a hot breakfast as a reward."

Jackal chuckled at the smiles which spread throughout the group as the kids bolted for their accommodation.

Safehouse E Level 8 – Detention Level

The smell of the hot food was enough to speed the kids on and there were angry comments as everybody jostled for a shower.

The kids who appeared back into the communal area were clean and tidy, although their haste was obvious as some were still damp from their shower. Each was dressed in their much warmer joggers and sweatshirts plus some dry running shoes. They each grinned as they queued up at a foldup table loaded with steaming food. It was a full English breakfast with hash browns thrown in. Sarah and Shannon served each Marauder as they came past, giving each one a choice of what they wanted to eat from what was on offer. As the Marauders sat down at the long table, there were looks of surprise on their faces.

"Look, guys," Shannon explained after the last had sat down. "We're not here to hurt you. We are here to punish you for your choices. You will be rewarded for good work, but you will receive extra punishment when you fuck up. You want food like this, then you better think before you act, or you'll be getting bread and water each and every morning."

Shannon could see them all thinking about her words; even her former comrades who hated her guts.

That same time

Glenview

As was usual, the house had descended into anarchy.

"Jamie!" Dave called out as the boy bolted past in pursuit of a canine which Dave thought was Razor.

There was a loud bang as boy and canine collided with something hard, a yelp and a yell followed. Anne-Marie scrambled out of the living room to look at the carnage, followed by the ever-curious Horatio. Dave peered out of the kitchen to see Jamie and Razor getting back to their respective feet having skidded on the marble floor and then collided with the wall.

"Boys!" Anne-Marie exclaimed as the two sheepish-looking males looked at the exasperated girl.

"I wasn't part of it," Danny commented as he appeared on the scene from the stairs.

"Did we learn something from that, Jamie, Razor?" Mindy commented with a chuckle as she walked past the incident.

"Yes, Mum," Jamie grimaced as Razor whined.

That afternoon

Safehouse E Level 8 – Detention Level

Stephanie and Lucy were back on shift.

They arrived soon after lunch to watch as the Marauders were sat down in the communal area for a lecture from two Chicago police officers. Hank Voight and Alvin Olinsky were there to ensure that each and every Marauder felt guilt for their actions. After a morning of heavy physical activity, the kids had been grateful for their lunch of cold sandwiches and hot soup. Hank and Alvin were highly skilled at eliciting soul-searching in those they interviewed. The group had no choice but to listen and absorb what they were being told as they had observed fourteen-year-old Lucas Charlton reduced to a sobbing wreck by Alvin without him even raising his voice in response to the boy's decision not to listen to the lecture.

Hank and Alvin both believed in second chances and they wanted the kids to have a chance at a normal life.

Training Centre Echo Level 4 – Exercise Area

Despite the positive treatment, including demonstrating what they could receive when they cooperated, there was a growing dissent among some of the Marauders.

They were concerned that they were not going to survive. They were also worried about having somebody else in control of their destiny. There were six key trouble-makers who were determined to make a bid for freedom, but to do that, they would need weapons and a route to safety. They had seen what had happened when Jake had tried to use the elevator – that had been a blatant demonstration to them all. The ringleaders decided to make their play during the afternoon physical session. There, they found Psyche, Piranha, and Wildcat on duty. Ignoring Piranha, the other two girls were physically smaller which made them ideal for their plan.

Carrie Milligan and Jay Hilton made their play while the group were spread out meaning that it was more difficult for the three vigilantes to watch them all.

Level 1 – Dining Room

Mindy had just finished a late lunch and was sipping a coffee when the call came through.

"Hit Girl?"

"Hi, Hal. What's up?"

"Could you come up to the bunker, please?"

Mindy headed up one level and she checked into the Battle Bunker. She found Hal and Ember examining an image on one of the large screens.

"What's up, girls?"

Rachel was still getting used to being up close and personal with Hit Girl – somebody she feared greatly.

"Something's going down – I know it," Rachel commented.

Mindy examined the image for herself. Two of the older Marauders were coming close to Wildcat who had her back turned while she checked on another pair of Marauders. Alarm bells began to ring in Hit Girl's mind but before she could say anything Ember stabbed a radio key.

"Wildcat, right elbow, up and back . . . NOW!"

Level 4 – Exercise Area

Wildcat responded instantly, bringing her right elbow backwards.

The elbow stuck Jay in the face and he stumbled back in shock just as his hands grasped Wildcat around the neck. They both collapsed to the ground where Carrie kicked and punched the fallen vigilante, reaching for the holstered Taser. Behind them, Kieran and Dylan attacked Psyche, dragging the girl to the ground with their superior bulk and strength. Lucas made for Piranha who had her back turned while Jake did the same, running in hard and taking the veteran Predator off her feet. The remaining Marauders stood their ground and watched in astonishment as the attack unfolded. Some considered the attack and figured that they would jump aboard should it be successful while others wanted nothing to do with the bid for freedom.

The fighting did not last long as Piranha drove her fist into Jake's stomach, winding the boy. She spun around and sent Lucas flying backwards where he struck a concrete column and collapsed to the ground. Psyche flew into a wild rage, kicking and punching at the two boys who had attacked her. She found one of the boys yanked off her and she heard a yell of anger. With only a single attacker, Psyche was able to put Kieran out of his misery as she forced him to the ground and cut off his breathing until he passed out. Psyche stood up to find Kate Fincham standing over Dylan, a foot pressed to his throat. Psyche ran towards Wildcat who had kicked Carrie backwards, but the girl reengaged for a moment before she froze, as did Jay. The two teenagers had stopped dead as each of them had found death barely an inch from their jugulars. Wildcat had deployed her claws, each hand aimed upwards at the taller kids. After punching Carrie hard in the chest, Stephanie stood back and then turned on the Marauders. Tears were running down her red face.

"What the FUCK?" she yelled. "Why are you doing this? When it was suggested that I should help you motherfuckers, part of me said you should all fucking rot in prison for the rest of your sorry lives. Only, I got a second chance, as have other Predators, therefore, I said that I would do all that I could to help all of you. I even offered to help the bitch who fucking raped me!"

Stephanie glared at Willow who visibly shrank from view as many eyes looked at her – obviously, Willow had kept that little titbit from her colleagues.

"I am giving up almost all of my free time to help you lot out. I want you to get a second chance at a life. Don't you want to be free? Free to do anything you want with your lives? Do you want to find somebody, marry, have kids? Do you want to grow old and die when you're a hundred? I want to give you that chance, as does Lucy. However, you bastards chose to become Marauders and there are times when I struggle to get past that single fact. What I really want to do is put a bullet into each of your bloody skulls! You have just made hell week into something which will make the Predator Gauntlet seem sodding tame – but you only have yourselves to blame; you sorry dumb fucks!" Stephanie finished off.

Lucy groaned.

"What's the Predator Gauntlet?" Wildcat asked as she saw some very miserable expressions.

"The next punishment beyond The Cage," Lucy explained. "Only three people have ever endured it – the punishment is worse than anything ever thought up by those Urban Predator bastards."

"Who?"

"Leo, Willow, and . . ."

"Me."

Wildcat looked up as Stormtide appeared with Hit Girl close behind.

"I went through it with Willow and Leo."

"Leo took the punishment for me," Lucy growled. "I was already in enough trouble, at the time, and he suffered – badly – but then so did Willow and Shannon."

"All of you – back to your accommodation," Hit Girl roared, and the Marauders not involved in the attempted breakout fled.

"Thank you, Kate – please return to your accommodation," Psyche directed the older girl who had assisted in putting Dylan down.

..._...

The six Marauders were lined up, two feet apart, and forced onto their knees.

Hit Girl strode up and down before them. She was beyond angry. Psyche and Wildcat both recognised the body language and they knew that anything was possible. The six Marauders stared at the ground, not daring to look up into the masked face of Hit Girl. Jay Hilton was close to his seventeenth birthday and he feared that he might never actually reach that day. Carrie Milligan was not all that far behind him. Hit Girl seized them both by the necks and pulled them to their feet. She stared into their faces but neither looked at her.

"Look at me!" she growled.

Both youngsters did as they were told. Hit Girl could see real fear in their eyes as they stared at her mask despite the boy being a few inches taller than her.

"You dare to hurt my people. You dare to put my people at risk. I ought to snap your worthless necks."

Carrie was shaking with fear and she could not stop the tears which overflowed from her eyes.

"Please. . ."

"YOU DARE TO TALK TO ME?"

Carrie shook violently, and she began to sob. Hit Girl released both sixteen-year-olds and she pointed to the doorway which led to their accommodation. The two ringleaders led the way back to the accommodation.

They were escorted by Psyche, Wildcat, Piranha, Stormtide, and Hit Girl.

Safehouse E Level 8 – Detention Level

The mood was sombre, and the other Marauders were all seated at the long table.

All six offenders were led in and forced to kneel before their colleagues. There was real fear felt by all sixteen Marauders as Hit Girl came amongst them. In her hands, she held a pair of TASER X3 devices. Without preamble, she calmly shot each of the six miscreants in the chest. She kept the triggers held down for fifteen seconds causing the six youths to writhe in agony on the floor. Then she yanked out the wires from the TASERS and left the room without a word passing the spent TASERS to Stormtide as she went.

"Such behaviour will not be tolerated," Psyche growled.

"You don't care about us," Willow commented. "We're just meat to be abused."

"We don't care, huh?" Psyche growled angrily as Surgeon entered the room. "Surgeon will check each of them out and ensure that they are unhurt. I expected Hit Girl to use bullets – next time, she just might."

Psyche left the room, unable to face them any longer.

That evening

Northwestern Memorial Hospital Room 32

"I'm doing everything that I can, but . . . I just want to shoot the bastards and be done with them!"

Saoirse grimaced. She knew that Stephanie was not happy about dealing with the Marauders and Saoirse could not fault her friend there. Lucy did not appear so happy, either. She had seen many Predators go bad, but they had always been 'handled'. FEAR had manipulated the young minds of already damaged children and turned them into the very worst a Predator could become. Her first thoughts had been to kill them – she was a killer of Predators, after all – but that was in her past. She had to help them – somehow.

"They are nasty – some of them," Shannon commented as she sat with her friends. "I want to be hard on them, but I don't want them to resent us so much that we turn them against us. We could turn them into real Marauders."

"Or they could just do a Lucy: freak out and kill people," Saoirse grinned.

"Very funny, Saoirse!" Lucy growled. "Maybe that knock on the head did some more serious fucking damage."

"Am I missing something, here?" Stephanie asked, and Lucy groaned.

"You mean, you don't know about Lucy's nude week?" Saoirse chuckled.

"No," Stephanie admitted.

"I heard about it, but just not the juicy details," Shannon added, much to Lucy's annoyance.

"Up until that week, Lucy had been all but untouchable – kind of got on all our nerves," Saoirse explained. "I had been at Urban Predator for seven months and Lucy had just turned twelve a month before. She was a real bitch – worse than Mindy."

"I thought I was something real special," Lucy added.

"Not her fault," Shannon said quickly. "She was their star Predator and I think her status went to her head."

Lucy grimaced.

"She's not wrong," she admitted. "I had had enough. I had been there for almost two years and it was taking its toll on me and to a lesser extent, Leo."

Monday, October 31st, 2011

Colorado, USA

The day was not going well – not well, at all.

She had awoken that morning in a foul mood, and even Leo was keeping his friend at arm's length. After a fractious morning training, the girl had headed for the showers where she had found that the hot water was iffy – her mood was steadily heading downhill and building up a head of steam. The fact that two Yellows were stationed to observe her every move, naked or otherwise, was getting under her skin and she was not going to take anymore.

"I am so sick of this!" Lucy yelled as she stormed out of the shower, wrapping a towel around her body.

"You're pushing your luck, girl," Instructor Morris pointed out, stopping Lucy from moving more than six feet.

"Why are you treating me like an animal?"

"You won't do what you're fucking told – that is why we're having you watched."

"Fuck that!" Lucy yelled back. "Killing in the shower is really passé, but I will not be followed around by these yellow fucks!"

With that proclamation, she seized hold of the male Yellow and in a lightning move, she smashed the seven-year-old's head against the tiled wall of the showers – the boy died instantly as his skull was smashed and his brain matter scattered across the changing room tiles. The female Yellow was quick on the uptake and she tried to run but Lucy grabbed the youngster by her left arm which was quickly snapped at the elbow. The girl screamed out in agony as Lucy threw the luckless girl against the wall, knocking her unconscious. Without any show of emotion, Lucy picked up a fire extinguisher and she rammed it into the girl's face, smashing it. Before Lucy could do anything else, she was seized from behind by Instructor Morris and despite her violent struggling and increasingly foul language, she was quite literally dragged, kicking and screaming down several corridors and then into the gymnasium where there were two classes consisting of about twelve or so Predators training. All movement and sound stopped as the naked girl was thrown down onto the training mat – the towel had been lost several corridors before.

It was the very first time that any one of them had ever seen Lucy in such a subservient position of any kind. Normally, it was they who were naked, and she who was there watching and enjoying their misery. Now, the girl who had only just turned twelve was herself completely naked and being publicly humiliated. But that did not prevent Lucy from attempting to leave the gymnasium. Only, two male instructors seized hold of the naked girl by her arms and legs, then they pinned her down on the mat, face down while Instructor Morris produced a wicked-looking leather strap and she proceeded to take that strap across Lucy's bare backside. Lucy just closed her eyes, at least initially, refusing to give in and scream out. But the abuse and the pain quickly became far too much, and she screamed out as the strap bit repeatedly into her tormented skin. She was sobbing in agony by the time the twelfth strike came down and then she was released. She lay on the mat, sobbing her heart out, but she received no sympathy whatsoever from anybody watching. Some even smiled as they saw the only Phase 2 Predator female disciplined before them.

Lucy felt anger. She felt humiliation. She felt hate. She blocked out the laughter and the gleeful comments as she lay huddled on the mat and her body shook with the pain and the sobbing. Then her head was pulled back by the hair and Instructor Morris glared into Lucy's tear-filled eyes.

"We will not tolerate insolence, Ford . . . as such, you will remain naked for the next week as a reminder of what you have done and of what we will not tolerate. You touch a single item of clothing and you'll receive the strap again. You will continue with your lessons and your instruction as normal." Morris laughed. "Enjoy your week."

There was some giggling from the other girls present as Lucy struggled back to her feet. She tried to maintain her dignity and poise, but walking was very painful thanks to her burning buttocks. However, it was the burning sensation of humiliation and failure, clearly evident on her face which was so much worse as she made her way out of the gymnasium and back to her room.

Along the way, the senior Predator received many strange looks as she passed several Predators and Instructors.

..._...

It seemed to take forever to return to her room.

She ran through the recreational space and straight through into her bedroom. Leo was watching TV as he ate a sandwich and he was stunned to see the completely naked girl run past him. He dropped his plate and he ran after her. Her found his best friend lying face down on her bed, sobbing. He sat down beside her, and he cringed as he saw her badly bruised buttocks. The girl was beautiful, and Leo had seen her naked many times before, but now her perfect skin was marred by the vicious red welts from the strap.

"Luc. . ."

"I had it coming, Leo – I killed a pair of fucking Yellows."

"I'm with you, no matter what stupid and fucked up thing you decide to do."

Lucy turned her head to look at Leo and she forced a smile.

"Thanks."

She knew that she had no choice but to go to her next class – she groaned to herself; the class was physical training and she knew that they were going to be outside. It was instructional – she was taking the class of Phase 1 Predators. That bitch, Morris, she knew how to make Lucy suffer. Lucy struggled to see how she was going to live it down – a whole fucking week of remaining naked. Nobody had seen her naked in months and not since she had started puberty. Her privacy had been a reward for her continued obedience, only she had fucked things up, rather badly.

Lucy rolled off her bed, cringing with the pain as her bottom touched the bedding.

..._...

As Lucy pushed open the door which led out into the enclosed quadrangle, she caught sight of the twelve smirking faces standing waiting for her to arrive.

They would have all heard of Lucy's punishment and they were obviously looking forward to their lesson. Six girls and six boys. The boys were, quite naturally, staring at her naked body as she strode confidently towards them. It felt really strange walking bare foot on the warm, rough concrete and she could feel the warm sun on her bare back – at least she'd get a tan, she thought dismally.

"Before we begin," she growled as she glared at the smirking boys. "You dickless bastards get a good fucking look at my twat, then we can get on with the lesson. You want a closer look?"

Lucy ran at one of the boys, hooked a long leg around his neck, and dragged the surprised boy down to the concrete. His eyes went wide as he found his face just inches from the dark pubic hair which covered most of Lucy's labia. Lucy shoved him away and she returned to her place in front of the class. As she turned towards them, she realised that she had shown them her still very red, and very sore, backside. That Irish bitch and one of the twins were smirking.

"Abbott, Doherty – get your fucking backsides out here!"

As they approached, the two girls continued to smirk and they both made a point of staring at Lucy's exposed breasts and pubic region. Their smirks faltered slightly when Lucy just smiled at them both.

"I want you both to take your clothes off – right the fuck now!" Lucy growled.

"What?" the twin exclaimed.

"Take your fucking clothes off before I get those boys to rip them off you."

The two girls quickly pulled off their T-shirts, toed off their running shoes and pushed down their joggers and boy-shorts – neither wore a bra. They both glared at Lucy as they stood before the class, just as naked as Lucy was before the other kids.

"Get back in line, bitches!" Lucy growled and both chastened girls abandoned their meagre piles of clothing and they reluctantly returned to their places.

The boys appeared much happier now that there were three naked girls in the class.

"Space out, all of you – two lines; boys facing girls." Once the kids had sorted themselves out, she gave her next order. "Let's see twenty jumping-jacks."

Ten-year-old Doherty and eleven-year-old Abbott shot nasty glances at the smirking Lucy as they began their exercises before the drooling boys.

..._...

All through dinner that evening, eyes were on Lucy's naked body as she ate.

Leo kept talking to her, in a vain attempt to keep her mind off the muttering, the smirking, and the giggling. From his point of view, he had no problem staring at Lucy's breasts which had pretty much grown from nothing in the preceding twenty months or so that they had been together. They were not big, but there was enough there to show that Lucy was becoming a young woman and he secretly thought that her cherry-red nipples looked cute.

"Stop looking at my nipples – I know you like them," Lucy grinned.

"Where did you get that idea?"

"You told me, back when I first started getting breasts – you said that my nipples looked awesome the way they stuck out. I only got a bra to shut you up."

"You have an awesome body – you should be proud of it. Who gives a fuck what those bastards think? You are the most beautiful girl here."

Lucy blushed wildly, but for a good reason, and she felt the blush go almost as far down as her breasts.

"I just hate all the boys staring at my fucking twat all the time. It's covered in hair for fuck's sake; there's nothing to fucking see!"

Leo had other ideas on that and the raging erection in his trousers reminded him that she was gorgeous. Not a single boy in the place had yet reached puberty, so it was only the girls who exhibited any pubic hair and Lucy herself had started growing hair and developing breasts a few weeks before the arrival of the First Intake, none of whom had reached puberty at the time of their arrival. Most of the time, the two sexes showered separately, but at times, either for expediency's sake or just because the instructors were in a particularly vindictive mood, both sexes were forced to shower together. That allowed the boys to keep an eye on the girls as they had each begun puberty, much to the girls' annoyance as the boys were very quick to comment on those girls without any outward sign of development.

Lucy was very happy to return to the privacy of her room and away from the prying eyes of the other Predators.

..._...

Leo was in heaven.

While neither of them had ever been shy about nudity, they didn't exactly go out of their way to wander around nude. Lucy remained covered up as a rule and Leo enjoyed the odd view of her naked. So, for the twelve-year-old boy to have a naked girl sitting beside him while they watched TV together was slightly off-putting. He had also noticed that Lucy was distinctly uncomfortable, even when alone with him.

"You're enjoying this, aren't you?" Lucy growled.

"Who wouldn't, Luc."

"I don't mind you looking, Leo."

"I know."

"Thanks for being with me."

"Always, Lucy – I will always be there for you."

"As I will be for you."

Sunday, November 6th, 2016

Northwestern Memorial Hospital, Chicago
Room 32

"That was nasty – even by my standards," Stephanie offered.

"Thanks, Steph," Lucy acknowledged. "I know what you went through; I've been briefed." Lucy laughed. "Those bastards wanted rapid bitches, but they hated it when those same rabid bitches periodically turned on them."

Stephanie grinned, and Saoirse chuckled. Shannon scowled.

"Cheer up, Shan," Saoirse said. "I know you hate talking about the past, but it happened, honey."

Shannon closed her eyes, visualising the degrading treatment she had suffered from minute one, all the way through to the day when Fusion had found her and returned her to her family. She had suffered just as badly as the others, although she saw a lot of her degrading treatment as worse than what the others had endured. She hated rehashing the past and hearing about the worst of what Urban Predator had represented.

"I know. Without you and Lucy, I would not have survived, and I would have probably topped myself. Even little Jamie kept me looking ahead instead of behind. I owe all of you for my life and for the continued support that you give me. You've all suffered in so many horrible ways but you all stay sane. . ."

Stephanie laughed insanely.

"Well, as close to sane as is humanly possible," Shannon grimaced as she looked over at the little short-haired blonde girl with the insane grin on her face.

Stephanie was a miracle. Shannon had heard almost every story there was about the brave little ten-year-old and her own suffering was nothing compared to what Stephanie had endured. Somehow, that girl kept suffering and enduring, but she continued on and on. They all ultimately owed Stephanie their lives – every damn Predator and every damn Marauder. Without Stephanie falling into the hands of Hit Girl and her vigilantes, Urban Predator might never have folded, and she might never have found her family.

"Cheer up, Shannon," Stephanie offered as she put an arm around the older girl's shoulder. "It will get better – slowly."

"Thanks, Steph."

Lucy spoke up, uneasily.

"I've never spoken to anybody about my missions for the CIA . . . but . . . I think I have to come clean about a couple of things. When Stephanie turned on the CIA, they were more than a little bit pissed about their super-Predator going bad on them. They activated one of their best operatives – Foxtail. Only Foxy was not good enough. . ."

"Don't call me that!" Saoirse complained from the bed.

Lucy grinned fiendishly.

"As I was saying, Foxy was not good enough and she fucked up three times – okay, it wasn't like she lacked skills; I taught the bitch . . . only, Stephanie is one of the best Urban Predator ever turned out – and I should know; I am the best Urban Predator ever turned out. In fact, after Foxtail failed to terminate the young Stephanie Walker AKA Psyche, the best was sent to terminate Saoirse Doherty AKA Foxtail."

Saoirse winced.

Wednesday, February 10th, 2016

Colorado, USA

"Yes?"

The man looked up at the insolent expression on Lucy's face. He was used to the moody teenager – she was sixteen-years-old, but she might as well have been twenty-one for all the respect he got from the girl. She always went out of her way to figuratively stick her middle finger up at the instructors, Urban Predator, and the CIA, whenever possible. The insolent teenager did not wait to be asked, but instead, she sat down in a chair on the other side of the desk and got herself comfortable.

"Comfy, Lucy?"

"Yeah . . . I think so."

"We're having a problem with a Predator. . ."

"Another one?" Lucy asked sarcastically, rolling her eyes.

"Less of the attitude, Lucy!"

"Yes, sir!"

Two days later
Friday, February 12th

Chicago, USA

The mission had two potential targets.

Target number one had been a surprise while the second one had not. She had not received a go order, yet, so the girl was still alive. Lucy had selected a perfect location from where to take the girl down, should she not carry out her mission satisfactorily.

As Lucy watched, she saw a short person appear. The female was wearing some sort of outlandish vigilante outfit. Lucy's target approached.

"Well, well, I never thought it might come to this. . ." Lucy mused as she studied her target through the high-powered sniper scope. "Goodbye, you fucking Irish slut."

Then, just as Lucy was squeezing the trigger, Foxtail fired off three bullets into the masked vigilante who went down like a sack of potatoes. Lucy paused while Foxtail moved over to the dead vigilante and . . . holy shit! The dead vigilante shot Foxtail, three times in the chest – Foxtail, who was obviously wearing body armour, fell onto her back before struggling back to her feet. Then a man appeared out of nowhere and he choked Saoirse into unconsciousness.

Lucy sat back, away from the sniper rifle – what the fuck was going on!

The early hours of Saturday morning

1714 West Grace Street

Lucy made an easy entry into the apartment.

When the CIA got pissed at you, then you had a very nasty future ahead. In the case of one Saoirse Doherty AKA

Foxtail, her life was about to be destroyed completely. The apartment was smart and cosy – shame really, but it had to go. An example had to be set, and Foxtail had to suffer. After a brief tour around the apartment, Lucy placed half-a-dozen sealed glass jars in strategic locations with at least one jar in each room. In the bedroom, the jar sat on the bed. In the living room, the jar sat on the couch. Each jar was filled with a potent highly-flammable mixture of liquid and various other chemicals. It was a concoction of Lucy's own making – chemistry was a staple part of Predator training and every Predator by Phase 3 could make simple explosive and incendiary devices from just about anything they could find. Each jar was also fitted with a small remote detonator attached to the glass which when triggered would shatter the glass and ignite the liquid. With a quick check around the apartment, Lucy left, and she returned to her motorcycle. Once she was ready to leave, she pulled out a small black detonator and she flipped up a switch before stabbing a red button.

In the apartment, six glass jars shattered, and liquid flooded out, igniting and six independent conflagrations began, swiftly spreading across the apartment.

Sunday, November 6th, 2016

Northwestern Memorial Hospital, Chicago
Room 32

"You, torched my place?"

"Sorry, Saoirse – but you know how it works."

"I do. Thanks for telling me."

"You're my friend – not my enemy."

"You're our friend, too, Lucy – always remember that."

Five days later
Friday, November 11th

Fielding Drive

"What's up with Dad?" Becky asked Chloe.

"Three years ago, Josh's Dad was killed, and Josh ended up in a coma. That was the start of me travelling down the road to becoming Shadow. I thought I'd lost my soulmate – only, I found him again when Mindy almost cut his head off for breaking into one of her Safehouses."

Becky walked over to where Joshua was sitting on a chair at the table, nursing a mug of tea. Becky wormed her way onto his lap and she wrapped her arms around him. Joshua smiled, and he reciprocated, hugging the diminutive little girl.

"I'm sorry to hear about your Dad," Becky whispered.

"Thanks, sweet pea."

Chloe smiled as she watched Joshua and Becky hugging. The two had become very close of late and for Chloe, it was lovely to see them both together. They were her life – her entire life. Since the death of her mother, Chloe gave all her attentions to her family. Becky helped her sanity and Joshua kept her focussed. Together, they were getting through their collective loss. Joshua was so happy to have a mother figure in his life and he loved Cathy. For him to lose that mother figure had struck him hard. Many a night had passed with all three sharing the same bed. Each of them was suffering and they each needed one another. Joshua and Becky were inseparable – something which irked Chloe at times as they would often be laughing about something and then go quiet the moment she walked into the room. She figured that they were doing it on purpose, but she tolerated it.

"You okay, honey?" Chloe asked Joshua.

"I have you two, so I'm fine; I have my girls," Joshua replied as he hugged them both.

..._...

There was a knock on the door.

Becky squirmed out of Joshua's arms and the little girl scampered to answer it.

"Mindy!"

"Hi, Becky!"

"You come to see Mum and Dad?"

"Yes, Becky."

"Mum said you tried to cut Dad's head off, in New York."

Mindy glared at Chloe for a moment before scowling.

"You're never gonna let that one go, are you?"

"Not a chance!" Chloe grinned as Joshua rolled his eyes.

Chapter 357*: Trust

Saturday, November 12th, 2016

They were all exhausted.

Totally exhausted. Psyche had not lied to them, although some wished that she had. She had promised them hell – and she had delivered. Nobody dared resist or fight back. They each agreed to take their punishment and move on. It was harsh on the younger members, but they were all managing to get by. The food was good. The accommodation was better than could be expected. If they behaved, then they were treated with respect. That was hard, very hard. Each one of them was pushed to their physical and mental limits, and that caused tempers to fray and things to be said. Surprisingly, the vigilantes supervising them took the abuse and allowed it to wash over them – at least until someone took things too far. Twelve-year-old Jake Wistrum just could not keep his mouth shut and each time he opened it, he managed to say something which earned him some punishment or other. The punishments were not hard, but they took their toll and more surprisingly to them all, they began to bond. Bonding had not been allowed in Urban Predator. Bonding was a weakness – to a point. Some of the Marauders knew that they could only get through the dark days ahead with mutual support.

Though they hated one another, they began to talk, and they began to see the other person as a human being, suffering just as they were. Twelve-year-old Charlotte tended to spend time with the two youngest girls, Lin Lai and her sister, Xiāngxin. She was joined by Jesse and James when they sat down to eat. The girls tended to be stronger than the boys at controlling their emotions but there were times when even the boys succumbed. Despite the hardships that the Marauders endured, they were looked after, and they had each been introduced to a pair of psychiatrists, Dr Charles and Dr Reese. Each youngster had been through a pair of sessions – for some, the sessions had ended in tears as they had truly realised what they had done. Remorse was a key factor in helping the kids endure their punishments. None of them had the faintest idea of what lay ahead of them and that scared some.

On that Saturday, the Marauders found themselves joined by Fusion vigilantes – and some other Predators.

Training Centre Echo Level 4 – Exercise Area

"Okay, boys and girls," Wildcat explained. "It's time you guys were given something to work for. If you can beat your opponent, you earn yourself some extra rations and maybe some time off. As you can see, we have been joined today by some Fusion members. Some have faced off against them in combat and some are known to you as Predators. This is a friendly competition and if anybody abuses that then we will not offer anything like it again. Do you all understand me?"

"Yes, ma'am!" came the unified response; each Marauder wanted to better a Fusion vigilante and their former compatriots.

"We start with the climbing wall – Joel will race Jackal; get ready, boys," Wildcat directed.

Watching from the sidelines, Lucy chuckled. She had read Joel's file and he was an ace climber – not that she had let on to Joshua. There was cheering from both sides as their climbers stood at the base of the climbing wall and prepared to race to the top.

"Ready . . . set . . . CLIMB!" Wildcat roared.

The two sixteen-year-olds ran at the wall and jumped up as high as they could, their hands reaching for handholds and their muscles rippling as they pulled themselves upwards. Jackal was good, and he was very strong, but Joel scrambled up the wall like he was a human spider. His arms were longer than Jackal's and he was able to reach further, increasing his lead. At the very top, Discord awaited the climbers' arrival. She grinned as Joel's right hand struck the top of the wall, just two seconds ahead of Jackal's. There was an enormous roar from the Marauders as Discord indicated the winner.

"Well done, Joel," Wildcat laughed as she clapped. "Next up, let's see if his arms can move as fast as his mouth – Jake, you will race Hellcat."

Jake stepped forwards, grinning at the applause and then scowling at Hellcat as she stepped up. He took in the younger girl's figure and he guessed at what she might look like underneath her mask.

"Eyes on the wall, cunt!" Hellcat warned to general laughter.

Surprisingly, Jake was good, and he was level-pegging with Hellcat all the way up the wall, but just as Hellcat put on a final burst, so did he and Discord struggled to see who the winner was – but she finally indicated Hellcat after a short deliberation. Again, there was cheering, even from some of the Marauders.

"Hard luck, Jake – you'll have to toss yourself off, tonight!" Wildcat chuckled to more laughter. "For the final wall race, Xiāngxin, you will race Scamp."

The two young girls faced off and sized one another up – they were about the same age and size.

"Ready . . . set . . . CLIMB!" Wildcat roared.

The youngsters began to climb to enormous support from those below, Marauder and vigilante alike. The youngsters were nimble if not fast and Xiāngxin was pronounced the winner. As soon as she reached the ground the bewildered youngster was pounced on and congratulated by the other Marauders. The eight-year-old forced her way out and faced Scamp, holding out her hand.

"Good race – well done," she said to Scamp who took the offered hand and shook.

"Next, we go to the track," Wildcat announced.

..._...

"Okay. Ewan, Lucas, Kieran, Dylan, and Dakota – you will race against Splinter, Stormtide, Discord, Nightmare, and Tempest. Please line up – you will run two 400-metre laps," Wildcat directed. "That would make a total distance of, Willow?"

"Eight-hundred-metres!" Willow replied with a scowl.

The ten runners arranged themselves on the track. It would be a free for all as there were only four lanes.

"Runners, are you ready?"

"Get with it, Kitty!" Splinter chuckled as Wildcat gave him the finger.

"Ready, steady . . . GO!"

The entire cavern was filled with shouting as the ten runners moved off at a steady run. The discipline was there from the Predators and the Marauders, not to mention those who were lucky to never have been both. Hit Girl appeared at the edge of the track just as the runners passed three-hundred-metres. She was impressed by the cheering and the fact that her people and the Marauders seemed to be working together. The nasty shock the previous weekend appeared to have struck home and even the more difficult Marauders were going along with their punishment. She was also pleased that the Fusion Predators were assisting in the rehabilitation of their former comrades. Stephanie had reported back about the Predator feelings towards the Marauders and at first Mindy had been unsure about letting them mix. There was a lot of hate between Predators as it was, let alone when you had the older Predators who had gone rogue. So far, things were going well without any injuries. Talking of which, the injured Marauders were healing. Willow was struggling to integrate with her former colleagues and there was a lot of hate towards her for unknown reasons. Her bullet wound was all but healed but she was suffering from migraines according to Doctor Staite. Then there was Charlotte with her stomach wound. Abigail kept a close eye on the girl and she was usually present for medical examinations and also there to provide comfort during Charlotte's time with the shrinks. Charlotte was almost healed too which was good and she was among the rising stars amongst the Marauders.

There was one more thing; Rachel. She had shot Willow, but no Marauder knew that she was alive – that would have to be sorted out before too long and Mindy feared a significant backlash against Rachel from those who might see her as being just as guilty as them. Maybe Rachel should have been punished with her fellow Marauders, but that point was passed, and Mindy owed Rachel for Stephanie's life and the girl had shown remorse for her actions. For the moment, there was no plan of what might happen to the Marauders once they were deemed to be 'rehabilitated'. There had been some talk about homes for some, but not for the majority. They had discussed shipping some over to L.A., and maybe the U.K., but no plans had been made. There had also been questions about whether the Marauders could ever be trusted enough to allow them to join Fusion – that had been a fun conversation with Stephanie – not!

Hit Girl cheered along with the rest as Kieran and Dakota fought for first place along with Splinter . . . before Dakota took the imaginary tape.

..._...

After a brief discussion with Wildcat and Discord who had been running the activities, Hit Girl turned to face the gathered Marauders and Fusion vigilantes.

"Considering the behaviour last weekend, things have moved on. I am impressed by the teamwork which is appearing, and I am also pleased to see that the Marauders and the Fusion Predators are able to be in the same room without anybody actually getting killed," Hit Girl lectured and there was some uncomfortable laughter from those present. "It has only been a little over a week, but you are all making progress in your own way. You are all very different and as such, we are going to be handling each of you independently. All of you, please remember: there is an end to this, and so far, you are all doing very well. As time moves on, I can promise you more trust and more freedom – but you have to earn it. As for today, you all did well and you all worked as a team, so, from 22:00, you will not be disturbed until 06:00 on Monday morning. Enjoy your rest – but do not abuse my trust," Hit Girl growled.

There were smiles across the board as the youngsters congratulated one another.

Safehouse E
Level 8 – Detention Level

"How are they doing?"

Shannon turned to see Stephanie entering the communal area.

"They're bonding better. The games idea of Wildcat's was very successful. She wore them out, but Hit Girl was impressed, too."

The Marauders were enjoying a veritable feast. The rewards given to the winners had been granted to them all and morale was very high as they contemplated an entire day of relative freedom.

"Despite my feelings about them, I want them to get through this. I detest the very air they breathe, but I was allowed a second chance, so I have to allow them a chance to show that they can change."

"You carry far too much on your shoulders, you know," Shannon replied.

"I know, but that seems to be my lot in life. How's Willow doing?" Stephanie asked as she noticed the sixteen-year-old sitting alone, playing with her food.

"They all shun her. It got around what she did to you – and that seemed to have been too low even for Marauders."

"That's something, I suppose."

Stephanie walked over to where the older girl was seated, and she sat down. Willow visibly recoiled away from Stephanie.

"They all want me dead because of you; why don't you just fucking shoot me?" Willow hissed.

"Don't tempt me, Hartman. Come with me."

Stephanie stood up and she left the space, several pairs of eyes burrowing into her back. Shannon gave Willow a supportive grin, but Willow blanked her, just as she was the evil looks she was receiving from the other Marauders. Stephanie led Willow down the corridor, away from the exercise area and deeper into Safehouse E. Willow was very unsure about what was happening, and she was a little worried that Stephanie was going to seek revenge on her. Finally, they stopped at a room with a steel door. Stephanie swiped a card through a slot and the electronic door lock was released.

"Inside," Stephanie directed the older girl.

..._...

Stephanie was enjoying herself – the expressions crossing Willow's face were worth all the cloak and dagger.

Willow looked around the room, ignoring the grinning ten-year-old bitch. It looked like a den and suspiciously that of a ten-year-old bitch. There was a pair of fairly comfortable arm chairs which were in appalling condition with copious amounts of Duct Tape holding them together. Some new-looking cushions helped to make the chairs a little more appealing. In front of the two chairs was a low table covered in gun magazines, motorcycle magazines, and several newspapers – a mixture of U.S. and U.K. tabloids and broadsheets. There was a leather couch off to one side with its own Duct Tape pattern hinting at its age. The room itself was dingy and what there was of the walls which was not covered in rust and damp, was covered in maps and posters – and a large Union Flag. Stephanie stepped over to a small fridge and she pulled open the door.

"Coke?"

"What?" Willow replied.

"You want a Coke?" Stephanie asked as she held up a can from the fridge.

"You fucking with me?"

"No. I just want to know if you want a can of Coke – simple question."

"Yes . . . please," Willow replied hesitantly.

"Sit down."

Willow did so.

"What are you doing, Walker?"

"I am no longer known by that name – call me Steph or Stephanie. Look, Willow, I am not exactly enthralled by having you in my private hidey-hole, but we need to talk."

"What about?"

Stephanie moved some of the magazines around and she uncovered a length of blonde hair secured in what appeared to be a pony tail but severed just above the trebled up elastic band. Willow's expression hardened at the sight of the hair which she herself had cut off. Then she felt that sense of remorse coursing through her. She regretted every part of the past few months. She hated Stephanie Walker and everything she represented but she was also wise enough to realise that Stephanie Walker – or whatever she was calling herself – was her only way out of hell.

"I know that many people hate me – for reasons which are probably quite reasonable, to be honest. I know that you hate me, and you tried to get your revenge in the worst way that you could imagine. So many times, I considered either shooting you . . . or just raping you as you did me. You ever been raped, Willow?"

"What sort of a question is that?" Willow demanded.

"You ever had something shoved up your vagina without your permission?" Stephanie persisted. "A penis or a baton?"

Willow closed her eyes and Stephanie saw the pain in her face – she had struck a nerve.

"I did not want to do it, but I had no choice – the bastard is dead now and I never told a soul. It was something so horrifying that I thought you should suffer in just the same way."

"How old were you?"

"Twelve – he was one of the instructors. You are the first person I've ever told . . . Stephanie, I am really sorry for putting you through that."

"I survived – I think of it every time I wash my hair."

"I deserve to suffer . . . I deserve to die."

"Okay."

Stephanie stood up and she walked over to a large steel cupboard. There, she punched in a code and pulled open the steel door. Willow's eyes went wide as she saw an enormous array of weaponry before her eyes. Everything from pistols, through submachine guns and onto assault rifles, hand grenades, and mines. Stephanie pulled out a small

Glock 26 pistol and she inserted a magazine of ten rounds.

"Don't tell Hit Girl I have this little stash – it's my private collection. Here, if you deserve to die – kill yourself."

With that proclamation, Stephanie pulled back the slide to load a round in the breech before she handed the loaded pistol to the amazed Willow.

..._...

Willow held the pistol in her hand.

She had not held a weapon in weeks. Now, she had a pistol in her hand . . . and her nemesis standing before her. She had a choice – she could kill Stephanie and make her escape, or she could just kill herself. She studied the pistol closely. She knew the specifications like she knew her own name. Just 5.5-pounds of pressure on the trigger and the bullet would be fired down the barrel with the right-hand, hexagonal rifling. A handgun bullet travels at more than seven-hundred-miles-per-hour. Her life would be over within a blink of an eye. But could she do it? Then a thought occurred to her and she chuckled.

"As if you'd give me a functioning weapon," she said as she placed the pistol on the table. "You think I'm that stupid, Stephanie?"

Stephanie nodded as she picked up the pistol and then nonchalantly fired two rounds into the carpet-covered concrete at Willow's feet. The sixteen-year-old screamed as she jumped backwards. Then she grinned.

"You fucking bitch!"

Stephanie just grinned as she cleared the weapon.

"How did you know I wouldn't just shoot you and escape?"

"Because you're intelligent, Willow, and you feel more guilt than you have ever felt in your life."

"You think you know me!" Willow exclaimed angrily. "You thought you had me figured out? You were that certain that I would not just blow that smug look off your Brit face?"

Stephanie ignored the raging – she knew all about raging; she was a certified expert at it – and she sat down in one of the chairs and pulled out a card-covered folder from the pile of magazines. She opened the folder and she began to read aloud.

"Willow Olivia Hartman. Born: September 8th, 2000 to Drew and Bethany Harrison in the quaint city of Minot, North Dakota. Only child. Did well at school and then you were seized by Urban Predator, September 12th, 2010 as part of the First Predator Intake. You endured the very worst that the system had to offer at just ten-years-old. You excelled, though, and you formed a few friendships. One of whom was Kara Newton – I'm really sorry that she had to die. If I had not done that then maybe, I would not have become what I am today – or I might have died way back when. Urban Predator was shit for everybody involved, Willow, but that abomination is gone – I saw to that. You've seen the Predators who are now part of Fusion, right? I'm doing everything that I can to rescue every kid who got caught up in Urban Predator. Forty kids are now safe – and that includes the sixteen of you. We've all done bad things that we regret, and we just have to look forwards."

"You talk like you've done this shit before – talking Predators down."

"Willow – please, sit down and drink your Coke."

Willow did so, taking a long pull of the cold fizzy drink.

"I had to talk a gun out of the hand of a Marauder/Predator, just the other night. She wanted to kill herself as she could no longer handle the guilt of what she had been part of."

"You stopped one of us from dying?" Willow asked, a little surprised.

"Just because I think you should all die for what you did, does not mean that I will let that happen. I have a conscience, Willow, and I know you do, too. You all need protecting from yourselves and I want to help."

"Who was it?" Willow asked.

Stephanie took a deep breath before she responded.

"Rachel."

The following morning
Sunday, November 13th

Glenview

"Stephanie – before you open that little mouth of yours and start belly-aching, Dave and I would like to go out. We also want to come back to our home which would still be intact," Mindy explained.

"I'm ten-years-old and I've done a lot more than most adults," Stephanie growled. "Besides, I handed back the Claymore mine and the C4 explosives."

Mindy laughed.

"Yes, you did, sweetie," Dave confirmed.

"We know you have your own personal stash on level 7 – a cute little den," Mindy admitted.

Stephanie scowled.

"You're not mad?"

"No, honey. I look after my Predator daughter, and I allow her to have some space when she needs it. I'm not going to argue when you squirrel away my weapons – I'd have done the same thing."

"Okay, time to use the boobs! Don't these mean that I am mature and able to stay at home alone?" Stephanie asked as she pointed at the small bulges on her chest.

Dave laughed out loud, and Mindy rolled her eyes.

"You are so like Mindy!" Dave exclaimed, ignoring the indignant look his wife threw at him. "So, little lady, you want us – two sane adults – to leave a ten-year-old assassin in charge of the house and her younger siblings, not to mention four, not so normal, animals."

"That about sums it up," Stephanie replied. "Although, I would not refer to Mindy as being 'sane', exactly."

"You are not helping your case, sweetie," Mindy growled dangerously.

"Aw come on!" Stephanie exclaimed in a broad American accent reminiscent of Anne-Marie. "I can be the perfect little angel and I promise the house will be in the same state you left it – trust me, dammit!"

That same time

West Columbia

Marcus grimaced as he walked past his stepdaughter's bedroom.

Naturally, Marcus had taken young Curtis in after Cathy had died – it had seemed the natural thing to do. Megan had been over the moon – naturally. Only, she had insisted that her single bed was replaced with a double. Marcus was having none of it and he had obtained a twin bed, but he had not stopped there – he had ensured that the beds were screwed down to the floor. Megan had known better than to argue as Marcus had reminded her that the spare room was available. . . For Paige, having another mouth to feed was not a big problem and Curtis enjoyed helping out with little Damon. She also knew that the youngsters cared for each other, greatly, and they had known each other for a couple of years.

Marcus would just have to stop being so old-fashioned.

A few miles away

Fielding Drive

Joshua was helping himself to some tea as an aid to waking up.

The boy was alone in his kitchen, enjoying the peace of a quiet morning. Then, his solitary tea sipping was interrupted by the padding of bare feet on the wooden floor. They were small feet, so it had to be Becky. Only, as she walked past Joshua, something appeared off – it was not only the feet which were bare.

"Morning, Dad!"

"Becky, are my eyes deceiving me or is something missing?"

"You noticed, huh?"

Becky continued to collate the components of her breakfast: bowl, cereal, spoon, and milk. Joshua had noticed what was missing – clothes.

"Yes."

"I'm butt naked," Becky offered, unnecessarily.

"Yes . . . why?"

"I was told that you and Chloe are nudists and you liked to cavort around naked."

"Cavort?"

"It means. . ."

"I know what it means – who told you that?"

"Curtis," Becky replied as she sat down to put her breakfast into the bowl. "He said you two liked to be naked, so I thought I should let you both know that it was fine by me. I've seen Chloe naked before, and I've seen your thingy, too."

"I don't think. . ." Joshua began, unsure of what to say.

Chloe entered the kitchen and she did a double take.

"Why's she naked?" Chloe asked simply as she grabbed a coffee.

"She wants us to know that it's fine for us to be nudists," Joshua explained. "She's showing solidarity."

"Is she, now," Chloe growled, then she grinned. "You going outside, naked, Peanut?"

"You think I'm daft?" Becky pouted. "It's bloody November!"

Chloe just chuckled.

Later that morning

Paige, Megan, and Curtis walked up the path and Megan knocked on the door.

"Hi, guys!" Chloe exclaimed as she opened the door. "Come in."

Paige walked in and she sat down, pulling off her jacket. Megan followed suit, as did Curtis.

"Why is it so warm in here?" Paige asked.

"Hello!" came a voice and Paige turned to say hello back.

"Why is she. . .?" Paige began with a glance up at Chloe.

"Don't even ask," Chloe grimaced.

Megan laughed as the still naked Becky sat down beside her, ignoring the fact that there was a boy on the other side of her.

"Becky – you've got no clothes on," Megan pointed out.

"I know."

"Becky," Curtis said. "I know I said Chloe and Josh like to go around naked, but I did not mean that you should."

"It's quite liberating, really," Becky replied.

"Megan used to run around naked – until she was about eight or so," Paige commented.

"Mom!" Megan growled, her cheeks turning pink.

That evening

Glenview

Dave looked down at Mindy who just shrugged.

The three Lizewski kids appeared unnerved by the situation.

"Do you hate us?" Anne-Marie asked Mindy.

"No, honey," Mindy laughed. "I trust Stephanie and so should you. A bit of advice for each of you: don't annoy her or piss her off. She speaks with the same authority as me – understand?"

"Yes, Mom."

"Yes, Mom."

"Yes, Mum."

As the front door closed, Stephanie appeared in the entrance to the living room. All chatter ceased, and the three youngsters looked very apprehensive.

"Right, kiddies! I am in charge. . ."

Razor and Kiara both whined and covered their faces with their paws.

"Traitors!" Stephanie hissed before she refocused on her uncomfortable siblings. "Anne-Marie – you and me will order pizzas while the boys will go walk the dogs."

That was not as bad as they had thought it might be, so the boys scurried off to find the leads for Sophia, Razor, and Kiara. As the three excited dogs vanished out the door, dragging the two boys with them, Stephanie and Anne-Marie settled down at Stephanie's laptop to order food.

"How much you got?" Anne-Marie asked as she looked down the list of pizzas and extras.

"Let's keep it under a hundred bucks," Stephanie suggested.

..._...

An hour later, two boys, two girls, three dogs, and a cat were happily munching on pizza, sides, and drinking enormous quantities of Coke.

Danny and Jamie had been planning to make things go wrong for Stephanie, but they decided that having angry parents and an angrier big sister, who was a just a little bit insane, was not worth the potential gain. As they ate, they watched TV and just enjoyed each other's company. Apart from some minor squabbling between Razor and Horatio over some pepperoni, things were going well, and Stephanie was pleased that everybody was cooperating. Once the pizza was finished, she stood up.

"Anne-Marie and Jamie – can you both clean up the pizza boxes, please. Danny, upstairs, shower, and get into your pyjamas, then you can come back down to watch TV until Mum and Dad get home."

Amazingly, the three youngsters followed instructions without complaint. When Danny returned from having taken a quick shower, he was in his pyjamas. Stephanie handed the boy a steaming mug of hot chocolate with marshmallows and he went to sit down on a couch. Anne-Marie and Jamie were then sent upstairs for their showers and to get into pyjamas. On their return, they both received their own steaming mugs of hot chocolate with marshmallows and then joined their brother on the couch. Stephanie then took the opportunity to run upstairs to her bedroom, where she stripped off and dived into the shower recently vacated by Jamie. On her return downstairs in her pyjamas, she found Jamie waiting for her.

"Here."

The boy handed over a fourth mug of steaming hot chocolate with marshmallows. Stephanie was a little surprised as she joined her siblings who were all smiling.

"What are you lot up to?" Stephanie demanded as she curled up with Horatio.

"We thought you might be a bitch – like your reputation," Jamie explained. "But you've been really nice; so, we decided to be good and not cause trouble."

Stephanie smiled.

"Thanks, guys."

Much later

"I should have called. I should have checked in."

"Mindy, calm the fuck down!" Dave chuckled from the driver's seat. "Stephanie and Jamie have both survived alone. The house is a fucking fortress, honey, and two of our kids are trained assassins."

"I worry," Mindy bleated. "I'm trying to be a good mother. . ."

"Give me strength," Dave muttered. "I see no flashing blue or red lights."

"So far."

"Come on, Mindy. I know you trust Stephanie with our lives and we both know that she would die before letting anything happen to those kids."

"Yes, I know. But they're only young, and kids fuck up – I did."

"Mindy – shut up!" Dave suggested, and Mindy glowered as she stared out of the side window.

Mindy's apprehensiveness only grew as they pulled into the garage. Yes, the house was intact and not burning down. However, the silence as she climbed out of the Audi R8 was killing her. Dave's cautious expression prevented her from pulling her pistol but even then, she braced up as she entered the house. All was suspiciously quiet – too quiet for a house currently occupied by two eight-year-olds, a nine-year-old, a ten-year-old, three dogs, and a demented cat. Something was very wrong, Mindy thought as she pulled her pistol and slowly moved towards the living room from where she could hear the TV. She stepped through the arch, her pistol held ahead of her. Then she grinned as she saw that all, but Stephanie were fast asleep. Stephanie looked up from where she had been dozing.

"Really?"

Mindy sheepishly put the pistol away as she peered through into the pristine kitchen.

"You call in cleaners?" she teased.

"They were all well behaved and they did what I asked of them – surprised the hell out of me."

Dave chuckled from behind Mindy.

"Well done, Stephanie. I'm sorry for not trusting you – I was wrong."

"Thanks."

"Let's wake the little buggers up and get them to bed," Mindy grinned as she poked the three sleeping kids awake.

The following morning
Monday, November 14th

North Park Elementary School

"For the love of everything, Jackson: what are you staring at?" Stephanie demanded.

Katy Evans giggled as she watched her twin brother just stare at Stephanie and Abigail.

"He's freaking me out," Abigail confirmed.

"I'm going to slap him," Stephanie decided.

"You are the two women in my life and I love watching you both," Jackson explained in a cringeworthy tone.

"Ewww!" Abigail groaned as Katy giggled even more.

"It is a bit creepy," Ali Johns agreed.

"He likes those bumpy things on your chest, Steph," Craig commented, attracting glares from all the girls present.

"Steph's are the biggest. Katy's getting some – but they're really small," Jackson went on. "Yowwww!"

"Stephanie Lizewski!"

"Hi, Principal Rooney," Stephanie grinned.

"You lay a hand on another student, young lady, and there will be trouble. Now, apologise to Jackson, please."

Stephanie rolled her eyes but stood her ground.

"He deserved it, sir; he keeps talking about my boobs."

"Will you apologise for hitting Jackson around the head?"

"No."

That afternoon

Glenview

"Hi, Mum!"

"Hello, young lady – do you have something for me?"

Stephanie's shoulders slumped. Then she dug into her pack and pulled out an envelope.

"Letter. . .s, Principal. . ."

Stephanie fled, and she was about to bolt up the stairs. . .

"Stephanie Lizewski! Get your sorry butt back in this kitchen, NOW!"

Stephanie groaned as she considered racing up to her bedroom and locking the door. However, she turned around slowly and walked the short distance – it felt like a mile – to the kitchen.

"Nice knowing ya," Danny chuckled.

Stephanie paused a few feet from Mindy, averting her eyes and staring at the floor.

"Okay, Steph – either the Principal was very bored, this afternoon, or he printed out a few too many copies of his letter."

"I suppose."

"One . . . two . . . three! Even I never got three letters in one day!"

"There was a little misunderstanding. . ."

"Was that before or after you told Principal Rooney to – and I quote – 'go procreate with yourself'. Ran out of swear words, did we?"

"No."

"Thought it would get you into less trouble?"

"Kind of. . ."

"You hit Jackson?"

"Yes."

"Why?"

"He was talking about our boobs."

"Did you ask him to stop?"

"No."

"Wouldn't that have been more diplomatic?"

"In hindsight. . ."

"When will you learn, Steph? Check your surroundings, before, you hit somebody."

"Mindy!" Dave commented with a frown.

"When will you learn, Steph? You should never hit somebody – when the Principal's watching."

Dave glared pointedly.

"When will you learn, Steph? You should never hit somebody . . . period!"

..._...

Stephanie had been sent to her room to do her homework.

Forty minutes later, she was summoned back downstairs. She found Mindy and Dave in the kitchen with Katy and Jackson, plus their mother, Deborah.

"I am so sorry, Deborah," Mindy said.

"Don't be silly, Mindy" Deborah Evans replied. "They are the very best of friends and Katy explained why Stephanie hit him. He got a blast from his father when he found out. Jackson."

"Sorry, Steph – I shouldn't have been so rude."

"Thanks."

"Stephanie – apologise to Jackson, please," Dave said forcefully.

"Sorry, Jackson – I overreacted," Stephanie said as she offered her hand.

Jackson shook the offered hand. "Apology accepted, although I'd have preferred a kiss. . ."

"Jackson!" Deborah exclaimed in exasperation.

Chapter 358*: Escape

Later that evening

Monday, November 14th, 2016

Northwestern Memorial Hospital

Room 32

"Are you both enjoying the view, girls?"

Shannon and Stephanie both looked up from where they were observing the removal of Saoirse's urinary catheter. They were both captivated by how it functioned – however, Saoirse was not.

"The only thing that should be passing my labia is a tampon or a penis," Saoirse growled as she felt the thin plastic tube being removed from her urethra.

"Sorry – we were just curious," Shannon offered with a grin.

"Nothing wrong with curiosity, girls," Nurse Kittiwake commented with a chuckle as she covered up Saoirse's remaining dignity with her gown. "Okay, Saoirse, let's try and get you off the bed and onto your feet. It will be sore and remember that your right lower leg is encased in a cast, okay?"

Saoirse nodded, her face full of apprehension.

"We're here to support you, SD – no matter what," Stephanie grinned supportively.

"Okay," Nurse Kittiwake directed. "Let's get you facing the edge of the bed."

Saoirse grimaced as she twisted herself around the face her friends and the nurse. Nurse Kittiwake eased the cast over the side of the bed allowing Saoirse to slowly take the weight of the item attached to her lower right leg. The movements were painful for Saoirse and tears were visible on her face. Her face also showed determination and each of her hands was held by the hand of one of her best friends.

"Now, ease yourself forwards . . . good. Rest your weight on the good leg first."

"Ow!" Saoirse exclaimed as her left leg took her weight for the first time in a month. "That's sore . . . aaaah!"

"Focus, SD," Stephanie directed. "Look at me."

Saoirse looked directly into her friends' eyes as she stood up properly before tentatively resting weight on her damaged right leg. Saoirse almost fell forwards as her right leg buckled but the fifteen-year-old found herself supported by a ten-year-old to her left and a fourteen-year-old to her right.

"Thanks, guys," Saoirse grinned as more tears spilled down her face.

The tears turned into sobbing as Stephanie recognised the Predator inside coming to the fore. Shannon recognised the extreme determination which meant that Saoirse would try, try, and try again until she completed the task – or she would die trying. Saoirse moved her left leg and she took a small step. After a short pause, there came her other leg with another step, it was a smaller step, but it was still a step.

"Keep it coming, Saoirse," Shannon whispered encouragingly as she supported her friend. "Every journey begins with the first step."

"I can't – it's really sore."

"And I thought that / was the loser!" Stephanie growled. "Move!"

Saoirse growled, praying for the willpower to not throttle the annoying girl to her left. Stephanie would willingly allow Saoirse to ring her scrawny little neck if it helped her friend to get back on her feet.

"You want more words of motivation, you soft bitch?" Shannon added.

"Fuck!" Saoirse breathed as she forced her legs to move, tolerating the pain. "I hate you both!"

Stephanie and Shannon exchanged a grin as they supported their friend over several difficult steps.

"You've down very well, Saoirse," Nurse Kittiwake commented with a smile for all three girls. "Let's get you back onto the bed before you fall and cause yourself some more damage.

After Saoirse was settled back in her bed, Nurse Kittiwake left the three girls alone. Saoirse smiled up at her friends.

"Thanks, guys."

Three days later
Thursday, November 17th

Glenview

"You didn't do anything special for the anniversary of us coming into your home," Anne-Marie groused.

"Why would anybody want to celebrate you coming to stay?" Danny pointed out, quite reasonably, he thought.

"Why don't you go fu. . ."

"Anne-Marie!" Dave challenged and the fiery little eight-year-old simply glared at her twin brother.

"Okay!" Mindy exclaimed. "You know that we love you all – equally! Stephanie quite literally fell into our lap after being shot as collateral damage during a Fusion firefight. We took her to Safehouse F and she was checked over by Cathy and Chloe."

"Yeah," Stephanie muttered. "I discovered Wildcat's claws, too!"

"Yes, you did – you had a bad time, too, that night."

"The next day, Joshua gave me Marmite – first time in a while. Then I met you two. You were really nice to me, Anne-Marie."

"You looked like you needed a friend," the youngster admitted with a smile.

"Mindy slept with a pistol under her pillow that first night," Dave chuckled.

"Don't blame her, really," Stephanie admitted. "I was an unknown."

"I'm glad you came, Steph," Danny said. "You became our big sister and we never regretted it."

"Yeah – we love you," Anne-Marie admitted as she hugged Stephanie.

She was quickly joined by Danny.

"That was a special day," Jamie commented. "It was the beginning of the end for Urban Predator."

"That it was, Jamie, and the beginning of the hunt for my brother," Stephanie grinned as she pulled her brother into the hug.

Mindy was next before Dave wrapped them all in his muscular arms.

The following afternoon
Friday, November 18th

Safehouse F

Mindy hated leaving Chicago.

She also hated seeing her teams going out without her. But, she had an appointment many miles away in Los Angeles. She and several others were due to fly out that very night. Mindy was to be joined by Anne-Marie, Danny, Megan, Curtis, Paige, Abby, and Hailee. There was also the problem of her separation from Dave, but she knew that she could survive for a few days.

"Stephanie, Jamie – listen to Dave and do not blow anything up," Mindy cautioned as she gave each a hug.

"I am in full control of my emotions and I don't cause accidental explosions," Stephanie pointed out.

"I do not blow things up without reason," Mindy countered.

"Not from what I've heard," Jamie chuckled.

"Just behave, right?"

"Love you, Mum."

Safehouse E
Level 8 – Detention Level

Stephanie was determined to continue her task and prove to Mindy that she was Hit Girl's daughter in every way.

It had been all but two weeks since the Marauders had come into their custody and things were progressing well. With the assistance of Doctor Daniel Charles and Doctor Sarah Reese, a clinically accurate psychological profile had been built up for each Marauder. Doctor Reese was coldly clinical with her questions and she had reduced several of the older Marauders to tears in no time at all. It was cruel – to a point – but it was necessary to understand what was going on inside their heads. Predators by design were programmed to hide their emotions, so those emotions had to be dug out and inspected to find out how the child within was really feeling. Most importantly, it helped to identify those who were expected to be recoverable and those who might not be. Five Marauders had been identified as being honestly remorseful and those five were destined to receive special treatment to help them along. On the flip side, three had been identified as having deep psychotic issues, with another suffering from a severe case of self-loathing and anxiety.

That evening, the Marauders were all at the point of virtual collapse from having been kept on the go continuously. The harsh regime had been important to condition the youngsters so that they could be properly vetted. Stephanie and Lucy had some special events planned for the next day which they hoped might help the offenders want to succeed. One task which Stephanie had not been relishing was about to happen. After the evening meal, Stephanie had taken custody of sixteen-year-old Willow and escorted her back to her hidey-hole.

Only, there was somebody waiting there for them.

Level 7 – Room 708
The Psyche Den

Willow scowled as she laid eyes on Rachel for the first time in many weeks.

"Willow – before you explode, please help yourself to some Coke," Stephanie directed.

Willow complied, somewhat reluctantly, and sat down without being asked.

"Why isn't she in hack with us?" Willow demanded.

"Rachel suffered for the part she played in hurting me. Believe me, Willow, Rachel spent time two doors away from you while her injuries healed. My friends beat the living crap out of her before I stopped them. Since then, Rachel has shown us that she can be trusted. She has also shown remorse to the extent that she stole a pistol from me and tried to blow her brains out."

Willow thought that one through for a few minutes.

"The bitch shot me."

"I'm sorry, Bandit, but I was not about to let you carry through your attack on Stephanie."

"Don't call me that – ever!" Willow growled dangerously.

"Would you prefer we call you, Rampart?" Stephanie asked.

"I don't deserve that name – not yet."

Stephanie was about to speak, but Rachel raised her hand.

"Willow . . . I . . . we both got involved with a bad crowd and we got caught out," Rachel said. "Life for us has been shit, but its time to put that behind us and move on. It's not easy – I can vouch for that. I have people who care about me – no idea why – but that helps. You are alone. . ."

"NO!"

"Willow. . ."

"NO! Don't think that you know me! That little bitch tried that . . . oh, fuck. . ."

Willow began to grasp her head and her face went very red.

"What is it?" Stephanie asked.

"My head – it hurts."

Stephanie hit an alarm button by the door before she grabbed up a radio. Alarm klaxons sounded throughout Safehouse E.

"Surgeon to Level 7 – medical emergency!"

By the time Surgeon appeared minutes later, Willow had collapsed onto the floor. Behind Surgeon came Kick-Ass and Stormtide. After a few moments of examination, Surgeon proclaimed Willow fit to be moved and Kick-Ass swept her up and carried her off to the Medical Centre.

The following morning
Saturday, November 19th

Training Facility Echo
Level 1 – Medical Centre

Willow Hartman opened her eyes to find herself somewhere new.

It took a moment to understand where she was but then she remembered her head hurting and then collapsing in Psyche's den. What was wrong with her? She braced up as the curtain around her bed moved and Surgeon walked in accompanied by Stephanie and Rachel.

"Hi, Willow," Surgeon said. "How are we feeling?"

"Better – my head hurts, just not as much."

"It appears that you had a swelling in your brain which was causing the headaches. We're treating that, and the swelling is already subsiding."

"Told you she was brain damaged," Rachel quipped.

Willow scowled.

"Just kidding," Rachel said quickly with genuine concern. "I'm just glad you're okay – you scared the crap out of us."

"Why do you care about me – after all I have done?"

"Until you figure that out, you are going to be down here a very long time," Stephanie replied darkly.

Later that morning

Level 4 – Exercise Area

"What have you done with Hartman?"

"Is she dead?"

"Did you fuck her up?"

"Are we each going to vanish, one by one?"

"Good riddance?"

Stephanie shook her head.

"Willow Hartman collapsed, yesterday, as a result of her previous injury. She is being treated in the Medical Centre."

"Right, back to today's agenda," Lucy said loudly. "Today, we are going to fight."

"Huh?" Dakota asked.

Lucy threw a pair of thirty-inch-long Escrima sticks at the girl's feet. Dakota did not move – she saw it as a trick.

"As I remember, you were very good with these, Arbiter," Lucy pushed.

"I don't fight anymore, Piranha."

"Your loss!"

Piranha dived forwards, the other Marauders scattering as the solid sticks came around towards Arbiter's head. As expected, Piranha's strike was met with force and her sticks clashed against those of Arbiter who had deftly swept up the weapons and blocked the strike.

"So, you do have some spirit left," Piranha grinned as she stepped back before sticking again.

The fight became more and more heated as the two girls span and struck at one another. Yes, Dakota Warlow-Davies, AKA Arbiter, was an accomplished Martial Arts fighter as would be expected from a Phase 3 graduate who had endured four years of intensive Urban Predator training. Stephanie could see the anger in Dakota's eyes. She had been unwilling to fight, but when forced, she would fight. There was also some hatred there, as could be expected by Lucy's former status as their direct overseer. It was a calculated risk giving them weapons, but it was also a method of monitoring their progress, while also seeing who still had an inclination to fighting.

While the two girls sparred, Stephanie handed a pair of sticks to Charlotte Grey who stood there looking stupid until Fury slapped her on the arse with her own sticks – they began to spar, slowly, working up to a steady pace. Lin Lau was paired off with her younger sister, Xiāngxìn, and they began to spar together. As for the rest, Stephanie pointed them all to a pile of Escrima Sticks and they readily paired off. Stephanie, herself, faced off against Jake Wistrum, a boy two years her senior – in age, but not in skill level, Stephanie thought.

"Move it, arsehole!" Stephanie growled as she brandished her Escrima sticks.

..._...

"What do you want out of all this, Jakey?" Stephanie asked as they circled one another.

"I don't know, Stephy?" the boy replied with a grin.

Stephanie rapped Jake across the knuckles with one of her sticks, causing the boy to yell out in pain. He still grinned, though. The boy was tough, Stephanie had to give him that. He was a Phase 2, just as she had been, only he had been in the program for a lot longer than Stephanie had. His file indicated his strengths were Martial Arts and subterfuge – he was also a joker and he loved to make people laugh. In another life, Stephanie might have liked him, but he got on her nerves and there was something about him which freaked her out a bit. Without Stephanie's knowledge, Lucy and Abigail had hatched a plan which was unfolding around Stephanie, right at that moment.

Stephanie noticed the people around her moving subtly to box her in. She noticed the grin on Lucy's face – she was being set up and so was Jake. Without warning, Fury and Charlotte came at Stephanie and Jake, attacking hard. Jake instantly moved onto the defensive, as did Stephanie. They both joined as a team, automatically, without conversation, as was their training. Threats changed and that was something which was hammered into the newest Predators during Phase 1 training. Very smoothly, Jake attacked Fury while Stephanie took on Charlotte. There were yells of support from the Marauders and from the Predators present. Some supported their own, others just supported whomever they thought might win.

Stephanie fought well, landing several strikes on the older girl who was taller and stronger. Charlotte got her own strikes in, however, much to the enjoyment of the watchers. But Charlotte was tired, and she soon fell prey to Stephanie's underhand tactics as she was tripped and slammed to the floor. Jake managed to get entangled with Fury and they both crashed to the floor with a grinning Jake on top of Fury.

"Do I get a kiss from the magnificent, Fury?" he muttered.

For a moment, Fury did not know what to say, but she was glad that her mask hid her blushes.

"Get your little dick away from me, arsehole!" Fury growled as she kneed the boy in his groin.

There was laughter as the boy rolled around with his hands clutching at his boyhood. Stephanie helped Charlotte back to her feet and she then congratulated the twelve-year-old on her fighting style.

"That was fun," Charlotte admitted. "Thanks, Fury."

"We all like to gang up on Psyche, once in a while," Fury chuckled.

"I can take it – I'm not a pussy like some," Stephanie replied. "Jakey – get up. Stop playing with your dick; it'll be fine. You fought well, Jake – well done."

"Thanks," the boy groaned from the floor.

That afternoon

After lunch, the Marauders were asked to remain at their tables.

Stephanie, Lucy, Shannon, and Marc sat down before them all. Willow had re-joined her compatriots and she was sulking at the back.

"We want to hear what you think," Stephanie began. "Ask us anything you like, and we will do our best to answer your questions. Let's put aside our animosity towards one another for a while, okay? This time is for you guys."

"Who wants to go first?" Shannon asked. "Okay, Jake – go ahead."

"What size bra does Stephanie wear?" Jake asked with a cheeky grin.

"I wear a 30-AA; happy?" Stephanie offered, and Jake stammered a surprised thank you. "That shut him up! Any serious questions?"

After a rippled of laughter at the pink-faced Jake's expense, the Marauders conferred amongst themselves for a few moments before Charlotte Grey stood up.

"What's going to happen to us?"

"I'm sure that is a question on all your minds," Shannon replied. "You will all be rehomed somewhere. You have a choice, all of you. We can find you a family to live with – especially you younger kids. The older kids may not want that, and we can arrange for you to have your own apartment in a secure environment. If you want to leave Chicago, then we can arrange something. All of this depends on when we think you have been suitably reformed. All of you have made significant improvements and some of you are showing remorse for your actions."

"Everything we do to you tells us what is going on in your vivid minds," Lucy explained. "You have all had your privacy taken away and suffered humiliations since you have been here, but it is all for your safety. We don't want anything to happen to any of you. I know you all find it difficult to understand, but we all care. I for one was unsure when I first came to Chicago looking for help. Nobody was happy to see me, and I suffered, but the past is the past, and my time here has been amazing since I came in from the cold. Is till have my skills, but I am now using them for good as opposed to what Urban Predator wanted."

"I only kill when I want to," Marc said. "Only those who I think deserve to die, die. If I don't want to fight, I don't want to. But I enjoy having a purpose. I am among friends who care for me. I have adults who guide me and care for me. I have a wonderful girlfriend who loves me."

Shannon blushed furiously.

"I remember you two – at a sex demo," Jay Hilton commented. "You were amazing, Shannon."

Shannon's blush somehow went even redder and there was a lot of laughter.

"All joking aside," Marc went on, "I put my life into the hands of Fusion, and they looked after me. I did bad things – ask Wildcat – and so did Sarah, but they welcomed us and they now I have the best life ever."

"Forty of you have been rescued," Stephanie concluded. "We want that number to rise. We still have no idea how many died as part of Urban Predator. I saw some die before my very eyes, even as we tried to rescue them. We are not doing this to recruit more into Fusion, we are doing this to save the lives of kids who were ripped from their families and put through hell. I know many of you hate me, but you all know that I went through hell and endured pain and humiliation like nobody should ever have to endure. I am only ten-years-old, but I have seen and suffered things that would scare most adults. I know what you have all been through – and I care."

"Thanks for telling us that," Kate Fincham said. "I know that some here would rather break out on their own, but you are all putting your time into helping us, and I for one thank you for that. I hope we don't let you down. I am almost seventeen and I really want to have a life. I want to get married and I want to have a family. If I am in prison, I won't get that. But here, I have a chance, and I won't pass that up."

"Me, too," Charlotte Grey agreed.

"Me, too," Dakota Warlow-Davies added.

"Us, as well," Lin Lau said for her and her sister.

Jesse Dolan, Joel Burnell, and James Todd each added their own comments in agreement. Lucy nodded her acceptance of the comments.

"How long are we going to be here?" Jay Hilton asked.

"As long as it takes," Stephanie replied. "It could be as little as a month, or it could be much longer. We will keep this going as long as necessary to keep you all out of the adult prison system."

"If we do well, what happens?" fourteen-year-old Dylan Page wanted to know.

"If we believe that you are honest in your remorse and that you are not a flight risk, then we may allow you to live outside of this bunker, but under house arrest. Those tags on your ankles will be there for many months until we are one hundred percent convinced that you are safe to join civilised society," Stephanie explained, and she saw many expressions of guilt and shame, but also of desire.

That evening, seven of them would be given a ray of hope.

Training Facility Echo Level 1 – Dining Room

The seven Marauders were dumbfounded.

"Where are we?" Dakota asked.

"You are in the dining room for the Fusion Training Facility," Shannon commented.

The space had been cleared and only the seven Marauders and the four Predators were present. A selection of food was laid out on a table for them.

"Please, dig in," Marc said.

Charlotte Grey, Dakota Warlow-Davies, Kate Fincham, Lin Lau, Xiāngxìn Lau, James Todd, and Jesse Dolan grabbed a plate of food and then they sat down at one of the large tables. Stephanie grabbed her own plate of food before joining them along with Lucy, Shannon, and Marc.

"You seven are the first to be offered hope," Shannon explained. "Should you each stay out of trouble for the next two weeks, then you will all be allowed to move out of your dungeon and into a house, in the real world. You will get a chance to decide what you want from your lives and we will do what we can to accommodate you. As Stephanie mentioned, earlier, those fashionable accessories on your ankles will remain as a reminder to avoid temptation."

"It is advised that you do not go back to your colleagues and start bragging about this. Keeping quiet may be a good idea," Lucy advised. "However, between now and then, start to think about what you want to do. Do you want a family? Do you want to live in peace as normal people? Do you want to put your skills to use for good? Do you want to stay in Chicago? Four of you are British – do you want to return to the UK? These are all questions that only you, personally, can answer. We will help, and we are here whenever you need us, but we cannot make these decisions for you, beyond providing guidance."

"The most crucial thing here is that you are in control of your destiny," Shannon went on. "Only you can decide what happens to your lives from this moment on."

The seven youngsters finished their evening meal with limited chatter as they contemplated what they had been told.

The following day
Sunday, November 20th

Glenview

Dave was happy for Stephanie and Jamie to have some friends over.

Therefore, Lizzie, Leo, Hunter, Tommy, and Abigail had come over for lunch. Dave was a little concerned with having so many youngsters on hand – especially as most were of the unpredictable Predator variety. However, after they had consumed a pile of cheeseburgers, they all chatted merrily before the three girls and four boys ran off to change for swimming. Lizzie, being the only female non-Predator, was not all that comfortable with stripping before others, despite Stephanie and Abigail pulling off their clothes and then chatting while still naked before they pulled on their costumes. Lizzie was twelve and not all that comfortable with the new bumps and other things that her body had sprouted over the previous year. Unfortunately for Lizzie, the other two girls had noticed.

"I don't know what you are worried about," Abigail commented. "You've got boobs and you've got the beginnings of hair down there – I have nothing!"

Just to make Lizzie even more uncomfortable, Abigail dropped her swimsuit and held out her arms so that Lizzie could see that Abigail had nothing to see. Lizzie grimaced.

"I just feel awkward."

"I'm comfortable with my body," Abigail commented. "I am what I am – Stephanie doesn't care either."

Stephanie's expression said otherwise but she simply shrugged, wondering what Abigail was up to.

"Give me those," Abigail said as she grabbed all three swimsuits, throwing them to one side.

"What are you doing?" Stephanie groaned, having a shrewd idea.

Abigail simply grinned as she then grabbed the hands of the other two girls and pulled them out of Stephanie's room and out onto the landing.

"What are you doing!?" Lizzie exclaimed as she yanked her hand back to cover her bumps while the other hand went between her legs.

"I don't care who sees me naked, and neither does Stephanie. Learn to be comfortable with your body."

Lizzie looked over at Stephanie who seemed anything but uncaring. Stephanie simply shrugged and rolled her eyes. Nonetheless, she grabbed Lizzie's left hand, pulling it away from her chest while Abigail grabbed Lizzie's right hand from lower down. Lizzie moaned as she was walked towards the stairs and then down to the hallway and through into the pool. Dave turned to see their arrival – he groaned.

"Whose clever idea was this?" he asked the three naked girls.

"Not mine," Lizzie replied as she tried to cover herself up.

"You think I'd go naked voluntarily?" Stephanie asked.

Dave just shook his head as Abigail grinned enormously.

"Oh my God!" came a voice and the three girls turned to see the four boys standing a few feet away.

It was Tommy who had spoken, and he was grinning as he checked out each girl in turn before levelling his eyes on Stephanie's chest and then her groin. Hunter seemed transfixed by Lizzie and her own equipment which was on display before his eyes.

"Really, Stephanie?" Jamie groaned.

"This was not thought out very well, Abigail," Stephanie announced as she ran past the wide-eyed boys and scampered up the stairs – Tommy watched her all the way with a hand covering the bulge in his crotch.

Stephanie reappeared a few seconds later, and she threw a swimsuit at Abigail and Lizzie before she pulled on her own. There was a collective groan from the boys as the girls' bodies quickly vanished.

"We had enough of the Full Monty crap?" Dave enquired.

"Yeah," Stephanie growled as she shoved Abigail into the pool.

..._...

About twenty minutes later, Dave noticed that there did not appear to be a lot of swimming going on for Stephanie and Lizzie.

Stephanie was loitering around the middle of the pool with Tommy and they appeared to be kissing and Tommy's hands were not readily visible. The same could be said for Lizzie and Hunter. They had exchanged kisses and then a few more. Lizzie was giggling as they talked, and Lizzie appeared to have her hand in Hunter's groin. Stephanie giggled at random moments as Tommy whispered into her ear. The other kids were happily swimming and playing, although Leo, Abigail, and Jamie were giving the cavorting youngsters a very wide berth . . . as well as some very dirty looks.

Oh well, Dave thought, the kids of today.

That evening

South Chicago

Chloe, Joshua, and Becky were on the way to Safehouse W to pick up Shannon who had been on duty guarding Sunset Phoenix and Chloe would remain overnight.

They were only a few miles away when the cell phones for Chloe and Joshua began to beep. Chloe was driving, so Joshua checked his cell. His face frowned.

"Step on it!" he ordered. "Security breach at Whiskey."

Chloe stamped her foot to the floor and her Mini accelerated hard. A few minutes later, she slammed on the brakes, skidding to a halt in the darkness. The wire-mesh access gate was partially open, indicating a problem. Mindy grabbed a pistol, as did Joshua and Becky. All three moved slowly through the darkness after locking the car, with pistols raised. They found the actual building secure, the main access door closed, however Marty had advised that the access door had been opened and then closed, about two minutes previously. Unfortunately, the Safehouse was designed to keep people out – not in. As they moved through the Safehouse, they found all the watercraft present and accounted for. As they approached the room being used as a cell for their prisoner, they found Shannon lying in the doorway. Shannon was nursing a large bump on the head.

"I don't know how she got out of her restraints – she got the better of me. . ."

Joshua and Chloe dashed off while Becky remained with Shannon, her pistol covering them both. They both returned a few minutes later. Joshua shook his head angrily.

Summer Frasier aka Sunset Phoenix was gone.

Mindy's trip to Los Angeles is covered in Chapter 5: D-JAK Heads West of my other story: Fusion: Los Angeles.

Chapter 359: Night of the Predator

Author's Note: This chapter follows on from Chapter 52: Steeplechase of my other story: Vengeance.

Saturday, November 26th, 2016

Training Facility Echo
Chicago, USA

"Is this wise?"

"I . . . well, I think so."

"It's like having almost two dozen mini Hit Girls and Hit Boys running about causing chaos," Dave commented dryly.

Mindy laughed as she watched the massed group of Predators mingle on the mat. They all wore their 'duty' uniforms. There was a round dozen US Predators, with half-a-dozen UK Predators. Though there was a fairly even mix of the dark grey uniforms of the Fusion members and the dark blue uniforms of the Vengeance junior members which included five non-Predators.

"You have concerns, though."

"What makes you think that?" Mindy asked.

"Every adult is carrying at least one Taser – you are carrying a pair."

Mindy's cheeks coloured slightly as she muttered a response.

"Nothing wrong with being prepared. . ."

..._...

It was both amazing and very worrying to see so many Predators in one place.

Eighteen Predators were present – a dangerous number to have in one place, but all had promised to behave. It was also special as two wounded members were out of hospital and while nowhere near operational, at least they were with their friends. It was also a first for one of them. The list of those present was impressive.

Fusion Predators

Stephanie Lizewski AKA Psyche
Saoirse Doherty AKA Foxtail
Lucy Ford AKA Piranha
Shannon Millar AKA Stormtide
Rachel Ascot AKA Ember
Marc Ryan AKA Tempest
Sarah Hampton AKA Discord
Hunter Graves AKA Cut-Throat
James Lizewski AKA Rage
Abigail Wilde AKA Fury
Leo Graves AKA Relentless
Rebecca Wren AKA Scamp

Vengeance Predators

Craig Montgomery AKA Stripe
Harper Sharp AKA Polaris
Naomi Perrin AKA Prowl
Kaitlin Perrin AKA Glide
Electra Haig AKA Rigour
Jordan Hanley AKA Viridian

They were also accompanied by the non-Predators from Vengeance:

HRH Princess Mary AKA Belle
Jeremy Lai AKA Harrier
Olivia Kensington AKA Ajax
Jessica Kensington AKA Overrun
Christopher Collins AKA Forager

And the long-suffering Vengeance adults:

Cassie Perrin AKA Nemesis
Keira Sharp AKA Scorpion
Trevor Lai AKA Raptor

And of course:

Ginny Turner AKA Minder

All told, the two organisations, combined, were seventy strong – a formidable force for fighting evil across the globe.

..._...

For Jordan Hanley, it was all a bit of a shock.

While the attention was great – and he had a temporary family – finding himself thrust into a famous, but clandestine, organisation was something he still needed to get used to. He was also not alone in being more than a little concerned to be meeting Hit Girl and Kick-Ass. He had noticed Overrun and Ajax positively fangirling over Hit Girl which was amusing. Meeting Kick-Ass had been amazing and as for Shadow – damn!

Lunch was - well – it was rowdy. Vengeance was joined by most of Fusion which just added to the increasingly rowdy behaviour. Wildcat, Fury, Nightmare, Hellcat, and Ajax were all competing for who could be the most unladylike when it came to deepthroating a hotdog.

"Ajax has been practicing that with Stripe," Overrun pointed out.

"Wildcat enjoys deepthroating Trojan," Foxtail threw in as she added two more embarrassed faces to those of Ajax and Stripe.

For the boys, it was who could burp the longest and the loudest – much to Shadow's annoyance, Jackal won that. Even the adults were getting in on the fun as Hit Girl tried to see how many cheeseburgers she could Taser from her own seat. That ended after the third cheeseburger turned out to be Rogue's left hand – Hit Girl apologised to her infuriated daughter once she had reloaded her Taser and Rogue had stopped shaking long enough. Scamp – being a scamp – was enjoying causing trouble along with her new friend, Glide.

It was Nemesis who first noticed that her youngest charge was not visible amongst the thirty-odd people present. Then Shadow sidled up to the Brit.

"You seen my Scamp?" she asked.

"You seen my Glide?" Nemesis countered.

"Two eight-year-old Predators are missing, huh?" Shadow contemplated as her eyes scanned the dining room before narrowing. "I spy two little bitches about to get themselves into trouble."

Nemesis followed Shadow's gaze and she chuckled.

..._...

It had been Scamp's idea – maybe she was showing off to her new friend from the UK, or maybe she was just having some fun, either way, she knew that she was in trouble.

Glide, on the other hand, she was enjoying herself and any excuse to cause trouble just had to be taken – she liked Scamp, a fellow Brit; she was fun. The pair of them had snuck into the armoury and made a small withdrawal with the help of Shadow's ID card which Scamp had lifted, and then returned. They were a pair of training flash-bang grenades which the two girls were intending on rolling underneath the dining tables – just for some explosive fun, of course. However, what the pair did not know was that the grenades were special and multifunctional for training use. They also had no idea that they were capable of being remote-controlled. Therefore, Shadow made a swift call to Battle Guy who was able to identify the grenades which the two girls had just activated. With a swift command, he switched them from 'flash-bang' to 'electro-shock' and triggered them both at a command from Shadow.

Many eyes turned to check out the left-hand corridor from where there were two screams as Glide and Scamp fell to the dining room floor, twitching from the low-level electric shocks.

..._...

"Okay!" Hit Girl called out. "While those two little shits finish their twitching, Scorpion and Nemesis have some announcements to make."

There was laughter as Glide and Scamp gingerly regained their seats, looking thoroughly miserable. Scamp received a hard slap on her backside from Shadow and an expression which promised so much more later on. Glide kept her head down and remained out of reach of any adult.

"Polaris," Scorpion began, "it is very good to have you with us again, and I am very glad to be back with Vengeance. I enjoy wearing this uniform and I am extremely proud to represent the very best that the UK has to offer. Now, back to Polaris. You, young lady, should not be in that uniform; you are no longer our Senior Trainee Operator."

Polaris' bubble of happiness suddenly popped, and she looked very worried, but then she saw the evil smirk on her sister's face.

"You should be wearing these. . ."

Scorpion held out a fresh Vengeance epaulette bearing two pips rather than the single pip of Polaris' current rank. Polaris' grin grew enormously as tremendous applause rang out. With uncharacteristic slowness, Polaris rose to her feet and she made for her sister. Scorpion made no attempt to make her sister's route shorter; she knew that the youngster would not thank her for it. The nine-year-old was forcing down the pain as she braced up before her big sister, standing at attention while her rank was switched out and she was presented with her new Vengeance ID card.

"Congratulations, Junior Operator Polaris!" Scorpion announced amid more applause and raucous noise.

Polaris took her time returning to her seat, feeling happier than she had been in weeks.

..._...

Once the shouting and applause had died down, Scorpion then looked over at the two relative newcomers.

"Belle and Rigour – get your sorry behinds up here!" Scorpion ordered.

There was more cheering as the two girls stepped forward, Belle blushing furiously at all the attention, not that Rigour was less pink in the face.

"Rigour, in recognition of your actions while Vengeance was on the run, and especially for your actions above and beyond when it came to protecting one of those silly Royal Princesses," Belle grimaced as she recognised the sarcastic laugh of her protector, "we have decided it right to promote you to Senior Trainee Operator. As the person whose life was saved, would you like to complete the promotion, Your Royal Highness?"

Belle blushed furiously as she took the rank slide and she fitted it to the grinning Rigour's uniform amid huge applause which took a while to calm down – Psyche was the loudest when it came to the cheering for her friend.

"Rigour – would you please return the favour for Belle – our newest Trainee Operator," Scorpion directed as she held out another rank strap with a single stripe.

Belle brought herself to attention and she struggled to contain her grin as the rank was fitted and she suddenly felt very different.

..._...

For Her Royal Highness Princess Mary AKA Belle, it had been the most fantastic trip.

It had almost taken an act of God to actually allow her, a Royal Princess, to visit the United States of America, in total secrecy as her alter ego. As she understood it, her Grandmother had intervened and authorised the trip. She was so happy to be back amongst those she called true friends. They had all fought side-by-side, quite literally, in every sense of the phrase. When on the plane, Mary had looked over at Olivia and with a grimace, she had remembered the teenager, cuffed, hooded, and naked. She could remember giving the restrained girl, who was her own age, stern orders – she felt sad for the girl, but Olivia appeared to have overcome. After reaching Chicago, the drive had been amazing – she had never been to 'the windy city', before. Then had come the rabbit hole. She had felt like Alice as she had quite literally vanished dozens of feet beneath the city into a subterranean wonderland full of vigilantes. It was a place that she had only ever visited in her dreams and even her wildest dreams had been nothing like what she had experienced. If 'Fort Fusion' was amazing – it was nothing compared to the massive facility next door.

Mary herself would readily admit that it took something really amazing to have her lost for words – but there she was, lost for words as they had toured the massive facility. She had barely said a word in over the space of forty minutes. She had finally regained her ability to speak during their meal. While Vengeance was very familiar with the Princess in their midst, the Americans saw her as something special. Apparently, Americans loved everything about royalty and to have a Royal Princess before them was amazing. Or as Splinter had put it: 'She's a real princess and she packs a pistol – there is nothing sexier and I am damn hard at the thought – eat your heart out Princess Leia!' Mary had not known where to put her face at that moment, but she had enjoyed the comment – sort of . . . ewww! Everybody was so friendly but a part of her showed concern for how many there were who had suffered as Predators. She had no idea of their stories, nor the stories of the other members of Fusion, but she was certain that those stories would not be pretty.

The confirmation of her status as a member of Vengeance along with the ID card with 'BELLE' printed on it had been amazing, not to mention being able to reward the long-suffering Electra – the poor girl was still very sore where the bullets had struck. After her promotion, she was welcomed back amongst her friends and congratulated by everybody. She felt like she only felt when she was with Vengeance. All the Pomp and Circumstance of her life suddenly vanished, and she was a normal human-being enjoying the camaraderie of her friends. It was a feeling that she relished and one which she had missed while she had been back at school.

At least having Electra with her was a bonus – they could talk about things that only they were privy to.

..._...

"Okay, people," Nemesis called out. "We have a surprise for all you wretched, badly-behaved. . ."

"Don't forget: foul-mouthed, precocious, infuriating, tiresome, irksome. . ." Hit Girl cut in.

"You swallowed a dictionary, Mummy?" Psyche interrupted.

". . .Disagreeable, antagonistic, and downright vexatious," Hit Girl finished to applause from all the adults present and some of the non-Predators.

"All good," Nemesis grinned as she received nasty scowls from Prowl and Glide. "Now – as I was saying; we have a surprise for you petulant little rats. Hit Girl has deigned to take you little buggers out for a night on the town. . ."

Nemesis was interrupted by a roar of approval. Scorpion had seen her sister's face drop like a lead balloon at the pronouncement.

"You, young lady, will be in the Command Centre with Foxtail. I want you to learn how to command. I understand that Psyche spent several weeks 'commanding the troops', so to speak, after her incarceration in hospital. You think you can do that?"

Polaris smiled.

"I know you want to be out there, but I'm sorry – no fucking way!"

"It's okay, sis – I understand," Polaris said as she pulled her sister down for a hug.

..._...

"Do you think I am fucking stupid?"

Belle backed down as Hit Girl glared at her.

"No."

"Do you really think that I would allow a Royal Princess of the Realm to prance about Chicago with every chance of said Princess getting hurt? I have no desire to spend the rest of my sorry life in the Tower of London!"

"They don't put people in the. . ." Belle began.

"What are you in line to the throne?" Hit Girl went on.

"Twelfth."

"I know who your Grandmother is, and I know that she would not think twice about ordering an invasion of the United States of America to rescue her granddaughter or to capture Hit Girl and imprison her as a traitor to the Crown!"

Belle gave up.

"Okay."

"But, if you are a good little Princess, then you can ride shotgun in Critter."

"Critter?"

That Afternoon

Safehouse E Level 8 – Detention Level

Stormtide pushed open the door to the female accommodation and yelled a name.

"Here!" Charlotte Grey announced as she appeared seconds later.

Stormtide grinned at the eager-looking twelve-year-old. The girl was always punctual and never caused a moment's trouble. Stormtide knew that the girl had suffered at the hands of Fury, but that was in the past – sort of.

"Time for you to see the Doc."

"Stormtide – could you find out if Fury is about, please?"

Stormtide nodded, knowing that they were friends.

"Fury, Stormtide; you got your ears on?"

"Stormy!" came the response a few seconds later.

"Don't call me that!" Stormtide hissed, angrily, ignoring the laughter in her earpiece. "I'm taking your friend to see the Doc – she requests your attendance."

"I'll meet you there."

..._...

"Hi, Charlotte."

"Thanks for coming, Fury."

"I'll leave her in your custody," Stormtide said.

"No problem – and thanks," Fury replied as she knocked and then pushed open the door into Surgeon's office.

After a ten-minute examination of Charlotte's wounds and a general check of her physical health, the girl redressed.

"The wounds are looking good, Charlotte," Surgeon advised as Fury looked down at the floor.

"Look, Fury – if you keep thinking you are to blame, then I will break my streak of perfect behaviour just to kick your arse," Charlotte growled.

"Don't mind me – I won't tell," Surgeon chuckled to Charlotte.

Fury pulled off her mask – she had hoped to hide her expressions with it.

"Okay – I won't say another word about it."

"Now, Charlotte," Surgeon said to get things back on track. "Should you be allowed to leave here, where do you see yourself ending up? What do you want from life?"

After only a few second's thought, Charlotte smiled.

"I want to go home. I want to return to England. I don't belong here, and the United States has too many bad memories for me. I want to be amongst my own kind – Brits. I'm sorry, Abigail, but I don't belong here."

"Okay," Surgeon responded. "Where in England? You are too young to go it alone – would you want a family?"

"Yes. I want people who care about me. I want to have a childhood – I'm only twelve, so I have a long way to go and time to enjoy being a child again. However, . . ."

"You have an urge – an itch. You want to hurt somebody. You want to hit something. You feel the urge to run, to kick, to scream. You punch the pillows. You punch the mattress. Then you punch the doors. You escalate. You need an outlet for that feeling inside of you that surges up," Abigail offered quietly.

Surgeon looked at Abigail and Charlotte nodded.

"I want to join Vengeance – if they'd have me."

Abigail mulled that one over.

"You think you're good enough?" Abigail asked, knowing the answer.

"I am as good as you, Fury, probably better."

"I did put you down," Abigail pointed out with a slightly pained expression.

"I was having a bad day," was Charlotte's excuse.

"Any excuse is better than none, I suppose," Abigail laughed.

..._...

Surgeon finished off updating her patient notes after the pair of giggling girls had left her office.

Then there came a knock on the door. In came Stormtide with Dakota Warlow-Davies. Stormtide had to stay – she hated it; seeing another girl undergoing a medical examination was not exactly fun. However, it was brief as Dakota was in perfect health with nothing more than fading bruises on her skin.

"Now, Dakota," Surgeon said to the girl. "Should you be allowed to leave here, where do you see yourself ending up? What do you want from life?"

Dakota mulled that over for a bit.

"I don't belong in the US – I hate it, to be honest. No offence, Stormtide, and nothing against you Americans."

"No offence taken, Dakota," Stormtide replied with a grin.

"Can I go back to the UK?"

"That is certainly possible," Surgeon advised. "Anywhere in particular? You are still a little too young to go it alone – would you want a family, maybe?"

"I suppose. It would be nice not to be alone all the time."

"We can find something for you. We'll do everything we can, I promise you that."

"Thanks, Doc."

"Keep up the good behaviour, Dakota; you are doing really well."

The fourteen-year-old beamed as she stood up.

..._...

"You're not a bad person, Dakota," Stormtide said in support as they walked back to the Marauder accommodation.

"You're a good person, Shannon – you always were," Dakota replied. "I'm sorry about what happened to you – it sucked. I always liked your Dad; he was kind to us – is he okay?"

"He is, thanks for asking," Shannon replied.

"Stormtide – am I going to survive this, really?"

"Yes. You keep your nose clean and you'll be out of here. Just because you were a Predator does not mean that you are a bad person. You made a stupid decision and became a Marauder, but that is not you, Dakota."

"Thank you for talking to me – stay safe, Shannon."

"You too, Dakota."

That evening

The Battle Bunker

It was a new experience for Polaris.

Normally, she was in the thick of the action, but not while she was so fragile that a two-year-old could put her down, permanently. It was not a nice feeling being so vulnerable, but events had taken their course and there was nothing that she could do to change things. The same applied to Foxtail, to a certain extent. The girl was hurting, that was evident, but she was also just as immobile as Polaris was. Neither girl had really spent much time taking in what went on behind the scenes. Foxtail had received command training during her Phase 3 training. For Polaris, she knew little about actual command, but she knew the basics. There was another Predator who appeared to be allocated to the Command Centre – Ember. Between Hal and Ember, Polaris and Foxtail were shown the key systems and how to monitor the teams who were going out. Battle Guy kept overall watch as they were going to have a lot of people out on the streets of Chicago.

On the monitors, CCTV images showed the teams preparing equipment and themselves for the night out.

Training Facility Echo Level 2

There was one amongst them who was struggling to prepare herself.

It appeared that Olivia was getting her own back on the girl – or so it seemed. Olivia, Harper, and Mary were in one of the cabins with the door firmly locked. Mary was standing naked before both girls and feeling more than a little stupid. Olivia was smirking, and it had occurred to the girl that the tables had turned.

"Put these on," Harper insisted. "You look ridiculous!"

Mary happily took the black boy-shorts and black sports bra from the smirking nine-year-old and she quickly pulled them on, regaining a smidgen of dignity. Arrayed on the bed beside Harper was a pile of garments in various yellow hues. Next, Mary was handed a two-part under-suit. She pulled on the bottoms which came to her waist and included 'feet'. The top pulled on just like a jacket, although the zipper ran from bottom left to top right. Both sections were a dark grey in colour and made of a soft material which cocooned Mary's body as well as providing basic armour protection for her body – a first layer if you will. Next, there came actual body armour which felt slinky to the touch but was also very light. Each section clipped onto the under-suit and interconnected with the next section forming a complete covering for the thirteen-year-old's body. The body armour had a dull yellow hue with a gold trim accentuating Mary's developing curves. A pair of armoured gauntlets protected her hands and came partway up her wrists and secured to the lower arm body armour. The gauntlets were black with medium yellow and gold highlights. On her feet, she gained a pair of lightweight, armoured boots which were the same dull yellow as her body armour and which came up past her calves.

Around her waist, a utility belt in medium yellow carried communications, spare magazines, and various other accoutrements. Hanging from the utility belt, and strapped to her right thigh, there was a holster for her Glock 26 Gen4 pistol. On her left thigh, were mounts for a pair of Nanchuka. Each boot carried a mounting for her Tonfa on the outside. Also attached to the utility belt was a yellow and black mini-kilt. On top of the ensemble, a lightweight, calf-length coat with a high collar was pulled on. The coat was black on the outer, with a canary yellow trim. On the inner-side, the reversible coat was a canary yellow. The coat was also bullet-proof and flame retardant. There was one thing missing, Mary thought, until Olivia revealed an all in one mask and wig. The wig was of dark brown hair which hung in a single pony tail, reaching to the middle of Mary's back. The mask completely covered her hair and face. Around the eyes and the bridge of her nose, a gold masquerade ball mask with black highlights gave her a look of menace. The eyes glowed yellow in varying intensities. Harper handed Mary her pistol, Nanchuka, and Tonfas. Each was checked and placed securely in their mountings.

Belle was complete.

Safehouse D

Belle was amazed as she came face-to-face with CRITTER.

It was black – matte black – and it had massive tyres providing enormous ground clearance. The vehicle was over 6-metres long and 2.5-metres wide. It weighed in at almost nine tonnes and was armoured to resist armour-piercing rounds of up to 7.62-millimetre calibre. It had the highest armour rating available for standard vehicles – the next level up was basically a fucking tank. There was seating for five, including the driver – six at a pinch. The rear load bay was open and there was a roof hatch. Multiple lights adorned the roof above the windshield.

Belle jumped as the massive 6.8-litre V8 turbo diesel rumbled to life, revving as it produced over three-hundred horsepower, ready to thrust the giant vehicle into action.

"Get in!" Kick-Ass directed as he opened the front passenger door for Belle. "We don't stand on ceremony here, Princess!"

As she climbed into the leather seat, she looked behind her to see three of her friends: Prowl, Glide, and Rigour. They were each strapped in and ready to go, all in their body armour and fully armed.

"Maybe we should have got this in pink!" Kick-Ass complained sarcastically as he surveyed his female cargo.

"It would look really cool," Glide confirmed.

Kick-Ass growled as he shifted the vehicle into gear.

..._...

A few yards away was IRON HIDE.

Piranha gunned the huge engine as she slipped the transmission into Drive – it was her first time driving the giant pickup truck, but she was up to the task. Beside her, Stripe sat watching out the armoured windshield, excited for what lay in wait for them. In the rear seats, a happy Psyche, an apprehensive Viridian, and a pensive Tempest sat awaiting their imminent fates on the streets of Chicago. The fully refurbished TITAN was being driven by Lynx who, for some reason, wanted some action. She was joined by Stormtide in the passenger seat beside her, and then by Surgeon, Discord, Cut-Throat, and Relentless in the back. The balance of Vengeance piled into a virtual twin to TITAN, another Pit Bull VX which was known as HERCULES. That vehicle was being driven by Raptor with Minder beside him. They were joined by Ajax, Overrun, Harrier, and Forager.

As everybody signalled their readiness, Battle Guy checked everybody off, before issuing the final order: "Predators – roll out!"

With a roar, the vehicles departed Safehouse D.

..._...

As the convoy of four heavy vehicles took a left onto South California Avenue, they were joined by five motorcycles and the final pair of Predators.

Hit Girl on her Ducati Superbike 1199 Panigale R, with Rage riding behind her, raced past. She was followed by Scorpion, on a borrowed Kawasaki Ninja ZX-10R – actually borrowed from Jackal who rode his Triumph Tiger 800 XCA motorcycle. Alongside Jackal, was Shadow on her Ducati Superbike 899 Panigale with Scamp clamped around her waist. The final machine was Shadow's Suzuki V-Strom 1000 ABS being ridden by Nemesis with Fury behind her.

The motorcade headed north for the industrial zone to the east of Douglas Park.

..._...

Hit Girl, being Hit Girl, had decided not to leave anything to chance.

She wanted the Predators to 'have some fun' and be able to 'kick some ass' without having to hunt for some cunt hiding down a darkened back alleyway. As such, she had paid a visit to Worm who had 'arranged' for some low life scum to be 'available' by spreading a rumour, via an untrustworthy third-party to keep himself out of trouble, of course. The rumour? Drugs, money . . . whatever was necessary to get the cunts out of the woodwork and onto the streets around Douglas Park.

Hit Girl had asked for a 'target-rich' environment, and that was what she was going to get.

Western and 16th Street

The metal-clad building was 500-feet long and currently occupied by eight men.

Those eight men were busy preparing the night's cache of drugs. They hoped to make a killing, figuratively, at least. As far as they were concerned, the building was secure, and nobody knew that they were there.

The boss – Jay – looked around for his lieutenant.

"Hey! Where's Frank?"

"He went out back, I think."

"Well, go find the fucker!"

One of the men vanished to find Frank. The man was back a few seconds later – his face full of fear.

"Run!" he yelled, just as the entire side of the building exploded inwards and the rear of an armoured vehicle suddenly appeared a few feet from Jay.

The rear hatch burst open and four armour-clad individuals leapt out. Jay was not stupid – he knew that he was the proverbial 'dead man walking'. However, it was not a Fusion vigilante which took him down, it was another armoured vehicle smashing through the wall a few yards down the building and quite literally squishing Jay against a steel pillar.

"Sorry!" Lynx yelled out.

"You are fucking cleaning that when we get back!" Stormtide growled as she stared at the red mush on her side of the windshield. "I'm not fucking touching it!"

"Just get the fuck out there, Stormy!" Lynx growled.

The fourteen-year-old assassin scowled behind her mask, but she dutifully jumped out of her seat and ran towards the rear door.

"Move you little assholes!" she growled at Relentless and Cut-Throat.

Stormtide, the two boys, and Discord jumped out of TITAN and they joined their Vengeance colleagues from HERCULES as they all attacked the drug dealers.

The Battle Bunker

For young Polaris, it was a viewpoint which she had never seen.

She was on the sidelines, which she hated, but she was professional enough to know that she had no choice. However, she was amazed by everything which went on behind the scenes to coordinate the attacks and to keep the vigilantes safe. While Polaris, like the other operators, saw the likes of Eric, Abby, and Marty as uber-geeks and at times unworthy of being acknowledged as equals, her mindset was permanently changed as she saw with her own eyes how crucial their technical support was to ongoing operations. Her mind also drifted for a few moments and told her that if Vengeance had had that kind of support while they had been on the run, then so many things might have been different. She took a moment to study her bandaged left hand and she winced at the painful memories attached to those injuries. They had lost their technical support and they had paid dearly for it.

"You okay?"

Polaris looked up into the surprisingly caring eyes of Foxtail. The paths of the two Predators had crossed a few times in the past, but neither had spoken – the Urban Predator hierarchy had forbidden it at the time.

"Just some painful thoughts," Polaris admitted.

"Tell me about it," Foxtail grimaced.

Both girls went back to watching Hal, Battle Guy, and Ember as they each controlled a sector of the fighting.

Western and 16th Street

"Okay – this looks like fun," Kick-Ass commented from CRITTER.

"It does?" Belle queried as she watched four large black SUVs pull up and each vehicle divulged four rather large men.

"I think Worm's invitations went a little bit viral," he added dryly.

"Can we go kick some arse?" Rigour asked.

"Iron Hide – let's deploy," Kick-Ass directed, and he ignored the cheers from behind him. "And you, Belle – you stay in car."

"Woof!" Belle responded despondently as everybody dashed towards the fight.

Belle watched as Hit Girl skidded to a halt a few yards off. Rage jumped off the motorcycle and he dived into the fight. Hit Girl followed seconds later while Scorpion raced past as she went after a runner. Jackal and Shadow dived into the action as the sixteen recent arrivals found the tables turned on them in rather a spectacular fashion. Belle thought that Scamp looked very sweet as the little girl fought men more than twice her size, width, strength etc. Amazingly, she fought very well, wielding a short double-ended bō-staff with wicked blades at each end. She had never seen such fighting, nor so much blood as Scamp emptied the abdominal cavity of a man before stabbing him in the chest and probably chopping his heart in two. She was amazed by the teamwork as the vigilantes fought alongside one another with no distinction between the British and American vigilantes.

However, as she scanned the fighters, she saw two missing.

..._...

A significant distance away from the action, Nemesis and Fury observed the fighting from a raised vantage point.

As they watched, they saw two men bug out of the long building and race through the darkness on foot, heading directly for them. Nemesis and Fury dismounted from their motorcycle and removed their helmets.

"You ready for this?" Nemesis asked.

"I am," Fury replied confidently.

Fury had insisted on riding with Nemesis. Part of Abigail would always be British, and she would forever be grateful for everything which Cassie had done for her after she had been recovered by Vengeance. As such, she remained at Nemesis' side as they both took cover behind an empty railroad container flat-car. The two men came closer and it was obvious that both were armed. It was also very obvious that neither one of them expected to be attacked, considering that they were almost three-hundred yards from the intensive and bloody fighting.

"Evening, gentlemen – have you ever danced with the devil in the pale moonlight?"

Both men started as a shape stepped out into the pale moonlight wearing a combat suit which was full body and, as far as the two men could see, no skin was visible although they could both see some ample feminine curves which were very obvious through the armour. The man took in the pistol on her right thigh, the 18-inch Tanto on the outer side of her left boot, and the 42-inch Katana Saya angled over to her right shoulder.

"Hey, honey," the first man drawled. "You might not be the best at math, but there are two of us and just one of you."

Nemesis chuckled.

"Well, in that case, say hello to my little friend."

Another shape appeared to stand beside the first. The frame was slim but was covered from head to toe in flexible body armour. She too bore a pistol on her right hip but her primary weapon was a double-ended bō-staff.

"What's with the kid?" the second man asked.

"The kid, really?" the kid demanded.

"You're a short girl," the man pointed out helpfully.

"Short!" Fury growled.

With a flurry of activity, Fury span and twirled before coming back to face the man. The man's smirk had vanished, and he found himself lying on the ballast beside the railroad tracks.

"Now, I think you're a damn sight shorter than me!" Fury pointed out. "You might want to get somebody to look at those wounds."

The man barely had time to register his own severed legs lying beside him before he passed out from the blood loss. The first man never had a chance to react to the dismemberment of his partner as he shuddered violently. He looked down to see the hilt of a Tanto extending out from his chest. Nemesis watched without emotion as the man sank to the railroad tracks beside his colleague.

Both turned at the sound of running feet coming from behind them.

..._...

During the fighting, Hit Girl glanced over towards CRITTER – then she looked closer and her eyes registered the empty front passenger seat.

"Where the hell is Belle!" Hit Girl exclaimed.

Kick-Ass quickly drove his fist into a man's face before looking around, his towering bulk giving him a look over the heads of most of those present. His eyes focussed on a running form a few hundred yards distant. He pointed.

"Fucking bitch!" Hit Girl growled before adding rhetorically. "What do they call it when you kill royalty?"

"That would be regicide," Scamp called out as she scampered past. "Read it somewhere. . ." she yelled over her shoulder.

Hit Girl shook her head and chuckled as she bolted for CRITTER.

..._...

Four men were heading up the slight incline towards the railroad tracks.

Neither vigilante flinched as they brandished their weapons and ran directly at the men. Nemesis raised her Katana while Fury had her double-ended bō-staff. The men were large and they each produced wicked-looking machetes. It was two-on-one – not very sporting, but neither girl flinched as they fought. Steel clashed on steel and the men realised that despite the two female vigilantes having limited statures, they were no pushovers. However, Nemesis was fighting three of the men while Fury was facing one. The man attacking Fury was strong, and Fury was struggling against his heavy strikes which pushed her away from Nemesis. The man was intending on using his strength to defeat the slight vigilante before him. Fury span and she used every trick she knew to get ahead of the machete-wielding arsehole.

Nemesis was keeping them at bay with her sword, but it was hard work and energy-sapping to be constantly aware of her three attackers and where they were in relation to herself. The first fell to a strike in the abdomen, spilling his guts. One of his colleagues slipped on the squishy, bloody intestines and fell to one knee. He never regained his feet as his head sailed through the air. The fight was rapidly one-on-one, but Nemesis could see that Fury was struggling against her own attacker and that she would need help – and soon. Fury was holding out and she knew that Nemesis would come to help her in due course, but then Fate intervened as Fury tripped on a steel rail and she fell down, catching herself, but not before her attacker closed and he brought his machete down towards her chest.

Fury brought her bō-staff up, but she knew that it would not be in time.

..._...

Hit Girl raced towards the railroad.

She could see a fight underway and she recognised Nemesis and Fury fighting. Then, the veteran vigilante got the shock of her life as a severed head bounced off the hood directly ahead of her and bounced off into the darkness. Then she saw a form down on one knee – shit, Belle was hurt! Then there was a double flash and the double crack as two bullets were fired off. Belle was not injured, she was taking up a stable position from which to fire off aimed shots. Hit Girl saw a man about to slice and dice Fury with his machete, but then he faltered as two bullets entered his chest cavity, tearing apart his windpipe and his heart. Blood gurgled from his mouth as he fell atop Fury. At almost the same moment, the distraction of the pistol shots had allowed Nemesis to drive her katana into the stomach of her opponent. He sank to his knees, his face grimacing with the pain. Nemesis drew her Tanto and she drove the blade deep into the man's chest. As she withdrew both blades, the man was dead before he hit the ground.

"You two okay?" Belle asked as Fury shoved the dead body off of her, so she could stand.

Nemesis nodded as did Fury.

"They're fine," Hit Girl growled. "However, you are not!"

Belle gulped involuntarily.

..._...

As everybody remounted the vehicles, Stripe and Ajax were dragged off and shoved into the newly arrived BRUTE being driven by Leon.

"What's happening?" Ajax demanded.

"We need you and lover-boy," Leon responded, somewhat cryptically. "Get changed!"

Stripe and Ajax exchanged a worried look as they were each handed a bag containing their own normal clothing.

West Grand Avenue and North Sacramento Avenue

"You want me to do what!?" Olivia demanded, astounded by the very suggestion of what she was being asked to do.

"It's not like you haven't been seen naked before," Craig pointed out.

"True, but that was with friends – which actually made it worse, in hindsight – and just because every member of Vengeance knows what I have between my legs does not mean that I want all of Chicago to know!"

Mathilda laughed at Olivia's indignation at the task she had been saddled with. Then Mathilda tapped her watch, indicating that it was time to go. Olivia groaned as she pushed open the door and stepped out into the alleyway. Without being told, she began sliding her jeans down her shapely legs, followed by her knickers.

Craig just grinned as he followed suit.

Safehouse E

The two girls were very unnerved by their situation.

Without any warning, they had been ordered to dress in warm clothing – joggers and a sweatshirt – and then they were led through the maze-like concrete structure which incarcerated them and finally, after taking various staircases, they had emerged into a large warehouse-type structure. There, they were handed off by Petra to a man that they both recognised. Though Charlotte had never met the man, Dakota had, and both knew that he was trustworthy and on their side.

"Hello, Dakota, it's good to see well," Patrick Millar grinned.

"Hello, Instructor."

"Call me Patrick, please."

"You're Shannon's Dad?" Charlotte asked.

"Yes, I am."

"Why are we here?" Dakota asked.

"We're going for a ride – mount up."

The two girls were waved into an ordinary-looking Jeep SUV with tinted windows.

West Grand Avenue and North Sacramento Avenue

Thirty minutes later, Patrick pulled over and he turned to the two confused young girls in the backseat.

"You two stay here," Patrick announced as he jumped out and ran off down the street.

"What the . . .?" Dakota asked no one in particular.

Both girls sat in their seats and they looked around, taking in their surroundings, their Predator training taking over as they monitored anything and everything. Dakota saw it first, a movement in the alleyway adjacent to them. She pointed it out to her friend.

"We were told not to leave the car, 'kota."

"Yes . . . but are we really going to let something so heinous happen before our very eyes?" Dakota responded.

"We can't, I agree . . . but . . ."

"Well, I'm going to help," Dakota said as she slipped out of the SUV.

"For fuck's sake!" Charlotte growled as she quickly followed.

..._...

The girl began screaming as she was shoved against the wall of a building.

Her jeans and underwear were around her ankles and her top had been raised to expose a bare pair of breasts. Those same breasts were being manhandled by a youth, who also had his jeans and underwear around his ankles. His dick was sticking out and it was very close to the pubic hair of the girl who fought him off with decreasing vigour. Neither saw the two girls racing down the alleyway at top speed and both were very shocked as the boy was attacked without warning. The almost naked girl could only stare in amazement as her boyfriend found himself thrown to the ground and then kicked into submission, all with his dick out and waving around. However, Craig was not going down without a fight, and he used all his strength to push both girls off him and haul up his trousers. Once he was no longer impeded by his trousers, he bolted off into the darkness.

By the time Dakota and Charlotte turned to the girl, she was struggling to cover herself by pulling down her top and trying to pull up her trousers. Charlotte knelt down, and she assisted Olivia with her trousers. Olivia was doing everything she could not to laugh, but she played her part to the best of her ability as she allowed the younger girl to help her dress. In her mind, she hoped that Craig was okay. Once she was decent, she muttered her thanks to her 'saviours' and then bolted in the same direction as Craig while the two girls returned to the Jeep and climbed back in.

A few moments later, Patrick reappeared, and he climbed back into his seat.

"Hi, girls – all okay?" he asked with a grin.

"Yeah – kind of weird," Dakota commented.

"You think?" Charlotte added.

Training Facility Echo

It had been a very successful evening, and all had returned safely to the Safehouse.

Everybody vanished to change and shower. Abigail had sought out Mary, but the Princess was not readily visible. After asking around, Olivia waved for Abigail and she pointed into the showers. A miserable-looking Mary was huddled in a corner where it was steamy with the hot water streaming down. Olivia wondered what was wrong with her friend as she sat down to one side, with Abigail on the other.

"Hi," Olivia said. "Penny for your thoughts."

"I fucked up," Belle admitted.

"You saved my life," Abigail pointed out.

"But you broke the bloody rules, Mary!" Electra growled as she sat down to join the group. "Mindy told me what you did, and I am just as angry as she is."

Abigail scowled at the sight of Electra naked – the scars scared her.

"What happened?" Olivia asked.

"The Princess was told to remain in Critter, but she ran off to fight," Electra elaborated.

"That was stupid, Mary," Olivia admitted.

"What is she going to do to me?" Mary asked dejectedly.

"Well, technically, you are Vengeance, so Mindy will leave punishment to Cameron and Natasha, back home," Electra stated.

..._...

After a light supper of sandwiches and some hot chocolate, everybody went to bed.

That was not so easy with a couple dozen Predators, but they eventually calmed down after a few threats from Dave and Mindy. Keira was left to prowl the cabins and ensure that the giggling youngsters kept out of any major trouble. After half an hour, Mindy, Cassie, and Ginny slipped into the cabin where Mary, Electra, Saoirse, and Stephanie were staying.

"Mary, would you please come with us?" Ginny asked.

Mary looked thoroughly miserable as she slipped out from under her duvet and followed the three women. They walked around the server facility's concrete edifice and into the recreational area.

"Shannon, Mark – go fuck somewhere else!" Mindy barked and the two kids rapidly unravelled and vanished just as quickly. "Mary, sit down."

"What the blood hell did you think you were doing?" Ginny roared at the girl. "Did you stop to think for even one damn second?"

"Did you stop for one moment to think of the consequences of your actions, Mary, or was this just the self-centred Princess coming to the fore," Cassie continued. "You could have been hurt, or even killed! Is your memory so short, that you forgot about what happened to Harper? She was highly skilled, better than you, but she got taken. Could you have prevented yourself from being taken? WELL?"

Mary was shaking as she stammered out excuses.

"I saw those men going towards you and Abigail. I wanted to help."

"You could have called it in," Mindy said. "Maybe I would have let you go up there – but with escort. We shall never know now. You have let me down, Mary. You have let everybody down. I have discussed this with Cassie, and she will speak with Cameron and Natasha to discuss your punishment. Unless of course, you want to kick Vengeance into touch. . ."

"No! Never!" Mary blurted through her tears.

"Your punishment will be difficult. Your punishment will be painful. You will suffer embarrassment, but I am certain that you will pull through as a better person. You are a tough young lady and your friends will help you through this," Mindy explained.

"I am really sorry . . . I . . ."

"We all make mistakes," Ginny said calmly. "But while you had good intentions, you potentially put many people at risk. You helped save Abigail from serious injury, and I know that she is grateful for that, but that does not excuse you from what you did."

"I'm sorry and I will take my punishment."

"Go to bed, please," Ginny directed. "You can enjoy the rest of your visit here, and we will talk about this again when we get back to blighty."

..._...

Saoirse was asleep when Mary returned to meekly clamber into her bed.

Neither Stephanie nor Electra said a word, but they both exchanged dark looks, knowing that Mary had not enjoyed her time with Mindy, Cassie, and Ginny. They both knew very well the consequences of breaking the rules, and while Fusion and Vengeance tended to use more benign punishments compared to those used by Urban Predator, the punishments were still severe. The consequences of making mistakes, no matter how small, could spiral into something so much bigger – just as Vengeance had discovered to their cost . . . and Harper's.

Mary cried herself to sleep for the first time in many years.

The following morning
Sunday, November 27th

Safehouse E
Level 8 – Detention Level

They were used to Hit Girl visiting – to a point.

It still unnerved most of them to have the arch-vigilante visiting. However, she was not alone on the current visit. In a contrasting uniform, another female stood beside Hit Girl. Her uniform was a dark blue and the nametape read: NEMESIS while another nametape read: VENGEANCE. It was obvious who she was, and that fact simply unnerved the Marauders even more. That just got worse as Hit Girl read out some names.

"Grey, Warlow-Davies, Fincham, Campbell, Wistrum – outside, now!"

The three girls and two boys showed real fear as they got to their feet and headed out of the door, followed by Hit Girl and Nemesis. They were walked around a corner before Hit Girl motioned for them to line up against the concrete wall of the corridor.

"Sound off with your ages! Charlotte Grey!"

"Twelve, Hit Girl!"

"Dakota Warlow-Davies!"

"Fourteen, Hit Girl!"

"Kate Fincham!"

"Sixteen, Hit Girl!"

"Ewan Campbell!"

"Fourteen, Hit Girl!"

"Jake Wistrum!"

"Twelve, Hit Girl, ma'am!"

Hit Girl could not resist a chuckle at the twelve-year-old boy's exuberance.

"You are all British, right?" Nemesis asked.

There were nods from each of the youngsters.

"You have all indicated a desire to return to the UK, yes?" she continued

The nods were repeated.

"I have been sharing your behaviour with Nemesis," Hit Girl explained. "I will be keeping her informed of your behaviour. Nemesis takes the security of the United Kingdom very seriously. If you are deemed a threat to her homeland, then she will deny you access and you will remain here, in America. If you should be allowed access to the U.K., and you are then deemed a threat, Nemesis will not think twice about slitting your throats. Do I make myself clear?"

"Yes, ma'am!" came five voices.

"Keep your noses clean and I promise that I will find each one of you a home in the U.K.," Nemesis advised the youngsters. "But I will not hesitate to take all necessary steps to protect my country from little bastards like the five of you – mark my words, I am not fucking about. I will put myself out for five children who have had a rough time, but I will not put myself out if you just want to cause trouble back in blighty. Do you each understand?"

"Yes, ma'am!" came the responses.

"Thank you – off you go," Hit Girl directed, and she watched as each of them returned to their accommodation. "So?"

"Jake is a little shit!" Nemesis chuckled "But I like him – he's very much a male Glide."

"You think you can rehome them?" Hit Girl asked.

"Definitely – I can see three of them fitting in perfectly."

Training Facility Echo Level 1

Abigail saw the false leg over breakfast that morning and she looked very closely at the boy's face.

"Shit!" she breathed.

"Problem?" Stephanie asked.

"My past just caught up with me."

"Story of my life!" Stephanie muttered.

"You remember the forest?"

"Hard not to," Electra admitted, and Stephanie grimaced.

"That boy – Viridian – I caused him to lose his leg. You think he knows that I am the one who did it to him?"

Abigail looked wretched. Stephanie went over to Jordan and she whispered in his ear. The boy nodded, and he followed Stephanie back over to the table. He immediately saw Abigail's expression, but he said nothing as Abigail's cheeks were covered with tears.

"I'm sorry, Jordan."

"I wondered if you recognised me," Jordan replied. "I promised to kill the girl who made me lose my leg – only you are not that girl anymore."

"What?" Abigail asked.

"You are not that cold bitch who would do anything to win. Since I've been with Vengeance, I've learnt a few things about what happened in the past. We had no choice, but now we do, and you are a very different girl. Also, if you could sit at the same table as the magnificent Psyche without killing her. . ."

"We've had the odd set-to since," Stephanie commented.

"But they kissed and made up," Jamie commented as he came over to sit down.

"They did?" Jordan replied.

"They were butt naked when they kissed, too!" Jamie grinned.

"Not the best thought out plan, but we are the best of friends," Abigail conceded.

Jordan held out his hand and Abigail took it.

"Friends?" he asked.

"Friends!" Abigail replied with a grin as she shook his hand.

Safehouse E Level 8 – Detention Level

For the two girls, it was business as usual.

No one had explained the previous evening. Instructor Millar had simply bought them a McDonalds before returning them back to their accommodation. Neither girl had spoken about what had happened, worried about their fate should anybody find out that they had disobeyed orders. Dakota figured that it might have all been some sort of test, but it wasn't as if you could just summon up a rape . . . could you? Hit Girl had not said a word during their meeting with the Vengeance vigilante, earlier that morning. They both so desperately wanted to leave their dungeon and they both wanted to earn their freedom and hopefully return to their homeland. Both regretted their hasty decisions which had led them to fight for FEAR, and now they hoped that their decision to help that girl would not backfire on them.

Only time would tell.

Safehouse F

The goodbyes were never easy.

It was very rare for a Predator to cry and they usually sucked it up very quickly when they did. However, goodbyes were something everybody hated, no matter what you were inside. There were hugs. There were tears. There were giggles and laughter. There were soft, cuddly words exchanged which would normally never pass a Predator's lips, but their friendships were something very special and something to be treasured. They all knew that one day, a goodbye may be the last time that they saw one another – their lives were that dangerous. Even lifelong sworn enemies hugged. Electra was mobbed by Stephanie and Abigail who almost fought over their little friend. Even Cassie had tears running down her cheeks as she hugged Mindy goodbye.

"I'll be in touch," Mindy said to her friend from across the pond.

"You do that. Take care and look after your family," Cassie replied.

"You look after yours," Mindy said as she eyed Kaitlin and Naomi who were talking with Anne-Marie and Rebecca.

"Harper's healing well," Jennifer commented to Keira. "By Easter she'll be back to normal, I'm certain of it."

"I know. This trip has been like a breath of fresh air for her. She's seen all her friends, and she's got to wear her uniform again," Keira replied as she watched her little sister like a hawk.

Harper was talking with Saoirse and Rachel.

"Thanks to both of you for helping me and teaching me a bit about command – it was an eye-opener, and it was fun."

"You're welcome, Harper," Saoirse replied. "You heal up, and fast, okay?"

"I promise to behave."

"Like a Predator's promise is worth shit!" Olivia grinned.

For the non-Predators, the trip had been amazing, and they had been amazed at what operated beneath the streets of America's windy city. For one, in particular, while she was going back home to face an uncertain punishment, she was going home with a real combat suit, not her half-arsed concoction – it kind of made the punishment worth it. For young Jordan Hanley, seeing so many of his kin alive had given him a different outlook on life, even to the extent of forgiving the girl who had caused him to lose his leg.

"Okay, mount up, Vengeance!" Cassie called out. "Queen and County awaits!"

Chapter 360*: Probation

Monday, November 28th, 2016

Safehouse E
Level 8 – Detention Level

"Grey, Warlow-Davies, Fincham, both Laus, Todd, and Dolan!"

The seven youngsters all turned to look at the voice which had called out their names – it was Stormtide.

"Go and pack your kit – you are all moving onto pastures new."

The youngsters hesitated for a moment before heading off to their accommodation. A few minutes later, they each reappeared with their kit packed in holdalls. They each looked worried and there were some envious looks from their colleagues who were remaining behind.

"Follow me," Stormtide directed.

Stormtide stopped the group a few yards down the corridor where Hit Girl was waiting.

"Grey and Warlow-Davies – I want a word with you two," Hit Girl growled. "Stormtide – take the rest up to the vehicles."

..._...

Charlotte and Dakota found themselves seated in a comfortable recreational space with a massive TV and soft chairs.

"Anything happen the other night," the purple-masked vigilante enquired evenly.

The two girls exchanged a glance – they had both agreed to tell the truth if anybody asked. Not that that was helping as both shook with fear.

"We had to help," Dakota explained as she took the lead. "That girl was being . . . you know."

"We could not just sit there and watch!" Charlotte bristled. "So, if you're going to punish us, then fucking get on with it, because I have a clear conscience for the first time in many weeks."

Dakota nodded her agreement to the fiery twelve-year-old's comment. They both expected the Heavens to come crashing down on their heads. Hit Girl just sat there for almost a full minute without any hint of movement which was scary to say the least. Then the bitch laughed.

"You both did very well. You bent the rules, slightly, but you did it for the right reasons. You also returned to the vehicle when you could have run," Hit Girl explained.

"Yeah," Charlotte growled as she pulled up her trouser leg. "And you would have taken our feet off!"

"Yes, I would," Hit Girl conceded. "It was a test. We wanted to see how you might react in an extreme situation. Putting your fear of me to one side to assist that girl was the best decision you two have made in a long time. You are both about to embark on the next stage of your young lives. You have everything ahead of you. Follow instructions over the next few days, and I promise you that things will get even better."

Hit Girl grinned inside as she saw the looks of hope on the faces before her. The two girls were working out perfectly and it was no lie that things would get better for them. They both deserved a new life and if they behaved, then that was what they were going to get. A lot of money and resources had been invested in rehabilitating those youngsters and it was beginning to pay off with dividends.

"I gather you both fought a half-naked boy; must have been fun!"

Dakota grimaced and her face turned pink.

"I'm . . . well, I'm not into boys. . ."

Charlotte appeared startled. Urban Predator screened out (killed) those with certain sexual preferences, preferring to produce controllably bi-sexual orientations where possible. Dakota had done well to hide her orientation.

"No one is going to judge you, Dakota, nobody," Hit Girl said firmly. "Anybody does, well, you point them in my direction. Let's get you both to your friends and onto your new residence."

The two girls had calmed down and they were both grinning.

Safehouse Q

"My name is Sarah – some of you will know me as Discord and yes, I am a Predator. My job is to run this safehouse and I do to the best of my ability. You little shits will be living here until you are deemed worthy to re-join civilised society. You will have much more freedom than you did at your last place, but that can all be taken away very quickly and I will send you back. Upstairs, for the girls, and downstairs, for the boys, you each have your own bedroom with your name on the door. If I tell you to remain in your bedrooms, then you will do so. Meals will be served at a set time each day. If you are late to meals, then you go hungry. However, attending meals is important and part of your rehabilitation. You will each have tasks to perform around the safehouse. You will be responsible for yourself. You will be expected to shower daily and wear clean clothing. I expect you to help each other, if needed, and I want no animosity for previous acts as Predators or Marauders. Nobody leaves this house without permission – if you do, I slit your throats. Are any of these instructions unclear?"

"No," came seven responses.

"In your bedrooms, each of you will find new clothing. If any of it does not fit, let me know. If any of it is not to your liking, let me know. If something you need is missing, let me know. You need a toothbrush, toothpaste, or tampons – you let me know. For the moment, I want you all to go upstairs and unpack. Settle in and yes, you can come downstairs and make use of the family room or the rec room in the basement, as well as the kitchen. Please do not make a mess and do clean up after yourselves. Go."

The seven youngsters headed up and down the stairs as directed.

..._...

The new clothing was a shock to them all.

It was all expensive and all in the correct sizes. They had expected cheap, basic clothing, but for the very first time in many years, they were all able to wear comfortable clothing that did not stand them out from the proverbial crowd. The Lau sisters had been given a larger room to share and both rapidly changed out of their bland clothing, grinning as they did so. For the older girls, it was a blessing to be able to wear comfortable underwear which again, was expensive – but oh, so comfortable. After a short while, they each ventured down to the rec room in the basement, where they found beanbags and a large-screen TV. Before long, all seven kids were happily being kids for the first time in many years.

Sarah appeared, and she brought with her a tray of cold soft drinks and some snacks.

Glenview

"You okay, honey?"

Dave peered down at his wife, who was elbow deep in paperwork in the study.

"Yeah – I gotta get this shit done."

"Why won't you let Marty or Paige help you?" Dave asked, knowing that he was waging a losing battle before he even started.

Mindy refused to allow others to do work which she felt was hers to do. She was insistent. Some of the work related to their various cover stories – taxes had to be paid correctly, for example; Mindy did not want to go the way of Al Capone! It was just Mindy and the way in which she had been brought up. If she could do it, then she saw no reason to bother anybody else. Dave loved her for her stubbornness which he found very funny at times, much to Mindy's chagrin. She always had to plan things herself, double-checking, treble-checking. There was more to being a vigilante than just shooting people, being obnoxious, and blowing things up. Dave had witnessed that himself when Mindy had reinvented Hit Girl when she was just fifteen. He could remember it like it was yesterday.

...+...

"Hey! What you doing?"

"Real superheroes modify their costumes."

"Oh yeah? Thought mine was kinda working for me."

"Like I said: real superheroes."

...+...

Dave decided to have a little fun and he began to tickle Mindy.

"Dave . . . I need to finish this. . ."

"No, you don't."

"Dave!"

"Kick-Ass wanna play."

Mindy groaned but she stood up nonetheless.

"What do you want me to do?" Mindy asked.

"Hit me!" Dave demanded.

Mindy didn't flinch as she struck out at her husband only for her fist to be caught by a much larger hand and twisted. Then Dave slapped her right cheek, gently.

"What the hell?"

"Act like a bitch, get slapped like a bitch!"

"Come again?" Mindy demanded.

"Act like a bitch, get slapped like a bitch!"

"You calling me a bitch?"

Mindy and Dave exchanged several strikes, none reaching their target. Each strike was intercepted by the other.

"Weak!" Dave chuckled. "Don't hurt your vagina."

Mindy's mouth dropped open as she scowled.

"So, quit slapping me like one, then!" Mindy exclaimed.

Dave prodded Mindy's chest and Mindy backed out onto the landing.

"I'm not interested in a half-assed Hit Girl. You stop behaving like a little pussy!"

"I thought you liked my little pussy," Mindy chuckled.

"Did she just say what I thought she said?" Anne-Marie asked as she watched Dave and Mindy move between her and Stephanie.

"I wish she hadn't, but yes," Stephanie confirmed.

"What are they doing?" Anne-Marie asked.

"Good question," Stephanie replied as both girls followed their parents along the landing. "Foreplay maybe?"

"What's foreplay?"

"You don't want to know. . ."

..._...

It was nothing out the ordinary for the girls to see their parents sparring, although, it was usually on a mat, and sometimes in the pool, but never around the home, however, their mother was Hit Girl, so there was no such thing as surprising in their home.

Mindy and Dave continued to exchange strikes, either from hands or feet, as they moved down the corridor past Danny's bedroom and towards the open living room on one side and the open foyer on the other. Stephanie's expert eyes noticed that the sparring was not even remotely serious, despite the bodily contact. Both were capable of seriously hurting the other, and Dave had the strength to quite literally snap Mindy in half, or to simply rip her head off, should he choose to. Stephanie figured that they both simply wanted to let off a little steam. Then they stopped kicking and punching, and Stephanie's eyes went wide for a moment and she cringed as Mindy shoved Dave up against the wall of the library and she kissed him before jumping up and wrapping her long legs around his waist. Stephanie's trained eyes saw the subtle set of Mindy's hips and she knew what was about to happen second before Dave found himself viciously twisted to the side as Mindy threw him down to the floor.

Dave simply laughed as he stared up into Mindy's green eyes which sparkled insanely.

..._...

"Catch me if you can, lover boy!" Mindy called out as she grinned and threw herself over the balustrade and down into the living room.

"What the fuck!?" Anne-Marie exclaimed.

"Dollar, jar!" came Mindy's voice from down below.

"What's going on?" Danny demanded as he and Jamie appeared on the landing just as Dave jumped after his wife.

"Awesome!" Jamie exclaimed in an American accent that sounded suspiciously like Anne-Marie's.

As the four kids watched from above, they saw Dave tuck and roll as he hit the living room floor. Mindy kicked him backwards onto a couch, just as Jamie began to fiddle with his mobile phone.

"What are you doing?" Stephanie asked.

"Hold on. . . got it!" the boy responded as music began to blare from the living room sound system.

*Love, love is strange
Lot of people take it for a game
Once you get it
You never wanna quit, no no*

Stephanie cringed at the implications of the tune which she knew well enough and she was appalled by the look on Mindy's face as she looked at Dave with a cringe-worthy expression on her face which appalled the young girl.

*After you've had it, yeah yeah
You're in an awful fix
Many people
Don't understand, no no*

*They think loving, yeah yeah
Is money in the hand
Your sweet loving
Is better than a kiss, yeah yeah*

*When you leave me
Sweet kisses I miss*

"Quick! Turn it off, right the hell now!" Stephanie yelled at Jamie who petulantly shook his head.

It was too late.

"Sylvia?" Dave lay on the floor and he mimed to the soundtrack, looking up at Mindy who stood above him.

"Yes, Mickey," Mindy mimed back with a sultry look on her face.

"How do you call your lover boy?"

"Come here, lover boy!" Mindy beckoned with her finger.

"And if he doesn't answer?"

"Oh, lover boy!" Mindy replied with a look of absolute hunger on her face.

"And if he still doesn't answer?" Dave asked as Mindy sank to her knees and she crawled over to him as he crawled over to her.

"I simply say: Baby, oh baby, my sweet baby, you're the one!"

Then they both mimed to the music as they hugged and mauled each other.

"Baby, oh baby, my sweet baby, you're the one!"

Then, they kissed . . . and they kissed.

"I want to scratch my eyes out," Stephanie groaned as she fled towards her bedroom.

"That was truly disgusting," Anne-Marie added.

"That was fucking awesome!" Jamie grinned as Danny nodded his agreement.

"Dollar, jar!" Dave called out in between the kissing.

Early the following morning
Tuesday, November 29th

West Columbia

Megan awoke with a start.

Despite her bedroom being very dark, her keen eyes noticed that the bed beside her was empty. She listened, expecting to hear activity in the ensuite bathroom. It was nothing out of the ordinary for Curtis to get up for a pee. Megan's exceptional hearing detected nothing – maybe he had gone downstairs for a drink. She was fully aware of what the date meant for Curtis, and that meant she was doing her best to keep an eye on him. The twelve-year-old slipped out of her bed and she headed downstairs. Stretched out in the living room, she found Piper.

"You seen Curtis, Piper?" Megan asked the sleepy German Shepherd.

Piper simply looked over towards the front door. Megan frowned. Where might Curtis have gone?

"Got it!" Megan exclaimed. "Go back to sleep, Piper."

Memorial Park Cemetery

The boy huddled in the darkness, trying to keep warm.

He wanted to be in Washington D.C. but that was slightly out of his reach, but he also needed comfort from the person who had taken over from his parents. That person had taken him in when he had been alone, and she had kept him safe from harm. The twelve-year-old boy stared down at the marble grave marker, tears pouring down his cheeks.

Catherine Bennett

b. June 8th, 1974
d. October 16th, 2016

Beloved Wife, Mother, and Aunt

*Gone from this mortal earth
But never to be forgotten*

Curtis Bennett sank to his knees, his emotions taking over as he sobbed. There were so many things that he wanted to ask her. There were so many things which he wanted to tell her. It had been two years since his life had been torn apart so violently. For two years his Aunt Cathy had cared for him and treated him as her own. Why? Why did he have to suffer? First his parents. Then his aunt. And now, the person he loved was keeping something from him. His mind was telling him what it probably was, but his heart refused to accept it. He thought that he meant something to her. He thought that they could tell each other anything. They had both been through so much. He wanted to push for information, but he did not dare, should things go bad and she pushed him away. He could not bear to lose somebody else – it would tear him apart. He pulled his coat closer and he gazed down at the simple words which, despite their simplicity, gave him solace.

He had no idea how long he had been kneeling there, sobbing his heart out, when he felt soft hands on his face and as he looked up, he looked into the gun-metal-blue eyes of Megan. She sat down beside the boy whom she loved, and she hugged him tightly. He sobbed, and he wrapped his arms tightly around the person he saw as his soulmate. He could not consider life without her, but there was something between them which was pushing them apart. He looked up into her eyes and he willed her to tell him. He could see hurt. He could see darkness. He could see Wildcat. He had been seeing a lot of Wildcat. He alone could recognise the subtle changes in her eyes. The subtle changes in her body language and her mannerisms. As far as he could tell, even Mindy was unable to recognise the difference between the wild, funny, engaging Megan, and the deadly, brave, bloodthirsty, ferocious, ruthless vigilante which was Wildcat. Recently, they were becoming one. Normally, when the suit came off, and the claws were stowed, Megan came to the fore. Not anymore, the suit and claws came off, but Wildcat remained.

Curtis had no problem with Wildcat, but he was concerned by what she might become if she could not go back to being Megan. He had heard about what Mindy had become when she had left New York. He had heard about how she had almost died. He was trying everything to prevent such a thing happening to the girl he loved. Only, Wildcat was not who he loved. He loved Megan . . . and Megan appeared to have gone. It was that hell-hole. It was that sick, malevolent city – it had to be.

"Talk to me, Megan. Talk to me!"

..._...

Curtis saw the eyes close and he saw the tears.

"I can't."

"I need Megan. I don't need you."

"I am Megan!"

"No, you are not. You are Wildcat."

"Why do you care?"

"I love Megan. I love her for who she is. I don't have those kinds of feelings for Wildcat."

The eyes changed, and Curtis knew that it was Wildcat who was pressing her finger against his lips.

"What. . .?"

"No talking."

Curtis found himself dragged away from the grave and over into the dark shadows from a large tree.

"What. . .?" Curtis repeated, not knowing what in hell was going on.

"I said, no talking!"

Megan pushed Curtis to the ground and she reached for his belt, pulling it open. Curtis could see where things were going – he recognised her body language and he figured that he may as well play along. Part of him sensed that it was the right path and that maybe there were answers at the end of the journey. Megan was being rough – very rough; just as she had been for weeks. He felt his trousers and his underwear pulled down to his ankles and then removed, along with his shoes and socks. He felt the cold of the surrounding air on places that never normally felt that sort of cold. His jacket was pulled off his arms, and his jumper and T-shirt removed. With a jolt, he realised that he was lying completely naked, under a tree, in a graveyard, at night. However, he was not alone.

A part of him had shrivelled up with the cold, only, Megan began to create a reaction as she shed her own clothing, her soft skin visible despite the darkness. Curtis felt his groin reacting to what he knew was there and Megan's fingers encouraged even more movement. Then Megan, her eyes boring into Curtis' own, gently settled her own groin onto his. It was an event which he thought might never happen, but definitely not before they were thirteen. Megan kissed him and as she moved her thighs slowly, she groaned. Curtis had mixed thoughts about what was happening, but he figured that 'the deed' was done, so to speak, so why stop. He loved her, and she loved him. With a kiss on Megan's lips, Curtis flipped her over and he remained both on top and within. Megan wrapped her arms around his torso, and her legs around his thighs. For Curtis, the pressure was restricting, but not enough to prevent what appeared to come naturally for him.

For Megan, it was a dream come true, but deep within her (not Curtis), there was a deep sorrow which was causing her emotions to rage within her. Curtis yelled out as her fingernails dug into his back. Then Megan felt those very same emotions which she had felt at the hands of that bastard, only they felt better; there was a difference, she realised. Then she began to cry with happiness which startled Curtis as he moved his thighs as quickly and as firmly as he could.

"It's okay – keep going," she smiled.

Curtis had not seen that smile in a long time – the smile belonged to Megan, not Wildcat. He reacted to that by increasing his pelvic movements and he saw the grin grow as the tears thinned. Then it happened, and he felt his body tensing up as the biggest orgasm ever hit him full strength at the very same time as Megan's fingernails dug even deeper and he stifled a yell as he emptied himself into Megan who then tensed up herself in a way which was very familiar as she screamed out in pure ecstasy.

For several minutes, they both simply laid there, wrapped in their jackets as rain pelted down beyond the tree's cover.

..._...

It was Megan who broke the silence.

"It happened in Gotham."

"What exactly happened in Gotham?" Curtis asked, almost scared to ask the question which lurked in the darkest recesses of his mind – the place reserved for those things which you know are true, but you refuse to accept.

"The last visit . . . well, I went out alone."

"You did what!?" Curtis exclaimed, anger in his tone.

"I was stupid. . ."

"Too fucking right, you were!"

Curtis was not all that surprised to hear sobbing in the darkness. Megan rarely felt guilty, no matter what she did, but for once, she was feeling it, badly. Curtis was not ready for what Megan said next, despite what lurked deep in his mind.

"They cornered me. They stripped me. They touched me. One ejaculated over me. Another was hard and he . . . he pushed it inside me and he . . ."

While part of Curtis was astonished at the revelation, he also felt relief that Megan had opened up to him. Megan crumbled into him, sobbing her heart out, and he gripped her tightly. How could Megan have kept something like that so quiet? Did nobody notice? Somebody must have noticed. It was many minutes before Megan finally looked up at Curtis. Curtis could see that the eyes were one-hundred-percent Megan – Wildcat was in abeyance.

"I've not told anybody. Please don't tell Mom."

"I won't tell a soul. I am so very sorry, Megan – I really am."

"I wish I could have told you sooner, only . . . I felt so ashamed. I felt embarrassed and humiliated. I felt that you might not want me. It was horrible. I wanted you to be my first. Only . . . you were my first. It felt so different. I felt your love. I saw the love in your eyes. I felt your warmth. If I had known how I'd feel after us both making love, I would have had us fucking weeks ago!"

Curtis laughed.

"I love you, Megan, I really do. I've missed the Megan that I've known since I was ten. Now, I have you back."

Then the tears flowed for them both as they hugged under that tree in the dark graveyard.

Later that same morning

West Columbia

"Morning, all!"

Paige almost dropped the plate of pancakes in shock and surprise.

"Who are you, and what have you done to my daughter?" she demanded as she studied the immaculately dressed person before her.

Her short hair was still cut into its neat bob, and it was still white in the majority. However, the black section was back to her natural auburn colour with a pair of thin stripes, one purple and one brown, on her right side. Her school uniform was perfect, and she was wearing the correct tights instead of the ones which she knew would annoy her mother and the school principal.

"Morning."

Curtis, on the other hand, appeared a little dishevelled and tired as he shuffled into the kitchen. There was something, but Paige could not put her finger on it. However, her daughter had changed, quite literally overnight. Gone was the sullen pre-teen who went out of her way to make life hell for her mother and step-father. Instead, there was a model young lady, ready for school. Marcus appeared, and he frowned – he smelt a rat.

"What's with the hair?" Marcus asked – he was not complaining; it was a much-preferred colour.

"Normally, I might say: 'Bite me, Dad!' – but instead, I'll just ask if you like it."

"Yes, I do."

"Thank you."

Marcus knew that he should be mad about something, but he had no idea what. Megan was just like Mindy; they both got up to things behind his back, but they were both just too damn good at covering for themselves.

"Love you, Mom! Have a great day, Dad!" Megan said as she hugged Marcus before bolting out the door.

"What's with her?" Marcus asked, resigning himself to a chuckle. "Do I even want to know?"

"Probably not," Paige considered, still clueless as to why her daughter was suddenly behaving like the perfect child.

"But let's just enjoy it."

Curtis simply shrugged.

"She's Megan, what else can I say?"

Safehouse E

Level 8 – Detention Level

"You have no idea what I've been through!"

Doctor Sarah Reese nodded, her expression neutral as she studied the fourteen-year-old youth.

"You're absolutely right, Lucas. Why don't you tell me?"

"I was nine when they took me. They turned me into a monster. They filled me with drugs and they made me do bad things. I hated it, but I had no choice, or they would put a bullet into my skull. Either that or send another Predator after me."

Lucy grimaced. It was her turn to chaperone the Marauders for their weekly sessions with either Doctor Reese or Doctor Charles.

"You had no choice, Lucas."

"I did later on."

"What do you mean? When FEAR offered you a new role?"

"No. In London. After Urban Predator folded, I was in England, somewhere outside Oxford. I ran from my handlers - they didn't chase me - and I found myself in London. Probably not the best place for a thirteen-year-old boy on his own, to be honest, but I had skills, and I used them. I found myself with a gang - they liked my skills and I used them to hurt people. Then they offered me a reward. I had never had sex to that point in my life. She could only have been ten-years-old. The girl was out of it - they'd given her a drug of some sort, I think . . . I . . ."

The boy was struggling to articulate the necessary words and he had to take a deep breath as tears spilled down his cheeks.

"I raped her."

Chapter 361*: Admissions

Tuesday, November 29th, 2016

Safehouse E
Level 8 – Detention Level

"Willingly?" Doctor Reese asked.

"Yes. I'd had some alcohol, but that was all. I knew what I was doing."

"Do you know who it was – the girl?"

"No – I never saw her face, but she was one of us – she was a Predator . . . I saw the tattoo behind her right ear. I tried to apologise, but the girl was out of it. I felt horrible afterwards – two others went in after me, and then they congratulated me for losing my virginity, but I felt dirty, so dirty."

Doctor Reese was stunned by the revelation, although she could tell that the boy's remorse was genuine, and she suspected that he may have been drugged also. She looked over at her protector. Lucy was seething with hate and she glared at the boy.

"Look, Lucas . . . I need to escalate this."

Lucas simply nodded.

Lakeview High School

"Oh, sorry! Are you okay?"

The boy looked up to see who he had collided with, about to remonstrate, but then he saw it was that girl, Megan Williams. He felt fear shoot through him and he backed away,

"Are you okay?" the girl repeated.

The boy was more than a little surprised. Megan Williams had a proclivity towards violence, almost at the drop of a hat. Normally, the boy might have expected to be verbally abused in some crude manner, but no, the girl was apologising!

"I'm okay – err, thanks for asking."

Megan smiled, but then she felt a strong hand around her left bicep and she was shoved hard against the wall of the corridor.

"Hi, Chloe."

Chloe proceeded to rest the open palm of her hand on Megan's forehead for several seconds before then checking the younger girl's eyes before squeezing her cheeks.

"Open!" she ordered and Megan opened her mouth. "Tongue!"

Megan stuck out her tongue as Chloe finished her examination.

"You're normal, why?" Chloe demanded.

Megan grinned.

Chloe was not buying it, so she grabbed a boy out of the passing throng of students and slammed him against the wall beside Megan.

"What's going on, little cousin?" Chloe demanded as Curtis simply grinned at his cousin.

Curtis simply shrugged.

"I will get to the bottom of this, mark my words!" Chloe growled.

"Bennett!"

Chloe released Megan and Curtis as the school Principal glared down at her.

"Hi, Principal McClusky, I was just checking on my cousin, and my cousin-in-law," Chloe tried.

"Morning, Principal McClusky!" Megan announced happily.

"What's wrong with her?" a frowning Principal McClusky asked as she studied the smiling girl who usually caused more trouble than almost the entire student body combined to the point where the Principal had the girl's mother on speed dial.

"Do you like my hair, Principal McClusky?" Megan asked politely.

"It's better."

"Thanks. Excuse me, I need to get to class – don't want to be late!" Megan exclaimed as she gave Chloe a hug and she scampered off with Curtis trailing along behind.

"I know I should be angry about something, but. . ." the Principal muttered as she looked to Chloe for help.

Chloe simply shrugged, and she left the confused principal standing in the middle of the empty corridor.

That evening

Training Facility Echo The Battle Bunker

For Abigail, it was like being called to the principal's office.

"Hi."

"Come and sit down, Abigail," Mindy said as she waved the youngster toward the back room which Mindy used as her private office.

Abigail looked around as Mindy closed the door. Mindy sat down without a word and then she stared at Abigail for a few moments.

"Something has come to my attention concerning events in England. I believe that those events involve you, but I could be very wrong."

"What events?" Abigail asked, unsure of what was going on.

"When you were found by Vengeance, you had suffered a traumatic experience," Mindy explained slowly – she was finding it very difficult considering the events in question.

"Oh," Abigail replied as she understood what Mindy was referring to.

"One of the Marauders has come forward with information relating to his time in London after Urban Predator folded, but before he came to the US and met FEAR. He intimated that he raped a Predator."

"You think he was my attacker?"

"It fits. I am heading below to speak with him. I wanted to inform you of what was happening . . . I also wanted to ask if you wanted to listen in – from behind a two-way mirror."

Abigail thought about that for several minutes before she responded.

"Can Stephanie come with me?"

"Of course."

"Do you think Lauren might come too?"

"I would expect so – let me get hold of them; I think they're training somewhere."

Safehouse E
Level 8 – Detention Level

Stephanie knew all about Abigail's attack, but Lauren did not.

"I'm really sorry, Abigail – I never knew."

"Thanks."

"We're both here for you," Stephanie said as they all turned to look through the glass. "Do you recognise him?"

"I don't remember much of anything, to be honest," Abigail responded.

..._...

"I need to make you aware of a few things, Lucas," Hit Girl stated for the record. "You have been given a legal dispensation for anything which you did while with Urban Predator. The same applies for your time with FEAR, pending your rehabilitation. However, that dispensation does not cover events that fall in between. Therefore, you can be charged with rape, and we intend to transfer you to the relevant authorities for extradition to the UK where you will face trial for your crime. Do you understand what I just said?"

"Yes, ma'am."

"Do you have anything to say for yourself?"

"I remember raping the girl, but not all of it. I definitely did something bad. I knew what I was doing, and I should have stopped. I wish I had . . . that girl did not deserve it."

"Had you ever seen the girl before?"

"No."

Lucas was sobbing again.

..._...

Stephanie had listened to every word the boy had said.

"He's guilty," Stephanie proclaimed to the room. "Huh, Abigail?"

There was no response, so Stephanie turned to look at Abigail. Abigail had gone very pale and she was shaking. Then, before Stephanie could say anything further, she looked down and she saw a puddle of fluid expanding around Abigail's boots, a dark patch expanding around the crotch of her trousers.

"Abigail?"

"That voice."

Abigail was shaking even harder and tears began to pour down her cheeks. Lauren manoeuvred the younger girl over to a chair and sat her down.

"Try and talk to me, Abigail," Lauren prompted.

"I remember bits . . . he was there . . ."

"Bastard!" Stephanie growled.

"No . . . he was forced . . . I remember other boys pushing him onto me . . . I felt him pushing into me . . . then there was another . . . and another."

Abigail broke down completely and the two girls hugged her as she sobbed.

Training Facility Echo
Level 2

Curtis emerged from the bathroom feeling a little annoyed.

Twice in twenty-four hours, he had been attacked by Megan. The first time wasn't too bad, but the current attack – it was just plain wrong! Megan, of course, was grinning. Chloe stared at her cousin, and then at the grinning Megan.

"What the fuck?" she demanded.

"What was I supposed to do?" Curtis retorted.

"Fight her off," Chloe suggested as she studied her cousin's hair. "Why?"

"It suits him, don't you think?" Megan asked.

"No."

"I think it does," Joshua chuckled.

"Nobody asked you," Chloe growled.

"Why do you care?" Joshua asked. "You never used to like Curtis."

"That was then – this is now," Chloe pouted.

"Way cool!" Becky announced as she appeared in the accommodation. "Can I get my hair done, too?"

"Now look what you've started!" Chloe exclaimed. "No, Rebecca!"

"Harsh, much!" Becky responded to the use of her proper name.

Curtis found a mirror and he studied his fringe – it was a medium green which matched his body armour. While he had consented to just a tiny bit of colour, Megan had decided otherwise.

"Megan. . . I . . . I'm not talking to you, right now!"

Megan was still grinning as Curtis stormed off.

Safehouse E Level Seven

"I am sorry, Lucas, but you cannot join the others . . . it's for your own safety."

Lucas looked up at Hit Girl.

"I understand, and I am sorry for what happened to that girl, and for letting you down."

Hit Girl nodded.

"Stay positive, Lucas."

With that, Hit Girl closed the door which locked automatically.

Glenview

Mindy grinned happily as she welcomed Marcus inside.

"What can I do for you, old man?"

"Why do I have two insane nutcases for daughters? First, I get a partner who goes wacko and then I inherit his daughter, who is just as wacko. Then, I marry a beautiful woman who turns out to have a daughter who is totally wacko. What did I do wrong in my past life?"

"You poor old man," Mindy laughed as they both headed into the living room.

"Hello, Marcus," Dave waved from the couch.

"How do you cope, Dave?"

"Huh?"

"Living with a wife who is wacko, a daughter who is almost off the wacko chart, a son who is not far behind, then twins who are quickly developing their own wackiness – not to mention the four-legged nutcases!"

"Hey!" Stephanie exclaimed. "I am not wacko – just a little bit nutty."

"Like a fruitcake with extra nuts!" Jamie laughed, much to his sister's annoyance.

"What has Megan done, now?" Mindy asked.

"That's just it," Marcus replied. "We had a call from the Principal."

Mindy winced – she'd been there, often enough.

"The Principal wanted to know if Megan was feeling alright – I understand that she was perfectly behaved and very polite."

"Megan? Polite?" Stephanie asked, surprise in her tone.

"I was well behaved and polite at times," Mindy commented.

"Yeah – in your sleep," Marcus replied.

Stephanie laughed out loud while Mindy scowled. Dave grinned at his scowling wife.

"Marcus. I think that being married to a normal woman must be so boring. Being married to Mindy is a challenge, but I would not swap her for anything, no matter how nutty she is."

Mindy grinned sheepishly.

"As for the ten-year-old wacko – she's another challenge, but she makes all other kids look boring in comparison. It's a parent's dream to have their daughter wire her bedroom door to an explosive device when she's angry," Dave finished.

Jamie laughed his head off at that.

"I have to admit, having a cheerful little girl around is much better than the moody alternative," Marcus admitted. "I suppose I'll just have to live with it."

"You're a good father, Marcus," Mindy said as Marcus stood up to leave. "You were strict and tough, but I needed that."

"Thank you, Mindy," Marcus replied as he hugged his eldest daughter. "I just hope I do right by Megan and Damon."

"You will, old man."

South Woodlawn

"Well, this can't be good," Hunter chuckled.

"A lynching, maybe?" Leo added.

The pair of Predators had found themselves facing their triplet cousins and they each meant business, at least by the expressions on their faces.

"We want information," Sabrina Travers demanded.

"Yeah," Samuel and Simon added.

"What about?" Hunter asked.

"You two are not normal," eight-year-old Sabrina went on. "We don't mean anything bad, but we just want to know why you get covered in bruises, and we want to know where you vanish off to each night. We know that you had a part in the battle."

Hunter and Leo sighed. They had discussed the eventuality with their Aunt and Uncle, as well as with Mindy and Dave.

They also had a plan.

The following evening
Wednesday, December 30th

D-JAK Prime

The three Travers children had visited the dojang before, and they had even taken introductory classes.

They had seen their cousins sparring, although nothing like their true abilities. The three eight-years-olds knew that there was something about their cousins, and at times, their cousins had scared them with their, often violent, tempers. However, all that the youngsters had, were ideas . . . and none of those ideas was even close to what they were about to experience. They smiled as they recognised their instructor.

"Hi, Megan!"

"Hello, guys – you ready for me to blow your little minds?" Megan asked with a friendly smile.

The triplets frowned at the comment, becoming even more confused as Megan pointed at a doorway.

"Beyond that door is another dimension – a dimension of sound, a dimension of sight, a dimension of mind. You're moving into a land of both shadow and substance. A land of things and ideas."

The triplets' parents, Jeremy and Nicola Travers, were just as confused as their offspring. Nevertheless, they followed Megan through a normal-looking doorway which led to a corridor. The corridor turned to the right before stopping at a door which looked very heavy.

"You are about to meet your dreams and your nightmares," Megan growled somewhat theatrically as the steel-clad door swung open on well-oiled hinges.

Each stepped through the doorway into darkness, apprehension gnawing at their minds. As the door swung closed, silently, before audibly latching, Megan chuckled. The small group followed a path which felt like that of a labyrinth, and which concluded with a ride downwards in an elevator. Once the elevator had stopped, Megan spoke again.

"You've just crossed over into what some might call the Twilight Zone . . . however, you could refer to it as the Vigilante Zone."

The family group was astonished as they emerged into a steel and glass enclosure before passing through into a subterranean space with comfortable seating and a massive television.

"Welcome to Zulu," a voice announced, and five pairs of eyes went very wide as they found themselves face to face with the queen vigilante, herself.

..._...

"Mommy, I'm scared."

"Have no fear, Sabrina Travers," Hit Girl said.

Sabrina Travers felt anything but reassured.

"How does she know my name?" Sabrina asked with fear in her eyes.

"I told her," came an electronically enhanced voice.

Unlike Hit Girl, who wore a dark grey uniform with her mask, the vigilante who had spoken wore a full Fusion combat suit.

"I am Cut-Throat," the vigilante announced.

While Sabrina was scared by the sight of Hit Girl, Samuel 'Sam' Travers was amazed to be so close to the famous vigilante. He was also transfixed by the armour-clad vigilante standing before him. The suit was a deep blue with highlights of a pale blue. The utility belt held twin pistols and various pouches for his equipment. On his back, were visible his twin combat machetes. Jeremy and Nicola Travers both had shrewd ideas who stood before them. They knew that their nephews had been out fighting with Fusion. Just once, they had asked the boys if they knew who Hit Girl really was, and the boys had answered in the affirmative – the question had never been asked again. Though neither of them had ever bargained on meeting Hit Girl face to face.

"And I am Relentless," came another electronically enhanced voice as a shorter vigilante appeared to stand beside Cut-Throat.

For Relentless, the weapons were the same, as was the combat suit, only the colour was different; a dark green with pale green highlights. With a nod from Hit Girl, both vigilantes reached up and they removed their masks. The three eight-year-olds flinched but then their eyes somehow just got even wider in amazement at the grinning faces revealed before them.

"Hunter!" Sabrina exclaimed as she gazed up at her thirteen-year-old cousin.

"Hi, Sab."

"Wow!" Sam announced as he took in his eleven-year-old cousin's combat suit.

"This is amazing!" Simon added.

"Hello, boys," Nicola Travers said.

Glenview

Dave's patience was getting stretched to breaking point.

While Mindy was off at Zulu supervising a reveal for the Travers family, four smartass youngsters were going out of their way to be nasty to one another. Anne-Marie was doing everything she knew to annoy Stephanie and the yelling was getting beyond a joke. The boys were also goading one another, but they would then take a break and annoy the girls. Dave could tell that Stephanie was at breaking point and when she snapped – well, she snapped, and things tended to explode. It did not help that when Stephanie bolted from her bedroom, her foot found Horatio who had decided that Stephanie's doorway was a good place to stretch out and enjoy a snooze. The cat's howl, Stephanie's scream as various needle-sharp claws dug into her ankle, followed by quite a bit of swearing was enough to have Dave bolting up the stairs to see what was going on. The cat had been the final straw as Stephanie had stumbled and fallen onto her backside, causing Jamie to burst out laughing. Stephanie snapped!

"I want my Claymore back!" Stephanie demanded as she regained her feet, her fists clenched.

"Blowing up your siblings is not a solution, Steph," Dave responded reasonably.

"Isn't it?" the ten-year-old demanded angrily. "They won't leave me alone and I am sick of it!"

"They are just letting off steam, Steph, and I am sure that they are doing it out of love for their big sister."

"Love! My Claymore would be full of love as it detonated and blasted their worthless bodies into a cloud of bloody mess. They wouldn't annoy me after that. That would teach them a lesson they would never forget."

Dave chuckled as he struggled to defuse the simmering Predator.

..._...

"I'm home!" Mindy called out as she closed the door to the garage.

"That's fucking obvious!" Stephanie growled as she strode past and vanished down into the basement.

"Am I missing something?" Mindy asked as Dave stepped out from the kitchen.

"The kids wound her up just a little too much," Dave explained with a chuckle.

"Any injuries?"

"Just pride . . . and Horatio got trodden on."

"I'm sure he'll survive!" Mindy chuckled as her keen eyes spied a pair of yellow eyes peeping out from under the couch in the living room. "I'd better go talk with our little hand grenade before she goes off again."

"Good luck."

..._...

Mindy found Stephanie laying into a punchbag in the basement.

The punches and kicks were strong and violent. Stephanie's body language showed that she was very angry, and that anger went into every punch. Mindy walked over, and she stood behind the bag, holding it in position.

"What do you want?" Stephanie growled.

"I just wanted to spend some time with my eldest girl."

"I'm sorry for being angry with you upstairs."

Another savage kick followed up by a punch shoved the bag to one side and Mindy had to reposition it for the next strike.

"It appeared warranted, I suppose," she replied.

"I just want time to myself, but they won't leave me alone."

"Did Jamie wind you up when you were little?"

Stephanie stopped punching the bag for a moment as she thought back several years. Then she grinned.

"Yes. He used to think all of my toys were his and we'd fight over the stupidest things. But I loved him, and Mum used to say that he looked up to me which was why he was always annoying me."

"I know that you are not a normal girl, and your siblings are nowhere near normal. Dave and I are not normal and as a family we lead a very abnormal life. We all have a lot to cope with from our past lives, but we have one another and that is what matters."

"I know. I would never hurt them, and they know that – which is the problem."

"Yes. You'll happily rip the head off a total stranger and not think twice about his death, but as far as your siblings, I know that you would protect them with your life and never hurt them."

"I owe Dave an apology, don't I?"

"Horatio, too."

..._...

Mindy and Stephanie found Dave and the kids watching TV in the living room.

Stephanie immediately went to cuddle up with Dave where she smiled up at him before apologising for her behaviour. The other kids each appeared and sheepishly apologised for winding Stephanie up.

"I can take it. Sorry for losing my temper with all of you."

"Do you still love us?" Anne-Marie asked, worry etched into her expression.

"It'll take a lot more than anything you are capable of for me to stop loving you, Anne-Marie," Stephanie replied. "That applies to you boys, too."

"I'm glad that's over!" Mindy exclaimed.

"Can I get my Claymore back, please?" Stephanie asked Dave.

"No."

"Just a little anti-personnel mine?"

"No."

"Flash-bang?"

"No!"

The following evening
Thursday, December 1st

Safehouse Q

"Charlotte! Dakota!" Sarah bellowed up the stairs. "You have visitors!"

The two girls came down the stairs looking a little apprehensive – who could be visiting them?

"Office," Sarah directed as she followed the girls down to the end of the house.

Sarah waved the two girls inside before closing the door and heading towards the kitchen. Charlotte and Dakota found themselves facing Lucy and Stephanie.

"We didn't do anything. . ." Dakota began.

"Sit, both of you," Lucy directed with a grin.

"Please don't send us back," Charlotte added.

Stephanie sighed.

"Stop being idiots!" she growled. "We are sending you both back – just not to that hellhole."

"What do you mean?" Charlotte asked.

"Both of you have proved to us that there is more to you both than being Predators or Marauders," Stephanie began to explain. "You can never undo what we were made – we will always be Predators. What matters now, is how you use those skills which you went through hell to learn. Now, this is your big break. A second chance. A chance to make something of your lives. There will be no third chance – just death."

"Where are we going?" Dakota asked.

"Home," Stephanie replied.

South Whipple

For Abigail Wilde, the past couple of days had not been fun.

She had barely spoken to anybody and she spent most of her time just going about her daily tasks. School was a blur, as were mealtimes. The revelations had brought her mixed emotions. Memories which she had hoped would remain buried, were now at the fore and she could remember almost everything which had occurred that afternoon in the East End of London. It had not been the boy's fault – he had been coerced, only it had been him who had taken her virginity and that was something which she could never get back. She felt a little sorry for the boy as he was going to suffer and then spend the rest of his life in prison. Part of her wanted to kill the boy, however, another part of her wanted to forgive him.

Then, she remembered something else from that night.

Two days later
Saturday, December 3rd

The two girls received a rather special visitor that morning.

However, before that visit, Sarah had gathered them both from the basement where they had been playing on a Sony PlayStation with Lin and her sister, Xiāngxin.

"What's wrong?" Charlotte asked tentatively.

"It is time for you two ladies to go pack," Sarah explained.

Sarah barely covered her ears as the two girls screeched happily before they both bolted for the stairs. An hour later, their visitor awaited them both in the office.

It was not whom they had expected.

..._...

"Oh, shit!" Dakota exclaimed as she laid eyes on Hit Girl.

"Sit!"

Both girls sat down straight away almost making Hit Girl laugh.

"You have both exceeded expectations, and as such, I am sending you both home, and on to better lives."

Both girls grinned broadly.

"You will both travel, by air, to Scotland," Hit Girl explained as she handed each girl a cell phone. "These phones are keyed to your personal thumbprints. On each phone is a step-by-step guide for your trip. You deviate, for even one second, and I will hunt you both down."

Charlotte yelped as Hit Girl's tone got darker.

"If required, I will hunt you both down to the ends of the earth and when I find you, do you think I will be in a happy mood?"

The two girls had both gone very pale and they quickly shook their heads. Hit Girl could see that she had got the message across. She was pleased; the two girls were the first pair of Marauders to start a new life.

The future for Charlotte and Dakota is covered in Chapter 54: New Girls of my other story: Vengeance.

Chapter 362*: Freedom

Author's Note: This chapter follows on from events in Chapter 12: Hunted Creatures of my other story: Creatures of the Night and Chapter 8: Escape from San Diego of my other story: Fusion: Los Angeles.

Sunday, December 4th, 2016

Training Facility Echo Chicago

All four youngsters were very tired, and they had each slept for most of the flight.

After they had landed, they had been whisked to Echo and there they had each received a full medical from Doctor Staite before being allowed to rest once again. For each of them, it was the very first time that they had felt really safe in months. All four slept in the same cabin, having fallen asleep almost instantly. The four youngsters slept for a good number of hours before stirring early afternoon. They each found clean clothing waiting for them: T-shirts, shorts, and jogging pants. All four made use of the showers before dressing.

On their return from the showers, they found Mindy and Megan waiting for them outside their accommodation.

..._...

Training Facility Echo Level 1

Food was available along with plenty of drink.

All four kids were very pleased to see the food as they were very hungry and still exhausted from their narrow escape, their injuries, the flights, and the differing time zones. They wolfed down a burger each – two in Nicholas' case – and washed it down with plenty of soft drinks.

"That feels so much better!" Logan exclaimed.

"I ate like a pig!" Nicholas added.

"You are a pig," Guinevere groaned as she patted her own stomach.

"I feel whole again," Juno added.

Around them, Mindy, Megan, Lucy, Hailee, and Lauren sat to keep the San Diego Team company as they ate. Megan had studied Logan's bruises and she chose to comment on them.

"I'm fine," Logan replied. "I had much worse after Leo went to town on me."

"Leo!" Lucy exclaimed in surprise as she jumped to her feet. "Where? When?"

"San Diego," Logan explained. "He got the better of me and Juno."

Lucy turned on Guinevere.

"You knew about Leo?"

"Yes."

Lucy then turned to Mindy.

"What about you?"

"Yes, I knew Leo had surfaced."

"Why did you not tell me?" Lucy demanded as she advanced on Mindy, her face contorting with anger.

"Because I knew that you'd go racing off to the west coast looking for him," Mindy replied calmly.

"Now his trail is cold, dammit!" Lucy declared as she shoved Mindy in the chest.

A collective 'Oooh!' arose from everybody watching. They all expected Mindy to rip Lucy apart. But Mindy did not retaliate, despite the blazing eyes which indicated that Mindy was a hair away from Armageddon.

"You think Leo would leave a trail?" Mindy asked with anger creeping into her tone. "Is he as good as you?"

"After you, there's me, then there's Leo," Lucy growled back. "He is top-notch."

"So, tracking him would be a waste of time, huh?"

"Yes," Lucy admitted somewhat reluctantly.

"I think we need to talk," Mindy decided as she glared at those around her. "I want the room!"

Twenty seconds later, after a mad scramble from those who desired a long and healthy life, the two girls were very much alone.

"Have you ever loved somebody more than anything, Mindy?"

"Yes."

"Have you ever lost somebody like that?"

"Yes, I have."

"Have you felt the utter misery of being alone and just wanting that person back in your life?"

"Yes, I have."

"Would you have done anything to get that person back into your life?"

"Yes, Lucy, I would."

"I miss him. We were taken at the same time, more or less. He was all I had for the first year before the First Intake arrived. He kept me sane – and me him, I suppose. Do you know what it is like to need somebody close to keep you sane?"

"Unfortunately, I do."

"You are so damn infuriating, Mindy!" Lucy exploded.

"So, they tell me," Mindy responded with an evil smirk.

..._...

Training Facility Echo Level 0

There was feverish activity on the mat and a lot of shouting.

Mindy chuckled as she caught sight of what was happening, and she simply shook her head as she watched the ferocious behaviour. Megan, Joshua, Marc, Curtis, Tommy, and Hunter were arranged in a line on the mat and they were engaged in a push-ups race. Megan's face was beet-red from the exertion. Joshua simply appeared to be enjoying himself. Marc and Curtis were red-faced, but not excessively. Tommy and Hunter both seemed fairly content. All six were sweating profusely as their arms pumped. Mindy noticed that the girls appeared to be enjoying the rippling muscles while Jamie and Iain Miller appeared to be checking out Megan's chest as she tried to keep up with the boys. Chloe pulled Megan out of the competition before she killed herself, leaving just the boys. It was several minutes more before Marc and Curtis rolled out of the game, leaving just Joshua, Tommy, and Hunter. Two more minutes saw Hunter give up. The cheering and chanting threatened to lift the roof of the safehouse as everybody shouted support for the two boys.

It was Tommy who folded first, leaving Joshua as the clear winner. Mindy sat down next to a sweating Megan who was still breathing heavily. She grinned up at Mindy, too puffed to speak.

"You are a sorry excuse for a human being, Megan!" Mindy laughed. "What were you trying to prove?"

"She thinks she has bigger balls than us boys," Tommy responded with a grin.

..._...

Safehouse E
Level 7

Stephanie was examining her latest acquisition – an AT4 anti-tank rocket launcher.

"You're a little thief," Abigail advised her friend. "Mindy will only tolerate it so far," she pointed out.

"I like to call it 'appropriation'," Stephanie retorted with a smirk.

"I call it 'mis-appropriation'."

"Whatever; it was shiny, and it looked cool."

"Why do you need this stash, anyway? Didn't Mindy give you full access to the main armoury?"

"Yes, she did; I just like to keep a few useful weapons close at hand – you never know when they might be needed."

Abigail laughed out loud.

"Mindy's going to lock you out, one of these days."

Stephanie placed the rocket launcher into her 'armoury' and she sat down facing Abigail. It was the first time that Abigail had laughed in days.

"I'm her daughter – I'll be fine. What about you?"

Abigail looked very uncomfortable.

"Can we go back to talking about your light-fingered approach to Hit Girl's armoury?"

Stephanie laughed. "No."

"It's difficult – I feel ashamed."

"So, do I. So, does Lauren. Abigail – please."

"I can't really remember much of the actual act. I felt something inside me, but that was it – nothing really registered, and I don't remember an orgasm or anything like that."

"Lucky you."

"Huh?"

"I felt it all. I know it was not a cock, but it still hurt, and it made me feel so horrible," Stephanie responded.

Abigail was surprised to see tears running down her friend's cheeks. Stephanie had never spoken about her ordeal, although Abigail knew about what had occurred – most in Fusion knew about it, but nobody dared say anything.

"You've never spoken about it," Abigail tried as she moved over to sit beside her friend.

"I can remember everything. I can remember how they stripped me. I can remember the cold of my backside on the concrete. I can remember them pulling my legs open. I can remember the shock of something cold being rammed up where nothing had ever been before. . ."

Stephanie did not say any more as she began sobbing and Abigail hugged her friend, her own tears mixing with Stephanie's. It was what Abigail had needed – a shoulder to cry on. She had been avoiding everybody who could help, and that had included Brad and Lauren. She had felt weak – always crying about what had happened. But that had stopped when she had seen Stephanie breakdown over her own rape – she had thought that Stephanie was hard-as-nails, almost superhuman. It took almost fifteen minutes for the two of them to calm down.

"I think about what I set you up for, back in the forest. I am so sorry, Abigail."

"It never happened, so let's not go back there, okay?"

"I feel so much guilt for every bad thing I did to people. I feel nothing for those bastards that deserved to die, but I killed people who just wound me up. I killed to improve my standing within Urban Predator. I tried to kill you – and you would have just been another statistic in my file."

"I tried to kill you, too, remember – and I failed," Abigail pointed out.

"Yeah – you sucked!" Stephanie grinned as she wiped away her tears.

"You failed, too, remember?"

"I got to tan your bare arse."

"That hurt," Abigail scowled.

"I can relate," Stephanie commented

Safehouse Q

"I miss them," Xiāngxìn Lau said as Sarah swapped over her ankle monitor to one which was decidedly more compact.

"I know. We've been through a lot together, but we all have to go our separate ways eventually," her sister, Lin, commented as she examined her new fashion accessory.

"Will we stay together?"

"Yes, sister, we will."

"I hope we get a home with parents who want us," Xiāngxìn said.

"You will," Sarah commented. "I am certain that you will find a home very soon."

"Are we getting replacements for Charlotte and Dakota?" Lin asked.

"Yes. They are being notified at the moment."

Training Facility Echo Level 1

"Yes!"

Hit Girl actually grinned as the young boy jumped up and down in excitement. Fourteen-year-old Ewan Campbell and sixteen-year-old Kate Fincham exchanged a look as the excited twelve-year-old finally sat back down again.

"I think he's happy," Kate deadpanned as Jake Wistrum grinned facetiously.

"I get that impression, yes," Hit Girl chuckled.

"When do we leave?" Jake demanded.

"Monday," Hit Girl replied.

"Thank you," Jake said.

"You're welcome, Jake."

The next morning
Monday, December 5th

Safehouse Q

Jake Wistrum could not have been happier.

He had endured Sarah's lecture and threats of death, but he was happy just to have freedom, no matter how small the change. He lay on the bed in his allocated bedroom, just staring up at the ceiling. Daylight streamed in from the window – that was a major improvement after a month in a subterranean hellhole. He may have only been twelve-years-old, but he had witnessed a lot in his four years as a Predator. There were so many things that he wished he could unsee. So many things which he wished that he could just forget. His brain was overloaded with how to kill, how to maim. He wanted none of it, but it was there and would be there until the day he died. He had killed – several times – and that was something which he hated and bitterly regretted. He had been deluded to think that FEAR might provide him with a route to a life of money and privilege. She had promised training and support in return for his services. He had become enamoured with the idea of becoming a highly paid assassin, roaming the world as an anonymous killer, killing for the highest bidder.

He had visualised himself as a millionaire by the time he was twenty-one – only that bubble had burst in a most spectacular fashion once FEAR's operation had become to come apart. She had held up one part of her bargain – each of them had been paid a large sum of money. His pile of cash was stashed away in a secret place which only he knew about, but it was blood money, and he wanted nothing to do with it, so it would remain hidden for all time. He was determined to lead as normal a life as was possible for his kind. He wanted to leave a life of violence and murder behind him. He wanted to enjoy his life. He might have only been twelve-years-old, but the boy was highly intelligent, and he was able to figure out for himself what he wanted – to a point.

As part of gauging his new status, he had asked Hit Girl questions while she was removing his explosive ankle monitor and replacing it with one that was not so lethal.

...+...

Training Facility Echo
Level 4

Jake and Hit Girl were off to one side of the giant subterranean running track which was occupied by the remaining Marauders.

"Do you think I can put all this behind me . . . you know, and move on?"

Hit Girl had looked up at him and smiled – that had crept him out, just a bit.

"You can do anything that you put your mind to, Jake. You are strong, intelligent, and you have already made great strides to prepare yourself for a new and positive life. You have a long road ahead of you, and some of that road will be hard, but I am certain that you will succeed."

"Thanks. Err, Hit Girl?"

"Yes."

"Those monitors weren't really fitted with explosives, where they?" Jake asked tentatively, and he did not like the smirk he received in response to his question.

Without saying a word, Hit Girl dropped his foot and she walked off, leaving him seated. She returned a few minutes later with a six-foot piece of circular timber which looked very much like a fence pole and was about four inches in diameter. Hit Girl secured Jake's old ankle monitor to the stake and she beckoned Jackal over to hold it in a vertical position.

"Battle Guy – trigger Jake Wistrum's explosive charge," Hit Girl ordered over her earpiece.

Everybody – except for Hit Girl – jumped as a loud double crack echoed through the chamber. The first crack was the doubled-up det-cord which had detonated violently, closely followed by the wooden stake which had split at the point of detonation and fallen to the floor. Jackal glared at Hit Girl who just chuckled insanely. Jake looked appalled, as did all of the Marauders who were still wearing the explosive-laced ankle monitors.

"You are evil!" Jake exclaimed.

"You get used to it," Jackal growled as he stalked off.

Hit Girl ignored them both as she waved over Kate Fincham who almost ran to get her own ankle monitor removed.

"Anything else, Jake?" Hit Girl asked as Kate sat down.

"A signed picture of Psyche?" Jake ventured. "Naked would be good."

Hit Girl growled as Kate rolled her eyes.

"Clothes would be good, too."

"I'll see what I can do, Jake, but don't blame me if she hits you," Hit Girl chuckled.

Monday evening

Safehouse Q

Jake was rubbing his shoulder like mad but otherwise, he was smiling happily.

"You got the photo, then?" Kate asked rhetorically.

"A dead arm, too," Jake responded. "It was worth it, though."

The boy held up a signed, framed photo of Psyche in her combat suit. Kate just laughed as the happy boy ran up the stairs to put his most prized possession away.

"You're just encouraging him, Stephanie," Sarah pointed out as she watched the exchange.

"He's a good kid," Stephanie replied with a grin. "Anyway – he'll be three thousand miles away from me . . . thank God!"

"I heard that!" Jake's shrill voice called down the stairs.

Stephanie and Sarah just laughed.

A little later that same evening

"Okay, settle down!" Hit Girl bellowed.

Everything went quiet and they all looked up, expectantly, at their leader.

"The brighter amongst you will have noticed four new faces in our midst. They are Team San Diego and they will be staying with us for a while. Please make them feel welcome. Some of you may recognise two of them. The leader is Guinevere Murdoch AKA Lilith and she is a Predator. Her boyfriend is also a Predator – Nicholas Hyde AKA Trauma."

"Watch out if you're in the shower with Nicky, girls," Stormtide commented, "he likes to see how far he can pee or ejaculate."

"Is that a Predator thing?" Wildcat asked Tempest with a sly grin.

"No!" Tempest responded as his cheeks went slightly pink.

"Logan Dark AKA Riptide is also a Predator," Hit Girl continued, ignoring the interruption. "However, he has a new face and to some of you, he used to be known as Kai Wynter. Finally, we have Juno Saunders. Juno is an enigma, and while she is not exactly a normal girl, she is not a Predator either. Despite that, she has been trained by one, and as far as I am concerned, she is not a pushover and she has proved that she can hold her own in a fight, earning her codename: Lilim."

Juno blushed at the accolade from Hit Girl which was totally unexpected but otherwise very welcome.

..._...

The four youngsters were actually very surprised by their welcome.

The three Predators were also a little surprised to see how many of their kin were still alive and that they were thriving. Although, after a while, thoughts turned to their futures and, more importantly, where they were going to be living.

"I'm sure that you guys must still be very tired," Mindy said. "How about we get you to your new home?" she suggested.

Twenty minutes later, they were bundled into Mindy's SUV and they were soon heading east on the I-55 before heading north up the coast on the famous Lake Shore Drive.

Safehouse L Rogers Park

Despite it being winter, and the outside temperature being only a degree above zero, the view out onto Lake Michigan was stunning and the four visitors from San Diego enjoyed the view.

The drive took barely twenty minutes and Juno was very pleased when they finally stopped as it had probably been the fastest car ride of her entire life. They had left the coast a few hundred yards ago and as they got out of the car, Juno could smell the lake. They had pulled into the driveway of a very unassuming property and they were very surprised to see who was holding open the front door for them as they walked around to the front of the house.

"Welcome!" Lucy Ford grinned.

"How did you get here so damned fast?" Guinevere asked as she was fairly certain that Lucy had vanished from sight very soon before they themselves had left the safehouse.

"Mindy isn't the only one with a love of speed," Lucy smirked as Mindy just growled.

Once the front door was closed behind them, Mindy turned to the new arrivals from San Diego.

"Welcome to Safehouse L," she proclaimed. "You have the place to yourselves. Lucy has made sure that the place is fully stocked. Anything you need – ask Lucy and she will get you sorted out. The lake is a couple hundred yards that way – a beach, too."

"It's fucking December!" Nicholas pointed out.

"Your loss," Mindy chuckled. "Now, I need to head home. Lucy has new phones for each of you, so call if you get into trouble. This place is nothing special, but you should be comfortable – and safe. Shannon and Marc live closest, so they can help should you need any."

"Thank you, Mindy," Guinevere said, genuinely lost for words.

It would be their home for the foreseeable future.

"Get a good night's sleep, guys – see ya!" Mindy said as she nodded at Lucy and headed out the door.

..._...

"I'll let you guys wander around – kitchen is through there. Upstairs, you will find a room with your names on the doors – I figured that you'd want two rooms, rather than four," Lucy grinned, and she could see four faces turning slightly pink. "We can go shopping in the morning for any clothing you might need, or other stuff – tampons, condoms . . . you know."

"Thanks, Lucy," Nicholas laughed.

All four kids ran upstairs to find their bedrooms. Juno pushed open the door to the bedroom at the top of the stairs with her name and Logan's name on it. The bedroom was nicely decorated and there was a double bed. Logan peeked into the ensuite bathroom.

"We could get us both in there, no problem," he grinned, and Juno giggled.

For Nicholas and Guinevere, they had the room past the master bedroom which had a 'No Entry' sign on it. Again, there was a double bed and it was tastefully decorated. There was also a large sitting room with windows all around beyond the ensuite bathroom. After a brief look around the first floor, Lucy explained all the various security features for the safehouse to Guinevere and Nicholas.

They were all very tired, so they decided to head to bed.

..._...

"You tired?"

Guinevere looked over at Nicholas who was gazing intently at her exposed chest as she lay partially covered by the duvet. She grinned as she felt her nipples hardening while he watched. It was an event which was not under her control, but she loved it when Nicholas watched it happening.

"A little," she replied with a smirk as she reached down to check something lower down – she grinned. "You seem wide awake," she commented.

Nicholas grinned back – what else could a male teen do when he was in bed with a beautiful and very naked girl? His body tended to react on its own and it had done. Not that Guinevere could talk, she was just as blood-engorged in certain places.

"You're not too sore?" he asked with genuine concern, seeing some of the bruising which still covered most of his partner's body.

"I think full-on is out . . . maybe some activity which doesn't involve much movement," she suggested.

Nicholas grinned as he worked out what she was suggesting. He threw back the duvet, revealing their naked bodies and he moved so he lay diagonally across the bed. Guinevere cringed as she moved, the bruises still hurting, but she relaxed as she lay down into Nicholas. She could feel his warm skin against her own, the touch intensifying her feelings of arousal. Before her face, she saw the effects of Nicholas' own arousal and she grinned before she took an involuntary intake of breath as she felt herself being violated by an eager tongue.

In response, she took Nicholas into her mouth.

..._...

On the other side of the house, sex was a long way from Juno's mind.

She was being hugged by Logan very tightly. She was naked, as was he, but intimate relations were miles from Logan's mind too. Juno was struggling with that fine line between life and death which had so violently pervaded her new life. She knew that people died – she had seen it through her own eyes. She had even caused people to die. Her young mind had been able to process the deaths in her life as well as those which she had induced. However, there had been one death which her mind was still struggling with – although, it had not actually ended in death; Logan had survived. Every night, the nightmare had been there, the horror of watching Haven burn. The horror of somebody dying. When awake, she knew that Logan was alive, but every time she closed her eyes, he died again . . . and again.

She enjoyed his touch – but not in that way – as it gave her solace and she felt so safe when he was nearby. His touch on her skin, even if it was simply a hand on her cheek, felt so caring and like nothing which she had ever experience before. She had almost lost that because of that bastard. She had sworn never to allow her mind to be controlled by anger – she saw that as how the Predators were formed – but that man had almost succeeded in taking Logan away from her and that was something which she could never get past until that bastard was dead.

In her mind, Dieter Mannheim's days were numbered.

The following morning
Tuesday, December 6th

Sheridan Road

"Daddy! Daddy!"

"Yes, sweetie."

"Can I borrow twenty bucks?"

Patrick Millar peered over at his wayward daughter.

"Sweetie, you get one hundred and fifty dollars a week from your Predator fund – what have you been spending it on?"

"Condoms, I'll bet," Annabelle grinned.

"Not helping!" Patrick replied, and his youngest daughter ran out of the room laughing.

"I'm sure she just needs a good fucking," Shannon pointed out.

"She's twelve-years-old, Shannon, so as I said: not helping. My original question stands."

"A few movies and stuff."

"You need to learn to control what you're spending, Shannon – I'll give you ten dollars."

"Daddy!" Shannon exclaimed.

"Nine dollars."

Shannon opened her mouth to respond, but she quickly decided better of it and she closed her mouth, smiling sweetly. Her father chuckled as he handed over ten dollars.

"Love you, Daddy!" Shannon called out as she bolted out the door.

Just a few months back, Patrick never thought he'd ever have his little girl back, now he was arguing with her over her allowance like nothing had ever happened. His eldest daughter could kill without a second thought, but she had absolutely no idea how to manage money – just like most fourteen-year-olds.

How the hell had she ever survived her time in England while on the run with Jamie Lizewski, he could not fathom.

Safehouse L

Guinevere awoke feeling sore, but otherwise, she was reasonably well rested.

After weeing and pulling on a pair of shorts and a loose T-shirt, she made her way down the stairs and into the kitchen which was empty. However, on closer inspection, there was an empty bowl with small milk on the side, plus an open packet of cereal and various flakes scattered along the counter as well as some split milk. It was obvious that Juno was awake – the remnants of her breakfast proved that and were normal for the teen. Guinevere looked around, but there was no sign of the youngster – maybe she had gone back to bed.

But then, she heard sounds coming from the basement, and she followed those sounds to find her mentee pounding a punch bag which hung from the ceiling.

..._...

Guinevere could tell that something was wrong.

Juno was focussed on the punchbag and she was laying into the device with all the strength that the young teen could muster. Juno wore a sports bra and tight shorts, but nothing else. She was barefoot, but she wore a set of padded sparring gloves to protect her hands. Guinevere could see some of the various bruises scattered across the teens slim body, and the sight appalled her. Her mind drifted back almost seven months – actually six months and 21 days, but who was counting – and she thought of the first time she had laid eyes on Juno.

And the promise she had made to her Aunt.

...+...

Sunday, May 15th

San Diego

"Aunt Rachel?"

"Guinevere? My God, you look so much like your mother."

Rachel Saunders was just able to look around her devastated living room which was now filled with death. Her face was filled with sorrow as she took in her husband's dead body a short distance away. Then her eyes fell on the huddled, naked form of her daughter. Rachel quickly turned her focus back to Guinevere.

"Guinevere . . . please take care of Juno. I place her into your care . . . Juno?"

"Mom. . ."

"You will go with Guinevere and she will take care of you – do everything that she tells you."

"No, Mom, I can't leave you. . ."

"Guinevere, promise me . . . promise me that you . . . that you will take care of my daughter. . ."

"I will, Aunt Rachel; I promise."

With one last look at her daughter, the eyes glazed over, and Juno's mother died.

...+...

Thursday, December 6th, 2016

Chicago

Had she failed her Aunt?

Had she failed Juno?

It was obvious that Juno had been at it a while as sweat poured from her brow and the sweat running down her back was equally obvious.

"Juno?"

The teen ceased pounding the bag and she turned to look at her mentor. She forced a smile, but it faded quickly.

"Hi, honey," Guinevere offered.

"Hi, Guinny. Sorry, I had some things to work out of my system."

"Has it worked?"

"No, it hasn't. That bastard has to be made to pay for what he did to us – for what he almost did to Logan."

Guinevere could recognise the fire in the girl's eyes, reminiscent of her own. Juno felt the same way she did, but she knew that.

"When are we going back home?" Juno asked.

"I don't know, Juno. We need to find somewhere new to live and we need to setup a new safehouse."

"When is that going to be ready?" Juno demanded with anger in her tone.

"Mindy says she's taking care of it."

"Fuck Mindy! We need to do something or that bastard will think that he's won!"

"Juno, please – we have to do this properly, yes?"

Juno calmed down slightly as she thought about it.

"I want to get back there, but we can't just turn up without defences in place. We are going to have to up our game. When things are ready, I promise we shall get back out there."

"Promise?"

"Have I ever lied to you, Juno?"

"No."

"Have I always had your best interests at heart?"

"Yes," Juno admitted.

"When everything is in place, we shall return to San Diego, and we shall really kick some ass!"

"Fuck, yeah!"

Chapter 363*: A Difficult Weekend

Sunday, December 11th, 2016

Mindy was exhausted after what had to have been one of the most difficult weekends in a long time.

By six, that evening, she had:

A Predator in the medical centre at Echo with a stab wound.

A Marauder at large with no real idea why or where they were headed.

A daughter who had all but barricaded herself in her bedroom and would not be coming back out any time soon.

But, on a less depressing note, though, she also had:

Three more Predators who had been dispatched to Scotland.

Two Predators who had found a new home in Chicago.

One Predator who had successfully jetted off to a new life in Los Angeles.

And . . . a lead on a possible Predator in Atlanta, of all places.

So, let's go back to the previous morning.

Saturday, December 10th

That morning

Longmeadow Road

Doctor Jennifer Staite was pacing backwards and forwards, her hands twisting themselves into knots.

She had never felt so nervous – it was a huge decision, but one which she was determined was correct. It had taken much soul-searching, and a lot of two-way chatter with her husband, but they had both agreed that they needed something more in their lives. Her husband was a wonderful man – a bit eccentric, maybe – but he was the centre of her life. However, her focus was due to change . . . right at that moment. Jennifer had not been masked when she had seen each and every Marauder, and therefore, the two young girls immediately recognised her.

"Hello, Doctor," the eldest said with a smile.

Lin Lau was eleven-years-old. She was short, with jet-black hair, and she had the usual visual indicators of her Chinese ancestry. She had spent two-and-a-half years being abused as a Predator, and then six months as something worse. She had thrown down her weapons at the very first opportunity during The Battle, and she had been thankful for her arrest. The only thing that she had left in the entire world was her little sister.

Xiāngxìn Lau was almost identical to her older sister, only the nine-year-old was quite a bit shorter, but she was also very full of life and the youngster was always grinning. She looked up at Jennifer, and she smiled. Despite having been taken at the tender age of six and having endured the same punishing time as her elder sister, she had somehow coped better and now that she was free from everything, she was very much the normal child.

The two girls were inseparable, and Jennifer had rarely seen the pair apart. As she looked at them both, she knew that she had made the right choice. The two girls had climbed out of Mindy's Jaguar F-Pace and Mindy came up behind them. The veteran vigilante could see Jennifer's distraction and she could relate having only gone through the whole children thing about fourteen months previously herself. Finally, Jennifer snapped out of it.

"Come on girls, inside."

..._...

Jennifer led the way through a pair of grey wooden doors, each glazed with an upper and lower glass pane.

The two girls followed, wide-eyed, as Mindy came up behind with the girls' holdalls and backpacks. Mindy grinned: how far Hit Girl had fallen; nothing more than a mere porter, she thought. Jennifer led them all through a library, a sun room, and into . . .

"This is the family room, right next to the kitchen – make yourselves comfortable, girls. You too, Mindy. Would you like a drink Xiāngxin, Lin?"

"Yes, please."

"Yes, please."

Both girls spoke with a slight English accent having been born in the former British colony, and now Chinese autonomous territory, of Hong Kong and they had both been taught English from an early age. The two girls were stunned by the size of the house and a little overawed by everything. They both sat down on the enormous U-shaped couch and just simply gazed at one other. Jennifer came over and she handed each of the girls a can of Coke and Mindy a bottle of water.

"Ah, they've arrived!"

The two girls turned to see a man standing in the doorway. He was grinning, and he appeared very friendly.

"Girls, this is my husband, Rodney," Jennifer said happily. "Rodney, the tall one is Lin while the grinning one is Xiāngxin."

"Hello, and welcome to your new home, girls," Rodney Staite replied.

..._...

Jennifer had insisted on Mindy staying for lunch.

Mindy had things to do, but Jennifer was very persuasive, as was Rodney. Mindy had not met Rodney before that day, but she found him cheerful and funny, but with a sometimes-condescending personality.

"What do you do, Rodney," Mindy asked as they tucked into hotdogs which the two girls were enjoying hugely.

Thankfully, Mindy thought, the two girls were below the usual disgusting adolescent behaviour common of the Predator species, despite their past, and they were both able to eat hot dogs politely and quietly.

"I have two doctorates: physics and mechanical engineering. I work for Pearson Aerospace in Chicago where I am deputy-head of their Science and Research Division. When I am not at work, my hobby is researching the 'Lost City of Atlantis'," Rodney offered proudly and slightly arrogantly, before he paused briefly. "Oh, and I'm mortally allergic to any form of citrus."

Jennifer simply rolled her eyes.

..._...

That afternoon

Training Facility Echo Dining Room – Level 1

"Mindy? Out of Chloe and you, who is the most acrobatic and the most flexible?"

Mindy gave the diminutive Becky a condescending stare before ginning.

"Chloe is good, I'll give her that, but I am very flexible, and I have been known to hold my own without touching the floor."

"Can you do the splits?" Becky continued as Chloe just shook her head in exasperation.

"You challenging me?" Mindy asked from her seat at the next table.

Becky decided that she was pushing her luck, but she stood her ground as she leaned on Chloe.

"Yes."

Mindy stood up, and with all of Fusion watching and without any hesitation, she pulled her pistol from its holster, ejected the magazine, and then passed the package to Dave, who placed them onto the table. She unbuckled her belt, then she sat down and unlaced her boots, before kicking them off and she dropped her pants, stepping out of them. As usual, Mindy wore boy shorts underneath and she ignored the grins from the boys, all of whom had seen her sparring in much less. Mindy proceeded to demonstrate a perfect front split, sliding gently to the floor under perfect control.

"Wow!" Becky announced, impressed.

"Please!" came another voice and Dave received another pistol as Stephanie half-stripped and joined Mindy on the floor in a perfect front split.

"Okay, enough of this!" Mindy growled as she pulled her pants back on.

"Thanks," Becky said. "Other than you and Chloe, who else is really good at acrobatics?"

"Can I answer this one?" Chloe asked, and Mindy nodded. "That would be Megan – she is ultra-flexible, and she outshines me, and she is not far behind Mindy when it comes to being able to use acrobatics in a fight."

Megan grinned from where she sat opposite Curtis.

"Is that true?" Becky asked.

"I suppose it is," Megan admitted reluctantly.

"Believe me – Megan is very flexible!" Curtis confirmed. "However, I think Mindy's backflip is better."

"Than you, Curtis," Mindy chuckled. "Megan is very good and if you want to learn backflips, then she is good enough to teach her moves."

Megan grinned at the unexpected accolade. Becky opened her mouth, but Chloe shut it quickly.

"Just not today, Peanut!" she cautioned.

"D-JAK, next week," Megan promised a grinning Becky.

Safehouse E Level Seven

The boy had endured two very lonely weeks.

He had been allowed out of his accommodation (cell) for three hours each day and he had been supervised every minute. He had not fought against his enforced incarceration – he had been the model prisoner, to be honest. Mindy had ensured that he had had books to read, plenty of food and drink, and some limited entertainment via an iPod. In Mindy's eyes, the boy was innocent until proven guilty – it could all be a case of mistaken identity, even though it seemed cut and dried. There was no actual evidence, physical or otherwise, linking Lucas to Abigail – just his word, and there was the Fifth Amendment to protect the boy; he was an American National after all. Mindy was way out of her depth as she normally had but one method of dealing with rapists – only this was much closer to home and that disturbed her.

Vicky Richards had been down in her capacity as a CPD Lieutenant to hear the boy's words and to figure out if there really was a case to be answered. She had been joined by Detective Erin Lindsay as a neutral observer who was well versed in the boy's situation. Unfortunately, Vicky and Erin had come away very worried for the boy's future. They had both spoken to Marcus in his capacity as a CPD Captain, and Marcus had reluctantly agreed with their supposition of the boy's guilt. They, in turn, had gone to see Jack Bay in his capacity as CPD Superintendent. With the assistance of the Cook County State's Attorney's Office, the facts of law were identified, and a case was compiled. Peter Stone, the Assistant State's Attorney for the Deputy Bureau Chief of the State's Attorney's Office Special Prosecutions Bureau, was brought on board and he had suggested contacting the British Authorities. The British Authorities, in turn, had passed the awkward issue onto Special Branch considering the sensitive and classified nature of the potential defendant's past.

Naturally, Special Branch had despatched somebody intimately familiar with the world of the Predator.

That evening

Training Facility Echo
Bathroom – Level 2

It had been a strenuous day and Stephanie was desperate for a shower.

She stripped off and stepped under the hot water, enjoying the heat on her strained muscles and bruised skin. She turned her back to the changing room as she soaped up her body and she had just stood up and was rinsing off when she felt an arm wrap itself around her neck and something very sharp press into her left side.

"Don't fucking move a muscle, Steph – I've been waiting many years for this; you killed Kara. I needed her; she helped me stay sane. Then you had to go and kill her."

"Guinevere?"

"Yes, Steph – I know, you all trusted me, but I can't let this go. Kara was my friend in a place where nobody had friends. We needed each other. I hate to do this, but you know the Predator unwritten code: 'An eye for an eye'."

"I know where you're coming from, G, but please, you don't want to do this."

"You begging?"

Stephanie felt the point in her left side shift slightly, and she reacted instantly.

..._...

"You still in the shower, Steph?" Saoirse called out as she entered the changing room. "You want to . . . holy shit!"

Saoirse suddenly got flashbacks to a young naked girl standing in a shower, another equally naked bigger girl lying under the streaming water, blood swirling into the drain.

"I know what this looks like," Stephanie began with a forced smile as she turned off the water.

"Talk about fucking déjà vu!" Saoirse announced as she threw Stephanie a towel. "Cover yourself up – have you no dignity!"

"Funny, bitch!" Stephanie retorted, wrapping the towel around herself as Saoirse grabbed for the phone mounted on the bulkhead just outside the showers.

"Surgeon to the level 2 changing rooms! Surgeon to the level 2 changing rooms!" Saoirse called out over the tannoy before she grabbed a first aid kit.

Saoirse could see what had happened – kind of. There was a bloody wound in Guinevere's side and a small knife lay on the tiles. Saoirse applied a field dressing to the wound and Stephanie held it in place. The sound of running feet could be heard and various faces appeared in the changing rooms.

"Re-enacting your glorious past, Stephanie?" Mindy commented dryly as she took in the scene while Jennifer began to check over the naked Guinevere.

"What's going on?"

Saoirse grabbed Juno as she ran through the door. She saw her mentor lying on the tiles and she quickly pulled her pistol. But before she could level it at anybody, Stephanie had stripped it out of the older girl's hand and then Stephanie shook her head.

"No, Juno; Guinevere did this to herself . . . Logan – get Juno out of here."

"What the fuck?" Nicholas demanded as he watched Guinevere being secured into an aluminium frame stretcher with a blanket wrapped around her.

Saoirse intercepted the angry Predator.

"Confucius said it well: 'Before you embark on a journey of revenge, dig two graves'," she said.

Nicholas recognised Guinevere's knife, and he saw Stephanie looking a little bewildered. He put two and two together very quickly and he got four as the answer.

"Oh, shit!" he groaned.

..._...

Medical Centre – Level 1

Once Guinevere had had her wound treated and sown up, she was tucked up in a bed to rest.

"There's no lasting damage," Jennifer explained as she took a moment to check out Stephanie. "The blade missed anything important."

"Pleased to hear that, I am," Stephanie breathed. "I'm fine, okay."

"Just needed to check – that nick will leave a small scar, but you'll be fine."

"Christ, Stephanie!" Mindy complained as she studied her daughter. "You really do pick your times to cause shit – I need to go pickup Electra's grandfather and I'm going to have to put my foot down now."

"Since when have you been bothered about putting your foot down?"

"Smart-ass!"

..._...

Chicago O'Hare International Airport

"Mindy!"

"Commander."

"Patrick, please."

Mindy grinned – she loved the British accent and Patrick's was smooth, refined, and perfect.

"Of course, Patrick – this way."

They walked back to where Mindy had parked her SUV and very soon they were on I-90, heading into the City. They talked, mainly about England, Scotland, Electra, and Patrick's family. After a very short trip, Mindy dropped the Commander off at a hotel for the night. They both knew that the following day was to be rather harrowing and neither was looking forward to it.

"Have a good night's sleep, Commander, Marcus will be by to pick you up in the morning."

"Good night, Mindy."

A little while later

Glennview

"Steph?"

"Go away!"

"Let me in . . . please?"

There was movement and Mindy heard the lock turn, but the door remained closed. With slight apprehension, Mindy turned the handle and she nudged the door open a centimetre. She checked the gap for any signs of a trip wire or other tell-tales.

"It's clear – I've no mines, remember," Stephanie growled from the bed.

Mindy closed the door behind her and she sat down on the bed next to her daughter. Stephanie was wearing her usual bedtime attire of an overly large T-shirt. It was obvious that the youngster had been crying.

"Bad day, huh?"

"Once upon a time, it was funny – now it sucks . . . I hate it; why does everybody want me dead?"

Mindy could understand Stephanie's feelings. The past year had been hell for her and so many people had tried to kill her – one coming so close. Mindy lay on the bed and she pulled Stephanie close to her. She had no idea what else to do, or what to say. For Stephanie, though, just having somebody to cling to was all she needed. She had shrugged it off for so long, only for it to come back with a vengeance. Abigail, Saoirse, Summer Frasier, FEAR, Willow – so many people had made a concerted effort to kill her and all had come very close. She knew why – and she knew that there were others out there that wanted to do her harm – and she was sick of it. She just wanted to lead a normal life and be in control of that life, but no matter what she did, she failed, and somebody else tried to kill her.

Everything stemmed back to that girl, Kara Newton. Stephanie could picture the girl in her mind. It had not been her fault; she had been a victim of her situation. It was survival of the fittest at its worst and most depraved. Somehow, Stephanie had survived as the fittest – God only knew how. She had been noticed. Stephanie knew that she had probably been only days away from receiving a termination bullet in her skull. At the time, she had wished for it . . . anything to end the daily abuse and the never-ending suffering. Everything that had occurred from that point had stemmed from her killing Kara Newton.

"I wish I had never killed that damn girl in the shower!"

Mindy actually laughed, and Stephanie sat up, looking really annoyed.

"What's so fucking funny about that!"

"You're playing the same 'if' game, Steph – don't."

"I know – we've been through it before, but. . ."

"No fucking 'buts', Stephanie!"

"Thanks for being there for me."

"Always, Steph."

"Night, Mindy."

"Sleep Tight, Steph."

..._...

Dave could see his wife's distress, and he knew why she was distressed.

"That damn word!" Mindy growled. "So damn small, but so enormous."

"If, huh?" Dave asked rhetorically. "The biggest word this world has."

"Tell me about it!"

"Fate has a nasty way of causing shit at the worst possible time. No matter what we do – or think we could have done – it cannot be changed. We've both played the game and it got us fucking nowhere."

"If she isn't out of there, tomorrow, then I'm sending in the big guns."

"Big guns?"

"Oh, yeah!" Mindy confirmed.

The following morning
Sunday, December 11th

Safehouse Q

Stephanie would not come out of her bedroom, so Mindy had just left her to her solace – she could wait as Hit Girl really had enough to deal with including a day of hell ahead of her.

Instead, Hit Girl had headed down to the safehouse to see the outgoing Predators. Four more of them were about to find new lives – leaving Sarah with but one ex-Marauder in her custody. Not surprisingly, Hit Girl had found Jake Wistrum waiting for her. The look of hope on his face was enough for Hit Girl to forget any ideas of winding the boy up.

"Are we going somewhere?" the twelve-year-old boy asked happily.

"Yes, Jake, you are."

"Please tell me I don't have eight hours on a plane with 'Jakey'," sixteen-year-old Kate groaned.

"Yes, you do," Hit Girl chuckled.

"Can't we check him into the hold?" Kate persisted.

"He's not that bad, Kate," fourteen-year-old Ewan commented.

"I promise to be good . . . Katie."

"Don't call me that!" Kate breathed.

Jake just grinned and Hit Girl laughed.

"Oh, Jake has two lovely little girls waiting for him, Kate. I think that they will both give him a run for his money – assuming they don't cut his balls off on day one," Hit Girl explained.

"Are they Predators?" Jake asked.

"Yes."

"Girl Predators are bitches!" Jake scowled.

"Fear us!" Kate growled, and Jake bolted up the stairs to start packing.

Hit Girl handed them their passports, personal papers, and cash for the trip. Kate took custody of Jake's packet.

"Good luck to all of you," Hit Girl said. "You will both be very safe in Scotland, I assure you."

"Thank you, Hit Girl," Ewan said with genuine conviction.

..._...

Attention was then turned towards the fourth Predator.

James Todd appeared more than a little uneasy as he stood before Hit Girl. The fourteen-year-old was British, however, he had opted to remain in the United States.

"You ready to head somewhere a little warmer, James?"

"Yes, ma'am."

"You will be joining a house full of girls, but I think you can tolerate that. Los Angeles will be a change for you – hopefully for the better. I am trusting you not to let me down."

"I promise not to let you down, Hit Girl."

"Here are your travel documents, your passport, and your personal documents. You fly out tonight. Stay safe, James."

"Thanks."

Hit Girl departed for her next meeting which was not to be so nice and friendly.

Training Facility Echo
Medical Centre – Level 1

"A few minutes, please, Jennifer."

Jennifer frowned, but she headed off to her office, nonetheless, closing the door behind her.

"How are you feeling, Guinevere?" Mindy asked.

"Fine, thanks," Guinevere responded, wondering if she was about to die.

Mindy correctly read her expression.

"I trusted you. I gave you everything you might need to survive."

Guinevere was beginning to shake with fear; the voice was ice cold, if not colder. Mindy did not raise her voice – she did not need to.

"I put my people on the line to save your sorry ass. Then, how do you choose to repay me? YOU FUCKING TRY TO KILL ONE OF MY OWN!"

The bellow scared Guinevere to her core. That only got worse as Mindy produced a wicked looking blade, about eight-inches long.

"Have you felt real pain, Guinevere Jones?"

Guinevere could not keep her eyes off the glistening point of the combat knife which Mindy was rotating in her hands. The fifteen-year-old girl had never felt so scared in her entire life.

"I have had my fill of you fucking Predators! I have spent weeks looking after a bunch of you little bastards who decided to go one step further and become fucking Marauders! You all make me sick! For some damn reason, I felt sorry for you all and I decided to help you bastards have a better fucking life. But do any of you motherfuckers show one tiny hint of gratitude? Like FUCK! Maybe I should incarcerate you with all the other little bastards, down below. Believe me, you little bitch, I'd keep you down there until you were fucking forty! Don't worry about Juno – I would have looked after her, and I'm sure Nicholas could handle San Diego without his fuck-buddy."

The glistening point of the knife was mesmerising to Guinevere and she could only stammer out a simple response.

"I'm sorry. . ."

"SORRY! You went after my daughter!"

"She's not your daughter!" Guinevere found herself responding as her anger built up inside of her. "You just felt sorry for the little bitch!"

"HOW FUCKING DARE YOU!" Mindy roared, a full head of steam building up. "She is my daughter for as long as she damn well wants to be, and no fucking trollop is going to tell me otherwise. Fuck you, you little cunt!"

Guinevere screamed as the knife flew in her direction and she closed her eyes, expecting never to see anything ever again.

..._...

Guinevere still had her eyes tightly closed, her body shaking with fear.

"I will admit, you put on a good show," Mindy said calmly.

"What!" Guinevere exclaimed as she opened her eyes and she looked above her head to where the knife was embedded in the plaster an inch from where her head had been.

"The only reason that you are still living is because you had no intent to kill her," Mindy went on.

"What do you mean by that?" Guinevere demanded.

"You're not stupid, Guinevere – far fucking from it! You're a fucking Phase 3 Predator who was activated. Now, that tells me that you know your shit – but you failed to take down a Phase 2 Predator in a successful ambush. No – Stephanie would be very dead if you had wanted it . . . you would have been dead too – I would have blown your head apart. I know the little bitch has previous for killing in a shower, but I'm certain that you could have held your own . . . if you had wanted to. You are alive, right now, for one reason, Guinevere: you have a conscience."

"I suppose."

"Many of you do. I was intending on killing Foxtail, in response to her trying to kill Stephanie, but I saw that she had a conscience and I let her live – got hell from Stephanie, I can tell you! Stephanie had no choice in killing that girl and you know it – that was why you could not kill her."

Guinevere nodded.

"Is she okay?"

"She won't come out of her bedroom, thanks to your little attack."

"I wasn't thinking. I've fucked things up from end to end. I put my team at risk. I almost got them killed. Then I attacked Stephanie and put everything at risk."

"Fight it, Lilith, fight it."

As Mindy left the Medical Centre, Guinevere collapsed into tears and she sobbed as everything swamped her. On the next level, Mindy sought out Juno.

"Go to Guinevere – she needs you."

Nicholas made to follow, but Mindy stopped him.

"Guinevere needs Juno, right now – give her some space."

"I understand. Thank you for not killing my girl."

"I only kill bad people. Guinevere is not a bad person – and neither are you, Nicholas Hyde. Look after your team and support your girl."

"I will."

That afternoon

South Whipple

Abigail was already in tears as Mindy pulled up and things did not improve as she walked out of the house.

"I don't want to go. Do we really have to do this?"

"Yes, Abigail," Mindy replied as they both climbed into the SUV.

"Will I have to talk to him?"

"No. You don't even have to see him."

"I don't want to see him."

"Captain Williams, Lieutenant Richards, and Commander Haig just need to hear your side of events."

"It wasn't his fault."

"Yes, but he did something really bad, Abigail."

"I know."

Office of Captain Marcus Williams

The office was full to the brim.

As well as Marcus, Vicky Richards, Erin Lindsay, Patrick Haig, and Assistant State's Attorney Peter Stone, Mindy and Abigail were present. For the ten-year-old, it was all quite nerve-racking. Surprisingly, Mindy found Abigail holding on very tightly to her right hand.

"You are Abigail Wilde?" ASA Stone asked.

"Yes, sir."

"You are eleven-years-old?"

"Yes, sir."

"You are what is known as a Predator, am I correct?"

"Yes, sir."

"As I understand it, somewhere between July 29th and August 28th, this year, you got taken in London, England, yes?"

"I think so – it's all a bit fuzzy. I was with my friends: Shannon and Jamie. I went out to get a takeaway – I wanted to get Jamie something special."

Abigail stopped as her cheeks turned pink.

"Carry on, please," ASA Stone said politely.

..._...

After Abigail had given her evidence, they all took a break.

"So, how are things at home," Vicky asked Mindy.

"Stephanie's refusing to leave her bedroom," Mindy admitted.

"Mindy tried that when she was younger – I just ordered in a pizza and grabbed some beers from the fridge; best damn movie night ever!" Marcus chuckled as Mindy scowled.

"She'll get over it," Vicky confirmed with a laugh. "Hailee was a little bitch when it came to doing things like that until she was about fourteen!"

When the break was over, Mindy took Abigail downstairs and away from Marcus's office – it was Lucas' turn.

..._...

The boy was understandably very nervous, and he felt the vestiges of fear as he saw the people seated before him.

"You are Lucas Charlton?" ASA Stone asked.

"Yes, sir."

"You are fourteen-years-old?"

"Yes, sir."

"You are what is known as a Predator, am I correct?"

"Yes, sir."

"As I understand it, somewhere between July 29th and August 28th, this year, you were in London, England, yes?"

"Yes, sir."

"Between those dates, you have admitted to sexually assaulting a female – is that correct?"

Lucas stared at the floor for a moment as his body trembled with fear. He looked up at the ASA and he nodded.

"Yes."

"Do you recall who that female was, Lucas?"

"She was naked when they brought her in . . . very young, maybe nine or ten. I never saw her face, but she was not resisting the men who brought her in. She was facing away from me . . . I saw the dagger."

"The dagger?" ASA Stone enquired.

"Every Predator who passes basic training receives a tattoo behind their right ear in the form of a commando dagger."

"Thank you, Lucas. What happened next?"

"I was not fully aware of what was going on – they'd given me alcohol . . . Vodka, I think. They pulled off my clothes so that I was naked, and I just did it – I had sex with the girl. After the event, I was horrified once I realised what I had done. I was shoved to the floor and two men both attacked the girl."

"Sexually?"

"Yes, sir. They raped her."

"Was that the first time you had experienced sexual intercourse?"

"Yes, sir."

"What are your feelings about it now?"

"I hate myself for what I did, and it made me angry and it put me on a bad road which led me to make bad decisions – I saw myself as a bad person."

Lucas had lost control of his emotions and he was sobbing as he spoke.

"Thank you, Lucas – we'll call it a day there," ASA Stone said.

..._...

Lucas was escorted downstairs for some food while Abigail returned to the office.

"As I understand it," ASA Stone stated. "You tried to kill yourself once you found out what had happened to you. Is that correct?"

"I felt horrified by what had been done to me, so I stole a kitchen knife and I slit my wrist – it was a stupid idea and very painful!" Abigail responded. "That boy did not force himself onto me – he was forced to rape me."

"That is yet to be proven," ASA stone pointed out.

"You have no proof that he was even there – it could have been some other girl."

"We know, but we have to go with the facts."

"What will happen to him?" Abigail asked with genuine concern.

"He will be put on a plane, tomorrow afternoon, with Commander Haig who will take him back to London . . . and trial."

"Will what I think be taken into account?"

"Yes, it will, Abigail."

Forty minutes later

"This came in from Washington, on Friday," Marcus commented as he pressed play on the video.

Vicky had not seen the video and she was intrigued.

"What does it mean?"

"All we know is that the girl is a Predator," Marcus responded as his eyes were drawn to a disturbance outside the glass windows of his office. "She is located in Atlanta. . ."

Sergeant Fellowes had been escorting Lucas Charlton past Marcus' office, on the way back to the safehouse when the veteran officer suddenly found himself slammed against the glass bulkhead, banging his head before his feet were kicked out from under him. Once he was able to focus on his situation, he saw Lucas smartly jump in the air, bringing his handcuffed hands to his front and he bolted for the staircase.

Marcus bellowed out a warning.

..._...

"What happened?"

Sam Fellowes looked up at Mindy.

"I don't know. The boy saw something as we passed Marcus' office and then the next thing I know, he knocked me down and he bolted."

"We can track him," Mindy said. "I did not see this coming, I will admit. I thought he was going to stay the course."

"He admitted to rape, Mindy. The kid is facing some serious jail time."

"Considering the evidence, he was not entirely at fault, Sam. Even the person he attacked has admitted that. He also helped her to escape. Did he say anything as he attacked you?"

"Yes. He kept saying it was her. He kept saying he had to help her. I had no idea what he was talking about."

Mindy looked through the glass walls of Marcus' office and she saw the frozen image on the screen.

"I think I might have an idea," she mused.

Six o'clock that evening

Training Facility Echo The Battle Bunker

Mindy studied the boy's track on the giant screen before her.

It made no sense; he was meandering a bit, but he was generally headed in a north-westerly direction. Maybe he was headed to Canada? No – that did not seem right. Minneapolis? There was something which was preventing Mindy from pressing the button which would sever his left foot – the screen was loaded, and the red button pulsed on the horizontal touchscreen. She was also not sending a posse after him – not yet.

"Where are you going, Lucas?"

*The future for Jake, Ewan, and Kate is covered in Chapter 57: Dick of my other story: Vengeance.

*The future for James is covered in Chapter 9: Dawn of my other story: Fusion: Los Angeles.

Chapter 364*: Marauder Missing

Washington Navy Yard
Washington D.C.

Naval Criminal Investigative Service

The girl was perhaps thirteen-years-old.

Tears streamed down her face. It was a typical 'proof of life' video and it was typically disturbing. The youngster held up a newspaper for the camera: The Atlanta Journal-Constitution – and it was dated: THURSDAY, DEC 9, 2016 – the previous day. The girl turned away from the camera and the video stopped.

"Why do we have this?" NCIS Special Agent Timothy McGee asked as he turned away from the large stand-mounted screen.

"Came through in the mail," NCIS Special Agent Leroy Jethro Gibbs responded from his desk. "No idea why."

"It's not Navy, so we pass it onto the FBI?" NCIS Special Agent Ellie Bishop asked as she replayed the video before stopping it as the young girl turned away from the camera.

"Suppose so," Special Agent Gibbs responded.

"What is that?" Forensics Specialist Abby Sciuto asked as she stepped closer to the screen. "McGee – can you zoom in and enhance?"

"One sec."

The image blurred, then zoomed and sharpened.

"The girl has a tattoo!" Special Agent Bishop commented with a surprised tone.

"A dagger behind her right ear," Abby mused.

"I've seen something on that – a BOLO from a few months back – let me see. . ." Special Agent Bishop said as she ran over to her computer and she began to type. "Got it! We need to notify a Captain Williams in Chicago."

"Chicago!" Abby grinned. "The plot thickens. . ."

August 2014

Somewhere in the United States of America

The little scrap of a girl was huddled in the corner of the gym.

To the eleven-year-old, the little eight-year-old was the very image of herself at that very tender age. While the little girl had only been part of the program for a year, Lily O'Brien had endured three years of it. She was a rising star and she was progressing through Phase 2 training with little problem. However, compared to many other Predators, she had retained some of who she had been. A large part of that was her compassion for others. For three years she had hidden it, dishing it out only where nobody else would see it. Many Predators did not give a shit about their fellow trainees. It was not their fault; it was just the way in which their drug-induced mentality and training had decreed. However, certain Predators did not see compassion as a weakness as others saw it. In fact, Lily saw compassion as an asset. She hated humiliation like that which she had suffered on her very first day.

"Hello – what's your name, girl?"

The little scrap of a girl looked up at the older girl with the Irish accent.

"Stephanie Walker."

"I'm Lily O'Brien. I've seen you about."

"I've seen you, too. So?"

"You want to survive in this shithole, Stephanie Walker, then you need to get on your fucking feet and get with the fucking program, now."

The little scrap of a girl rose to her feet. She wore the usual T-shirt and shorts as were expected of her in the gym. Her thin pale arms were bruised, as were the equally thin and pale legs. As with most younger Predators, she was developing muscles in her thighs and biceps as her training progressed. Lily dragged the younger girl onto a training mat.

"Hit me!" Lily ordered.

She did – it was pathetic. Lily did not see the girl lasting much longer. How the little scrap had even gained her dagger, she had no idea. However, she was not the first child in that place to begin losing the will to live. Lily did not really give a crap about the other children – it was live and let live, to a point, but Lily saw no point in unnecessary nastiness. She saw it as counter-productive to what the instructors wanted. They wanted killers, but the way they beat the children under their care, they were creating monsters. Lily was doing her best not to become a monster, but the training, the drugs, the regimen – she had no choice but to comply or face the nine-millimetre alternative. If Stephanie Walker did not sort her life out, she would be meeting that alternative very soon.

"Hit me like you fucking mean it!" Lily yelled. "Hit me! Keep hitting me until I go down – fight like your shitty life depends on it; because it fucking does!"

Lily smiled as the gun-metal blue eyes began to shine and the girl took up a proper fighting stance – just like she had been taught.

The Present Day
Sunday, December 11th, 2016

The Battle Bunker
Chicago

Mindy had stayed at the safehouse.

She had been joined by Dave and Stephanie – yes, the girl had wanted to help and that had apparently overridden her fear of being murdered by some vengeful Predator, however, Stephanie had hinted at a simple postponement of her self-imposed house arrest. There had also been 'stipulated conditions' – more on that later. Therefore, along with Dave, Stephanie, and some select others, Mindy had wanted to be on hand to see what Lucas was up to. She had also received an unwanted visit from an angry Captain Williams. Naturally, he had been very unhappy about the three police officers who had been injured by Mindy's prisoner during his escape to freedom. The escape had also been seen as guilt on the part of Lucas until Mindy had pointed out that the boy had volunteered his guilt in the first place. Marcus had growled and grumbled his way home once Mindy had reassured him that the boy would be recovered in due course. Marcus had given Mindy thirty-six hours before he would put out a full BOLO for the boy.

According to the computer tracking system, the boy had headed northwest to the city of Madison and he had loitered around the central portion of the city for about an hour before the signal had been lost, completely, and never regained.

"Fuck!" Mindy had exclaimed.

Marty had simply chuckled.

"Mindy – you know a million ways to block a GPS signal; just admit it."

"Okay – I admit it!"

"Stephanie, I assume a Phase 2 munchkin like you would know how to block a GPS signal," Dave suggested.

Stephanie gave Dave a patronising look before rolling her eyes.

"In a fucking heartbeat," she growled.

"Don't forget," Marty reminded them. "We have a fourteen-year-old Hit Girl running around out there – well, one with a dick."

Mindy scowled while Stephanie giggled.

"Don't worry, honey," Dave said soothingly as he ran a hand over Mindy's groin. "I know you don't have a dick."

"Get off!" Mindy growled as her cheeks went very pink under the gaze of her daughter.

"So," Stephanie wondered. "If he's a fourteen-year-old Hit Girl . . . with a dick . . ." Mindy growled at the comment. ". . . does that mean that I am a ten-year-old Hit Girl?"

Dave laughed.

"Not even close, short fry!" he replied. "You're nowhere near as psychotic, foul-mouthed, or self-loathing."

"Or scary, angry, and downright cruel," Marty added.

"Cunts!" Mindy scowled.

"So, we've lost him," Marty said, getting the conversation back on track.

"No," Mindy said as she covered up her groin from Dave's hand. "We know where he is headed."

"Where?"

"Atlanta."

That afternoon

Atlanta

Stephanie closed her eyes and she focussed her mind.

She had last been in Atlanta, exactly 1,181 days ago – almost three years and three months. It had been the last time she had been free as Stephanie Reeman. It had been the day when her life had changed forever.

"I know, Stephanie," Mindy said, seeing her daughter's apprehensiveness.

Their flight had landed just an hour previously and they were driving into the city, about ten miles to the north. Along with Mindy and Stephanie, the vehicle was also occupied by Dave, Megan, Abigail, Lucy, and Shannon. Mindy had not wanted Abigail along, but the young girl had insisted – considering that she was 'involved'. Lucy was coming along due to her intimate knowledge of most Predators; knowledge that might prove useful. As for Megan and Shannon . . . well, they were on protection detail. It had been one of Stephanie's 'stipulated conditions' for leaving the 'perceived safety' of her bedroom. She had insisted on having her own personal protection detail.

"Told you she'd taken on royal airs!" Saoirse had laughed derisively when Mindy had mentioned Stephanie's demand. "Princess Stephanie!"

However, Saoirse had understood Stephanie's worries and she had suggested Shannon while Mindy had suggested Megan. Both girls were highly skilled, very resourceful, and totally trustworthy. Stephanie had agreed on the spot, although Megan and Shannon had had other ideas, despite having accepted their protection postings without hesitation.

By the time they had reached Atlanta on the G6, Stephanie was beginning to regret her demand for protection.

...+...

"Hold on, Stephanie," Megan had said as she had seen Stephanie grab a bag of peanuts on the jet, "We need to check that the peanuts aren't poisoned."

Megan had then proceeded to down the entire pack and then the next one.

"I think she's safe," Shannon commented as she downed a third pack of peanuts. "We'd better strap her in – wouldn't want anything to happen to her."

"I'll check out the Cokes," Megan suggested as she reached for the fridge.

Shannon had then proceeded to fasten Stephanie's lap belt, much to the younger girl's annoyance and humiliation. Abigail had seen all this as extremely funny – until Mindy had swiftly put an end to Megan's and Shannon's fun. After take-off, Stephanie had made for the toilet, only to be intercepted by Shannon.

"What?" Stephanie had demanded.

"Just keeping my protectee under my watchful eye," Shannon had grinned.

"You going to watch me wee?"

"Can you manage that without getting killed?" Megan had quipped.

"I know who is going to get killed, and it ain't fucking me!" Stephanie had growled as she had slammed the door to the toilet behind her.

...+...

Dave pulled in alongside the curb on Martin Street South East.

Stephanie made to climb out of the large GMC SUV, but Shannon shoved her back into the seat. Mindy chuckled as Shannon and Megan made a big show of pretending to be Secret Service agents guarding the President of the United States of America. Mindy left them to it as she checked around the area herself.

"Ten months – is that all you could manage?"

"Gibbs!" Mindy chuckled, recognising the voice instantly.

"You could not even make it through a whole year without dragging us back into one of your dubious schemes."

"It wasn't intentional," Mindy responded as she saw three more agents climb out of the Federal sedan.

"You remember Abby," NCIS Special Agent Leroy Jethro Gibbs announced, indicating NCIS Forensics Specialist Abigail 'Abby' Sciuto.

"Of course," Mindy replied, as Abby came running up.

"Hi, Mindy!" Abby exclaimed as she hugged the vigilante.

"Abby."

"Hello, Mindy," NCIS Special Agent Timothy McGee said, extending his hand.

"Hi, Tim. Ellie."

"Hello, Mindy," NCIS Special Agent Ellie Bishop said with a grin.

"Okay," Dave grinned. "This is Stephanie, as you probably remember. Then we have Lucy, Shannon, and Abigail."

"I am Commander Patrick Haig, Special Branch."

"A Brit, huh," Special Agent Gibbs observed. "Welcome."

Once all the pleasantries were over, Mindy briefly went over the events involving Lucas without mentioning Abigail by name.

"So," Abby concluded. "The boy is guilty of rape, but it was under the influence of alcohol and he was probably forced to do it. But, you want to give him a second chance?"

Abby did not appear amused.

"We all make mistakes and sometimes we find ourselves forced down a road we do not want to follow," Gibbs commented. "Okay, Mindy, you want to give the boy a second chance – we can help you with that, but first, we need to find him."

"He's going after that girl in the video – hence, Atlanta," Mindy replied.

"Hence?" Stephanie laughed. "Big word for you!"

"Shannon, if you please," Mindy directed.

"Yeow!" Stephanie exclaimed as Shannon slapped her around the head. "I thought you were supposed to be protecting me?"

"We are – we're preventing you from encouraging somebody to kill you," Shannon replied.

"A Gibbs slap!" McGee chuckled, ignoring the disapproving look from Gibbs.

"So, how do we find this boy," Gibbs asked impatiently.

"We don't," Mindy replied.

"You lost me, Mindy," Gibbs commented.

"He's too well trained," Stephanie cut in. "You could search the world from now until eternity and never find him."

"For once, gobby bitch is right," Mindy growled. "The boy ran after seeing that video. He is coming after the girl – that is why we are in Atlanta. Some think I took leave of my senses a long time ago, but I am as sane as Gibbs here."

Gibbs raised an eyebrow at that comment, but he let it pass.

"The boy will come to Atlanta – he has to. The girl should prove easier to find."

"Okay," Patrick said slowly. "We need to find the girl – so, where do we start?"

"We contact the kidnapers and arrange a meet," Bishop suggested.

"I'm still concerned as to why the video was sent to NCIS," McGee commented.

"As am I," Patrick replied. "It doesn't make any sense to contact a Federal Agency and ask for a ransom. Could they be drawing us out?"

"A nasty thought," Gibbs agreed. "NCIS has enemies and so does Mindy."

"A kidnapper's video gets sent to NCIS," Bishop summed up. "We check it out and follow protocol when we see the tattoo which is very obvious, to be honest, and we notify Chicago PD – everybody with me?"

"I think you've just hit it on the head, Ellie," Lucy said, speaking for the first time. "She's calling for help."

Everybody looked at Lucy like she was totally nuts.

..._...

Lucy went into instructor mode.

"Her name is Lily O'Brien. She was part of the Third Intake. Back then, part of the basic training covered what to do when everything went to shit and one of the methods was to do exactly what she has done. You create a bogus ransom video and ensure that the Predator dagger is prominently displayed. The plan was that the video, or the image of the dagger, should find its way to somebody who was part of Urban Predator. The idea was scrubbed from training after a few months and nobody after the Third Intake was taught it," Lucy explained. "Looks like it worked – kind of."

"So that girl isn't in trouble?" Abby enquired.

"Yes – and no," Lucy replied helpfully.

Gibbs gave her an annoyed glare and Lucy flinched slightly.

"Yes, she could be calling for help – or she's in with somebody else (her 'kidnappers') and they are setting a trap for somebody."

"You a so full of good news!" Mindy growled.

"You insisted on bringing me," Lucy retorted.

"Anyway!" Dave cut in before Lucy and Mindy started fighting it out in broad daylight on the streets of Atlanta. "You two can bitch-fight later on. Where do we start bitch one and bitch two?"

Mindy and Lucy both glared at Dave who simply shrugged it off which annoyed both girls who were very used to others bowing before them. Dave chuckled.

"Girls?" Mindy said, directing her comments at Shannon, Stephanie, and Abigail. "Where might your delinquent kind hide out, should they want to keep a low profile?"

The three girls grinned at the unintended compliment before they began conferring between themselves.

"Anytime now," Mindy suggested.

"Gimme a map!" Shannon ordered, and McGee brought up Atlanta on a tablet before passing it to the thirteen-year-old girl.

Shannon ran her fingers over the screen, moving the map around as Abigail and Stephanie whispered in her ear. Then Shannon stopped, and she zoomed in on a section of the east side of Atlanta.

"Krog Street Tunnel," Abigail announced happily. "I'll bet Stephanie's weapons cache it has drainage tunnels extending under the container yard."

Stephanie scowled at Abigail.

"You're on," Mindy chuckled.

Lakewood Heights, South Atlanta

Jonesboro Road South East & Lethea Street South East

It was getting very dark and cold as the afternoon turned into evening.

Everything had gone wrong in a very short period of time. The young girl ran through the melee and destruction which rained down all around her. What had started as a minor altercation over a simple arrest for a minor traffic stop had exploded into a major riot and the girl was caught up in the very centre of it. She should not have even been there, but she needed to find a better place to hide. She had no one to help her. She was scared. She was barely alive. She was only alive because she willed it. She kept telling herself that she was unstoppable – it was all that had kept her going for the past several months. However, she also had responsibilities – two of them – and she had to get back. The damn bus stop was just there, a dozen yards away, but no buses were running thanks to the damn riot. Her confidence willed herself forwards, dodging the fighting and the detritus of the riot as she made a valiant effort and fled to safety.

The thirteen-year-old had not run so hard in a long time. Her body had always been trim and fit, but months of hard living and neglect made the running painful as she dodged debris and people. A car burst into flames, just a few yards away and the girl fell to the ground, instinctively balling herself for the landing, rolling on the pavement and regaining her feet, still moving steadily forward. Only positive thoughts in her mind and the need to return to her lair gave her the ability to keep moving. Her keen eyes identified threats around her and she prioritised them quicker than an AEGIS computer aboard a navy warship could prioritise inbound missiles. A man falling to the ground – she leapt over him with ease before dodging left to avoid a cop with a raised baton who was striking out at anything moving, fear causing the rookie police officer to lose sight of his task. The noise was epic; people shouting, things crashing to the ground, the wounded screaming. The scared screaming just as loudly. Every now and then, a gun would go off and a bullet would fly through the air.

She took a flying leap on to the hood of a wrecked car and she bounded onto the roof of the next. Her eyes selected an opening in the battle lines and she hoped to escape through that opening and make it back to the city five miles north of her. Something grabbed her jacket and she lost balance, crashing to the ground and she rolled into a car, screaming out in pain. Whatever had grabbed her was gone and she scrambled back to her feet. She elbowed a woman out of her way before flipping over the top of a black man who appeared just as scared as she was. Then she saw several items flying through the air – rocks, bricks, glass bottles . . . she could not avoid all of them.

Then out of nowhere, something cannoned into her and she felt herself being enclosed in strong arms as she and her rescuer crashed down to the ground.

Krog Street Tunnel

"Nice graffiti," Shannon commented as they looked around the tunnel.

The tunnel was a magnet for the city's graffiti artists and it made for a colourful tunnel which would otherwise be just boring concrete. The lighting sucked as many of the light fittings were dark. That just made the tunnel more appealing for people who wanted to be invisible.

"I like this place," Abigail commented. "Kind of reminds me of some of the tube lines I used in London to hide in."

"It is appealing," Stephanie agreed.

"Great place to get mugged," Ellie commented as she fingered the butt of her service pistol.

"The raised walkway," Lucy said as she leapt over the rail, dashed across the road and then over the opposite rail along the walkway.

She was followed by the posse of people across the subterranean street.

"Bingo!" Lucy grinned as she pointed down at a horizontal steel drain cover.

There were scratches on the concrete indicating recent movement of the cover. Mindy grinned, and she waved everyone out of the tunnel. As they walked back towards the parked cars, Mindy outlined her plans for that evening.

"Are you nuts?" Gibbs asked. "Never mind."

Lakewood Heights

Whoever it was, they quickly scooped her off the ground and almost dragged her down a side street which ultimately led towards an auto salvage yard.

Finally, they stopped, and the girl was shoved down behind a dumpster onto a soft blanket.

"Get the fuck off me!"

The girl glared up at her assailant/rescuer.

"Lucas! What the fuck!?"

"Lily – thank God!"

The two youngsters hugged each other before they sat back, and Lucas spoke again.

"What are you doing here?"

"I found out you were here, and I had to come find you."

"How did you find out that I was here?"

"I saw your face in some video on a screen at a Chicago police station and I came after you," Lucas explained.

Lily's eyes narrowed, and she looked worried.

"Why were you in a Chicago police station and what was my video doing on a Chicago police station screen – this whole thing fucking stinks!"

"I got myself in the shit again."

Lily's eyes narrowed even further, and she stood up, reaching behind her back.

"What sort of shit are you in?"

"This sort of shit!" an electronically enhanced voice responded.

Lily turned around in shock, but she recovered quickly as her hand came around from behind her back.

"No!" she yelled.

"No!" Lucas yelled for a totally different reason as Lily produced a pistol and she fired off seven rounds into Hit Girl's torso, sending the famed vigilante flying backwards. "What the fuck!?"

Lily had bolted, and Lucas ran after her.

"What the hell, Lily!?"

"I just killed Hit Girl – not a good idea to hang about," Lily retorted angrily.

"Ha! Yeah, right!" Lucas exclaimed. "What you did do, was piss off the one person who could give you a new life."

"Hit Girl – like fuck, Lucas; she's here to kill us."

"You are so fucking stupid!"

Hit Girl

"Well, it wasn't exactly a trap."

"Did you get yourself shot again?" Psyche enquired over the radio from two hundred yards away.

"Seven fucking times!" Hit Girl growled unhappily.

"Bet that stung!" Psyche quipped with a sly snigger.

"I am perfectly happy for you to experience the seven bullets," Hit Girl responded as she regained her feet while rubbing her chest and wishing that she had mounted her heavier chest armour.

"I'll pass!"

Five miles north Cabbagetown

"Are they always like this?" Gibbs asked impatiently as he listened to the bickering over the radio.

"More or less," Kick-Ass conceded "Actually, more."

"Where are they headed?" Hit Girl asked.

"As we expected, the tracker is moving north, back into the city," Abby responded as she examined her tablet. "Bit surprised he kid allowed it to transmit again."

"Not really," Stormtide suggested. "He just wanted us off his back while he found Lily. He found her, so he's kind of calling in the cavalry."

"Only, Lily don't want no cavalry," Fury added.

"That was a good idea, getting facial rec.," Abby conceded. "Once we could limit the cameras that we needed to search, finding the girl was easy. The boy helping us pinpoint his position was a big help."

"What was the girl doing in the southside?" Gibbs wanted to know.

Abby looked a little uncomfortable as she turned the tablet around and she passed it over to her boss. The still image showed the young girl talking to a man and Gibbs flicked to the next still image – the girl handed the man a package and she received a smaller package in return.

"Who is he?" Patrick asked. "A druggy?"

"Yeah," Abby confirmed. "Tony Ramon – he's the lieutenant for a drug dealer who calls himself 'Magic'. He's the biggest in Atlanta."

"Oh, shit!" Piranha growled over the radio.

"She didn't," Stormtide countered.

"She fucking did," Psyche confirmed.

"Stupid bitch!" Fury added.

"What are you damn Predator Princesses fucking on about?" Hit Girl demanded as she jumped into her rental.

Hit Girl

The 2015 Ford Mustang in gloss black burnt rubber as Hit Girl accelerated hard, working up through the six-speed manual gearbox connected to the five-litre B8 motor.

Hit Girl had to take a slight detour to get around the simmering riot and onto the main route heading north. She sensed danger and Piranha's explanation made her blood run cold.

"Straight out of the fucking Predator Playbook," Lucy groaned. "You rip off drug dealers and sell their dope straight back to them before they even know it is missing. Gets you a lot of cash – but it can also piss of said drug dealer when he finds out he's just been fucked over."

"So, Lily is in danger – and by extension, Lucas," Hit Girl growled as she put her foot down.

"What's new," Kick-Ass threw in. "Damn Predators!"

Lily and Lucas

"You're not telling me everything, Lucas," Lily growled unhappily.

"I was Hit Girl's prisoner and I escaped," Lucas replied.

"How did she find you – she obviously wasn't looking for me."

"Look, Lily – I thought I might never see you again. When I saw you in that video, I just legged it and came to find you. Okay – time to come clean . . . I have a tracker."

Lucas stopped, and he pulled up his trouser leg.

"You fucking traitor!" Lily exclaimed as she threw a punch at Lucas, bloodying his nose. "Stay aware from me!"

Lily ran ahead with Lucas running behind.

..._...

Lily was too busy running away from Lucas to see the danger only a few yards away.

She was not far from her hidden lair and she was beginning to feel safe. Her mind was on the shock of coming across Lucas, rather than on her safety. She never saw the parked SUV. She never saw the six men moving towards her.

"Lily!"

As the girl turned her head towards the sound of the yell, she saw the men. Her pistol came out and she fired off a single shot before a tirade of gunfire raged in her direction. Lily had no choice but to run for safety and she bolted for the alternative entrance to her lair, dodging the bullets as she scrambled up a tree to the right of the tunnel entrance and she dove over the concrete wall into the container terminal.

She continued running until she vanished beneath a row of container cars.

..._...

The boy turned as he heard the roar of a V8 motor approaching.

The Mustang turned broadside across the road, sending one of the gunmen flying as the back fender smacked into him. Lucas froze as the car skidded to a halt just a foot away from him and a voice yelled at him out of the open window.

"Get the fuck in, asshole!"

Lucas felt raw fear as he hauled open the door and dived into the car, trying to ignore the bullets and the thought of what lay ahead from him, unsure of what was worse – the bullets, or facing Hit Girl. He had barely slammed the car door when Hit Girl slammed her right foot to the floor and the vehicle slithered on the blacktop, before diving into the tunnel, bullets striking the rear of the car, smashing the rear window. They drove hard for less than half a mile before Hit Girl took a hard right into a parking lot and slamming on the brakes, cutting the engine.

"What are doing, Lucas?"

"I had to come after her – you must understand."

"Why didn't you come to me?"

"I couldn't take the risk that you'd stop me."

"What is she to you?"

Lucas paused as he took a deep breath.

"She's my half-sister."

"There's nothing in her file . . . or yours."

"We never let on – they'd have killed one or both of us."

"Not easy to keep such a secret, huh?"

"I'm sorry about the officers I hurt. I just lost it when I saw her face on the video."

"What I am I going to do with you, Lucas?" Hit Girl growled. "I'd slap you, but it looks like somebody already has."

Lucas looked very low as his eyes dropped.

"I need to help her – she's in shit."

"Yeah – she's been stealing from those drug dealers and selling their shit right back to them."

Lucas groaned.

"Stupid bitch!" he growled, echoing Fury's sentiment.

..._...

Hit Girl started the engine and she headed away from the tunnel before pulling into another parking lot a short distance down the road.

There, Lucas found a pair of SUVs parked up and a group of people waiting – some of them masked. Hit Girl stopped and turned off the engine before opening her door.

"Get out."

Lucas climbed out and he walked towards the group. He was approached by a short female in body armour who pulled off her mask.

"Hello, Lucas."

Lucas froze for a moment and as he studied the girl before him, his eyes lowered, and he would not look at her.

"I'm Abigail Wilde."

"They would not tell me your name."

"I don't blame you, Lucas – we both went through hell of every kind."

"I deserve to die for what I did."

Abigail looked up at Hit Girl who nodded. Abigail then knelt down and with the assistance of a small tool, she removed Lucas' ankle monitor.

"I will not allow you to be treated like a criminal," Abigail said as she handed the device to Lucas.

They all stopped speaking as a tow truck pulled into the parking lot and stopped a few yards away. A man climbed down, and he called out.

"This here is private property – I have to boot your vehicles if you don't leave."

"Fucking hell!" Hit Girl growled as she turned towards the man.

"Holy shit!" the man exclaimed. "I – err . . . fuck!"

"We were never here," Hit Girl growled.

"Yeah – I mean no, I never saw you," the man stammered as she scrambled for his truck.

Hit Girl chuckled as the tow truck performed a shaky U-turn before shooting out of the parking lot and down the street.

Lily O'Brien

The lair was dank, smelly, and not all that appealing.

Lily sat on a pile of dirty newspapers which were a makeshift seat for the thirteen-year-old girl. She knew that she had fucked up, but she had had no choice – she had needed the money. Then Lucas had appeared and, yes, he had saved her from certain injury, but then she had appeared! The fucking traitor had led her straight to him. The video had been created with much effort for somebody from the CIA who could help her, but somehow the Chicago PD had got their hands on it. There was so much at stake – much more than her simple life.

"Not a bad place."

Lily jumped up, her pistol aimed at the intruder. It was a girl – maybe ten-years-old and the face was familiar.

"Stephanie Walker?"

"That's me, Lily O'Brien."

"How are you doing, Lily?" came another voice.

"Lucy," Lily growled as another girl appeared.

"We are not your enemy, Lily," Lucy said. "Trust us, please?"

"I don't have a damn choice, do I?"

"Yes, you do," Stephanie replied. "You have a choice – I just hope you make the correct one."

Lily tried to process all that was happening, but her mind was overloaded already, and it could not cope with these faces from her past.

"I need to know that I can trust you both."

"You helped me to survive, Lily," Stephanie admitted. "I owe you for that."

"I know we've had our differences, Lily," Lucy said. "But I always had your best interests at heart. I am not going to apologise for stripping you that first day. Nor am I going to apologise for the times after that when I humiliated or hurt you. The very fact that you are alive now, tells me that I did the right thing by you."

Reluctantly, Lily nodded.

"I'm going nowhere without Mackenzie."

"What, or who is a Mackenzie?" Stephanie asked.

"Lily?" came a small, timid voice.

Stephanie and Lucy were stunned to see a small girl of about nine-years-old emerging from a steel culvert.

"This is Mackenzie," Lily said. "She and her brother are homeless and I am responsible for them."

"Brother?" Lucy enquired.

"Who's that, 'kenzie?"

Lucy and Stephanie were stunned to see small boy appearing from out of the same steel culvert. The boy was covered in dirt as was the girl.

"Bloody hell!" Stephanie exclaimed.

The boy was tiny and he could have been only about four, maybe five-years-old.

..._...

Lily agreed to speak with Hit Girl and while Stephanie remained with the two youngsters, Lucy led Lily above ground.

"So, you found my little hideout, huh?" Lily said, making conversation as they walked.

"We think alike, Lily – that's how we found it and tracked you," Lucy explained.

"It takes a Predator to hunt a Predator, right?"

Lily stopped talking as she saw Lucas waiting beside Hit Girl. Lily forced a smile and she approached the boy who would not look her in the face. Lily gave the boy a hug which was lamely returned.

"Hug me, or I slap you again," Lily whispered and Lucas did so. "I'm sorry for striking you."

"That's okay," Lucas replied. "You had good reason."

"Enough of the sibling bonding," Hit Girl growled. "It's time to leave before your drug dealing friends attack."

"I did kinda cause that – sorry."

"Never say you're sorry; it's a sign of weakness," Special Agent Gibbs suggested.

"Rule number six," Special Agent McGee clarified.

"NCIS?" Lily asked.

"We are," Gibbs replied. "Why us?"

"My Mum and Dad were in the Royal Navy – I couldn't exactly send the video to the Admiralty in London, could I?" Lily replied. "I knew that I could trust NCIS – and I was right, I suppose."

"We got problems!" Abby Sciuto announced as she studied her tablet. "Men – many men - approaching from all directions."

..._...

They all scattered into defensive positions.

There was no time to run – it was fight or die. For Hit Girl and Kick-Ass, it was business as usual – just as it was for the Predators. Hit Girl rummaged in the trunk of the damaged Mustang and she produced a Glock 19 pistol along with a pouch of magazines.

"Lucas!"

"Yes, Hit Girl."

"You know how to use one of these?" she grinned.

Lucas expertly cleared the weapon before loading it and preparing it for use.

"Good," Hit Girl growled. "What about you, Styx?"

"Not heard that moniker in a while," Lily chuckled. "Yes, I have a weapon and a few spare magazines."

"Here!" Piranha called out as she threw a ballistic vest to Lily and Lucas.

"Do you need a piece, Commander?" Special Agent Gibbs asked.

"No need, Special Agent Gibbs," Commander Haig replied as he pulled out a pistol from beneath his jacket.

Gibbs nodded approvingly at the FN Browning Hi-Power semi-automatic pistol.

"I figured you for a .38 revolver," Gibbs chuckled.

"I am not that old, Special Agent! I fell in love with the Hi-Power during my army days and I've always preferred one. Many bastards have met their end at the muzzle of this very weapon."

Gibbs grinned as he drew his SIG Sauer P228 pistol.

..._...

The drug dealers were not used to taking on experts.

The first men into the kill-zone died violently with bullets to the head. Commander Haig was enjoying himself as he put one down with ease. Gibbs grunted and dropped a pair. Commander Haig was having none of it as he dropped another, then another. The attacking drug dealers quickly altered their attack before they lost too many and the incoming gunfire became more accurate causing McGee and Bishop to duck.

"Warming up, just nicely," Commander Haig commented.

"Not the best, are they?" Gibbs commented as a bullet struck the roof of the SUV a foot from his head.

Hit Girl just shook her head as she fired aimed shots at anything that moved and somethings that did not. Kick-Ass kept overall watch, ensuring that nobody attempted to outflank them. He saw Lucas and Lily expertly firing their weapons at the enemy. They both behaved just like any other Predator which he had witnessed fighting. Professional. Coolheaded. Dangerous. Lethal. Lily and Lucas fought alongside Piranha, Stormtide, and Fury like they had been doing it forever. He lost sight of Lucas and then Lily as the fighting progressed and cooled. The attack began to dissipate as the surviving gunmen chose to abandon the fight before silence descended on the area as the last gun went quiet. Kick-Ass sighed with intense relief as he realised that it was over, and he strolled over towards his wife. He looked around and then his face went pale beneath his mask.

He could see a body on the ground.

..._...

Hit Girl and Kick-Ass knelt down beside the body.

"Fuck!" Hit Girl growled.

"The fucking bastard took the bullets for me," Lily growled, tears flooding down her face as Lucy tried to treat the bullet wounds with help from Ellie Bishop.

"I deserve to die; my life is forfeit, Lily – you stay safe, you hear?"

"Lucas. . ."

"Hit Girl – promise me that as I die, you will look after my kin. She is good, despite what she was taught to be. Save her."

"You have my word as Hit Girl, Lucas."

The boy's expression changed, and Hit Girl saw momentary relief on his face before it contorted in obvious pain.

"Oh, God – it hurts . . . it hurts." The expression quickly changed to one of fear. "I'm so scared . . . please."

Hit Girl held one hand while Lily held the other. The boy squeezed tightly, then he smiled up at Lily for one last time before he fell back, dead. Lily bent down, sobbing steadily as she hugged her half-brother. Hit Girl stared down at the boy for a moment before she stood up. Kick-Ass saw the body language and he stepped back, giving his wife her space.

"I am sick to death of innocent people dying," Hit Girl breathed angrily, her fists balling and flexing open as she turned to Lily and the others. "Go with Piranha, Lily – you are safe; I guarantee it. But for now, somebody is going to die. Lucas may have done some bad things, but he was not a bad kid – he deserved to live. Gibbs, please see that Lucas' body is recovered and taken back to Chicago. Stormtide, Fury – we have work to do before the dawn."

"What's she going to do?" Lily asked through her tears. "Take on the whole damn organisation?"

Fury chuckled as she responded coldly.

"The streets will run with blood, tonight, Styx."

Chapter 365*: Marauder Avenged

Sunday, December 11th, 2016

Atlanta, USA

"Stormy – go get Psyche and the kids," Hit Girl growled.

Stormtide bristled, but she did not dare respond as she wished with Hit Girl on the literal warpath – she liked breathing. Not surprisingly, Hit Girl glared at Stormtide when she reappeared with just the boy.

"Can you not follow simple orders, Stormy?"

The tone brooked no argument but Stormtide stood her ground, glad that her emotions were hidden beneath a mask.

"Tell Hit Girl what you told me, Isaac."

The five-year-old boy hesitated for a moment as he stared up at Hit Girl.

"They took 'kenzie."

"Where is my daughter?" Hit Girl demanded.

"They hurt her, and they made her go with 'kenzie."

Hit Girl began to shake – but not with fear. Her chest heaved as her breathing increased and she lashed out, her armoured gauntlet shattering the side window of the Mustang before leaving a sizable dent in the adjoining body panel. Hit Girl marched directly over to where McGee was standing over a wounded gunman. The wounded man looked up at Hit Girl and he went very pale as Hit Girl grinned fiendishly, pulling the 18.5-inch purple-hilted Tanto from her right greave.

"I think we need to talk."

..._...

While what Hit Girl was doing went against what the Federal Agents were sworn to uphold, Gibbs sat with Patrick and they nonchalantly reloaded their expended magazines.

The local police were far too busy with the expanding riot to respond to the firefight – at least not immediately. Abby and McGee were busy collating everything that knew about the drug dealer known as 'Magic' and his lieutenant, Tony Ramon. When the red and blue flashing lights heralded the arrival of an Atlanta PD Crown Victoria, McGee halted the officers with his Federal credentials and officially took custody of the scene. The police officers left the scene to look after more urgent problems.

Behind Hit Girl's Mustang, Hit Girl ripped off the duct tape from the man's mouth.

"You ready to talk, yet?"

"Yes. . ."

Hit Girl slapped the tape back into place and she rammed her Tanto into the man's leg for the umpteenth time. The man braced up as he screamed, his sounds muffled by the duct tape. After waiting half a minute for the man to calm down slightly, Hit Girl ripped off the duct tape.

"Anything – I'll tell you fucking anything . . . just don't stab me again."

The man was begging as Hit Girl grinned.

"Let's hear it, and it had better be good or I come back to finish you off, you fucking pussy."

The man nodded as he began to spill the proverbial beans in copious helpings.

Seven miles to the southeast and just north of the airport

North Martin Street, East Point

It took them less than an hour to reach their destination and formulate a plan of attack.

The armour-clad vigilantes would go in while the others covered the outside of the building to prevent anybody escaping. Hit Girl had vowed that nobody would survive the encounter that night. Abby and McGee had been able to hack into the building's security system and they had also been able to confirm the presence of Tony Ramon. The man was seen talking to a tall, thin man who appeared to be the boss – 'Magic'. The plan was simple: Kick-Ass and Hit Girl would hit the building with a frontal assault while Piranha, Stormtide and Fury would gain entry via a side entrance. Hit Girl had given one final order before they moved off to their start positions.

"No mercy."

The Bedivere Group

It was a name used to cover the building's true use.

The group was used to generate legal income for Atlanta's largest drug dealer. He worked almost unopposed as Atlanta was free of vigilantes and he had paid off key senior officers in the Atlanta Police Department. He operated a slick organisation which was perfect in every way from the legally employed staff, to his impeccable taxes. As far as he was concerned, he was untouchable, and nobody knew what his people did after hours.

At almost nine that night, the final employees were just leaving for the night after a long day at the office. They all worked hard, and they enjoyed their large salaries. The security guard at the reception desk in the lobby, who had taken over from the receptionist at six, stood up as a tall, well-built man pulled open the door and stepped inside.

"Sorry, bud – we're closed until eight, tomorrow morning," the security guard said.

"No problem," the man said as he looked around the lobby area and then took a moment to examine the glazed frontage of the building. "I'll be back."

The first-floor conference room

"I'm fucking certain of it, man."

"Certain of what," Hank 'Magic' Bedivere asked.

"It was a Chicago Vigilante!" the man exclaimed in a voice bordering on hysterics.

"This is Atlanta – we're over seven-hundred miles away from damn Chicago," Bedivere pointed out with more than a little disdain for his employee.

"He had that yellow and green mask, too."

Bedivere was about to respond when the building shook violently. He looked up to see glass and aluminium flying across the lobby and what could only be an SUV parked on top of the lobby reception desk. As he watched, a large form stepped out from the driver's seat.

"I fucking told you!" his employee yelled over the noise of falling glass and masonry. "It's him!"

"Fuck!" Bedivere observed unnecessarily as a very nasty thought struck him. "If he's here, then so is his bitch."

"That would be me!"

Bedivere spun around to see a purple-clad armoured form at the doorway behind him. The man fled out of the conference room via another door as his men poured bullets at the purple bitch in their midst.

"Stop fucking shooting me, you fucking bastards!" Hit Girl roared as she returned fire with her twin Glock 19 Gen4 pistols.

The warehouse

The 160-foot warehouse which extended out the back of the building was split in two along the length, with one being almost twice the width of the other.

Towering racks of equipment filled both warehouses and fulfilled the legal business needs of the organisation. Underneath the right-hand warehouse, the not-so-legal business needs were fulfilled by a classified basement which did not exist on any plans. A good chunk of the space was occupied by drug-related equipment and stores of product, with literal stacks of cash. But that was not all; a seventy-yard tunnel led to the south and came up inside a decrepit, rusty warehouse which was seemingly abandoned and condemned. As you moved up the steps from the tunnel, you found yourself in an area made from bricks. There were seven doors – all wooden, and very solid – which led into seven rooms. One was a room with couches, a television, and a compact kitchen. The other six rooms were little more than cells. None of the rooms had natural light and they were all soundproofed against yells and screams. At that point, only one of the rooms was occupied. The room stank of sweat and semen, both of which were overridden by the stench of urine and faeces. However, all that was hidden beneath the reek of fear and human distress.

The girl was naked, and she lay on a musty old mattress which, in turn, lay on the bare concrete floor. A dirty rag was tied behind her head, and it then passed across her mouth and was pulled tightly back into her jaw. Her wrists were bound above her head as she lay on her front and then tied to a ringbolt embedded into the concrete. Her ankles were spread and secured to a pair of ringbolts at the foot of the mattress. The girl's skin was dirty, and she did not appear to have been properly washed in days, if not weeks. The young girl was probably very beautiful beneath all the dirt. Her long hair, a pleasant light brown where the dirt was not embedded, also hinted to her previous beauty. The girl was tall with a well-formed body which hinted at her age which placed her in the late teens. She was asleep, mercifully. She had no idea how many men had visited her. She had no idea how many organs had penetrated her. The pile of fairly fresh, used condoms just within her line of sight hinted at maybe half a dozen visitors that afternoon. It was the same, three days a week – yes, they allowed her time off to recover between sessions of rape.

Not that she was allowed much rest as the other four days were spent with men staring at her body as she sat tied to a chair, or strung up, spread-eagled for all to see. Men paid good money to see young flesh. A cursory hose-down in the central area where there was a drain was all that kept the girl vaguely clean. Her brain had long ago shutdown, ignoring what was happening to her human body. Her human mind was stored, safe and sound deep within her head. She had no idea how long she had been there, nor how long her torture would go on.

All she heard was silence as she slept the sleep of the dead.

Piranha, Stormtide, and Fury

While Kick-Ass and Hit Girl were terminating the drug dealers at the opposite end of the building, the three girls were attacking from the west end of the south side.

At precisely the same moment that Kick-Ass parked his SUV in the front lobby, Fury bolted to one side of the large entry door and flattened herself against the steel siding. There was a large explosion and the roller shutter crumpled to the ground. Four men turned in surprise, raising their weapons . . . just not fast enough as Stormtide coldly gunned them down with her Heckler & Koch MP7A1 PDW. She ran past their bodies as blood streamed across the concrete floor. The girl cared less for the men – they were the enemy and responsible for hundreds of deaths through their drug trade. She was followed by Piranha and Fury, both similarly armed. They ran down the rows of shelving, clearing each row, gunning down another seven men, all armed.

The three Predators moved and though as one with very little in the way of communication. No energy was wasted – all was spent on doing what they were trained to do . . . to kill.

Kick-Ass and Hit Girl

Kick-Ass kicked down the door to a corner office.

"Knock, knock!"

Two men fired off shotguns, the pellets rebounding off of Kick-Ass' heavy chest armour. He strode forward, ignoring the blasts and he yanked one of the weapons out of the hands of a gunman before turning the weapon on both men and adding some colour to the back wall of the decidedly boring office décor. He dropped the weapon and he stepped out of the office to where he found Hit Girl standing before Tony Ramon. The man was a good foot taller than the infamous vigilante, but he was rooted to the spot as Hit Girl produced one of her balisong blades flicking it open.

"Do you wanna know why I use a knife? Guns are too quick; you can't savour all the . . . little emotions. In . . . you see . . . in their last moments, people show you who they really are."

The man was shaking – obviously a bully who enjoyed dishing it out . . . but when the same came calling, he quite literally pissed his pants.

"Hit Girl!" Kick-Ass called out. "Stop playing with your food!"

"Okay," Hit Girl replied as she slashed the bastard's throat open. "Boring conversation anyway."

..._...

Hit Girl sprinted down the corridor which ran the full width of the building, past Kick-Ass' badly parked SUV in the lobby and onto a small open plan area.

Hit Girl paused as she registered muttering from behind a five-foot partition. She grinned as she drew her twin Wakizashi swords and rammed both through the partition and on into the two guards taking shelter on the other side. After a measured period of pain, Hit Girl withdrew her swords and she moved on.

"I think they got the point," she grinned to Kick-Ass who just shook his head in disgust at the bad humour.

Together, they raced up the fire stairs to the second floor having cleared the first. A man ambushed them at the exit from the stairs with a large machete which Kick-Ass easily defeated and turned on the dead man fighting. Kick-Ass rammed the blade through the man's stomach, pinning him to the drywall behind.

"Stick around!" the veteran vigilante growled as he moved on.

Piranha, Stormtide, and Fury

Fury was on point, her bō-staff separated into two halves and Fury wielded it with expert and deadly precision.

Piranha and Stormtide hung back, well out of blade range and the pair were more than a little concerned for their younger friend. She was getting a little wild and her fury was best not experienced. The youngster matched her real and code names without even trying. Stormtide cringed behind her mask as a man lost his head, quite literally, and Fury was sprayed with blood which she studiously ignored as she pushed forwards, for her next target. Piranha shook her head – she was worried.

"She blames herself," Piranha commented.

"Yep!" Stormtide confirmed.

"She's going to come off the rails with a bang," Piranha added.

"Oh, yeah," Stormtide agreed.

"Are you two bitches just going to stand there?" Fury demanded from several yards ahead of them.

Piranha and Stormtide ran to join their friend.

Kick-Ass and Hit Girl with Piranha, Stormtide, and Fury

They met up on the second floor, at the south end of the building.

"Well?" Hit Girl demanded.

"Fury's gutted everything we've come across," Stormtide explained. "Left a bit of a mess and that blood will never come out of the carpet."

"No sign of Psyche, the kid, or the boss man . . . err Boss," Piranha reported.

"Thank you, Piranha," Hit Girl replied. "Good to have a professional on board."

"Teacher's pet!" Stormtide growled as she stalked off.

Fury chuckled as she ran after Stormtide.

..._...

"The fucking bastard has to be here somewhere!"

Hit Girl fumed as she found herself standing on a mezzanine floor overlooking the larger of the two warehouses. She stalked along the mezzanine, looking down each row of shelves.

"I've got the fucking bastard!" she yelled as she saw a movement and she dived over the railing down to the concrete floor below.

The man panicked, running hard for his life. He bolted out of the side door which the Predators had earlier destroyed, and he quickly came under fire.

"Federal Agents!"

"Special Branch!"

Bedivere dived behind a car as some of his men came around the building and they opened fire on NCIS . . . and Special Branch. Bedivere was not hanging around and he ran south towards the railway, throwing himself over a three-foot fence. Hit Girl ignored the flying bullets as she calmly walked between the opposing sides.

"Get out the bloody way!" Commander Haig bellowed. "Bloody vigilantes!"

Hit Girl ignored him as she easily leapt over the same fence and ran after her quarry.

..._...

They ran through the darkness along the railroad tracks.

Hit Girl was in a deviously devious mood and she allowed her quarry to remain a dozen yards ahead of her – never closer. She could take him down whenever she wanted, but instead, she wanted to extend the chase. Did she get off chasing bad guys down? Hell, yeah! She loved the feeling of adrenaline in her veins. Ever since that first day when her Daddy had almost scared the shit out of her with a pistol and she had experienced her first ever burst of pure adrenaline in her veins. It was a feeling that intoxicated her even if it meant cruel and inhumane treatment for the person she was chasing – well, they fucking deserved it, right?

A little over three hundred yards later, Bedivere led them to the left, away from the railroad tracks, and behind a nondescript building.

..._...

Bedivere was not as fit as he used to be, and he struggled to stand as he found himself cornered by the most feared women in the United States of America – if not the world.

"I'm every nightmare you've ever had. I'm your worst dream come true. I'm everything you ever were afraid of."

Hank 'Magic' Bedivere felt genuine fear and he knew that the end was nigh – but his brain still struggled to find some way out of his current predicament. Hit Girl moved slightly to his left, so he began to move away, to his right. He hadn't realised where he had been standing, but Hit Girl had. Hank Bedivere fell backwards, about ten feet and landing at the bottom of a steel box. The sides were vertical with an odd angle at the top. As Hit Girl vanished from sight, he tried to find a way out, but the sides were bare metal with no handholds in sight.

"Oh, this brings back good memories," Hit Girl mused as she ran her hands over the control panel before her, then she shouted down to Bedivere. "I'm crushed that we're never going to see each other again . . . just not as much as you will be."

"No!" the man yelled as a large diesel engine started up and he realised with increasing horror where he was.

The car crusher moved speedily, and Bedivere shrank into a ball as the sides closed in on him. Then he screamed, and he screamed . . . very quickly, though, there was a crunching sound, and the screaming stopped. The diesel engine died soon after as the crushing sequence ended. There was silence from within the crusher.

"What a douche!" Hit Girl muttered as she turned and walked away.

Back at Martin Street

"You found him?" Kick-Ass enquired.

"Yeah," Hit Girl replied nonchalantly.

"What happened to him?" Kick-Ass persisted.

"We couldn't get along – he was crushed."

"What the hell does that mean?" Kick-Ass asked his wife.

"A girl needs to keep her secrets," Hit Girl grinned as Kick-Ass simply shook his head.

It appeared to Hit Girl that the fight was over – only, there was still no sign of Stephanie or Mackenzie.

"I think I might have something," Commander Haig commented.

Hit Girl allowed herself to be led over to where one of Bedivere's men lay on the ground – a pool of blood spreading around his head.

"This, err thing, informed me that there is another floor," Commander Haig said, stamping on the concrete. "Just over here."

Hit Girl stared down at the large rectangular hatchway set into the concrete at their feet.

..._...

Leaving NCIS and Special Branch up above, Hit Girl took her team below.

It was obviously the core of Bedivere's drug world and it had protection. Submachinegun fire erupted out as the team found themselves entering a kill zone. But they were prepared and as Fury and Stormtide threw smoke grenades, Kick-Ass engaged with a Kel-Tec KSG bullpup 12-gauge pump action shotgun. The shells were enhanced breaching rounds which tore apart the supposed ballistic protection that the defenders were relying on for their safety. After their protection was gone, Kick-Ass' rounds tore apart blood and bone, ultimately leaving none standing – at least not in one piece.

The smoke from the grenades slowly dissipated as the smashed overhead lighting flickered giving the subterranean facility a foreboding air as Hit Girl's armoured boots crunched through broken glass, blood, and fractured bone. They searched every inch of the floor until they came to a single door remaining. Beyond the door, they could hear the sounds of somebody having the living daylight beaten out of them – then a girl's scream.

Without hesitation, Kick-Ass flattened the door and all five burst into the room with weapons raised.

..._...

"It's about fucking time you lazy twats turned up!"

Stephanie sat fuming with Mackenzie beside her and a large cosh held in her hands. All around her, men and women lay scattered on the floor, mostly unconscious. One moved and tried to sit up. Whack! The cosh cracked the man on the side of his head.

"Stay the fuck down, pillock! I've been waiting so damn long, I thought I'd have to put these muppets down and breakout myself!"

Stephanie stood up and she pulled Mackenzie with her, barging past Hit Girl and Kick-Ass as she made for the hatch leading upwards. Kick-Ass simply shrugged as he looked at his wife who seemed genuinely lost for words.

"She is so like you, honey."

Hit Girl just stood there, gaping at her daughter as she vanished from sight.

The tunnel

McGee found a concealed doorway which led from the room Stephanie had been held in.

The doorway opened up onto a well-lit tunnel leading to the south. The tunnel was about seventy yards in length and wide enough for three people to walk abreast without bumping into one another. Piranha and Stormtide led the way with Fury acting as tail-end-Charlie and guarding their backs. At the end of the tunnel, they stopped at a set of concrete steps. Fury went up first, keeping low. If there had been guards, they were long gone.

"Clear!" Fury reported as she stood in the centre of the space and studied the seven stout wooden doors.

She was soon joined by Kick-Ass and Hit Girl, who were closely followed by Special Agent Gibbs, and Commander Haig.

"Well, well, well, the proverbial hen house," Gibbs commented. "The bastard was into the sex-trade, too."

"Anybody at home?" Haig asked.

"We've found a kitchen and two empty rooms with some weird leather shit," Stormtide commented.

"What," Hit Girl grinned. "You and Tempest aren't into bondage?"

"No," Stormtide growled, pulling at her mask as her face heated up.

"Disgusting thought!" Fury growled with a mock shudder.

Kick-Ass kicked in the next door – the room was empty. As was the next, and the next. The final room, however, was occupied.

"Holy shit!" Kick-Ass breathed. "In here!"

..._...

The girl was naked, and she lay on a musty old mattress which, in turn, lay on the bare concrete floor.

Kick-Ass gently eased off the dirty rag which was tied behind her head and then passed across her mouth and which was pulled tightly back into her jaw. The girl moaned as she began to wake from her sleep of the dead. Kick-Ass swiftly severed the ropes which bound her wrists and her ankles. The girl's skin was dirty, and she did not appear to have been properly washed in days, if not weeks, in Kick-Ass' opinion. Very gently, Kick-Ass eased the girl up into a sitting position. The young girl was probably very beautiful beneath all the dirt. Her long hair, a pleasant light brown where the dirt was not embedded, also hinted to her previous beauty. The girl was tall with a well-formed body which Kick-Ass decided placed the girl in her late teens.

Fury appeared with a small bottle of water from the kitchen fridge and she tore open the cap. Kick-Ass gently poured a little into the girl's open mouth and her eyelids opened to reveal large brown eyes which were full of fear and panic. She took in the various faces arrayed before her – most of them masked. She looked down at her wrists and her ankles – they were free . . . she forced a smile. Her mind was slow to properly appreciate what was going on – she took the proffered bottle of water and she began to gulp the wonderful liquid down her parched throat.

"Easy now," an electronically enhanced voice growled, pulling the bottle away. "You're safe – and there's plenty more water; too much and you'll be sick."

The girl's head turned to stare into the green and yellow mask. She no longer cared who saw her naked anymore and men leering at her body was just a day to day activity which she tolerated as she had no choice. Was she really safe? She knew who she was, and she knew what she had lost. Would anybody believe that she was who she was? Would the nightmare that had been her life for weeks – or more, she had no idea – ever end? The masked vigilante gently wiped her face with a damp towel – she cringed as she saw the towel get dirty very quickly.

"Bloody hell!" Commander Haig exclaimed as he looked closer at the face before him. "The Lady Lara Cockburn, as I live and breathe!"

..._...

Hit Girl was struggling to comprehend how their trip to Atlanta had gone so badly wrong, but so right at the same time.

They had come to Atlanta to find a Predator in danger and recover a running Marauder. That had not gone too well. They'd found the Predator – a girl called Lily O'Brien – but in doing so, they had lost the Marauder. That had hit Hit Girl hard. The death of Lucas Charlton had not been expected – only he had died protecting the Predator who had turned out to be his half-sister. The boy had died a hero. Then, instead of heading back to Chicago with the Predator and the two young kids which she had somehow become responsible for, Hit Girl had gone on the rampage and taken down the person responsible for Lucas' death. Then, right at the very end, they had discovered a girl who had been used as a sex slave. The girl had turned out to be of English nobility, of all things.

They had found the girl some clothes and together with Mackenzie, she had been taken to a hotel to be checked over.

The Ritz-Carlton Presidential Suite

They had taken over the suite with the assistance of Special Agent Gibbs with his Federal credentials which prevented too much attention from the hotel management who were told to forget that anybody had ever been there that evening.

They were not spending the night – they were just there to clean up the new acquisitions and prepare them for the flight to Chicago. Lara Cockburn had been the first to be shoved into the massive shower. She was still in a semi-comatose state as she had struggled to get used to being free. According to Commander Haig, the girl had been holidaying with her father, Lord Cockburn, in New York when she and her father had vanished. The body of her father had never been recovered, although, his daughter had been missing for a total of eight weeks by the time she was found. The girl was traumatised – naturally – and she needed to be seen by a doctor. That would be sorted out back in Chicago as Commander Haig wanted to keep her reappearance quiet for the time being. Once the girl had been cleaned up – with the help of Lucy and Shannon, she was dressed in new clothing provided by the hotel's remarkable concierge. The boy had not wanted to be separated from his sister, so Mackenzie and Isaac had both showered together, glad to be finally back together again. While they had been in the shower, Lily had been interrogated by Mindy.

"Who are they?"

Lily had cringed as she had brought back those memories.

"Their parents were killed by Bedivere – he burnt their house to the ground," Lily responded.

Mindy was certain that there was more to the story and she pushed Lily onwards with her explanation.

"I know you Predators get up to all sorts of shit, but taking in random homeless kids?"

"Okay," Lily admitted, coming clean as she looked over towards the bathroom. "I got their parents killed."

"How?" Mindy asked.

"I took the drugs their dad was supposed to be selling. Bedivere went crazy, not believing that he had been screwed over by a young girl. He killed them as a demonstration to the others."

Lily obviously felt immense guilt over her actions.

"Do they know?"

"No – please don't tell them."

"They're going to have to know, one day," Mindy said.

"I know."

Mindy ended the conversation as Mackenzie appeared with Isaac. Lily vanished into the bathroom to sort herself out. Again, the hotel concierge had come up trumps and the two kids received new clothing.

..._...

"You okay, champ?" Dave asked Stephanie.

Stephanie nodded.

"Some sore ribs and my bruised face – I've had worse," Stephanie admitted as she rubbed her left side.

Dave grimaced at the bruises on his daughter's face and Stephanie smiled. She had known that Dave and Mindy would come for her – no matter what. Stephanie could see Mindy looking at her and knew that she was well cared for as she grinned back.

"It's all my fault," Abigail stated from over on a couch.

Stephanie sighed.

"I've been so wanting to do this for ages," Stephanie said as she walked over, and she slapped Abigail hard across the cheek.

Abigail struggled to stifle the scream which almost escaped her lips, but a few tears fell down her cheeks.

"That make you feel any better?" Abigail asked a minute later.

"A little bit," Stephanie admitted. "Whine like a bitch, get slapped like a bitch!"

"You're so like Mindy," Dave commented with a chuckle as he walked past.

"What about it?" Mindy demanded.

"Yeah, Dad," Stephanie added with a grin.

Dave took a moment to look at both of them.

"Neither of you ever change," he said as he walked off.

"You picked the perfect man, mum, the perfect man," Stephanie muttered.

"Damn right!" Mindy replied. "Dave was one of my better decisions in life. Anyway, let's get you back to your bedroom and safety."

"Safety is overrated," Stephanie replied. "I have Hit Girl for my mum; I'm as safe as it's humanly possible to get. Plus, I've got a kick-ass Dad!"

Chapter 366*: Marauder Fallout

Monday, December 12th, 2016

Chicago, Safehouse K

Fusion had departed Atlanta long before daylight.

The flight had been long enough to get some sleep, but not a long sleep. ON landing, they were met by Paige and Jennifer before being driven into the heart of Chicago and to Safehouse K where their new guests were able to get their heads down for some much-needed sleep. Jennifer had checked over both of the younger kids and apart from many cuts and bruises, plus some malnutrition, they were fine. Jennifer ensured that Mackenzie and Isaac were tucked up in bed before leaving them so sleep.

"They okay?" Mindy asked.

"Yes – Isaac insisted on sleeping with his sister," Jennifer replied. "They'll both be fine after a few days rest and some proper food.

"Glad to hear it," Mindy replied. "How's Lily?"

"Lily's worn out and feeling very morose. Again, rest and good food will have her back to rights. She's a Predator, so I'm certain that she will bounce back. I'm off to check on Stephanie, then I'll see to Lara.

"Thanks, Jennifer."

..._...

Stephanie was used to being prodded and poked by doctors, so Jennifer's fingers on her side were nothing new.

"You've not broken anything, Steph, which is always good."

"Most of it has only just finished healing," Stephanie responded, sardonically.

"You're doing well, Stephanie – and I'm pleased to see you still wearing a bra."

Stephanie coloured slightly.

"I'm trying to change my image and put who I was behind me. This is Stephanie Lizewski, not Stephanie Walker."

"I am very pleased to hear it, Steph – keep it up!"

"Thanks. I will."

..._...

After forty minutes with Lara, Jennifer smiled at the girl as she redressed.

"You're in reasonably good health, Lara. But, you need to build up your body with some food, plus I want to start you on a regime of pills which will ensure that you receive no infections from what you endured."

"Thank you," Lara whispered.

"I hate to ask this, but, were you a virgin before this?"

"No – I lost my virginity when I was fourteen. I was going through a phase of upsetting my daddy – I figured that having sex underage would upset him; I was not wrong!"

"I cannot even begin to understand what you went through, Lara."

"The first few days were horrible. I was never one to put my body out there. I rarely wore anything that showed off my tummy and I preferred one-piece swimsuits. The first time that they stripped me naked – I struggled. Then they tied me up, spread-eagled so that everything was exposed, and they touched me for the first time. The boss – he brought me to orgasm right there in front of his men. I had never felt so humiliated in all my life. The humiliation wore off after a few days of being felt up and ogled by male hands and eyes. The first time that a man put his dick inside me. . ."

The girl broke down into loud sobs.

..._...

Mindy could hear the sobbing and she was horrified by what the girl had endured.

"So, what happens to Lara?" Mindy asked Patrick Haig.

"She can stay here for a few weeks while I arrange for her homecoming. It won't be easy for her. However, she inherits the family estate and considerable financial reserves. When she turns eighteen in February, she inherits the title and she becomes Lady Cockburn."

"I suppose we'll need to give Vengeance the heads up," Mindy mused.

"I'll cover that when I get back to blighty. I suppose I won't be taking the boy back with me."

"Is that the end of it?" Abigail asked.

"Yes, it is," Patrick said. "Lucas will go down as a hero, and not as a rapist. He gave us crucial information which may help catch those who were truly behind what happened to you, Abigail."

"Thanks," Abigail responded.

The following morning
Tuesday, December 13th

Washington Navy Yard
Washington D.C.

Naval Criminal Investigative Service

"Welcome back, guys!"

"Thank you, Jimmy; it's good to be back," Special Agent Timothy McGee commented.

"Were you successful?" Doctor Jimmy Palmer asked.

"Partially – girl rescued," Special Agent Eleanor Bishop replied. "But, we lost a boy."

"Sorry to hear that," Palmer said. "Any of you get hurt?"

"No – we're all fine," Abby Sciuto commented as she strolled through the bullpen.

"How's our big boss – did he enjoy himself?"

"He enjoyed himself, Palmer," Special Agent Jethro Gibbs commented from behind Palmer as he sat down at his desk.

Palmer cringed but then his attention was seized when he caught sight of a stunning young woman who had just stepped off the left-hand elevator. The young woman was dressed correctly for the cold weather and she wore a dark jacket over blue jeans and ankle boots. Her blonde hair was tied back into a single ponytail. In her right hand, she held a cardboard carrier bearing two large coffee cups from the diner down the road. Jimmy watched the young woman look around the open space before she zeroed in on the bullpen. Jimmy's eyes followed the young woman as she walked up the bullpen and then stopped at Gibbs' desk.

"Morning, Gibbs!"

Gibbs accepted the proffered coffee and he took a gulp.

"Perfect!" Gibbs said with a grin. "How did you know?"

"I do my research," Mindy Lizewski replied.

"What are you doing here, err Mrs Lizewski?" Special Agent McGee enquired as he rose to offer his hand in greeting.

"I wanted to thank Gibbs and his team for their help in rescuing Lily and the rest."

"The coffee pretty much covers it," Gibbs commented as he took a long draw of the hot liquid.

"How're the girls and the little boy," Bishop asked.

"Very well – to be honest," Mindy replied.

"Very glad to hear that."

"Do we have a visitor, Gibbs?" a voice called out from above.

Mindy watched as a black man jogged down the stairs and walked over to the bullpen.

"A very beautiful visitor," the man continued. "Introductions, Gibbs."

"Director Vance, please meet Mrs Mindy Lizewski. Mindy, please meet NCIS Director Leon Vance."

"I have heard many things about you, Mrs Lizewski," Vance said as he shook hands with Mindy.

"Good things, I hope," Mindy responded with a shy grin, her cheeks turning pink.

"Not many women receive the approval of Leroy Jethro Gibbs, and never an accolade as high as the one he gave you. However, I sense that Gibbs is holding something back – but that's like getting blood out of a stone, so I've not pursued it. Anyway, it is very good to meet you, Mrs Lizewski."

"Thank you, Director Vance," Mindy replied.

..._...

Mindy was escorted by Gibbs down in the elevator, about forty minutes later.

"Gibbs, Mrs Lizewski," Jimmy announced as the doors slid open onto autopsy.

Mindy hesitated for a moment and, naturally, Jimmy had some words of support.

"Seeing dead bodies is not okay for everybody, Mrs Lizewski. If at any time it gets too much, please say."

"I think Mrs Lizewski will be fine," Gibbs chuckled.

"I've seen a dead body or two," Mindy commented.

Despite that, seeing the body which lay on the cold metal table made her want to leave. Instead, she forced herself to walk over to that cold metal table with the body. It was obviously the body of a young male. He was naked, apart from a towel to protect his modesty. Mindy told herself that it was no longer a person – it was simply skin, muscle, and bone. It was no longer Lucas. Mindy looked down at the cold body and for a moment, she remembered the boy alive. On his torso, she could see the untreated trauma from the two bullets which had taken his life but been prevented from taking the life of Lily.

"He died saving another," Mindy muttered.

"I didn't know," Jimmy responded.

"His half-sister is alive today because he gave her life for her. He was just fourteen. I have seen so many people die that I've become blasé about it. I remember all the innocent ones who have died, and I wish that I could have saved this one – he really deserved it," Mindy stated. "Why do the innocent always have to die, Gibbs?"

"That's a question I have been asking myself for probably thirty years," Gibbs replied. "It is the world we live in – innocent people are always around to be hurt or killed by those who don't even deserve to breathe."

"I promised that I'd look after them – each and every one of them, yet one died on my watch."

"As I understand it, the boy ran from your protection – you are not to blame. You went after him and while you could not save his life, you saved the lives of four others," Gibbs said slowly.

"I've taken so many lives and I've seen so many die – why should his life mean so much to me?"

"You're obviously very good at what you do, and you feel responsible for Lucas. Were you there at the end?" Jimmy asked.

"Yes – I held his hand as he died."

"Have you decided what you want to be done with his body?" Jimmy asked.

"I want him in Chicago, so he can be buried there – where he was born," Mindy replied.

"We'll take care of it," Gibbs said.

"Of course," Jimmy added.

..._...

The flight back was lonely.

Mindy could not get Lucas out of her mind. She hoped that no more kids would be lost – none of them deserved to die. She knew that Gibbs had been right – it was not her fault, but she was still beating herself up over it. As she sat in her seat on the Gulfstream, faces flashed through her mind: every person she had seen die, either at her own hand or that of another – there were so many faces and Mindy could remember each and every circumstance. It was her punishment for doing the unthinkable and taking a human life. Ever since that first kill, fourteen years ago, she had killed more and more people, relishing the adrenaline rush associated with each and every kill. She enjoyed the sight of the blood. She could taste the iron on the air from the blood once it reached a certain intensity. No kill or death had ever bothered her before – so why should the death of Lucas Charlton be any different? She'd taken lives with less thought than that given to stepping on an insect. She could remember the dead whom she should have been able to prevent from dying but she had been too late for one reason or another and that was totally unacceptable in her organised mind – only, another part of her mind told her that she could not save everyone. That was true – she had been unable to save her own Daddy, instead she had saved Dave.

Basically, life sucked!

That night

Glenview, Chicago

Mindy was still struggling with her emotions and she found herself alone in the living room.

The kids were all in bed and Dave was down at Safehouse K. She grabbed herself a comforting hot chocolate and sat down on the couch with the lights off, staring into the darkness. After ten minutes of thinking and worrying she found her cheeks wet from tears which startled her. The tears kept flowing as she lay down and she had no idea why – she did not understand. She barely heard the footsteps padding barefoot into the living room and she completely missed the soft paws which followed. She found a body squirming in front of her and she knew that it was Stephanie. Mindy glanced at the other end of the couch and she saw two yellow eyes staring back at her and she could hear the loud purring as Horatio offered his own support. Stephanie never said a word as she snuggled into Mindy. For Mindy, Stephanie being there meant everything, and it comforted her enormously. Mindy wrapped her arms tightly around the youngster and she felt a small hand squeezing her own.

The faces of the dead seemed to fade away as sleep finally came to her.

..._...

Dave finally arrived home in the early hours.

He checked on the kids as he normally did. Anne-Marie was fast asleep, hanging off the side of her bed, so Dave gently eased the eight-year-old back under her duvet. A few steps further on, Dave found Danny curled up in a ball, barely visible as he slept. Next stop was Jamie up the spiral staircase. The boy was randomly struggling to sleep right the way through the night as he tried to put his recent past behind him. Not surprisingly, the boy's bed was empty.

Dave knew exactly where to find him, so after a brief trip back to the floor below, he gingerly opened the door into his eldest daughter's bedroom. He smiled as he made out the slim shape of Jamie asleep on top of his sister's duvet. Strangely, there was no sign of Stephanie in the bedroom and she was not in the bathroom either.

Stephanie was known for her nocturnal wanderings, so Dave headed down the stairs and he stepped into the living room. He smiled again as he found Mindy and Stephanie asleep on the couch. Horatio looked up and meowed as Dave spread a blanket over the two girls. Dave had spoken with Mindy earlier that evening and he had sensed that something was wrong, but he also knew why she had flown to Washington D.C. early that morning. He had just left an increasingly morose Lily at Safehouse F where she was struggling to come to terms with what had occurred. Dave had known Mindy for eight years. He knew a lot about the young woman – probably more than she knew about herself. Dave had deemed it important to glean everything that he could from the likes of Marcus and Jack Bay. Some of the stories of the younger Mindy before Damon had returned from prison were sweet and angelic – a far cry from the girl who had sliced and diced her way into Dave's life at Rasul's on that fateful evening in New York.

That single event had changed both their lives. For the better? Definitely. There had been a few ups and downs along the way for both Dave and Mindy, but throughout it all, they had learnt that they both needed one another and they had both risen to the occasion when required. Since they had become 'involved' on a deeper level after Mindy's descent into the darker side of her alter ego, the young woman, who Dave loved more than life itself, had changed into a different person as she had learnt new skills and she had learnt to process her emotions and not to just bury them deep down. Even Marcus had seen a significant change in her character, as had others who had known Mindy for years. Jack Bay had commented on the mothering instinct which had emerged when Danny and Anne-Marie had come onto the scene. Both he and Marcus had been more than a little concerned that Mindy might struggle, but like everything which Mindy did, she put everything she had into it and she had shown that she could be a loving parent – even with some rather unorthodox parenting skills. Both Jack and Marcus had seen some of Mindy's mother, Kathleen, emerge for the very first time in Mindy.

It appeared that the hidden influence of her mother, deep down, was surfacing and providing Mindy with the emotional skills to cope with her everchanging life. In turn, Dave was nurturing Mindy to assist her through a difficult part of her life as she herself emerged from being a child into being her own woman. The arrival of Stephanie in the mix had changed things yet again. A new side to Mindy had appeared – one which had surprised Marcus and Dave immensely. When Stephanie had been shot, Mindy's reaction to the youngster's predicament had shown a deep and caring side to Mindy which had previously been deeply buried. Jack Bay saw it as Kathleen coming to the fore and overshadowing the Mindy which Damon had created. Marcus had seen it first. He had seen the relationship between Mindy and Stephanie grow. Despite their completely different beginnings in different countries and cultures, the pair could have been mother and daughter. Many saw it, but Mindy sometimes struggled to see it herself. They had similar emotional issues and they both sported the very same temper and obstinate behaviour which many saw as beyond obnoxious. The pair needed one another to survive. Stephanie was steadily taking over from Chloe who had previously been Mindy's voice of reason. The same applied to Stephanie who would argue with Mindy to the point where they would both start to fight one another, but neither would ever hurt the other – beyond a few friendly bruises, of course.

As Dave looked down on two of the most important people in his life, he smiled happily.

The next morning
Wednesday, December 14th

Glennview

Stephanie was in the kitchen, talking to Horatio as he ate his breakfast.

". . . At least that's what Tommy says, maybe I need to . . ."

"Hey! Stephy!"

Stephy growled as she turned to the sound of the voice.

"What do you want, annoying brat?"

"Love you too, big sis," Anne-Marie grinned, ignoring the jibe. "Mom wants you in her study."

Stephanie grimaced.

"You're toast," Anne-Marie commented. "Assuming you've done something really bad, of course. Hope so!"

"Thanks, runt!"

Stephanie walked slowly up the stairs and then along the landing until she reached the partially open door to Mindy's study.

A certain poem from her past entered her mind, along with the first line:

"Will you walk into my parlour?" said the Spider to the Fly.

The ten-year-old fly took a deep breath and she put on her most innocent looking smile before she pushed open the door and walked into the spider's parlour.

..._...

"Why do you always look like a cornered wild animal when I summon you here?" Mindy chuckled as Stephanie sat down across from Mindy who sat behind her desk.

"I might have done something wrong," Stephanie replied with a sheepish grin, before quickly adding a clarification to her statement. "I'm not saying I have, though."

"You need to learn to hide your emotions better, Steph," Mindy grinned. "Okay – I want you to fly to L.A. for two days. You will brief Madeline Tyler on what you are and how you came to be."

"You want me to brief her on Urban Predator?"

"Yes, please."

"Can I take Abigail?"

Mindy chuckled – those two were rarely apart.

"Take SD, too – she could probably do with the nicer weather I would have thought."

..._...

Abigail was very excited to be heading back to Los Angeles and Stephanie could hear her excitement as she checked in with the Murphy family.

Saoirse, too, was excited about the trip but annoyed that she was still having to rely on a crutch. Then she had a thought.

"Will I be your protection?" Saoirse grinned facetiously.

"A fifteen-year-old who can't even walk unaided?"

"Oh, you do need protection, Stephy – from me!" Saoirse growled as she threw a full can of Coke at her friend.

Stephanie easily dodged the inbound can without a problem, laughing as she did so.

"We depart at eighteen hundred," Stephanie advised her two friends.

That evening

Glenview

"You behave, now."

"Yes, Mummy," Stephanie grinned.

"SD – please feel free to slap her, if required," Mindy said.

"I won't hesitate," Saoirse acknowledged a bit too fast for Stephanie's taste.

"What about me?" Abigail chimed in. "Can I slap her?"

"You do, and you'll be borrowing Foxy's crutches," Stephanie promised.

"God, I hate her!" Saoirse exclaimed loudly.

Mindy knew otherwise, but she grinned all the same. Then she looked at the fourth member of the team.

"You sure about this, Morgan?" Mindy asked.

"Fucking crazy bird!" Saoirse growled.

"I need to look after my wayward younger sister," Morgan explained.

"Please, Mindy – she's doing my fucking head in!" Saoirse groaned. "I hate being mollycoddled."

Mindy grinned. "Far from me to get in between sisters, SD – have fun, Morgan."

"Bitch!"

"I am what I am," Mindy chuckled.

"Okay, a few days in L.A. with my big sister, and the Phase 2 Predators from hell!" Saoirse groaned. "I must have been a very bad girl in a previous life."

"Have fun!" Mindy chuckled.

"Okay, spawn of Satan – let's go," Saoirse growled as she glared at Stephanie and Abigail.

..._...

Just as the girls vanished out the gate with Mathilda, who was driving them to the airport, Jennifer pulled in with Lara.

Naturally, Lara appeared a little apprehensive as she stepped out of the car and she shook hands with Mindy. Despite her being semi-comatose during her rescue, she had figured out who she had fallen in with. She had remembered Kick-Ass as being the one who had rescued her, so it was not too much of a stretch to assume that the woman before her was somebody very special . . . and very dangerous.

"Hello, Lara – you look a lot better," Mindy said, putting on a friendly smile. "Come in."

Lara followed Mindy inside at the behest of Jennifer. Mindy waved them both into the living room.

"Coffee?"

"Please," Jennifer replied.

"Got any tea?" Lara asked in a very recognisable accent.

Mindy grinned.

"My daughter is a Brit who loves tea leaves, so I have various: Earl Grey, Breakfast, and some godawful Darjeeling."

"I don't know how anyone can drink Darjeeling." Lara grinned. "I'll take the Earl Grey."

..._...

Mindy returned with a tray of mugs and she sat down in her chair.

"So, what is this about, Jen?"

"This morning, I put Lara through a full medical, inside and out," Jen replied.

Mindy cringed as she crossed her long legs and Lara smirked slightly.

"For goodness sake!" Jennifer complained. "Anyway, during that examination, I found three items which attracted my attention."

"I've been branded," Lara offered in a low voice.

"Explain," Mindy suggested.

"Lara has three tattoos that were never there before, and she has no memory of how they got there," Jennifer commented. "Right buttock, right thigh in the groin, and on the left side of her left breast. A small dragonfly. We have no idea what it means."

Mindy looked down at the floor for a few moments.

"May I see?" she asked.

Lara looked at Jennifer who nodded.

Lara undid the button on her trousers and she eased them down her thighs, still sitting. She showed Mindy the inside of her right thigh, up near the groin. The dragonfly tattoo was very small and easily missed, however, it was colourful – a blue head, abdomen, and thorax with four pink wings.

"Thank you," Mindy said, and Jennifer quickly pulled up her trousers and button them.

"Still getting used to wearing clothes after two months naked," Lara commented as she took a large sip of her tea.

"The tattoo means that you are the property of a sex ring," Mindy stated. "If we had not rescued you, then you would have been sold – if you weren't already. You would have been used either as a common prostitute, or maybe a high-class call girl. Those tattoos, based on insects, are often used by the Russians to mark their property. I should be able to track down who that tattoo belongs to."

"You said that I may already have been sold – am I at risk?"

"A very good question. They would have taken photos of you – naked ones, to use for selling purposes. We'll see what we can find."

"Will my body be on the internet?"

"Not the internet as you know it – but deep down on the dark web, maybe. You are hot property, so the images would be guarded and most likely not stored electronically where somebody could access them, except for some discrete shots which they would use to sell you – photos of your breasts and other parts, for instance, but no facial details or anything which could identify you. If they want to buy you, they will be shown a printout of your face – never the Full Monty, so to speak."

Lara looked horrified.

..._...

"Have no fear, Lara – we will look after you. We have a team who will search the dark web for you and we will see if we can track down who you might have been intended for. As to whether you are at risk, we will have to assume yes – however, what intrigues me, is that if they knew who you really were, then they would have ransomed you for millions – a much bigger payday than merely selling you as jailbait," Mindy said.

"Merely?" Lara asked. "Jailbait?"

"Sorry – a bit melodramatic" Mindy apologised. "Go get some rest and leave things to us. I will keep you safe. Very soon, you'll be able to return to your home, in England, and I am certain that you will be safe there."

"Thank you, Mindy – I owe you my life," Lara said. "I have lost my father, leaving me alone on this earth. I hope that I can call on you as my friend, Mindy?"

"Of course."

Lara vanished to make use of the bathroom, leaving Mindy and Jennifer to talk.

"If she has been sold, and money has changed hands, then somebody will be looking for her. However, they have no idea who she is, as I mentioned. But somebody may come looking for her, and they would start in Atlanta. The trail should end there, but worst case, they find themselves at my door – worst case for them, that is."

Mindy chuckled darkly and Jennifer scowled. Jennifer was not a big fan of the dark humour which pervaded Fusion – quite frankly, it scared her. But, she understood why it was necessary for the vigilantes to be able to laugh about what they did at night – she had been amongst enough military personnel to hear similar dark humour and she had hated that, too.

Once Jennifer and Lara had gone, Mindy made a quick call to Abby, and she asked her to direct Synthesis onto a visit into the dark web.

The following morning
Thursday, December 15th

Safehouse E
Level 8 – Detention Level

There were not that many Marauders left in the accommodation.

Those that were, sat at the same table eating breakfast: Carrie Milligan, Kieran Brennan, Dylan Page, Joel Burnell, Jay Hilton, and Willow Hartman. The six youths chatted, although Willow tended not to join in the conversations much. The two remaining girls were outnumbered two-to-one, but they each considered themselves to be worth two of the boys any day of the week. Carrie was the first to look up as the door opened and she nodded at Shannon as she entered the room. Then Carrie performed a classic double-take as a girl walked in the door. The girl was very familiar with her jet-black hair.

"Lily!" Carrie exclaimed.

"Hi, guys!" the girl said with a brief wave of her hand. "I understand you lot are in a spot of bother."

"Just a bit," Carrie admitted. "Where. . .?"

Carrie stopped dead as Hit Girl strode through the door.

..._...

"Could I please have your attention," Hit Girl called out.

Everybody turned to face her – nobody ignored or disobeyed Hit Girl. Under normal circumstances, Hit Girl might have laughed at the kids snapping to her tune, but not that morning.

"Three days ago, Lucas Charlton died."

There was an exclamation from six kids.

"Did you kill him?" Willow demanded.

"No," Lily said, as tears fell down her cheeks and she sobbed loudly. "He died protecting me. He took two bullets instead of me."

Shannon hugged Lily tightly as she sobbed. There was a mixture of stunned and shocked expressions at the news.

"For those of you who did not know," Hit Girl said quietly. "Lucas and Lily were half-brother and sister."

"Wow!" Jay exclaimed. "You kept that quiet!"

"Do you blame me?" Lily asked.

"No."

"Lucas died a hero," Hit Girl said. "His body is on its way back from Washington D.C. to Chicago. He will be buried in this city after a funeral. I understand that he was born here, so I see it as fitting that he should be buried here."

"Who is going to pay for all that?" Dylan asked.

"I will. That boy made some mistakes, but that does not mean that he deserved to die. I made a deal with each one of you. You follow instructions and learn from your mistakes, then I will look after you, no matter what."

There were mixed expressions, some showing embarrassment at calling Hit Girl's bluff.

..._...

Hit Girl walked out of the room, leaving Shannon and Lily behind.

"I don't trust her," Willow stated.

Shannon marched straight up to the older girl and shoved her against a wall.

"Don't you ever say anything against Hit Girl, or I will fucking take you down, and I don't care what age you are or what Phase you were – I will fucking end you!"

"Calm down, Shannon!" Willow responded.

"Do you trust me?" Shannon said to the gathered Marauders.

"Yes, we do, Shannon," Carrie said, wincing at the angry teenager's fierce attitude.

"I happen to know that Hit Girl went to town for you fucking retards. A Chicago PD Captain wanted you all sent to a secure prison after three of his officers were hurt when Lucas broke out of their custody to go after Lily. He thinks that you are all too dangerous to be allowed into society. Guess fucking what? Hit Girl went defensive and guess what her response was? She said to that Captain, and I quote: 'Over my fucking dead body!' Fucking useless twats, the fucking lot of you!"

With that, Shannon grabbed Lily and shoved her out of the door, before following closely behind, slamming and locking the door as she went.

Around that same time

Safehouse L

It had been a little over two weeks.

The bruises had all but gone, along with the tiredness, and the pain. Although, the guilt was still there, but slowly subsiding. So, what had they been doing for two weeks? There had been lots of time spent exercising and keeping their bodies trim and their muscles toned. In Juno's mind, her mentor and Nicholas had spent a lot of time exercising certain other muscles and her mind was struggling to comprehend how much sex it was possible for two people to have. Okay, she and Logan spent their night's naked and embraced, but only to play – Juno was not quite ready for the next step; she told Logan that she was waiting until they returned west before committing to that event.

Logan had no problems with that as he still had full access to Juno's body and she his. He was very happy that her bruises had faded – he hated seeing her suffer in any way. Other than sexually based activities, the four of them sparred, often two on one to increase Juno's abilities. It was harsh, but Juno understood the reasons why they had to push her – and, as a by-product, provide her with a whole new set of fresh bruises to mar her otherwise perfect body. For that morning's exercise, Juno held a pair of black Escrima sticks, each a little over two feet in length. She wore a pair of skin-tight shorts and an equally skin-tight sports bra, both of which she had pulled on straight after stepping out of the shower that morning. Logan loved his girl's ample thighs and the visible muscles on her calves, thighs, stomach, and biceps. He was the referee for that morning's exercises and Juno was facing off against both Guinevere and Nicholas.

It seemed so unfair.

..._...

Guinevere was just as scantily clad.

The limited clothing allowed the girls freedom of movement with nothing restricting the range of their joints as clothing would normally. Nicholas wore his usual baggy shorts and a baggy T-shirt. He preferred brawn over fast, snappy movements, and he had the muscles to back that up. To ensure that the training was beneficial to all, one of them was always a referee to ensure that things did not get out of hand and to ensure that Juno did not get hurt too badly.

A few bruises never hurt anybody, and Juno was young – the pain and the tears soon went away, as did the bruises. The sparring would also start slowly as Juno exchanged steady strikes with Guinevere, their Escrima sticks clashing slowly, then increasing in tempo as Nicholas joined in to split Juno's attention, two sticks verses four sticks.

Juno was getting good and her reflexes were spot on as the opposing sticks moved fast from her left and her right. She had to anticipate and gauge each and every strike so as not to leave herself open for a strike from the other side. But she was fighting two seasoned fighters who had been fighting for many years when she had only been fighting for a few months. However, Juno knew that learning the skills would keep her alive. She had been exposed to the life of the vigilante and the associated burst of adrenalin-fuelled pleasure that it brought. She wanted to continue with that life which her mentor had offered her. She knew that she could say no, at any time and Guinevere had made that abundantly clear, but Juno was no quitter, so she was seeing it through to the very end.

The Escrima sticks clashed harder and faster, then Guinevere grinned nastily, and Juno knew what was coming as Guinevere made to sweep Juno's feet out from under her, but Juno was getting wise to her mentor's antics and Juno swiftly and skilfully blocked the strike. . . only to realise her error with no time to correct it as she felt real pain when one of Nicholas' Escrima sticks struck her right buttock and Juno screamed out just as Nicholas' other stick took her across the left breasts, sending a huge surge of pain across her chest. The pain was extreme and in two separate places at once. The girl dropped her weapons and she fell to the floor, her eyes screwed tightly shut in an attempt to fight the searing pain on her buttock and in her chest. Logan stepped in and he used his own set of Escrima sticks to block those of Nicholas and Guinevere.

"Stop!" he called out.

Nicholas and Guinevere both froze, and they lowered their weapons. Juno struggled to her knees, tears streaming down her face, one hand gripping her right buttock with another, her breast.

"You need to move faster and have eyes in the back of your head, Juno," Guinevere stated without any compassion. "Get up!"

Juno forced herself to her feet, picking up her Escrima sticks as she went. She did not want to give Guinevere any satisfaction by appearing weak. She ignored the pain and she braced herself for another attack from the two people who she was starting to dislike immensely.

"Just say the magic word, Juno," Nicholas reminded the girl.

"Fuck you!" Juno retorted angrily, and Nicholas smiled.

Guinevere refused to show concern for Juno. The girl had chosen her path, so she would have to take the good with the bad. There was a safe word, of course, and Juno was free to use it at any time, but the youngster was stubborn, and Guinevere knew that her protégé would rather take a beating than surrender. Inside, Guinevere smirked as she noticed that they had an audience – Nicholas and Logan had noticed, too, but Juno had not. It was the same problem; Juno's situational awareness sucked and had almost got her killed on more than one occasion. The fighting continued in earnest, as the sweat-soaked Juno moved to avoid the inbound strikes. Despite her tiredness, the girl fought well, and she landed a swipe on Guinevere's rump, much to the older girl's annoyance. Nicholas was having none of it as he took a stick smartly across the youngster's right buttock, eliciting a yell of pain and indignation from the girl. That momentary distraction allowed Guinevere to sweep Juno's feet out from under her and deposit the girl on her back, eliciting another yell of pain.

"Stop!" Logan called out. "Time!"

Juno glared up at Guinevere and Nicholas before scrambling to her feet and storming off up the stairs to the bathroom for a shower.

..._...

Guinevere slipped into the bathroom while Juno was showering to check on her charge.

Juno was just finishing off washing her hair when Guinevere caught sight of the two wicked-looking red stripes on Juno's right buttock. Then Juno turned around and she grimaced at Guinevere as she saw her mentor's expression at the red welt marking her left breast.

"Sorry about those, Juno, but they should remind you to move quicker."

"They look horrendous!" Juno growled. "What will people say?"

Guinevere laughed.

"Who else is going to see your bottom and your boobs other than me and Logan?"

"I might want to go naked," Juno retorted without much thought.

"I'll believe that when I see it," Guinevere chuckled as she swapped places in the shower with Juno.

"Okay, I will!" Juno growled as she finished drying off and she threw the towel onto the bathroom floor before stalking off out the door and down the stairs.

Guinevere closed her eyes and held her breath for a few moments and then came the scream from downstairs followed by a loud yell.

"Guinevere, you are a fucking bitch!"

..._...

Juno stopped dead as she entered the living room.

Nicholas and Logan were talking to Lucy and a girl with jet-black hair. Juno screamed as she tried to cover up her breasts and her pubic hair with her arms and hands. Then she looked up at the ceiling and shouted at Guinevere.

"Guinevere, you are a fucking bitch!"

"Love the choice of clothes, Juno," Lucy chuckled.

"Sorry," Juno muttered as she felt her face go brilliantly red and she could see the blush extending down to the tops of her breasts.

Logan handed his girlfriend a large T-shirt from the laundry which Juno quickly pulled on.

"Juno, this is Lily," Logan said, introducing the black-haired girl.

"Lily, this is Juno – she doesn't normally go around naked," Logan explained.

"Hi, Juno," Lily said. "You fight well."

Juno stepped towards Lily and studied her.

"You have a dagger too?" Juno asked.

"Yes, I do," Lily replied as she swept her long hair back away from her right ear and showed Juno the mark. "I was the same intake as Logan – although he was Kai back then. I also knew Guinevere and mister 'I enjoy covering girls in piss and semen'."

Juno laughed as Nicholas' cheeks went slightly pink.

"Lily is right," Lucy said. "You fight really well, although you must be a little sore from those red welts on your butt."

"I don't move fast enough according to my bitch of a mentor."

"That would be me!" Guinevere chuckled as she walked into the living room. "Hello, Lily – it's good to see you again."

"Likewise, Guinevere."

"I was just telling Juno how well she fights," Lucy commented.

"She is good, and she is improving every day," Guinevere said proudly. "There are a few gaps to be filled in, but we're getting there."

"Do you need any help?" Lucy offered.

"Please!" Guinevere exclaimed. "She's a difficult bitch to teach!"

"Reminds of a stubborn ten-year-old girl, I once knew and tried to train," Lucy replied.

"I was the perfect student," Guinevere complained.

"Perfectly difficult as I remember it."

"I kicked your arse, remember."

"Vividly!" Lucy scowled.

Author's Note: You can follow Stephanie, Saoirse, Morgan, and Abigail in Chapter 10: The Predator File of my other story: Fusion: Los Angeles.